Lake Mary Readies Charter Change Proposal For Ballot

After months of debate, the Lake Mary City Commission Thursday tentatively approved the wording of proposed revisions in the city's charter that would be placed on the ballot for the city's upcoming Sept. 1 election. The wording of the revision would provide for a stronger city manager form of government in Lake Mary if it is passed by the voters.

Whether the proposed ordinance goes on the ballot will depend on the commission's vote in two weeks. After a public hearing on the ordinance beginning at 7:30 p.m. July 23, the commission will make its final decision.

If passed, there will be just enough time for the required 10-day advertising period before the deadline for inclusion on the next city election ballot.

Wording of the proposed revisions, which would give the city manager more responsibility for the direct day-to-day operation of the city was approved unanimously on first reading.

The proposed admendments to the charter, if passed in the election, will end the unique split of power and duties shared by Mayor Dick Fess and City Manager Bob Norris. While Fees would shed many of his responsibilities, Norris would gain such jobs as appointing or dismissing the city finance director, clerk, attorney and police chief (with commission approval). He would also relieve Fess as the city budgetary chief, thus making Norris responsible for drafting and submitting the city's annual budget.

Other charter revisions in the proposal include the requirement that persons filling commission vacancies only serve what is left of the original term of the member they are replacing, that the commission may remove the city manager with a motion that passes by three affirmative votes and the powers and duties of the city manager be made gender neutral (taking out refernces to "he" in the job description).

Concern by the commission over the exact way the ordinance was to be presented on the ballot caused them to drop an attempt to place several other issues along side that of a city manager government. Those issues placed saide for at least the time being include giving the

Grisly Murder In Winter Springs

Mutilated Woman's Son Charged In Her Slaying

By Susan Loden Herald Staff Writer

A Winter Springs woman was brutally murdered late Thursday night, allegedly by her son who told police the woman was "possessed" and had attacked him with a knife.

Sean Bernard McCollum, 21, of 1046 Chokecherry Drive, is in Seminole County Jail today charged with murder in connection with the death of his mother, Waltraud McCollum, who was beaten and mutilated. Her hands and feet were chopped off with a hatchet and other parts of her body were

The slaying occurred about 10 p.m. during an argument at the Chokecherry address where McCollum lived with his parents, police say. The suspect and victim were alone together in the home when the incident occurred. Police have not established a motive, but at this point Lt. Robert Butler said McCollum is the only suspect in the killing. It has not been established whether the suspect was under the influence of drugs or alcohol at the time, he said.

In the arrest report McCollum's father's name is listed as Bernard McCollum of the same address. Butler said the elder McCollum arrived home after his wife was murdered, when police were already on the scene.

The suspect allegedly told police he

(the suspect) came home and went to his bedroom to "think." The arrest report indicates Sean Bernard Mc-Collum is an employee of Martin Marietta Aerospace, Orlando.

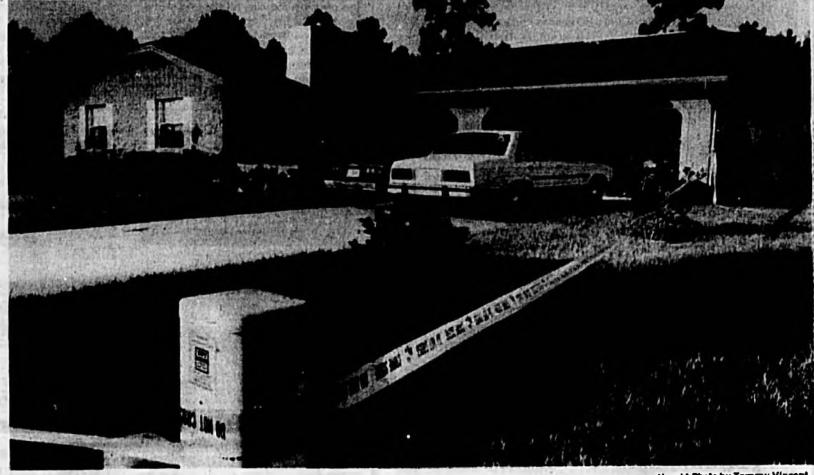

He reportedly came out of his room at about 10 p.m. Thursday and the fight began. According to the police report the suspect said his mother had a knife and kept coming after him. According to the report, "He did not like what she was doing, representing evil and to stop her from killing him or anybody else he had to kill her and took the knife from the victim. The subject then stated he got a baseball bat and started hitting the victim in the head several times.

"The subject stated he thought the victim was still trying to get him. He took the hatchet and cut off the hands and feet and he states he had to mutiliate it because it was evil and (he) did not want it to hurt anybody.

"He went outside and told his aunt to go get police," according to the report written by Winter Springs detective Glenn Tolleson.

When police arrived, Tolleson reported, McCollum was found on the front porch of his home. He was covered with blood and allegedly stated, "I had to kill my mother because she is trying to stab me. He is in there drinking her blood," the report said.

Butler said he was unaware of

High Court Overturns Death Sentence

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) -Eleven years after his case established the constitutionality of capital punishment throughout the United States, Charles William Proffitt is waiting to be moved off Florida's death row.

The Florida Supreme Court vacated his death sentence Thursday to life in prison without parole for 25 years, saying changes in the law since it first upheld Proffitt's sentence in 1975 mandated the lesser sentence. Defendants in cases similiar to Proffltt's have won life sentences instead of death, the five-member majority noted.

Proffitt's lawyer notified him of the ruling at about 2:30 p.m. Thursday, said Steve Saunders, a counselor to inmates on death row at the Florida State Prison in Starke.

Saunders declined to discuss finished the phone call with his lawyer, "he turned to me and said he would not accept any media interviews whatsoever. He said, 'So don't even come down here asking me."

Proffltt will be removed from death row once the Department of Corrections notifies prison officials.

Irwin Block, a Miami lawyer who represented Proffitt, said there had been speculation the state court would balk at commuting Proffitt's sentence.

"It's fronte that the case used by the U.S. Supreme Court to uphold the death penalty in the United States now turns out to be a case where the death penalty was not applicable." Block said.

The court's unsigned majority opinion took note of the implications of the ruling.

"We recognize that Proffitt is a

'Just A Matter Of Lost Luggage'

DETROIT (UPI) — The body of Pvt. Eddie Slovik, the only U.S. soldier executed for desertion since the Civil War, was en route to Detroit for burial after 42 years in a French grave, but ended up in San Francisco because of an airline error.

A representative of TWA Air Freight said a black box containing Slovik's remains arrived in New York about 4 p.m. Thursday from France on schedule and cleared customs. But instead of being put on another flight to Detroit, it remained aboard the original flight, which continued on to San Francisco.

The TWA spokesman blamed the confusion on the fact that airline workers were looking for a coffin to divert to Detroit but the remains were in a black box instead.

The box was discovered at 8 a.m. EDT today and TWA officials arranged to put it on a flight scheduled to arrive in Detroit at 3:57 p.m. EDT.

"It's just a matter of lost luggage," an airline spokesman said Thursday night. "We've misplaced the thing somewhere."

details, but said when Proffitt case of considerable notoriety because it resulted in the United States Supreme Court's upholding the facial validity of Florida's death penalty statute," the court said

But in other cases, the court rejected death in circumstances similar to his, where there was no history of criminal activity and no extraordinary abuse or torture of the victim.

Chief Justice Parker Lee McDonald, Justice Ben Overton. Justice Leander Shaw, Justice Rosemary Barkett and Justice Geraid Kogan joined the majority. Justice Raymond Ehrlich agreed with the result in a separate opinion. Retired Justice James C. Adkins, who participated in the ruling, dissented without a written opi-

In a separate death case, the court unanimously upheld the death sentence for Charles Kight, convicted of the 1982 murder of a Jacksonville cab driver. The victim had been robbed and stabbed 51 times.

In another case, the court rejected an appeal by Kerry Dean Hall, sentenced to life in prison for the 1983 Fort Lauderdale murder of a wealthy Rhode Island businessman, Santi Campanella. Court records show Hall and Jason Thomas Deaton, both male prostitutes. strangled Campanella with a lamp cord to steal his credit cards and car.

Duo Robs 7-Eleven

Two men, one holding out a Highway 17-92, Winter Springs, early Monday morning and asked for a first-aid kit. While the store clerk was distracted, one of the men took $20 in bills from the cash register and fled.

According to a statement made to police by the clerk, Andrew F. Roan, 63, of 108 Lake Dot, Sanford, the two men entered the store at approximately 1:45 a.m. One of the men pointed to his companion's bleeding finger and asked Roan if he had a first-aid kit. Roan stated that when he went to the back of the store to retrieve a kit kept in a storeroom, the man with the bleeding finger followed Strong thunderstorms that unleashed heavy rains and five tornadoes spread over a wide area early today from the upper Mississippi Valley to the Texas Panhandle, but one Midwest state faced a drought emergency.

.Thunderstorms extended early today from Nebraska across South Dakota, Iowa and Minnesota. Showers and storms also were scattered from the Texas panhandle across the Nebraska panhandle and into southwest Kansas.

Two tornadoes touched down late Thursday near Richfield, Kan., and twisters also were reported near Bassett, Neb., Menno, S.D., and Bemis S.D.

In Wisconsin, the biggest weather problem was a lack of rain. Gov. Tommy Thompson said he will move today to declare a state of emergency in northern Wisconsin because of a drought that threatens dairy farm animals. It was just last year that Wisconsin farmers provided thousands of bales of hay for drought-stricken farms In Alabama.

Storm-plagued southwest lowa was hit by more heavy rains Thursday, causing some rivers to jump their banks.

The Nishnabotna River became a magnet for rains that totaled 3.5 inches in the Bedford and Red Oak areas. Civil-defense authorities in Mills. Monigomery and Page counties prepared for evacuations and officials kept a close watch on rivers and streams as flash flood watches and a severe thunderstorm watch gripped the area again Thursday night.

Severe thunderstorms pummeled northern and lower Michigan Thursday, causing thousands of power outages, including one at a prison. The storms also blew down small trees and critically injured a Plainwell boy.

The newly-opened Ionia Maximum Security Prison in Ionia was among the facilities that lost power, but no incldents were reported.

A spokesman for Consumers Power Co., which serves major areas of Michigan, said about 20,000 customers lost power Thursday.

Eleven-year-old Matthew Fevig of Plainwell suffered cardiac arrest when he was "hit indirectly by lightning" during a thunderstorm on Gull Island in Kalamazoo County, according to a spokesman for Kalamazoo's Bronson Methodist Hospital. He was listed in critical condition late Thurs-

Strong thunderstorms crossed western and northcentral Nebraska Thursday evening, bringing heavy rain, gusty winds, hall and a tornado, the National Weather Service reported.

