More Army troops join firefight

Another battalion of regular Army troops joined the war on wildfires raging over a fifth of Yellowstone National Park, while loggers in the Pacific Northwest were struggling to save valuable timber from a series of fires.

One thousand reinforcements from Fort Lewis, Wash., arrived Sunday in Yellowstone, swelling the firefighting force to 8,400, but fire bosses were still fearful that two huge blazes near the closed South Entrance would merge.

In the drought-racked Pacific Northwest, loggers joined professional crews to fight a series of lightning-caused fires that are ravaging tens of thousands of acres of commercial timber.

Gulf peace talks hit snag

GENEVA — U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar directed his advisers to meet with technical experts from Iraq and Iran today in an attempt to get stalled peace talks back on track after encountering "unexpected difficulties" over disputed control of a vital waterway.

Foreign ministers of the two nations would be called in as necessary, U.N. officials said. The impasse, according to a U.N. spokesman, has prompted Perez de Cuellar to predict the negotiations would stretch out "for a long time."

Emmy winners announced

PASADENA, Calif. — Even though "thirtysomething," the sometimes irritating yuppie show, was named outstanding drama series at the 40th Annual Primetime Emmy Awards, the show's producers were a little dejected.

"We've had an enormously warm reaction all year," said co-executive producer Marshall Herskovitz after the show nabbed the top award Sunday, "but there are still an awful lot of people who can't stand it."

"When you presume to tell the truth about your life and the lives of others you know, people might take umbrage if it doesn't correlate with their truth," Herskovitz said.

Sanford man shot

Police take victim's wife into custody

By WAYNE NIZE
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — A 24-year-old city employee was shot this morning during a domestic dispute and police have arrested his estranged wife in connection with the incident.

Police have arrested Vincenza Yolanda Jordan, 31, of 303 Holly Ave., on complaints of aggravated battery and use of a firearm to commit a felony. She is being held at the Seminole County Jail on $2,000 bond.

According to police reports, Kenneth L. Jordan, 24, of an unknown address in Sanford, drove to his wife's residence at 7 a.m. today.

Police Chief Steven Harriett said apparently a domestic dispute resulted and Jordan was shot in the stomach by his wife with a 22-caliber revolver.

Jordan was able to flee the scene of the shooting on foot before collapsing near the corner of Second Street and Holly Avenue.

Police officer Ken Kaiser found Jordan on the ground near the intersection at 7:04 a.m. with a gunshot wound to the upper abdomen. Jordan told police at the scene that his wife had shot him.

Vincenza Jordan later admitted to police that she shot her husband, according to Harriett.

Fire and rescue personnel responded to the scene to provide Jordan with emergency medical treatment and he was transported to Central Florida Regional Hospital, where he remains in critical condition.

According to city officials, Jordan has worked as a crewman in the city's utility department since 1983.

Rescue personnel administer aid to shooting victim Kenneth L. Jordan.

Victim's wife, Vincenza, was arrested.

The old oak tree in front of Sanford Middle School is looked upon as a beloved part of the town's history.

Storm leaves part of town's history damaged

By J. MARK BARFIELD

SANFORD — When workers found the remains of a horseshoe inside the old oak tree in front of Sanford Middle School, they uncovered a reminder of the school's and the city's past. And now those crews are fighting to save the old tree, a solid witness to the years of change both in the school and the city, because the storm that passed through the city Saturday afternoon split the oak.

Roger Gardner, assistant principal of the school, said the Forestry Service has been called to determine if the tree can be saved.

"It's very close to the hearts of the people here at the school and the people of Sanford," Gardner said. "We're doing everything we can to save it."

Lotto payoff climbs to near-record total

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Florida's 4-month-old Lotto game starts this week with a $50 million prize that could set an all-time mark for the largest prize awarded anywhere in a lottery game.

"There were times Saturday when we were doing $1 million an hour," Lottery Secretary Rebecca Paul said Sunday after announcing no one had picked the six numbers needed to claim last week's $32 million prize.

The $50 million was only an estimate, and the prize could be much higher, Paul said.

"We were all huddled over the computers in the wee hours of the morning (Sunday), so we decided on $50 million and we'll see where we'll go," she said.

This week marks the fourth week the Lotto prize, which began Aug. 7 as a $6 million jackpot, has been "rolled over."

The largest jackpot awarded since the Lotto game began in the first week of May was $26 million and that was at the end of the first week in August.

Until that point, a $14 million jackpot awarded at the end of May was the largest prize won in Florida.

Paul said sales last week totaled more than $31 million for the week, breaking the old mark of $26 million set earlier this month.

"We did $10.5 million in sales Saturday," she said, adding she expected sales to continue climbing this week as the prize money inched near the all-time record for a lottery jackpot.

In June, California had two winners for a $51.4 million jackpot. Paul said that record could be broken this week, but she added

Lottery retailers want bigger profits

By ROCKY SCOTT
United Press International
TALLAHASSEE — State Lottery Secretary Rebecca Paul says there is no way right now her department can give a bigger share of lottery profits to ticket vendors who say they are losing money by handling the games.

By law, 50 percent of the money must go to prizes, 35 percent to education and 15 percent — including the retailers' 5 percent profit — to administrative costs.

Paul said she understands the vendors' frustrations, but adds surveys have shown "retailers who sell a lot of tickets certainly make money."

she can do about the percentage paid the retailers because of the state law.

ST. PETERSBURG — Florida Power Co. president Allen J. Keeler Jr. says his company is going to add another power production facility to its network, but there is no way the plant will use nuclear fuel.

Storm fizzles out on the Carolina coast

United Press International

CHARLESTON, S.C. — Short-lived tropical storm Chris stamped into the Carolinas Sunday, unleashing heavy rains and 11 tornadoes that killed a child and destroyed 30 mobile homes, before it fizzled into a tropical depression.

Forecasters earlier predicted Chris would strike the Carolina coast, bringing heavy rain and flooding to the beaches as it turned north toward the unprotected Outer Banks.

But once Chris got to historic old Charleston, the storm turned inward and produced 11 tornadoes, the National Weather Service said. In the process it ran out of steam, and by 6 p.m. EDT was downgraded to a tropical depression.

Chris was already dying by the time it hit the South Carolina midlands, where it unleashed the worst of its fury shortly before 5 p.m. in the form of a tornado that destroyed 30 mobile homes and damaged 20 more near Manning.

Authorities said a child was killed and an adult suffered a broken back when one of the mobile homes blew apart in a twister that cut a swath a quarter of a mile wide and half a mile long.

