Gun game ends in death

CASSELBERRY — A game of Russian Roulette ended tragically for a 16-year-old Casselberry boy. According to Casselberry Police, the boy and four of his friends were in a vacant house, owned by the parents of one of the boys. A boy and a girl wandered to another area of the room. Police said marijuana was found in the house. Just after midnight Thursday morning Travis Wright of Casselberry placed a shell in the chamber of an 1880s-vintage Smith and Wesson handgun and spun the chamber, police said. They said he playfully pointed it at one friend and pulled the trigger. Nothing happened. He pointed the gun at another boy and pulled the trigger. Again, it clicked. Then he pointed the gun at his own head. A loud explosion rocked the house, startling neighbors who called the police. When police arrived, they found Wright sprawled unconscious on the floor with a gunshot wound to his head. Ten hours later, after being airlifted to Orlando Regional Medical Center where doctors battled to save him, he died.

Audit shows school district improving

By VICKI DeBORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The annual audit of the Seminole County school district by the state office of the Auditor General showed improvements over last year, but there were still areas in need of improvement. Auditor Harold E. Koppel would not comment on his findings. "I have prepared the report and I would have to say that it should speak for itself," he said. "I don't believe there is anything more that needs to be said." Koppel spent more than a month in Seminole County preparing the report, the Auditor General's office in Tallahassee said, and it is, they said "quite complete." Once again the auditor found that the school district overpaid former superintendent Robert W. Hughes by $1,955.17 when he left the position in January 1992. The district was cited for the same overpayment last year. The district has told the auditor general that a letter has been sent to

Hughes requesting the overpayment be repaid. A similar letter was reportedly sent last year. Hughes has not replied. He was unavailable for comment at his present job as superintendent of the Alachua County school district in Gainesville. The auditor also found that, in

At the next commission meeting on Monday, they will be asked to sign a resolution expressing their support for the purchase of the building and their dedication of the second floor of the facility to community-related organizations. It is hoped that organizations such as the First Street Gallery, the Sanford Welcome Center, the Main Street Program and the like could find a permanent home in the building which is located at First Street and Oak Avenue in the downtown historic district. The Sanford Historic Preservation Board is also asking the commission to support their efforts in obtaining state and federal funding for the acquisition and renovation of the building.

Death row inmate found dead

TALLAHASSEE — A death row inmate whose death sentence was overturned and was awaiting a new sentencing hearing apparently committed suicide, state officials said.

Samuel Rivera, 30, was found in his cell at Union Correctional Institution in Raiford at 4:05 a.m. Thursday and was pronounced dead at 4:24 a.m., said Department of Corrections spokeswoman Debbie Buchanan.

Results of an autopsy will not be available for several days, Buchanan said.

Rivera was convicted of first-degree murder for slaying Hialeah police officer Emilio Miyares in November 1986.

In January, the Florida Supreme Court vacated Rivera's death sentence and ordered a resentencing before a new judge and jury.

The court ordered the new hearing after a prior felony conviction against Rivera in Puerto Rico was vacated. The conviction had been a centerpiece of the state's case for seeking the death penalty against Rivera.

Met Life pays fine to regulators

TALLAHASSEE — Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. paid Florida insurance regulators a fine of more than $4.25 million for deceptive and misleading sales practices.

The penalty represents Florida's portion of a $20 million fine the insurer agreed in March to pay to insurance regulators in at least 43 other states. Met Life also has agreed to pay restitution that could total $76 million to about 60,000 policyholders.

The settlement concluded a nine-month investigation of Met Life's sales practices. A report commissioned by Insurance Commissioner Tom Gallagher and Attorney General Bob Butterworth revealed the illegal sales practices were "rife" within the company.

Last year, Met Life fired several executives and refunded $12 million to customers after its own investigation of sales practices in its Tampa office.

Gallagher also has filed charges against 87 agents of Met Life for fraudulent sales practices. The agents face administrative penalties ranging from fines and probation to suspension or revocation of their insurance sales licenses.

Death sentence overturned for woman

TALLAHASSEE — A second death sentence for a woman convicted of killing a Jacksonville police officer was overturned in a ruling by the Florida Supreme Court.

The court in a decision released Thursday ordered another sentencing hearing for Andrea Hicks Jackson, who was convicted of first-degree murder for slaying police officer Gary Bevel in May 1983.

Jackson, 36, was one of six women awaiting execution in Florida.

In 1983, she was arrested by Bevel for filing a false police report after she vandalized her car, called police and claimed someone else did it. She resisted arrest as he tried to put her in the backseat of his car, pulled out a gun and shot her six times at close range.

She sought clemency from the state in 1988, saying she was under the influence of alcohol and drugs. She also said she had been raped by her stepfather, an event that triggered a flashback when Bevel tried to arrest her.

Her execution was stayed in 1989 by the state Supreme Court, which ordered a second sentencing hearing.

Jackson was again sentenced to death in 1992.

Court rejects petition to oust Castor

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Supreme Court rejected a petition seeking to oust University of South Florida President Betty Castor.

DeLeon Springs lawyer James Clayton had filed a challenge with the court seeking to declare Castor's appointment by the state Board of Regents invalid. Castor is the former state education commissioner.

Clayton argued Castor's appointment was void because a government body such as the Regents with appointment powers could not pick one of its own members. As education commissioner, Castor sat on the board.

The Attorney General's Office argued there was no law or constitutional provision prohibiting the Regents from naming one of their members to the university post.

Castor started at USF in January.

Exiles, exiles meet in Cuba

HAVANA, Cuba — Cuba's Communist government today begins a potentially historic meeting with those who fled its control, opening a debate with elements of the exile community that has been its most damaging foe.

Some 200 Cubans abroad have gathered for the meeting, including members of the government that Fidel Castro's guerrillas overthrew in 1959 as well as longtime sympathizers with Castro's socialism.

Census projects Florida third-largest state by 2020

By BILL BERGSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Incoming international and U.S. residents will push Florida from the fourth-largest to third-largest state by 2020, census officials say.

California will stay the most populous, but Texas and Florida will pass New York in numbers as people continue moving to the Southeast, U.S. Census Bureau projections indicate.

Florida is expected to grow from 13.7 million to 19.5 million people, gaining elderly, Hispanic and black residents in the next 2½ decades.

Some changes, like the prediction that one in four residents will be over 65, up from about one in five now, are mathematical inevitabilities.

"The baby boom is just getting older," state demographer Kathy Ockay said Thursday.

Other projections, like rising Hispanic and black populations, are based on trends already occurring due to immigration and higher birth rates among those groups, said Ockay, of the state Economic and Demographic Research Division.

The Census Bureau projections match University of Florida predictions, said Stan Smith of the university's Bureau of Economic and Business Research.

"It's a continuation of what's already been happening: rapid growth, large elderly population, increasing Hispanic population, large numbers of immigrants," Smith said.

While the long-range projections may not affect immediate personal, business or government decisions, they can be a guide to planning.

For example, Ockay said, "Any product related to the elderly is just going to be the place to put your money."

"We went through the teen-age years, then buying homes, and now the boomers will really have an impact on health-care needs — wheelchair ramps and all sorts of things relating to elders," she said.

Florida already leads the nation in percentage of citizens over 65 with 18.6 percent, and is expected to keep the lead as that swells to 25.6 percent by 2020.

The state can expect 3.8 people to move in from elsewhere in the United States, and 2 million international immigrants.

The proportion of residents under 20 is expected to drop from 25.4 percent to 21.5 percent.

That would leave Florida with 89.1 youthful and elderly people for every 100 people in the 20-to-64 year old "working age" range, the nation's highest so-called "dependency ratio," the Census Bureau said. The state currently ranks ninth.

Whites are expected to comprise 78.9 percent of the state's population by 2020, down from 84 percent. Blacks would make up 17.9 percent, up from 14.3 percent.

Doctors group to query patients

By TRACY FIELDS
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI BEACH — A physicians' group announced plans to survey patients on their priorities in medical care, which preliminary research already has revealed are different from those of doctors.

The American College of Physicians, with assistance from The Commonwealth Fund, said Thursday it plans to query 6,000 patients around the country on matters ranging from waiting time to the seriousness with which their physicians treat their health concerns.

The idea is to "acknowledge the importance of the patient's perspective in providing quality medical care," said Margaret E. Mahoney, president of the Commonwealth Fund, devoted to helping Americans live healthy and productive lives.

"Researchers also hope to help doctors keep the patients they have "in the highly competitive situation in which physicians will be practicing and are practicing," she said.

Some physicians might be surprised to learn, for example, that early research shows while patients most value their doctors' skills and knowledge, the doctors thought it most important that they show respect for their patients.

"These are different worlds," said Dr. Charles Lewis, professor of medicine at UCLA and one of the head researchers. Physicians, he noted, tend to emphasize what he called "the Boy Scout things," such as cleanliness and honesty.

Once the data, to be gathered via questionnaires patients can complete in 10 minutes at randomly selected physicians' offices, is compiled, ACP hopes to offer it to doctors so they can compare themselves with their colleagues.

MIAMI — The Coast Guard transferred more than 400 Haitian refugees early today from a dangerously overloaded 65-foot freighter after intercepting the ship as it headed toward U.S. shores.

The unmarked wooden freighter was first spotted about 22 miles west of Bimini early Thursday, and was shadowed throughout the day by the Coast Guard as it headed southeast toward the Florida coast.

said Petty Officer Joe Dye, a Coast Guard spokesman.

Between midnight and about 2:30 a.m., 406 of the Haitians were transferred from the freighter to the Coast Guard cutter Mohawk, Dye said. The transfer took place off the coast in the West Palm Beach area, he said.

Five Haitians on the freighter were overcome — two suffered seizures, two were unconscious and one suffered heat exhaustion — and were taken

POLICE BRIEFS

Shooting alleged

Timothy O'Neil, 25, who told deputies he is homeless was charged with aggravated battery by Seminole County sheriff's deputies on Tuesday.

Deputies report they were at a business at Jitway Avenue and State Road 46 when they heard six loud bangs. When they went to investigate, a witness told them that two men were fighting and that another man "came out of nowhere" and started shooting at one of the men.

Deputies report while they were talking to the witness, one of the combatants approached them and said he had been in the fight and had been pistol whipped by the other man.

The other man said he had argued with O'Neil earlier about a woman, possibly O'Neil's girlfriend.

As he argued with the first man about O'Neil, he said, O'Neil drove by and started shooting.

When O'Neil was found in a car matching the witnesses' description a short time later deputies said they found no gun in his possession.

He was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held on $4,000 bond.

Domestic violence alleged

Mark L. Cristwell, 33, 1026 Crystal Bowl Dr., Casselberry, was charged with domestic violence-battery by Casselberry police on Tuesday.

Police report the victim said Cristwell had pushed her against a wall and that he had thrown a chair through a door inside the house.

He was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held on $1,000 bond.

Drugs found in jail cell

Steven Alexander Roberts, 22, who is an inmate at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility, 211 Bush Blvd., was charged with possession of marijuana in a county detention facility by Seminole County sheriff's deputies on Tuesday.

Deputies said corrections officers had conducted a search of Roberts' cell and had found eight and a half marijuana cigarettes hidden in his sneakers.

He was booked on the felony charge and continued held without bond at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility.

Fake license alleged

Felix Manuel Rivera, 47, 107 Sunland Dr., Sanford, was charged with unauthorized possession of a driver license, with driving with a suspended license (for being a habitual traffic offender), with obstruction by disguise and with violation of the open container ordinance.

A deputy, who said he had arrested Rivera before said he knew his license was invalid.

An open can of beer was found in the car as well.

The driver gave him a license with the name Benedicto Delgado on it, but the officer decided to research it because he believed the information to be false.

After researching it and finding that the driver was Rivera, the deputy took him to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where he was held on $1,000 bond.

Pub owner arrested

The manager of a Lake Mary pub was arrested early Wednesday morning on charges he violated state and local beverage laws. A city policeman reported hearing a juke box and seeing lights on at Lake Mary Pub, 119 W. W. Crystal Lake Ave. at about 4 a.m. On looking inside, the policeman reported seeing a beer bottle and a wine glass on the bar and two women playing pool.

The policeman reported arresting Harry Samuel McMurray, 42, 148 Lake St., Lake Mary; was held on charges of violating the state beverage law for being open past midnight and the city beverage law for being open past 2 a.m. Following a search at the county jail, McMurray was also held on a marijuana possession charge.

Marijuana distribution charged

Three Sanford residents were arrested on marijuana distribution charges by agents of the City County Investigative Bureau Wednesday afternoon. Agents report an informant met the trio at a West State Road 46 convenience store and arranged a purchase of two pounds of marijuana at a nearby motel. After arriving there, agents arrested the three and reported discovering 102 grams of the illegal substance in the car.

Held on charges of possession of marijuana with intent to distribute it and felony possession of marijuana were Michael T. Davits, 18, 111 W. Third St.; and Jody Ann Gionest, 27, of the same residence; and Rodney Jackson, 18, 1712 W. Eighth St., Sanford.

Two motorists, 19 and 20, reported a man in a van tried to run them off the road and threatened them with a handgun while driving on the road at about 6 p.m. Duffy, standing by the van nearby, told police the two motorists had tried to run him off the road.

Duffy was held on charges of aggravated assault, assault, improper display of a firearm, possession of stolen property and possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia. A Lake Mary policeman reported recovering a loaded, cocked .45-caliber handgun by the driver's seat. The policeman reported the weapon had been reported stolen.

Assault alleged

William Lindsay Boag III, 47, Orange City, was arrested by Seminole County deputies on an aggravated assault charge Wednesday morning. Another man told the deputy he and Boag were trying to hop a train to the west Coast when an argument broke out. The man reported Boag punched him, then struck him on the forehead with a wine bottle. The resulting one-inch cut required five stitches, the deputy reported. The deputy reported Boag stated to him that he should have "hit him more than twice."

Florida inmate executed today

By IRON WORD
Associated Press Writer

STARKE — Roy Allen Stewart was executed today in the electric chair, 15 years after he raped and murdered a 77-year-old Sunday school teacher from a pioneering South Florida family.

Stewart, 38, was pronounced dead at 7:11 a.m. EDT at the Florida State Prison. Stewart was executed for the 1979 murder of Margaret Hatzlip in south Dade County. Hatzlip was beaten, raped and then strangled with an electric cord.

Stewart was the 33rd inmate to die in the chair since Florida reinstated the death penalty in 1976 and the 229th since the chair was first used in 1924.

Stewart was the first inmate to be executed this year in Florida.

In a brief last statement, Stewart thanked the Rev. Fred Lawrence of the First United Methodist Church of Gainesville, who spent the night outside Stewart's Death Row cell along with another minister.

"I appreciate all you've done," Stewart said. "I love you."

The power to the electric chair was turned on at 7:10 a.m. Stewart's body jerked back violently in the chair. His hands bulged up. Two large puffs of white smoke rose from his right leg, where the electrode was attached.

"He was prepared to die," said Lawrence, the minister. "He felt like he deserved to die. He was better prepared for his death than I am for mine."

But Lawrence added that Stewart went to the chair believing that his death sentence should have been vacated based on the strength of his appeals.

Stewart's final appeals were turned down Thursday by the U.S. Supreme Court. The action was taken without comment, except for a standard dissenting statement from Justice Harry A. Blackmun, who opposes capital punishment under all circumstances.

Stewart ate a final meal of lobster, baked potato with sour cream and tossed salad. He washed it down with iced tea.

He was visited early today by his mother, Barbara Hodge and his stepfather, Hampton Hodge, of Sumpter, S.C. Two sisters and a brother also visited Stewart before his death.

Lawrence and the Rev. Larry McAlister of Scranton, S.C., kept a vigil outside Stewart's cell overnight.

Competing protesters maintained vigils in a pasture across from the Florida State Prison, nine miles north of Starke. Four protesters demonstrated in favor of the death penalty, and about 10 opposed it.

Stewart's execution was originally scheduled for Wednesday. But a federal judge in Miami issued a 48-hour stay just 11 hours before the execution to allow Stewart's attorneys time for a final appeal.

It was the fourth time Stewart had been on the brink of execution.

Florida governors signed death warrants for Stewart in 1984, 1986, 1990 and, most recently, March 9, 1994. Each time, he won new hearings. On Monday, the state Supreme Court lifted a stay on the execution.

Only two inmates have survived more than four warrants, while five have been executed on their fourth.

Stewart's attorney, Stephen Kinsinger, had argued that Stewart's conviction should be overturned because the state hadn't turned over letters, including one from a former prosecutor, that were favorable to Stewart. He also said Stewart's sanity at the time of the slaying hadn't been considered.

Stewart was convicted in the Feb. 22, 1979, slaying of Mrs. Hatzlip of Perrine, south of Miami. Stewart was a neighbor of Mrs. Hatzlip's who mowed her grass and worked as a handyman in the Perrine area.

Stewart gave police two written confessions and one taped confession after his arrest. A dental expert said his teeth matched bite marks left on a bologna sandwich found at Mrs. Hatzlip's home.

The medical examiner testified Mrs. Hatzlip was still alive when all of her injuries occurred: two human bites, brain hemorrhages from blows to her head, eight broken ribs, a fractured larynx and lacerations of her vagina.

During Stewart's trial, witnesses testified Mrs. Hatzlip invited Stewart into her home for a sandwich. But she then reportedly became angry and confronted him after he took a gold watch from a cabinet.

In his testimony, Stewart acknowledged beating and raping Hatzlip. But, he said, he left her alive.

Mrs. Hatzlip and her husband James had been early arrivals in South Florida, traveling to Miami in 1920 on the railroad owned by hotel and railroad magnate Henry Flagler.

They settled in Perrine and raised a family. Her husband died in 1967.

Death sentence upheld

By ADAM YEOMANS
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Supreme Court upheld the death penalty for Donald Dillbeck, who murdered a woman in Tallahassee after he walked away from a prison work-release program in 1990.

The court, in decisions released Thursday, also upheld the death sentence for a prison escapee from Nebraska who killed his roommate in 1989, but overturned the death penalty for another convicted killer who shot a Tampa man during an attempted robbery in 1981.

In June 1990, Dillbeck had escaped from a catering job in Quincy and ended up at the Tallahassee Mall where he tried to hijack a car. When Faye Lamb Vann resisted, he fatally stabbed her 20 times.

The murder prompted a public outcry and led then-Gov. Bob Martinez to change the way convicts were classified for work experience outside of prisons.

At the time Dillbeck was serving a life sentence for killing a police officer in Lee County in 1979.

In his appeal to the Supreme Court, Dillbeck argued that the trial court erred when it refused, among other things, to allow evidence that he suffered from fetal alcohol syndrome caused by his mother's alcoholism during pregnancy. He said it impaired his judgment and ability to control his impulses.

The justices agreed the trial court erred in not allowing the evidence but said it didn't matter because the jury had found Dillbeck guilty of premeditated and felony murder.

Dillbeck, 30, has been in prison since he was 15 and did not know how to drive.

Happy Earth Day to you

Unlike marker years when celebrations are held with much fanfare, the 24th annual Earth Day today is quietly observed.

The City of Sanford will plant trees this weekend, but special countywide programs in schools and government that will most likely herald the 25th anniversary next year, are non-existent.

But being earth-friendly shouldn't be just a once a year thing anyway.

In observance of Earth Day, we commend those Seminole County residents who pushed recycling statistics to a dramatic high in March.

A pat on the back to every person who spends just one extra second picking off the ground a tossed aluminum can or chewing gum wrapper, disposing of it properly.

Sadly, an article published Thursday in the Herald chronicled the abuse of a fresh water spring by people dumping used oil, trash and garbage into it. The spring feeds directly into the Geneva Bubble and will soon contaminate it if the polluters are not stopped.

Think about the Earth we inhabit every day. Treat it and your fellow Earthlings with respect. Find one small way to make your world better, and stick to it.

It's the only Earth we've got. Let's take care of it.

Ban inshore net fishing

I'm a freshman student at the University of Florida and share a deep concern about our dwindling Florida fishery with many of my classmates.

The use of super-efficient gillnets by commercial fishermen has not only decimated Florida's fish population but has also killed many endangered and threatened species. In 1990 and 1991, the Marine Fisheries Commission documented 141 sea turtle deaths due to net entanglement. The U.S. Marine Mammal Stranding Network reported nets as the primary cause for the 13 man-related porpoise deaths in 1989. The Florida Game and Freshwater Fish Commission has reported "a 50 percent decline in nesting brown pelicans," believed to be caused by a decrease in the number of forage fish.

Commercial fishermen would lead the public to believe that Florida's seafood supply would suffer if nets were banned; however, only two net-caught species (black mullet and Spanish mackerel) are in demand. All of the species you would order in a restaurant (grouper, snapper, dolphin, and swordfish) are hook-and-line caught while salmon and catfish are farm-raised.

It is evident that the proposed Save Our Sealife amendment to the Florida Constitution that would ban inshore net fishing would be a move in a positive direction. This is an important step in renewing our relationship with the environment we live in. Without this step, it may not just be fish and birds that are dying.