Golf ball size hall was reported in North Platte and Benkelman, the weather service said. Rock County Sheriff Willis Haynes saw a tornado on the ground about 9:30 p.m. about 5 miles west of Bassett but reported no damage, a dispatcher said.

The third line of thunderstorms in five days rolled through Louisville, Ky., Thursday, snapping power lines and adding more names to the list of thousands already without power.

"It was not a major storm," said Louisville Gas and Electric spokeswoman Trish Burke. "What it did was shake limbs loose that were weakened by the first storms."

At least 10,000 customers were without power early today.

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) -The world this weekend will celebrate the birth of its 5 billionth person, but experts warn the Iniant faces an extremely uncertain future.

The United Nations has declared July 11 "the Day of the Five Billion," and is sending out birthday cards, and more than 80 nations will celebrate the birth, which will actually occur sometime this summer.

In China, home of 1.04 billion people, Prime Minister Zhao Ziyang will make a special address in the Great Hall. In the United States, the Turner Broadcasting Service will air "the World's Biggest Birthday Party." Population experts say the world adds 1 billion people every 12 years or so. The world grows by 150 people every minute, 220,000 every day and 80 million every year - the size of Bangladesh, the experts say. Like nine out of 10 children born today, "Baby Five Billion" will probably begin life in a low-income rural area of a developing country, U.N. officials believe.

The fate of the baby is a cause for concern, despite advances in medical services, nutrition and extended life expectancy in many parts of the world.

The U.N. Fund for Population Activities, or UNFPA. says three-fourths of the world now lives in the Third World. Africa has the fastest growth rate — its population will double to 1 billion by the year 2005.

Studies by UNFPA, the World Bank and other "think tanks" such as the international Institute of Applied Systems Analysis in Austria say the growing birth rates will increase the number of poor and lower average world Income by the year 2000.

Gaps between poor and rich countries will widen and people in less developed countries will not eat better in the 21st century than in the past 10 years. The unresolved debt problems will tighten the belts of millions of people for years to come in the developing world, the studies show.

UNFPA warns the world will also be losing 100 species everyday by the year 2000 because of continued widespread deforestration to make place for cattle raising and other land uses, particularly in tropical reglons.

'Past extinctions occurred naturally, but the importance of human factors in the threat to species survival has substantially increased in recent times," the agency

The World Bank estimates that 15 to 20 percent of all species could be irretrievably

Still, Nafis Sadik, executive director of UNFPA, said "there are reasons for pride in attaining 5 billion."

"Current life expectancy is about 60 years, three times what it was when the world population reached half a billion in the middle of the 17th century," she said re-cently when the agency presented its annual report on world population.

"The world infant mortality rate is about 80 per 1,000 now, a fifth of the rates in those days," said Sadik, a gynecologist from Pakistan and the first woman to head a major U.N. agency.

But experts agree that current population growth is significant enough to convince governments to adopt family planning policies.

Sadik and the UNFPA reject the argument that the world will have more hands and brains with more people, and that population growth will not affect economic development. They also dismiss contentions that population growth will not affect the environment.

The grim predictions raise questions about the fate of "Baby Five Billion."

Sadik said if the infant survives until age 5, he can go to school but will have to look for a job as a teenager becaus his government will be unable to offer him higher education. The job will be likely a low-paying post in agriculture.

"Baby Five Billion" will later move to a city where he will be trapped in poverty, living in makeshift housing with no running water or electricity, Sadik said.

Super Efforts For Superconductor

The Japanese have no qualms about borrowing a good idea and making it better.

Take superconductors — the far-reaching physics phenomenon which holds great promise for applications in medicine, transportation, power generation, computers and other areas. Since a University of Houston researcher is credited with the major breakthrough, logic says that the United States immediately would have exploited this revolutionary scientific event.

Forget logic. The irony is that the Japanese government acted within 11 days to capitalize on this discovery, forming a research consortium of companies and universities to collectively determine how superconductivity can be marketed. Next, the Japanese government announced plans to subsidize private-sector research. Japan will also establish a center to test equipment made from superconducting materials.

Meanwhile, initial reaction in the United States outside the scientific community was that while the discovery had interesting applications, practical developments were many years away. Much of America's thinking was characterized by a retired chairman of AT&T Bell Laboratories who said: "Our government has the attitude that the lone inventor in an attic is going to be able to carry on in fine old colonial tradition in international competition. That's exactly backwards."

With the Japanese interest in superconductivity, however, Americans began looking over their shoulders. Presidential candidate and U.S. Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., warned that the United States was in danger of losing its "competitive edge" to the Japanese in the race to the marketplace for superconductors.

We agree with Gore that the United States ought to use superconductivity "as a prototype for a national effort to secure American competitiveness in a revolutionary new field." Lo and behold, that effort may be under way - albeit in somewhat uncoordinated, Chinese fire-drill fashion.

Private enterprise, universities and the federal government are busy studying conductivity. In Washington, D.C., several federal agencies are at work on the subject. But no one knows how much federal money has been committed and by whom. Unfortunately, the left hand may not know what the right hand is doing, and duplicity almost certainly Congress, in a sluggish stroke of unoriginal thinking, has even suggested a Japan-style commission of leaders from government, industry and academia to report on superconductivity. Others have suggested nothing less than a Manhattan-type project to give us leadership in this area. Meanwhile, the Reagan administration is willing to put up research money, but balks when a centralized fedearl role in research toward commercial production is advocated.

We think a coordinated, national commitment at least equal to Japan's is in order to ensure that America doesn't forfeit its leadership role. Otherwise, we may find ourselves still at the starting gate while the Japanese are halfway around the superconductor track.

Four Freedoms Of 'Economic Bill Of Rights'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House chief of staff Howard Baker and his aides saw the period between July 1 and the mid-August congressional and presidential vacations as a window in which to focus attention on the leftovers in President Reagan's economic cupboard.

The rhetorical result was a ringing July 3 speech by the president proclaiming a new. Economic Bill of Rights" and declaring "four freedoms" of the economy.

The president said he wanted to carve into the Constitution an item Thomas Jefferson couldn't get the framers to agree on 200 years ago and something no Congress has ever deemed worth passing — an amendment requiring the federal budget to be balanced.

The new gimmick Reagan proposed was adding to the amendment a provision requiring that any tax increase must pass by more than a majority of both houses — say three-fifths or two-thirds.

He also asked Congress to establish in law a provision that every new spending proposal carry with it a "financial impact statement" advising how much it would add to the federal deficit, where the money would come from and how much it would ultimately cost state and local governments and each consumer.

By requiring a "financial impact statement" on each spending proposal - something that aiready exists but no one pays attention to — the administration would only create more

The merit of the proposal is also questionable because it would apply only to new proposals, not the multibillion continuing military spending items like the Strategic Defense Initiative. A senior official countered that it would not apply to big-ticket domestic items like housing subsidies or student loans either.

The package of 10 budget reforms, including proposals for welfare, credit and regulatory reform was an agglomeration of dusty old programs discarded or ignored by Congress in each of the past six years - even when the Senate was in Republican hands.

Now that the Democrats control both houses, the "Economic Bill of Rights" appears destined for the same fate. But it is a handy stake on which conservative ideologues can burn both Republican and Democratic presidential candidates in 1988.

What this speech was about was the exaltation of property rights and the imperative to preserve profits from excessive taxation, which he called equivalent to "servitude" and "oppression."

"Regulation of an individual's business or property can reach a degree when ownership is nullified and the value is taken," he warned, 'Property rights are central to liberty and they should never be trampled upon."

Reagan labeled his proposal an attempt to write into law the "four essential economic freedoms" - the freedom to work, the freedom to enjoy the fruits of one's labor, the freedom to own and control one's property and the freedom to participate in a free market.

For a politician who has always denounced the evils of big government, Reagan is now asking the people to give the presidency even more power than it was originally given over

WASHINGTON (NEA) - In a career as a public official that spans almost two decades. Donald Hodel has been an unabashed purveyor of apocalyptic energy forecasts of dublous reliability.

As head of the Bonneville Power Administration in the Pacific Northwest, Hodel in 1976 Issued a now-infamous "notice of insufficiency" warning that impending shortages of electric power could have dire consequences for the Under pressure from Hodel, dozens of utility companies invested in five massive nuclear power plants to be constructed by the Washington Public Power Supply System.

Today, that effort is both bankrupt and disgraced. WPPSS has defaulted on $2.25 billion worth of construction bonds, the largest municipal bond default in the nation's history. Some of the utilities are on the brink of receivership. Construction has halted on four of the five nower plants.

Under Hodel's leadership in 1983, the Energy Department warned that unless hundreds of new power plants were constructed, the country could face power shortages. brownouts and blackouts beginning in the 1990s and stretching far into the next century.

But the "ominous implications for national economic growth" may be illusory. Like Hodel's earlier warning, the energy demand assumptions thus far have proven to be greatly exaggerated.

Undeterred by those earlier setbacks, Hodel is at it again. This time, he's offering advice on how the country can prevent the Persian Gulf oil producers "from regaining their stranglehold over the U.S. economy."

That involves taking a chance on finding oil in the Arcfic National Wildlife Refuge, a protected area that is home to caribou, musk oxen, moose, Dail sheep, Arctic foxes, wolverines, polar bears, seals, whales, swans, geese, ducks and scores of other species.

Threatening their habitat is necessary, Hodel argues, because ANWR contains "potentially vast oil resources... vital to our national security" and necessary to "reduce America's dependence on unstable sources of foreign oil."

has one or more teenage members. Many bathrooms, according to the aforementioned publishers, now come equipped with radios, television sets, bars and gyms. (I would have sworn the teenagers in the house where I spent the night were writing one or more episodes of a television serial in the bathroom.)

Whereas, we are told, a bathroom used to be about the last place to decorate, it has become "the most popular" room in the house, mainly because a bathroom is now regarded as a "luxurious retreat from the hectic pace of daily living."

In fact, according to a pre-publication press release, the first issue of the Journal itself included an article on interior decorating. If that isn't "osis," I don't know what

This release also said the number of bathroom readers is "evergrowing." It cited recent research to show the number currently stands

The release credited further research as indicating the average person "reread parts" of the Journal about six times.

Maybe he does so while waiting for space at the mirror and basin to open up.

The publishers promised "the majority of the magazine's articles will be short — only about 50-100 words each — for fast, stimulating bathroom reading."

It takes most interior decorators that many words just to warm up.

I would say that reading an article of that length takes less than a minute. Which is about the time it takes to change a razor blade. However, there is no evidence the magazine is trying to speed up the blade-changing process.

