

Popcorn Creations Fun For Halloween

"Halloween is a ghost of its former self." So says Orville Redenbacher, America's Popcorn King and prime promoter of good old fashion fun and family togetherness. He should know. Over the past 70 years, the silver haired, bow-tied, bespectacled agronomist has watched Halloween evolve from a down-home after-harvest celebration with homemade costumes, apple bobbing and popcorn balls to today's hectic holiday.

To Orville Halloween means family, parties, neighbors dropping in, the riches of the fields and orchards providing both edibles and atmosphere... hot muffled cider, roasted apples, plenty of pumpkins to carve and to eat in spicy pies and cookies, heaps of popcorn to eat "as is" or to form into balls for the delight of the children.

HARVEST OF HALLOWEEN POPCORN TREATS

Tips For Perfect Popping

As an connoisseur of corn, Orville has accumulated many ideas over the years about how to get the perfect batch of popcorn. As a result, the snack tastes much better than when Orville was a farmboy. Here are some of his favorite tips:

1—THE POPPER
If you've got an electric popper, by all means use it. It's fast, it's easy, and it's automatic. Just make sure the bottom is heavy, the heat is set at medium and the lid vents off the steam. If this steam can't escape, the popped corn will be tough and soggy. Therefore, for better results, make sure all lids are vented. A metal container is a good substitute for a lid. And be sure to keep shaking the pan so that every kernel is heated equally and none of them burn or get above done.

2—THE POPPING
Measure one part vegetable oil to three parts popcorn. You'll need less of Orville's Gourmet Popcorn than you would other brands. Orville's Gourmet Popcorn comes in air-tight glass jars to maintain moisture content and preserve freshness. Make sure the lid is always screwed on tightly. Do not refrigerate the jar either—it pops larger and fluffier if stored at room temperature.

From Princess Grace Royal Pear Recipe

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
Shortly after she had married Prince Rainier and was living in the Palais de Monaco, Her Serene Highness Princess Grace (formerly movie actress Grace Kelly of Philadelphia and Hollywood) contributed a recipe to a charity cookbook. It is for a Tourte de Blettes, a two-crust pie made with soft-ripe fruit, onion, rice, cheese and eggs. For the fruit, Princess Grace chose fresh pears. Delicious and unusual, a savory pie of this sort is popular with Monegasque cooks.

PRINCESS GRACE

When the savory pear pie was baked in our house, it was much enjoyed. Our adaptation: SAVORY PEAR PIE
A LA MONACO
Pastry for a 9-crust 10-inch pie (see Note below)
1 large ripe Bartlett pears, about 3 1/2 pounds
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 large onion, finely chopped (1 cup)
1/2 cup long-grain rice, cooked according to package directions (1 1/4 cups loosely packed)
1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
3 large eggs, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
Prepare pastry.

3—POP-O-LANTERN
Attach candy decorations for face using a little melted caramel or toothpaste. Shape 3-inch green gum drop for nose, cut triangles from citrus gelatin slices for eyes and nose, attach rope licorice for mouth, and add gum drop pebbles at each corner of mouth.

4—HARVEST PUMPKIN
Attach candy decorations for face using a little melted caramel or toothpaste. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla pie spice to melted caramel mixture before mixing with popcorn. Shape 3-inch green gum drop for face, make 7 or 8 light identification marks from center top to bottom, cut lengths of shoelace licorice to press into indentations to form pumpkin sections.

BRAN TOASTED SUPPER SANDWICH

"Bran" New Recipes Designed For Two

Small households are growing, not in size, but in number. The United States Census Bureau recently reported that the number of adults setting up single households has doubled since 1970.

If you're in a household of one, or maybe two, you're probably familiar with the joys of cooking in small quantities. A few guidelines can help you along; learn how to cut recipes in half; make a whole recipe, and freeze leftover portions in single portions for future meals; purchase lean, fresh produce in small quantities or ask the supermarket clerk to pack up a portion for you; or have a delivery service deliver the needed quantities. Ask the clerk, or quality buying your own ingredients, to help you buy the right quantities.

$700,000 Sanford Plaza Plant Bell Moving Sanford Office

Southern Bell Telephone officials said today the utility will move its business, plant and engineering offices out of downtown Sanford to a new $700,000 office and telephone center to be constructed at the Sanford Plaza Shopping Center, U.S. 17-92 and Airport Boulevard.

Local Bell manager Tom Hunt said no date has been set for start of construction on the 17,280 square foot, one-story brick office building on a 2 1/2 acre site, but employees are scheduled to occupy the new center in November 1978.

Hunt said the building, to be surrounded with parking space for 167 cars, will face the shopping center, fronting on State Street and will also have entrances on Southgate Road which connects the shopping center to Airport Boulevard.

Hunt said the new telephone company facility will mean 64 employees will be moved from the present cramped, leased quarters at Commercial Street and Palmetto Avenue in downtown Sanford.

Hunt said the move will include the telephone business office, plant assignment, engineering and marketing offices. "The new building is designed with energy-saving systems and space for company growth for the next 10 years," Hunt said.

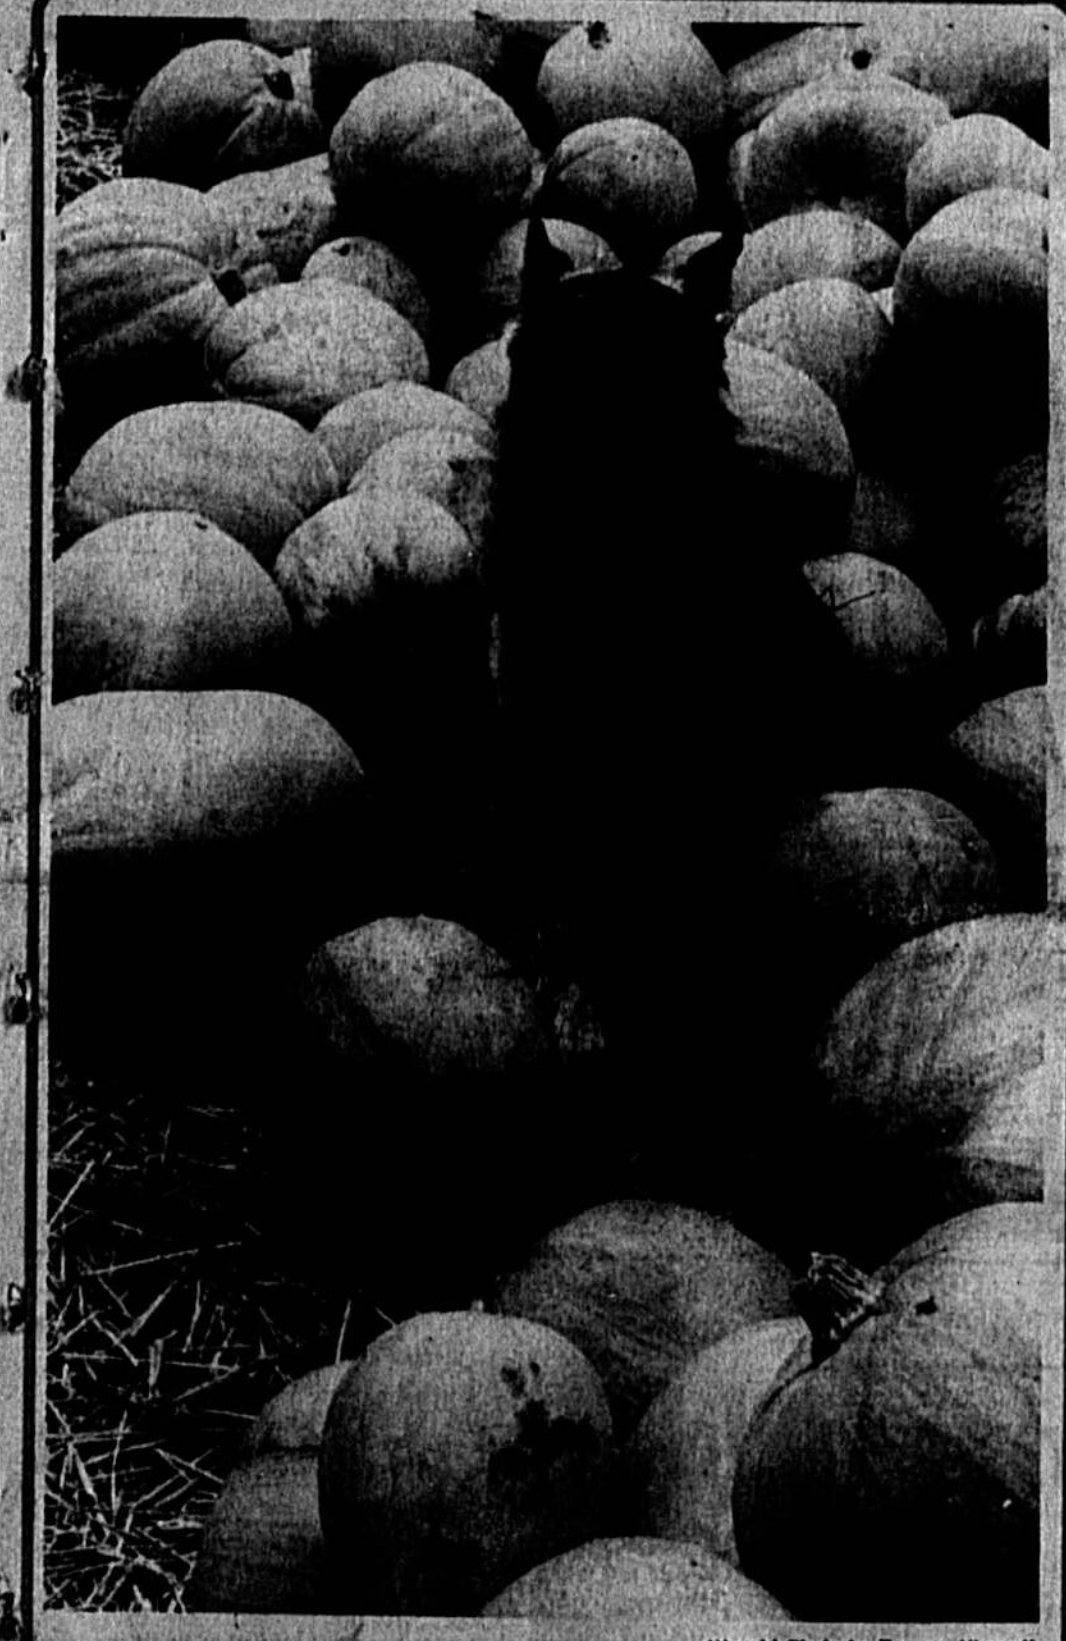

Southern Bell has occupied a former auto dealership building downtown since the mid-1960s. Prior to that the office was on Palmetto Ave. between First and Second streets.