Flogging: Husband and wife disagree

My wife, Louise Davis Stone, a writer, a former theater critic and a former contributing columnist to the Washington Post, joins me in this column. In 35 years of marriage, we have rarely disagreed on a major political or social issue. Yet on Singapore's flogging of Michael Fay, we are strenuously divided. So is America. Below is Louise's take on the situation, followed by my own.

The facts are Singapore has social order, no unemployment, little poverty, clean and safe streets, arrested freedom of speech and an iron-fisted government.

None of this has anything to do with the dilemma of Michael Fay, a guest in a foreign country. It has to do with fostering "Romper Room" abroad and encouraging more generations of ugly Americans.

We are not talking about a mere "spare the rod, spoil the child" exercise. Rather, we are witnessing a serious display of "white is right" or Eurocentric immunity.

The old adage, "When in Rome, do as the Romans do," still holds true. If Michael Fay's parents did not teach him how to respect other cultures, then it is time for him to learn. Flogging may be an avenue of prevention worth trying, Flog Fay.

As for the State Department, it's got a lot of chutzpah calling the sentence "excessive."

Every day in this country, people receive "excessive" sentences. Punishments frequently don't fit the crime and thousands languish in the overflowing jails of an unjust judicial system.

Obviously, I'm from the old school, the before-television days when you "put children on punishment" when they recklessly misbehaved. In many households today the parents are the ones punished. We do not need the Michael Fays as models, nor do we need 18-year-olds controlling our streets.

With the world's highest rates of rape, murder, assault and incarceration, we also have different standards for different groups of people which really means no standards.

Let Michael Fay off and we will all pay in one way or the other. It's tough love, kid. Tough it out. -- Louise Davis Stone

To Michael Fay, freedom probably means the right to do as he pleases, even if that right ends up depriving others of their freedom.

We don't know a lot about Michael Fay's upbringing, nor are we privy to his emotional stability. What we do know is that if he had spray-painted one of our cars, our anger would have demanded swift punishment.

But anger must not plunge us to Michael Fay's destructive level. We still honor a Judeo-Christian legacy that sets our democracy apart from all others, blemishes and all. We may not be able to define precisely what makes us so magnificently unique. All that we know, as the hymn sings, is that "there is something within."

And that "something within" has kept this nation from succumbing to barbaric vengeance. Punish the wrongdoer, yes. But find that always elusive balance between the crime and the punishment.

That commonality is why Michael Fay should not be flogged. -- Chuck Stone

Yet on Singapore's flogging of Michael Fay, we are strenuously divided.

Mexico ill-equipped to handle unrest

WASHINGTON — Intelligence sources and specialists at the U.S. Embassy in Mexico are nervously and closely watching the unfolding investigation into the recent assassination of Luis Donaldo Colosio, the leading presidential candidate.

U.S. intelligence sources in Mexico have recently sent back a series of classified cables to Washington trying to assess Mexican reaction to different conspiracy scenarios.

Should widespread civil unrest break out in the wake of the assassination, the Mexican army would be ill-equipped to restore calm, according to two previous secret Central Intelligence Agency reports.

"The military is not prepared to handle a wide variety of simultaneous threats, each requiring tailored tactical planning, training and equipment," one of the CIA reports, reviewed by our associate Dale Van Atta, warns.

"Even with good training and discipline, the relatively small military forces would be stretched too thin. Too many units might be tied down by static defense of industrial and oil targets," a main concern of the Mexican military if civil unrest breaks out.

Since Colosio was gunned down in the northern border city of Tijuana on March 23, Mexican government investigators have arrested a half dozen men who they say participated in a conspiracy to kill the candidate. A major segment of the Mexican population believes some faction inside Colosio's party, the Institutional Revolutionary Party, or PRI, ordered the hit for some political reason.

Ambassadors who serve in Mexico, and experts in Washington, have long seen Mexico as a potential powder keg of discontent that only needs a spark of the wrong sort to start off widespread riots and violence. The chief American interest in Mexico has always been to have a peaceful neighbor on our southern border, and American political leaders have long privately preferred stability in Mexico to democracy — if there had to be a choice.

Widespread civil unrest touched off by internal and bloody infighting within the PRI would overwhelm the Mexican military, which only has 175,000 troops — just two-tenths of a percent of the Mexican population as a whole. "The defense share of the (Mexican) federal budget has remained below 5 percent since 1960, and has generally diminished since then," says the CIA reports.

Prior to this latest incident, the CIA believed the military could be trusted to back the PRI because it was part and parcel of the power structure. But if investigators found that an internal faction within PRI ordered the assassination of Colosio, the military would be split.

CIA estimates are especially disturbing because their prognosis for peace, if widespread civil unrest breaks out, is poor, no matter if the local police or the military — even if backing a united PRI — try to handle it.

"Although the regular armed forces have the primary responsibility for internal as well as external security, Mexican governments have used civilian security forces as the first line of defense against domestic unrest," one of the reports notes, adding:

"Regular police forces handle demonstrations staged by students, teachers or other groups, and plain clothes security units collect intelligence on dissident movements.

Ambassadors who serve in Mexico, have long seen Mexico as a potential powder keg of discontent.

Nice guys really do finish first

WASHINGTON — I don't know what I expected from a legend, but it certainly wasn't realism. Or a child's unabashed enthusiasm.

Or to be reminded of the best lesson you can teach anybody who needs career advice.

As befits a writer who earned his rep examining the unfair advantages possessed by the haves over the have-nots, Washington Post columnist William Raspberry had a problem, early on, with his celebrity.

"I was somebody who insisted on being treated like a regular guy, who resisted being made much of," he told me at our first lunch three years ago. Unsure about whether to leave feature writing for columnizing, I'd consulted my veteran colleague, confessing that I feared losing my privacy.

So did he, Raspberry said — until the day he found himself standing in a long line at a popular dining spot. He had no reservation. Clearly, the wait for a table would be interminable.

Suddenly, the maître'd' eye met his. And winked.

"Mr. Raspberry!" the grinning maître'd' cried, beckoning for him to step to the head of the line. "Your table is ready. Please come this way."

For a microsecond, Raspberry wavered. Then he strode to the front of the line.

So much for the joys of obscurity.

I laughed out loud then and did so again Tuesday, when Raspberry was awarded the Pulitzer Prize for commentary after some 28 years of column writing.

When he stood before scores of Post staffers after winning journalism's most prestigious prize, several journalists who came for cake and congrats left with damp eyes.

To understand why, listen to how Raspberry reacted when I ducked into his office to offer my personal congratulations.

Before I got even a quarter of the way through my "how wonderful!"s, Raspberry — still reeling from fulfilling a lifelong dream — launched into a long soliloquy on how much he liked my column that day.

We live on a dog-eat-dog planet, we are told. Everybody is out for number one — especially at competitive places like The Washington Post.

Some people disprove the hype. They may not be perfect but they strive for kindness. Real successes take would-be columnists they barely know to lunch; are friendly to those whose statuses don't approach theirs. "He speaks even to people you don't have to notice," says a Post copy aide, one of the young people who typically occupy the entry-level newsroom jobs. "It's an effort to be polite — an effort (some writers) choose not to make."

What impressed me about Raspberry at that early lunch, and what floors me still, is his enthusiasm. He has a couple of decades on me, but his energy — the fervor with which he picks apart the "insignificant," the sparks that pour off him as he forages into tiny corners for major truths — rivals my kids'.

Perhaps it's because he isn't that much bigger than they are.

I have a hard time imagining a big man being so effusive. Strapping types tend toward coolness — maybe they have to so as not to overwhelm. At 5-foot-6 in his loftiest loafers, Raspberry is finger-snap quick as he bounces about the newsroom, cracking jokes, mining for columns, gossiping.

Each day, he ardently demonstrates one of the surest keys to success:

Love what you do. Love the hell out of it. Don't settle for just liking your career, for becoming a data processor or school principal or Toyota saleswoman because "the paycheck's decent and hey, it's a job!"

Make it so much fun that you'd consider doing it even if you didn't get paid — or didn't get paid very much.

Though it's arguably the best writing job at a newspaper for an opinionated person, being a columnist isn't always fun. You're bound to hurt or anger readers some of whom delight in trying to hurt you back. You get more heartfelt mail than you can answer. Vital issues arise that you can't always address. Some days, you must cram 40 inches of insight into a 19-inch space — and other days you have zip. Folks will take stinging shots at you — like the local African American newspaper that has described the ever-moderate Raspberry as a Post "house Negro."

The column is always, always there. When I bemoan such things to Raspberry, he nods sympathetically. But his eyes have the baffled look of someone listening to an hellish complain about how miserable it is, spending an inexhaustible fortune. "Don't you know," the eyes ask, "that you have the best job in the cosmos?"

The man just doesn't get it. But he got the Pulitzer, telling his particular truth. Which proves that sometimes, nice guys get to the head of the line even without a wink and a smile.

Love what you do. Love the hell out of it.

Construction takes a jump

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Construction in the unincorporated areas took a big jump during the past six months.

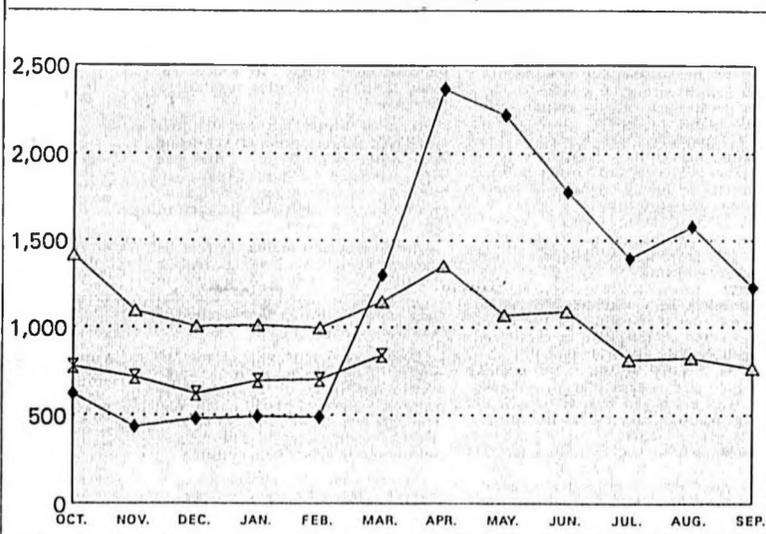

Housing construction since Oct. 1 increased 26 percent over the same six-month period a year ago, according to the monthly report by the Seminole County Building Department. The number of commercial construction permits leapt 66 percent ahead of those issued during the first six months of the county's fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, 1992.

Overall construction permit activity remains 25 percent less than last year because of the completion of thousands of roofing repairs following the March 1992 south county hailstorm. The value of construction has increased 18 percent, from $98 million to $118 million.

A total of 530 new home permits were issued by the county since October, a strong increase over the 420 permits issued between Oct. 1, 1992 and March 31, 1993. Permits for the month of March remained only slightly ahead of March house permits issued a year ago, 88 compared to 85.

Folks staying in their present homes are investing in fixer-uppers, especially pool additions. The number of swimming pool permits issued during the last six months has increased 103 percent compared to the same period the year before. In March, 73 pool permits were issued, nearly triple the 26 permits issued in March a year ago.

Even new commercial construction is strengthening. There's been a 66 percent increase in new commercial construction permits since the first of the year compared to 1992-1993. A total of 40 business construction permits were issued during the first half of the county fiscal year, up from 24 permits issued during the same period last year.

Renovations to existing commercial structures increased 64 percent during the past six months.

by small boats to the Coast Guard's stations in Lake Worth and Fort Lauderdale, Dye said. They were then taken to local hospitals, but Dye had no information on their conditions.

The freighter was then towed by a 41-foot patrol boat to the Lake Worth station.

"There's been no decision to bring those people to the United States ... they're outside the territorial waters of the United States," Immigration and Naturalization Service spokesman Duke Austin said Thursday in Washington.

A Coast Guard cutter spotted the freighter before dawn Thursday and stopped it about 30 miles east of Miami and 22 miles north of Bimini, the closest Bahamian island to Florida, said Petty Officer Tom Long-Gay.

The Coast Guard was unable to determine the freighter's point of departure and could not identify either the boat or its captain.

The boat is believed to have broken down off Nassau on Tuesday. The Haitians were apparently able to repair the old wooden freighter and continue on their journey, a Bahamas Defense Force spokesman told The Tribune for a story in Friday's papers.

The freighter was packed with 411 Haitians,

Audit

violation of both Florida Administrative Code and of the board's own policy, the district has on some occasions purchased similar or related items which cost more than $6,000 from the same vendor within short periods of time without putting the items out for competitive bidding.

The purpose of the bids is to demonstrate that the purchases are made at the lowest costs while maintaining consistent quality.

The district has told the Auditor General's office that the purchasing department has "increased efforts to monitor requisitions of similar types of items to help ensure that purchases of similar items are competitively bid."

There was no indication of what the increased efforts might consist.

The auditors review also indicated that the district had not established a procedure to be sure that vendors they contract with on federally-funded projects are eligible to do so.

The report warned the failure to comply with the provisions of federal law (i.e. obtaining the vendor certifications) could "result in disallowances of grant expenditures by the grantor."

The district, while not indicating the details of any such program, explained they have "implemented procedures to ensure that each contract for goods or services equal to or in excess of $25,000 contains the certification required by federal regulations."

Finally, the auditors said their review of the free and reduced price lunch program showed that income verification documentation was not on file for one-third of the students in the test verification survey.

On that point, the district indicated that they are "in the process of strengthening our procedures."

They indicated that a pilot program is in place whereby the verification of income will be done through the Food Service department rather than through the schools.

Overall, the auditors report found fewer violations and problems than in the past. It indicated that improvements are being made in the purchasing and spending procedures of the district and that the district is more often in compliance with federal regulations and even with its own policies.

Shooting

"They were playing Russian Roulette," Patrick Simpson, public information officer of the Casselberry Police Department, said. "He pulled the trigger on his friends and lost when he pulled it on himself."

Police are still investigating the incident, but they are tentatively calling the shooting an accident.

The shooting occurred in a home in the 300 block of Bridal Path in Casselberry. The home is owned by the parents of Riad Kilarni, 17, who was in the house at the time of the shooting.

The house is presently vacant and is for sale. David Lambert, 17, and another boy and his date were also in the house at the time of the shooting.

Investigators questioned Lambert and Kilarni about why the gun was found outside and not with their friend. They admitted they had stolen the weapon and three others from a home on Winter Park Drive in Casselberry. They had hoped to hide the stolen gun, they told police.

They were arrested yesterday afternoon and charged with armed robbery in connection with the guns. The other teens in the house were not involved in the armed robbery incident and did not witness the shooting.

Police said a "bong" (a marijuana smoking pipe) and some marijuana were found in the house when police arrived. Investigators do not know if drugs played a part in the shooting.

"The autopsy will tell us if (Wright) had been smoking at the time of his death," Simpson explained. "We had no legal way of testing the others."

The autopsy is expected to be done this morning.

Expressway

Congressman John Mica is expected to join a host of local officials celebrating the long-awaited opening of the tollroad that Saturday morning. Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith, SCEA chairman, is scheduled to introduce guests, says Brinton.

Following a morning of foot races and walks across the 1.7-mile Lake Jesup bridge and grand opening speeches, the bridge and northerly connections will be opened sometime late in the afternoon after the morning's trappings are removed.

Gayle Geddes, spokesman for the construction project, says motorists will travel free over the bridge to State Road 434 through the weekend until Monday morning, when the $1.50 fee will be collected at the tollbooths north of the lake. The fare is an average 12 cents per mile.

Brinton says crews began paving the lag-behind section of the 12-mile roadway between SR 434 and the Lake Jesup bridge yesterday. Other crews are placing the pavement striping on the exit ramp behind Sanford Plaza. A month ago, expressway officials thought they'd have to open the ramp a month or two after the rest of the road.

"There's more activity on that project than there ever has been," says Brinton.

The opening ends months of delays and frustration for residents anticipating the road. State and local officials had originally hoped the 12-mile link to the GreeneWay would have opened last October, four months ahead of the February official completion date.

But the two main contractors on the road, Hubbard Construction Co. and White Construction Co. did not anticipate the cost of roadway fill material, dirt, causing months of delays. At one time, contractors didn't think'd be done until this October. But state threats and compromises hastened work and now the road will open two months past the official target date.

Local anticipation of the road is mounting daily. Brinton and Geddes say their offices are receiving dozens of calls daily from people wanting to know when the road will open. Brinton says the last call he received yesterday was from a Hidden Lake man who drives to his jobplace near Orlando International Airport each day.

"He can't wait for it to be opened," says Brinton.

The man's daily round-trip commute on the two-county GreeneWay system will cost him $5, says Brinton. It will cost $1.50 to travel the length of Seminole County with two more 50-cent fares in Orange County.

A trip to the Disney-area attractions will cost $4.50 each way. North Seminole County residents will be able to bypass Interstate 4 tourist congestion by taking the trip south to its current end at State Road 536 at International Drive. From there, it's an uncongested short distance to the attractions.

The Southern Connector, a 6.1-mile link between I-Drive and I-4 is expected to be under construction later this year and opened by 1997.

Plans for the Seminole County "Missing Link" between Airport Boulevard east of U.S. Highway 17-92 and I-4 is under review by the state Department of Transportation, says Brinton. Brinton and Mica will testify before the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Transportation in Washington, D.C. next week seeking federal funding for I-4 interchange. The Florida Legislature has already approved the project.

Senators divided about Bosnia

WASHINGTON — Senators who help shape the nation's defense policy are deeply divided over what to do about Bosnia, wrenched between the impulse to show U.S. initiative and the fear of shedding American blood.

Their split reflects the general disparity of opinions in Congress over how to stop the dying in Bosnia without American involvement the nation may later come to regret.

On one side of the policy debate was Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, who reproached the administration for a "plipprick" approach to air strikes.

He said the United States and its allies must be willing to escalate the air war, adding: "I don't think Serbia itself can be exempt in terms of targeting from this air campaign."

Secretary of State Warren Christopher said in an interview Thursday on PBS' "MacNeil-Lehrer Newshour" that bombing attacks against Serbia, the patron of the Bosnian Serbs, was "not on the table at the present time, but it certainly can be considered in the future."

Warning against widening the air strikes were two members of Nunn's committee with strong military credentials — Sens. John McCain, R-Ariz., and John Warner, R-Va.

McCain, who spent six years in a prisoner-of-war camp during the Vietnam War, warned against "incremental escalation" and said he feared the United States will soon "face a choice between deploying American ground troops or withdrawing in abject defeat."

Clinton admits Haitian policy failed

WASHINGTON — President Clinton is acknowledging the failure of his policy toward Haiti and will seek United Nations support for a broad trade embargo against the Caribbean nation, an official says.

After six members of Congress were arrested Thursday for illegally protesting Clinton's policy on the White House sidewalk, a White House official disclosed the president will ask the United Nations to back an embargo on all but food and humanitarian aid going Haiti. The move, which caps several weeks of policy review by the administration, could come as early as next week, said the official, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

"The president has understood that the policy has not been successful and it was time to change the strategy," the White House official said. U.S. policy is aimed at returning exiled President Jean-Bertrand Aristide to power and restoring the democratic system that elected him.

Clinton has come under increasing pressure from Congress to take tougher steps against Haiti's military regime, with legislation introduced in both the House and Senate calling for a full embargo and other steps.

Head Start may expand

WASHINGTON — Head Start, the program that has educated millions of pre-schoolers born into poverty, would be significantly expanded under legislation adopted by the Senate.

It would start with counseling for pregnant women and begin educating children right after birth. Some programs would expand to a year-round, full-day schedule.

The Senate adopted the expansion late Thursday, shortly after giving final congressional approval to a job-training bill that would bring employers and schools together. Both measures were cleared on voice votes.

Crime bill becoming reality

WASHINGTON — House passage of a $28 billion crime bill moves one step closer to reality dozens of new capital crimes, life imprisonment for third-time drug and violent felons and thousands of new cops on the beat.

But first, the House must deal with assault weapons.

The Senate's $22 billion crime bill, passed last November, would ban 19 specific types of domestic and imported assault-style weapons, and President Clinton wants that passed, either in the crime bill or as a separate measure.

The House has never voted on such legislation. Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., chairman of the Judiciary Committee's crime subcommittee, says it is still 15 to 20 votes short of passage.

But Clinton is "going to roll up his sleeves and get personally involved in this fight," Schumer said White House officials told him Thursday.

Clinton cheered the House's 285-141 vote passing its crime bill Thursday.

"The House of Representatives made their intentions clear: crime will not pay," Clinton said in a statement read by Press Secretary Dee Dee Myers. "Democrats and Republicans joined together to break the gridlock and make our streets safer."

Wave of killing ebbs

UMLAZI, South Africa — The latest wave of killing between rival political parties in this township has ebbed since the Zulu nationalist Inkatha Freedom Party ended its boycott of next week's elections.

But Inkatha supporter Kwazi Dlamini remains wary.

"It's still not easy to go over there," said Dlamini, gesturing toward the section of Umlazi controlled by rival African National Congress loyalists. "On both sides, people are dead. It will take long to get us together."

