What Jesus Means to Me

Jesus means love. Someone who cares. The one who died just for me, to set me free. Jesus is like the sun that brightens my day every day. He's like the rain that freshens the day. Even though I fail Him, He will always forgive me.

Mayor: 'No way'

SANFORD — The Sanford Herald has received a number of inquiries regarding rumors that Mayor Bettye Smith may step down from her post before her administration ends in January 1997.

In a telephone call Thursday, the mayor squelched the rumors by emphatically saying, "No way."

She said she has no intentions of reneging on her commitment to Sanford for whatever reasons the rumor mill may be grinding out. She takes pride in the strides Sanford has made under her leadership including the Towne Center mall scheduled to open in September.

The mayor also said she has been busy with a number of community commitments including working on the Easter musical program at her church (First Baptist of Sanford).

There, you have it. No way will the mayor step down. See Briefs, Page 6A

Patience, diligence fuel lakefront project

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Just because no multi-million dollar lakefront improvement project has been completed this past year, doesn't mean the Waterfront Master Plan Steering Committee hasn't been working diligently.

Operating with a very small budget and having to follow codes, government restrictions and requirements, and seek appropriate funding requires a great deal of time, committee members explained.

In 1994, an application was made for ISTE (Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act) federal funds. The money was to be used in financing a Lake Monroe Riverwalk project. Even if the proposal managed to get on top of the list, money for the project would not have been forthcoming until fiscal year 2000.

When the application was considered, it ended up ranked ninth. According to Sanford's Director of Planning and Development Jay Marder, the ninth position was "good for an initial application but not good enough for funding."

On Wednesday, April 19, the Waterfront Master Plan Steering Committee will meet next, and once again, consider submitting an application for the money. If it reaches a high enough position on the federal planning list, the money might be forthcoming by the year 2001.

"We would rather not wait that long," commented Committee Chairman Larry Strickler. "Getting this will be a real challenge for the city as well as the steering committee."

"But what may be necessary," he continued, "is to have some type of public/private investment into this, so we may be able to get the project started much sooner."

Strickler could not immediately recall how much money was requested in the grant in 1994, and said the amount this time still remains to be officially determined.

Submission of the grant application must be made by May 17th. Following the filing of the application, if it is approved, a prospectus application will be next. If that is approved a preliminary trail design and alignment plan will have to be compiled and submitted.

In each of these steps, approval and/or support from the Sanford City Commission will also be necessary.

In each of these various steps, a number of studies will be required, statistical lists compiled, and a great deal of mapping and diagrams will be required. See Lakefront, Page 6A

'Plant from hell' in a field near you?

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The state's agriculture commissioner calls it the plant from hell, and it has been spotted in Seminole County as well as throughout the state and southeast. The actual name is Tropical Soda Apple, (TSA) and it is a noxious weed.

Barbara Hughes-Gregg at the Seminole County Cooperative Extension Service office at Five Points in Sanford, says TSA is capable of destroying an entire pasture in as little time as one year. With nearly 400,000 acres already infested with the weed across the state, Hughes-Gregg said the growth is expected to exceed 500,000 acres by the end of this year.

Tropical Soda Apple, is a perennial broadleaf weed. At maturity, it ranges from three to six feet tall, and produces fruit throughout the year, although it is concentrated from September through May.

Immature fruits have white mottling (like a See Plant, Page 5A

K-9 cop nabs man

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A K-9 dog assisted in the apprehension of a man charged with burglary early this morning. The man is now in custody at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility.

According to Sanford police Commander Dennis Whitmire, shortly after midnight this morning, a man identified as Robert Stanely Zawacki, 36, considered as homeless, living in a wooded area of Sanford, reportedly broke into Scotty's at 700 N. French Avenue by hurling a piece of concrete through a glass window.

Whitmire said once inside, the man gathered power tools estimated at over $1,282, and placed them near the front door.

During the burglary, the man's activity triggered a silent alarm, and several police officers responded, including officer Bill Wixon and his K-9 dog Chico.

