

Practice For Feds To Start On August 25; 1941 Schedule Is Listed

Football practice for the Semi-Colony Feds will start Aug. 25 at the high school field at 3:00 p. m. in the afternoon. Coach Edward McLucas announced yesterday before leaving for the Vero Beach Coaching School, which he is co-sponsoring. McLucas is to predict how many will be back this year. He said he hoped for from 35 to 40, including 15 regulars from a year who were left after last season.

The first week of practice will be taken up with loosening up the boys in shorts, Coach said. Some practice will be held in passing, running, kicking and the equipment will not be issued before Sept. 1, in accordance with a state law pertaining to the backfield position.

Graduation lost Joe Davis, Lefty Altman and Dub Spys in the backfield and pushed Harold Madden, Ed Daniels, Jack Morrison and Tommy Smith out of the line but despite those losses Coach McLucas is hopeful of turning out a "fairly good team this year."

Of no help in the schedule, one of the toughest any Fed team has ever faced, the coach declared. Starting with the opener with Easton there isn't a single brother until the season is over as each of the opponents are tough.

If those men return who are listed as prospects and a few good boys come up from junior high school to be developed, Coach McLucas hopes to make a good showing.

The schedule is as follows:

Sept. 28 Easton	There
Oct. 6 Lake City	There
Oct. 13 Daytona	There
Oct. 17 DeLand	There
Oct. 24 Ocala	Here
Oct. 31 Orlando	Here

Wire Fence, Golf Pool Start Rise Of Hurst Tourney

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 13.—(AP)—A needed wire fence, $5000 won in a golf pool, a 74-year-old caddy and Bobby Jones combined to fashion a big-money golf tournament which its sponsor declared last night will give spectators their biggest break in years.

It started two years ago when Henry A. Hurst, Philadelphia men's dealer, won $5000 on Jimmy Demaree in a golf pool at the Augusta Masters Tournament.

Back home, L. A. Diamond, 74, Hurst's fellow member at Torrensdale Country Club, told Hurst he knew a good use for the $5000. The club needed a fence on the back nine to keep out trespassers and stop sliced balls.

Hurst said he had a better idea to raise the $15,000 for the 14,000 foot fence—a tournament with $7500 prize money, a low admission for spectators and a grandstand for those whose legs give out on the 72-hole grid.

Out of these plans came the Hurst invitation tournament to be held Sept. 19-20-21 at Torrensdale with the national top golf stars entered.

Bobby Jones helped Hurst corral Henry Picard, Sammy Snead, Craig Wood and a host of other top ranking pros, as well as crack amateurs.

Jones cancelled an exhibition to play in two days of practice rounds preceding the tournament. Hurst put up $2000 additional money for the practice sessions.

And, Hurst says, a Scotchman at the club has offered $250 for anyone who shoots a hole-in-one during the tournament.

For next year, Hurst has even bigger plans. He hopes to host the prize kitty to $12,000—one of the highest levels in golf.

Here's a new type of pump which fills a definite need by supplying an extra volume of water at low pressure and also provides an ample supply at normal tank pressures. Extremely quiet in operation, the F-M Horizontal Ejector pump has but one moving part. It produces greater water capacity for its motor size than any other design of pump. Air motor jet and tube, built into the suction side of the valve, increase the speed of the pump and develop a high pressure discharge. A heavily constructed bronze impeller makes the pump less subject to wear from sandy water. Come in today—we will be glad to give you complete details on this F-M Horizontal Ejector Water System.

Hawaiian Swim Team Sweeps A. A. U. Meet

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 13.—(AP)—The crack, dominating Hawaiian island swim team wrapped up its third National A. A. U. title Sunday as two of its all-star squad established a pair of new American records.

Kiyoshi Nakama, defending champion, did through the water in 16:06.3 in the 500-meter race, shaving off eight-tenths of a second from its standard Ralph Flanagan, of Miami, set in 1935.

In the day's final event Jose Balmain churned up the suburban Maplewood pool's surface for a victory in the 500-meter individual relay in 3:56.9, one and one-tenth second faster than Adolph Kiefer's 1940 mark.

