Judges Total In Air

An amendment offered by Sens. William Gunter and Kenneth Plante, which would increase Seminole County county judges to three, failed by one vote this morning in the Florida

Gunter called The Herald to advise debate was still going on and he would try o line up one more senator to vote for his amendment.

A joint Senate-House committee Monday came up with one county judge for Seminole County withan additional judge if Sanford would abolish its (Editor's note: Circuit Judge Dominick Salfi explained the general law provides that should the largest municipality in a county abolish its municipal court before June 1, 1972, that county automatically will be allocated another county judge, over and above the number approved by the Legislature).

while you are reading this editorial com-ment, the members of the Florida State Legislature may be doing something to restore the lustre which was theirs when the general session convened for the normal period.

For this is the day when these public servants have been hauled back to Tallahassee to do what they should have done long ago and enact the legislation needed to make the two-tier judicial reform bill work.

The murky gloom which enshrouded the last days of the regular session could not hide completely, however, the good work which these solons, lacking firm leadership and with the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives providing a sorry spectacle of animosity, did accomplish.

No session which is confronted with the unenviable taks of cutting down its membership and-or reapportionment and-or redistricting can be weighed on normal scales with normal

Thus this legislature was responsive in this respect and illustrated what could be done when the will

We have commented before and must, in all honesty, do so again when the disaster which overtook the needed and well-devised programs of Gov. Reubin Askew hit the legislative hopper.

They were shredded or hit with a numbing hammer as the nature and power of the hostility which the Governor had aroused when he gave public interest his allegiance and not private interests was revealed.

Of all the matters which were before the egislature when it convened the restructuring of the antiquated, cumbersome and inefficient issue of the operation public schools was at the top of the list. It had been researched by a committee of top-grade citizens and the result was laid before the legislature for debate and

Democratic presidential primary seems to be a pure victory

By the time the primaries are over and the trek is under way to the Miami convention, Democrats will know what flag to fly as they prepare for war with Nixon. At this state all the front runners seem to have decided on kill-the-giants among price profiteers as a slogan. This means equalizing taxes.

This is what Huey Long meant when he called for "every

Democrats Just Blind to Issues

BY BRUCE BIOSSAT

(Last of Two Related Articles.) Consider these examples of the Democratic party trying to grapple with the issues in a presidential year: At one county convention in Minnesota, where the party is going through the presidential delegate selection proc-ess, not one of 129 resolutions submitted for action had anything to do with the nation's economy. When the liberally bent California Democratic Council met recently, the great preponderance of its resolu-tions had to do with what croubled economically strapped Americans. They see as high-flown, remote issues Bang-ladesh, Thailand, amnesty, etc.

In late January, I attended a delegate-choosing precinct caucus in an affluent university district in Des Moines. lowa. Some 55 people churned over issues and men for four hours, and there was virtually no mention either of the state of the economy, of bristling tax issues, or even of the Vietnam war in a direct sense.

The participants seemed not to realize how ludicrous it sounded when one aspirant to the county conventions (next step up) rose to make his case and said: "Let's see now. I'll just go through the issues-amnesty, abortion, legalizations of marijuana . . . There were, of course, several young people on hand, which would account for some stress on these matters. But there were also plenty of adults, and they all seemed blacked-out to the real world outside In a very major way, so does much of the Democratic party leadership, including some of the presidential bidders the Iowans were voting on that cold, snowy night. The oddest commentary on the great gap between voter concerns and the Democrats' political discourse is the fact that bantam Gov. George Wallace of Alabama is now hailed as the alarm clock who stirred them all to what's on the average American's mind.

Democratic National Chairman Lawrence O'Brien says be hears often from party rank and file that "at least Wallace has shaken these guys up."

If, in fact, the Democratic leaders needed Wallace to ring the bell for them, it's a confession of incredible failure. They can all read. For years there have been colorful accounts of the discontents of the harassed middleincome American. Where have they all been? Today, most of the big contenders look like chumps, stumbling after Wallace on such telling populist themes as high property taxes, government's bigness and in-In this shameful exercise they give Wallace too much. He uses the populist tack negatively, ridiculing bureau-crats, laughing at "pointy-heads" he says run our lives from Washington, but offering no constructive remedies.