The publishers insist the average person spends 11 minutes perusing whatever literature is available in a bathroom.

No wonder the average person reads some articles six times.

An allergy to anesthesia is extremely rare, and even if one did occur, there are alternatives that would still make a nose job possible for someone who really wants one.

White House Put Lid On Iran Story

By Jack Anderson And Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON - A stern question mark overhangs the Iran/contra scandal: Why did it take the media more than a year to pry the lid off this government-shaking story? Earlier disclosure might have saved the United States from a nasty embarrassment.

Until now, we have been restricted as to how much we could say about our role in the drama. We were sworn to protect sources who have now released us to tell the story. If in this recounting we give too much weight to our own part, it is because we know that part best.

Not long after the White House opened back channels to Iran, we heard whispers about the covert negotiations. We asked President Reagan's national security adviser, Robert "Bud" McFarlane, about the rumors in mid-November 1985. He was evasive.

We continued checking, nevertheless, until we became convinced that significant negotiations were going on with Iran, that the Reagan administration was making deals in direct conflict with its own policy toward nations that promoted ter-

Our inquiries precipitated an urgent call to Dale Van Atta from Noel Koch, then deputy assistant secretary of defense for international affairs. Koch pleaded with Van Atta not to write about the arms-for-hostages deal because it would "endanger the lives of the hostages."

Testifying under oath 18 months later, Koch told Congress that Van Atta had the whole story in December 1985. "He had it cold," said Koch. "He came to me and asked me about it. ... I simply said, 'Would you please drop it? I think if you go with this story ... you may get somebody killed."

Rather than risk the lives of the hostages, we sat on the story. But we were troubled by the administration's attempt to conceal its arms-for-hostages negotiations behind an elaborate smokescreen. The White House orchestrated a campaign to portray President Reagan as the scourge of terrorists and Libya's Moammar Gadhaft as the terrorist most in need of scourging.

Of course, we knew the administration was offering arms to the most deadly terrorist of them all, Iran's Ayatollah Khomeini. Still, we decided not to risk the hostages' lives by divulging this secret. Instead, we published a series of columns protesting that Khomeini. not Gadhafi, was behind most terrorist acts against the United States. As one bit of evidence, we reported on Dec. 13, 1985, the death by torture of hostage William Buckley, a high CIA official. His capture and torture, we reported, was ordered by Tehran.

The day that the column appeared. McFarlane's administrative assistant, Karna Small Stringer, screamed at Van Atta on the telephone that we were putting all hostages at risk. She warned angrily that the president might make a public statement accusing us of irresponsibility. Other calls had the distinct overtone of personal threats.

On Feb. 24, 1986, Van Atta reviewed our findings with Ronald Reagan himself in the Oval Office. He confirmed that Buckley had been tortured to death but that, to save the hostages, he was dealing with Ayatollah Khomeini's radical regime. But the president joined the others in urging us to withhold the story until the hostages were released.

So we continued to sit on the story until President Reagan, calling Gadhafi "the mad dog of the Middle East," sent planes to bomb Libya. We felt this was an attempt to divert attention from Iran, where we were selling arms to the real "mad dog."

On April 28, 1986, we reported cautiously that "the Reagan administration has begun a hushhush, barely perceptible tilt toward Iran." We followed up with more details in May and June.

Our column of June 29, 1986 said that "secret negotiations over arms supply and release of American hostages have involved members of the National Security Council and a former official of the CIA" caused special consternation inside the White House. One confidential memo, referring to the column. lamented that "our willingness to talk with the Iranians is common knowledge."

Yet the White House succeeded in keeping the investigative press in a bottle. Reporter after reporter complained to us that they couldn't confirm our stories, that they were bumping up against a stone wall at the White House.

In a Sept. 17, 1986 memo, an anguished Lt. Col. Oliver North speculated who might "be the source of the Jack Anderson stuff we have seen periodically." Still the conspiracy of silence held until November of 1986.

The $300,000 fire was at Chatham Harbor Apartments, State Road 434. The blaze destroyed four apartments and damaged 11 others, forcing 40 people out of their homes. There were four minor injuries.

Arlene Langbom, 32, told police $5,795 worth of jewelry was taken from the apartment as well as $50 in coins.

Altamonte Springs Police Lt. Ed Overman said Langbom reported 16 or 17 pieces of assorted jewelry taken. Langborn told police she returned to the apartment Monday to find a sliding glass door open and the box of Jewelry missing. She said she was not allowed by the apartment manager to enter the apartment Saturday because of fears the building's damaged roof would collapse.

While that reported theft is under investigation, a second incident will be turned over to the State Attorney's office for possible prosecution.

In that incident, apartment dweller Larry Glles, 27, sald he saw three men in a van take two bottles of inexpensive wine from his damaged apartment. When he confronted the men, they reportedly told him they were from a temporary labor force hired to clean out the burned debris and were told what ever they found they could have, according to a police report. Doctors Seek Insurance Aid; Martinez, Physicians Meet

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) - The head of a Broward County physicians group says his meeting with Gov. Bob Martinez shows the state is ready to deal with the medical malpractice crisis, but it probably will not be enough to pursuade doctors to return to emergency rooms.

"I hope other doctors will look upon this (meeting) as a positive sign on the part of the government to give some type of relief to our problem," said Dr. Peter Tomasello, president of the Broward Medical Association.

He said the governor was "supportive and concerned" during Thursday's meeting, held at Fort Lauderdale Executive Airport on Martinez' return from a trip to Central and South America. But Tomasello said his peers were still looking for immediate help from state lawmakers so hospitals can reopen their emergency rooms.

Martinez, who had requested the meeting with the seven doctors, said afterward: "I hoped to show by my presence here that I am committed to solving the problem."

Gambling 'Oasis At Sea' Planned

MIAMI (UPI) - Plans are underway by a father and son to renovate an oil rig into a restaurant and casino "oasis at sea," tow it from Houston and plant it 3.2 miles off Miami's Key Biscayne.

John A. Davis Jr., 64, of Maine, and John A. Davis III, 33, of Houston, applied for federal permits to build the entertainment complex, the younger Davis said Thursday. He said they thought of their "oasis at sea" about two years ago and have actively worked on it for about four months. They already run the Bayview resort in Bar Harbor, Maine. Federal law prohibits anchoring a ship in federal waters and opening a casino, the younger Davis said, but maritime law defines ships and platforms differently and the Coast Guard said the rig would not be considered a

Archbishop Urges Pope Parties

MIAMI (UPI) - Archbishop Edward McCarthy, symbolically beginning construction on the huge site of the papal mass, said the goodwill represented by Pope John Paul II during his Sept. 10-11 visit will last long after he leaves Miami.

"I see it as a great renewal of high human ideals," said McCarthy, who had a yellow ribbon affixed to his vest as a symbol of the visit. "The pope is regarded as a sign of peace, harmony and compassion."

McCarthy is encouraging people to hold parties celebrating the papal visit, to make peace with neighbors. to hold interdenominational gatherings and to perform other acts of reconciliation.

Standing in mid-80s heat Thursday where the 22-foothigh stage will be located near the Florida International University Tamiami campus. McCarthy sprinkled holy water on the site, expected to accommodate 500,000 people during the Sept. 11 mass.

Concession booths, water trucks for 600,000 people and 10 medical stations will be on hand for worshipers. About 1,000 portable toilets will arrive just before the event.

Market Active, Higher

NEW YORK (UPI) - Prices opened higher Friday in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which fell 12.76 Thursday, was up 5.10 to 2456.51 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 585-372 among the 1,433 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Early turnover amounted to about 20,595,000

June Wholesale Prices Up, Smallest Increase in 1987

WASHINGTON (UPI) -Wholesale prices inched up 0.2 percent in June, the smallest increase in five months, as food prices rose more slowly and all other costs except energy hardly increased at all, the Labor Department said Friday.

June's report means the government's Producer Price Index rose at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 4.5 percent in the first half of 1987. That's the fastest pace for any six-month period since late 1982, the government said, but it noted that the recent increase in energy costs were almost the entire reason why.

Most economists predict that energy prices won't go up much farther. That means the index will rise much more slowly from now on and wholesale prices for the year will show a rise of about 2.5 percent to 3 percent, they

The Producer Price Index tracks the cost of goods as they leave farms and mines and are processed for the wholesale market. It's considered an important sign of how inflation will affect consumers in a few

The government said June's PPI rose only 0.2 percent — the best showing since February's 0.1 percent increase - mainly because of food. The consumer foods index increased 0.5 percent as prices went up for fresh fruits, fresh and dried vegetables, rice, beef and veal, pork. fish, dairy products, processed fruits and vegetables, sweets and roasted coffee.

Prices dropped only for eggs. processed poultry, soft drinks and cooking oils. The cost of bakery products was unchanged.

Energy goods cost 0.9 percent more after having shown no change in May. Fuel oil cost 4.6 percent more and gasoline prices rose 3 percent but natural gas costs declined 1.8 percent, the government said.

Food and energy factors comprise about one-third of the entire index for processed wholesale goods — the stage just before the products reach consumers. Outside of those two factors, prices inched up just 0.1 percent.

The biggest increase was in household flatware, which rose 4.8 percent. The biggest declines were in cosmetics and tolletries, down 1.6 percent, and footwear, down 1.2 percent.

All those percentages are seasonally adjusted and reflect changes in the cost of goods compared to the same or like products in 1967.

"We're compiling the evidence. We just can't tell you (any more details) right now," Anthony said in a brief appearance before reporters. He said there would be more complete statements later in the day "or tomorrow."

The four suspects left the hotel one by one. They were taken into custody and driven to the inkster police station in ambulances and police cars. The ambulances had been on standby since early in the negotiations. There had been reports one of the suspects was ill but Anthony said all four walked out without help.

"Negotiations were going on since about 8 o'clock," said Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano. "I think we always had hope."

Gunfire from the room at the two-story motel was sprayed into a parking lot and a store across the street after the hostages were taken about 6 p.m., but there were no injuries to bystanders,

About 7:30 p.m., the suspects asked that Detroit Mayor Coleman Young or the Rev. Jim Holley, a prominent civil rights activist, come to the scene to protect them when they surrender and to mediate in a real estate dispute. Detroit television reporter Bill Proctor took the request for the intervention by Young or Holley by telephone after the woman asked police to have the reporter call her. Holley arrived shortly after the request was made, and apparently talked with the suspects on the police communications network linked to a telephone. The woman told the reporter her anger was sparked by a real estate deal in Macomb County that had gone sour for the family and led to writing of the bad check and the subsequent warrant.