More than 300 people in "T Section" — Umlazi's Inkatha stronghold — have died in political violence since 1991. Hundreds of ANC backers also have died in the township that sprawls across low hills just inland from Durban's seaside airport.

The violence has died down since Inkatha announced Tuesday it would join in the elections next week. But hostility between pro-ANC and pro-Inkatha Zulus remains.

A coup that worked

LISBON, Portugal — It was a coup that worked.

Nearly non-violent and immensely popular, the Revolution of the Carnations of April 25th, 1974, threw out the last vestiges of a decades-old dictatorship and pulled Portugal into the modern world.

Twenty years later, agents of the once-feared PIDE secret police are only seen on TV, reminiscing about the past. Their time has gone, along with the systematic repression of Antonio de Oliveira Salazar's iron-fisted rule.

"We are now living in a democratic country, with a better standard of living ... and we are European Union members," said Vasco Vieira de Almeida, a respected lawyer who was Economics Minister in the first provisional post-revolutionary government.

After the revolution, there were 12 years of political chaos and a flirtation with socialist economic planning. Then, in 1986, Portugal joined the European Community. The results: stability, free-market economics, a broad rise in living standards, and improved education and infrastructures.

Probe of radiation experiments begins

By KATHERINE RIZZO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — A presidential commission is embarking on a probe of radiation experiments conducted by the government in the years after World War II.

The committee was formed in the aftermath of revelations about a variety of experiments on unknowing human subjects, including some who were injected with plutonium.

President Clinton called the inquiry an important first step to learn whether the U.S. government "treated its own citizens wrongfully."

Every federal department and agency that might have conducted radiation research has been combing its archives for records in an effort to create an inventory of the experimentation.

"The history of the government's conduct and sponsorship of radiation experiments is one that has too long been cloaked in secrecy," said Attorney General Janet Reno.

Reno, whose staff searched federal prison records to determine whether any inmates were used as test subjects, was one of four Cabinet secretaries who appeared Thursday at the committee's inaugural meeting.

The 15-person committee — composed of experts in medicine, science, ethics and law — is to examine whether the government did appropriate medical follow-up on its radiation test subjects; whether there was informed consent; and whether the experiments were medically or scientifically necessary.

The Advisory Committee on Human Radiation Experiments has been given a year to evaluate experiments done between 1944 and 1974.

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, who has revealed incidents of deliberate releases of radiation into the environment, told the presidential committee, "I don't envy what you're about to get into here. ... It will be a tough job."

Energy Secretary Hazel O'Leary, who is leading the administration effort, said the task is a difficult one because some of the data are 40 and 50 years old, many of those involved have died, and many hospitals and other institutions have closed.

"It is a tough job but it goes speedily," O'Leary said at a briefing later at the White House. "And you may have noted that at the Department of Energy we are releasing information as soon as we have it at hand and can declassify it," she said.

Clinton said in a statement that he considers the effort to collect, analyze and then disseminate the information an attempt "to have an honest and open approach to the investigation of Cold War-era experiments."

"Both those Americans who were the subject of these questioned experiments and the scientists who performed them deserve a fair and thorough investigation," Clinton said. "Only by dealing honestly with the past can we hope to build a better future."

The tests on 18 patients were revealed by Rep. Ed Markey, D-Mass., in 1980, but the Albuquerque Tribune last year tracked down and identified some of the plutonium injection victims in a series of reports that won a Pulitzer Prize for reporter Eileen Welsome.

The Energy Department subsequently located documents indicating two other people may have had plutonium injections in 1944 and six others drank plutonium as part of medical tests in 1946.

Markey on Thursday introduced a bill requiring the Energy Department to recommend appropriate compensation for people injured by government radiation tests.

The Energy Department said it has identified about 2,500 records of radiation experiments over the years in a massive document search that began in January.

Nixon near death

By TIM SULLIVAN
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — Richard Nixon lay near death in a deep coma today.

Two Marine sergeants arrived at the hospital on Thursday, ready to serve as the former president's honor guard he should die from the stroke he suffered Monday.

"His condition has deteriorated. He's in a very deep coma," Kathy Robinson, a spokeswoman for New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center, said late Thursday. "His family is at his bedside."

Hospital officials announced earlier in the day that the 81-year-old Nixon had slipped into unconsciousness after developing swelling of the brain, a potentially deadly complication of the stroke.

Doctors sometimes try to reduce such swelling by using a respirator to speed up breathing, but Nixon was not on a respirator, and news reports said he had left instructions that he not be resuscitated.

Kathy O'Connor, a Nixon spokeswoman, confirmed he has a living will, but she would not discuss it.

Nixon's doctors and aides would not discuss his treatment or condition in detail. But other doctors said the coma sharply reduced his chances of survival and virtually guaranteed he would never recover his powers of expression.

Nixon had been partially paralyzed on his right side and unable to speak even before the coma.

"His chances of dying are much greater," and his chance of surviving without major damage to his speech and movement is "very, very small," said Dr. Gregory Albers, director of the Stanford Stroke Center at Stanford University Medical Center in Palo Alto, Calif.

For Nixon, that would be a cruel sentence.

In the 20 years since he was forced from the presidency by the Watergate scandal, he has re-emerged as an elder statesman in foreign policy matters. He has traveled widely — five times to China — and published eight books.

"He dedicated his life to that quest out of office and was universally recognized as the leading American spokesman and a student of foreign policy," Henry Kissinger, Nixon's foreign policy expert, said today on CBS.

IN BRIEF

LOCALLY

Tribes—Westminster at DeLand

DeLAND — The Seminole High School baseball team will take on nationally ranked Miami-Westminster Academy at DeLand's Conrad Park tonight at 7 p.m. Westminster, 20-4, is ranked No. 2 in Class 1A.

Magic sign replacement

ORLANDO — The Orlando Magic placed forward Jeff Turner on the injured list and signed 7-0 center-forward Geert Hamink to a contract for the remainder of the season.

Turner underwent successful reconstructive surgery early Thursday for an isolated tear of the left anterior cruciate ligament.

Hamink was Orlando's second draft selection (26th overall) in the 1993 NBA Draft.

AROUND THE STATE

Heat in playoffs

MIAMI — The Miami Heat clinched the second playoff berth in franchise history and hurt Atlanta's bid for the top seed in the Eastern Conference by beating the Hawks 94-89.

The loss cut to one-half game the Hawks' lead over the Chicago Bulls and New York Knicks in the race for the best record in the conference. All three have 25 losses; Atlanta has one game remaining and Chicago and New York two each, including a season-ending game Sunday at Chicago. The team that earns the No. 1 seed will play No. 8 seed Miami in the first round.

Marlins' Santiago suspended

MIAMI — Florida Marlins catcher Benito Santiago is appealing a four-game suspension that he considers excessive for "inciting a bench-clearing brawl."

Santiago, who also was fined an undisclosed amount by new NL president Len Coleman, charged the mound Sunday against the San Francisco Giants. He'll continue to play pending the outcome of his appeal.

FIU signs Australian

MIAMI — Australian Wade Eathorne has signed a national letter of intent with Florida International, the school announced Thursday.

Eathorne, a 6-7 forward, averaged 23.5 points and 11 rebounds in his only year at Calvary Academy in Springfield, Ill., where he was an exchange student. He averaged 27 points and 13 rebounds a game in 1992-93 at Ayr State High School in Ayr, Queensland.

AROUND THE NATION

Cobb signs with Green Bay

GREEN BAY, Wis. — Free agent running back Reggie Cobb signed a two-year contract Thursday with the Green Bay Packers.

The deal is worth a minimum of $2.2 million.

Golfing miracle

HONOLULU — Most golfers play a lifetime without getting a hole-in-one.

Within a span of three holes on Wednesday, 69-year-old Larry Nishi got two at the Mid-Pacific Country Club.

He used a 5-iron at the 145-yard fourth hole and a 5-wood on the 186-yard sixth.

"The only comment from the 12-handicapper? 'Unreal.'"

NJCAA picks Pernfors

Ex-Raider gains Hall of Fame

By TONY DeSORMIER
 Herald Sports Editor

SANFORD — For all the efforts of all the coaches and players across the nation, Mikael Pernfors has been one of the most important figures in the sport of tennis at the junior college level.

During his two years at Seminole Community College, Pernfors did not lose a match, singles or doubles, while leading the Raiders to the National Junior College Athletic Association national championship in both 1982 and 1983.

From there, he went on to the University of Georgia where he was a two-time NCAA singles national champion for the Bulldogs.

Since then, Pernfors has enjoyed a professional career of moderate success, breaking into the top 10 of the world rankings and consistently being ranked in the top 30. He reached the finals of the French Open one year. Last year, he won the Canadian Open.

Recognized as one of, if not the best junior college tennis player ever, Pernfors recently was nominated and approved for induction into the NJCAA Men's Tennis Coaches' Hall of Fame.

"He's the first player to be inducted and he may be the only player ever inducted," said SCC Athletics Coordinator and former tennis coach Larry Castle. "It (the Hall of Fame) is mainly for coaches. It's like a service award. Until this point, it's been exclusively for coaches.

"Every time he's in a match on television, they'll mention that he's a former junior college player. His success at the junior college level, at Georgia, and as a professional has raised the visibility of junior college tennis."

Castle explained that to gain induction into the NJCAA Men's Tennis Coaches' Hall of Fame, now in its third year, an individual must be nominated by a current coach. A committee of existing coaches then votes on the nominees.

How Pernfors first came to Seminole Community College was one of those instances created by persistence and blessed by good fortune.

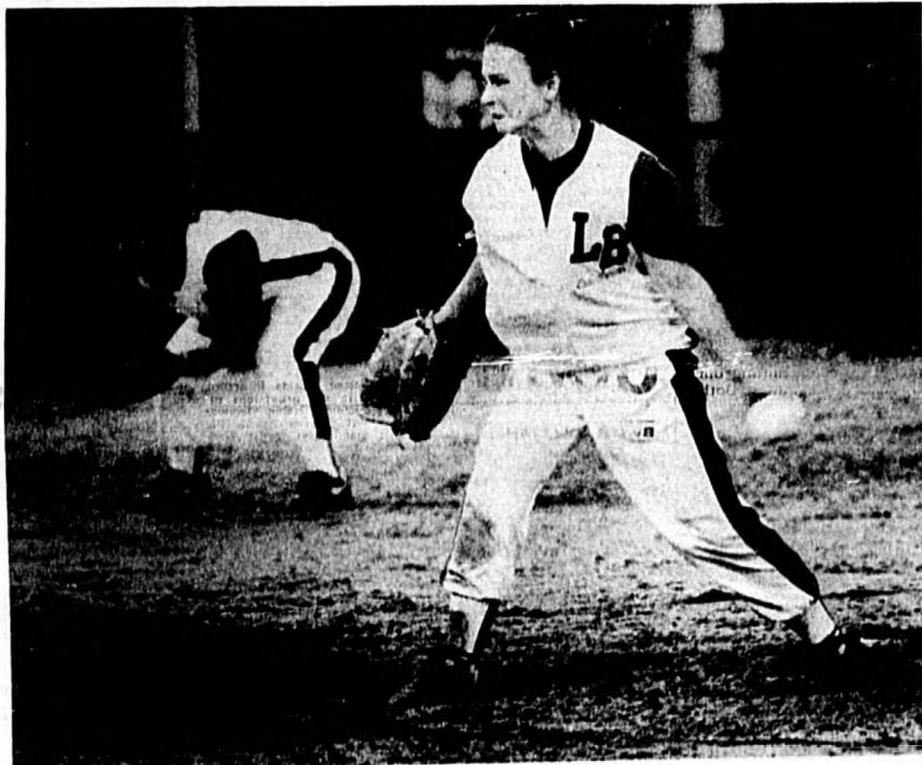

"We had already signed two players from Sweden, both of whom were ranked considerably higher than Mike," said Castle. "Ake Svensson was ranked in the top 10 among junior players in Sweden. Tobias Svantesson was ranked almost as high."

"About a month before school started (in 1981), I received a letter from Mike. As it turned out, he was the long-time best friend of Tobias and he also knew Ake. He wanted to know if he could come along with them."

Castle checked Pernfors' ranking and found that, for all intents and purposes, he really didn't have one ("His only win of consequence was in

After giving up singles to the first and fourth hitters of Thursday's night game with Oviedo, Lake Brantley's Ann Freeburg (pitching) did not allow a hit the rest of the way, losing a two-hit shutout as the Patriots blanked the Lions 11-0 in five innings. Freeburg also contributed two singles, two runs, and two RBI to the Patriot attack.

Stuller, White-Davis power Patriots

By TONY DeSORMIER

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — This is the story of two high school softball teams, one that's made steady progress over the course of the season and one seemingly stuck in neutral.

Stacie Stuller and Nadine White-Davis each hit an inside-the-park home run in support of the two-pitching of Annie Freeburg as the Lake Brantley Patriots strolled to a 11-0 win over the Oviedo Lions in a rain-soaked Seminole Athletic Conference contest Thursday night.

Lake Brantley wraps up the regular season at 18-7 (8-2 in the SAC), having clinched the No. 2 seed in next week's 5A-District 4 softball tournament. Oviedo, which started the season 5-0, finishes 11-8 (4-6 in the conference).

"The girls are starting to hit the ball again," said first-year Lake Brantley coach Brian Shaffer. "We just try to hit the ball and make the other team make the plays. We went through a hitting slump a couple weeks ago, but we're showing signs of coming out of it."

It's been a trying season for both the Patriots and Oviedo Lions. Not only did they have to deal with making the transition from slowpitch to fastpitch, but

Williams, Shepard win crowns for Brown's

Special to the Herald

POMPANO BEACH — Nichole Williams and Christy Shepard were crowned individual state champions at the Level 8R Gymnastics Championship in Pompano Beach on Sunday, April 10.

Despite their efforts, Brown's Central Gymnastics of Altamonte Springs just missed claiming the team state championship trophy, falling just .075 of a point short.

The host gym, American Twisters, edged out the Brown's squad by scoring 165.475 to the locals' 165.400. Northwest YMCA of Tampa was third with 161.875 points and LaFleurs at St. Petersburg finished fourth with 159.375 points.

Williams scored a 8.575 on the balance beam to earn her championship, while Shepard earned her title on the vault with a score of 8.60.

Samantha Hinson, participating in the Level 8 competition on the previous day, was crowned state champion in vault with a score of 9.10. She added a second place finish on floor (9.025) and an eighth on bars (8.85) to give her the fourth best all-around finish (34.875).

Teammate Hope Hollkamp bested Hinson in the all-around with a third place finish (35.05) on the strength of two third place finishes in floor (8.90) and vault (8.85), plus a ninth on balance beam (8.55).

You can make 'book' on it: Courier's ready to play

By SALVATORE ZANCA
 Associated Press Writer

MONTE CARLO, Monaco — The last time Jim Courier played Andrei Medvedev in a tournament, Courier brought a book. Now, Medvedev is thinking of booking a flight home.

When they met in the round-robin play of the ATP World Championship last November, Courier, a former resident of Sanford, was more interested in reading a book on changeovers and seemed intent on an early exit. He managed that, losing to Medvedev as well as his other two matches and not making the semifinals.

This time, Courier is in no mood to read. He is ready to play as they meet in the quarterfinals of Monte Carlo Open today.

Courier remembers. "Last time we played is the infamous 'book match' from Frankfurt, so I think that (people) might have a remembrance of that match particularly," Courier said. He now has more of a hunger for victory after moving past Italian Andrea Gaudenzi 6-3, 6-4 for his third consecutive straight-set victory in the tournament.

Courier is playing better and better since losing in the first round at Barcelona two weeks ago. He made the final in Nice a week later.

"I'm glad that I found my form in Nice," Courier said. "I'm pretty comfortable, feeling pretty good. As long as I don't hurt myself, I am in good shape out there."

Medvedev, meanwhile, is battling tendinitis in the knee.

"It is not 100 percent yet," Medvedev said. "Sometimes my knee starts to hurt and then I cannot concentrate on my strokes anymore. I am thinking of my knee and it doesn't really help me to play tennis."

Medvedev already is planning his postmatch activity.

"I have my flights booked already for Saturday, so I am going back home," Medvedev said.

Courier-Medvedev highlights the quarterfinals of the $1.7 million tournament.

Yevgeny Kafelnikov beat top-seeded Michael Stich 7-6 (7-3), 6-4 on Thursday. It was the third consecutive time Kafelnikov beat the world's No. 2 player, although Kafelnikov is more accustomed to hard courts, not the clay at Monte Carlo.

He next faces Czech David Rikl, a 3-6, 6-2, 6-3 winner over Horst Skoff of Austria.

Stefan Edberg, seeded second, meets 1992 champion Thomas Muster. Edberg moved past Alex Corretja of Spain 6-1, 7-5. Muster topped Magnus Gustafsson of Sweden 6-2, 6-4.

The other quarterfinal has defending champion Sergi Bruguera of Spain meeting Goran Ivanisevic.

Ivanisevic beat Jaime Yzaga of Peru 6-1, 6-3 and Bruguera took out a tired Alberto Berasategui, also of Spain, 6-7 (8-10), 6-0, 6-0.

IN BRIEF

Kiwanians mark goodwill week

SANFORD — Sanford Kiwanians emphasized Canada-United States Goodwill Week April 24-30 at their Wednesday, April 20 noon luncheon held at the Civic Center. Doug Ross from the University of Central Florida presented a lecture on Canada. Bob Snow, college relations representative accompanied Ross, according to Dr. Earl Weldon, program chairman.

Club President Janice Springfield stated that this annual observance is designed to focus attention on almost two centuries that Canada and the United States have lived together in peace. Their 5,000 miles of undefended border are a constant reminder of the friendship that exists between them, and is a pattern for peace for all nations of the world.

Canada-United States Goodwill Week originated in 1922 by Kiwanis International and now enjoys wide participation in both countries. (The Sanford Kiwanis Club was founded in 1921.) Kiwanians in both countries have many permanent and continuing projects to maintain this special relationship. One expression of this goodwill is 36 Kiwanis Peace Markers along the common border.

Last year, Kiwanis clubs raised and spent more than $65 million on community service activities, with a special emphasis on meeting the needs of young children. Today, Kiwanis members number 325,584 in 8,630 clubs located in over 76 countries around the world.

Margaret Wesley published poet

Bankruptcy: Freedom from debt

A "Financial Fresh Start". That's how the Supreme Court defined bankruptcy in 1885. Its purpose was "to provide the honest debtor with a new opportunity in life...free from the pressure of pre-existing debt." Today, most people think of bankruptcy as defined in the dictionary: bankrupt adj. — financially ruined, impoverished, destitute (The American Heritage Dictionary, 1980).

Bankruptcy laws were designed to help consumers deal with unmanageable debts. Approximately 725,000 Americans filed for bankruptcy in a 12-month period ending mid-1990. Following this trend experts predict that one in 10 Americans will file bankruptcy at some point in his/her life. Filing can provide relief for the claimant, but not all consumers are prepared for the long-term consequences resulting from this action. A bankruptcy notation remains on your credit report for 10 years.

Types or Chapters of Bankruptcy:
Chapter 7: Allows individual/business to retain some property not owned free and clear (such as car or home). Remaining property must be sold to pay off debts (a portion thereof).

Chapter 11: Provides businesses protection from creditors during reorganization operations. Also establishing a payment plan.

CONSUMER FOCUS

BARBARA HUGHES/GREGG

Bankruptcy doesn't happen only to the very rich or the very poor. Anyone can accumulate an unmanageable debt and too often, credit cards constitute the major portion. Most consumers don't even realize they are in trouble until it is too late! Bankruptcy should be viewed as a last drastic resort.

What are the signs? Bankcard Holders of America list the following questions to help consumers watch for signs of "heading down the road to financial despair":

- Can you only afford to make the minimum payments on your credit cards?
- Are your credit cards charged up to the limit?
- Have you ever had a charge refused due to insufficient available credit?
- Do you use cash advances to pay your bills?
- Do you rely on overtime or a second job to pay your bills?
- Do you make your payments late or put them off for a month?

- Are any of your installment loans past due?
- Are you unable to pay real estate taxes, insurance premiums or other infrequent expenses out of your current income?

If you answer yes to any of the above questions, you may need to change directions before it is too late.

What to do if you answered yes to any of the above questions? First, contact your creditors. Even if the account is past due, contacting the creditor is an act of good faith and will cause them to be more willing to work with you. In general, if you have made no payments within 120 days, creditors will take action. Turn the account over to a collection agency or initiating legal action could be avoided simply by contacting the creditor. They don't want you in jail, they just want to be paid.

What if it is too late? The Consumer Credit Counseling Service can help you sort out your bills and contact your creditors to arrange a payment plan. Their number in Seminole County is 330-6111.

Debtors Anonymous (DA) is a national organization for "compulsive indebtedness." Its 12-step plan is similar to Alcoholics Anonymous and is designed to help individuals achieve financial solvency and stay that way. Write D.A., General Service Board, Box 400, Grand Central Station, New York, NY 10163-0400.