"We selected the new site after considerable analysis of historical growth patterns in the Sanford area," Hunt said. He said the studies show the utility's customer growth areas in Seminole are to the south and southwest of Sanford. "We also looked carefully at forecasts for high-growth areas for residences and potential industrial growth," he said. "We're trying to locate where it will give easier access to customers from Winter Springs, Orlando, Sanford and other areas."

Hunt said the new building will solve problems of customers standing in line in the rain to pay bills downtown because of cramped, inadequate downtown public office space.

Another feature of the new building will be a Phone-Center where customers who have pre-ordered "modular" telephone installations in residences will be able to come in, select their telephone instruments from dozens of models on display, and save $5 on installation costs by picking up telephones at the Phone-Center and going home and plugging them in.

Hunt said customers will also save money by bringing the telephones back, when service is to be See BELL, Page 5-A

City Settles Height Suit

The Casseberry City Council Wednesday night agreed to settle a lawsuit filed against the city in federal court, charging the city with discrimination against women in a past height requirement for personnel of the police department.

The five feet seven inch minimum height required by police personnel and setting grievance procedures, between the city and the Fraternal Order of Police bargaining agent for the law enforcement officers.

The term of the approved contract is Oct. 30 through Sept. 30, 1978. The grievance procedure, said McIntosh, are mandated by state law and his contract. Does not require binding arbitration.

The six per cent cost of living pay raises are the same as granted under non-union city employees by the city council effective Oct. 1.

The contract provides a four-step grievance procedure. The steps call for discussion between the officer and his immediate supervisor as a first step, a conference between the officer and the mayor and finally arbitration.

McIntosh said that the city Thursday gave its notice of intent to renegotiate the contract next April.

City Attorney Kenneth McIntosh urged the council to approve an $8,500 settlement, contingent on the sum being the entire settlement not only for Ma. Hason, but for all members of the class, whom ever they might be.

He said it may have been possible for the woman to have received a judgment in the federal court not only for salary for the three-year period for herself, but also for any others who might have been unable to meet the height requirement. In addition, Ma. Hason could have claimed lost fringe benefits, court costs and attorney fees.

McIntosh said that Mayor Gerald Christensen, working with McIntosh's law office, had negotiated the settlement over a four-day period. He said the settlement would have to receive court approval.

County To Seek Legal Opinion Over County Attorney's Status

By MARK WEINBERG
Herald Staff Writer

An Evening Herald inquiry into how County Atty. Joe Mount, now working only two days a week for the county, continues to receive full-time retirement and health insurance coverage has caused the county to seek an independent legal opinion in the matter.

Seminole County Commissioners, questioning the legality of county-paid retirement and medical insurance coverage for Mount, who resigned as full-time county attorney Aug. 5, called for the legal opinion late Tuesday night.

Mount wrote the contract, approved unanimously by commissioners Aug. 14, under which the county has paid $1,300 into the state retirement fund and county medical insurance fund on behalf of Mount since August. His new work two days a week for the county will continue until a new full-time county attorney is hired, under terms of the contract.

The 43 county commission vote to obtain a legal opinion came following County Administrator Roger Neiswander's presentation of the issue to the commission.

Neiswander said the "icky serious" question was raised by an Evening Herald reporter. "My suggestion to the board is that we need an outside legal opinion, and my suggestion would be that we ask Bob Neighbors," the county's legal consultant on comprehensive planning, Neiswander said. Neighbors' legal office is in Melbourne.

"If there are any problems and we've missed anything administratively, they'll be brought out and they'll be corrected. If we have any challenges to our credibility, my suggestion is that I be treated very seriously and that we lay out for anyone exactly what the situation is," the county administrator continued.

"Is this raising a question in your mind?" asked Commissioner John Alexander. "It's not in my mind," answered Neiswander. "I am aware of at least three instances where county attorneys have resigned and their retirement and health insurance coverage has been terminated."

County Commissioner Bob French made a motion, seconded by Alexander, which was approved 4-1, with Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff voting against the motion, to obtain a legal opinion from Neighbors answering three questions: — Were the payments into state retirement and county medical insurance funds, totaling $1,300, since August, made by the county until a new legal representative?

— Can the county's payments legally continue? — Is it legal for the county to pay into the state and county funds to provide retirement and medical benefits for employees under contract to the county?

Voting in favor of the motion were Commissioner Chairman Dick Williams and Commissioners Fynch, Alexander and Neighbors. Alexander said he supported the motion "not because the question was raised by the press, but for the legal opinion to be the basis of any future contracts or arrangements that you have if there is some doubt."

Mount on July 20 submitted his written resignation as full-time county attorney. The resignation, Mount wrote, was effective Aug. 5.

Under Mount's contract, written by Mount and approved by commissioners Aug. 14, he will continue to work two days a week for the county until a new legal representative is hired.

Deputy Duane Harrell said today that investigators have now determined that Hawkins had escorted Ernest Payne from the frame house when Payne, while being searched alongside a patrol car, grabbed the deputy's revolver and shot him.

Harrell said Kramer was still inside the house with the beating victim when he heard the shot and ran out and fired at the suspect.

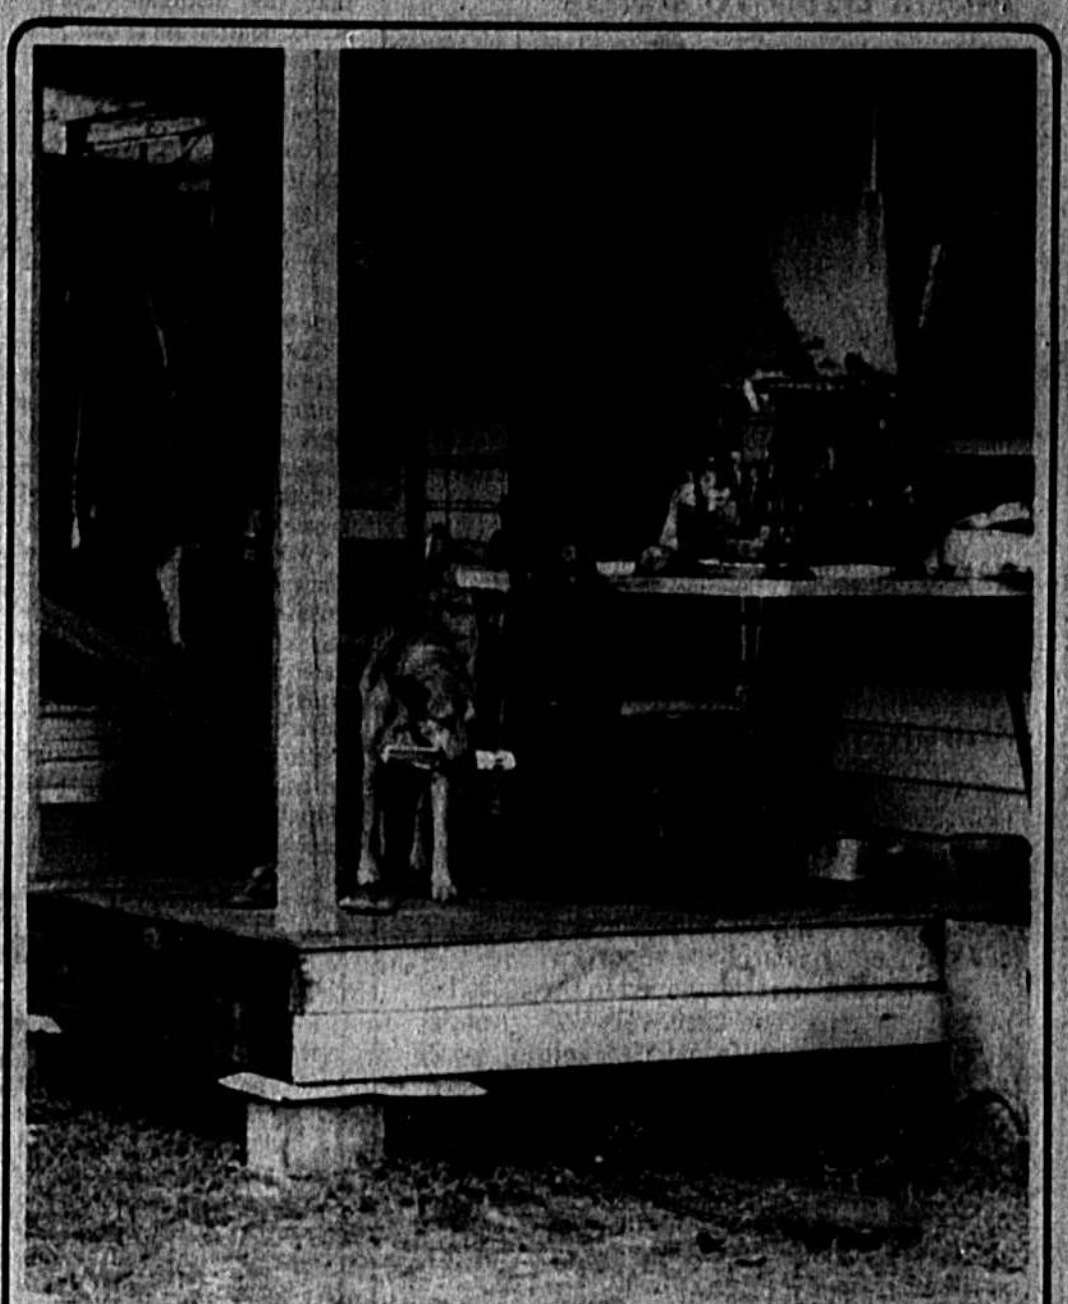

Lt. William Hogan reported that he arrived at the scene and joined in the gunbattle as Kramer was astride his downed fellow officer trying to protect him. Kramer was trying to raise his shotgun to fire when he was shot, deputies reported today.