"She feels put upon by some real estate deal in Macomb County," north of Detroit, Proctor said. "She claims (it was) a $100 million deal," he said.

"I was sitting in my office reading. I'd go out and shred it. They could hear it. The shredder was right out the door," North said under cross-examination from Arthur Liman, chief lawyer for the Senate panel probing the case. "They were working on their projects. I was working on mine.

His project. North acknowledged, was "cleaning up" files containing documents on the Iran deals, the diversion of profits to Nicaraguan Contra rebels and other sensitive work he did as a gung-ho National Security Council staffer.

With some incredulity, Liman asked his witness: "You were there taking batches of documents past these attorneys from the Department of Justice and shredding them and they weren't saying, 'Stop, we'd like to look at what you're doing'?"

"No," North replied with a nod. He also did not deny he was destroying papers that could have proved politically embarrassing to Reagan's administration.

mayor a vote on the commission, while removing his veto power and decreasing the number of commission seats from five to four. Fearing the possibility that the number of Individual questions would be confusing to voters the commission instructed Linda Barnby, who was working in the place of absent City Attorney Frank Kruppenbacher, to consolidate the ordinance into one question that voters could respond to on the ballot.

Although Barnby said she didn't think four questions would overwhelm voters the commission still wanted the ordinance rewritten.

Commission member Paul Tremel said the average voter would not be all that concerned about the specific details of the ordinance, as long as it would result in a strong city manager

"I'm not concerned about the voters (ability to understand the questions)," Tremel said, "I have faith in the voters."

Commission member Ken King said he believed the entire commission wanted to move towards the city manager type of government, but that the members were split down the middle when it came to the issues that were set aside. Lake Mary Resident Randy Morris, who is a member of the charter revision committee, said the revision would have been doomed had the questions concerning veto power and the number of commission seats been allowed to pass with the city manager government ordinance. The reason there was so much trouble in approving the wording of the proposed revisions according to Fess, was due to the commissions desire to ensure the wording met with state mandates governing questions asked on election ballots. Fess said he wants to get the city manager in charge of running Lake Mary and let him go at it.

Crane Accident Claims 5th Victim

SAN DIEGO (UPI) - A metal basket carrying shipyard workers fell some 25 feet from a heavy-duty industrial crane onto the deck of a Navy ship early today, killing five people and injuring seven others, three critically, officials

The accident occurred shortly after midnight at the National Steel and Shipbuilding Co. when a basket carrying 12 workers fell on top of the USS Sacramento, a U.S. Navy supply ship from Bremerton, Wash., a company official said.

A fifth worker died of injuries a few hours later at UCSD Medical Center.

Hallet said the basket's cable was intact, indicating that the 50-ton crane's brake mechanism may have failed or that human error could have been responsible.

Goetz's Attorney Attacked

NEW YORK (UPI) - Police say they have "no idea" why a helmeted man wielding a spiked club beat and broke the wrist of Barry Slotnick, the flamboyant defense attorney whose clients include Bernhard Goetz, Rep. Mario Biaggi and reputed mobsters.

Slotnick was reaching into the trunk of his car parked outside his Manhattan office at about 4:15 p.m. Thursday when he was struck from behind by a man armed with a club with a nail in it, police spokesman Peter O'Donnell

The assailant, wearing a dark helmet with a dark faceplate, fled on a waiting motor scooter, driven by another man in the same headgear, O'Donnell said. Police said no further description of the men was available.

Slotnick's driver, seated in front when the attack took place, drove the attorney to Beekman Downtown Hospital. Hospital officials said Slotnick, 48, suffered a fractured wrist, two puncture wounds to his arm and a back injury.

Robert Earl Davis 38, a former police officer who was believed to have been a leader of the breakout from the Penitentiary of New Mexico North Facility, was taken into custody Thursday after a motorist spotted him hitching a ride on the back of a flatbed truck just before 8 a.m.

Davis told authorities he hopped on the truck's trailer while the driver rested at a truck stop. The trucker left with Davis on the back, but another trucker spotted the inmate on the trailer, 5 miles south of Belen and 100 miles southwest of the state penitentiary, authorities said.

The second trucker attracted the attention of a State Police officer who followed the trucks until other state troopers and Valencia County sheriff's officers stopped the truck and took Davis in custody, officials said.

Italy Prepares For New Government

ROME (UPI) - Caretaker Prime Minister. Amintore Fanfani resigned his 12-week-old government Thursday, clearing the way for consultations to form a new government based on the outcome of Italy's June 14-15 national elections.

President Francesco Cossiga's office announced that Fanfani "confirmed" the resignation he originally submitted April 28 during a meeting with the head of state at the Quirinal presidential palace this morn-

The announcement said Cossign will start consultations with party delegations Friday and will conclude the talks on Saturday. At the conclusion of the consultations, Cossiga will name a candidate to try to form the next government, which will be Italy's 47th since World War II.

The resignation of Fanfani, 79-year-old Christian Democrat elder statesman, was strictly in accordance with constitutional Faniani's single-party minority government was sworn in April 18, after a two-month political crisis failed to reach agreement on the formation of a government that could command a majority in the Chamber of Deputies.

The government failed to win a confidence vote April 28 and Fanfani immediately tendered his resignation to Cossign. But the head of state reserved a decision on whether to accept the resignation and asked Fanfani to maintain his government in a caretaker capacity to organize the June 14-15 elec-

Cossign then dissolved Parliament and ordered the national elections one year ahead of schedule.

When Fanfani confirmed his resignation Friday, Cossiga accepted the resignation and announced he would hold the two days of consultations before naming a prime minister-designate.

Cossign was expected to give the first chance of forming a new government to a Christian Democrat. The leading candidate named by the press was party Secretary . Ciriaco De Mita, 59.

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) - 1986-87 of $1.9 billion was Australians, to vote Saturday for the third time in four years, will decide whether to give the Labor government of highly popular Prime Minister Bob Hawke an unprecedented third term. Hawke, a reformed two-fisted drinker who held a Guinness Book of World Records mark for guzzling two pints of beer in 12 seconds when he was a Rhodes Scholar at Oxford University, is a slim favorite in public opinion polls to defeat a tenacious opposition composed of the Liberal and National parties.

Opposition leader John Howard, head of the Liberal Party, has gathered surprising widespread support with promises to cut government spending by $7 billion and give the average family $20 a week in tax

Hawke, whose government came to power in March 1983 after a seven-year reign by the Liberals, has fought on a plank of "United We Stand, Divided We Fall" and has used television advertisements to call the Howard pledges a sham.

Voting is mandatory in Australia. Fines equivalent to $140 will be slapped on any of the 10.3 million registered voters out of the population of 16 million who do not cast ballots.

For the first time since 1943, the Australian federal election is being held in the dead of the Southern Hemisphere's winter, where temperatures range from below freezing in the capital, Canberra, to the high 80s in tropical Darwin.

In an election first, special ballot booths will be set up for skiers at snow resorts in New South Wales and Victoria states.

After months of promising the three-year term of his government would run its full course until Australia's bicentennial in 1988, on May 27 Hawke announced elections would be held nine months early.

Hawke was entitled to ask Queen Elizabeth Il's representative, Governor General Ninian Stephens, to dissolve both houses of Parliament when the Senate twice rejected Labor Party legislation for a national identity card to help weed out tax cheats.

But political analysts agree that Hawke seized the opportunity to call the early election because of an unprecedented split and continued disunity in the opposition coalition of the Liberal and National parties.

The prime minister's advisers worrled the gamble may have backfired when Howard's tax and spending cut pledges gained unexpected support.

But this week the nation's most respected opinion survey, the Morgan-Gallup poll, showed the Labor Party still ahead of the opposition - although by a slim 48 percent to 44 percent.

Published Wednesday in the Bulletin magazine, the poll of 4,000 voters who were interviewed last weekend was the biggest single sample in the

It represented a half point drop for the government and a similar improvement for the opposition compared with a survey last week. Earlier polls put Labor's lead at as much as six points to as little as one point.

The Labor Party, traditionally backed by powerful trade unions, holds a 16-scat majority in the House of Representatives. Labor has 82 seats, with 45 for the Liberals, the voice of the business community, and 21 for the Nationals, which largely claims rural support.

The campaign has centered on a beleaguered economy stung by a drop in world commodity prices and private sector borrowing.

Hawke's government has claimed the resulting massive federal budget deficit for

Hits First Goal

Timothy "Rock" Raines, attempting to be the first major leaguer to make both the all-star team and steal 70 or more bases in his first seven seasons, hit the halfway mark of his goal Thursday when Davey Johnson named the Montreal Expo outflelder to the National Lengue squad for Tuesday's All-Star Game in Oakland.

The 27-year-old Raines has been on every All-Star squad beginning with his rookle season. Raines, who was not on the official ballot since he was a free agent when it was printed, finished 31st with 86,571 write-in votes. He received more write-in votes than any other player in the N.L.

Raines, nonetheless, has made up for lost time after sitting out until May 1 before re-signing the the Expos. In 60 games, he is hitting .346 with seven homers. 37 runs batted in and six game-winning hits. The defending N.L. batting champion has also stolen 24 bases in 26 attempts. The RBI, homers, GW-RBI

Raines, who has been voted into the starting lineup once. said recently he would be proud to be named to the team but would hoped to reach the point where he could be voted into the starting outfield.

"I've already got six All-Star rings, but I'd rather be voted in then named," Raines said. "But there are so many outflelders hitting homers. Those are who the people vote for."

Playing in Montreal's obscurity has never helped Raines much either. The Expos do not draw well, and the Expos are usually not contending this time of the year, two factors which promote votes.

"The only way to get people in Expo Stadium is to be in first place all year." Raines said. "We drew over two million in 1981 when we won the division."

The three N.L. outfleld posttions are highly competitive. They went to Eric Davis, Darryl Strawberry and Andre Dawson this year. When a player as popular and as good as Dale Murphy does not make the top three, one knows it is tough.

While the All-Star selection was taken for granted, stealing 70 or more bases for the seventh consecutive season is not. Raines had 40 steals at this time last year, 16 more than his present total.

And last year, Raines struggled to reach 70, picking up the pace over the last month of the season to reach his goal.

"I still think I can get 70. I'd like to get it but I don't want to break my neck doing it now that I'm a batting star," Raines laughed. "I'm batting third in the order and it's more important for me to drive in runs than steal bases."

Sanford's Junior League All-Stars, fresh from a come-frombehind 12-9 victory over Port Drange Wednesday, will send Mike Taylor against host Ormond Beach tonight at 6 in the winners' bracket final.