"When the man saw police entering the building," Whitmire said, "he began to run to the south side of the building where he was eventually located hiding in the power tools section."

The dog, Chico, reportedly bit Zawacki on the left leg, enabling officers to apprehend him and place him in handcuffs. See Nabbed, Page 6A

POLICE BRIEFS

Revoked license

Gerald Eugene McCarthy, 62, 808 W. 25th Street, was arrested by Sanford police Wednesday for driving while his license was revoked. Police made the arrest at 25th Street and Sanford Avenue while investigating an accident. A computer check showed McCarthy's license was revoked permanently in 1989. The accident caused $5,500 in property damage, according to the police report.

Suspended license

Carrie Davene Hughes, 24, 130 Sabal Palm Court, Sanford was arrested by Lake Mary police Wednesday for driving with a suspended/revoked license and for having an automobile tag expired longer than four months. The driver was stopped at a convenience store on Country Club Road after being clocked going 40 in a 25 mph zone. A computer records check revealed her license had been suspended four times for failure to appear and three times for failure to pay traffic fines. She was held on $1,000 bond.

Sign language argument

Kenneth G. Dolin, 41, 705 E. 20th Street, Sanford was arrested for two counts of battery/domestic violence after a fight with his wife and daughter. Sanford police responded to two hangup 911 calls and found the couple in a verbal altercation in sign language. Both are deaf, the report stated. Their daughter reportedly attempted to intervene and Dolin pulled the telephone off the wall so no more calls would be made, the police report states. Both women indicated they will press charges.

Drug arrests by CCIB agents

Agents of the City County Investigative Bureau made arrests around Seminole County Wednesday in an operation targeting street sale of crack cocaine.

●Tyron E. Bouie, 22, 1019 Avacado Ave., Sanford arrested at Southwest Road and 20th Street for the sale and delivery of crack cocaine to an undercover officer.

●Peter S. Adudu, 32, 4641 McKay Ave., Sanford arrested at McKay and Halsey Aves. Sanford for sale and delivery after allegedly selling a CCIB agent crack for $20.

●Henry White Finney, 37, 1326 Harrison St. Oviedo, arrested at First Street and Avenue B in Oviedo for sale of crack.

●Gary Lynn Lewis, 30, 1933 South Street, Oviedo, arrested for sale and delivery of crack, resisting without violence and escape. Lewis bolted and ran across a field as agents were arresting him, the arrest report states. The suspect was pursued on foot. As an agent re-apprehended the suspect, the two fell to the ground and Lewis struck his head on a 4x4 piece of wood, the report continues, and he received a laceration on the right side of his head near the scalp line.

Two arrested in shooting

Jabar Coleman, 18, 607 Lake Mobile Drive and Jevon Terrell Nelson, 17, 1247 Merritt Street, both of Altamonte Springs were arrested in the death of John Zeigler a channel 24 TV technician.

Zeigler, 49, reportedly fired a 12-gauge shotgun at the two teens after arguing over his stepdaughter. The teens returned fire with a .25 caliber and 9mm handgun, striking Zeigler in the chest. He died after arriving at Florida Hospital Altamonte Springs.

Incidents reported to Sanford police

●A man walking near 4th Street and Sanford Avenue told police he was robbed of $50 but he could not identify the suspects.

●A resident of Castle Brewer Court told police someone attempted to pry open his car door but when that failed, the thief broke out the window and stole his wallet from the glove compartment.

Man convicted in UF student stabbings

By RON WOOD
Associated Press Writer

GAINESVILLE — Jurors who convicted a man of stabbing to death a University of Florida graduate student and nearly killing her roommate will recommend next month if he should die for the crimes.

At the sentencing hearing, tentatively scheduled for May 3, State Attorney Rod Smith will ask the jury to recommend the death penalty for Richard Anthony Meisner, 29. The only other penalty Circuit Judge Nath Doughtie can impose is life in prison without chance of parole for 25 years.