Breadon Says St. Louis Fans Are Loyal To Cardinal Baseball Team

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Sam Breadon, president of the St. Louis Cardinals, takes exception to recent intimations in this pillar of brass to the effect, that St. Louis fans take a scow ride down the Mississippi or feed the goldfish, everytime his team is playing in town.

Mr. Breadon not only believes the St. Louis fans are gold-plated when it comes to loyalty; he lists figures to prove his point, and when you've got figures on your side you can't lose, unless they're pathetic figures.

Anyway, here's what Mr. Breadon has to say:

"I had census figures compiled for all major league clubs. In compiling these figures I took the major league cities and the population within a radius of 100 miles. St. Louis had a 2,500,000 population within this radius. The city closest to us in population was Cincinnati, and within the same radius Cincinnati had 50 percent more population than St. Louis, or 3,900,000. I think when these facts are taken into consideration that St. Louis fans, with two major league clubs to support, are probably the most loyal in the major league circuits.

"The New York area, within a 50-mile radius, has over 20,000,000 people to say nothing of the other cities. On Monday, June 2, in Brooklyn, we played to 19,000; on Tuesday, June 3, 18,000; and on Friday, July 16, we drew 20,000. In our last three games in St. Louis, with the Brooklyn club, we played to an average of 11,000 per game. When you take into consideration that within a 50-mile radius, as compared to a 100-mile radius, Brooklyn had more than eight times as many people to draw from as we had, yet did not double the attendance for weekend games, our showing isn't so bad.

"We have practically no transients, and no leisure class, in St. Louis. The fans who attend our games are nearly all working people, with moderate salaries, and instead of being criticized for not attending, the games I believe they should be commended on the number that do attend, which is much larger in proportion to the population than those attending the games in any other major league city.

"I know that fan has been pointed at St. Louis for its baseball attendance, but attendance at baseball games should be figured in proportion to the population, like the sale of any other article.

"In reply to which all we can say is that it's a nice day, isn't it? It doesn't rain? You just can't find a rebuttal for that kind of logic. The attendance, as Mr. Breadon points out, must be gauged on the number of people available to attend.

"There's an old saying in baseball that if a minor league club draws the population of the town it represents during a season it doesn't have to worry. If that applied to the majors, New York clubs, including Brooklyn, would draw seven or eight million, or around two and a half million apiece. The Yankees and Dodgers hit around a million. The Giants hit around 353, and draw in proportion.

There Are All Kinds Of Intemperance

"Intemperance to most Americans, means only one thing: indulgence in alcohol," writes Bruce Barton in Your Life Magazine. "But for every man who puts alcohol hobnails in his liver, hundreds dig their own graves by other forms of intemperance—excessive work, roller-coaster emotionalism, too-violent exercise or the feverish pursuit of pleasure."

Most of us are guilty of some intemperance that drains off our vital energies, cruelly punishes our heart and nerve tissues. But not only is our health jeopardized; the subtle balance-wheel of our happiness is also deranged. "Nothing in excess," said Euripides 2500 years ago, and one has over-bettered this old Greek formula for the good life.

"William Jennings Bryan," Mr. Barton continues, "was a lily-white practitioner of 'temperance'; it was his boast that he never drank a glass of whisky in his life. But Bryan was a gargantuan eater. On the sweltering day after the Scopes trial, when he was fatally stricken by a heart attack, he had engorged a monstrous luncheon, consisting of half-a-dozen pork chops and mountains of mashed potatoes—flooded in gravy. It was 'his last meal.' Temperance lecturer though he was, Bryan's death was hastened, indeed caused by a most intemperate passion for food."

"To discover your private form of intemperance is a task that requires searching analysis of self. For only under the microscope of self-scrutiny can we see the intemperances which make our lives ugly and inefficient, and which—unless they are rectified—may lead us prematurely to the grave."

Benches In Miami

Speedy Miami seems about to take it easy, or at least make it possible for visitors on their rounds to sit down for a breathing spell occasionally.

A business man has offered to provide sidewalk benches—the green variety of which has helped make St. Petersburg famous—in exchange for the right to sell advertising signs on them. And the Miami City Commission seems favorably disposed to the idea, though it will involve some amendments to a City ordinance prohibiting street signs.

Tampa has sidewalk benches, too, though they do not make as impressive a sight as St. Petersburg's row-on-row along its wide sidewalks. Florida cities cannot have too many benches; they suggest and implement the "take it easy" attitude which helps visitors relax and refresh themselves during a Florida vacation.