Ormond Beach walloped Holly Hill, 14-1, in the opener Monday and came back with a 24-6 blistering of New Smyrna Beach Wednesday. Sanford, meanwhile, rapped out 13 hits. WINTER SPRINGS - The Seminole Pony Mustang National League moved a few steps - make that a few miles closer to the state tournament in Tampa as it whipped the Seminole American League. 11-3, in District Tournament winners' bracket play before 145 fans at Five Points Complex Thursday night.

"They're sitting in a pretty position," American manager Mark Kleibl said after his squad lost for the third consecutive time to the Nationals. "To beat Baseball these guys you have to play a perfect game. We just can't put it together against them."

West Seminole A will now face Seminole American in the losers' bracket final tonight at 7, while Seminole National will have the night off in preparation for the championship against the winner of tonight's matchup. The championship game is set for 10 a.m. on Saturday with a second game, if necessary, at 1:30 p.m.

The key to the victory was the fine pitching of Kiley Calapa. who tossed the first five innings. which is the longest outing of his career. Calapa fanned eight batters and gave up six hits to earn the victory.

"He did a great job," National manager Gary Burger said of Calapa. "He's a slow starter, (but) the more he gets going, the better he does."

After a scoreless first inning. National erupted for four runs in the second inning in which 10 batters came to the plate. Aided by five walks by losing pitcher Dusty Story, two of which drove in runs. National watched its first four batters cross home plate, sparked by a single by Calapa and a squeeze-play single by Shawn Burger. Three men were left on as Story forced the final batter into a groundout to second baseman Brian Luger.

American responded with a lone run in the bottom of the inning. Story led things off with a single before the next three batters all reached base by error, prompting Burger to have a flashback to National's sluggish performance on Wednesday

Senior Nationals All-Around Skill Excites Pleicones

Duke Pletcones knows a good baseball team when he sees one.

Pleicones, who is coaching the Altamonte Little League Seniors Nationals All-Star team, said this year's squad has something that most baseball team only wish they had: strength in all phases of the game.

"This is one heck of team," Pleicones, who is in his eighth year of coaching in the Altamonte organization, said. "We have strong pitching, excellent hitting and superb defense. I can't tell you how exciting I am about this team."

Pleicones has experience as an All-Star manager, piloting teams for the past two seasons. Last season, Pleicones coached the Altamonte Juniors into the state tournament in Tampa. They lost two consecutive games and bowed out in a hurry.

"Last year, we left our bats in Altamonte," Pleicones said. "I truly believe that we will go a long way this year, though."

Pleicones said. "Most of these kids have been on these kind of teams before, and that is very beneficial." Altamonte also is adept at the plate according to Pleicones. "We've been ripping the cover off - the ball," Pleicones said. "The hitting will be there. I'm not that worried about our hitting, because I know that there will be a lot of it."

Fleicones said that in addition to the strong pitching staff and sound hitting, the real strength of the team may be its defense. "We have looked super in the field," Pleicones said. "I'm confident that our defense will be fine.'

Obscure Seickman Shares Lead; Okamoto Overshadows Furlong

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) - Tom Sieckmann, a veritable golf master on remote Pacific islands and the Far East, has languished in obscurity on the PGA Tour following victories in such overseas events as the Thailand Open, Phillipine Open and Singapore Open.

But Seickmann is bidding for his first victory on the PGA Tour at the $612,000 Anheuser-Busch Golf Classic at Kingsmill Golf Club, grabbing a share of the lead Thursday after one round of play.

The Omaha, Neb., native, a winner of seven events on the international circuit, matched his best round of 1987 with a 6-under 65, giving him a tie atop the leadboard with veteran Mark McCumber.

In LPGA play at Laval, Quebec, Shirley Furlong shot a career low 6-under-par 66 in the first round of the $400,000 du Maurier Classic.

However, the San Antonio, Texas, native's outstanding performance Thursday was overshadowed by Ayako Okamoto, who shot a 7-under 65 to take the lead heading into the second day of the competition.

In Seniors action at Fairfield, Conn., Peter Thomson shared the first-round lead of the U.S. Senior Open with Gordon Jones, who has waited 30 years for his first professional victory.

Each player fired a 5-under-par 66 Thursday to hold a one-shot advantage in the $300,000 event.

National Ends 'Mystique,' Tops Withrow's American

By Mike Dame Special to the Herald

WINTER SPRINGS - The National League shook a nagging monkey off their backs Thursday night as they railled for four runs in the top of the seventh to whip manager Jim Withrow's American League. 10-7, in the first game of a best-of-three Seminole Pony Bronco All-Star Series at the Five Points Complex.

Withrow, who has never had a team that finished lower than second in the league and is an continually guided his teams past National League squads. Withrow's American League had beaten the National in two practice games earlier this week.

But things were different Thursday night as the Nationals overcame the "Withrow Mystique," according to manager Bob Carr.

"I think there's a little mystlque when the boys play against Withrow," Carr said. "They overcame that tonight. I felt all along that we could play with them. It's a big confidence builder."

Withrow, however, discounted

Carr's "Mystique" philosophy. "The coaches can only do so much," Withrow said. "It's the players that play the game."

The two squads meet again tonight at 6:30.

The National, which led most of the game, found themselves in a 6-6 tie with American going into the top of the seventh, but It quickly tied the game. With two men on base, Richard Stuart smacked a single to right field off American right-hander Nakia Roberts to collect the gamewinning RBI and give National the lead, 8-6. Chad Seimer then drilled a double off the center field fence, driving in two more runs to give National a 10-6 lead.

Roberts led off the inning with a double and eventually scored on a Paul Giambalvo single. That was the only run it could manage, however, before Seimer experienced all-star coach, has came on in relief of Jeremy Chunat to fan the final batter and seal the win.

Chunat led the Nationals at the plate with two doubles in three at-bats while Scott Ferguson and David Eckstein each chipped in two hits. Chris Mayberry popped a double and scored twice to contribute to the 10-hit attack.

Despite losing the game. American did have its moments, highlighted by two homers off the strong bat of Matt Freeman. who collected four RBIs. One of Freeman's homers was so devastating that it was still rising as it sailed over the fence.

"Freeman is a powerful youngster," Withrow said. Carr agreed.

"He's been doing that all year," Carr said of Freeman's two blasts. "The thing is not to let anybody on base in front of him.

Jason Crain also homered for American in the loss while Roberts was 3 for 4 performance, including a double and three

"They were rocky in the first and second (innings)," Burger said, "but they came back and made great plays."

Come back they did, for the defense held American scoreless the rest of the inning despite a bases-loaded situation. A key defensive play which ended the second inning was made by lest-slelder Jamie Pitzer. With a man on third, Calapa attempted to pick off the runner but threw wild into left field. Pitzer, who alertly was backing up the throw, picked up the ball and fired to catcher Mike DeVoss to catch the runner at home plate, saving a run and ending the inning.

The National added a run during the next two innings for a 5-1 lead.

National came alive in the final two innings, however, as it rallied for three runs in each inning, while American could only squeeze out two more runs.

Aaron Church came on in relief of Calapa in the sixth to close out the victory. Story gave up five runs on four hits as the losing pitcher, while teammates Mike Goodall and Tommy Powers combined to give up six more runs in the final three innings.

driving in two runs. Dusty Curry added two singles, while Mike Johnson and Jimmy Parran each doubled late in the game, with Parran picking up three RBIs in his two at-bats.

Luger and Cris Kleibl were each 2 for 3 for the Americans, with Kleibl driving in one run. Chunat, Carlos Martinez and Story each chipped in a hit.

In the earlier losers' bracket gaine, West Seminole A crushed the West Seminole B team, 24-9, eliminating the B team from the tournament.

West Seminole A took a quick 17-0 lead after two innings before the B team rallied. Manager Gary Carnes squad exploded for eight runs to cut the lead to 17-8, but it was simply not enough to overcome the A squad.

The A team pounded out 11 team hits and was walked 14 times. Steve Sandman was the spark for manager Joe Foranoce's squad as he went 2 for 4 with a double, two RBIs and three runs. Dustin Fleiner and Geoff Gizelt were each 2 for 2 in the game, while Tim Pollock and Scott Foley both doubled.

Chris Campbell led the B team in a losing cause with a 2 for 3 performance, driving in two runs and scoring once. Jeff Williams was also $\tilde{2}$ for 3 in the game. Kyle Steinke added a single and an RBI.

Doug MacWilliams pitched the first two innings for A to earn the victory, while hurler K.T. Slawson suffered the loss.

Wilson Zeroes In On Talladega

One of the hottest drivers on the Winston Cup NASCAR circuit in recent weeks is Bartow's Rick Wilson.

In the Miller American 400 two weeks ago, Wilson was in second place with 10 laps to go when his motor in the Kodak Film Oldsmobile blew. Last Saturday, at Daytona Rick Wilson was running with the leaders until he ran into a wall at the Firecracker 400 last week. The determined Bartow driver said he wants to win the Talladega 500 on July 26 to make amends.

in the Firecracker 400, Wilson once again was in second place and making up time on then leader Dave Marcis when with just eight laps to go. He brushed the wall, however, putting him out of the race.

Despite the unfortunate brush, Wilson was not discouraged. "I still feel good about the way we ran today," he said after the race, "I'm not at all embarrassed about that. We didn't change tires, and it got loose on me. It got into the wall, and I just couldn't get it off the wall.

"I think I could have caught Marcis if I hadn't hit the wall. Passing him would have been something else. I'm looking forward to Talladega. Right now, I feel like that one's

The Talladega 500 runs July 26.

The 34-year-old Wilson, now the full-time driver for the Morgan-McClure Racing Team, made his Winston Cup debut at the 1980 Firecracker 400. His best finish in NASCAR has been a seventh at the '86 Daytona 500.

Wilson has been a winner on the ARCA circuit and a multi-time winner in the late model sportsman short track circuit. Until last year, he raced New Smyrna Speedway at all the big events and his beautiful black Camaro visited victory lane many times.

Bobby Allison became the seventh different winner of the 15 race old NASCAR

Winston Cup season with his victory inst-Saturday at Daytona. Allison, 49 years, seven months and one day, became the oldest driver to win a Winston Cup race, breaking his old record set in the 1986 Winston 500 at Alabama International Motor Speedway.

Dale Earnhardt and his Wrangler Jeans Chevrolet shot past $900,000 in winnings for the season, the earliest any driver has ever surpassed that amount in motorsports history. Earnhardt is looking for his second consecutive and third overall Winston Cup title as he boosted his lead in the standings to 327 points over second-place Bill Elliott. driver of the Coors Ford.

After a lengthy delay because of rain at Volusia County Speedway, Dennis Bennett of Jacksonville earned the pole position for the 50-lap Busch All-Star Series 4th of July special. Ken Nosbisch of Tampa was the outside pole winner.