After more than five hours of deliberations, a jury Thursday convicted Meisner of first-degree murder for the 1993 fatal stabbing of Gina Marie Langevin, 26, a graduate architecture student, and attempted first-degree murder on Jena Hull.

Hull, who received more than 20 stab wounds, survived and gave compelling testimony against Meisner, who was also convicted of burglary.

The stabbings evoked memories of five college students killed by Danny Rolling in Gainesville in 1980, and a series of others murders of young women between 1990 and 1993.

Meisner purred his lips and leaned forward when the verdict was read and waved to his family as he was led from the courtroom.

Defense attorneys contended that an argument between Meisner and Langevin turned violent on Sept. 18, 1993, but that the slaying wasn't premeditated. Defense attorney Andrew Woodman urged the jury to convict Meisner of a lesser charge.

"The acts were explosions of emotion," Woodman said.

Hull, 24, at the time of the attack, provided key testimony against Meisner, giving a chilling account of how she struggled to fight off her assailant after he had plunged a knife into her skull, breaking off the tip.

"This guy was on top of me, glaring down at me," she testified. "He was completely calm while choking me. The last thing I remember were his hands around my neck. I knew at that point, I was going to die," she said.

Hull identified Meisner as the man who stabbed her with a knife and scissors. Supporting the prosecution's assertion that the attack was planned, she testified that none of the occupants of the townhouse owned a knife like the one used to attack her.

Stephen Bernstein, another defense attorney, called Hull, "a very effective witness."

Investigators had said that Langevin, a former roommate of Meisner's one-time girlfriend, may have been killed because she had knowledge of an arson in which Meisner was charged, but never tried. The possible motive was never mentioned at trial, however, because Langevin was never listed as a witness in the arson case.

When the guilty verdict was read, Langevin's father, Frank, smiled and hugged Mrs. Langevin.

"This is the story of the life of a young woman who had every right to live a long life and dreams," said a statement released by the Langevins.

'War tax' resisters say they're using cash for common good

By MICHAEL WARREN
Associated Press Writer

While many Americans are lining up outside post offices to mail in their 1040s this Tax Day, Clare Hanrahan will be handing her contributions over in person — to a group that feeds the homeless in Asheville, N.C.

She finds paying taxes to fund the country's defense budget so abhorrent that she's willing to break the law and take on the Internal Revenue Service. And she's not alone.

But unlike those who claim federal taxation is unconstitutional, or refuse to pay because the currency isn't backed by gold, Hanrahan and other "war tax" resisters don't mind turning in their hard-earned cash for the common good.

"We're not evading taxes. We're redirecting them and putting them where they'll do the most good, immediately," said Hanrahan, 46, a single parent who does freelance editing and cleans houses to get by.

This year, she is one of an estimated 8,000 people diverting their taxes to 41 alternative funds, which have grown to $1 million. In turn, these funds are making $120,000 in loans and $60,000 in grants, according to the National War Tax Resistance Coordinating Committee.

The money is going to everything from battered women's shelters and nursery schools to environmental and AIDS prevention organizations.

People have been resisting "war taxes" since the Vietnam War, said Karen Marydaughter of Monroe, Maine, who runs the committee. There was a resurgence during the Persian Gulf War, and now there's renewed interest in the age of the Republican "Contract With America," she said.

But the resisters pay a high price for their consciences, first getting threatening letters or visits from IRS agents, and eventually losing their wages, bank accounts, sometimes even cars, jobs and homes.

Hanrahan, "If your security is tied up in property ownership, all those things are at risk if you stand in opposition to war tax payments."

Some refuse to pay any federal taxes. Others send about half what they owe, figuring that defense spending represents 51 percent of the budget when military-related debt is included. The IRS says 24 percent of the current budget goes to national defense, veterans and foreign affairs.

"When we complete our income tax, we deduct 50 percent for past, present and future wars," said Scott Kennedy, a Santa Cruz, Calif., city council member who has resisted taxes since 1971, and sends a letter to the IRS each year explaining why.