But it's news when speedy Miami even suggests that visitors might find time for a loll in the sunshine or shade while the mad rush of play and entertainment for the "carriage trade" whirls about them there.—Tampa Tribune.

THE CITY OF OCALA is nearing the end of a hard financial trail. But, though the trail was hard, the ending of it is a very happy one. On August 1 the city retired $205,000 in bonds, the biggest amount to be retired at any one time since the bonds were issued in 1926. It now leaves the city with only about $250,000 in bonds outstanding, with payments scattered over several years, and none before 1945. Therefore, the going the rest of the way should be fairly easy.—Ocala Banner.

TWO MILLION FOR CENTRAL FLORIDA—Some time ago I announced to various cities in my District that the Civil Aeronautics Administration planned to make surveys of a number of airports for the purpose of determining those useful in National Defense and allocating funds for their improvement. Recently the Civil Aeronautics Administration announced the approval of the following airports in my district: Deland, Dunedin, Kissimmee, Leesburg, Melbourne, Ocala, Orlando, Palatka and Sanford. The amount of funds allocated for the improvement of these airports is close to $2,000,000. The Fifth District gets a little more than its proportionate share of the funds, which is an indication at least that the War Department is going to have use for these airports. I hope they will use some of them for base camps.

MOON OVER MIAMI—Congressman Peterson was reacting Congressman Cannon recently about the picture "Moon Over Miami." He told him it was a good picture but that the new picture industry had no use for his District and said to get their money. Of course this was a little overdone, but in the picture "Moon Over Miami" the picture industry seemed to be wrong. It was not Cannon, but a lawsuit set up by the picture industry in Florida and a coalition of some of the picture industry in the District. Writer Discusses What It Means If Japanese Get Into A New War

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
 WASHINGTON, Aug. 14 (AP)—Japan has about a year of high speed military and naval warfare under her belt, despite her costly excursion into China.

That's the consensus of the military economists.

And they figure Japan's first move, if she's wise, will NOT be into the Dutch East Indies, but yet again into Siberia (provided the Russian Army is not destroyed in the West). They assume Japan would strike for Burma and the upper part of the Malay peninsula.

The reasons why the experts figure Japan has her eyes now on the British Empire's Burma and Malaya are four-fold:

1. The Japanese army and navy could operate jointly, the army moving through Thailand and the navy along the China coast and forced merely to hold off, not attack, the fleets of the enemy.
2. Great Britain would be hard put to muster as much military force at the focal points of Burma and Malaya, as could Japan.
3. Politically, the argument of the United States that any further move by Japan would menace the raw materials we need in the Dutch East Indies, would be partly answered if Japan avoided a direct thrust at our security. For British possessions would be menaced instead.
4. Most important, Japan would find in Burma and upper Malaya much of the oil, tin and rubber she needs to prolong her war staying power to two years, perhaps indefinitely.

The military economists limit Japan's staying power against the United States that any further move by Japan would menace the raw materials we need in the Dutch East Indies, would be partly answered if Japan avoided a direct thrust at our security. For British possessions would be menaced instead.

Books And Authors

By IRVING WEINBERG

A fitting climax to a long and brilliant career, one of Hugh Walpole's most distinguished novels, "The Blind Man's House," has just been released by Doubleday, Doran.

In his great love story—unlike anything he has written before—Walpole shows with sensitive understanding the understandings of a blind man's emotional life, his love, his jealousy, and the strange twists of human character which play upon the social surface of a small English town.

Mr. Hugh Walpole was one of the Titans of modern English literature. Both in literary merit and sales, his novels have been great books—and his recent death was a profound loss to the entire reading public. "The Blind Man's House" is believed to be his best work, a tender, beautiful human love story made with the best of his writings.

Big, handsome, blind Julius Cromwell was deeply in love with his attractive wife, Celis, until the gossiping sewing circle of the little town, "The Blind Man's House," which played a scandal in Celis's friendship with another man, and placed the seeds of doubt in Julius's heart. With deep understanding, Walpole traces the tension that came between the blind man and his wife—Julius's unuttered thoughts and painful imaginings, all shaped by his blindness. In brilliant passages the sightless man battles his feelings of jealousy and doubt while the gulf between the couple grows until it seems almost unbridgeable.