Still, his rivals keep trying to hijack that little Wallace three-seater. Populist One, as if it were the big 747 in The tough core in all this is that, even if they should stop quaking over Wallace and talk positively to people they've neglected a long time, they really can't offer much cheerful prospect for them. There's illusion, too, in the resounding simplicities of the candidates who strike a little chord with antigovernment refrains. O'Brien says the needed "real talk" comes hard: "There's an element of sacrifice in it for the average man (still more burdens). It's not a pretty thing, not a

Religious Notebook

Church, Military: Time for Reflection

The religious community and the military establishment are close to a new round of dialogue and debate. They have shared this world since the beginning of timefrequently close allies, sometimes as friends, occasionally enemies. In Christian terms, one should serve Christ, the other Caesar. The Holy Roman Empire believed that both could serve God and the American community has generally taught this doctrine. Right now the primary source of uneasiness is the military chaplaincy. Critics want the clergy off the Pentagon payroll, with rank and uniform nearly invisible. Supporters accept the present arrangement, deplore any sug gestion that ministers, priests and rabbis are told what to say or what to do. Prisons have chaplains, so do hospitals, labor unions, and steamship lines. So why pick on the military, reply the pastors in uniform. In a new book, "Military Chaplains," William J.

Hughges, chaplain at the White Sands Missile Range in New Mexico, offers a comment worth considering: "Fourteen months ago, I landed in South Vietnam. I was opposed to our involvement then. I am even more firmly opposed to but involvement than a morths, I have been silent on this issue in my preaching. I have done this deliberately because I genuinely felt that I and my men should not, indeed could not, oppose this war from within the area of conflict. I have honored our dead, comforted Old Fashioned Populism Returning?

our wounded and admonished, encouraged or consoled." There are countless participants in Vietnam who have shared the sorrow and anxiety expressed by Chaplain Hughges. Many of them caught up in the draft shared this officer's quiet form of protest:

"On the other hand, I have done what I could to bring our involvement here to a quicker end. I have prayed for our leaders and negotiators in Paris and elsewhere because negotiation is impossible in a battle area. I have written and spoken to both prominent and ordinary citizens with the hope that I might move them to act or encourage them to continue their opposition."

Here's How to Repair 7:30 (2) Dear Deductible

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY-Betty, who has a crack in what she thinks is a paperboard ceiling, had better worry about a leaky roof. If she gets enough water in her ceiling, the weight might cause the plasterboard to come down. After the roof is repaired, she can seal the plasterboard with a patching compound that comes with directions on the package -CECIL

DEAR POLLY-Betty did not know how to repair a crack in the ceiling where water has leaked in. My husband has had success using a joint compound that is a ready-mix plaster and the rolled tape that goes with it. Apply a smooth coat of the plaster, stick tape on to plaster, using enough of both to go beyond each side of the crack. When this dries, apply a second coat covering the tape. Sand just enough for a smooth finish and paint. My husband used this tape and compound on the walls and ceiling throughout our apartment and it worked fine. You would never know the cracks had been there.-EVELYN claimed that the Grammy awards were "unfair and maybe even crooked." The Motown exec insisted there were votes by companies and misplaced categories. Bloc voting (companies trading votes so that each company wins in one category) was denied, but many people agree that several pop artists were mis-categorized under rhythm and blues. Anyhow, Motown didn't have any winners.

Crucial Week For Seminole '9'

Fresh water fishing in the local area continues to be fine in spite of the high water caused by last weeks rains. Shad are hitting trolled lures in the Marina Isle section of the St. Johns as though the season was just beginning instead of almost at the end. Bob King, camp operator, told of one catch of 10 on Saturday with half of them roe. Catfish are on a biting binge, according to King, with bream and speckled perch not far behind. Bass have not been achooling since the storm but some anglers are still getting limits. Osteen Bridge Camp on SR 415 also reported catfish plentiful, specks of unusually large size biting and a few gular bass fishermen doing pretty well with their specialty.