Dixons observe 70th anniversary

By Marva Hawkins
Herald Correspondent

Ezekiel Sr. and Irene Dixon celebrated their 70th wedding anniversary on April 13. The couple were married in Sanford. Family and friends gathered on Sunday, April 10, to help the Dixons celebrate the occasion. The Dixons are both retired Sanford farmers. Attending the affair were children Thelma Dixon, Ft. Pierce; Rena D. Poole, Eustis; Ezekiel Jr., Sanford; Irene D. Johnson, Deltona, and Eldra Leroy of Ohio. Other family and guests attending were Leola Knox, the Rev. Maxwell Johnson, Thomas Poole, Rene' Poole Caldwell, Naomi Barnes Dixon, Baron E. and Jordan M. Lauderdale, Dwayne Benjamin, Ralph Taylor, Kathy Campbell, Shawn Campbell, Donnie Campbell, Courtney Campbell, Michael Benjamin, Minnie Dixon. The Dixons shared an afternoon celebration to be remembered for years to come.

The following poem was written by a daughter:
THREE SCORE TEN
By Irene D. Johnson

It was in Sanford, Florida
Three score 10 years ago,
When Zeke and Irene said "I do"
And their love began to grow.
Where was the groom to take his bride,
He pondered with alarm
But soon realized there was a place
On Otto Schmech's farm.
Just 9 months later in all their joy
There arrived a precious pearl
What love, what pleasure did they express
For their firstborn baby girl.

Irene and Ezekiel Dixon Sr. are surrounded by their family on their 70th anniversary.

Thelma Louise,
Then not so long thereafter
Another daughter arrived, but late How elated little Thelma was
To have a new playmate,
Rena Luretha,
Zeke was happy with his girls,
They brought him untold joy
Irene adored their every smile
But yearned for a baby boy,
God in heaven and angels too,
Perceived His work not done
So family of four was blessed once more
With a handsome baby son, Ezekiel Jr.

Now our family is complete,
She adamantly announced to Zeke,
We can't afford you surely know
Additional tiny feet.
Poor Irene was not aware
Of what Zeke had in store,
For he was secretly plotting to be
The Father of — yes — three more.
Irene Jr., Juanita Eliza, Eldra Leroy.
After 20 years on the farm
Sadness crept into each heart
When Mom and Dad announced one day
The time had come to depart.

They looked for a place to call their own
In the city they found the land
Soon afterwards reaching toward the sky
Was a home built with their hands.
They forged their fate through calm and storm,
How fortunate they are today
The chain of eight only broken once
When Juanita passed away.
We gather here to express our love
In heartfelt adoration,
To loving, kind and wonderful parents
On their 70th wedding celebration.

Lawyer makes a case against surrogate moms

DEAR ABBY: I was surprised at your response to the woman who agreed to be a surrogate mother for a woman who had tried unsuccessfully for 10 years to have a baby. You described the process in charitable terms reserved for martyrs and saints.

As an attorney who has researched the subject, the matter is by no means as simple and altruistic as that.

While you refer to the process as a gift to enable a woman to have a child, the would-be surrogate stated that she would be paid $5,000 at the time of conception, and $5,000 upon the delivery of a healthy, normal child. In other words, this is not a gift; it is a fee for services rendered.

Abby, if the surrogate mother is doing this out of the kindness of her heart, she should accept only reimbursement for medical expenses.

In the cases I have read, never has a wealthy woman donated the use of her body to a woman in financial straits.

Except in true donation situations where the surrogate is, for example, a mother or sister of the adopting mother, the surrogate expects to be paid. This is not to say that she finds the procedure distasteful; she merely regards it as an easy way to make some extra money.

ADVICE

Finally, carrying and bearing a child for another woman is an emotionally complicated way to make money. It is difficult enough to bear one's own child, and situations arise where surrogates do not want to give up the child; or children who are less-than-perfect are rejected; or where marriages break down, leaving the child in limbo. As things work in our society, the only ones who benefit are the lawyers who pick up the pieces.
I happen to be a female attorney and member of the New York, New Jersey and Maryland bar associations.

NAME WITHHELD
DEAR NAME WITHHELD: Granted the lawyers do benefit, but the couple also benefits by getting a much-wanted child. And the surrogate mother not only benefits monetarily, she also gains the satisfaction of knowing she was able to perform a service for an infertile couple.

Helping kids through divorce

DEAR MARY: This letter is not about abusing drugs, but it is about heartbreak and a broken family. I know that how my kids adjust to the fact that their dad and I are divorcing is going to have a big impact on the rest of their lives. I want to help them get through this the best they can, but to be honest, sometimes I feel like I can't keep going myself, never mind trying to reach out to them. Their dad has run off with some chick and he's acting like a jerk. How do I explain this to our boys, ages 6 and 7. I need help and don't know where to turn.

DIVORCING AND DISTRAUGHT MOM
DEAR DIVORCING AND DISTRAUGHT: My first advice is to you — remember what the airlines always say to parents of young children: "In the event of emergency, be sure you have your own life-saving equipment in place before trying to help your children." You must have a support system for yourself through parents, extended family, friends, church or religious groups, educational institutions and/or social service organizations. Start searching and reaching out immediately for your own strength and recovery. Then begin offering support and guidance to your children through these same sources and your own emerging growth.

Following are some suggestions on how to help them handle this difficult experience.
• Make certain the children

know that they did not cause the divorce.

- Answer any questions the children have about the divorce honestly. Do not lie to them but be very sensitive to how information is presented.
- Show love and commitment to them to help them feel more secure. Again, enlist support people in this venture, as well. Help the children maintain their usual routine as much as possible.
- Help maintain regular contacts between their dad and the kids, and DO NOT tamper with their love and loyalty to him.
- Do not say bad things about their dad in front of them or ask them to take sides against him.
- See outside professional help for the entire family or any family member who is experiencing intense difficulty with the divorce.

Some of these suggestions may seem almost impossible to follow at this time. But remember, if you can end your marriage in a mature and healthy way, you will be giving your children the greatest possible support during this difficult time.

Bells

Have you ever thought about the importance of bells in your life? From kindergarten on, most of our movements are dictated by a series of bells - the chime of the clock, the peal of the school bell, the sharp ring of the telephone. We are conditioned to respond to these bells almost without thinking.

The most beautiful bells in our life are those that we hear on the Sabbath. We also hear them without thinking, but they are bringing the most important message of all - that God loves you. This week respond to them with your own love and join the other worshippers at your church or synagogue.

Ask doctor to resolve drug, driving issue

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please discuss the ramifications of driving while using a prescription narcotic for pain control. I use Percocet, taking two tablets with each meal and two at bedtime. I can see no negative impact on my driving ability, yet my son and daughter-in-law insist that I can only drive if I take one tablet every four hours. My doctor is reluctant to get caught in the middle of this family dispute.

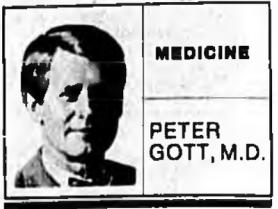

DEAR READER: I don't blame your doctor for staying out of the middle of this controversy, yet he is the very person who could negotiate a solution.

Percocet is a prescription narcotic-analgesic that often causes poor coordination, diminished reaction times and drowsiness. These are not characteristics of a responsible driver. Moreover, you are taking a substantial dose of eight tablets a day. At this level, you are probably addicted to the drug. At the very least, your body has adapted to a dose that would bring a normal person to his knees.

On the other hand, there is now ample evidence from medical studies that people in chronic pain are much more tolerant of narcotics. Addiction is far less a problem than previously believed. Nonetheless, as a general rule, the lower the dose of narcotic pain medication, the better.

Consequently, I suggest a compromise that I hope will control your pain and satisfy your family: Don't take more than one Percocet every four hours if you're planning to drive. At other times -- such as at night or on days you don't drive -- take your usual dose.

I said that your doctor is your best resource to solve this disagreement because he knows the cause of your pain, controls the number of Percocet tablets you are prescribed, and is familiar with your responsibilities and daily activities. I'm sure you would listen to his advice about driving after taking Percocet, and he could also better explain

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

If you walk into a bridge club and watch play in progress, you witness a sea of serious faces. Rarely will anyone smile or — cringe of crimes — laugh. And if someone does laugh, you will hear "Quiet, please" from all corners of the room. It is one reason why beginners feel intimidated by bridge clubs. We should take the game less seriously.

South was lucky and then unlucky on today's deal, but he didn't lose his sense of humor.

Four diamonds and five clubs were cue-bids. Five no-trump was the Grand Slam Force, asking about trump honors. North's six-club reply showed the ace or king of spades. Then South closed his eyes, hoping North had only two clubs, or the club queen, or the diamond queen, or stronger hearts.

West led a trump, dummy's eight winning the trick. The right line is to ruff a heart, playing for hearts 4-4 or a heart-club squeeze. Instead, South started with dummy's club ace. When no honor appeared, declarer bravely led a diamond to his 10. It held! Trying not to smile, South played off the A-K of diamonds, planning to discard one of dummy's clubs. Imagine his dismay when West ruffed the third diamond. One down after all.

South showed remarkable composure at this cruel turn of fate. He said: "This reminds me of the time I was in a serious accident. My car was totaled, but I was unhurt. However, as I climbed out of the wreckage, I slipped on a banana-peel, fell and broke my arm."

YOUR BIRTHDAY
April 23, 1994

In the year ahead you might be luckier than usual in establishing relationships with persons who provide accurate tips. If their record holds up, try to benefit from their information.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Base your decisions on realistic assumptions today and not on how you feel about things. Your logic can help you while your intuition could blur the picture. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There's a possibility you might be disappointed today by someone you've recently helped when he/she doesn't respond to your request for assistance. Live and learn.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be very selective today regarding your participation in social activities. Don't attend functions that have cliques who fail to receive you properly.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Certain advantages can be gained today through the proper quid pro quo arrangements that permits each party to get what he/she wants. If it isn't equal, it won't produce.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Impressive accomplishments are probable today with individuals whose ambitions and interests parallel yours. Conversely, success could be denied in arrangements where goals aren't in harmony.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Buying and selling might not be strong suits for you today, so be very careful operating in these areas or else you may pay more than you should or be unable to use what you purchase.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Do not jeopardize an important relationship today through a lack of tolerance and understanding on your behalf. Trying to make others over in your image could produce a flawed product.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Usually your hunches are more frequently right than they are wrong. Today, however, could be an exception, so don't bank too heavily on your intuition.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Take credit today for things you've done on your own, but in arrangements where others helped you, be sure to let them share in the spotlight as well.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Guins might be measured in inches instead of yards today where the advancement of personal interests are concerned. If you try to jump ahead, you might trip over your own feet.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you don't know something today, don't pretend that you do, because your ruse could be discovered and cause you embarrassment.

ARIES (March 21-June 20) In your business dealings today strive to be fair and honest, but don't feel compelled to give away more than you should. Remember, it's got to be good for you as well.

Vegetarian celebrates Earth Day everyday

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Correspondent

Barbara Oschal, affiliated with the local Animal Activist group, gave some insight on the group itself and the subject of being a vegetarian. The group recently hosted a vegetarian dinner. The dinner was held on March 20. This was the day many set aside as "Meatout Day." The meatout pledge was as follows: "Consumption of animal fat and meat has been linked conclusively with an elevated incidence of heart failure, stroke, cancer and other chronic diseases that cripple and kill 1.5 million Americans each year. Raising of animals for food wastes foodstuffs that should be used to feed the world's hungry people and depletes drastically our irreplaceable production resources such as topsoil and ground water. Raising of animals for food devastates forests and other wildlife habitats and dumps more pollutants into our lakes and streams than all other human activities combined. Raising of animals for food on today's 'factory farms' involves the confinement, crowding, deprivation, mutilation and other gross abuse and slaughter of nearly six billion feeling, innocent animals. See Meat, Page 4

Tighten Up on water conservation

The days when there was an endless supply of cheap fresh water have long since passed. Statewide, Florida's fresh water supply is dwindling at an alarming rate due to rapid population growth and heavy industrial build-up. It quickly becomes obvious that all of us must do everything we can to help preserve Florida's precious water supply.

What can you do? Plenty! Numerous water-saving devices are available for homes and businesses that will help cut consumption. You also can save enormous amounts of potable water by reducing lawn sprinkling and by replacing flowers, shrubs and trees that gulp water with those that require much less. Such simple things as not letting the water run constantly while brushing your teeth can save hundreds of gallons a month. These are just a few examples of what can be done.

For more information on how you can conserve water and practice wise conservation, call SSU's Communications Department at (800) 432-4501.

Young readers speak: What you can do to save our precious environment

Herald Correspondent

Some kids say most adults tend to feel that children aren't conscious of their environment. In this age of awareness about the ozone and problems of the earth, do kids take this seriously? Are they too involved in playtime and fun? Can they even comprehend ways to help the world around them? A random sample of 17 children were asked how they felt the environment could be helped. This group was between the ages of four and 11. Their answers may come as a surprise to one and all.

Brandi Willard, 11, said, "I think to help the environment we should have a contest in every town and whatever town recycles the most stuff then the president would award the people with going to the store and pick out one thing they always wanted."

Jessica Swearingen, 11, said, "Planting trees is good. Recycling anything that can be recycled would help. Cut back on things like paper products."

Her brother Joshua Swearingen, 8, chimed in with, "Pick up trash. Don't throw plastic rings in the water. Recycle cans and paper."

A younger group responded with simple, but

Charlie Smith, III, 5, felt, "Clean the earth. Pick up garbage and bubble gum papers."

Kyle Cyphers, 5, said, "Save glass bottles and cans."

K i m b e r l y Housacknecht, 4, said, "Save newspaper."

Jeffery Gregg, 4, said, "Recycle cans, glass bottles, plastic and newspaper. Put out milk jugs (for the recycle truck)."

A group of children a few years older responded with their views.

Nicole Wells, 8, stated, "Pick up trash all around."

Mattie Trautman, 7, said, "Recycle aluminum cans and bottles."

Brooks Stokes, 8, added, "Plant trees and lower taxes."

Melana Bradford said, "Turn off water when you're not using it."

Brandon Gibbons, 8, felt, "Help by not killing the trees."

Shellie Cepuran, 8, said, "Stop chopping down trees. Save paper that we use to use again."

Chamel Lawrence, 9, stated, "Plant a garden."

Dustin Ellis, 8, said, "Helping things grow by planting seeds."

Tyler Rankin, 11, felt, "Stop burning fossil fuel so much. Don't use so many aerosol cans."

Joey Lamback, 10, concluded by saying, "Use carpools to save gas."

cent animals. Therefore, I pledge to kick the meat habit on March 20 (first day of spring) and to explore a less violent, more wholesome diet."

Oschal felt this summed up their feelings on the issue of the Meatout Day, as well as the group's ideas of being vegetarian. "As a group we believe the environment, land, animals and people are all connected. We encourage a cruelty free and pollutant free world."

She spoke of many that have found that becoming vegetarian was not as difficult as they think. "When you examine the hazards of meat from an environmental, ethical, and the standpoint of health reasons, it only seems logical," she said. "There are alternatives to meat. Soy products are available. Many restaurants offer vegetarian menus. There is a day in October that is called Vegetarian Day."

Oschal also pointed out that she felt that "every meat-eating American contributes personally to the environmental crisis. It is estimated that for every quarter pound of hamburger that comes from a steer raised in Central or South America that it is necessary to destroy 165 pounds of living matter such as plant, insect, bird, mammal and reptile species."

She reminisced about a time when a relative took her to a slaughterhouse as a child and she couldn't stand the smell much less get out of the car. "The USDA tests very few slaughter-animals for toxic chemical residues," she said. "To reduce the intake of toxic chemicals in your diet you should eat low on the food chain, eliminate meat, dairy and eggs and buy organic fruit and vegetables."

Several booklets and newsletters were displayed that showed pictures of chickens with their beaks seared with a hot iron because of the problems of pecking themselves or other chickens to death because of the close living spaces. Photos of slaughtered animals and details about the slaughterhouses were written about. "While we ourselves are the living graves of murdered beasts, how can we expect an ideal condition on this earth," was a quote Oschal gave from George Bernard Shaw.

Many recipes were shared by Oschal and she recommended two books for those interested in further reading and research. "I recommend the books 'Diet for a New America' by John Robbins and 'Beyond Beef' by Jeremy Rifkin," she said. "I think the better educated the public is on the issues of the slaughter of animals, the more they will realize what they need to do."

Biggest danger to wildlife is apathy

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Correspondent

Laura Ellis, a volunteer for the Back to Nature Wildlife, Inc., discussed the problems with a nation of people killing wildlife through environmental difficulties. She also spoke of how the refuge has educated and helped the public understand the issues of animals in the wild. They are dedicated to nurturing the injured animals and returning them to the wild as soon as their health was restored. "As far as the quantity of animals we have come in, it's about 1,500 to 2,000 a year," she said. "It's only a bandaid approach. The preserve itself is an educational experience. We can teach people how to care for and avoid hurting our wildlife. It would be our dream that animals could live wild and free."

The refuge was based on four acres near the Bithlo area very close to Highway 50. The animals were bought in by the Humane Society, Animal Control or individuals that had come in contact with an injured animal. "Part of our major goal right now is land," said Ellis. "We are looking at 60 acres to purchase because we are growing so rapidly. There are some ranchers we work with and we are working with the county right now too. They may be helping us out with a plot of land." The refuge had many financial expenditures to maintain its facility. "It costs about 40 grand in expenses," she said. "We have about 50 to 75 permanent animals although we are on the low side right now." Many of the permanent animals she spoke of were in need when they came to the refuge and their injuries were such that they could not survive in the wild again. Free and open to the public was mentioned frequently, yet supplements were needed by individuals since government or state funds are not available for their financial well being. They are run strictly by private donations.

Ellis spoke of the many varieties of animals that have come and gone. "Our most unique animal was an anteater," she said. "It was a pet that had escaped. They have opossums, squirrels, bobcats, eagles, pot-bellied pigs and deer."

When asked what the biggest threat to wildlife was, Ellis named,

"apathy."

For example, a deer was killed on the Beeline (Expressway). The baby tried for three days to nurse from its dead mother. Someone called and said we should go get the baby because he had been passing it for three days. The baby died from dehydration."

Back to Nature tries to educate the public on the danger of pesticides and toxins in the environment. "They are food chain contaminants," she said. "Fire ant killer is palatable to squirrels and doves."

Back to Nature has about 30 volunteers, 5 veterinarians that work with them as needed, and 3 licensed wildlife rehabilitators. The owner and operator, Carmen Shaw, is on site most of the time and has worked with the shelter for over 37 years. "The refuge is dedicated to the four Carmen Shaw, a licensed wildlife rehabilitator and owner of the Back to Nature Wildlife, Inc., spoke on the subject of pesticides. She has seen many animals harmed by pesticides by the public. She felt many times people were unaware of the problems they are causing. They are dedicated to educating the people on this subject and on other matters. There are pesticides now-a-days that say they don't hurt dogs and cats," she said. "Then they eat them and we see otherwise."

Shaw spoke of the number of birds that are affected by granular pesticides. "Birds can't distinguish between seed and pesticides," she said. "The parent bird may hunt for food and feed it to the babies. It's the quantity that may kill the parent bird yet small amounts may harm the baby. We see the parents killed and then the babies have little chance of survival without human intervening." She elaborated on other poisons on the market to actually kill particular birds. "There is stuff on the market called pigeon poison," she said. "The problem is it hurts a non-targeted species as other birds, too. God didn't make mistakes. Pigeons may be a nuisance at times but they are birds, too."

Rodents were in additional topic of discussion by Shaw. "Rat poison is used to kill rats," she said. "Yes, it kills the rats eventually, yet when a rat gets the poison it tries to get out and get water. A hawk or other birds of prey may catch it and eat it. Then a and simmer for 2 to 3 hours, adding the carrots approximately 45 minutes before soup is finished. To thin soup, add more water.

LENTIL SOUP

(Serves 6)

- 2 Tbsp. oil
- 2 garlic cloves, diced
- 2 large onions, cut into chunks
- 2 celery stalks, diced
- 1 carrot, sliced
- 1 potato, cut into chunks
- 4 Tbsp. Tamari
- 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1/2 teaspoon basil
- 1/2 teaspoon paprika

- 1/2 teaspoon sea salt
- 1/4 teaspoon cumin powder
- 1/4 teaspoon oregano
- 10 cups of water or stock
- 3 tomatoes, cut into chunks
- 1 1/2 cups lentils

In a large soup pot, heat the oil over medium-high heat; add the garlic, onions, celery, carrots, and potatoes; saute for 7 minutes, until tender, adding the Tamari and half of the seasonings while sauteing.

Add the water, tomatoes, and lentils. Cook over medium heat until it boils; reduce heat, and cook for 1 hour. Add remaining seasonings to taste. Cook for another hour.