"We had not received a tornado warning of anything," said Emilee Hemingway, Clarendon County civil defense director. "It was raining real hard and there was a real heavy wind, and all of a sudden things went wild."

"When I went out to the scene it was a tremendous mess," she said. "The trailers were all over the highway. You couldn't count them — it was just one big mess. I've never seen such total destruction."

In other storm activity, two tornadoes were reported near Statesville, N.C., at 3:50 p.m. One of them picked up a tractor-trailer truck and hurled it from Interstate 77 into a sheet metal building, destroying 75 percent of the building.

At 3:55 p.m. Catawba County, N.C., officials reported a tornado near the town of Maiden. Trees were uprooted and shingles torn from a building. At 4 p.m. a twister tore a barn apart near the intersection of Interstates 77 and 40 in Iredell County, N.C.

Another twister was spotted at 4:01 p.m. just east of Newton, N.C., and three funnel clouds were reported a short time later just south of Love Valley, in Alexander County, N.C.

At 4:37 p.m. another tornado was seen near the town of Hiddenite, N.C., and at 5:30 p.m. a tornado reportedly damaged a house 5 miles north of Fayetteville, N.C., off U.S. highway 401.

Chris had paid a mild visit when it came ashore earlier in the day at historic old Charleston.

"It's not a violent storm at all. I've seen a lot worse," said Christopher Blake, manager of the George Lockwood Municipal Marina.

"It just popped up this morning. I think it was real sneaky."

Because no one expected it, all it needed was more wind to come and it could have been very, very dangerous."

Charleston police reported no injuries or property damage when the storm blew through. Chris, the third tropical storm of the season, was the first to hit the Carolinas.

"Small trees are falling down, but we don't expect too much damage," said police dispatcher John Jenkins.

Ron Jones, of the National Weather Service, described Chris as a "minimal intensity storm," but forecasters said it would dump 3 to 5 inches of rain on an area that reached from Savannah, Ga., to Cape Hatteras, N.C. About 3 inches of rain fell in Columbia, S.C.

Storm tides 2 to 3 feet above the abnormally high lunar tides were expected to cause coastal flooding and beach erosion.

The tides Monday at 9:30 a.m. and 9:45 p.m. were forecast to be a foot higher than the highest tides recorded this month.

"With winds and tropical weather then compared to the tides, its going to create significant beach erosion and some flooding," said Jones.

Small craft were advised to remain in port from Brunswick, Ga., to Virginia Beach, Va., until the winds and seas subsided.

At Cape Hatteras Park Service rangers warned the estimated 450 campers in tents and trailers from Oregon Inlet to Frisco to Ocracoke, said ranger Hugo Desch at the Cape Hatteras National Seashore.

Off Ocracoke Island, boaters were out fishing Sunday under a light breeze and sunny skies but were taking precautions.

Student DUIs same as in past years

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — The percent of students in Florida's university system drinking alcoholic beverages has decreased slightly, but the percent of those driving drunk has remained about the same, a researcher said today.

Elizabeth Broughton, director of the Campus Alcohol and Drug Prevention Project, said student drinking systemwide decreased from 76 percent of those enrolled in 1986 to 74 percent last year and 73 percent this year.

Those who admitted to driving drunk on at least five occasions accounted for 10 percent of the system's students in 1986 and 1987 but dropped to 9 percent this year, she said.

The statistics were based on a survey of 1 percent of the students enrolled at each of the universities.

The schools are Florida State in Tallahassee, Florida in Gainesville, South Florida in Tampa, West Florida in Pensacola, Central Florida in Orlando, North Florida in Jacksonville, Florida Atlantic in Boca Raton, Florida International in Miami and Florida Agricultural and Mechanical in Tallahassee.

The 11-year-old project operates at all campuses to discourage substance abuse with a $150,000 annual budget from the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services.

Water, water, please go away

"Water, water, everywhere and oh the boards did shrink. Water, water, everywhere and...."

The Ancient Mariner's lament may well be appropriate for Downtown Sanford. It's as if Samuel Coleridge was a merchant contending with the abundance of water plaguing his business.

The city has embarked on a "quick fix" even as officials plan long term remedies. It is a challenge most cities in Florida either have, or will face as growth and wall-to-wall concrete mark the downtown areas. With no sandy soil to absorb the rain, curbs and gutters often contend with more rainwater than is possible to handle.

Rainfall this summer has been slightly above average. The official recordings belie the reality of torrential rains in scattered areas, such as the eight inches experienced in Sanford last month as recorded at the sewer plant. Daily rainfall throughout August, in varying amounts, has focused attention on the problem.

The challenge for the city, and the merchants, in seeking a long term solution is the determinant of the level of tolerance of unusual rainfall. It will be cost prohibitive to plan for, and build to handle, the eight to 10 inch rains which will come on occasion. One city in Florida experienced 22 inches of rain within a 24-hour period in 1960, and it was not during Hurricane Donna. No storm drainage system can realistically be built to accommodate that amount of water. Greenbelt areas have been designed into a few downtown redevelopment programs which do

Amid this sea of growth, downtown merchants will find their albatross to be continued threat of torrential rains for which there will be no solution. However, the fact that the problem is known and solutions sought should be a source of consolation for these merchants and business people. Storm drainage must be provided as a normal function of government but precautions against the extraordinary will probably remain the responsibility of the commercial interests. The city government of Sanford is apparently going to do its part.

Last step remains

Clerk of the Circuit Court David Berrien has made public his report on the credit card scheme in his office. His auditors have reported that on the basis of their audit there was no misuse of the credit cards issued by two banks to Mr. Berrien and his two top assistants.

County Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff still calls for an audit by the county's firm of CPAs, a move resisted by Mr. Berrien.

Since the cards were used personally by the trio, and all balances have been cleared, the assumption of no misuse in charges could have been made from the outset. Apparently, only Mr. Kirchhoff has a grasp of the broad sense of the word misuse. In this case, it's the fact that there was use in the first place.

The credit of the office was used in securing the lines of credit for each of the six cards to be used for personal purposes. If the balances had not been paid by the individuals, the office would have paid. Such card issuance was an employee benefit beyond the scope of what is routinely intended for the positions in that office, or intended for any office in government. Mr. Berrien bills the office by virtue of election, but the office itself is constitutionally established and belongs to no single individual. It is an elective office.

Mr. Berrien has admitted that he used poor judgement in establishing the accounts. Why not use good judgement now and accede to the demands of Mr. Kirchhoff?