Hogan said the suspect was shouting "I'll kill you" as he returned gunfire and then ran wounded toward the house. Ernest Payne was apprehended after he fell to the ground shot at least three times and again turned the police revolver on Lt. Hogan, according to sheriff's reports.

Ernest Payne was listed in good condition today at Seminole Memorial where he is under guard, charged with second-degree murder in his father's death and attempted murder of the two deputies.

The suspect's mother, Mrs. Rosa Payne, hospitalized after the shooting incident complained of chest pain, was listed in good condition today at Seminole Memorial, a hospital spokesman said.

"We would like to express our regrets for what happened," the teletype messages said. "We wish deputies Hawkins and Kramer a fast recovery." The message was signed with 2-words forming a sheriff's star.

It had been a ritual, a regular afternoon routine for several years.

But Wednesday was different.

Blasts Used To Douse

Underground Oil Fire

TAFT, Calif. (UPI) — Texas firefighter Red Adair set explosive devices in today's attempt to quench a raging underground oil-well fire that erupted after an oil rig exploded at a huge Naval oil reserve depot Tuesday, killing three men.

Adair, the daring expert who has successfully fought disastrous oil fires for 30 years, took charge of the preparations Wednesday at the Navy's Elk Hills facility, the largest oil reserve in the nation outside of Alaska.

Tuesday's explosion spewed oil and flames 150 feet into the air. Three workers, who had been suspended above the well in a basket, were flung 50 feet in the air by the force of the blast.

Pneumonia Vaccine Tested

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A group of 77 black children suffering from sickle cell anemia were immunized with an experimental vaccine that proved totally successful in warding off pneumonia, University of California researchers report.

The vaccine, first developed in the 1930s but put aside after the discovery of "wonder drugs" such as sulfa and penicillin, could eventually be given all children as a protection against the pneumonia virus, the report said.

Draft Renewal Pondered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Army Chief of Staff Gen. Bernard Rogers says the United States must decide by the end of 1979 whether to resume the draft to provide adequate manpower for the dwindling military reserves.

Rogers told UPI draft machinery should be reactivated immediately, if only to "keep track of" manpower, and the military should decide soon whether to draft women in case the nation reverts to conscription service.

31,520 Die in Crashes

CHICAGO (UPI) — The National Safety Council reports 31,520 people died in traffic accidents in the first eight months of 1977, 2 per cent more than the number killed in traffic accidents the first eight months of 1976.

About 1.1 million people suffered disabling injuries from motor vehicle accidents during the first eight months of the year, the safety council says.

Underground Atom Test

YUCCA FLATS, Nev. (UPI) — The United States exploded an underground nuclear device Wednesday — the eighth announced test of the year — but stock values were not strong enough to be felt about 50 miles away in Las Vegas.

Child Porn Outlawed

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Child pornography, a multimillion dollar industry which uses youth in sexually explicit photographs and films, has been outlawed in Pennsylvania.

Gov. Milton Eisenhower signed into law Wednesday a sweeping bill banning the production, distribution and sale of any publication, motion picture or film depicting anyone under 18 years of age in sexual activity.

Kelley Continues Work For School Board

By MARYLIN SHEEDAN
Herald Staff Writer

Sanford architect Eoghan N. Kelley will continue to work on the plans for the new Rock Lake Middle School despite the fact that the Seminole County School Board is suing him over problems with six other schools he designed.

School Superintendent William P. Laver Wednesday told the board Kelley had said he would continue working on the school under his present contract, which has no far cost the board $51,000 in architectural fees.

Last week the board voted to approach Kelley about the contract, and questioned whether he might wish to discontinue his involvement with the school due to the legal problems.

"Will this decision, which has allowed Kelley to continue as architect for Rock Lake, have any effect on the suits if those cases go to court?" Davis E. Sims, school board chairman, wanted to know.

Attorney Ned Julian, acting on behalf of school board attorney Douglas Stenstrom, assured the board that allowing Kelley to continue as architect would not affect the suits against him on other schools.

Kelley to continue work on Rock Lake would not affect suits against him on other schools.

"Each contract must be considered on its own merit," Julian said. Other questions about the school were also heard by the board.

Gerard Connell, mayor of Longwood, challenged the board's plans for bus routes to the proposed Rock Lake school, saying that if presently scheduled routes were used that his city would put weight limits on the streets which would prohibit the school buses from operating on them.

"We will probably put a weight restriction of 10,000 pounds on these streets," Connell warned the board. He said that empty school buses weigh 30,000 pounds.

"Can they do that?" Sims asked Julian.

Julian said he believed the city could, by state law, impose weight limits on the streets, but "I don't think either Mr. Stenstrom or myself will be able to participate in that decision due to the conflict of interest."

Julian is city attorney for Longwood.

The streets in question are Sheridan Avenue, Rocklake Road and Slade Drive.

Connell presented a resolution from Longwood to the board stating that the city had, at its meeting on Aug. 11, received a petition signed by 28 citizens living in Windsor Manor subdivision requesting that city officials speak in opposition to the location of Rock Lake school.

The school is scheduled to be built near Sheridan Avenue and Slade Drive adjacent to Windsor Manor.

Connell told the school board the streets are so narrow that two buses can not fit side by side.

Laver indicated he felt the problem could be solved simply by changing the position of some parts of the school plan, including perhaps the ballfield.

Connell consented to a change in the middle school progression levels to provide for students to attend summer school when they have failed a class in any of four basic academic subjects. Previously students could attend summer school only if they failed two subjects.

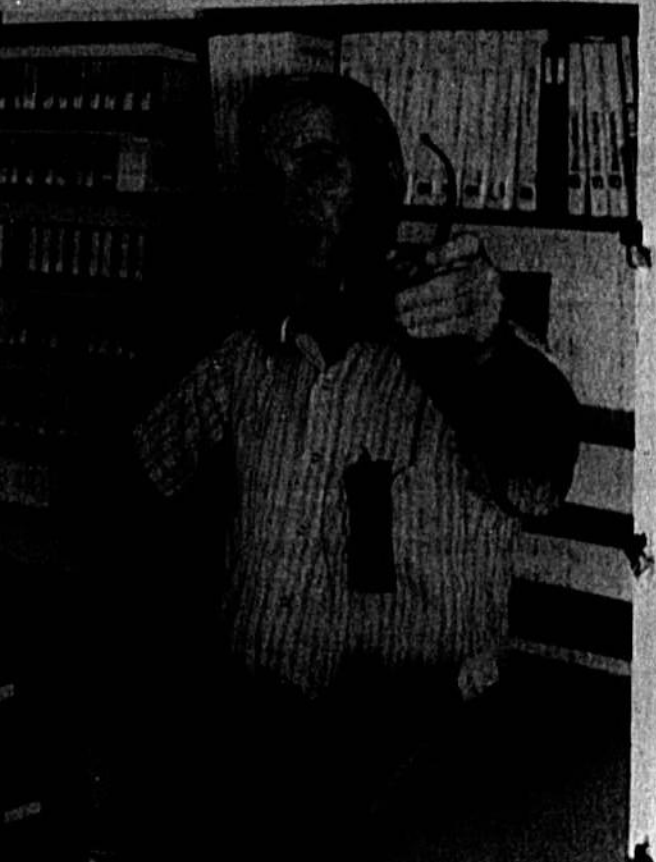

any legal problems.

The school board officially accepted the new school district offices at 13th Street and Melville Avenue, and scheduled its next board meeting, Nov. 9, at the new building.

With the new building completed, the board declared its present office at 301 E. Commercial Ave., its quarters in the old Westside School, and its audio visual center at the old Hopper school all surplus property as of Dec. 1, and authorized Laver and the school district staff to prepare advertising to sell the properties.

In other action, the board received an eight-page petition from citizens in school board member Robert G. Feaster's district supporting the county's efforts to obtain accreditation of local high schools.

Consented to a change in the middle school progression levels to provide for students to attend summer school when they have failed a class in any of four basic academic subjects. Previously students could attend summer school only if they failed two subjects.

School board member E.C. Harper Jr. took a tour of the board of education's new building. Owner of the Sanford Electric Company, Harper's comment: "The lights are all in the wrong places."

Women Working For Money

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — Women over 55 years of age who are joining the labor force in growing numbers do so not because of women's lib but because they need the money, University of Florida sociologists reported Wednesday.

"We are suggesting it's primarily for economic reasons rather than for self-actualization or for filling out free time," said Dr. Angela O'Rand, one of the sociologists participating in a study of 11,000 wage-earners.

Health Department Sought

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — State public health services are at such a low level that a separate department of health should be created to alleviate the problem, the Florida Medical Association says.

But officials in the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services said Wednesday they don't agree with the FMA's reasoning. HRS released position papers saying the FMA's proposal would hurt HRS attempts to offer social services at one location with few bureaucratic problems. HRS oversees public health activities.

Meditation But No Prayer

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Public schools can have daily silent meditation periods as long as prayer is not involved, Commissioner of Education Ralph Turlington says.

In a letter to school superintendents Wednesday, Turlington said courts have "spoken very clearly" about prayer in schools. The U. S. Supreme Court, he said, has ruled that the recitation of prayer and devotional readings in public schools violates the separation of church and state powers.

Teacher Tosses Hat In Ring

MIAMI (UPI) — A former state representative who teaches junior high school classes at North Palm Beach has announced his candidacy for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination on a platform of legalized casino gambling.