"Now it's kind of by rote — we refuse to pay, and then they take it out of our bank account or seize my wife's salary," said Kennedy. "Now that we're relatively well-known to the IRS, they collect from us with a depressing regularity, so in addition to the tax, we typically pay interest and penalties as well."

Others, like Hanrahan, deliberately keep their income below taxable levels — $8,000 for a single head of household this year.

Hanrahan, whose Taxes For Life! fund is making its first donation Monday — $100 to a group calling itself Food Not Bombs — decided to "become downwardly mobile" and begin resisting taxes in 1981.

"I had been living near big military bases, waking up to the threat of nuclear war, and I kept thinking, what could I do personally? I realized that the only things I had control over were my own contributions to the federal budget."

Hanrahan raised her daughter while working — and living for free — in a homeless shelter. Now she lives in a house she's fixing up, bikes around town and eats from her garden in Asheville.

There's no money for health insurance, let alone her daughter's college education, but she's still managed to give away 10 percent of her income.

"I've really lived on the edge. I've relinquished a lot of privileges people come to depend on in this country," she said. But "we feel like we're standing on high ground."

To the IRS, of course, these people are nothing more than common tax cheats, and what they're doing is fundamentally unfair to other taxpayers.

"Unfortunately, society has to shoulder the burden of people who do not act with pro-social behavior," said Anthony Burke, an IRS spokesman in Washington. "After all, we have to build prisons, hire guards and policemen."

"War tax" resisters argue that they wouldn't need so many prisons if the money spent on defense went to education and other life-affirming programs.

The funds have been able to grow through outright donations and by interest earned on tax money held in escrow, to be withdrawn when contributors feel they can no longer resist the IRS' efforts to collect.

It can take years before the IRS actually makes seizures, partly because the amounts are usually minuscule compared to the more than $65 billion that businesses and individuals fail to voluntarily send in each year, Burke said.

Resisters can expect immediate $500 fines for making "frivolous" arguments, followed by penalties of 25 percent or 50 percent on the taxes they owe. Next come liens on their property, garnishing of wages, wrecking of credit ratings, up to $100,000 in fines and five years in jail.

"I know at some point they're going to come after me again," said Susan Quinlan, of Berkeley, Calif., who has left good jobs and lost her savings to IRS seizures since she began refusing to pay her taxes in 1983.

"The IRS intimidates people so much," Quinlan said. "But it's still a significant statement of resistance."

Hospital

The hospital, which has 20 days to respond to the accreditation decision, will appeal, said spokesman John Andreas.

Florida's Agency for Health Care Administration conducted a similar unannounced inspection last week and imposed the elective surgery ban. The group said Thursday the moratorium would continue indefinitely.

Now in its seventh day, the ban keeps on hold an average of 80 surgeries and $30,000 in revenues every day.

Inspectors found that despite the hospital's promises of change, sloppy procedures and lax supervision still "jeopardized patient safety."

O'Malley said the hospital has made an effort to retrain all 328 surgeons in operating room safety, as the state asked following the inspection.

It's the patients, he said, who end up getting hurt.

"These people are still human beings, waiting for their operations and day by day they're becoming critical cases."

The hospital's problems began Feb. 20 when doctors amputated below the knee the wrong leg of 51-year-old diabetic Willie King. Less than two weeks later, 77-year-old Leo Alfonso died after an unsupervised technician mistakenly removed him from a ventilator, thinking he was another patient.

Later investigations revealed other mistakes, including an arthroscopic surgery performed on the wrong knee of a patient in February and a tubal ligation performed without prior consent that nearly sterilized a woman.

The American Medical Association wants to use UCH as a national example of how not to operate a hospital and has called on the private accreditation board to release its findings and recommendations.

O'Malley, the hospital's chief of staff, said the AMA's stance is "extremely irresponsible."