BLACK-EYED PEA SALAD

- 1/2 lb. black-eyed peas (cooked firm but tender)
- room temperature or cooled
- 2 Tbsp. olive oil
- 3 Tbsp. red wine vinegar or 6 Tbsp. freshly squeezed lemon juice
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 1/4 tsp. freshly ground pepper
- 1 clove garlic
- 1 tsp. dried basil

- 1/2 cup minced parsley
- 1/4 tsp. dried mustard
- 1/2 tsp. oregano
- 1/2 tsp. hot red pepper (to taste)

Combine all ingredients except beans. Whisk or blend rapidly with a wooden spoon. Pour over beans and toss. Let beans sit in the refrigerator for a few hours or overnight to let flavors blend.

BLACK BEANS WITH RICE

- (Serves 6)
- 4 cups cooked black beans
- 1/4 cup diced onion
- 1 cup diced tomatoes, fresh or canned
- 1/2 cup diced, canned mild chili peppers
- 1/2 clove crushed garlic
- 4 cups cooked brown rice
- Mild salsa

Simmer onions, peppers, chilis, tomatoes and garlic in 1/2 cup water for 10 minutes. Then add the cooked beans and simmer for at least 15 minutes, adding enough water to keep beans from sticking. Serve with a generous portion of steamed brown rice. Top with mild salsa (Mexican sauce). Garnish with parsley and chopped tomatoes.

TOFU LOAF

(Serves 6 to 8)

- 1 medium onion, chopped fine

- 1 cup whole-grain bread crumbs, rolled oats, or cornflakes, crushed
- 1 1/2 lbs. tofu, mashed
- 1/2 cup parsley, chopped
- 1/2 cup soy sauce
- 1/2 cup ketchup
- 2 Tbsp. Dijon mustard
- 1/4 tsp. black pepper
- 1/4 tsp. garlic powder

Preheat oven to 350°. Mix all ingredients together. Put 1/4 cup of oil in a loaf pan, then press the mixture into the pan. Bake for about 1 hour. Let cool 10-15 minutes before trying to remove from pan. Also good sliced and fried for sandwiches the next day.

PESTO SAUCE

(Serves 4)

- 1 bunch (1 1/2 cups loosely packed) fresh basil
- 1 clove minced garlic
- 1 Tbsp. barley Miso*
- 1/4 cup walnuts (or use pine nuts or almonds)
- 1/2 cup water (or enough for creamy consistency)

Blend all ingredients in blender or food processor, saving half the nuts for just slight blending at the end. Serve a small amount over each serving of spaghetti noodles.

*Miso is an interesting bouillon-like flavor made from soybeans, and is found at larger grocery stores and all oriental food and health food stores.

BARLEY CONFETTI SALAD

(from Cooking for Renewal Classes, Chamberlin's, Altamonte Springs)

- 1 cup pearled barley
- 6 cups water
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 3 ears corn, kernels removed, or 16 oz. can corn
- 1/2 cup green onions, minced
- 1/2 cup fresh parsley, minced

Dressing:

- 1/2 cup olive oil, extra virgin
- 2 Tbsp. fresh lemon juice
- 2 Tbsp. Ume plum vinegar (obtain from health food store)

Bring water and salt to boil and then add barley. Simmer covered 40 minutes until just tender. Prepare veggies and make the dressing by drizzling oil into lemon juice and vinegar while using whisk or electric blender to emulsify dressing. Drain and rinse barley in colander.

Combine barley, veggies and dressing, then serve.

R's," said Ellis. "They are rescue, raise, rehabilitate, and release. Everyday we receive wild animals who have been hit by cars, injured by gunshot, poisoned or affected by chemical spraying or pollution, or who have been stranded or orphaned or even tied to our fence and abandoned."

A "Cans for Critters" program is another way to help support the refuge. They request that you bring all your aluminum cans there for recycling. You will be helping the earth and helping save injured animals at the same time. You can also give a unique gift to someone for that special occasion through their "Adopt-A-Wild-One" program. For $20 to $25, you can "adopt" one of their resident animals, receive an Adoption Certificate and photo of the animal you choose. The adoption fee will help feed and shelter your cow comes along and eats the bird. A consumer then eats the cow. It goes right through the food chain." Shaw spoke in depth about the various problems of the public not being aware or caring about situations that arise. "No species is an island unto itself," she said. "It's part of a food chain. Even if you don't care about wildlife, we drink the same water, we live on the same land, we eat the same fish. We're fools to think that it will have no effect on us sooner or later. Even if we aren't getting massive doses, sooner or later it will do us in."

Pesticides

The toxins found by Shaw and other volunteers at the wildlife reserve have made an impression on them. "For example, we as wildlife rehabilitators, see the problems of toxins in birds all the time," she said. "Hundreds of thousands of toxins are out there." She cited a problem found in many birds and although they may be sure it was toxins that caused the problem, it can only be proven by a toxin screening. These screenings are very costly. "We see everyday the effects of toxins," she said. "We just can't prove it due to finances. There's no way to prove it any other way."

Shaw and others are frequently asked to speak at schools and to other organizations with children. "What we ask people to do when we talk to school kids is when you see your parents using herbicides or pesticides, check the label," she said. "See if it is harmful to the environment or to wildlife. Take the manufacturer's name and address off the label and write to the company and say we aren't using this product until you make a safe alternative. Pesticides hurt the environment. Use a compost pile."

Shaw experienced firsthand the perils wildlife go through on her trip to Valdez after the oil spill. She felt the situation got a lot of coverage but the same problem is happening around us every day. A specific problem toxin mentioned was Agent Orange. "Agent Orange made the news," she said. "It has listed ingredients as 34D and 245T. Some of the defoliants (weed killers) on the market contain 34D."

Raccoons were a subject of a conversation Shaw had with many. "I saw raccoons we recovered with burnt noses," she said. "It didn't look like fire burn. It looked more like caustic burn, possibly from where they were drinking their water. I called the county, the EPA and the DPR. They told me if you get a whole rash of raccoons with this problem then maybe we can check it out. The problem is domestic animals tend to gravitate toward man when there's a problem but wild animals gravitate away from man. You may never pinpoint the problem."

Apathy was a word that Shaw felt sums up in one word the problem and explanation for the killing of wildlife. She summed up the conversation by saying, "We could save wildlife and the environment if we just took things seriously."

Preserve the world: Here's some ideas

By SUSAN WENNER

Curtis Michelson, president of the Central Florida Earth Alliance, spoke about some general issues on how average people can help preserve the world. He has organized Earth Day celebrations and was named by many as an environmentalist who really knows his information. His tips should be helpful to one and all.

"When we organized Earth Day in 1992 and 1993 we looked for local groups to participate," he said. "We stress — to think globally, but act locally. Groups from recycling to energy efficiency to toxic waste were present. They were grass roots based organizations." Michelson felt the four most important words in helping save the environment would have to be, "Be aware, get involved." He felt people need to go one step further and push big industrial companies like Dow and Exxon and others. By showing initiative, Michelson felt these companies would feel compelled to be more conscious of environmental issues and make necessary changes in the way things are handled. "For example, energy companies can develop solar power," he said. "Getting involved and being vocal to the companies would make them take the public seriously."

Michelson suggested that the individual homeowner or renter could make their own commitments to a new lifestyle of efficiency. "People can make water usable by installing low flow water regulators," he said. "Also look for energy efficiency problems and consider solar heating systems." Contributing to the earth itself by adding trees was also commented on. "Planting more trees would help add shade and cut down on less air conditioning," said Michelson.

Try this 12-step program for ecological wellness

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Correspondent

Beth Hollenbeck, owner of the ECO Store in Orlando, spoke about ways she and her employees have concluded the environment can be helped.

"We came up with what we call the 12-step program to ECO wellness," she said. "Our whole agenda is to help the people be discriminating consumers. We have a resource room at the back of the store with free literature for the public."

The following were the 12 steps that Hollenbeck cited.

1. Recycle. Don't buy it in the first place. Ask yourself, do I really need this at all? When in doubt, leave it out. Simplify.

2. Eliminate toxic cleaners. If it's poison then I don't want it laying around. Is it vegetable based or biodegradable?

3. Eliminate toxic pesticides and fertilizers. Does it say on the label that it is dangerous to the environment, to pets and children? There are organic pest control methods.

4. Eliminate chloride. Period. Absolutely and everywhere. There has been legislation to eliminate chlorine in North American areas. Bio accumulates and works itself up the food chain. Chlorine causes cancer and heart disease, along with other illnesses. Unbleached clothing, paper and non-chlorine bleach for washing are available for sale. You can even buy a drinking straw to eliminate chlorine from the water you drink.

5. Use energy efficiently. Use compact fluorescent light bulbs. They use one quarter the amount of energy. Energy efficiency saves money. Solar is getting competitive with fossil fuels.

6. Use water efficiently. Save water anywhere from landscaping to irrigation. Get a watersaving device for the toilet. Forty percent of the water used in your home goes down the toilet. Get a low flow shower head. Use rain sensors.

7. Buy organics. Organic comes in everything from food to clothing and hygiene items. Organics are anything grown that doesn't use pesticides, chemicals, etc.

8. Avoid disposables. For example, disposable diapers, razors and pens, because they take up landfill space.

9. Buy in bulk, therefore reducing packaging. Laundry detergent and dog shampoos can be purchased in concentrated liquids. You only mix with water. It takes up less space on the truck and less packaging.

10. Compost. Take organic material rather than send it to the landfill where it will be mummified. Organic fertilizer can be taken from your compost pile. It's returning to the earth.

11. Buy post-consumer waste recycled products. There is an awful lot of misinformation out there. Post consumer means after the consumer has wasted it. Thirty to fifty percent of waste ends up in landfills. Manufacturers can call anything recycled when it may not be.

12. Avoid plastic. Period. It's a limited resource. It is a petroleum-based product. Only 22 percent of the plastic we make is recycled. Glass or aluminum would be a better alternative. Use paper or cardboard.

Hollenbeck concluded by saying, "Giving the consumer an alternative is why we are here. We try to make our list for saving the environment simple so people know where to start."

Kids can become a part of the solution according to Michelson. "I've spoken to Cub Scout groups," he said. "A lot of them are already there in terms of knowing ways to save the environment. I tell them to stay involved in their communities. Get active politically and be a good citizen. By politically, I mean, know what decisions are being made."

The future of the earth depends on us.

Michelson spoke of his feelings of how he'd like to see things. "My dream is that we have a community of people that are interested and involved all the time," he said. "I think most people are involved in the simple things like recycling and such. There's a problem but the solutions aren't that simple. There's a bigger picture from a macro-economic level. We have to get the companies to see that problem."

*While You're Changing
Your Oil... Change The World.*

Every year this country generates 1.4 billion gallons of used oil that could be re-used. Recycled. Re-refined. If you get your oil changed at a place like ours that shows the WE CARE sticker - you can be sure that your used oil is being recycled. So let us change your oil - and change the world for the better.

Safety-Kleen is the world's largest recycler of automotive and industrial hazardous and non-hazardous fluids. The Company provides safe and environmentally responsible services that are targeted primarily at small quantity generators of such fluids. The Company collects and processes contaminated fluids into material that is either reused for its original purpose, or in another beneficial way. Safety-Kleen's branch network, initially developed to support the automotive parts cleaner service, has been the building block for the introduction of other services. The Company's Fluid Recovery, Oil Recovery, Dry Cleaner and Paint Refinishing Services all utilize the resources of this unique branch network. The general market categories, customer types, and services offered are shown on the following page. The Company and its licensees provide services through an extensive worldwide network of 282 branches, 15 solvent recycling centers, 2 used oil re-refining plants, and 3 fuel blending facilities for cement kilns. In 1992, this branch and processing network performed over 6 million individual customer services. In addition, over 200 million gallons of contaminated fluids were processed and reclaimed by the Company for further use.

one," he said. "Build a modern performance area that incorporates some of the charm of what was once there."

Lake Mary, he said, has little in the way of physical structures or natural beauty in the area they hope to redevelop, he said, but the city does have a strong sense of history and a willingness to capitalize on the great image the city already has.

"Lake Mary is a true modern suburban city," he said. "They need to create something that does not exist that will fit the image of the city."

The city hall, built a few years ago, is a good example of the what Lake Mary needs. It is, he said, similar to the kind of architecture seen in Lake Mary in the early part of the century when the city was beginning to spring up around a railroad depot.

"But it is very clearly a modern facility," he said.

He thinks Lake Mary has great potential to develop a unique place for locals to enjoy shopping, dining and entertainment.

"I think Lake Mary can be a place like no other in central Florida if they are willing to develop the area aggressively," he said.

Both Sanford and Lake Mary should gear their redevelopment plans to suit the needs of the locals first, he said. Others may come to the areas as a part of a vacation in central Florida or they may come, maybe, once a month as they do with places like Church Street Station in Orlando.

"But these are not areas that can rely exclusively on attracting people from elsewhere to determine the success of their redeveloped areas," he noted.

While both Sanford and Lake Mary are now only beginning to look at the redevelopment potential, Andersen said the time to take action and capture the markets that are out there looking for new destinations is now.

"We've been dreaming for a long time," he said. "Now is the time to make those dreams come true."

semi-automatic handgun.

They allegedly pointed to her purse with the guns. When she indicated that there was no money in her purse they became angry and the .45 caliber weapon was put against her head and they threatened her life, Whitmire said.

She attempted to open the register, but was unable to do so.

One of the boys put on gloves and banged on the machine until it opened, police said.

Whitmire said Codrington told police they made off with about $300 in cash.

Police were summoned and given descriptions of the suspects.

As officers responded to the scene, they saw two young men who matched the descriptions coming out of an alley.

They arrested the two and found that they had about $250 in cash and a $80 check in their possession. They also had the two guns described by Codrington in their possession.

Varnier lives at 111 S. Cedar in Sanford and Williams lives at 1679 Merrittmore Cir. in Orlando.

They were charged with armed robbery and with use of a firearm in the commission of a felony.

Told him the building originally was Seminole Memorial Hospital and Bert Fish of DeLand, former United States minister to Egypt, contributed generously to the building of the hospital and voters finally approved a bond issue to go with his gift. Am proud to say one reason for his generosity was his friendship with my deceased mother, Mrs. J.W. Salsbury. Am also proud of the fact that initial efforts to pass bond issues for the hospital failed until local officials asked

Tragic auto crash is soap opera

By JOHN PACENTI
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — The teen-ager had wrecked one Corvette, so his father bought him another.

So the youth could drive the expensive sports car, his father helped him obtain a falsified license, police allege.

Then, in the early morning hours of Dec. 30, Francisco Del Rey decided to test his new toy against a friend in a Mustang. Police say they raced onto U.S. 1 at 100 mph.

As they sped down the road, a Chevette began to turn left at an intersection ahead. The driver was drunk, but an accident reconstruction expert would say later he had no chance of even seeing the two racing cars more than two football fields away.

The Mustang hit the Chevette first, but it was Del Rey's black 1994 Corvette that struck the compact car in half. The 3 a.m. accident killed all three of the Chevette's occupants — one an Eagle Scout. A passenger crouching in the luggage compartment of Del Rey's vehicle was crippled for life.

A young woman who called 911 described the accident to a police dispatcher. "It was huge. ... They must have hit a wall or something."

In a state trying to cope with teen-age crime, the accident was perfect fodder to fuel public debate.

"It just really hit home," said Stewart Greenberg, an attorney for one of the victim's families seeking millions of dollars from the Del Reys. "It just seems the streets and young people are going hand-in-hand."

But Del Rey was not a juvenile delinquent from an inner city ghetto.

Within days, the pudgy high school freshman's wealthy upbringing made front page news and the saga played for weeks on the television news, like a nightly soap opera on which rich and poor lives collide.

The teen-ager's parents, Frank and Gloria Del Rey, live in a million-dollar home in ritzy Coral Gables. They own a Rolls-Royce and Mercedes. They send their children to private schools and provide them a pampered lifestyle.

Police found out Francisco Del Rey earlier had smashed a yellow Corvette, and had a spotty driving record. What's more, investigators learned, he wasn't 17 at the time of the fatal accident, as his license said. He was actually 15.

Then, the media dug deeper and found more secrets in the family's past.

His father, Frank Del Rey, had been indicted in a stolen car ring and served a year's probation. The father, on advice from his attorney, refuses to describe his line of business now or say how he makes his money.

The younger Del Rey, now 16 and facing manslaughter charges, was initially released to the custody of his uncle — rather than his parents — because the hearing judge said he questioned the Del Reys' judgment "as I question yours."

A short time later, his father was charged with helping the youth obtain the falsified driver's license with phony documents in Puerto Rico. Since then, the family has been reunited and the father has pleaded innocent to the charges, including contributing to the delinquency of a minor. He faces up to 23 years in prison.

Supporters of the Del Reys contend the family has been persecuted by the news media because they are rich.

The driver of the Mustang, Everett David Price, 29, also was charged with manslaughter and leaving the scene of an accident, but hasn't been the subject of nearly as much news coverage.

"The Del Reys are getting such a bad rap, just because they have money and can afford giving him a Corvette," Maria Irwin, mother of Francisco's girlfriend, said after the accident.

Readers speak: Criminals, early release and reform

Herald Correspondent

With overcrowding of the prisons in mind, legislators are trying to fight what seems to be a losing battle. Do they keep prisoners in jails that are already overcrowded? Do they build more jails in a time when people don't seem to have the extra to pay for taxes, much less pay their own living expenses? Should the well-being of society be risked to make room for other criminals? What is the answer?

A group called STOP (Stop Turning Out Prisoners) has been actively seeking people to sign their petitions to help convince politicians to cease the early release of those convicted of crimes. That is, to discontinue allowing the convicts to be released before the time that the judge had allotted them to serve. How can we reform them while still in prison so they will not continue in this life of crime after release or go on to commit other unlawful acts? As most would say, there are no easy answers.

Seventeen people were randomly asked these questions. Only four of the group felt there should be no exceptions to allow early release. Most were at a loss to decide what would help cease the career of crime in the life of the convict.

Roger Fisher said, "Those convicted of non-violent crimes could be released early. I would consider serious white collar crimes involving a lot of money serious enough to serve the whole time. I imagine there are cases that can be reformed but repeat offenders could be looked at in a different light."

Sue Owens felt, "I'm sure there are exemptions, but rarely. The only reform is basically salvation."

Alexander Howard stated, "I do believe there should be some circumstances for early release. If he's an exceptional person and done something out of the ordinary, I believe there should be two prison systems. Separate the hardened criminal from the first-time offender or the person that does the crime for mitigating circumstances. If given an education we can rehabilitate them. They found that most criminals have only a sixth grade education, so teach them. Once they have served their time they should be given a chance in society. You still owe society once you've committed a crime. For crimes involving drugs, the penalty needs to be more severe."

Mary Ann Cole said, "The Bible says teach a kid in the way he should go and he won't depart. It should be mandatory to learn the Bible while they're in there. I think there should be some exceptions to allow early release if they can prove themselves."

Walter Brooks simply stated, "If they're put in for seven years, leave them for seven."

F.C. Winn stated, "I'm firmly against turning one of them loose before he serves his sentence. They spend so much to try and convict a person, then turn them loose. Some you can do something with them and some you can't. Counseling may help."

Leticia Lendway felt, "No exemptions should be made! They should serve the whole time. I don't think it should be as lenient when they are in prison. They should put them to work. Get them to separate recycling bins."

Jane Pilzonka said, "No exemptions! I worked at a prison as a nurse. They have more freedom than we do. There's too much freedom."

James Stokes stated, "Keep them where they are. No early release. I don't know of ways to reform them but I hope there is."

Inez Colbert said, "There shouldn't be an exemption to early release. You do the crime and pay the time. Keep them in prison and they can't do the crime."

Ophelia Lamb agreed by saying, "Keep them in! No exemptions for early release!"

In memory of Rachel Lee

Rachel Lee has left an indelible mark on the Sanford community.

The 97-year-old registered nurse was laid to rest on March 19 in her native Mississippi. She lived in Sanford for more than 50 years where she was an integral part of the community.

Miss Lee arrived in Sanford in 1940 as the first nurse at the newly-organized Old Folks Home, a position she held with dignity and pride for 22 years. The gentle, soft-spoken nurse nurtured her impoverished and elderly patients with love, tenderness and understanding.

Miss Lee's dedication to the sick and shut-ins did not stop when she retired in 1962. Nor did her humanitarian efforts to mankind slow down. She lived to care for others, give strength to the weak and to help instill self-esteem in those who were down on their luck.

For her outstanding accomplishments, Miss Lee was the recipient of numerous awards, both in nursing and for community service. She was a staunch supporter of her church and a civic and community activist who volunteered her time for the causes in which she believed.

Knowing Rachel Lee was a humbling experience. She was as regal and as gracious as a queen.

And she was a lady — a real lady. Her life of giving to others should serve as an inspiration to all of us.

No flea market

C&S X-Ray Systems is an owner/resident of the I-4 Industrial Park. We provide emergency service and supplies to local hospitals, clinics and doctors' offices. The proposed zoning change that will add a flea market with 1,400 parking spaces and change the character of the park will clog the two-lane road that enters/exits the park. While the flea market will operate Friday, Saturday and Sunday so do many of our businesses. The rate of break-in, already high will soar. Our inability to get into and out of the park will force us and many other residents to look at Volusia County. This will result in the loss of jobs in Seminole County. I strongly urge the Seminole County Commission to reject the zoning application change.