Why the press keeps pressing Quayle

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — GOP presidential candidate George Bush described the attention focused on Dan Quayle after he selected the Indiana senator as his running mate as a media "feeding frenzy."

To the public, which saw reporters clamoring to grill Quayle on his 19-year-old military record and his connection with an 8-year-old Washington sex scandal, it may indeed have seemed the press was becoming over-stimulated by the prospect of finding old dirt under the GOP rug.

But there are some reasons for what happened when Bush tapped Quayle to run for vice president. The public can judge for itself if they were sufficient.

First, the circumstances that Bush himself arranged guaranteed there would be a bit of publicity about the vice presidential candidate.

The press had many months to dig into the backgrounds of both presidential candidates, and anything fishy almost surely comes out before the convention. The same would be true of well-known figures such as Sen. Bob Dole and Rep. Jack Kemp who had undergone intense scrutiny when they ran for president and were known quantities when they went on Bush's list of potential running mates.

But not much attention had been paid to Quayle. When he got the nomination, a few reporters vaguely recalled the 1979 Paula Parkinson episode. Quick checks indicated that Quayle had exited the scene when he got the picture at the Florida golfing resort where the hanky-panky was going on, and many reporters put it aside.

Someone, perhaps a reporter in the same age group during the Vietnam War, spotted the biography item about Quayle's National Guard service and started checking further.

Then came Quayle's first news conference. He simply shut off all inquiry into the Parkinson matter and gave vague answers to questions about his military record. Reporters' curiosity in both cases were whetted rather than satisfied by the candidate's responses.

Reporters' curiosity in both cases were whetted rather than satisfied.

Why? Simply because there is a history of skeletons in the closets of vice presidential candidates going all the way back to Richard Nixon's slush fund in 1960.

Tom Eagleton's psychiatric treatments, Spiro Agnew's taxes and payoffs and Geraldine Ferraro's family finances all added warning lights. Reporters and editors do not want to be caught napping when such a story breaks.

One more question might be fairly asked here. Why all the attention to Quayle's background and so little to Lloyd Bentsen's ill-starred effort to raise campaign funds by, in effect, charging lobbyists thousands of dollars to have breakfast with him?

Two answers. First, the "breakfast club" episode was widely recounted when Michael Dukakis selected Bentsen and, in fact, still is being recalled by Republican campaign orators.

Second, as with Quayle and Parkinson, reporters who checked it out initially came to at least the tentative conclusion that there was nothing further to report on the story after Bentsen canceled the money-raising scheme and returned the funds.

Women date, not vote, cute

NEW ORLEANS—The skeptics said it couldn't be done. Nothing could close the gender gap that stretches like a formidable canyon between George Bush and the White House. There it is: 15 points wide, 20 points deep.

But this didn't discourage the dedicated researchers at the Gender Gap Project. The very finest minds of the Republican Party gathered in their demographics war room to develop a plan that would win over the hearts, minds and votes of American women.

Would the child-care program do it? Would they have to show more sensitivity to the stress of women who spend weekends in the laundry room instead of on the golf course? Would they have to do more than sprinkle "family" through their speeches and photo opportunities? Might they have to gasp-give up their jock-talk for the duration of the campaign?

Under this intense pressure, they came up with a concept so simple, so pristine, so elegant in its understanding of the female psyche that it's almost scary. Ladies and women, the secret weapon of the Republican Party has been unveiled, the one thing designed to make the fair sex swoon in the voting booth: THE PRETTY FACE!

Danny Quayle, young and handsome, conservative and cute, right-winged and blue-eyed. He has been presented as the new co-anchor of the Republican Party.

From Jerry Falwell to campaign manager Jim Baker, there was more than intimation that the Indiana baby boomer was chosen for his ability to attract women. Of all the candidates for the post, he alone ran equally well with women in his home state. If national politics is now Broadcast News, Danny Quayle was their William Hurt. Hire him and watch women change channels.

In describing the vice presidential choice, Sen. John McCain of Arizona, used the word "attractive" some seven times in one paragraph. "I can't believe," he said, "a guy that handsome wouldn't be attractive in some respect." At least to women. Baker seconded the thought with a more cryptic comment. "Regardless of where he is on the issues, he does very well with women."

Even the more enlightened or at least cautious conservatives here substituted words like "telegenic," and phrases like "fresh face." They carefully suggested that women in particular might be sensitive to the "human" side of the man.

Now I don't want to suggest that Danny Quayle is an airhead. Yes, Vanna, cute men can also suffer the slights of not being taken seriously. Deborah Steelman, the domestic policy adviser of the Bush campaign, recognizes that. "If he makes a big mistake, his looks will turn on him and he'll never be able to get rid of the lightweight image."

Quayle calls this his "stigma." He lamented and fostered the "fact" that he looks like Robert Redford. George Bush allegedly chose him for his youth, not his looks. Together, they appear less like a hunting magazine, Bush and Quayle, than like a corporation, Bush and Son.

But there is something profoundly silly in the idea being bandied about that women flock to the best-looker. They may date cute, but they don't necessarily vote cute. Even in 1960, more women voted for Richard Nixon than John Kennedy.

Moreover, this gap is, as the pollsters like to say, issue-driven. Quayle the young and handsome is on the other side of most issues. He did file a child-care bill in the Senate and helped create a job-training bill. But he is opposed to parental leave, supported cuts in Social Security cost-of-living allowances, voted against the plant-closing bill and the civil-rights restoration act. As for standard women's rights issues, he is anti-ERA and anti-abortion. He is also a major hawk, while most women tend toward dovishness.

In polls and focus groups, women repeatedly express the feeling that Bush is too removed to understand their daily lives. Linda Dival, the Republican pollster, thinks that Quayle will appeal to them as warm and a listener. Indeed, Quayle the father, with three children and a wife who practiced law, may be closer to their lives. But Quayle, the hundreds-of-millionaire, isn't sweating the mortgage.

So the question for the Gender Gap Project is: Will women drop their issues like a parasol to run off with Danny because he's adorable? Don't count on it.

The Pretty Face Factor doesn't sound like a campaign strategy at all. It sounds like a chapter from "Smart Women, Foolish Choices." And isn't this how the Republicans got in trouble with women in the first place?

Probes begin on spending

WASHINGTON — A political guerrilla war is being waged behind the scenes between presidential nominees George Bush and Michael Dukakis, and the weapon is money. Each side has raised damning questions about whether the other is juggling campaign funds to get more bang for the buck, and in Bush's case, the buck may belong to the taxpayers.