Gene Campbell, 39, of West Palm Beach became the seventh announced Democratic candidate at a news conference in Miami's Columbus hotel. He insisted he is the front runner in the campaign even though his name is unfamiliar in many parts of the state and he lost his bid for re-election to the House last year.

Human Services Director:

'County Should Not Control SCA This Year'

By MARK WEDENBERG
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County should not assume control this year of the anti-poverty programs run by private, non-profit Seminole Community Action (SCA), Human Services Director Troy Todd told a Wednesday meeting of county and SCA staffers and officials.

County commissioners a month ago voted to decide the question by December, when SCA's new budget year starts. Commissioners voted $23,000 for anti-poverty programs but delayed giving the money to SCA until deciding whether to take over its programs.

County Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff, who persuaded commissioners last month to look into the question of a county takeover of SCA programs after study by a committee composed of county and SCA staffers, said he would bring Todd's recommendations before commissioners at next Tuesday's commission meeting.

Todd also recommended—and the 18-member committee agreed—that county budget director Jeff Eickelberger and SCA Executive Director Aimee Jones meet with the goal of revising the format of SCA's budget request to make it consistent with a new budget format being tried in the county's public safety and personnel departments.

"I don't believe we should consider the county designating itself as community action agency this year," Todd said near the conclusion of Wednesday's two and half-hour meeting. "Rather than be constrained to one lousy month (to study the problem), we should get our lines of communication opened and tell SCA what information the county needs. It's a foregone conclusion at this point that we shouldn't change horses."

Todd had raised questions about SCA's budget reports, personnel costs and documentation on the number of people served by SCA programs, but SCA officials answer the questions Wednesday to Todd's apparent satisfaction.

"The problem here is solely and strictly one of communication," and Horace Orr, executive director of Seminole Employment Economic Development Corp. (SEEDCO).

In last month's county budget deliberations, Kirchhoff said Orange County had assumed control of the anti-poverty agencies and Volusia County "is moving in the same direction. Maybe the county could get more of its money if it runs the programs," Kirchhoff had said.

"SCA gets a large share of county money spent on social service agencies," the commissioner said Wednesday. "The new budget format system will help answer our critics who want to know how the money was spent, and on what."

Committee members agreed it would take more than a month to place the SCA budget into the new format and develop better communication between county and SCA staffers.

The results of Eickelberger and the Rev. Jones' work will be brought back to the committee "in about two or three weeks," Eickelberger said.

"The new (budget) format will get SCA into the same process used for county government departments," said Kirchhoff.

Todd said he would recommend commissioners release the $23,000 to SCA for the coming SCA budget year, which begins in December.

"Realistically speaking, a private community action agency has a profound value to a political jurisdiction in that it serves as a needed buffer to a public body," Orr said at the meeting.

"I hope the assumption isn't that SCA programs aren't evaluated," said the Rev. Jones. "They certainly are. It's done on a semiannual basis. The county has received copies of these evaluations. This has always been the case."

State and regional yearly evaluation of SCA's programs are also available to commissioners, the Rev. Jones said. "I think the county has all the information necessary. I talked to each commissioner. None said they needed more information."

"Your (SCA budget and program) proposals are detailed enough to satisfy" the federal government, Todd told the Rev. Jones.

SCA receives partial funding from the federal Community Services Administration. The level of funding depends on how much money SCA can raise from county government and private contributions.

It's business as usual for Fred Antonio, 25-year-old herpetologist with the Central Florida Zoo, who was back at work having recovered from a cobra bite received Oct. 9.

Antonio had been giving the four-foot-deadly Egyptian Cobra medication for a tape worm with the assistance of Tom Bates, reptile keeper at the zoo, when it struck, with one fang catching Antonio's left index finger.

Fortunately for Antonio, there were two vials of anti-venom stored at the zoo, of the type capable of counteracting most African snake venoms. Three vials of tiger snake anti-venom, brought from St. Cloud by the Florida Highway Patrol, were administered to Antonio at Seminole Memorial Hospital, where he was hospitalized.

Zoo director Al Ronson said this was the first time anyone had been bitten by one of the zoo's venomous reptiles.

Although the Egyptian Cobra is capable of injecting a lethal dose, Antonio explained, if anti-venom is given in time the bite is not usually fatal. Cobra venom is a nerve toxin, he added, but this particular variety also destroys tissue. Antonio said although he suffered some temporary neurological effects the only lasting results were necrosis (tissue damage) where the fang entered his finger.

The incident has not left Antonio with a fear of snakes, he said, which he must handle in order to administer medication. "If you handle venomous snakes," he said, "sooner or later the odds are something is going to happen."

This was not the first time Antonio had been bitten by a venomous snake. Interested in snakes all of his life, Antonio said he was bitten on the left thumb eight years ago by a black tail rattlesnake while collecting snakes in Arizona. He still has a small scar as a reminder.

Officials Consider Garbage Business

Should Casselberry go into the garbage collection business or place out for bids a franchise for the service for his citizens?

The city council Wednesday night authorized Mayor Gerald Christianensen, Jr., to prepare specifications for bids on the service for the governing body's approval at next Monday night's meeting.

Councilman John Leighty reminded council the city had attempted to provide the service to the citizens in 1969 unsuccessfully.

City Clerk Mary Hawthorne said the city was in the business for about six weeks and received approximately 500 complaints weekly. A new garbage packer, ordered to provide the service, arrived after the service had already been discontinued and was immediately sold.

Wilson insisted that the type labor hired by the city had caused the difficulty in the past. "I wouldn't advise hiring cheap labor," Wilson said, adding the city could pay $4 per hour.

The councilman said two trucks would be needed to provide the service city-wide and next year the city could give consideration to building its own incinerator so that city's refuse could be disposed of in a sanitary manner. Landfill facilities would not have to be used.

Christensen said, however, that state and federal anti-pollution laws would not permit the city to operate an incinerator. He urged that the Wilson plan be tabled until his office could complete a feasibility study of the proposal.

Bill Grier, a former mayor and councilman and currently a mayoral candidate, said that he had conducted a six month study in 1968 on the feasibility of the city providing garbage collection service. He said when the study was implemented a year later the city had grown so much that one garbage packer was not sufficient to pick up all the city residents' garbage.

He said citizens over the past several weeks have told him they oppose the prospect of the city billing and collecting garbage collection fees for Reliable Garbage Service.

The Reliable firm, charging $15 per month for the service under a franchise which expires Dec. 31, requested a 75 cents monthly increase in rates, offering to reduce the rate by 50 cents monthly if the city would do the firm's billing and collecting.

The firm also was seeking a five-year contract with a built-in rate increase pegged to the consumer price index, but with a maximum increase of six per cent annually.

Edward Yokely of 610 N. Winter Park Drive insisted from the audience that Wilson's plan was a "delaying tactic" so that the city will not have sufficient time to seek bids.

Councilman Frank Schutte suggested the compromise of a feasibility study of the city going into the business, while bids are sought on a franchise arrangement with private enterprise at the same time.

Dividends Need Help

The Dividends, a group of volunteers which helps students in every grade in Seminole County schools, are looking for people to share in their workshop Friday at Altamonte Springs civic center from 9 a.m. to noon. It will include sections on reading, specific learning disabilities, introduction on mathematics and metrics, and getting acquainted with teenagers.

The reading seminar will include basic reading and comprehension skills, recognizing and using learning styles, and how they relate to the school reading program.

The learning disabilities seminar will include information on how to identify learning disabilities, perceptual problems, and the ways those problems are treated in schools.

Each section of the seminar will be taught by staff members from Seminole County schools.

From Houses Going Up $600 Appliances Stolen

Seminole sheriff's deputies today were looking for burglars who made off with $600 in appliances from houses under construction in southwestern parts of the county.

James C. Gamble of Altamonte Springs reported a $400 central vacuum unit was taken from a model home at the corner of Cambridge Drive and Dunfries Court. Deputy W. Jackson Starr said the burglar entered by prying open a window.

Deputy Richard Faulkner reported burglars entered by an unlocked door at a house under construction on Holderness Drive, Welkya Estates, and hauled away a $200 dishwasher.

In other burglaries and thefts reported to sheriff's deputies, $1,150 in stereo equipment was found at the intersection of Woodford Springs Road, Sem-Artista Drive and Orlando Terrace, Forest City.

Bill Love, of Orlando, reported to deputies that someone stole parts valued at $900 from an Alfa Chalmers eight-horsepower lawnmower taken in a sally-day burglary at Northside Baptist Church, 9408 Forest City Road. Deputy Richard Faulkner reported he found the lawn mower abandoned at the intersection of

Four Columbus Women Strangled In Six Weeks

'Stocking Killer' Terrorizes Elderly Women

COLUMBUS, Ga. (UPI) — Frigidated elderly Columbus women are moving refuge behind closed doors and window blinds as they buy business to protect themselves against the killer who has strangled four of their neighbors in the past six weeks.

One and lock doors reported Wednesday business was five times the usual volume. Portending owner Herb Franklin said 500 daily visitors have bought hand-knits from him since the first killing Sept. 21.

"I never an alarm. Everybody is," said 75-year-old Bobbie Pitts, who lives in the same middle class area as the four dead women.

"When I go to my door and my window too. I've got a pistol. I've had it a long time, but it's ready in case anything comes to my door or window, and I wouldn't fail to shoot if something comes in, because the Good Lord wants us to do that."

Mrs. Pitts' 80-year-old son, William, said he told his mother to use the weapon "if she hears anything and not to hesitate."

Pitts' husband died on the stairs of what was termed a "murder-prone" home by Police Chief Curtis McClellan. Laver and Sullivan have been convicted.

"A lot us think they are dressed like policeman and the women are letting them in," said a 51-year-old neighbor of Mrs. Thurmond.

Public and private service agencies worked to find temporary homes for single elderly women as relatives moved in with their mothers, sisters and grandmothers.

Franklin said elderly women or family members had apped his daily business since from the usual five to 20. "You got a little old lady who's never had a gun, she's big on having one, and you tell her the best," he said. "You have to start from scratch."