Still, other problems from regulators loom. The federal Health Care Financing Administration, which has direct control over Medicare and Medicaid purse strings, has set an April 20 deadline for a state team to reinsure the hospital and to determine if it has fixed problems that threatened patient safety.

Credit card fraud

Investigators from the Seminole County Sheriff's fraud and forgery unit have arrested a 17-year old boy who reportedly used a computer bulletin board to obtain stolen credit card numbers.

Sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough said Hannan Macool, of Apopka, turned himself in to investigator Scott Ballou. He is has been charged with fraudulent use of a credit card and petit theft.

McDonough said Macool got the stolen credit card numbers and names from a computer bulletin board he subscribes to, then used them to order computer hardware and software from out-of-state computer supply companies.

He reportedly had packages shipped to addresses in Orange and Seminole Counties. McDonough said he apparently drove around seeking homes which were occupied, but where the owners were not home during the day. After the packages were delivered, he would go to the houses and pick them up.

Macool was booked into the Seminole County Juvenile Detention Center, and has subsequently been released to the custody of his father.

Whitmire said police have charged Zawacki with one count each of burglary and grand theft.

Kaplan

Eric Kaplan, 31, was convicted of attempted first degree murder for the September 1993 shooting of Judith Starks, wife of state Rep. Bob Starks. Kaplan was running against Starks for the House seat when he fired five shots into the couple's Maitland home.

The defense claimed during the trial Kaplan was being directed by a "force" and thought no one would be hurt. Starks would be scared, withdraw from the race and Kaplan would be elected. The jury found Kaplan committed attempted murder.

The state representative was not home the night of the shooting, but one of the bullets struck Mrs. Starks in the leg as she slept. She recovered. A circuit court jury also convicted Kaplan of armed burglary and shooting into an occupied dwelling.

The state sentencing guidelines suggest a 17-22 year range prison term for attempted murder. Judge Alan A. Dickey explained the sentence he gave Kaplan reflected the time the defendant would get "had you been successful." Kaplan was also sentenced to 13 years probation following the prison term.

Kaplan's case was delayed for a few months when the defendant was sent to a state forensic hospital for treatment because he was declared incompetent to stand trial. That ruling stemmed from his inability to work with his former attorney to prepare a defense.

"The Legend of the Dogwood"

Easter is upon us. Jesus is our focal point... Jesus' Crucifixion upon the Cross, His Resurrection and Ascension. Let us also remember His sensitive qualities that can enrich our earthly relationships. Thus, "The Legend of the Dogwood". The author is unknown, yet may we ponder its beauty... It is said that at the time of the Crucifixion, the dogwood was the size of the oak. Because of its strength, it was chosen for the Cross. The tree was sorrowful. Despite His suffering, Jesus sensed its distress. With limitless pity, He said... "Because of your sorrow, you shall never again grow large enough to be a Cross. You will be slender and bent, your blossoms a Cross, with two long and two short petals, the outer edges of each a nail print, rusty brown and stained red; and in the center a crown of thorns... so all who see shall remember." This Easter, as we worship, may we remember the selfless and unconditional love of our Savior, and take it into our heart.

Contest winners announced 12 youth essays chosen from 150 entries

By SUSAN WENNER
HERALD STAFF WRITER

SANFORD — With an overwhelming response on the recent children's writing contest, the Sanford Herald awarded 12 youth an assortment of prizes, baskets and candy. These winners were chosen from 150 entries.

The subject of the essay, "What Jesus Means to Me," was submitted from children grades one through 12. Although the competition was stiff, the 12 chosen exhibited a writing flair that caught the attention of the judges.

Four local Bible book stores contributed special gifts for the essay contest. Lya's Bible Book Store at the K-Mart Plaza in Sanford was responsible for a coloring book titled "The Christmas Story," a book titled "My Friend Jesus" and a book "How to Read and Pray the Christmas Story."

Calvary Bible Bookstore from Calvary Assembly Church in Winter Park sent a book from the Barney Bear Growth Series "Go Tell It On the Mountain." Steve Camp's cassette tape "Mercy in the Wilderness" and a tape from 4 Him titled "The Ride."