Bennett took the lead at the drop of the green flag with Nosbisch falling in behind. Tuck Trentham of Orange City and Brian VanSickle of Jacksonville quickly closed on the leaders and a four-car battle for the lead began shaping up.

On lap 32, Bennett tangled with a slower car going into turn one which sent his car spinning into the outside lane. Rob Underwood had no place to go and plowed in Bennett's car taking him out of the lead and the race. Nosbisch slipped past the wreck to take the lead with Eliawood, Ga. driver Mike Head taking over second place.

Nosbisch held off several attempts at the lead by Head to earn the victory and his first All-Star Series checkered flag. Head maintained second while Underwood, after repairing his car, managed a strong third. Ronnle Johnson of Tennessee and Paul George of Sevile rounded out the top five.

Nijssen Stuns No. 9 Tulasne

BROOKLINE, Mass. (UPI) -Tom Nijssen of the Netherlands upset ninth seed Thierry Tulasne to join the top seven seeds in the quarterfinals of the $293,400 U.S. Pro Tennis Championships.

Ranked 148th in the world, Nijssen made few mistakes Thursday and used his strong serve to pressure the Frenchman and win, 2-6, 6-0, 7-6, (7-1). On the fourth point of the tiebreaker, Nijssen's serve was ruled an ace and Tulasne, angered by the call, failed to win another point.

"He hit a lot of heavy topspin balls from the baseline and I'm not too tall (5-foot-9)," Nijesen said. "It was tough for me to return them, but fortunately I served well.'

In the only evening singles match, top seed Mats Wilander easily downed 17-year-old Argentine Franco Davin 6-2, 6-2. The match featured 10 service breaks. The unseeded Davin, ranked No. 107, lost his first seven service games.

Wilander, ranked No. 2 in the world, said he felt he could break him all the time (and) it gives you confidence if you can. Then it is easier for me to concentrate on my own serve."

In other afternoon matches, No. 2 Andres Gomez rebounded from a three-hour match with Mark Dickson Wednesday night to defeat Diego Perez of Uruguay 6-4, 6-4, and No. 3 Kent Carlsson of Sweden ousted No. 14 Guillermo Vilas of Argentina 6-3.

After the fourth-inning rally and Fuller's superb relief effort, Sanford fans were yelling, "We want Leesburg." Leesburg defeated the Americans, 19-2, in the first game of the tournament but Sanford believes it has turned its fortunes around. "The kids know what they can do and believe they can beat Leesburg," Anderson said. "And we hope we can get the same great fan support for the championships. The fan support plays a big part in our success.'

Rookie Reward: Nokes, McGwire Join Stars

Nokes, whose major concern heading into this season was making the Detroit Tigers roster, has made the American League All-Star team.

Nokes and fellow rookie Mark McGwire of the Oakland Athletics were two of 20 players named Thursday as substitutes by American League Manager John McNamara. National League akipper Davey Johnson also revealed his final roster for Tuesday's game at Oakland.

Nokes has been superb in replacing catcher Lance Parrish. who started for the American League last year, but left Detroit this season to sign as a free agent with Philadelphia of the National League.

"I thought I had a chance,"

NEW YORK (UPI) - Matt homers and 48 RBI, upon his selection. "(Making the All-Star team) wasn't a high priority. Just being on the (Tigers) and contributing to my team and winning the pennant is what's important to me now."

McGwire, with 31 home runs and 64 RBI entering Thursday's game, was on a pace to approach Roger Marie' single-season record of 61 homers.

"It's a great honor," the A's first baseman said. "I don't know what to say. I don't know if it will really hit me until Monday when I walk into the clubhouse with all those veterans; some great players I was watching a few years back."

The National League pitchers and reserves include left-hander Sid Fernandez and first baseman Keith Hernandez, giving the World Series champion New said Nokes, hitting .311 with 17 York Mets four players. Fans elected catcher Gary Carter and outfielder Darryl Strawberry as starters.

McNamara and AL President Dr. Bobby Brown also selected Cleveland first baseman Pat Tabler. Detroit's second baseman Lou Whitaker and shortstop Alan Trammell. Toronto shortstop Tony Fernandez and Kansas City third baseman George Brett, who for the first time in 12 seasons was not elected by the fans. Minnesota's Kirby Puckett, Texas' Larry Parriah, Chicago's Harold Baines and Boston's Dwight Evans are reserve outfielders.

The nine-man pitching staff consists of Scattle's Mark Langston, Boston's Bruce Hurst, New York's Dave Righetti, Milwaukee's Dan Plesac, Kansas City's Bret Saberhagen, Detroit's Jack Morris, California's Mike Witt, Toronto's Tom Henke and Oakland's Jay Howell.

NL President Bart Giamatti and Johnson selected an eight-man pitching staff of Fernandez, Philadelphia's Steve Bedrosian, Los Angeles' Orel Hershiser, Cincinnati's John Franco, Pittsburgh's Rick Reuschel, Houston's Mike Scott and Chicago's Lee Smith and Rick Sutcliffe. Cincinnati's Bo Diaz and Atlanta's Ozzie Virgil back up starting catcher Carter.

Reserve infielders are Philadelphia second baseman Juan Samuel, and Montreal third baseman Tim Wallach and shortstop Hubie Brooks. Reserve outfielders are San Diego's Tony Gwynn, Atlanta's Dale Murphy, Montreal's Tim Raines, San Francisco's Jeffrey Leonard, St.

Louis' Willie McGee and Los Angeles' Pedro Guerrero. Each club consists of 28

Joining Carter and Strawberry as NL All-Stars elected by the fans were Cincinnati's Eric Davis and Chicago's Andre Dawson in the outfield, St. Louis' Ozzie Smith at shortstop, Chicago's Ryne Sandberg at second, St. Louis' Jack Clark at first and Philadelphia's Mike Schmidt at Righetti's inclusion gives the Yankees five representatives on the AL team. Fans picked second baseman Willie Randolph. first baseman Don Mattingly and outfleiders Rickey Henderson and Dave Winfield. Boston third baseman Wade Boggs, Baltimore shortstop Cal Ripken Jr. and catcher Terry Kennedy and Toronto outfielder George Bell complete the starting lineup.

Reardon Saves Another One For Relieved Kelly

United Press International

While Minnesota reliever Jeff Reardon at times has failed to live up to his nickname "The Terminator," his contribution to the Twins this season has been invaluable.

Reardon has blown his share of games but with him as bullpen ace, the Twins already have matched their 1986 save total of 24. Reardon has 17 saves and is a primary reason why Minnesota holds a two-game lead in the American League West.

"I can't say enough about Reardon," Minnesota Manager Tom Kelly said Thursday night after Reardon preserved the Twins' 3-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles. "He's a helluva pitcher."

The right-hander, obtained over the winter from Montreal for Neal Heaton, pitched out of a lam in the eighth inning to help rookie Les Straker even his record at 5-5.

Straker yielded a leadoff single to Mike Young in the eighth, and with one out, Fred Lynn doubled him to third. Reardon relieved and struck out Cal Ripken and Eddie Murray to end the threat.

"That was one of the hardest ones to get," said Reardon, who struck out the side in the ninth. "Usually anybody you pitch against, you try to strike out. When you go and strike out Ripken and Murray, it means much more. They were up with runners on second and third base." Reardon has gone 3-0 with seven saves over the last 18 innings for a 1.50 ERA.

Numbers Game Snubs Joyner

Totals

United Press International

First baseman Wally Joyner of the California Angels, second in the American League in RBI, was left off the All-Star team because he "got caught in a numbers game."

Joyner, batting .277 with 19 homers and 71 RBI — second only to George Bell's 73 entering Thursday night's games apparently fell victim to the All-Star rule that states each team must send at least one player to the midseason classic.

Other players snubbed for All-Star berths were: Montreal first baseman Andres Galarraga, Toronto outflelders Lloyd Moseby and Jesse Barfield, Minnesota first baseman Kent Hrbek, Texas shortstop Scott Fletcher, San Francisco first baseman Will Clark. St. Louis third baseman Terry Pendleton, New York Mets pitcher Terry Leach, Montreal pitcher Neal Heaton and Houston reliever

Joyner, a starter as a rookie last year, was nudged off this year's squad by Pat Tabler, the only member of the Cleveland Indians selected. Tabler was batting .311 with seven homers and

Video Clubs Get Priest's Blessings

Heavy metal acts and video clubs generally go together like oil and water. But Judas Priest is pleased with their attempt to buck tradition. They put an edited version of their concert tape "Priest...Live!" (the home version is available through CBS Fox) on a 23-city club tour, and had a blast.

"We're still in the studio working on a new album, and putting together a stage set that seems to grow like Frankenstein's monster," says Priest frontman Rob Halford. We weren't prepared to do any live shows before our world tour in 1988. Video is at least something for people to enjoy while their favorite band is in another part of the world."

Halford and his cohorts, however, did fly out to mingle at the clubs — a personal touch unavailable in stadiums. "Letting people meet us in a one-to-one environment was tremendous," says Halford, "completely different than an arena event where you're so far away from the audience — an ant viewed through binoculars.

"One advantage of live video is that it does allow people to get up onstage with us. When the camera's right in our faces, you see every bead of sweat. That's something you just can't get in an arena.'

(BU) MTV's summer movie promotional extravaganza is barely underway, and already it's time to start gearing up for fall's annual MTV Music Video Awards. This year, the program will emanate from the Universal Amphitheatre in Los Angeles. and air live on Sept. 11.

So far, confirmed entertainment for the show - due for worldwide satellite telecast are Bon Jovi, Cyndi Lauper, Bryan Adams, Crowded House and Run DMC. More names will be announced over the coming Duril have a chance to vote for their favorite videos among the clips broadcast on the cable net between May 1986 to May 1987. USA Today will carry the bailots. and MTV will announce a 900-number, voter call-in line sometime in August.

This year, MTV includes a new award category for "Best Music Video from a Film." It's a logical move, as half the videos made lately are movie promos. Some upcoming soundtrack songs that may sweep the 1988 trophies include: Art of Noise's theme for "Dragnet," with a videoclip directed by award-winning Zbigniew Rybczynski; Wang Chung, the group who recorded the song "Hypnotize Me" for the film "Innerspace," with a video directed by Oley ("Broken Wings") Sassone; .38 Special, whose "Back to Paradise" will grace the upcoming sequel to "Revenge of the Nerds"; the Nylons, who add a vocal track to the new Michael J. Fox movie "Bright Lights, Big City"; and for Carl Reiner's comedy "Summer School," Tonto K. performs the controversially titled theme, "I'm Supposed To Have Sex With You."