Hearing aid batteries

This concerns hearing aid batteries. There are those that as of now need them more than I do; batteries cost at least $6 for four; some places may have them for $1 apiece. This is still too much besides not lasting very long.

Some people, especially those on fixed incomes like we are, can't very well afford them. To some, it cuts into their food bill.

Isn't there some place where we could get them cheaper?
How would you like it if this affected some relative of yours?

Abortion has always been an issue

It may be surprising to learn that abortion has always been an issue in this country. What has changed over the years is the amount of time, effort and money expended on both pro and con sides of the issue.

During the first several decades of the 1800s, abortion was regarded as an option available to women of unchivalrous suitors or illicit relationships.

Abortion was legal under Colonial Common Law and remained legal under American Common Law. Abortion was permissible as long as the pregnancy was terminated before there was fetal movement.

Some married women after 1830 utilized abortion as a family-limiting mechanism. Abortions became widespread. Abortifacients advertised in the daily papers and drug companies competed in selling purported abortifacients. The estimates of abortions during 1860-1870 were very similar to the figures 100 years later (1960-1970), about one abortion for every four live births.

The abortionist began to be challenged during the middle of the 19th Century. The American Medical Association was founded in 1847 and exerted pressure for change. Horatio Robinson Storer, a Boston physician, led the AMA's fight. State legislatures nationwide were contacted by the AMA's local affiliates. The objective was to outlaw abortion at any stage of pregnancy, except when the doctors deemed the procedure necessary. After the Civil War, the legal status of abortion was altered by state legislatures, not because of religious orientation but due to medical practice.

The net result of antilaboratory laws and legal pronouncements during the last half of the 19th century was to drive the practice of abortion underground. Women with limited access to other means of family planning, i.e. immigrants and those of lower income, continued to have abortions. Surveys conducted by the AMA and the federal government confirmed the persistence of widespread abortions during the 1930s.

As the women's movement in America gained momentum, abortion became a focus. Women considered that they should have sole control over their own reproductive process, including their right to terminate a pregnancy. The inequality of access to abortion was also cited. Poor women were curtailed from having abortions for economic reasons, while their wealthy counterparts could have abortions on demand.

The Supreme Court joined the battle in 1973. The court ruled in the case of Roe vs. Wade that women as a part of their constitutional rights to privacy, could choose to terminate a pregnancy prior to the point when the fetus developed to the point it could survive outside the womb.

'Roe' was really Norma McCarvey, who had been denied the right under Texas law to abort a fetus she did not wish to bear. The case reached the Supreme Court and in a 7-2 decision, they ruled that women had an unrestricted right to abort a fetus during the first trimester of pregnancy. The state reserved interest in protecting the fetus when it became 'viable', able to live outside the womb.

Abortion as an issue has permeated our lives during the 1980s and 1990s. Battle lines have been drawn, tensions have escalated between the Right to Life Movement and the National Organization for Women (NOW). Religious groups also joined the anti-abortion issue, the Roman Catholic Church and Protestant Fundamentalists have spoken out. Even candidates running for public office have been challenged to state their views on this issue.

The abortion issue had grown so heated that Florida became violent, resulting in death for a physician.

ELLEN GOODMAN

This is not a rod to import

BOSTON — My friend points at the newspaper story and asks me a question. "What do you think of them caning this kid in Singapore?"

The kid, or the young man to be precise, is Michael Fay, an 18-year-old American from Dayton, Ohio. He has been convicted of vandalism, fined $2,230 and sentenced to prison for four months. But it's the other piece of his punishment that has captured the public imagination. Michael Fay has been sentenced to six strokes with a three-foot long, half-inch wide cane.

Of course, my friend has his own opinion of all this. Before I can say a word he offers it in a pre-emptive stroke. Without so much as a grimace, he says succinctly: "I think they should whip his butt."

Mind you, this sentiment comes from a man who would never lay a glove on his own kids. Still, his words come straight from his gut and his sentiment straight from the heart of public opinion.

In this case, the American government has asked Singapore for clemency. A full 34 Senators have signed a petition for leniency. But there is no Michael Fay Defense Committee in his own hometown. Nor can you rouse a scintilla of sympathy for the teenager who spray-painted and threw eggs at cars in the Ailan nation where bubble gum is an outlawed substance.

Indeed, the talk shows that measure — and sometimes mismeasure — attitudes, log their callers overwhelming on the side of Singapore. So does the Singapore Embassy.

I for one would like to think that my friend has confused government caning with a parental slap across the butt. I would like to believe that the callers haven't read the descriptions of this punishment that make groups like Amnesty International call it "torture."

They may not know that the prisoner is tied to a rack shaped like an X. A practiced professional then dips the rattan in a chemical and strikes the prisoner with all his might.

The first stroke breaks the skin. By the third stroke, the prisoner has usually passed out and must be revived. The scars are usually permanent.

But maybe they do know. Maybe this case has raised violent emotions because of our emotions about violence.

Just last month, two young Japanese students in California were killed in a carjacking by young Americans. Every day we witness shootings and urban warfare. If Americans feel humble about criticizing other cultures for their laws and order it's with reason.

But what I hear in the casual and sometimes brutal comments about Michael Fay, are not just thoughts about cross-cultural crime and punishment. I hear the echoes of the old warning, "Spare the rod and spoil the child." I hear a desire to import that rod and recycle that philosophy, to get back the traditional value called "whipping his butt."

The X on the Singapore rack marks a spot in our ideological battles about private and public discipline. We have parallel debates about how to raise children and how to deal with criminals. There's a tension in our society, as in others, between anxiety about chaos and about repression. There's a tension in parenting as well between the woes of permissiveness and those of authoritarianism.

These days, we worry about chaos. We think of kids and crimes spinning out of control together. Every study, including a Carnegie Report issued this week, talks about the neglect of young children, their need for human attention. But at the unruly moment the young finally get our attention, we talk tough.

In policy-making, it's three strikes and you're out — in jail for life. It's new money for the schools — to buy metal detectors. It's boot camps for teens — so juvenile offenders who have often spent their lives maltreated can be "straightened out" by pseudo-drill sergeants, in our gut, it's the rod.

There is nothing new here. Fear of crime focuses the mind wonderfully — or should I say, terribly — on order.

Building a livable society, like raising civilized children, is a labor-intensive job of balancing freedom and discipline. Internalizing values, making sure everyone has a stake. But when young people threaten us, Singapore looks like a proper boot camp.

So, in return for spray-painting cars, Michael Fay may be permanently scarred by a cane. In return for throwing eggs he may be tortured. Spare the rod and spoil the child? This is not a rod I want to see imported.

I for one would like to think that my friend has confused government caning with a parental slap across the butt.

Poor, poor Generation X

I suppose every older generation says the same thing about every younger one, but the thing that bothers me most about them is they think they invented anguish.

Nobody ever suffered feelings of alienation before they happened upon the planet. Nobody ever had to endure the ache of broken homes. Nobody ever had to deal with a rotten job market.

Those are the major gripes of today's twentysomethings, "Generation X," they call themselves after a cult novel by Douglas Coupland. They were shuffled between divorced parents, they never got religion and the generation before them — the baby boomers — sucked the economy dry, took all the good professional positions, stuck them with service industry "McJobs" and saddled them with a monstrous national debt.

I tell you, life is hell.

I tell you, life is hell. What got me thinking about this was the recent suicide of a Generation X hero, rock musician Kurt Cobain. A 27-year-old, Seattle-based pioneer of "grunge" rock, he disdained fame, sought refuge in drugs, spoke often of killing himself and finally blew his head off with a shotgun.

The media coverage was monophonic. "The Suicide That Spoke For a Generation," read a Washington Post headline. Cobain's songs "defined a generation," said Newweek.

The Post sent a reporter to a rock concert in suburban Virginia to gather quotes from Cobain's distraught fans. "He killed himself for the same reason I'd kill myself," said a young woman. "We lack something. We have no core."

But often, what I really want to do is take them by the shoulders and shake them and say something like this:

Dammit, turn off that television set and read some books, because what you need is some perspective.

You're worried about getting a high-paying job right out of college? My Depression-era parents were worried about getting a job, period. They were embarrassed at the prospect of standing in soup lines and cashed in their insurance policies just to buy food. I myself went to work after military service for $5,000 a year — and that was not so long ago. I pounded the pavements as a 28-year-old with a graduate degree and had to take a job editing current-events tabloids for high-school students.

You're worried about broken families? My father was snatched away from his wife and children to fight a war. His brother died in that war. In a steamy, fetid jungle a long way from home and the fiancée and family he loved, I myself was wearing a uniform when Lyndon Johnson decided we should get involved in a civil war in Vietnam and I spent many sleepless nights mourning for my friends who died in the muck of that Asian peninsula and worrying whether I'd be sent there.

You're feeling alone? Read Henry David Thoreau. "The mass of men lead lives of quiet desperation," he wrote, 140 years ago. Ever hear of existentialism? It's a 60-year-old school of philosophy which holds that we will never know why we exist and we should just learn to accept the absurdity of it.

Your favorite creative artist, a person who defined your generation, suffered a sudden death? Permit me to rattle off some names: Ernest Hemingway, James Dean, Patsy Cline, Jim Morrison, Jimi Hendrix, Janis Joplin and the saddest loss to me personally, the incomparable Buddy Holly.

You didn't invent generational pain, Genex. You're just the latest sufferers of it.

Early start in politics

Young Seminole County commissioners debate the pros and cons of a curfew for teenagers in the county. The middle-school students performed the roles of county commissioners and constituents in a mock county commission meeting as part of National County Government Week. Reading from prepared scripts, the students learned the basics of commission meetings and voting. On the rostrum, from left to right, are Jed Goldin, James Blua, Mary Furlong, Lisa Bergenska, Sonia Bilentschuk and Karen Brewer, acting as sheriff. Seated at the public table, with backs to camera, are Jordan Wiens on the left and Melissa Nadaou.

of eastern Tennessee, hit .343 for the Tigers. Also had good years in 1930 and 1931. In 1932, he dropped way below .300 and the Tigers sold him to Boston. In 1933 the big first baseman's batting eye "returned" and he won the major league hitting crown with an average of .377.

Not long ago we mentioned again the old ink blotters Haynes & Ratliff (later the Celery City Printing Company) once mailed out each month. We have about a half dozen of them. We've been told a fellow named Jim Smith who lives on Park Avenue in Sanford has a complete set. If this is true I sure wish he would get in touch with me.

One party called to find out how to contact missionaries Walter and Pauline Routh who serve in the Philippines. Here you are: No. 017 Block 1, Santa Maria Village, Calapan, Oriental Mindoro 5200, Philippines. his car out of its garage? The arm got caught between the auto and the door of the garage. It was so badly damaged it had to be amputated.

From time to time we refer to the pictorial review published by the Chamber of Commerce during Sanford's centennial year, 1977. It was entitled "Sanford Now & Then." Consulting committee members were Mrs. Randall Chase, S.O. Chase Jr., Mrs. S.O. Chase Jr., Douglas Stenstrom, B.L. Perkins Jr., Thomas A. Speer, A.B. Peterson Jr., Albert Fitts, Ralph Ray, Robert Orwig and Jack Horner. But we learned that Mrs. Buddy (Katherine) Bishop, nee the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Gordon, compiled the photos and wrote the copy. Some consulting committee people feel Katherine never really got the credit she deserved. Remember her dad? He was the well-known surveyor. Her mother, by the way, still lives on Mellonville Avenue. (A note to Katherine: Your book has been a big help to me in preparing many of my "Way Back When" columns and pictures.)

There's been a lot of talk lately about the first Seminole County Fair...the one held recently at the Seminole Greyhound Raceway in Casselberry. Reports indicate it was quite successful and promoters say it'll be bigger and better next year. But just to keep the record straight the first Seminole County Fair was held in downtown Sanford in February 1915. One of the highlights was a baby parade in carriages of all kinds. Among the participants were Julia Higgins, Fred Williams Jr., Irvin Fleisher, Jack Stemper, Bill Harvey Jr., Ed Shinholser, Rose Hurt, Camilla Deas and Jack Peters. Rose Hurt was the winner among the girls and Jack Peters among the boys. The following year the baby parade winners were Martha Bishop and Brack Perkins Jr.

Another question tossed our way: When was the first US 17-92 bridge over the St. Johns from Seminole to Volusia County originally built. Answer: It was dedicated Feb. 14, 1918. The wood structure replaced the old Stafford operated ferry. In the first car to cross into Volusia was R.J. Holly, L.P. Hagan Sr., L.A. Brumley and C.W. Entzinger plus Roy Hardin of DeLand. The bridge was built by the father of later Florida Governor Dave Sholtz of Daytona Beach.

Bonnie Eaton said, "No way they should be released early. Depending on what they were in for depends on the reform." Jeanette McGuire said, "As far as releasing early, if it's a felony,

I don't think they should be. They have too much freedom. They're given so much freedom, they're taking advantage of it. It's not fair. Give them extra work duty. Make them account for their time and not so much free time."

Ellis Osborne stated, "I'm against early release." Osborne jokingly added, "If the place is burning down then maybe let them out. I'm such a conservative. The laws are too loose now. I'm 65, so I remember when rape was a capital punishment." Sandra Kosma said, "Give them a sledgehammer and make them beat rocks into little pebbles. I don't believe in early release. Teach them a trade as part of reform."

Remembering Kathy

Grandparents help others in memory of loved one

Jaime Dillman

Does anyone remember Kathleen Engels? Kathy was a talented singer and dancer. The spring before her freshman year at Seminole High she earned a spot in the choir and dance team. But Kathy never performed. She is described by her grandparents, Charrel and Marie Hooper, as a girl who was cheerful, friendly, and witty. She was an average teenager with dark blond hair, blue eyes, and smooth skin. She liked to do normal teenage things. She played softball in the Pony league, she loved to swim, and her friends often came to her with their problems. Mrs. Hooper said everyone liked her and she was good in school.

1987 Kathy disappeared from the Carriage Cove area. Her maternal grandparents were frantic in their search to find her.

Kathy's mother had died of cancer soon after she gave birth to Kathy and they had raised her from birth. Their love for her was apparent.

Last week they had read about the tour that Seminole's choir were about to take and how some students lacked the necessary funds to go.

A memorial service was held in her honor March 30th. Mr.

Hooper said that the minister gave a beautiful sermon about a star that gradually progressed to a child.

Mrs. Hooper said she was going to read a passage from Kahlil Gibran's The Prophet, but was so emotional she just couldn't.

I listened to the couple speak of their lost grandchild, and I felt so lucky to be safe, and when they generously donated to help out strangers I wanted so much to say something to take away their hurt.

I'll end with the passage from The Prophet that Mrs. Hooper wanted to say, and again I'll ask the question, do you remember Kathleen?

"Children dwell in the house of tomorrow that we may never enter."

One long glorious failure

By CARMEN KYPRIANDES
Special to the Herald

Just imagine if you were three years old and your mother said you could not have the cookie that you wanted. You would become very determined to get that cookie. But if your mother said you could have the cookie, then the cookie would not be a big deal. Of the government used this theory then most illegal drugs would become legalized.

Baltimore's Kurt Schmoke, a former prosecutor, was the first big city mayor to ask the question of legalization, followed by Joe Gallher and George Crockett. Joseph McNamara was quoted as saying, "The fight against drugs has been one long failure."

Let's face it, the more people push against drugs, the more people become very curious. Just think about this-alcohol and tobacco are both legal and both cause problems. Compared to alcohol and tobacco, marijuana is not that bad. May people used marijuana to relax. Maybe society would attempt to accept drugs just as they have done with alcohol.

You would think that the war on drugs would put a halt to drug use, but it has actually made some people want to use more drugs. A national policy would recognize that all drugs are not necessarily dangerous and that drug use does not necessarily constitute abuse.

Legalization would undercut the drug lords by introducing free and open competition. Junkies would no longer have to rob and steal and overdoses and poisonings would decline. Legalizers would have drugs recognized as instruments of pleasure. Legalization would allow us to look at now illegal substances more realistically.

Legalization would promote moderation while seeking to minimize the risk to users and the disruption of communities.

Legalization would be an improvement. It would not end AIDS, but simply slow its spread down. It would not wipe out crime, just merely eliminate one major cause. Residents of poor neighborhoods would no longer huddle in their apartments while dealers battle with guns out in the streets.

Now, just imagine, 20 years from now, you are shopping at a local store and you come upon neat little packets of marijuana, cocaine and heroin set against the vitamins. Sounds a little crazy, but it may some day happen.

There may be a few problems if drugs become legalized, but that is the chance we have to take. The government has tried with the drug war and we as students have seen it as a failure. It is now time for a change. It is now time to legalize.

HOUSE CALL

Reading, countering stress factors

By DEBI SHANNON

What is stress, how do we live with it, and how do we cope with it?

My young son describes stress quite simply as the build up of pressure. Hans Selye defines stress as the result of any demand upon the body, be the effect mental or physical.

We are all "stressometers" that can get overloaded by thoughts, feelings, and perceptions. This overload triggers the body and mind to react in certain and predictable ways.

Some of the symptoms of generalized anxiety we all experience are listed below:

- Trembling, twitching, or feeling shaky
- Muscle tension, aches, or soreness
- Restlessness
- Easy fatigability
- Shortness of breath
- Palpitations or accelerated heart rate
- Sweating or cold, clammy hands
- Dry mouth
- Dizziness or lightheadedness
- Nausea, diarrhea, or other abdominal distress
- Hot flashes or chills
- Frequent urination
- Trouble swallowing or "lump in throat"
- Feeling "on the edge"
- Mind goes blank, difficult to concentrate
- Trouble falling or staying asleep

"We are all 'stressometers' that can get overloaded by thoughts, feelings, and perceptions."

-Debi Shannon

• Irritability
Life without stress is not possible. Job changes, new relationships, family situations, financial obligations, changing schools, taking tests, and minor disappointments are all sources of stress. Stressors can build up over time and "little things" become overwhelming.

We all deal with stress in various ways. As a wise teenager states, "stress is not necessarily bad, as it gives us the chance to draw within ourself to restructure, and to grow." Other practical suggestions we might try are:

- Do something about the problems as they arise — the do not procrastinate verbiage.
- Plan ahead and do not fear the future or change
- Welcome new experiences and ideas
- Expect to like and trust others and expect others to like and trust you
- Respect the many differences found in people
- Refocus on priorities. Realize one cannot do it all. Prioritize on what must be done to keep things going.

• Learn to say no without feeling guilty.
Often the above suggestions are not enough. Sometimes stress is so severe, such as in the death of a loved one or a catastrophic illness, that more help is needed. If this is the case, support groups and relaxation techniques can be extremely beneficial. Often professional counseling is needed and recommended during highly stressful, traumatic experiences or during prolonged periods of stress.

I am always amazed by the recurring common theme that is prevalent when the hospital in conjunction with the American Cancer Society runs its cancer support group. People living with cancer and their loved ones come together during a five week educational course and learn how to cope with the stress of a cancer diagnosis. Throughout all five sessions, we have seen these people teach each other, and us, the basic theme of dealing with life stressors.

Learn how to share one's fears with others, learn how to cry without shame when necessary, but most important, learn how to laugh.

Debi Shannon is director of social services department at Central Florida Regional Hospital, Sanford. The health column is provided as a community service by Central Florida Regional Hospital. Inquiries may be directed to the hospital.

Studies: 64,000 teens injured on the job

By LAURAN NEERGAARD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — More than 64,000 teen-agers sought emergency room treatment for on-the-job injuries in 1992, according to a study published today that authorities say probably underestimates the problem.

Another study showed 670 16- and 17-year-olds died from workplace injuries from 1980 to 1989. Most of the deaths were from car crashes, even though federal child labor laws prohibit most minors from driving on the job.

"This nation cannot accept that in today's society, children are still being robbed of their health, their youth and their lives by workplace hazards," said Dr. Linda Rosenstock, director of the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health, which performed the research.

The studies, published today in the American Journal of Public Health, highlight the federal agency's push to determine the biggest risks to the millions of U.S. teens in the work force, and to find ways to protect them.

"First and foremost, youth and their parents need to be informed that there's actually a problem," NIOSH researcher Larry Layne said.

The studies couldn't point out safety improvements for various industries, but did urge employers to realize that teens have a far different attention span and comprehension level than adult workers, so they should receive age-specific safety training.

In the first study, researchers surveyed 90 hospitals to estimate that 64,100 people ages 14 to 17 sought treatment for on-the-job injuries in emergency rooms in 1992.

Older exercisers breathe as efficiently

By IRA DREYFUS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Exercise when you are old and you might do things more valuable than run races — you might walk up flights of stairs without breathing hard and feeling weary.

Endurance exercise teaches your muscles how to delay fatigue, and a study indicates that older people can do as well as younger people in one key aspect of this training.

That aspect is the ability to switch from anaerobic to aerobic metabolism.

Anaerobic metabolism depends on a limited supply of muscle fuel that can be burned without oxygen, and it's only good for short-term exercise — things like sprints.