The latest salvo was an official request made Aug. 8 to the White House. A congressional subcommittee asked a White House official to provide information about every trip Bush has made since April, and the implication is that Bush may have dipped into his White House budget to pay the bills.

The White House could be tempted to ignore this request, except that it comes officially from the chairman of the House Subcommittee on Treasury, Postal Service and General Government, Rep. Edward R. Roybal, D-Calif. That subcommittee oversees the vice presidential budgets.

The letter was intended to be kept quiet, but we have seen a copy. It begins: "It has come to the attention of this subcommittee that Vice President George Bush has made a number of trips during the past few months that may have involved the expenditure of appropriated funds, even though they were in whole or in part for political purposes." Appropriated funds are those distributed by Congress for the operation of government. In this case, the funds in question are those given to Bush to run the office of vice president.

By raising the issue, the Democrats are trying to rattle the Bush campaign. One top Bush official called it "a damned partisan fishing expedition." He added that it was nothing more than a "diversionary tactic" to get the Republicans off Sen. Lloyd Bentsen's back.

Several weeks ago, Republicans complained to the Federal Election Commission (FEC) that Bentsen, who is running both a senate and vice presidential campaign, could easily get away with "misuse" of the funds for both campaigns.

Bentsen has raised more than $6 million for his senate campaign in Texas this year — and Texas is a key electoral state. The Republicans believe the Democrats will buy expensive television ads and mount other activities in Texas using Bentsen's senate money. The ads would promote Bentsen's senate campaign, but the message would be to sell Bentsen as Bentsen. Meanwhile, Bush will have to spend several million dollars from his presidential war chest on Texas alone.

Not to be outmaneuvered, the Democrats are scrutinizing Bush's books, and if Roybal's committee has its facts straight, they may have found a weak spot. Roybal's letter to the White House points out that in early August, Bush's campaign had spent nearly all of the money allowed under the law for a candidate who did not yet have the nomination. So Roybal noted that "questions arise" about whether Bush used his vice presidential budget.

Each candidate was allowed to spend just over $23 million before his convention. According to the latest reports of the FEC, Bush had spent $22.1 million by June 30, six weeks before his nominating night, which explains why the vice president went fishing during the Democratic Convention. Dukakis had spent $20.7 million by June 30 with only two weeks to go until his convention.

July new house sales drop

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Sales of new single-family homes dropped 4.7 percent in July as higher mortgage rates pushed down sales in all regions of the United States except the West, the Commerce Department reported Monday.

Sales of new one-family houses in July were at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 686,000, 4.7 percent below the revised June rate of 720,000, the department's Census Bureau said.

The drop was a little better than analysts' expectations and follows a rise of 0.6 percent from May to June, the bureau said.

Sales of houses in the Northeast dropped 18.4 percent in July to the lowest rate since December, the report said.

In the Midwest house sales dropped 5.5 percent and in the South sales dropped 4.9 percent, the bureau said.

In the West sales rose 2.6 percent, the bureau said.

Before adjustments for seasonal variations, an estimated 55,000 new houses were sold nationwide in July at a median sales price of $123,500, meaning half the houses sold cost more than that and half cost less, the bureau said.

The average sales price in July was $146,000, the bureau said.

At the end of July, 366,000 new houses were still for sale, a 6.6 months' supply after seasonal adjustments, the bureau said.

Bentsen would be 'trusted adviser'

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Lloyd Bentsen, playing down differences with his running mate over the Nicaraguan rebels, said if elected he would be an independently minded adviser to Michael Dukakis who told him to "vote your convictions."

Bentsen, the Democratic vice presidential nominee and a senator from Texas, skirted questions Sunday about Dukakis's assertion that it was "illegal" for the United States to support the rebels fighting Nicaragua's leftist government.

Appearing on NBC's "Meet the Press," Bentsen noted efforts of congressional Democrats to put together a bipartisan coalition that would have warned the Sandinista government in Nicaragua to "behave."

If the Sandinistas did not heed a warning to take part in a peace process and to stop accepting arms from the Soviet Union, "then at that time ... I would vote for military aid to the Contras," Bentsen said. "You bet."

But Bentsen, who has been a supporter of aid to the Contra rebels, tried to downplay his ideological differences with Democratic presidential nominee Dukakis — already a campaign issue raised by the Republicans — saying he would act as a "trusted adviser."

"One of those things I said to Governor Dukakis, and he totally agreed ... I've been calling them as I see them for 18 years almost ... in the United States Senate and I'm going to continue to do that," Bentsen said.

Embedded in a cavity inside the junction of the trunk and a large limb that fell over when the storm passed by was the rusted remains of a horseshoe, imbedded in the tree for 90 years. The tree predates the school, built in 1927.

According to Alex R. Johnson, a teacher at the school from 1928 to 1946, the horseshoe was thrown by a horse belonging to Seth French — the namesake of French Avenue — in about 1898 and French's daughter hung it in a notch of the tree and never retrieved it.

In 1938, when the school's Future Farmer's club performed tree surgery on the oak — already decades old — they uncovered the horseshoe surrounded by solid wood and replaced it when they sealed the rotted cavities.

Johnson said the boys also placed a glass jar, bearing their names, in the top of a large cavity in the tree.

Gardner said the crews haven't uncovered the jar yet.

Gang violence kills six in Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES — Six people were killed and 11 wounded in a flurry of gang shootings during the weekend before a second "peace summit" between leaders of rival gangs.

A special 40-member anti-gang task force was deployed Sunday night in the gang-infested Harbor area of the city, and a group of South Central Los Angeles clergy said about 50 gang leaders were to meet today at an undisclosed location to seek an end to the seemingly endless violence that claimed a record 387 lives in 1987 and about 200 so far this year.

The first "peace summit" last month brought together a handful of members of factions of the two major black gangs — the Bloods and the Crips — for three days of talks that produced calls for jobs for gang members, but no truce.

Authorities say Los Angeles County is the gang capital of the nation with an estimated 800 gangs with about 70,000 members. Much of the recent violence is blamed on battles over the lucrative crack cocaine trade. Several of the gang factions have spread their crack trade and its attendant violence to other cities, with Portland, Ore., the most recent target.

"We're coming together with the brothers," said the Rev. Charles Mims, of the Tabernacle of Faith Baptist Church in Watts, one of the organizers of the summit. "This isn't a 'we-vs.-them' thing. This is a 'we' thing."