FTC Judge Criticizes 'Poli-Grip' Promoters

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Makers of "Poli-Grip" denture adhesive are guilty of false advertising for claiming false teeth wearers can eat corn-on-the-cob, spare ribs, fried chicken and other tough-to-bite foods after using the product, a Federal Trade Commission judge ruled today.

"The very manner in which many dentures are constructed results in the denture and the front teeth are virtually useless for biting and only serve cosmetic purposes," said Miles Brown, an administrative law judge. "The back teeth then become the surface for pulverizing food."

"Because of the limitation in denture functions, many denture wearers cannot eat hard-to-bite foods such as apples and corn-on-the-cob, with or without the aid of an adhesive," he added.

The case goes back to 1976 when the FTC challenged ads for "Poli-Grip" and "Super Poli-Grip" sold by Black Drug Co., of Jersey City, N.J.

In his report to the commission hearing into the case, Brown said a typical commercial "promise by showing several people heartily enjoying, and eating at, an outdoor picnic. The ads also show 'up on an aw, and so on."

"A close-up is then shown of a male picnicer eating his fried chicken with gusto and confidence. The chorus simultaneously sings, 'Yeah, eat as you like. Take a good healthy bite of life. The camera then shifts to a female picnicer who is enthusiastically eating corn-on-the-cob. The audio portion becomes an announcer's voice which says, 'So what if you wear dentures?'"

Brown said the commercials fairly represented that users could eat problem foods.

Mosquito War In Full Gear

Step by step, little by little, the blind mosquito problem is being confronted more closely than ever before. And it's a good thing.

The latest development: the task force formed by the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce was told this week that the University of Florida Entomology Department will initiate and conduct a research program for control of the pests.

But there's one catch: funding is needed. Just how much is yet to be determined. Fortunately—and contrary to earlier speculation—funding for such a project is available from both state and federal sources, according to Dr. John Darby, director of the University of Florida's Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences, Agricultural Research and Education Center right here in Sanford.

That, indeed, is good news. And we urge members of the task force and the others fighting the latest war to waste no time in pursuing those avenues of funding.

Another speculation also was dispelled this week.

This one centers upon the previous belief that no data or information is available on the biology of the blind mosquito.

Dr. Darby told the task force this week that, yes, there is a number of publications dealing with the problem. He noted, too, that a computer search of available literature provides recommendations on methods of control.

We also learned this week that officials of 12 Florida cities and five counties will be meeting in mid-November to coordinate a joint effort in the mosquito war.

All very encouraging, indeed.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars in property, business expenses, tourist and other revenues are being lost regularly and will continue to be lost while there is still the danger of the blind mosquito returning.

Only through a complete, comprehensive, coordinated assault on the blind mosquito and the havoc it wreaks, can it be eradicated here and for all.

So let John Kiebler, Brad Hollingsworth, and their task force and the experts from the University of Florida continue their commendable efforts.

Airport Security

Airline passengers in the United States have been able to fly with little concern for hijacking since adoption of tough federal security standards for airports in 1974.

But the recent rash of terrorist activity around the world has stirred a response from the crown who are most vulnerable to air piracy.

The victims by German commission of 48 hijackers held aboard a Lufthansa jetliner in Somalia, which resulted in the death of three of the four hijackers, is unlikely to relieve the tension. The pilot of the plane was "rescued" before the landing and dramatic rescue operation.

An investigation of flight engineers, in particular, has given voice to the feeling that too little progress is being made internationally to make airports and air travel safe.

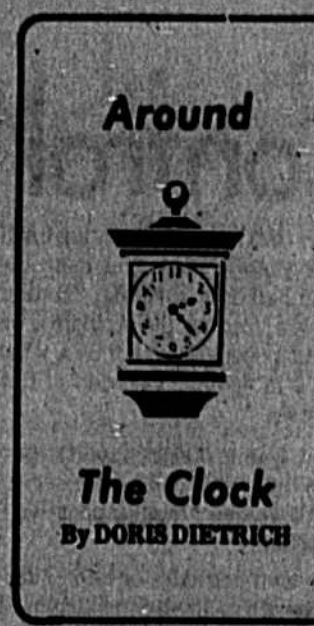

"Security at foreign airports is inadequate," said Paul Chubb, a vice president of the Flight Engineers' International Association.

Incidents of the past few weeks confirm the statement. And, under the 1974 law, the U.S. secretary of transportation can recommend to the president imposition of flight to countries that do not have on the same level of security that is required.

There have been no such recommendations, however.

The engineers would also beyond countries that provide "a level of security" meaning that airports apparently made no effort to limit the activities of a Japanese Airline jet that landed in London, although it carried the $1 million ransom paid to the hijackers.

It is not clear how long it will be before the U.S. secretary of transportation can recommend to the president imposition of flight to countries that do not have on the same level of security that is required.

Arabs Tell Abuse On West Bank

WASHINGTON — Deportation, confiscation, racial discrimination, detention without trial—these are ugly words for ugly practices.

We hear a lot about such human rights violations these days in nations from South Africa to the Soviet Union. We condemn them, and we expect the U.S. government to do likewise.

But we hear little and say less about the sometimes brutal deprivation of human rights taking place on the West Bank, Gaza, the Sinai, and all the occupied Arab territories now controlled by Israel.

On the whole, we prefer not to know. Israel is special. No other nation can match its claims on the emotional allegiance of the American people. No other nation even approaches its clout with the American government, especially the Congress.

That is why there was something extraordinary about a Senate subcommittee hearing this month on the plight of Arabs living on the West Bank and other occupied territories. Witnesses with names like Salim Tamari, Haim Bahak and Fawzi Al-Khatib, do not appear very often on Capitol Hill. Most members of Congress would prefer not to confront the kind of testimony such men can present.

Please don't call me Ma. I am a liberated woman. However, I took the institution of matrimony to proclaim my emancipation. So please don't call me Ma.

During the "missing" years, I repeated the same demands of my own teenage daughter. There was always the possibility that a "minus" Mr. Right was available and I certainly didn't want to blow it with the stigma of "Mrs." attached.

When Shakespeare referred to "Mistress," the term meant a woman of power or authority, and not a girl friend. Today the term is just the opposite—a rich man's mistress.

Eventually, Mistress was constricted to Miss, abbreviated to Mrs., and used as a title of respect for married women of all economic classes. Young unmarried maidens were later labeled Miss.

Frankly, in correspondence when a woman's marital status is unknown, Ma. is a neat cop-out. In oral address, a married Miss will get you off the hook. Legally, a married woman is simply Jane E. Doe.

So to each her own, but in my case, please separate the M and S with an R, for the two Rs in marriage—right and real.

And forget formality. Just call me by my first name, "Mrs."

WASHINGTON — Presidents sometimes find it hard to live up to campaign promises. For example, President Carter solemnly promised that if he were elected only considerations of merit would govern the choice of federal judges and United States attorneys, the 94 presidential appointees who prosecute federal criminal cases.

These men are key figures in the criminal justice system, prosecuting a long list of federal crimes arising under more than 300 federal laws: bank robbery, kidnapping, extortion, loan sharking, labor racketeering, fraud of various kinds, traffic in narcotics, public corruption and many large organized crime syndicates across state boundaries.

The United States attorney has considerable discretion about whether to prosecute or not; to choose the lawyers on his staff (in all there are about 1,700); and to decide what kinds of crimes will be given priority. Yet in the past these 94 attorneys have been chosen by a system of political patronage that all too often produced officials staffed by political hacks.

Federal prosecutors, unlike federal judges who are chosen for life, are expected to file their resignations when a new president takes office, so that he can choose successors from his own party. This year some who had been appointed by President Nixon and Ford (who made some small moves towards appointment by merit) declined to resign, relying on Carter's promise that political considerations would play no part in these four-year appointments where toughness and integrity are so important to the fight against crime and corruption.

One who tried to complete his term was Justice Department spokesman, Mr. William J. French. He was appointed in June 1976.

The Department of Justice, which makes recommendations on new appointments to the White House, would have loved to have him remain. But Sen. Harrison Williams of New Jersey, a Democrat, had other ideas. He wanted his own man in the job, which pays $47,000 a year, and he, like other senators, has the power to veto any appointment and placing it in the hands of the Senate and it is highly unusual for senators not to support a colleague, since they expect his help when their turn comes.

Goldstein had now been forced out, although the Department of Justice has managed to hold on to a scrap of respectability by passing over Sen. Williams' first choice, who had no experience in criminal law, and recommending the second name on his list, Robert D. Telo, who has been head of the state's division of criminal justice.

Greek Boss Chides Carter For Inaction On Cyprus

ATHENS, Greece (UPI) — Greek Premier Constantine Karamanlis is chiding President Carter for not doing enough to settle the bitter dispute between Greece and Turkey over the divided island of Cyprus.

"It is my impression that the Carter administration has not clearly defined its policies on major international issues in which the United States has a role to play," the 70-year-old premier said.

Saudi: We're Ready To Fight

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Saudi Foreign Minister Prince Saud al Faisal said in an interview published today his country is prepared to fight any Israeli attack against the Arabs with the full weight of its oil, financial power and human resources.

"Not only will Saudi Arabia sacrifice its oil and financial resources, but also the blood of its sons," Saud told the Washington correspondent of the daily An Nahar.

Blumenthal Talking Oil

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal opened talks with top Iranian officials today on U.S.-Iran economic cooperation, the price of oil and world energy.

Blumenthal, who arrived in Tehran Wednesday from Kuwait where he was assured that Kuwaiti leaders would continue to use the U.S. dollar for pricing oil, met with the minister of economic affairs and finance, Houshang Ansary, and was scheduled to meet Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi later today.

A Queen In These Waters

ROAD TOWN, British Virgin Islands (UPI) — A group of sailors thought they spotted a shark and so headed their barge towards a lady swimming offshore to warn her.

The swimmer was Queen Elizabeth II and she was unperturbed by the warning, a spokesman for the English monarch said Wednesday.