There is a small incident, like a pebble in a pond, which new life brings to the water. A sudden change for Celis springs in Julius's heart and he realizes the healing strength of love and faith. Hugh Walpole has written from the heart. "The Blind Man's House" has created a book which will stand as one of the masterpieces of modern literature.

A remarkable claim is made by R. Howard Lindsay, author of "Fowl Murder." Thought, born on a farm, he says he never made his own way because his father did it so well for him. Success came to him on the way to the university. He has created a book which will stand as one of the masterpieces of modern literature.

Stuart Cloete, author of "Watch For the Dawn," has an apt name for a post-World War II novel. Leland Jameson, Eastern Air Lines pilot and widely known writer of adventure stories, died in a hospital in Jacksonville on July 9. He was thirty-seven years old.

According to the Soviet censor, this photo shows Red infantry advancing out any unexpected opposition that might have remained after the war in ocean formation. Light tanks precede the Red soldiers to wipe heavier tanks did their job. Moscow reports general counter-attacks.

The Harper Prize Novel Contest is one of the most distinguished of its kind in America. Motion picture, dramatic and serial rights play no part in this award as they do in various other contests. It is the competition of the judges and of Harper's that this freedom from influences that tend to standardize and tamper an author's individuality is responsible in large measure for the selection of ten Harper Prize novels of such distinguished literary quality.

The tenth winner of the Harper Contest is "Marriage is a Private Affair" by Judith Kelly. This is a brilliantly written novel of modern marriage. It is a story of life encircling upon an admirable blue-print plan of life, and of a woman experimenting dangerously with human emotions in an effort to save her marriage for the shipwreck her parents and friends had made of theirs.

The August issue of the Readers' Digest features "H. M. Pughham, Esq." by John Marquand (60-page condensation); "Hero," by Max Hillie (8 pages); and an article by John Gunther which will be included in his forthcoming book entitled "Inside Latin America."

More books into movies: "The Blind Man's House" has been bought by R. K. O. and "Mr. & Mrs. Cugat" to Paramount. The price paid for Edna Ferber's "Saratoga Trunk" was $175,000.

Stuart Cloete, author of "Watch For the Dawn," has an apt name for a post-World War II novel. Leland Jameson, Eastern Air Lines pilot and widely known writer of adventure stories, died in a hospital in Jacksonville on July 9. He was thirty-seven years old.

Stewart Says: It isn't Clear Who Is To Be Japan's Hitler

It isn't clear who is to be Japan's Hitler. Japan formally announced itself governmentally precisely who did the dictating isn't revealed yet.

By CHARLES P. STEWART, Central Press Columnist. JUST WHO'S to be Japan's Hitler isn't quite clear to our state department yet. Even as pro-axis as it has been for some time, Nippon hasn't been, hitherto, quite as totalitarian as Europe's dictatorially ruled countries. Now, however, it rapidly is becoming so.

Charles P. Stewart. It may call itself in the Jap language, corresponding to Nazism, Communism, Fascism or Palangism. The Japs appear to be sliding into totalitarianism by way of capitalism's suppression. At least that's the initial step. Presumably ordinary human rights will be abolished likewise shortly. Capitalists get the gaff initially, however. The Mikado's government is quoted, in dispatches from Tokyo, as describing 'em as "radicals." That is, they're radically distinguished to be dispossessed of the last cent of their bank accounts. France, state departmental reports indicate, is starting in totalitarianism's direction from the angle opposite to the Japanese one. Marshal Petain's scheme is to extinguish his country's electoral system—a job at popular voting. The best guess is that he'll get around to capitalism later, not first, as the Japs are doing. France, same as Japan, lacks a conspicuous big man at the top of its totalitarian heap. Petain's too old to last much longer. Furthermore, his authority isn't his own. It's Herr Hitler's. Adolf is it in Germany. Mussolini is it in Italy—with a lot of qualifications, but not as many as the marshals. Stalin, up to date, is it in Russia. Franco's it, for the present in Spain. When the Japs evolve their Fuehrer or Duce or boss commissar or Caudillo or whatever they may call him, he'll be it in Nippon. Petain, though, isn't anything in his own right. Still, he's doing his