Two drive-by shootings that killed three people in the Harbor area prompted police to assemble a special 40-member task force to beef up regular anti-gang patrols Sunday night.

Nurses agree to contract, end strike

SAN FRANCISCO — Registered nurses say the monthlong strike that won them a 21 percent raise and an increased voice in how they are assigned will send a message to hospitals nationwide to take the profession seriously.

About half the 2,200 strikers voted by a 77-23 ratio Sunday to accept a 21 percent pay boost over 34 months, the California Nurses Association said. They will end a walkout that started Aug. 2 by returning to work Wednesday.

A nearly identical offer of 20 percent over 36 months was rejected last week by a 2-1 ratio, but the new pact has more of the additional money, up front.

One union nurse said a nationwide shortage of 300,000 nurses gave the strikers additional clout in pressing their demands for improved staffing procedures, better weekend pay and special pay boosts for veteran nurses.

"We wanted to set a precedent and set a national pace for salary increases, economic incentives to keep nurses in nursing and nurse input on staffing — and we did it," CNA member Mary Schieb of Mount Zion Hospital said.

"Our strike is sending a message to other hospitals as well: It is time to take nurses seriously," Schieb said. "The hospital industry must work with us, not against us, to improve the profession and to improve patient care."

Union officials said the new contract provides for procedures ensuring there are enough nurses on each shift to provide quality patient care, including nurse committees that review staffing.

Inmate gets away 'clean'

CHICAGO — Authorities widened their search for a suspect in a murder who gave new meaning to the term "clean escape" when he broke out of Cook County Jail wielding a gun fashioned from a bar of soap.

In an escape similar to a famous breakout by gangster John Dillinger 54 years ago, Victor Thomas, 27, tricked a guard into thinking he was armed, stole the guard's uniform, and walked out of the jail Friday.

In 1934 Dillinger used a wooden gun colored with shoe polish to make his legendary break from a jail in Crown Point, Ind.

Thomas, also known as Vincent Bruce, is a suspect in three slayings in California and was being held at the county jail on two Chicago-area armed robbery charges.

A guard had been accompanying Thomas to the Cermak Hospital, adjacent to the jail, at about 6 p.m. Friday when Thomas pulled what looked like a .25 caliber semi-automatic pistol, said police Sgt. Barbara Matula. Thomas was to have been treated for a self-inflicted puncture wound.

Thomas forced the guard into a bathroom with another inmate, ordered the jailer to disrobe and tied him up.

Jetliner skids to halt on runway

CHICAGO — A TWA jetliner carrying 68 people skidded to a halt on its belly at O'Hare International Airport in a harrowing emergency landing the plane was forced to make because its landing gear would not go down.

Federal Aviation Administration officials said the plane had mechanical problems but did not detail the problems.

Alan Pollock, a spokesman for the National Transportation Safety Board, agreed with the FAA.

"The preliminary indications are that it was some sort of mechanical failure," Pollock said, adding it was too early to pinpoint the problem.

Only seven minor injuries were reported Saturday when TWA Flight 254 from St. Louis with 68 people aboard landed on its belly at O'Hare Airport, authorities said.

The Boeing 727 skidded to a halt on a foam-covered runway shortly before 5 p.m. and the 62 passengers and six crew members quickly exited the damaged craft by its inflatable emergency slides.

"We knew for an hour there was no landing gear," said Rosie Sluker, 32, who was traveling with her 10-month-old daughter, Dominique.

"Men were crying. It was the worst thing I've experienced in my life."

Seven people were treated and released from four area hospitals, including 102-year-old Bertha Page, described by hospital officials as "shaken up" by the ordeal.

Animal rights advocacy joins mainstream

WASHINGTON — Long considered a part of special interests outside the American mainstream, animal rights advocacy has become a legitimate grass roots movement in the nation, according to a report by the Council on Economic Priorities.

According to the council, a nonprofit research organization that focuses on corporate responsibility issues, an increasing number of major U.S. corporations are reducing laboratory animal testing or putting their research money into alternative forms of testing.

"Corporations are indeed responding to the demands of the animal rights movement as the movement becomes more mainstream," said Myra Alperson, CEP project director in corporate responsibility and author of the report, "Animal Rights in the 1980s: More Bark, More Bite."

The use of animals in testing has been a mainstay of not only medical research but for other commercial testing of products ranging from new lipsticks to bathroom cleaners and other household goods.

But challenges — with differing degrees of militancy — are beginning to be raised against the conventional use of animals. The CEP report said as many as 50,000 people in all 50 states picketed locations last year during observances of World Laboratory Animal Liberation Week.

1988 Emmys: Yuppies and nostalgia

United Press International

PASADENA, Calif. — Even though "thirtysomething," the sometimes irritating yuppie show, was named outstanding drama series at the 40th Annual Primetime Emmy Awards, the show's producers were a little defensive.

"We've had an enormously warm reaction all year," said co-executive producer Marshall Herskovitz after the show nabbed the top award Sunday, "but there are still an awful lot of people who can't stand it."

"When you presume to tell the truth about your life and the lives of others you know, people might take umbrage if it doesn't correlate with their truth," Herskovitz said.

"It cuts a little quicker to the bone than most television archetypes we've known," said Patricia Wettig, who appears on the ABC show and won in the supporting actress-drama category.

Edward Zwick, the other co-executive producer of "thirtysomething," said if there were an "award for the most annoying show on television, we'd win that one too."

There was a trace of uneasiness, too, in Alley Mills of ABC's gently nostalgic "The Wonder Years," named best comedy series, who said, "I smell a 'good' much more than I smell a 'hit.'"

Richard Kiley, named best actor in a drama series for the canceled "A Year in the Life," was backstage after the Emmy show. "I think it's a myopic thing to take a show that is a low-key show and only give it one year."

But if he was bitter toward NBC for canceling the show, he was happy about his Emmy.

"I'm basically a stage actor," he said. "I lost five pounds a night doing 'Man of La Mancha' and winning a Tony was vindication. ('A Year in the Life') was such fun that I really don't think I've earned it, but I'm delighted."

The winner for best actress in a comedy series, Bea Arthur of NBC's "The Golden Girls," was quick to praise her fellow actors, including Betty White and Rue McClanahan, who also were nominated in the category. "We're really a group," she said. "I've never worked with a more giving, professional adept and airtight group. There's not a dud in the rowd. Another "Golden Girl," three-time nominee Estelle Getty, who plays Arthur's mother on the show, picked up her first Emmy, for outstanding actress in a comedy series.