The incident occurred last Sunday while the royal party was swimming off the tiny island of Little Ingham in the Bahamas.

Hee Haw A Korea No-No

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — No comedies will be seen on South Korean television soon because of the government's no hee-haw policy, broadcasting officials said today.

"On recommendations from government authorities, we have decided to replace all slapstick and nonsense comedies with sounder programs that are more enlightening to the people," one official said.

Crossfire Catches Civilians

ZAMBOANGA CITY, Philippines (UPI) — Scores of civilians, including a wedding party, were caught in the crossfire between government forces and Muslim rebels Wednesday on an offshore island near this southern seaport city.

Residents of Saol Island, three miles east of Zamboanga, and Zamboanga Radio broadcasts said at least 11 were killed and 22 wounded in the action, which started on the beachfront and spilled into the town center.

County, Sanford Make Annex Deal; Suit Ends

The Seminole County Commission voted 4-1 to drop their lawsuit against Sanford's annexation of several lots of Upeala and Paola Roads after accepting Sanford's offer to drop three lots from the annexation.

The offer to delete the three lots was presented at Tuesday's county commission meeting by Sanford City Attorney C. Vernon Mize, accompanied by builder A.K. Shoemaker, who owns the land and who requested the annexation by Sanford.

By Sanford's agreeing to delete the three lots, Mize and commissioners agreed the annexation would not create an enclave of county property almost entirely surrounded by city land, an apparent violation of the state annexation law.

The possible creation of an enclave led the county commission to originally oppose the annexation. Three weeks ago, Assistant County Attorney Gary Siegel filed the suit-annexation lawsuit in circuit court. Sanford has not filed an answer to Siegel's complaint in the suit.

Voting in favor of the compromise were Commissioners Bob French and Barry Kwiszkowski, Bob French, Bill Kirkhoff and John Alexander.

Opposed was Commissioner Chairman Dick Williams, who said he was concerned the move might be interpreted by city officials as the county commission's backing down from its stated policy of challenging in court annexations that appear to create "pockets, enclaves and serpentine patterns" in apparent violation of state law.

Sanford City Commissioners had voted Monday night to send Mize to the county commission meeting to clarify the county's position on the annexation. Last week, the county commission voted 4-2 to drop the suit when a compromise attempt fell through involving deleting some lots from the annexation.

School Clerks Give Approval To Pact

By MARYLYN BREEDMAN Herald Staff Writer

The clerical union of Seminole County school district employees has tentatively agreed to a new contract, leaving district officials with only one more union — the Non-Instructional Personnel of Seminole County Association (NIPSCO) — at the negotiating table.

The agreement with the clerical union ends negotiations which began in February. "The main problem was salary," explained Ernest Cowley, chief negotiator for the school board.

He said the new contract will provide an increase from current base pay of $4,000 to a base pay of $4,765.

"This was an overall increase of salary to that union of 4.8 percent," Cowley said, "but because we did some adjusting on some FTE clerks, bookkeepers and executive secretaries an individual raise would amount to 3.15 to 9.3 percent."

Cowley explained that the overall 4.8 percent raise was the same as that ratified by the Seminole Education Association teachers' union.

It is also the same raise given the bus drivers in a tentative contract which has not been voted on.

"I'm glad it is over with," he said. "The contract is typed and printed for us to distribute," Grooms said. He estimated that might be toward the middle or end of November.

Grooms would not estimate when negotiations between NIPSCO and the school board might end.

"We are currently working on days and hours," Grooms said. He said problems under consideration include a change in days off for cafeteria managers and assistant managers, and a change in the pay of plant maintenance personnel.

The Department of Justice, which makes recommendations on new appointments to the White House, would have loved to have him remain. But Sen. Harrison Williams of New Jersey, a Democrat, had other ideas. He wanted his own man in the job, which pays $47,000 a year, and he, like other senators, has the power to veto any appointment and placing it in the hands of the Senate and it is highly unusual for senators not to support a colleague, since they expect his help when their turn comes.

Goldstein had now been forced out, although the Department of Justice has managed to hold on to a scrap of respectability by passing over Sen. Williams' first choice, who had no experience in criminal law, and recommending the second name on his list, Robert D. Telo, who has been head of the state's division of criminal justice.

BUSINESS SCENE Humphrey-Hawkins Bill

NEW YORK (AP) — Four per cent unemployment. That is what the Humphrey-Hawkins bill would commit the federal government to seek as objective. And that is what the President now must consider endorsing or rejecting.

Who people shared with the objective of the bill, but there is much questioning about whether it is possible and how it is to be achieved—private or public enterprise—and just what the costs might be.

But in terms of potential future controversies, there is another question that should rank right up there. It is this: How do you precisely measure unemployment? And the answer at the moment is that we do not know.

These decentralized statistics we receive each month are hardly the accurate measures we tend to believe they are. Good as they are, relative to other countries, they are little more than estimates, and are based more on formulas than on actual counts.

The man responsible for the monthly reports, Julius Shelnik, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, has expressed doubts about their accuracy. He maintains at least a half-dozen other measures, in case.

Francis Jimmy Carter has questioned the accuracy of the figures. So did President Gerald Ford. So have scholars from the Urban Institute and the Brookings Institution.

By some bankers, union leaders, academics, private economists.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Boston has long contended the accuracy of the figures in its New England area. Last Monday the Federal Reserve Bank of New York said daily rates have become an unreliable measure.

Some say the official unemployment rate is too high. Others say too low. Municipalities have organized crime investigations, told our reporter that the judge's actions might constitute obstruction of justice.

There is an evidence that it should rank right up there. It is this: How do you precisely measure unemployment? And the answer at the moment is that we do not know.

Ray Goes On Trial Today

WARTSBURG, Tenn. (UPI) — James Earl Ray goes on trial on escape charges today with his attorney claiming the charge should be dismissed because Ray already has been punished for fleeing Brushy Mountain State Prison June 10.

Attorney Mark Lane said he would seek dismissal of the charge against the convicted assassin of Martin Luther King Jr., who fled the prison along with six other inmates.

The fugitives were captured in the mountains around the remote prison after a massive manhunt involving FBI agents, bloodhounds and helicopters fitted with infrared scanners.

"We will file for dismissal on the grounds of double jeopardy," said Lane, who became Ray's attorney this week after the 49-year-old convict fled Nashville lawyer Jack Kershner.

"He's been punished already. He has had three years of good time taken away. This is the same as adding three years to his sentence."

The disciplinary action was taken in an administrative hearing which followed the escape. If convicted, Ray could be sentenced to one to five additional years.

If Circuit Judge Lee Aubrey denies the double jeopardy motion, Lane said he will contend state authorities and FBI agents forced Ray to plead guilty to King's 1968 slaying at a Memphis motel.

The contract states in part, "You will be paid a retainer...equivalent to the salary and fringe benefits you are now receiving from the county." Moun's weekly salary was $625.

Newsweek signs Moun's weekly payroll order, said Deputy County Clerk Abby Jones, who referred a reporter's questions on the legality of the county's paying into Moun's retirement and medical benefits to Personnel Director Ron Thomas.

Because Ray should never have been sent to prison, the attorney argues, he was free to leave at any time.

Ray and Lane have accused Kershner of profiting from the sale of James Earl Ray's rights and making $15,000 to $20,000 from an interview which Ray granted to Playboy magazine.

Playboy later reported that a lie detector test administered by Ray during the interview indicated he had killed King and acted alone in the assassination.

The Battle For Equality Will Women Die Like Men?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American women have come a long way in their effort to gain equality with men, but two Los Angeles researchers warn this could mean they may also begin to die like men.
But Dr. Charles Lewis and Mary Ann Lewis, a nurse, say a reduction in sexual discrimination need not pose a risk to the health of women if they learn from past experience to avoid the behavioral patterns that shorten the life spans of men.
Writing in the New England Journal of Medicine, the Lewises suggest it might be better for men to live a little bit like women.
They said benefits of sexual parity should come in terms of individual behaviors and roles in society than to their biologic inheritance.
"If we are striving for a nonsexist society, with equal opportunity for all, it would be better to seek increased opportunities for women in occupation, business and commercial affairs, and a reduction in the morbidity and mortality of men."
The Lewises, with the UCLA Center for Health Sciences, cite statistics and numerous studies to show that males have experienced greater death rates and more illness at all ages in the 20th century.
They said there is growing evidence that death and sickness rates between men and women "are related more to their behaviors and roles in society than to their biologic inheritance."
Women are clearly the superior sex in terms of survival, the report said. It suggested this might be explained in part by the fact that women have been expected or permitted by society to be more concerned with health and to assume the role of the patient more frequently.
"In contrast, men, faced with an increased risk of chronic disease and shorter life expectancy, are more reluctant to seek care or to adopt behaviors that would diminish these risks."
"It might be argued that society has created a social environment that is far more hazardous to the health of men," Smoking is a prime

Costume Parade Begins Old-Fashioned Carnival

Ghost, goblins and other characters will cast their spells on judges during the Jayliffside Halloween costume parade.
The parade will start the Jayliffside Elementary School Halloween Carnival, Oct. 28, from 12:30 until 8:30 p.m. Trophies and ribbons will be awarded to three winners in each age group. Shirley Fletzer is carnival chairman.
Booths will be set up by Don Merrifield and his committee for the many fun activities planned. Teachers and school principal Norma Ragdale will be the targets for the popular sponge throw booth.
Martha Lyle, booth chairman, has planned an afternoon of excitement with a "Walk the Plank" fish pond, "Hole in One Golf," "Grav-dig," "Basketball Toss," "Feed the Puppies" and "Balloon Races" will be given in every game booth.
Every Halloween carnival has a haunted house and Becky Dunn is planning the spookiest ever, along with an old-fashioned hayride under the direction of Jack and Joan Ludwig. Edna Boyer will hold the Magic Mirror in a make-up booth for spirits wanting to change their looks.
Homemade craft items, plants and books will be available in the boutique at reasonable prices. The "Sweet Shop," planned by Jane Sacks, will feature cakes, cookies and candied apples as well as the familiar "candy walk." Hotdogs, hamburgers, soft drinks and popcorn will complete the carnival fare. — JAN FREEMAN.

