Russia's Railroad Building UP As America's On Decline

By JAMES L. KILGALLAN
United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI)—The head of the nation's largest railroad pointed out today that Soviet Russia is building up its railroad system at a time when America's railroad industry is on the decline and in a precarious position.

James M. Symes, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, made the chilling statement in an exclusive interview with United Press International.

In the event of a national emergency this situation obviously would be of vital importance, he said.

Symes, a veteran of 42 years in the railroad industry and recognized as one of the country's most able transportation executives, said Russia is "really going to town" in expanding its railroad network and the tonnage handled over it.

"For example," Symes declared, "Russia in 1940 had 60,000 miles of railroad but by 1950 it had increased to 75,000 miles.

"On the other hand, the United States in 1940 had 254,000 miles and yet in 1950 this had fallen off to 230,000 miles of railroad.

"This contrast is illuminating and significant.

"If our railroad industry is in a precarious position, and it is, it follows that the country is, too—because the railroads are an obvious necessity to our future growing economy and defense protection."

Double Track Mileage
Other disconcerting facts brought out by Symes were:

—Russia doubled track mileage between 1945 and 1950.

—The U.S. has 40,000 fewer freight cars than ten years ago. The U.S. passenger fleet has a chunk by 7,000 cars.

—Russia has electrified 3,320 miles of line since 1925, will almost triple it to 8,300 by 1960. Average Russian carloadings per day have been stepped up from 84,007 in 1948 to 109,400 in 1955.

"While we have been shrinking our mileage, Russia has been expanding theirs," said Symes. "They are not dumb."

"Take 1945. In that year 86 per cent of the ten miles (tonnage multiplied by miles hauled) were hauled by the railroads in Russia. In 1955 it was 83 1/2 per cent.

"In 1945 in the United States it was 67 per cent of ton miles by rail. In 1955 the figure was only 60 per cent."

Emphasizing the importance of our railroads in the national defense picture, Symes pointed out that in World War II the railroads hauled 90 per cent of the military material and 97 per cent of the military personnel movements.

This remarkable achievement, he said, resulted in an enormous saving in manpower and war materials.

For the purpose of illustration, Symes took as an example the moving of 100,000 tons of freight from New York to San Francisco.

Changes by Rail
"If done by rail," said Symes, "it can be done with 832,000 gallons of fuel oil. If it moves by highway it takes four times that amount, if it moves by waterway through the Panama Canal it takes five times that amount. And if it moves by air it takes 25 times that amount—in gallons of oil."

"I'm sure that if we had to call on the railroad to move men and material in World War II we'd have to do it again in the event of a similar national emergency.

"Moving such traffic by railroads would mean a tremendous saving in manpower and in the transportation of essential war materials."

"For the railroads to move that 100,000 tons of material across the nation from New York to San Francisco, it would take 3,220 man days. If moved by highway 13 1/2 water 3 1/2 times and if moved by air 3 1/2 times as long in man days."

"My contention is that the two most essential things in war time are manpower and fuel. It seems to me this is a situation which they (the government) should do something about so we could handle the job expeditiously and economically in the next war, if one comes."

Sums Up Problem
Symes said that never in his 42-year association with railroads has he seen the outlook for the American railroad industry as alarming as it is now.

A number of Eastern lines have been operating at little or no profit despite lay-offs of personnel in efforts to economize. On the Pennsylvania employment has been reduced by more than 11,000. The situation in the South and West is not as bad although he says "the makings of it are there."

The real railroad problem according to Symes, can be stated in a dozen ways but basically "the trouble begins by government — federal, state and local government — treating the railroad industry as if it were still the wealthy monopoly it was generations ago."

'Your Blueprint For Survival' Program Told

W. T. Rice, president of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, signified his gratitude at the response of Coast Line employees and their friends to the inauguration of the "Your Blueprint For Survival" program.

The program, designed to urge all interested in the railroads' "survival" as a private enterprise, is receiving support from every section of Coast Line territory, said Rice. He pointed out that the seriousness of the situation that now exists in the railroad industry and particularly in the area served by Coast Line will require positive legislative action to avoid disaster for an industry that is basic to our American way of life.

The program was inaugurated by Rice at Jacksonville, May 29, at a meeting of 200 officers and supervisory officials. Plans were formulated at that time to enlist the aid and support of all active and retired railroad employees, friends, suppliers and shippers in pending transportation legislation.

A speakers bureau was formed to aid in spreading effectively the story brought out in testimony before the Smathers Committee.

Quoting Senator George Smathers of Florida, Chairman of the Committee, "The railroad industry is a sick man" and "under present conditions railroads cannot survive", President Rice urged positive support for the forming of a stabilized national transportation system.