Three of this year's Emmy winners have enough statues to start collections. Tyne Daly of "Cagney & Lacey," who was this year's outstanding actress in a drama series but did not attend the ceremony, also won in 1983, 1984 and 1985. Her co-star on the show, Sharon Gless, had won in 1986 and 1987.

Michael J. Fox of "Family Ties" won his third consecutive Emmy as outstanding actor in a comedy series.

Fox interjected a little political humor into the proceedings when he told the audience that the coming season would be the last for "Family Ties" and the producers were baffled about where to go with his character the young, conservative, totally inexperienced Alex Keaton.

Keaton suggested they run Alex for vice president, adding, "Actually I'd like to thank Dan Quayle for showing that Alex Keaton really can exist."

The other big winner was John Larroquette of "Night Court," who won an outstanding supporting actor for the fourth consecutive year and said after the show: "It's a bit of a shock this year, because you think, 'Enough already, send the guy home.'"

One of the most popular choices was Larry Drake, who plays retarded office worker Benny Stulwitz on NBC's "L.A. Law." Drake drew enthusiastic applause when it was announced he won for supporting actor-drama, and he said after the show:

"I got a letter from a disabled kid in Chicago who says he wanted to be Benny. Now he has something to shoot for. But you have to be a person before you are a role model. I'm never entirely comfortable with that idea."

In the three-network Emmy competition, it was neck-and-neck between NBC and ABC for televised awards, with NBC winding up with 11, ABC with 10 and CBS with five. Fox Broadcasting, which aired the show for the second year of a three-year contract, didn't win any statuettes.

Man rescued when he ran into KKK rally

United Press International

CHICAGO — Police swarmed to the rescue Sunday of a black man wearing headphones who wandered by accident into a Ku Klux Klan rally in Marquette Park, and two of the hundreds of Klan supporters were arrested during scuffles with police and reporters.

The Klan rally overlapped with a "Dream Day" commemoration attended by about 50 people on the opposite end of the park in honor of the 25th anniversary of Martin Luther King Jr.'s "I Have a Dream" speech in Washington.

There were no confrontations between the two groups at the Southwest Side park, where King was struck in the head by a brick in 1966 while leading a march in support of open housing.

The unidentified black man in his 20s walked through the southern tip of the park shortly after the Klan rally began at 2 p.m. A mob of 500 — consisting mostly of youths, skinheads and Klan supporters — hurled rocks, bottles and racial slurs at the man and chased him, a reporter at the scene said.

As the mob gained ground on the man, a group of 20 police officers rushed to the center of the crowd and pulled him away.

WORLD BRIEFS

Jet collision kills 36 in Germany

RAMSTEIN AIR BASE, West Germany — Several West German groups had objected to an annual air show at the U.S. Ramstein Air Base, where the fiery collision of three Italian jets over a crowded field left at least 36 people dead and more than 400 injured.

As 300,000 spectators watched, one of the planes from the Italian aerobatic team alighted on the ground in a huge fireball and plowed through a crowd about 200 yards from a VIP stand. Several families had been picnicking in the area, and many of the dead were children, police said.

U.S. and West German authorities gave conflicting casualty tolls early today.

A spokesman for the Interior Ministry of Rhineland-Palatinate state said 36 people were confirmed dead and at least 413 were injured. Of the 413 injured, 341 remained hospitalized early today, 60 of them in serious condition, he said.

An Air Force spokesman at Ramstein said early today that 40 people were confirmed killed in the disaster and 200 injured.

It was unknown if there any American casualties, and authorities were having difficulty identifying the dead because some were burned beyond recognition and others were decapitated.

Suspected Israeli collaborator killed

JERUSALEM — Palestinians killed a suspected Israeli collaborator in the occupied West Bank in the second such incident in a week, and police shut down two Arab groups in Jerusalem, including one that allegedly funneled PLO money to the territories.

An Israeli settler opened fire on a group of Palestinians after his car was stoned Sunday, wounding one man in the back and another in the leg, Palestinian sources said.

More than 150,000 people were confined to their homes Sunday by curfews or partial curfews imposed on Nablus, the West Bank's largest city, and seven other towns and U.N.-run refugee camps in the West Bank and Gaza. Soldiers shot and wounded at least one Palestinian in scattered violence, Palestinian sources said.

The body of a 30-year-old Arab man was found tied to an electric pole Sunday in the old city of Hebron, 20 miles south of Jerusalem, Palestinian sources said he was the second suspected Israeli collaborator killed in the Hebron area in a week.

Violence rocks Northern Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — IRA guerrillas staged a coordinated blitz of bomb and gun attacks across the province and their supporters rioted for two days to protest the extradition of a convicted IRA member from the Irish Republic.

At least 31 people on both sides of the border were injured in the weekend of violence, including riots in the republic and 17 bombings in the north, but Britain — faced by an intensified Irish Republican Army campaign that has killed nine British servicemen in as many days — vowed to request seven more extraditions.

Police in Northern Ireland braced for more attacks by the outlawed IRA, which is fighting to end British rule in mostly Protestant Northern Ireland so it can be united with the Catholic Republic and a socialist state established in its place.

The British government, signaling that it would not back down in the face of the mass unrest by IRA supporters in what is shaping up as one of the IRA's bloodiest summer campaigns in years.

Submarine sinking victims buried in Peru

LIMA, Peru — The captain and three crewmen of a Peruvian submarine that collided with a Japanese fishing boat and sank in 110 feet of water were buried at ceremonies attended by naval authorities and relatives.

The bodies of three crew members are believed to be still aboard the flooded compartment of the World War II submarine.

Naval crane operators aboard barges were to renew efforts today to lift the U.S.-built Pacocha, an 1,870-ton diesel submarine, from the ocean floor 4 miles west of the port of El Callao in northwest of Lima.

Rebel attack closes Kabul airport

United Press International

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — Afghan guerrillas firing rockets carried out their most destructive attack yet on Kabul airport, killing five people and closing the facility, a Western diplomat and the Soviet Tass news agency said.

One runway was damaged in the Saturday afternoon attack and one rocket landed on the headquarters of Soviet army units stationed near the airport, wounding eight soldiers, some of the seriously, Tass said Sunday.

The attack, which Tass called "unprecedented" in intensity, was the latest in a wave of guerrilla assaults on Kabul as Soviet troops end their nearly 9-year-old occupation of Afghanistan.