Camellia
The October meeting of the Camellia Circle of the Garden Club of Sanford was held at Bonaire East in Casselberry.
The art of Japanese Bonsai, the miniaturizing of a woody plant or tree, was explained in detail from what to look for in your selection of plant material to the secret of pruning roots and foliage and also fertilizing.
A tour through the nursery where trees are started from seed, cutting or sapling was extremely interesting. Those attending were Misses Richard Fowler, E. J. Peoples, P. J. Phillips, Brian Schanel, Guy Vitale, Frank Woodruff III, and two new members Mrs. William Butler and Joe Seibel.
Anyone interested in joining The Garden Club of Sanford may contact any of the members.
Camellia Circle has been working on items for The Garden Club of Sanford's HOLIDAY BAZAAR to be held Nov. 18 and 19 at the club house located on 17-62 at Sunland Estates.
One of the most interesting projects has been helping with the building of a completely furnished doll house which will be raffled off along with a 15-piece ceramic party scene made by Betty Phillips and Becky Peoples on the last day of the bazaar. Raffle tickets are $1 each.
Members of the Garden Club of Sanford are making the doll house and the nativity scene available to the public on weekends in the banks and shopping centers. All members have tickets for sale also. The drawings will take place on Nov. 18 at the bazaar around 4 p.m. The public is invited.

Mildred Walstrom, Wm. S. Willard Exchange Vows

Mildred F. Walstrom of Altamonte Springs, and William S. Willard of Casselberry, were married on Oct. 24 at the Altamonte Chapel. Rev. Wayne Smith performed the 7 p.m. double ring ceremony.

Donna Lawton, played both traditional and favored sections of the bride and bridegroom.

An arrangement of white, yellow and gold daisies interspersed with greenery and baby's breath decorated the altar, flanked on either side by three lighted candelabra.

Given in marriage by her son, Eric R. Walstrom, Hampton, VA, the bride chose a floor length gown of soft beige with a chiffon and lace overlay. They sprigs of baby's breath were tucked in her hair. She carried a colonial bouquet of white and gold daisies with baby's breath and beige streamers. The bride's only jewelry was a gold filigree cross and matching earrings.

Serving her mother as attendant, Mrs. Donald (Kriehl) Doster; Marietta Ga., wore a floor length gown of daffodil yellow flannel with a cowl neckline. She carried a colonial bouquet similar to that of the bride with the addition of yellow daisies and bronze streamers. Baby's breath was also arranged in her hair.

Attorney Joseph Agajl Winter Park, friend of the bridegroom served as his best man.

Charlotte Conway, a friend of the bride, was the best book.

Following the ceremony a reception for over 100 guests was held at the Capistrano Clubhouse.

Friends of the bride who attended were Mrs. Patricia Martin, Mrs. Evelyn Collins, Mrs. Linda Green, Miss Sandy Krill, Ms. D'Ann Jones and Ms. Charlotte Conway.

The couple will reside in Altamonte Springs where Mrs. Willard is City Hall receptionist. Willard is retired from the Navy and is the Utilities Superintendent at Florida Technological University.

Is It Possible To Wed The Dead?

DEAR ABBY: Is it possible to marry a dead person using a proxy?
 In our area, a teenage boy drowned a few weeks ago, and he had planned to marry soon. They had a license already. I understood the girl was pregnant and she wanted a name for her child, so they were married at the funeral parlor. Is that possible? Can you find out for me?
 Thank you.

CURIOS IN PA:
DEAR CURIOS: You don't need a Philadelphia lawyer to hunt up a precedent for this. The answer is no, it's not possible.

DEAR ABBY: I just returned from hearing a Federal Court decision that sent my 11-year-old grandson to prison for five years.

Outside the courtroom I confronted Don (my son-in-law) for having kept his boy out of his first.

My daughter says she will try to get some correspondence courses and teach the children at home. Can this be done?

ESCONDIDO GRANDMA:

Dear Abby

DEAR GRANDMA: According to California law, education—either public or private—is mandatory. In the case of a handicapped or ill child, the board of education often provides special tutoring. But if your son-in-law refuses to send his healthy children to school, and attempts to "hush" them at home, he can expect to have a legal battle on his hands.

DEAR ABBY: I am desperate, and you are my only hope. I have positive proof that my husband is on drugs. Don't tell me to approach the mental health people or talk to my parish priest. My husband is well-known in town and holds a very responsible position. He would be ruined if this were ever found out.

He left me and our children three months ago. (He made ridiculous excuses for leaving.) He is still a young man with a brilliant future ahead of him. I am going out of my mind worrying about him. If there is any information you can give me on how I can help him, I will forever remember you in my prayers.

CURRENTLY IN LIMBO:
DEAR IN LIMBO: It is impossible to "help" him unless he agrees to be helped. Is he heavily into drugs, or just an occasional user? You say he "lets" you, but you don't say whether you know where he is. If you can contact him, do so. Tell him that you "know" and urge him to get into a drug rehabilitation program. Your local Mental Health Association can give you the information you need.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lady Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a self-addressed, stamped (SAS) envelope.

Cutting Hips, Legs To Size
 Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB— I would like to know if it is possible to lose a "secretary's quads"? I have thought about quitting my job because of the sitting down all day, every day. I have gained four inches on my rear thighs and thighs in four years since I have had this job. I would like to know if my hips and legs can be brought back to their original size or close to it. If so, how do I go about it. And if exercises is the answer, what kind is best? I have cut down on my eating. DEAR READER— The act of sitting does not cause inches to be added to your seat or pounds of fat to accumulate over your buttocks or thighs. The problem is the same as for the person who develops a large waist. It is that old problem of consuming more calories than your body uses. The end result is FAT which is simply stored energy and it has to be stored somewhere. "Someday" for you is your buttocks and thighs. In the next person it may be the waist. There are individual differences in where the fat deposits will locate. You were probably born with a tendency to deposit fat in those locations. In one ethnic group in Africa the people have a characteristic of having very large buttocks—a large fat pad. It is a racial characteristic for that group as opposed to other ethnic groups in Africa. It is not that these people are necessarily fatter than another race but their inherited characteristic is to store their fat over the buttocks. Because your job requires you to sit a lot you probably use less calories than you used in the past. It is the total inactivity combined with your calorie intake that leads to fat deposits. You can't "spot reduce" the area. The way to get rid of it is to reverse the "calories in, calories used" ratio by changing your diet and increasing your activity. I am sending you The Health Letter number 47, Weight Lossing Diet, which you can use as a guide. Others who want this diet can send $8 cents with a long, stamped, addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Exercises will help and as I mentioned in The Health Letter I am sending you that is a good way to help protect your muscles while getting rid of fat. I think everyone can benefit from a dieting diet should have some type of exercise program as well. Exercising your hips and buttocks will not cause fat to melt away over these areas. It will simply be a part of your total exercise program as well. You can tighten the muscles in that area and firm them just as you can tighten and firm any muscle. That means contracting and relaxing the muscle groups. For the seat you can do bumps and grinds. You can also get some benefit from standing up and voluntarily tightening your seat muscles and then relaxing them. Hold the muscles in the tensed position for a few seconds each time. Repeat the exercise about 10 times and have at least two sessions a day of this. By working these muscles they will become firmer but the fat will still be there unless you regulate your calorie balance.

WIN AT BRIDGE
 By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

and when the jack fell from East the only loser was the ace of spades. Why did it trump the way he did? His trump would succeed if East held the singleton jack. The play of a low spade from his hand would work if West held the singleton king. Hence, each play had the same good chance for success, yet it left the spade queen without hesitation. The reason was that he had a chance for a successful swindle. West might well duck with King-seven or King-six. Not that he should duck; rather that he just might make a bad play. As 2 and all players have learned, when there is a chance to make a mistake there may be a mistake.

Old Man Z, the expert who always played the dummy in the auction bridge columns, was back for another duplicate game. It didn't take him long to get to six hearts. He simply checked for aces with Blackwood (a convention that had not been invented in his early days) and he bid the slam when his partner showed one ace. It also didn't take him long to make the hand. He won the diamond lead in his own hand and led the queen of trumps. West covered with his king

CORONARY CARE UNIT
Florida North Hospital, Altamonte Springs has just instituted a new six bed coronary care unit. Each bed is situated in a private room with complete facilities. Each room has its own Bedside Nurse Scope which monitors heart rate. This information is then displayed on a central console at the nurses' station. Patients can also be monitored after leaving the coronary care unit by means of telemetry. They wear a transmitter that sends heart rate information back to the console of the coronary care unit. Previously, coronary care and intensive care were combined at Florida North. Now coronary care has its own unit, thus providing an optimum environment for recovery from coronary problems. The console of the unit is shown in the photo along with Laveta Graves (standing), Hope Bennett (left) and Joanne Johnson.

Penalties Loom For Public Employees Who Call Strike

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

A Florida legislator, described as "friendly to the cities," told delegates at the Florida League of Cities Convention in Kissimmee Thursday that the state's constitutional revision commission may include penalties not only against unionized public employees striking, but even threaten to strike.

The Florida League of Cities is holding the three-day convention at the Hyatt House. It ends Saturday.

State Rep. Ronald Richman of New Port Richey, as guest speaker before the League's Urban Administration Committee chaired by Sanford City Manager W.E. Knowles, said the proposal before the constitutional revision commission is to penalize strikers and threaten to strip them of state retirement plan benefits. He said this measure has a "good chance of passing."

Also being considered, he said is limiting on collective bargaining wages, hours and monetary fringe benefits and excluding supervisors from collective bargaining, predicting the measure has a 50-50 chance of passing.

Richman was introduced to the committee by Knowles as a friend of the cities and a leader in the state House of Representatives.