The Wekiva River has been the scene of some mighty fine bass catches for the live bait anglers. One lady in parfrom pulling in the bass this past week. Early in the week, she had a string of nine, including a 7% pounder. Saturday ounds even. Judy Sutton enjoyed several good days of speck ishing also out of Camp Seminole. Tommy Sparks, Johnie Sparks and Ken Baker came in with combined catches of 50

THIS PAIR of five pound lunker bass were pauled in by Chuck Hinemiller of Holly Hill in his recent trip to the productive Camp Seminole Fish Camp. Both fish were lured by shiners.

George Cheney, Wekiva River Haven Camp, reports the water level dropping but still about eight inches above normal. Bream are running extra large according to Cheney. with some in the 1½ pound class caught. Catfish catches of 30 to 40 per boat have been common this week with the size averaging one to two pounds. (Just right for eating).

Lake Jessup speck fishing was so good this week that even the fishing camp operators had to try their luck. Lowell Hiley went out two days from his camp, returning with 23 on one occasion and 25 the other. Hiley fished only from 5 p.m. until dark each day, J. T. Marsh and V. R. White landed 80 on Wednesday while Billy Lochlear and Bobby Derem confined their efforts to catfish and bream on a Thursday trip. They fished the Howell Creek section of the lake and put 40 on their stringer. The Hickock family showed a total haul of 75 bream and cats. Hiley mentioned that Joe Baggett and his partner, Mr. Winderweedle, came in with 50 large specks after throwing back the small ones. A Thursday trip resulted in 98 perch for Jim Goodman and Clarence Moore.

Don Smith of Seminole Sporting Goods Store reported several excellent strings of fish caught by his customers recently. Garvin Harden Jr. used a "Queen Bee" and fly rod to take his limit of bass both Sunday and Monday mornings. The "Devil Horse" lure accounted for another limit bass catch by Mr. Cedarquist at Lake Harney.

Some of our younger anglers are giving a good account of themselves also. Don mentioned that Mary Beth Williams, daughter of Ted Williams, landed her limit of shellcrackers using live worms, then switched to a plastic purple worm and scored with five bass from two to six pounds while fishing around the edge of Lake Monroe.

Party boats running out of Inlet Harbor, Daytona Beach. are finding red snapper in far quantities along with some early season amberjacks hitting on the bottom. River trips in the inlet area have produced some excellent sport with jack crevalle hitting as long as anyone wanted to stay with them. Ladyfish also showed up indicating that the real summer fishing season is here. Some of the river anglers took 50 to 60 The big news from the trolling boats was king mackerel

The "Dandy I.," Captain Gil King, landed 52 kings Friday and Captain Fred Langendorf of the "Angler" steered his party to 65 the same day. Halfday outings to the artificial reef by several of the charter boats accounted for hauls of up to 100 weekfish and 40 to 50 anglefish per trip. The weekfish slowed down by Saturday but bluefish and angelfish were still plentiful in this spot. Parties aboard the "Miss Behavin" pulled in 42 kings Thursday and 49 more Friday.

Fantastic catches of weekfish were reported by Merle Keller at the Main Street Pier in Daytona on Saturday. They hit on cut bait, plugs and live shrimp, but the shrimp appeared to be the best bet. "About 2 p.m.," said Merie, "A set sal of bioefish moved in Cut lines, lost flows and a rush to the tackle shop to buy wire leaders resulted." After rigging up with leaders, the weekfish continued to strike, with about every other cast bringing in a blue. Some of the lucky ones had up to 75 to 80 fish for their day.

Sun-glow pier at Port Orange missed the big run of weekfish but Dick Opel, Pier manager, said that sheepshead, blue fish and a few of the weekfish were caught here. Several pompano also appeared in the catches. Big snook are still in the Tornoka Basin, according to Wayne Brady of the Fishin Hole Tackle Shop. Pompano have been I ting for the surf fishermen on sand fleas and shrimp in the vicinity of the Old Timers Saloon. Trout and blues are in the Halifax River with the Orange Avenue Bridge the best spot now. Brady mentioned also, that shrimping has been good in the Oakhill area with several nice catches being eported to him. LET'S GO FISHING!