Aerobic activity, which relies on oxygen-bred fuel burning, is made to last. It lets you achieve a balance between the demands of exercise and the amount of oxygen being fed to your working muscles — a steady state at which you can keep going.

The bad news about the anaerobic-aerobic relationship is in the first of two studies in the American College of Sports Medicine's journal, Medicine and Science in Sports and Exercise. This article reports that the switch from anaerobic to aerobic exercise comes later as non-exercising people get older.

Older people thus can be left in a worn-out middle stage, with their anaerobic ability exhausted, their aerobic ability not fully engaged, and work left to do.

But the companion study indicates that endurance training speeds up the switch from anaerobic to aerobic metabolism, allowing the exerciser quicker access to his powers of endurance.

Coincidentally, training also increases the length of endurance, so the new finding amounts to an additional benefit for exercise. It's been known that exercise can, for instance, increase how far a person can walk. The new study indicates the exerciser also can get started on the walk easier.

Both studies were done by Donald H. Paterson, research director at the Centre for Activity and Aging of the University of Western Ontario, London.

"Daily activities in older people require a lot of getting up from a chair and going for a walk," the Canadian researcher said. "These sorts of changes in energy demand, even though light, would be fatiguing. We use the same anaerobic energy sources over and over again."

In the second study, Paterson and his colleagues trained eight men with an average age of 72 on stationary bikes. It was a vigorous workout — three times a week for 24 weeks at about 80 to 85 percent of their maximal heart rate, Paterson said.

At the end, the men were working aerobically at a steady state after about 32 seconds, almost 50 percent faster than they were when the study started, the report said.

This change left the older men's switch to steady state aerobics near the point at which previous researchers had found it in young men, the study said.

"We were really surprised that it returned to young persons' values," Paterson said. This is a sign that the age-related lag in switching to aerobic metabolism, reported in the first study, isn't really a result of age, but of "a lifelong lack of activity," Paterson said.

Another researcher considers the findings a hopeful sign for healthy older people who've let themselves get out of shape.

"That's good news, because with very deconditioned people so much of what they do is not impossible to perform but is difficult because they are breathing hard," said William J. Evans, director of the Noll Physiological Research Center at Penn State.

Hernia repair is no longer major surgery. Recent advances like the mesh technique have made it as simple as a one-day "walk-in, walk-out" procedure.

A new laparoscopic technique now available at The Hernia Center of Central Florida has simplified things even further. Because this procedure requires only small incisions, it lessens pain and further shortens recovery time.

President lauds Congress movement on crime bill

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — President Clinton said today his administration is breaking five years of partisan gridlock and "closing in on a top priority" passage of effective crime-fighting legislation.

In his weekly radio address taped for national broadcast, the president credited the American people for "sounding the alarm over crime" and "forcing this legislation."

Americans told their lawmakers that "the greatest nation on Earth should not also be the most violent," he said.

The House passed its $28 billion version of the crime bill on Thursday, 285-141. The Senate approved its $22 billion measure last November. Negotiators for the two chambers now must craft a final, compromise version.

Clinton credited House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., for placing comprehensive anti-crime legislation on the front burner and said in doing so, "he's helping to break almost five years of partisan gridlock," much of it during the Bush administration.

"This is the most sweeping crime bill ever — the first to put extra police on the streets; the first to include crime prevention," the president said. "On this, we cannot cut corners, and we don't

He said the provisions he wants, including putting 100,000 more police officers on the streets over the next five years, will be paid for by reducing the federal bureaucracy by 252,000 positions over the same period.

All the savings will be used to fight crime, he said.

The House-passed bill includes money for only 50,000 new police officers, but Clinton said, "that's not enough."

The House is now considering separate legislation, already passed by the Senate, that would ban a variety of domestic and imported assault weapons.

Clinton encouraged the chamber to get on with the job, saying: "I want the House to join the Senate to ban the weapons of war that plague our streets — assault weapons."

The president said that one of those listening as he recorded his address was Mark Klaas, father of Polly Klaas, a California girl who allegedly was abducted and killed by a repeat offender.

He said Klaas has been a strong supporter of his "three strikes and out" proposal, which would require mandatory life sentences for three-time violent offenders.

"I know he would join me in saying we need it, we'll fight for it and the Congress has to pass it," Clinton said.

Dead at 81, Nixon leaves behind mixed political legacy

By WALTER R. MEARS
An AP News Analysis

WASHINGTON — Richard M. Nixon came from the right, went to his left, and defied every label but the last, the president who resigned. Until then, each time the old Nixon seemed to fit a pattern, a new Nixon emerged.

He was the free market Republican who imposed wage and price controls, the ardent foe of Communism who opened doors to Beijing and arms deals in Moscow, the pragmatic president who wanted to undo the Democrats' Great Society with a version of his own.

Twenty-three years ago, Nixon proposed a national health insurance plan, with employer mandates to help pay for it, 23 years ago. It would have been done through private insurers, with the government setting minimum standards, for working Americans. He proposed federal insurance for the poor.

Liberal critics said it wasn't good enough, and the proposal got nowhere.

A Nixon reorganization plan created the Environmental Protection Agency; he signed the bill that set up the Consumer Product Safety Commission, saying it was "high time that the government provided for comprehensive regulation."

He sought welfare reform, with help for the working poor and requirements that recipients take jobs or job training, but couldn't get it through the Senate. "An idea ahead of its time," Nixon called it in his memoirs.

"This was a real war on poverty, but the liberals could not accept it," he wrote, especially from a conservative Republican president.

Not that conservatives saw him that way, especially when the Nixon administration began requiring that federal construction contractors take affirmative action to meet minority hiring goals. That began in 1970, the year after he took office, and Nixon said conservatives considered it heresy.

His Vietnam war policy was another matter. He was elected promising to end the war and win the peace — "I never said I had a plan, much less a secret plan," he wrote — but it took him four years to gain a tenuous settlement.

Under Nixon policy, American troops were gradually withdrawn, the last of them leaving in March, 1973, while the administration tried to negotiate peace and kept up the air war, against North Vietnam and, secretly until it leaked, in Cambodia. The anti-war protests were constant, sometimes at his White House doorstep.

But that did not deter his opening to China, Red China during two decades of enmity without contact, a policy the young Nixon embraced in Congress as an ardent conservative foe of Communists. The new China policy was an undertaking no Democratic president could have risked. "This was the week that changed the world," he said after his breakthrough visit in February, 1972; coincidentally, perhaps, just before the first primary votes of that presidential campaign year were being cast.

He'd broken another mold at home, in August, 1971, imposing economic controls he said "left even long time wage and price control advocates breathless." In a time of inflation and

Reaction

Reaction to the death of former President Nixon, from other tenants of the Oval Office:

"He gave of himself with intelligence and devotion to duty and his country owes him a debt of gratitude for that service." — President Clinton.

"Richard Nixon understood the world. He understood politics, power and the fragile yet undeniable force of history." — former President Reagan.

"The difficulties he encountered in office may have diminished his presidency, but what should be remembered are his many outstanding achievements both foreign and domestic." — former President Bush.

"His foresight and diplomatic skill helped bring about much needed debate and better understanding among three of the most powerful and populous nations on Earth." — former President Carter.

"I happen to believe very strongly that Dick Nixon was one of the finest, if not the finest, foreign policy presidents of this century." — former President Ford.

economic uncertainty, he said, the move was politically necessary and popular in the short run. But he also wrote later that it was wrong for the long term.

Congress endorsed those steps, but walled with Nixon over his refusal to spend appropriated funds he didn't deem necessary. That led to legislation that prevents presidents from spending funds as Congress decides.

To rein Nixon, Congress also adopted the war powers resolution, over his veto, requiring congressional approval to keep American forces on missions abroad when they face combat or the imminent threat of it.

The Congressional Budget Office was created in 1974, as Congress sought to strengthen its hand in dealing with presidents on that front.

Two Nixon-era housing programs, for community development grants and rental assistance, have endured. Secretary of Housing Henry Cisneros calls them the two most effective programs his agency operates.

It is a mixed legacy, clouded now, like the rest of the Nixon story, by the disgrace of Watergate. Nixon said that in his later years, he had come to accept the scandal and the resignation "simply as one major defeat in a career that involved both victories and losses, both peaks and valleys."

IN BRIEF

LOCALLY

A's pull upset in Babe Ruth

SANFORD — The A Lakeside Gallery A's scored five runs in the top of the sixth inning to upset the National Division leading Moose Lodge Pirates, 10-9. In Sanford Recreation Department Babe Ruth Baseball League action at Sanford Memorial Stadium Friday evening.

Doing the damage for the A's (4-3) were Ned Raines Jr. (two doubles, two runs), Brad Drumley (double, single, run), Brett White (two singles, two runs), Terrell Bender (single, two runs), Rod Hudson, Shawn Green and Ryan Wagner (one single and one run each) and Jason Thornton (single).

Pacing the Pirates (5-2) were Jason Graham (two doubles, two runs), Terrance Daniels (two singles, run), Antonio White (double, two runs), Alex Scott (double, run), Evan Thompson (single) and Ronnie Washington and Willie Robinson (one run each).

AROUND THE NATION

Hawks hold off Magic

ATLANTA — The Atlanta Hawks clinched homecourt advantage through the Eastern Conference playoffs with a hard-fought 93-89 victory Saturday over the Orlando Magic.

Stacey Augmon had 22 points and 11 rebounds, and his dunk with 26 seconds left ended the scoring. Kevin Willis had 21 points and 14 rebounds.

Atlanta will play Miami in the best-of-5 opening round of the playoffs. Orlando, locked into the fourth playoff seeding position, will play Indiana if the Pacers beat Miami Saturday night.

Shaquille O'Neal, in a battle with San Antonio's David Robinson for the league scoring title, led the Magic with 27 points and 19 rebounds. He is averaging 29.313 points with one game remaining Sunday against New Jersey. Robinson is averaging 29.266 points heading into his regular-season finale Sunday at the Los Angeles Clippers.

Carr runs Marlins to win

CINCINNATI — Pinch-runner Chuck Carr beat shortstop Barry Larkin's throw home on a grounder in the ninth inning Saturday, giving the Florida Marlins a 3-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Orestes Destrade led off the ninth with a single against Hector Carrasco (3-1) and was replaced by Carr, who led the league with 58 stolen bases last season.

Carr moved to second on Lake Howell graduate Eddie Taubensee's passed ball and took third on a sacrifice by Renito Santiago. Rick Renteria followed with a grounder to Larkin, but Carr scored ahead of the throw.

Jeremy Hernandez (2-1) pitched two innings for the win. Bryan Harvey pitched the ninth for his sixth save, ending Cincinnati's four-game winning streak.

What's next for new champ?

LAS VEGAS — Michael Moorer, secure in his new position as heavyweight champion, is not sure about his future.

"I hope to be in the game only for another year or a year and a half," the 26-year-old Moorer said Saturday following his history-making, 12-round decision over Evander Holyfield.

Moorer became the first left-handed heavyweight champion by winning the IBF and WBA titles on a majority decision over Holyfield Friday night at Caesars Palace.

"I've proven myself," Moorer said at a news conference Saturday. "To keep fighting just means getting more money."

Moorer, who might have made $5 million Friday night, depending on pay-per-view sales, can get good money fighting a chosen opponent or two and major money for fighting former champion Riddick Bowe or WBC champion Lennox Lewis.

Irvan hopes to dominate Hanes

MARTINSVILLE, Va. — When Ernie Irvan has won this season, he has been dominant.

In fact, the two-time winner also has dominated some races he hasn't won, including last week at North Wilkesboro, where Irvan's Robert Yates Racing Ford led most of the way only to have a bad late pit stop relegate him to a third place finish.

Irvan, who will start fifth in the 34-car lineup for Sunday's Hanes 500, would love to overpower the field on Martinsville Speedway's .526-mile oval.

"I think we'll be real competitive, and I'm sure the (No. 2) car (pole-winner Rusty Wallace) will be competitive, and there will probably be some other cars that will be," Irvan said.

Lyman girls, Seminole boys take track titles

By TONY DeBORMIER
Herald Sports Editor

LAKE MARY — Scoring points in every event, the Lyman Greyhounds claimed the girls' Seminole Athletic Conference track and field championship Friday night at Lake Mary High School's Don T. Reynolds Stadium.

While second-place Seminole collected more individual wins than Lyman (8-5), the Greyhounds' superior depth resulted in a 122-79 advantage in the points standings.

In the boys' half of the meet, the Seminole Fighting Seminoles romped to their fifth consecutive SAC title (and their 10th in the 11-year history of the meet), outscoring runner-up Lyman 133-68.

"We did OK for a nuisance meet," said Seminole coach Ken Brauman with a shrug. "It's not that this isn't a competitive meet, but I'd much rather be off the week before the district meet. It is the conference championship, which is important."

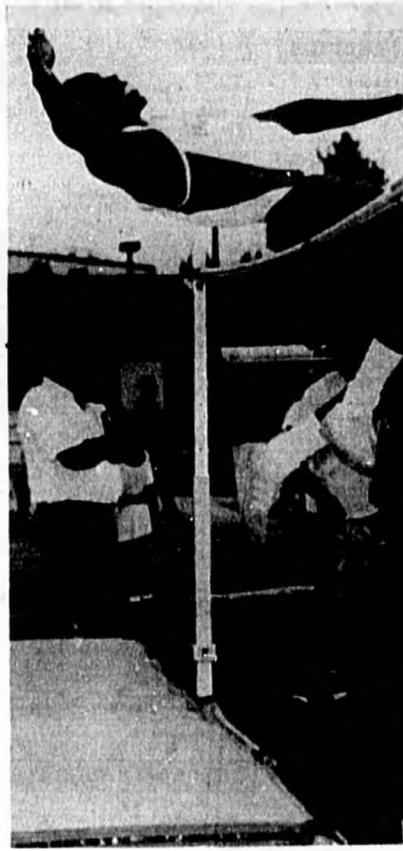

Double winner Kianah Brestack led the Lyman girls as she finished first in both the 1,600-meter run (winning in 5 minutes, 39.4 seconds) and the 3,200-meter run (12:13.0).

Other individual conference titles for the Greyhounds were Angel Rhodes (discus, 97 feet, 4 inches), Rita Greenberg (400-meter dash, 1:00.2), and Kelly Hudson (800-meter run, 2:23.6).

For Seminole, Belinder Morgan won both the long jump (17-1 1/4) and triple jump (38-2). Also claiming SAC crowns for the Tribe were Katina Perry (shot put, 35-6 3/4), Shawana Montgomery (100-meter dash, 12.4), Tenelle Hersey (300-meter hurdles, 47.0), and Mindee Hampton (200-meter dash, 25.3).

Montgomery, Morgan, Hampton, and Hersey combined to win the 4 x 100-meter relay in 48.9

Lake Mary's Thomas Watson won the conference championship both in the high jump and long jump (setting a meet record leap of 23-5 1/2).

Lions claim baseball crown

From Staff Reports

OVIDEO — Mark Metcalf allowed a leadoff single and nothing else but a balked-in run in the seventh inning Saturday afternoon, pitching the Ovidio Lions to a 2-1 win over Lake Brantley and, in the process, to the Seminole Athletic Conference baseball championship.

The victory gives Ovidio (17-7, 7-1 SAC) a two-game lead over Lake Brantley (19-7, 5-3 SAC). Both teams have two conference games left, but since the Lions swept the season series with the Patriots, they'd wear the SAC crown even if both teams finished with 7-3 marks.

Ovidio coach Mike Ferrell would prefer not to rely on a tiebreaker. "As far as I'm concerned, we still need one more win," he said.

Ovidio took a 1-0 lead in the third inning. Tim Slavik led off by reaching second on a two-base error. Mike Ruglenius bunted him to third and, after an intentional walk to Todd Bellhorn, Metcalf put down a perfect suicide squeeze bunt that scored Slavik.

Bellhorn led off the Lions' fifth inning with an infield single. After moving to second on a wild pitch and being bunted to third by Metcalf, Bellhorn scored an insurance run when Lake Brantley pitcher Mitch Schardt bounced a pitch off the plate and over the backstop.

The run came in handy as the Patriots ruined Metcalf's shutout bid with a run in the seventh. Jeff Shaw led off with a walk and, two outs later, Mickey Bono walked. Shaw then stole third. When Bono broke for second, Metcalf stopped in the middle of his delivery, balking home Shaw.

Lake Brantley's only hit was a single by Jeff Butler to lead off the game.

Miami-Westminster whips Seminoles

By DEAN SMITH
Herald Sports Writer

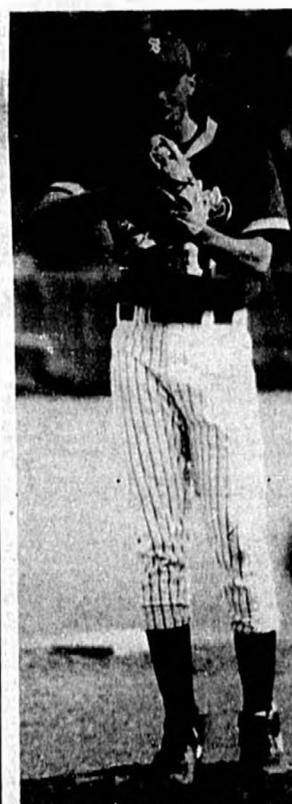

DeLAND — Nationally respected Miami-Westminster Christian brought its hitting machine to DeLand Friday night and when the dust had cleared, Seminole found itself on the short end of a 26-2 score at Conrad Park.

"We're not that good and I'm sure they're not that bad," said Westminster head coach Rich Hoffman, whose Warriors were crowned national championship in 1992 by USA Today. "It was just one of those cases where you get on a roll and everything falls your way."

The Warriors (22-4) wasted no time in getting on the board. After a walk and a sacrifice, junior Jimmy Gutierrez ripped a triple into the left-centerfield gap. Jose Diaz then got an RBI on an infield single.

Seminole had an opportunity to get out of the inning, but a potential double play got no one as the Tribe second baseman slipped and could not get the throw to second in time.

After a ground out for the second out, Seminole starter Deon Daniels (8-6) looked like he caught the

Silver Hawks edge by Rams in 8 innings

From Staff Reports

CASSELBERRY — You could have figured that this game would be decided by an unearned run.

Both the Lake Howell and Lake Mary baseball teams have been plagued by odd plays and mistakes all season. Friday night's Seminole Athletic Conference matchup was no different.

With two out and no one on base in the bottom of the eighth inning, Lake Howell's Dwayne Sanford went all the way to second base when his ground ball was thrown away at first base. Mark Desabrais followed with a double to score Sanford and give the Silver Hawks a 1-0 win at Lake Howell Field.

Brad Butterfield worked a scoreless eighth inning in relief of starter Andy Fox to collect his second win without a loss. Fox had allowed five hits, struck out 10 and walked three.

corner on a 1-2 pitch to Robert Perez. But the pitch was called a ball and on a 3-2 pitch, the University of Miami signee munched a shot into right-center for another triple and the run was on.

All told, 14 Warriors either had a hit or scored a run in the 22 hit attack, which included five triples and three doubles. Senior Carlos Tosca allowed two runs on four hits over four innings to raise his record to 8-2. John Miller pitched a scoreless fifth to finish the game.

"It's strange," said Hoffman. "We seem to hit the good pitching well."

One change yields another: Miller to join SCC staff

By TONY DeBORMIER
Herald Sports Editor

SANFORD — Changes very rarely are singular. One often precipitates others.

For example, the state legislature-mandated switch from slowpitch to fastpitch softball for women will reach Seminole Community College and the rest of the state's community colleges next year.

Since current softball coach Heana Gallagher has already stated that she did not want to coach fastpitch, the impending change in sports meant that SCC would have to make a change in coaches.

On Friday, SCC athletics coordinator Larry Castle announced that Courtney Miller has been named the new head coach of the Raiders and that she will join the SCC staff June 6.

Gallagher will remain the head women's basketball coach.

"We've known since well before Christmas that we were going to have to find another coach," said Castle on Friday. "Our search committee has been operating for the last eight weeks and they made, I feel, a very exciting choice in Coach Miller."

Miller currently is the head coach at Minnesota's St. Cloud State University, an NCAA Division II school. In 1992, her first season at SCSU, Miller led the Huskies to a 25-13 record and a No. 10 ranking in the final national poll.

Miller is a graduate of Crowder Junior College (Neosho, Mo.) and Southwest Missouri State and has a master's degree from SCSU.

According to Castle, Miller also will be a physical education instructor.

"We've been short a couple of physical education positions," said Castle. "Coach Miller will be a full-time instructor/coach (baseball) Coach (Jack) Pantelias."

Gallagher and Raider men's basketball coach Bernard Merthle have para-professional status (similar to that of an adjunct instructor) at SCC. Gallagher and Merthle do have some teaching responsibilities but do not have a full teaching load.

"Coach Miller will have a full class load," said Castle. "She'll have full-time faculty status."

"You could infer from that (Miller being hired as an instructor/coach) a commitment to meet the challenge of the impending change in sports and continue to provide quality teams at SCC."