Policemen Of The Year

Firemen Spend Holiday In Setting Of Fire And Water

Saturday was not just a holiday for off-duty Winter Springs firemen but it was a special treat because the firemen and their families got together for a picnic and barbecue at Disney's River

"It's really nice to get everyone together," said A-shift captain, Bob Beck, 24. He said he and his wife Patty, residents of Deltona, had been looking forward to the event all week. 'We're like one big family here," continued Beck, "and we love putting on barbecues and such." A-shift's Lieutenant Ed Forrest concurred. "Since we do spend a lot of time together on duty we really do become a family, so water. - Alberta Mason when we get together with the wives and kids we have a great time." said Forrest.

According to Fire Chief J.C. Holzman about 35 "family members" spent a most enjoyable day at River Country. You could almost say they literally had a blast. "There were two separate computerized fireworks displays going on at the same time," said Holzman. His eyes lit up as he recalled the event. The Allen family celebrated its annual reunion. July 3-5, the local Allens hosted the family reunion when over 150 family members from Georgia, South Carolina, New Jersey, Maryland, New York, Ohio and Florida gathered.

The event began with a back yard fish fry at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willie L. Allen. Sanlord. The family gathered at Lake Sylvan Park on Saturday for the family picnic when souvenir muga were given all and t-shirts were worne by family members.

In the evening a gala event was held at the home of D.J. Daniel Barnes. Sunday Morning, a beach party was held at Bethune Beach, New Smyrna. The closing event of the gala weekend was a Sunday evening banquet held at the Sanford Garden Club, with Robert Allen Master of Ceremonies. Special tributee was paid to the deceased members of the Allen family who have contributed so much to the lives, and building of the Allen Family.

The candlelight memorial service was a picture of love and thankfulness shown for having been a part of the ives of the deceased members of the family. Plaques were presented to the oldest living female of > the Allen family, Mrs. Eula A. Hardy, Atlanta, and the oldest living male, the Rev. # Steward Allen, Rosedale, N.Y. The Allen's departed looking forward to the next family reunion after an enjoyable weekend.

Flawed Law Turns Rapist Free For Good Behavior

DEAR ABBY: I am so angry I can hardly see to write this. I believe in justice, mercy and forgiveness, but now I'm reading that it's "unfair" to further punish a person for a crime after he has paid his debt to society referring to the monster who raped a teen-age girl, chopped off her arms with an ax and left her for dead in a ditch.

The person who committed this crime was sentenced to 14 years 'n prison, served only eight years, and then, because of a "flawed law," was released for "good behavior"!

What kind of legal system would allow a person who had committed such a terrible crime to be returned to society? The man is now living in a trailer at San Quentin Prison, protected by two parole agents at the cost of $1,350 a day to ensure his safety! Officials had tried to place this convicted rapistmutilator in several northern California communities, but none would have him. (Can you blame them?)

I resent my tax money going to protect this man; he is either insane and belongs in a mental institution or he should be returned to prison to rot.

How do you feel about this? And what can be done about It? OUTRAGED IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR OUTRAGED: I, too, am outraged. Although it is too late do anything about this particular case, the quickest way to get this law changed is to write a letter to your state senators and assemblypersons, as well as to the governor. stating your feelings about this "flawed law" and demanding that it be changed to one that more appropriately fits the

VERN SCOFIELD, LINCOLN, NEB.

DEAR MR. SCOFIELD: No shame on me. According to The Associated Press Stylebook, "biannual" means twice a year and is a synonym for "semiannual." However, "bimonthly" means every other month, and "blweekly" means every other week. "Biennial" means every two years. ("Semimonthly"

DEAR ABBY: "Mother of One" writes that she is very happy with just one child, but she wishes people would quit nagging her to have another child. They say she is being very "unfair" to raise her son without a brother or sister. Oh, really? Mary of Nazareth had only one child, and from what I hear, he turned out pretty good.

Superman Is A 50-Year-Old Superhero

Story And Photos
By Susan Lodon
Herald Staff Writer

Look! Up in the sky! Even pushing age 50 he's still faster than a speeding built and still able to leap tall buildings in a single bound.

There's just no stopping this "Man of Steel" known as Superman, who is more powerful than a locomotive.

Tagged the "Man of Tomorrow" when he debuted on the cover of Action Comics #1 in June 1938, Superman, also known as mild mannered, bespeckled, Daily Planet reporter Clark Kent, has endured into the 1980s.

Superman soared onto the scene with powers and abilities far beyond those of mortal earthlings. On his native planet, Krypton, Superman would have been just one of the guys. But the fantasies of two Cleveland, Ohio, teenagers, Jerry Siegel and Joe Shuster, freelancers for what was to become D.C. Comics, brought him down to earth in a storyline that identified this first comic book superhero as a visitor from another planet; one who is superhuman and who also has a duel Identity.

Although he isn't earthbound, Superman, is firmly entrenched in American folklore. Longwood's Bill Black, who today creates his own superhero comic books, said it wasn't Superman's comic image that first caught his eye in the late 1940s and early '50. It was his radio image that came to life in Black's boyhood and took his imagination "Up, up and away."

As an adult, Black is still hooked on Superman. Black is a serious collector of all Superman comics published since 1970. He also has a collection of older ones, some of which aren't Black's favorite image of The Man of Steel because they show Superman using his powers in silly ways. On the cover of one he opens a coconut with a squeeze and on another he puffs through an old lady to blow out the candles on her birthday cake.

As a boy, Black was unable to win a chalkware image of Superman as a prize in a softball toss at a fair. But years later, in the 1970s, when Superman's trappings were becoming recognized collectibles, Black said he was able to find one of those Superman prizes for $15 in a Jacksonville junk shop. He hasn't seen another like it.

True, the colors the statue wears are yellow and red, those of a less human hero of the same era, Mighty Mouse. But, Black sald, there's no mistaking that the likeness was intended to be the square-jawed Superman, for whom the name "superhero" was coined.

In his super collection, Black also has the Superman novel, which tells Superman's super life story, a 1970s "peace" poster, glasswear, tapes and films of the movies and televison shows as well as recordings of the old radio broadcasts, and other items, which he said he expects will become more and more sought after as the celebration of Superman's half century mark gets into full swing.

"The Superman comics were a welcome diversion to America's Depression-era Kids," said Carl Scheele, a curator for the National Museum of American History. "And he quickly became identified as the champion of the oppressed and downtrodden.

"At that time, there were two kinds of lawlessness for the all-American superhero to deal with — the homegrown variety, in the form of gangsters and organized crime, and the emergence of the Axis leaders on the internationi scene." During the 1940s, Superman was a superforce battling Nazis and Japanese.

After the war, never-before heard of foes, such as Atom Man, were faced down by Superman, whose only weakness is a deadly allergy to exposure to fragments of kryptonite, pieces of his distroyed home planet.

His weakness was dreamed up in the 1940s after Superman expanded his career into radio, and his "voice" needed a vacation. In two weeks of radio episodes the only part his character had was anonymously performed off-stage moaning as the show went on without its superstar. The kryptonite angle was picked up and expanded on in the comics.

In the post World War II years, Black said, Superman appeared in two filmed serials of 15 episodes each, as well as in a top quality animated feature. Those were the forerunners to the Superman television show of the 1950s. As Superman forged ahead as the true America hero on television, as well as the silver screen, interest in the comics waned.

Over the years there have been many writers and artists involved in creating and perpetuating the image of Superman.

In the early '60s Superman focused on an idealized America. In the 1970s, the Man of Steel touched on social issues, such as pollution, women's liberation and drug abuse.

Superman has changed with the times as easily as a quick trip into a telephone booth, a concept introduced as a transition device of the Superman television show, can take him out of the non-descript persona of Clark Kent and into the caped, red and blue form-fitting costuming of the superhero.

His look has remained basically the same, and except for his muscles, square-jaw, a splicuri on his forehead, Black said Superman's look really isn't very distinctive and artists haven't tried to maintain a unique image for him.

He has always worn a trademark 'S' on his chest. His blue-black hair shows no sign of gray and his penchant for bold, primary, patriotic colors for his tights remains the same.

In the early days, his physique was a bit blocky, but today Superman is super sleek, with every muscle defined in super proportions.

The Superman comics, Black said, are enjoying an upsurge in popularity, because artist-writer Jerry Ordway, who loves the character, took over production of the comics last year and has updated the images not only of Superman, but also of Clark Kent. Lois Lane is still in love with Superman, but is now very much an independent 80s lady, Black said. Meanwhile Clark Kent has a ladyfriend of his own who has appeared on the scene.

Superman's quest for 'truth, justice and the American way,' is never ending, and interest in his actions is apparently equally enduring.

AS THE WORLD TURNS

The mysterious Greek woman took care of a deltrious Craig and vowed that no one will take him away from her. Frannie was skeptical when Sierra told her that she thinks Craig is still alive. Sierra confided that she had a premonition that Craig was in danger at the time his plane had crashed. Line pleaded with Earl to drop his obsessive investigation of the Falcon case. Duncan told Shannon that, to protect her from his enemies, he wants her out of his life. Lyla told Casey that she wants to spend some time alone. Holden roughed up the trucker who gave Lily a ride and the trucker said Lily, who used the name "Monica," is headed West. The Greek woman believes Craig was sent by the Gods to replace her son, who has died. To prove that she trusts Tonio, Meg signed some legal papers without reading them

Sex, Violence And Double Talk

A pamphlet from Donald E. Wildmon, executive director of the National Federation for Decency, located in Tupelo. Miss., informs me that "Miami Vice" is TV's "top sex, violence, profanity oriented program.

The pamphlet says each hour of "Miami Vice" last fall contained 22.08 incidents of the stuff. By way of contrast, "The Cosby Show" had only 8.517 per hour.

That makes sense. I mean, "Miami Vice" is about a police vice squad. "The Cosby Show" is about a nice family. It's only natural that the show about the vice squad would have more sex and violence in

I can't make a case for profanity, but I don't understand why some folks worry so much about the quantity of sex and violence on TV. It seems to me the quality of the presentation should be more important. Violence isn't pleasant, but it can be dealt with intelligently in a fictional context. As for sex. I've heard it, too, has its positive aspects.

Nevertheless, I decided to check up on the decency federation by counting the incidents of sex, violence and profanity on "Miami Vice" for myself.

The episode I chose started in a nightclub, where women in bathing suits were dancing. In network TV terms, that's

But how do you tally up "incidents per hour" of it? Would the whole dance be an incident? Or would each shot of a dancer be an incident? And what about scenes with dancers in the background? Half an incident?