He told the group other items expected to be included in the proposed new constitution include:

- Limitations or exclusions in the sunshine law, but he said these have not "been spelled out in detail."
- No proposals to reinstate the municipal court system. But, he said ultimately the municipal court system will be reinstated in the state, pointing to the overburdened case load in the county courts now from municipal cases. He decried the fact that few state attorneys are prosecuting city ordinance violations since abolition of the municipal court system.

He pointed to the City of Sanford as an example of where the municipal court there in the last year before its abolition prosecuted 5,000 cases for violation of city law while only three cases were prosecuted in 1978 in the Seminole County court system for violation of city law.

Changes in the financial disclosure amendment sponsored by Gov. Reubin Askew last year which requires full financial disclosure by county and state officials.

A prohibition against double taxation. He said the problem with double taxation whereby city residents claim they are taxed for services by the cities and then taxed again for the same services by the county but excluded wholly or partly from receiving those services is that there is no set formula to determine exact areas of double taxation.

He said the issue may ultimately be determined by the courts, but he urged the Legislature to discover a formula.

— Single member legislative districts. This, he said, is the most important amendment which will be on the ballot.

Single member districts, he said, will make the Legislature more responsive to the public and more conservative.

Single member districts would not affect Seminole County as far as House of Representatives representation is concerned because State Reps. Robert Hattaway and Vince Fickett already serve in single member districts. But, Seminole representatives in the Florida Senate reside in multiple member districts. Both Lori Wilson and John Vogt's districts encompass the same territory of several counties including Seminole.

Only One Of Its Kind In Southeast U.S. Sunshine Important To This Winter Springs Home

The home in the Highlands is unique for several reasons. It is the only single-family unit residential demonstration project operating on 80 per cent solar energy, at this stage of completion, in the United States.

The other special feature of the home is that solar energy is used not only to produce heating, but to generate the air-conditioner unit. Water, collected in the collector panels on the roof and heated by the sun is processed through a heat-exchange device to produce the necessary energy. There is a natural gas backup system for use in extended periods of cloudy weather.

Frank Carter, program coordinator for Florida Land Company, said the concept of solar energy is not new. The theory has been around since the 1820s and 30s. Solar energy was used in submarines in World War II. This project is one of the most ambitious for harnessing the sun for use in residential homes.

Carter said the only other such grant-sponsored solar energy project in the state is an apartment complex being constructed in a small city in the Panhandle. This project is concentrating on using solar energy only for heating purposes.

HUD will be monitoring the Winter Springs home for a period of five years to ensure the operations of the system.

Completion costs of the project from all sources, according to Carter, is in the neighborhood of $100,000. He stated that, because the home was built as an experiment and to help find solutions to the national energy crisis, the home will be sold on the market for the average price of a home of this size — approximately $85,000. The eventual owner also will save upwards of 75 per cent in the cost of energy expenses.

A dedication ceremony is being planned for the end of the year, according to Charles Row, manager of communications of Florida Gas Company. The tentative plans are for a period of a month or so for public viewing before the house is offered for sale. He said these plans are dependent on the progress of the experimental project.

"The purpose of this project is to evaluate the solar energy package for residential homes," Row said.

Today W. German Terrorists? Kidnapers Grab Dutch Realtor

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands (AP) — A millionaire Dutch businessman was kidnaped early today as he left a nightclub, and a telephone caller claimed West Germany's Red Army Faction terrorist group was responsible.

Witnesses said about five persons subdued Maurits Caransa, 61, after a struggle outside the Continental Club, where he had been playing bridge, and forced him into a car. Caransa owns a chain of hotels and is prominent in Jewish activities.

Supporters of the Red Army Faction also claimed responsibility for bombings of two West German car showrooms in Milan, one in and Rome and a German engineering company office in Lisbon today. No injuries were reported.

Callers told police the bombs, like others that damaged West German property across Europe last week, were planted to avenge the Oct. 18 prison deaths of three leaders of the German terrorist underground — Andreas Bamber, Gudrun Ensslin and Joe-Carl Raspe.

The Amsterdam kidnaping followed a warning by West German Justice Minister Hans-Jochen Vogel that the prison deaths, which officials termed suicides, were not "acts of resignation" but a sign that "further attacks are looming."

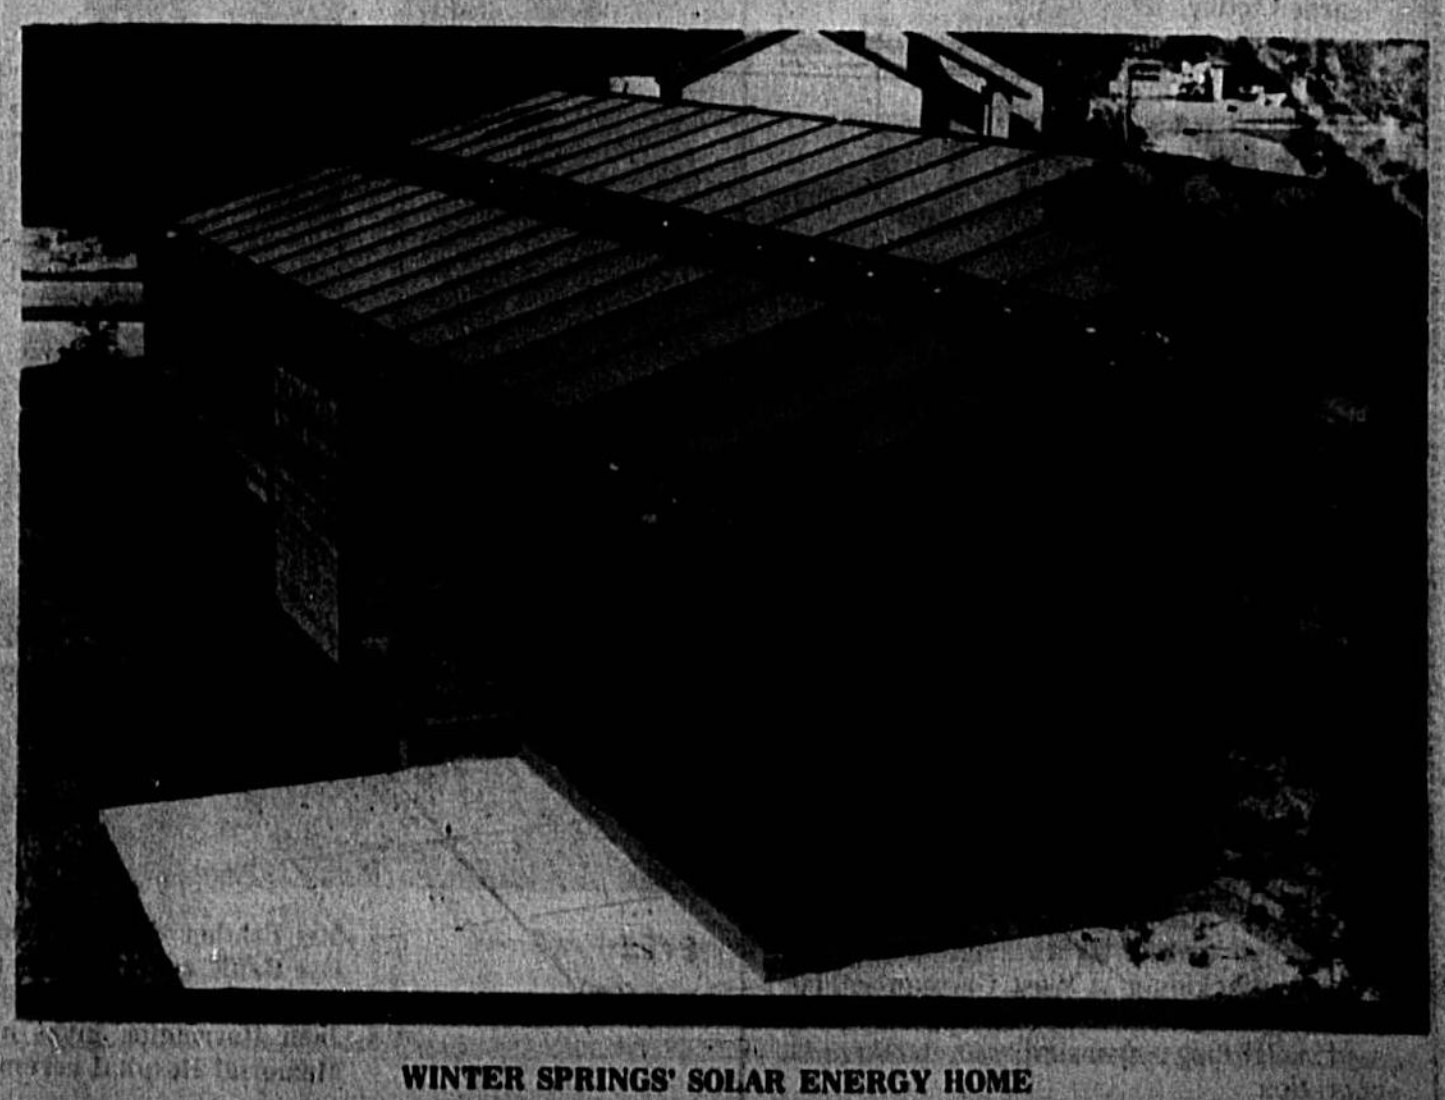

A German-speaking man called the Amsterdam newspaper Het Parool and told a switchboard operator: "We are the Red Army Faction. We have Caransa. You will hear from us."

Dutch police are holding a member of the Red Army Faction, Kunt Folkerts, 25, on murder charges. He was arrested following a Sept. 23 shootout at Utrecht in which a policeman was killed and is also wanted for terrorist activities in West Germany.

Caransa has extensive properties in Holland, about half of them in the hotel and catering industry. He also sits on the boards of a number of companies.

The businessman is married and has one grown daughter. During World War II Caransa spent 13 weeks in a Nazi camp in Holland with other Jews awaiting deportation to concentration camps in Germany, but he was never sent. Friends say he makes regular donations to Jewish organizations.

The group claiming responsibility for today's kidnaping is the same group that had kidnaped and later killed West German industrialist and former SS trooper Hans-Martin Schleyer.