A special issue of the "Atlantic Coast Line News", with the title "Your Blueprint For Survival", tells the story of the industry's plight and the importance of pending railroad bills in Congress to the economy of the nation. It asks that all employees, after learning the facts, contact their Congressmen and ask them to support transportation legislation in this time of desperate national crisis.

"I have, have you?" This phrase is being heard all over the Coast Line, said Rice, in every office over company telephones. This slogan has replaced the customary form of greeting. Large buttons bearing this phrase are much in evidence, signifying that the individual has written to his Congressman asking that he support the Smathers Bill.

"All of the nation's railroads have joined in this fight for "survival", said President Rice. Caught in the web of recession, with falling revenues, and less than half a months operating capital on hand, the transportation industry is in urgent need of legislative assistance or our way of life as we know it today could be lost, he said.

State Methodist Membership Shows Increase In 1957

LAKELAND (UPI)—Methodist membership in Florida increased by 13,047 last year to push the total over the 200,000 mark for the first time in history.

The 114th annual Florida Methodist Conference was told by its statistician, the Rev. M. E. Myer, at its opening business session that membership now stands at 208,872. He said total church property in Florida totals $35,517,146 and that expenditures for the past year totaled $13,416,922.

Myer and others presented a series of reports on status of the conference and its units during the afternoon session, which was preceded by a memorial service for those ministers who died during the year.

Myer, from Cross City, reported the conference paid its pastors last year $1,743,867. He said it contributed $340,384 to Florida Southern College's endowment fund, and spent $3,370,330 on building and improvements.

The some 1,000 delegates heard via long distance telephone Wednesday night reports, which were given on various phases of church activity from Bishop Arthur J. Moore of the South Georgia Conference; Dr. Harry Komura, Methodist minister in Honolulu; Dr. Galther Warfield, New York City; and Bishop Richard Rains of the Indiana Conference.

are you waiting for what I was waiting for

Let me tell you what I saved when I drove a new Plymouth...then bought one!

Just like a lot of other people, I was putting off buying a new car...even though we sure needed one. Then I found out what my Plymouth dealer was offering in the way of low prices and really big trades.

Mister, when I saw what I saved I knew there was no use putting off any longer! Got more for my old car than I believed possible. (Plymouth dealers need used cars and can sell all they get!) Got a terrifically low price on the new Plymouth...and choice of models besides...hard-top, sedans, convertibles, wagons.

And I saved a cool $140 on the ride alone! Plymouth's top-luxury ride, Toralou-Alto Ride, is standard at no extra cost, while you have to pay up to $140 for the top ride of competing "low-price" cars.

What's more, I got the car that proved it can save me gasoline, by winning the 1958 Mobilgas Economy Run. A car with Silver Dart Styling that is so far ahead right now it will still be worth more when I trade. With the kind of easy handling that makes every minute of driving a downright thrill! The stamina to stand up without nagging adjustments and big repairs...a car as much better built as it is better looking!

Any wonder I quit waiting? Take my tip...get your Plymouth bargain right now.

Today's best buy...tomorrow's best trade... Plymouth

Television Review

By VERNON SCOTT
 United Press Staff Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD — Ralph Edwards today denied that he lashed the tattle too heavily on his "This Is Your Life" show, saying, "If people can't stand the tears they shouldn't look in."

Ralph, an open man with a frank approach to criticism, points to his sky-high ratings and the program's longevity (8 years) in rebuttal.

"My show is the perfect target for some critics," he grinned. "But our mail does not support the view that we are too sentimental."

"The objections come mostly from viewers and critics who are afraid to examine their innermost feelings. I feel sorry for a guy who can't shed a tear once in a while."

"The genial emcee admits it would be disastrous if he were to break down during dramatic moments of the show."

"In these days of cynicism I think the American public is happy to see a little honest emotion on television," he said.

West Entertainers' To accusations of being overly maudlin, Edwards retorts, "After all this is show business. Our same consideration is entertainment."

"Our intent is to bring to the viewers of America—the people of America—all shapes, sizes, colors and religions. We carry no bankers nor expound any creeds. We bring up old memories and fond recollections. Such things are bound to be sentimental."

"Some of our shows are completely free of sentiment—the Ed Roth program, for instance. Our subjects provide the inspiration and drama. We merely bring all the elements together."

Another factor of the NBC show that pleases Edwards is its effect on the lives of subjects after their lives have been reviewed.

Has Charitable Aspect "Our programs have been directly responsible for contributing to the building of schools, churches, hospitals and other good works," he said. "We raised more than half a million dollars for Hungarian relief."

"In more than one case we helped our subjects find new careers and greater happiness after their appearances."

"Criticism of 'This Is Your Life' is growing weaker all the time. It doesn't worry me. It never will."