"A warehouse and a petrol tanker burnt out and three planes of the (commercial) air company Ariana sustained insignificant damage," Tass said. "A total of 30 people suffered, of whom five were killed."

Both Tass and state-run Kabul radio earlier reported four people were killed and 17 others wounded, including women and children.

Tass said 127 rockets were fired from the southeast, about 15 miles from the airport, with about half of them striking the airport area.

Authorities ordered the airport closed temporarily. A diplomat said even when the facility reopens, large aircraft may not be able to take off until the runway is repaired.

The Afghan guerrillas, who are backed by the United States, China and Iran, have stepped up rocket attacks on the Afghan capital in recent weeks as Soviet troops withdraw from Afghanistan. Official Soviet and Afghan media claim scores of civilians have been killed.

The Western diplomat generally confirmed the main points of the Tass report, except for the number of the rockets launched. The diplomat said more than 20 rockets were fired in a two-hour assault, which began at 3 p.m.

Saturday.

The diplomat, who requested anonymity, said three of the missiles struck between the main runways, apparently damaging at least one of them.

Three more blasted the Soviet military section to the west of the main runways, from where military helicopters and SU-25 jet fighters were scrambled, the diplomat said.

The diplomat quoted airport personnel helping a shaken pilot to the medical unit as saying a Soviet AN-12 transport plane was destroyed on the ground. He said this could not be confirmed visually by diplomats, who were turned back after attempting to drive to the facility.

Report says India might consider weapons ban

United Press International

WASHINGTON — India, unwilling to accept a non-proliferation pact limited to southern Asia, might consider a nuclear weapons ban if it includes Tibet, parts of China and the Indian Ocean, says a Senate staff report.

The staff report by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee released Sunday also said India might eventually "find merit" in a proposal to place an additional nuclear facility in India and in Pakistan under either international or bilateral safeguards.

The report was written by staff member Peter Galbraith, who traveled to India and Pakistan at the direction of Chairman Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., and met with top leaders in both countries.

The report was written before the death in a plane crash of Pakistan's President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq but a news release said, "There is no indication that the new government in Pakistan intends to alter Zia's nuclear policies."

In a cover letter to Pell, Galbraith said that with the withdrawal of Soviet troops from Afghanistan and a new administration taking office in January, "the debate on an appropriate non-proliferation policy in South Asia seems likely to be renewed."

Galbraith said nuclear proliferation is not inevitable in the region, although restraining factors are "relatively weak." However, an activist U.S. policy can have a role in helping the region contain the nuclear threat.

Although India and Pakistan have sources of the fissile material for nuclear weapons and command of the technology to manufacture them, neither country has developed a "declared" nuclear weapons arsenal, the report said.

The restraint shown by the two nations, the report said, provides "some hope that regional arrangements can be constructed to keep South Asia free of nuclear weapons."

"Interim measures, including an Indo-Pakistani accord not to attack nuclear facilities and the application of non-proliferation safeguards to additional nuclear facilities may be achievable on a bilateral basis between the two countries," the report said. "A more permanent South Asia non-proliferation regime would have to involve China and perhaps the superpowers."

The report said Pakistan's response was "favorable" but India's "lukewarm."

IN BRIEF

GOLF

Reid takes World Series

AKRON, Ohio — Mike Reid may consider himself an underdog, but there is a certain amount of pit bull in him.

His definition of optimism is "to survive 11 years (on the PGA Tour) and not be sleeping in the street."

As far as meeting Tom Watson in a playoff, Reid figured "if I had to play my caddy, I would've been just as nervous. Still, it would have been easy to pack it up and say I can't go another inch. I may be an underdog but not a quitter."

Reid earned $162,000 the biggest payday of his 12-year career, holing a 2 1/2-foot par putt on the first playoff hole to edge Watson and win the rain-drenched $900,000 NEC World Series of Golf for only his second PGA Tour title.

OLYMPICS

Swimmer banned from Olympics

AUSTIN, Texas — The U.S. Olympic Committee Sunday disqualified swimmer Angel Myers from the team headed to the Seoul Olympics after she tested positive twice for use of a banned substance, officials said.

Results of the committee's drug testing program conducted at the swimming trials in Austin revealed the substance, committee member Mike Moran said.

Myers, of Americus, Ga., was considered a possible medalist in five events in the Sept. 17-Oct. 2 Games in South Korea. Myers and Janet Evans, the world record holder in three events, were to lead the U.S. women against the powerful East Germans.

Myers was to swim in the 50-, 100- and 400-meter freestyles, the 100-meter butterfly and the 800-meter medley relay.

BASEBALL

Schmidt to miss rest of season

PHILADELPHIA — Philadelphia slugger Mike Schmidt Saturday said he will not play again this season, but expects to be the Phillies third baseman in 1989.

"It's pretty well set in my mind," Schmidt said. "I won't play the rest of this year, but I am ready, willing and able to honor my contract next year."

Schmidt took himself out of an Aug. 12 game and was placed on the disabled list with a sore right shoulder. What was first thought to be bursitis may be a rotator-cuff injury, and team physician Dr. Phillip Marone Friday had said Schmidt's career might be in jeopardy.

Marone has ordered an arthrogram for Schmidt Tuesday to determine the extent of Schmidt's injury.

"In all due respect to Dr. Marone, there is an optimistic view and a pessimistic view," Schmidt said. "I don't feel as if my rotator cuff is torn. I'll have the arthrogram Tuesday."

AUTO RACING

Senna wins Belgian race

SPA-FRANCORCHAMIS, Belgium — Ayrton Senna of Brazil won the Belgian Formula One Grand Prix Sunday to virtually clinch the 1988 world championship.

It was his fourth straight victory and seventh this season. Senna won the 185-mile race in 1 hour, 28 minutes 0.549 seconds. McLaren teammate Alain Prost all but conceded the championship after finishing second in 1:28:31.019.

"I think it's over," said Prost, who has won the four races not claimed by Senna this year. "There's absolutely no doubt who's going to be world champion this year. It's too difficult to beat him. I'm not going to win four or five more races."

Senna's seventh season victory put him even with the season record shared by Prost and Jim Clark.

Thierry Boutsen of Belgium, competing in his home Grand Prix, took over third place from Michele Alboreto in the closing laps when the Italian retired, his Ferrari belching smoke.

Howell runners shine at jamboree

By DEAN SMITH
 Special to the Herald

SANFORD — Lake Howell High runners, both boys and girls, shared the spotlight this past Saturday at the 13th annual Summertime Seminole Cross Country Jamboree at Seminole Community College.