Five freshwater fish records set during 1993

Five new freshwater fish records were established by six anglers in Florida during 1993. Records varied from large fish such as striped bass and flathead catfish to smaller fish like chain pickerel to the exotic butterfly peacock bass. One record was broken twice in one month.

The largest record-setting fish of the year was a 42.25-pound striped bass caught by Alphonso L. Barnes of Quincy on Dec. 14 in the Apalachicola River in Gadsden County. The former striper record of 38.58 pounds was landed in 1979 in Lake Seminole.

In addition, another big fish was caught by Benjamin H. Miles of Cottondale on May 24, when he landed a 33.56-pound flathead catfish while fishing on the Apalachicola River in Jackson County.

The record for the chain pickerel was broken twice during the month of May.

On May 7, Larry V. Dean of Marianna landed a 5.06-pound chain pickerel while fishing on Equiloix Creek in Liberty County. Three weeks later, on May 27, Adrian R. Sloan of Chipley caught a 5.55-pound chain pickerel on the Choctawhatchee River in Washington County.

Lawley's Mike Wilkerson caught one of the smaller fish species in Florida when he hooked a 1.08-pound record-setting redbfin pickerel on June 6 while fishing on the New River in Bradford County.

The only record-setting fish caught outside of Northern Florida

FISHING

ida was a 9.08-pound butterfly peacock bass landed by Miami resident Jerry Gomez on Kendall Lakes on Dade County on March 11.

For a fish to qualify as a state record, anglers must have valid freshwater fishing licenses or be exempt under Florida law.

In addition, fish must be taken by a legal sport fishing method; identified and weighed by a Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission fisheries biologist; and the angler must submit a completed and notarized state record fish application to the FGFWFC.

It is best if the fish is kept alive. If not, keep it in ice water.

For more information on the state record program, contact the Commission's regional office at (904) 732-1225.

SHUPE'S SCOOP
Use a fine file when sharpening your hooks. A file will cut through the hook much quicker than a sharpening stone and will provide you with a much sharper point.

FISHING FORECAST
This could be THE weekend if the weather holds and the winds remain relatively light.

Bass are still active in local lakes and in the river, but action will be dropping off with each hot day. In the river, fish areas of running water, mouths of sloughs, or sand bars for good action.

Local retailers are tops in the Orlando market

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

Lake Mary and Oviedo are the hottest spots in the Orlando metropolitan area for retailers, an Orlando-based consulting company has concluded.

"There's no better place for retail businesses right now in this area," said Scott Owen, an associate with Real Estate Research Consultants, Inc. "Lake Mary and Oviedo are outpacing the rest of the area in retail growth."

According to Owen, big-box "category killers" and single anchor neighborhood centers dominated development throughout central Florida in 1993.

Lake Mary saw the arrival, for example of Builders Square II and Home Depot along the I-4 corridor along Lake Mary Boulevard and Target a short distance away.

He added that research shows that those kinds of stores will continue to do well, but that new kinds of stores will also be the trend in the future of these two communities and in the Orlando metropolitan market as well.

"While these home improvement stores will continue to thrive, the new trend is going to be computer and electronics superstores which will compete with the likes of Circuit City," Owen said.

According to a study completed by Owen for Real Estate Research Consultants, both Lake Mary and Oviedo captured over 20 percent of the total market demand for the 1993 calendar year.

The Central Florida Greenway has been the strongest force in the growth of Oviedo's retail market. He believes it will do the same for Sanford and Lake Mary when the final leg opens in the northern part of the county soon.

According to his research, the impact of the Greenway in Oviedo has exceeded expectations. The report indicates 174,000 square feet of space were built in Oviedo in 1993 and another 260,000 square feet are expected to be completed this year. In addition, a one million square foot mall is being proposed by the Rouse Company at the Oviedo Crossings.

Owen said that Lake Mary has consistently been Orlando's strongest retail market with a 90.3 percent occupancy rate, a number that he expects will continue to rise.

"Lake Mary continues to be a favorite location for big-box retailers. Home Depot, Target and Builders Square II have all set up shop there in the last 18 months," Owen said.

He also noted that the addition of the 1.2 million square foot Seminole Towne Center in Sanford (which is expected to open in 1995) should be a big help to both Sanford and Lake Mary retail business figures in the future.

Sheryl Moser addresses AARP.

AARP reviews prevention of malnutrition

The monthly meeting of the Lake Mary Chapter of AARP was held Tuesday, April 19. DeLores Lash, president of the chapter, opened the meeting and then introduced Lake Mary Police Chief Richard Beary.

Chief Beary told the AARP members that the roofing scam was back in town. One Lake Mary senior citizen has been taken for over $800. Chief Beary warned AARP members to be wary of anyone soliciting door-to-door as contractors. If you need work done, you should call Lake Mary City Hall and make sure the person has a business license.

The meeting then continued with AARP officers' reports and committee reports.

The first speaker on the program was Olive White, SHINE coordinator. SHINE (Serving the Health Insurance Needs of Elders) is a free insurance counseling program that assists elders in sorting out their health insurance problems.

Formerly an AARP program known as MAP, Medicaid-Medicare Assistance Program, it became a federal program in 1992 run on a state-by-state basis. In Florida, SHINE is run through the Department of Elder Affairs. SHINE is currently in 22 counties in Florida; Seminole County is the most recent. In Seminole County, SHINE is being sponsored by RSVP (Retired Senior Volunteer Program). There are nine volunteer counselors and five sites for counseling including the Lake Mary Senior Center.

The trained counselors know how to handle the paperwork that goes with claims and appeals, how to read and understand insurance policies, and how to deal effectively with insurance agents. Counselors do not sell insurance or tell you which insurance you should buy. They just offer help to any senior citizens having questions about, or problems with Medicare, Medicaid or any medigap insurance.

If you have insurance problems, you can call RSVP at 323-4440 Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. A counselor will then be assigned to you.

The second speaker on the program was Sheryl Moser, R.D., a nutritionist from the Central Florida Regional Hospital. Senior citizens living alone are often at risk of malnutrition, she said. There are a variety of reasons for this. It can be because they skip meals or the spouse who did all the food preparation is gone. Sometimes, poverty is a factor, Moser added.

Chronic poor eating habits can lead to serious health problems. That's why the Central Florida Regional Hospital is offering nutrition counseling. With education, seniors learn what they should and shouldn't be eating and how much. The main goal of nutrition education is the prevention of malnutrition. If you have any questions, call the hospital at 321-4500, extension 5780.

After the meeting, AARP members enjoyed a luncheon supplied by Barnett Bank. The next AARP meeting will be Tuesday, May 17. The program will be about wills and trusts.

Seniors to meet

The Senior Center board meeting will be Tuesday, April 26 at 9 a.m. The meeting will be followed by a 10:30 a.m. program.

Mayday may be an international radio-telephonic signal used as a distress call, but around Sanford, May Day is a spring celebration.

For about 20 years now, the Sanford Woman's Club has held a May Day Brunch for community improvement. This colorful event was inaugurated by Winifred "Bill" Gielow as a fund-raiser for the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs Community Improvement Project. By SUSAN WINNER

Most little girls love to play with dolls. Phyllis Grindle, wife of 45 years to former state representative Art Grindle, left it may have been something she never outgrew. Grindle has been collecting paper dolls for about 15 years.

"I always loved paper dolls, instead of being a doll person," she said. "I kept adding more and more and all of a sudden you're right in the middle and it just keeps growing. I'm not an artist and I don't like to go shopping. I do love fashion and history and the paper dolls have a lot of both."

Grindle and her husband have lived in Altamonte Springs for 26 years and have four children, Elizabeth, Artie, Kathryn and Gale. She proudly spoke of her five grandchildren. Her hobby has afforded much relaxation to her busy schedule of traveling with her husband.

Hobby

A room in the Grindle home houses over 30 boxes, many bookcases and stacks of portfolios and loose paper dolls. Some hang framed on the walls, like her Mickey and Minnie Mouse for which she won awards at a paper doll convention in 1990. Grindle was like a small girl playing house as she showed the millions in her collection. Her gentle nature, charmed with her excitement about her hobby, was a real treat.

Her dolls range in size from her cut-out Santa at 1½ inches high and an old French doll at 3½ inches high to Shirley Temple and Jackie Kennedy at 3 feet high. Oldest in her collection was what she called a male doll from the 1820s to 1830s. Movie stars line the shelves from Rock Hudson, Elizabeth Taylor, Patty Duke, Ricky Nelson, Lucy, Ava Gardner, Dinah Shore, Bob Hope, the Walltons, the Partridge family and the Lennon Sisters. Fred Astaire and Bing Crosby were part of her collection dating to 1941. Others in her collection were Mark Anthony and Cleopatra, and many Barbies dating from 1968.

Dolly Dingle, Brenda Starr, Babe and Horace, Boots, Tillie the Toller and Superman were some of what Grindle called "paper doll comics." "Brenda Starr is worth about $25 now." She spoke of some Tom Tierney creations. "Tierney made Ronald Reagan, Nancy Reagan and Christopher Columbus."

There are other artists like Rafael Tuck, McLaughlin and Clark Austin Smith. Smith was known to make the first paper dolls in America in 1853. McLaughlin made everything hand-colored. He's famous for Commodore Nutt, Tom Thumb, Minnie Warren, sister of Tom Thumb, Marie, wife of Tom Thumb and Tom Thumb's baby.

Grindle spoke of other paper dolls that were her favorite as Teen Town paper dolls, Sweet 16 and First Date. She also displayed a folder of dolls identified as "Dresses Worn by the First Ladies." Lucy Hayes, Adams, and Jackson, to name a few, wore clothes to a "1" with beautiful gowns and suits. Blonde paper dolls were another type Grindle spoke of. "I have lots of blonde paper dolls," she said. "They're very hard to get and very precious."

To sum up all in her collection, she has some of museum quality ranging from 1820-1830, 1830 die-cuts, 1860s and up to Barbie's and Cabbage Patch paper dolls to present. She had American, French, German and English dolls. "I go cut and uncut," she said. "My specialty is the older paper dolls. That's what I'm known for. I myself like the cut ones best. I like the touch and feel. I have some greeting card paper dolls, advertising dolls, some from coffee advertisements, and paper toys, which are paper dolls that move."

Grindle related where to get the dolls and what to look for with dealers selling the paper dolls. "I've been to the Baby Boomer's Bazaar in St. Petersburg, Renninger's Antique Market in Mt. Dora, and the Florida State Fairgrounds when they have antiques. I don't find any at yard sales though. My husband and I go all around the state."

She discussed how dealers at times may cut the paper dolls in tea to give them a more antique look. "The dolls that are priced $10, $15 to $20, you don't worry much about," she said. "You can spend from $1.79 to $2.29 in a department store to $3,000 for museum quality. They were 10 cents when I was little. I go by the touch and feel. Old paper dolls feel different. Rag dolls are more acid. I have a pH pen to test them. I use WEI 70 solution mostly for war year paper dolls. You can smell the musty odor." In fact, Grindle has become such an expert in the field, many people ask her to identify their paper dolls. She has many reference books to help her in this endeavor.

She felt beginners in the area may want to write to some of the publications for information on upcoming conventions or for extra details about paper dolls. Some of the magazines and newsletters recommended were Paper Doll and Doll Diary, P.D. Pal, OPDAG News, Paper Doll Gazette and Paper Doll Review. Writing all over the country was one thing Grindle has done and she would advise others that truly have a desire for more knowledge.

Grindle stated that paper doll collectors are called, "paper people." She advised to never use Scotch tape because it can damage the dolls. She used denatured alcohol and Q-tips to remove old tape from the dolls. "It's a fun, fun hobby," she said. "The people you meet are so fascinating. It's so rewarding." Grindle and a friend of hers in Umahilla, Elsie Stevens, plan to start a collection of Woolworth paper dolls. These paper dolls are only 20 to 21 inches tall and will require a lot of searching to accomplish this task.

With millions of eyes, and many smiles glancing one's way in the Grindle home, one can see the attraction to these dolls. It gave the feeling of never being alone. Yet, Grindle with all "her babies" gave a right-at-home feeling and the need to add just one more to the collection.

Grindle's paper dolls will be on display today at the Sanford Historical Museum's Open House, from 2 to 4 p.m. The public is invited to the event celebrating the founding of Seminole County.

Volunteer Blood donor gives the gift of life

Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — Webster's Dictionary defines the word volunteer as "offer freely or spontaneously and to volunteer oneself." Loren Dougherty does just this. Not only does he give freely of himself, but it's a big part of himself that he gives regularly. Dougherty has been a blood donor since 1958 and continues to give on a regular basis.

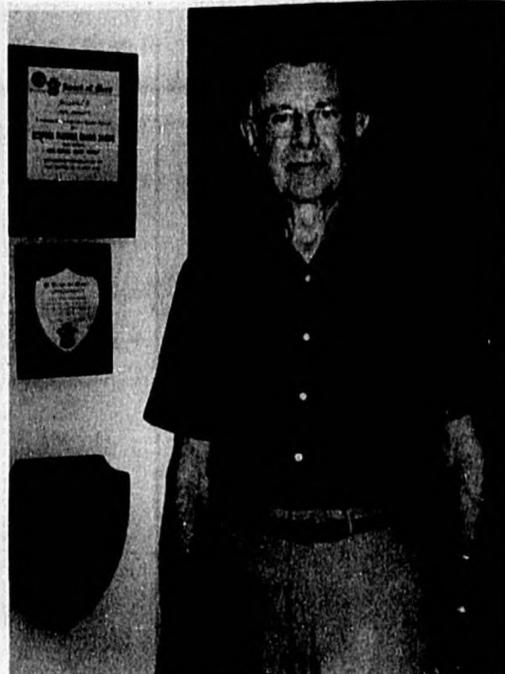

Dougherty and his wife Ruth who have been married 49 years, came to Sanford in 1955. They have two children, Jan and Anne, and three grandsons. The Navy brought the family to sunny Florida where he was stationed at Sanford Naval Air Station. Dougherty, himself, was born in Iowa, where he enlisted in the service. After 36 years in the Navy working as an aviation chief radioman, he retired in 1957. "I flew in planes as a gunman," he said. "We worked off of carriers. I was in three months and out to sea in the Mediterranean about six months a year."

The Navy servicemen, in fact, were what impressed Dougherty and motivated him to begin his venture in giving blood. Another factor in his on-going reason for giving was his mother. "My mother was dying of leukemia," he said. "About the only way they could help prolong her life was giving blood. I realized I could do something to help her and others. There were firemen, patrolmen and others in the Navy giving blood to keep her alive. That really impressed me."

To date, Dougherty has given 23 gallons and 1 pint of blood through Central Florida Blood Bank. He has numerous plaques hanging on his wall for his many donations. Most of the blood he has given over the years has gone into the account for the Sanford Church of Christ where the family are members.

Dougherty said, "It's a good check-up. They check hemoglobin, blood pressure and temperature." Admitting the real motivator in being a regular in donations is feeling that he may have helped someone. "I always feel good about it after I give," he said. "I give because I know it's going to help someone." His advice to those thinking of giving blood was, "I think if someone is physically able and doesn't mind, they should give blood. I think the biggest thing right now, people are so afraid of needles and this HIV thing."

Loren Dougherty, a blood donor since 1958.

Giving of one self was something that Dougherty can speak firsthand about. His selfless gift of his own blood to help others has become a trademark within his church and the community. Deserving of honor and recognition, Dougherty has truly shown himself to be a volunteer who gives the gift of life.

Momentary act of kindness will have a lifelong impact

DEAR ABBY: I need your help to thank a stranger who performed an act of kindness I will remember for the rest of my life. On Friday, March 11, I flew from Fresno, Calif., to Pullman, Wash., to be interviewed for admission into Washington State University's veterinary school. I had made reservations for a rental car and motel room in advance so that I could go directly to my motel room to prepare for my interview, which was to be two hours later.

After landing, I went to the rental car agency's desk, intending to pay for the car rental with my credit card. I had mailed my monthly credit card payment five days before my trip, thinking it would clear by the time I arrived in Pullman. To my disbelief, my credit card transaction was refused, and I had no other form of payment with me. I was also planning to pay for my motel room with my credit card — so there I was, stranded at the airport.

I went immediately to a pay phone and called my roommate back in Fresno, crying hysterically.

While I was on the phone, a gentleman came up next to me; I assumed he needed to use the phone. He tapped me on the shoulder, handed me a $100 bill and disappeared!

I want him to know that I was accepted at Washington State's veterinary school, so not only did this anonymous benefactor make it possible for me to arrive on time for my interview, he made it possible for me to get into veterinary school. Abby, I have no other way of thanking him except through your column.

AMY MULROONEY

DEAR ABBY: Congratulations! If your anonymous benefactor contacts this column, I will let you know.

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.)

Florida leads nation's best beaches listing

By BILL KACZOR
Associated Press Writer

PENSACOLA — David Letterman's Top 10 Lists may be good for a laugh, but Stephen Leatherman's Top 20 is the list of choice for sun, sand and surf.

Florida beaches, including No. 1-ranked Grayton Beach State Recreation Area, accounted for 12 of the top 20 spots in Leatherman's annual survey of 650 public beaches across the nation.

Grayton was one of five Panhandle beaches, including four in the top 10, on the list compiled by the University of Maryland geologist, or "Dr. Beach," as he likes to be called.

The only other states with more than one beach on the list were Hawaii with four and New York with two.

But there are a couple of significant changes in this year's survey, Leatherman's fourth, he said in a telephone interview Friday from College Park, Md.

Top beaches in the first three surveys have been excluded so there will be a new No. 1 every year.

"We know they're tops, so no use putting them in the competition," Leatherman said. "Otherwise, they keep popping up."

The previous best beaches of the year were Kapalua in Hawaii, 1991; Bahia Honda State Recreation Area in the Florida Keys, 1992; and Hapuna in Hawaii, 1993.

Another change is a return to the survey's original rating criteria that puts an emphasis on nature over development. It had been changed last year to give more weight to amenities such as hotels and restaurants because Conde Nast Traveler magazine sponsored the 1993 list.

That caused Grayton Beach, ranked second in the first two surveys, to drop to sixth. "Grayton Beach is kind of the perfect beach, if there is one," Leatherman said. "It's a well-maintained state recreational area, has good facilities for visitors, sugar-white sand, a lake nearby and beautiful, clean aquamarine water."

What Grayton Beach, about 60 miles east of Pensacola on the Gulf of Mexico, doesn't have are hotels, high-rises, hot dog stands and huge crowds. Only 66,000 people visited the park last year. Some beaches get that many visitors in a day.

But that's fine with many of the park's regulars who find solitude one of its chief attractions.

That's also what helped it rank tops on this year's list. Other factors in Grayton's favor included lack of pollution, low crime rate, natural beach, warm water and good fishing and swimming.

Kailua in Hawaii ranked second on this year's

Best beaches at a glance

The top 20 on University of Maryland geologist Stephen Leatherman's 1993 survey of public beaches across the United States:

1. Grayton Beach State Recreation Area, Grayton Beach, Fla.
2. Kailua, Hawaii.
3. Caladesi Island State Park, Dunedin, Fla.
4. St. Andrews State Recreation Area, Panama City Beach, Fla.
5. St. Joseph Peninsula State Park, Port St. Joe, Fla.
6. Kaunaoa, Hawaii.
7. Crandon Park, Miami.
8. Ulua, Hawaii.
9. St. George Island State Park, Apalachicola, Fla.
10. Fort DeSoto State Park, St. Petersburg, Fla.
11. Delnor-Wiggins Pass State Recreation Area, Naples, Fla.
12. Perdido Key State Recreation Area, Panama City, Fla.
13. Hulopoe, Hawaii.
14. Oracoke Island, N.C.
15. Sand Key Park, Clearwater, Fla.
16. East Hampton Beach, N.Y.
17. Westhampton Beach, N.Y.
18. Clam Pass Park, Jacksonville, Fla.
19. Smathers Beach, Florida Keys.

Previous National Winners

- 1991 — Kapalua, Hawaii.
- 1992 — Bahia Honda State Recreation Area, Florida Keys.
- 1993 — Hapuna, Hawaii.

Excluded from subsequent surveys.

list, followed by Caladesi Island State Park at Dunedin near Tampa and two Panhandle beaches: St. Andrews State Recreation Area at Panama City and St. Joseph Peninsula State Park near Port St. Joe.

Sixth through 10th place went to Kaunaoa, Hawaii; Crandon Park, Miami; Ulua, Hawaii; St. George Island State Park in the Panhandle near Apalachicola and Fort DeSoto Park at St. Petersburg.

Most of the top beaches rank very close and are rated in the lower 240s or upper 230s on a point scale of 0-250. But all of the top beaches have some unique attributes, Leatherman said.

"There is more than a grain of salt's, or a grain of sand's, difference to them," he said. "No beach is entirely the same."

Another change this year is that Leatherman is no longer ranking the worst beaches, although that list may have had a positive impact in the past by encouraging cleanup efforts.

Leatherman cited Border Field State Park near San Diego, Calif., that was ranked among the worst two years ago because of raw sewage washing up from Tijuana, Mexico.

After the survey, a $2 million arresting device was installed to help divert sewage away from the coast.