Osborne's Book & Bible, Sanford Ave., in Sanford, donated two witnessing plan of salvation bracelets and one witness keychain.

Family Bookstores, Palm Springs Plaza in Altamonte Springs, contributed a G.T. & the Halo Express tape "Made to be a V.I.P.," a book by author Hilda Stahl titled "Sadie Rose and the Daring Escape" and the Youth Walk Bible.

Many of the entries were submitted by Seminole Trinity Christian School in Sanford. The school made this a school and class project.

Liberty Christian School in Sanford was next in line for its large number of submitted essays. Ms. Claudia's class from Strang Communication followed with several entries.

Local churches such as Sanford Church of Christ, Pinecrest Baptist and First Baptist of Geneva also encouraged their youth to participate.

A special thank-you goes out to Cheryl Smith, computer graphic artist of Sanford Herald, for designing the certificates that were awarded to our participants.

WHAT JESUS MEANS TO ME

Jeffrey Rumler

Jesus means that I will get to go to heaven if I ask Him. He loves me, cares for me and gives me everything I need. When I get to heaven He will probably give me one more thing that I really need- a ranch with lots of horses and cows and plenty of chickens, pigs, and a dog. That's what Jesus means to me.

What Jesus Means To Me!

Jesus means so very very much to me. He keeps me safe when I ride my bike, and when I ride my roller blades. He helps me when bullies come. He helps me choose the right friends. He helps me in math. He helps me in spelling.

Jesus means more than anything else in this world. He came in human form to die on the cross to save us from everlasting damnation. Easter is more than bunnies and candy; it celebrates Jesus Christ's resurrection from the dead. Jesus means everything because He gave His life on Calvary.

"What Jesus means to me"

Jesus is the son of God and He means everything to me. In the bible (John 3:16) it say "For God so loved the world He gave His only begotten son to die for our sins. Sometimes I spell it "just-us" because I think God talking to me or about me.

Jesus has done a lot of things for me not out of just kindness out of love Jesus is like everything to me. I did so everything to be like Jesus because he is the king of the universe and he like about Jesus he is there all day long. You might think at night he is sleep but he is not he is awake watching over you not just one

Is aspirin harmful to diabetics

DEAR DR. GOTT: Have you indicated through your column that diabetics shouldn't take aspirin because it is damaging to the retina and may cause blindness? I have type II diabetes and took the liberty of calling three ophthalmologists and three pharmacists, all of whom knew nothing about it.

DEAR READER: I did not indicate that aspirin can damage the retinas of diabetic patients. On the contrary. Certain types of retinal disease -- chiefly those that are secondary to blood clots that affect vision -- may actually be helped by daily, low-dose aspirin, which causes the blood to coagulate more slowly.

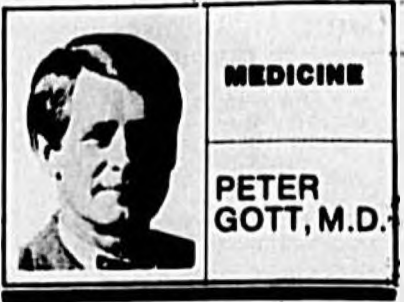

Diabetic retinopathy (the damage to retinal blood vessels seen in diabetics) is directly related to the degree to which the diabetes is controlled. The more normal the blood glucose can be maintained by diet and medication, such as insulin, the less risk of diabetic circulatory complications, such as retinal disease, cataracts and kidney damage.

Thus, in diabetics, the major consideration is glucose-control. The aspirin is a secondary issue that should be decided, on a case-by-case basis, by the patient and his physician.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My doctor has suggested that I try methotrexate to manage my sarcoidosis. I've been told this drug causes tumors and that I may not be able to bear children if on this drug. Can you provide information?