By the time the first commercial came on, I decided to concentrate on violence and profanity.

Incidentally, the pamphlet says Mazda is "the top sponsor of sex, violence and profanity on prime-time television," and darned if that first commercial wasn't old Jim Garner selling Mazdas.

I had the same difficulty counting violence that I had with sex. After Garner was through, a bunch of guys with machine guns shot up the nightclub. But what was one 'incident'' - the whole shoot-out, or each shot, or bullet, or murder, or what?

Profanity was easy. The pamphlet says the most common dirty word on TV is something it calls "he-." It says there were 1,215 "he-s" on TV last fall. On "Miami Vice," Don Johnson said he expected "one hell of a drug war." I expect that's the word.

So what we are to make of all this research, the federation's and mine? Well, I think TV shows are stupid to use sexual titiliation or violence as a substitute for a plot. But I don't think "Miami Vice" falls clearly into that category. In fact, an episode last fall about the war in Nicaragua is my candidate for the best TV show of the season.

Saturday Night Live In The Flesh

By Mark Schwed UPI TV Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) -"Saturday Night Live" caught fire this season, rekindling some of the sparks that made the late-night NBC show such a sensation when it debuted 12 years ago.

Some old-timers were back. Dennis Miller mastered his "Weekend Update" skills, and John Lovitz lied better than ever. And fresh material came from fresh meat: Dana Carvey with his "church lady" and Kevin Nealon with the "subliminal mart."

The Emmy-winning series that spawned such talents as Chevy Chase, John Belushi, Dan that NBC Entertainment President Brandon Tartikoff announced way back in March that "Saturday Night Live" would live another year - its 13th.

Aykroyd, Bill Murray and Eddie Murphy, saw the ratings increase all season long.

The credit goes to Tartikoff for sticking with the show, to executive producer Lorne Michaels for returning and rebuilding it, and to the cast, a seasoned bunch of pros who know comedy when they step on it.

Michaels' secret to success this season was simple: he went back to the same stomping grounds where he found the Belushis and Murrays and grabbed the ones who had already proven Things were so swell themselves at the improv, on film, doing impersonations, or with stand-up comedy.

This summer, while "Saturday Night Live" is off the air, fans will get a chance to see exactly why Michaels picked this crew. Three "SNL" stars, Miller, Carvey and Nealon, are hitting the road for the "Saturday Night Live" 1987 Summer Concert Tour, a 16-city tour beginning July 15 in St. Louis the first time "Saturday Night Live" has gone on the road since the days of the Blues Brothers.

"We were thinking about calling it the '1987 We Can't Sell Out Individually Tour," said Dennis Miller, just back from London where he saw the play "Les Miserables."

"Or maybe the 'Les Miscrables Tour," he

Miller gulped down some vacation while in England but when he jetted back he found his bones itching for a comedy fix. So he headed from the airport to "Catch A Rising Star," a comedy club in New York, and did a stand-up routine.

"That's really free time for me, doing stand-up."

Are They All In The Sheen Family?

Dear Dick: Are Emilie Esteves and Charlie Shoen brothers? If so, is Martin Shoen their father? — C., Houston.

Dear Dick: Would you please tell me if Renee Esteves, who was in a "MacGyver" spisode not long ago, is Martin Shoen's daughter. — H.M., Ashaway, R.I.

Dear C. and H.M.: I can understand the confusion because of the names. Martin Sheen's original last name was Estevez. He was born in 1940 in Dayton. Ohio. Renee, his daughter, and Emilio, one of his sons, have chosen to go back to the name Estevez. Charlie (who is really Carlos) and the other son. Ramon, prefer Sheen. All four are Martin's children.

Dear Dick: I have been trying to remember the name of a Spencer Tracy western. He played a cattle baron with three sons; I think Richard Widmark and Robert Wagner were two of them, but I'm not sure. Do you remember this one? - R.M., Lake City, Tenn.

Dear R.M.: Yes, that was "Broken Lance," a 1954 movie. The third son was played by Earl Holliman. It was a good western, too.

Dear Dick: What can you tell me about David Huffman? I haven't seen him in a movie for some time. His father was my neighbor and in our teen-age gang, in Paris, Ill. So of course I have been interested in David's career. I know he was in "F.I.S.T." But what other movies has he been in? - Mrs. W.R., Erie, Pa.

Ask Dick Kleiner

Dear Mrs. W.R.: Unfortunately, David Huffman died — much too young. Besides "F.I.S.T.," his major films were "ice Castles" and "Wolf Lake." Plus he did a lot of television.

Dear Dick: I thought "Nuteracker" was excellent. Was this a mini-series? And, in the earlier version, did Ann-Margret play the Lee Remick part? -B.D.T., Hollywood, Fla.

Dear B.D.T.: Yes, both "Nutcracker" and the earlier version of the same story, "At Mother's Request," were mini-series. It wasn't Ann-M in the first version, however, it was Stefanie Powers.

Dear Dick: Was Whoopi Goldberg in "The Color Purple"? I insist she was, but my friends tell me she is not. Please settle this argument. - M.W., Canyon, Texas.

Dear M.W.: Not only was Whoopi in "The Color Purple," but she was nominated for an Oscar for her performance.

Dear Dick: When did "The Young and the Restless" premiere? I have a wager on this. I say loss than 10 years age and my opponent says it was 15 years age. I hope to win a steak dinner. - B.F., Muskegon, Mich

Dear B.F.: Sorry, the steak's on you. "The Young and the Restless" first reared its soapy head on March 26, 1973.

Dear Dick: My husband and I have a bet about Lassie. I say Lassie was a male, and not a purebred. My husband said Lessie was a she. Who is correct? — Mrs. T.L., Marlow, Okla.

Dear Mrs. T.L.: I declare all bets off. During the life of Lassie on film - covering the movies and the TV series - there were some five generations of dogs involved. They were all owned and trained by Rudd Weatherwax, and he says sometimes male dogs were used and sometimes females. Most of the time, there were several identically marked dogs on hand, as one might be better in one kind of shot and one in another. They were, however, all purebred

Dear Dick: My question is this: I believe in the early '70s there was a police show called "Cat and Dog." Was Kim Basinger in that short-lived series, as a detective? - Mrs. L.P., Knozville, Tenn.

Dear Mrs. L.P.: It was "Dog and Cat," to be precise about it, and it ran for a few months in 1977 on ABC. Kim was co-starred with Lou Antonio, in that. her only TV series role, except for a small part in "From Here To Eternity."

Who's Afraid Of Nerdy Rick Moranis?

By Frank Sanello HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — It's easy to see why Rick Moranis always gets cast as a nerd. It has a lot to do with those oversized, black, hornrimmed glasses. And his height, barely 5-foot-5. Plus his boyish physique and slightly wimpy

Aware of Moranis' screen Image, Mei Brooks decided to play off it when casting the actor against type as the towering villain Dark Helmet in "Spaceballs." It's Brooks' movie parody of "Star Wars."

A Darth Vader-takeoff, Dark Helmet wears a huge black helmet and speaks with the same kind of booming voice created by James Earl Jones in "Star Wars." Lift Dark Helmet's visor, however, and you get Rick Moranis, complete with wimpy voice and nerdy face.

Playing nerds is just fine with Moranis.

"I've been offered comedies where I'm a more regular guy I don't know if I'd like to do that," he says, sipping tap water, not beer, in his Beverly Hills hotel suite.

He is probably best known as one half of the beer-swilling McKenzle Brothers on "SCTV." The syndicated Canadian video import was formally called Second City TV and featured sketches by that country's most imaginitive young comedians. It aired on American TV in the late '70s and early '80s. "Spaceballs" also stars SCTV veteran John

On the set of "Spaceballs," Moranis felt an instant rapport with Mei Brooks, despite the generation gap caused by the 30-year difference in their ages. Moranis feels both he and Brooks share the same

Brooks's first big break was as a writer and performer with "Your Show of Shows" in the

Says Moranis: "I would guess that working on 'Your Show of Shows' was exactly like 'SCTV'. I was laughing a lot on the set. Mel loves it when you lose it. I'd put my visor down and Mel would see my body quivering from laughter. The clock was ticking, the delay was costing money, and Mel would say, 'Get it out of your system.' I asked him why he was so accommodating about our laughing, and he'd say Carl Reiner was a laugher too. Mel was just used to people failing apart on the set."

Tongue in cheek, Morants sees "Spaceballs" as Brooks making good on a promise he made at the end of his last film, "History of the World, Part I." The comedy ended with a fictitious trailer for Brooks's next film, called "Jews in Space."

"At the end of 'History of the World.' Mel threatened to do 'Jews in Space,' and I guess 'Spaceballs' is it," Morania says. "Spaceballs" has an ongoing gag about the planet Druidia whose monarch's daughter is called a "Druish princess."

Moranis rewrote much of his dialogue in "Spaceballs." He also has done that in most of his other films, including "Club Paradise. "Chostbusters" and "Strange Brew," a McKenzie brothers vehicle, which Moranis cowrote and co-directed with the other "brother," Dave Thom-

Talking about "Spaceballs," Moransi says, "Most of what we filmed made it into the final cut. We didn't waste a lot of shooting time. We did waste take - a lot of time writing. There isn't a lot of film footage on the floor, but there are a lot of script pages in the wastebasket.'

Jane was upset that Brick didn't try to change her mind when she talked about getting a new start in a new town now that Caroline is dead. Carmen decided to investigate Toddlers Inc. on her own. Pearl rescued a headstrong Carmen, who went to Toddlers inc. pretending to be a pregnant and unwed teenager who wanted to give up her baby for adoption. Julia didn't heed Tori's warning that there's something shady about Paul, who talked Julia into letting him take photos of her baby, Samantha Eden (aka Sam). C.C. learned that several people died after being treated medically with the serum that he manufactured from Alex's formula. Eleanor dreamed about teiling C.C. that she had killed all of his children. Keith admitted to Gina, who's working for Toddlers inc., that he's convinced that Marsha's adoption agency is crooked.

THE TOUNG AND THE RESTLESS

Steven is worried about Ashley's ob-session with Victor's problems with Nikki. David laughed when Jill suggested that a street burn they encountered is the perfect man for her plot to get Kay romantically involved so that she'll butt out of Philip's life. Eather was surprised at Kay, who wants to hire Skip to keep Jill romantically occupied and out of Philip's life. Jack hid in the shadows when Steven brought Ashley home after spending the evening with her. Victor reluctantly abandoned his plans to take Nikki on a cruise that he had hoped would take her mind off of her impending "death." Ashley told Steven that he's her best friend. A shocked Paul shared passionate kinnen with dowdy achool teacher, Dana, who turned into a sex siren right before