Hit parts: Elizabeth Taylor, in seclusion since the death of her husband, showman Mike Todd, in a New Mexico plane crash last month, is scheduled to return to work Monday at MGM for her starring role in the much-delayed "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof".

Tyone Power heads for Hollywood next month to spend four months visiting with his daughters.

Cary Grant, last of the drawing-room comedians, will hit the horse opera trail in his next movie, "Guns of Navarone."

World's Fastest Message Printer Unveiled By Army

RESEARCH TRIANGLE, N.C. (UPI)—The world's fastest message printer and code puncher, the first in a new family of super-speed mobile combat teletypewriter units, has been unveiled by the U.S. Army.

The device was developed for the Signal Research and Development Laboratory here by Klein-schmidt Laboratories, Inc., a subsidiary of Smith-Corona.

It prints messages at 750 words a minute—12 times faster than the average typist, five times faster than normal conversation, and more than ten times faster than standard teletype equipment, the Army said.

A whirling wheel rimmed with letters prints the high-speed messages. It spins at 3,750 revolutions a minute—about the speed of a car going 500 miles an hour.

At the precise instant the correct letter comes into position, a tiny hammer strikes the paper against the type wheel. Perfection of this technique represents a major breakthrough in the field of mechanical printing, the Army said.

BUS LECTURE — BENNINGTON, Vt. (UPI)—Parents will accompany their children on the bus to school in evening programs that will feature a safety lecture and review of rules children follow while on the bus.

Tektites Scattered Around

BY BELLOUS SMITH
UPI Science Editor
NEW YORK (UPI)—A hot scientific argument of this very moment is over the question of whether or not 100,000 pieces of the moon are scattered all about and there on the earth's surface.

There are little pieces of something scattered around all right, and if they're not pieces of the moon then what on earth are they? The origin of these strange, glassy rounded bits called tektites have puzzled scientists for generations.

C. M. Varsavsky, brilliant young Argentine astrophysicist who is taking advanced studies at Harvard, started the argument by producing mathematical directions intended to show that tektites are pieces of the moon.

His idea was that meteors colliding with the moon chipped off pieces, which in most plausible. The moon is pock-marked with innumerable craters evidently made by meteors. It is logical to think that collisions of such force would have had to send parts of the moon hurtling off into space. Varsavsky's mathematics showed how these pieces could have spiraled, even so slowly, down to earth.

Debate Theory
But now come three distinguished scientists, including Dr. Harold C. Urey, famous atomic scientist and Nobel Prize winner of the University of Chicago, with arguments designed to shatter his theory into pieces even smaller than tektites.

Urey objected chiefly on chemical grounds. Tektites are largely silica and alumina. They are bits of rocks which evidently were made in extremely hot and long enduring fire. If tektites are moon pieces then the moon's fire-made rocks are quite different from earth's, which Urey thought most unlikely.

The principal objection of Dr. Virgil E. Barnes of the University of Texas, was on the matter of distribution. Barnes, by the way, was the first man to identify a belt of tektite deposits in the United States. It is in Texas. If the theory were correct, he reasoned, you'd find tektites distributed in a wide belt around the earth. Furthermore, you'd find them in all the earth's layers of rocks because the spiraling of moon pieces would have been going on over eons of time.

No Continuum Pattern
But tektites have been found only in widely separated groups—in Indonesia, in Australia, in the Libyan Desert, and among ancient rocks along a 120-mile strip through five Texas counties. And they're found in only a few of the earth's rock layers and these few are widely separated. This shows there has been no more or less continuous rain of moon pieces—or of tektites.

Dr. Edenek Kopal, astronomer of the University of Manchester, England, objected to Varsavsky's mathematics. He granted that Varsavsky had constructed mass-particle trajectories which could bring something from the moon to the earth. But if tektites were chipped off the moon by meteors, the beginning of their trajectories toward the earth would have been different than Varsavsky calculated, and the chips wouldn't have reached earth, Kopal said.

In Kopal's opinion, the origin of tektites "must be sought much nearer to the terrestrial surface than the moon." In other words, science doesn't know where they came from, but they didn't come from the moon.

FSU Seeks Funds To Build 256 Units

TALLAHASSEE (UPI)—Florida State University reports that it will apply for $2,000,000 in federal funds to build 256 apartment units for married students.

The university currently has 1,400 married students enrolled and on-campus housing for only 99 couples.

F. H. U. Housing Director Jack Rollow estimated the university needs 800 units to adequately serve the enrollment and meet future needs.

The application will be for a self-liquidating loan from U. S. Housing and Home Finance Agency.

If approved, the university expects to have the units available by the fall of 1959.

The housing will be in 16 two-story brick buildings, each with 16 apartments to be located on a several acre tract on the university farm.

Half the units will be one bedroom apartments renting for $55 a month and the other half two-bedroom apartments renting for $60.