DEAR READER: Methotrexate, an anti-metabolite ordinarily used for cancer, is being used more frequently to treat diseases, such as psoriasis and rheumatoid arthritis, that are believed due to auto-immune factors. I am not aware that the drug is appropriate for treating sarcoidosis, a lung and lymph-gland disorder of unknown cause that rarely requires treatment.

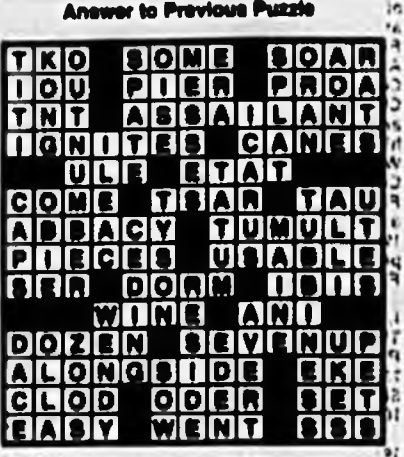

Methotrexate affects normal as well as diseased tissue. Its most devastating side effects are bone marrow toxicity and liver inflammation. Therefore, it should be used cautiously and with suitable monitoring, such as periodic blood tests to check for anemia and liver damage.

MEDICINE
PETER GOTT, M.D.

The medicine does not cause tumors; rather it is the preferred treatment for certain malignancies.

Sometimes I learn interesting things while hunting for material to use in this column. For example, what was Gandhi's first name?

This quotation from Gandhi is apposite for today's deal: "There is enough for the needy but not for the greedy."

West led the heart queen against three no-trump. How would you plan the play?

After South had opened one club and West overcalled one heart, North wanted to make a bid. But he didn't have anything suitable to say. However, when South reopened with one no-trump, showing some 18 or 19 points, North had an easy raise to game.

South won the first trick with the heart king and led the diamond jack from hand. When West covered with the king, South happily called for dummy's ace. He continued with dummy's diamond queen and diamond 10, but West's spade discard on the last of these was a blow. Suddenly South noticed that he had only eight tricks: two spades, two hearts, three diamonds and one club.

"I'm sorry, partner," said South. "My greed for 10 tricks overcame my need for nine."

He should have played low from the dummy at trick two, allowing West to win the trick with his diamond king. Then there would have been four diamond tricks in the dummy, ready to run. That was all South needed for his contract.

I always thought Gandhi's first name was Mahatma, but that was a title -- meaning "great soul" -- conferred on him by followers. His actual given names were Mohandas Karamchand.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Osof
YOUR BIRTHDAY
April 15, 1995

You could be your biggest enemy in the year ahead if you doubt your ideas and abilities. Conversely, if you believe in yourself, the seeds you plant could yield a rich harvest.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) The conditions today could be somewhat uncertain and unpredictable. Try not to overreact if you have to contend with teaty matters affecting your reputation or career. Know where to look for romance, and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Do not permit your vivid imagination to play tricks on you today, such as magnifying negative factors and minimizing positive ones. Think positively.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

You might feel as if you have to become involved in expensive activities today to have a good time. Concentrate instead on liking yourself and what you do.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Tenacious effort will be required today if you hope to achieve meaningful objectives. Taking shortcuts will only complicate matters.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Have someone double check your facts and figures on a tedious assignment today. Mistakes might slip through that won't surface until a later date.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Do not take advantage of others today, and also don't let anyone back out on a promise to you because he/she thinks you're an easy mark.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You would be wise today not to depend too much upon an associate who has proven unreliable. Leopards don't change their spots.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)

Unless you are extremely methodical with your work today, errors are likely. Map out your intentions and follow them through step by step.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You mustn't let wishful thinking induce you to enter into a speculative situation today. Your chances of beating the odds are extremely slim.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You could upset domestic tranquility in your household today if you spring unexpected changes on your mate without considering his/her views.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) It will be important today to be cognizant of both your physical and mental limitations today. Do not attempt things you cannot adequately complete.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your expectations may be fulfilled today if your outlook is skeptical, but not cynical. If you cross the line, all bets are off.