The Lady Silver Hawks of Lake Howell had an impressive turnout of runners, most of them young ones, and coach Tom Hammontree looks forward to an interesting 1988 season and certainly a bright future.

In the team event it was the Lake Howell Mud Rats with 73 points followed by Astronaut at 99 points and Palm Bay at 105. Other local teams and their finishes were the Lake Mary Hooters (fifth with 129 points), the Lake Howell Silver Hawks (eighth with 173 points), the Lake Howell Runners (ninth with 280 points), the Lake Howell Speed Team (10th with 314 points) and the Lake Howell Pack (11th with 380 points).

Hammontree was very pleased with the performance of his team.

"With this being a rebuilding year, three quarters of our girls are freshmen and sophomores," Hammontree said. "I was very pleased and surprised to see them run this well this early. They ran very well and competed very hard because they wanted to do well. They ran well by themselves and also in a pack."

Leading the way for the Mud Rats was freshman Monica Compton (seventh at 13:36.6), sophomore Michelle Cook (14th at 14:07.1), sophomore Jessica Cardarelli (16th at 14:12.4), junior Sheryl Palumbo (17th at 14:14.9) and freshman Natalie Newberry (19th at 14:21.4).

For the Silver Hawks, Micki Palumbo was 24th at 15:01 with Trisha Frost 27th at 15:14, Julie Logan 35th at 15:59, Vadra Hemmer 39th at 16:16 and Missy McDonough 48th at 16:44.

In the girls individual race, the medal winners were Stacy Bowersox of Fairer Lopez with a time of 12:56.1, Greta Ragusa of Bishop Moore with a time of 13:13.8, and Allison Snell of the Lake Mary Hooters with a time of 13:19.8.

Also for the Hooters, Meisha Abbasinejad took fifth with a time of 13:28.5, Helen Gutmann, freshman of the Hooters, was 26th at 15:15.1, Kim Blackadar 61st at 17:47 and Rebekah Boothe 64th at 18:03 despite being bothered by a cramp.

Also pleased with his team's performance was coach Mike Gibson of Lake Mary High School, whose girls finished fifth in the team competition and had two girls in the top five.

"Allison (Snell) and Meisha (Abbasinejad) were running one-two at the half mile mark and Allison still led at the mile marker," Gibson said. "Rebekah (Boothe) was running well at the mile marker before she got a cramp so we are pleased with the girls performance this early in the year."

The winner in the boys division was Kavan Howell of the Silver Hawk team representing Lake Howell High School as he finished with a time of 16:32 to defeat Sean Bagwell and Marty Doyle of Rockledge by 8 and 23 seconds respectively. But Rockledge, with 39 points, defeated the Silver Hawks, with 90 points, for the team title by putting five of its runners in the top 20 to the Silver Hawks' three.

Other local runners in the top 20 were Dave Burton of the Silver Hawks (sixth with a time of

The class of the camp

Entire Seminole High School squad rates superior

By CHRIS FISTER
 Herald sports editor

Cheerleaders have worn a certain stereotype since the day they put on the matching outfits and broke out the pom-poms. But the Seminole High squad of 1988 is much more than 14 pretty smiles who have well-projected voices.

It is a group that includes a Senior Class President, Miss SHS of a year ago and Miss Florida U.S. Teen.

The 1988 SHS cheerleaders have worked together to become one of the best squads in the state and have achieved something the school and the community can be proud of.

At the recent Universal Cheerleaders Association (UCA) Pom-Pom Camp at the University of Central Florida, Seminole High was voted Camp Champion and all 14 members received superior ratings.

The squad, being sponsored by Tammy Gaudreau, was rated on spirit, cheers, dance and how well they get along together. By being voted camp champ, the SHS cheerleaders qualify for the UCA Regional Championships at Tampa in December.

The senior members of the SHS squad include co-captains Kathy Boyer and Nancy Terwilleger, Christy Pate, Tammie Detreville, Julie Nye and Jennifer Vernon.

The junior members include Shanon Stewart, Cindy Fletter, Jenny Gruby, Jennifer Halfler, Crista Prather, Alison Pugh, Liz Rivers and Suzanne Waugh.

Gaudreau is in her first year with the varsity squad after working with the junior varsity last year.

NY's Taylor flunks drug test

NEW YORK — New York Giants All-Pro linebacker Lawrence Taylor will be suspended for 30 days by the National Football League for testing positive on a drug test, it was reported in Monday's editions of New York Newsday.

The league source told Newsday that Taylor's preseason urinalysis came up positive and the league's drug advisor, Forest Tennant, informed the Giants Saturday a trace of cocaine showed up on the test.

The NFL's director of communications, Joe Browne, told Newsday he would have no comment.

Giants General Manager George Young also refused comment to Newsday.

Taylor, raised in Williamsburg, Va., had a previous problem with drugs. On Feb. 14, 1986, news broke that Taylor was receiving treatment in a drug rehabilitation center in Texas.

A month later, Taylor admitted he was in a tough struggle to overcome his substance abuse problem. In a statement released to the media on March 20, 1986, Taylor said, "In the past year, due to substance abuse, I have left the road that I had hoped to follow both as a player and as a public figure."

"In recent months I have privately sought professional assistance to help me with these problems..."

In his 1987 book, "LT: Living on the Edge," Taylor spoke about his problems with substance abuse.

This is Taylor's second positive test and according to league guidelines, he will sit out for 30 days.

On Aug. 17, Taylor was accused of kicking a car's passenger door after a traffic incident. Despite that misunderstanding, Taylor seemed set to play in 1988.

Taylor, who attended North Carolina and was the second player chosen in the 1981 draft, is considered the most dominant defensive player of the last decade. The seven-year veteran has been voted to the Pro Bowl every year. He was voted the league's Most Valuable Player in 1986.

Taylor, 29, is eligible to return

Earnhardt wins at Busch 500

United Press International

BRISTOL, Tenn. — Dale Earnhardt's charge for his third straight driving championship began with a classic performance under the lights at Bristol International Raceway.

Earnhardt, bidding to tie Cale Yarborough as the only driver to win three straight Winston Cup driving titles, won the Busch 500 Saturday night with a blend of aggressive and intelligent driving. He twice fell one lap behind early in the race, but managed to make up the laps without too much difficulty.

Once he got back on the lead lap for the second time, Earnhardt, 36, who also won the Winston Cup in 1980, displayed the aggressive, banging style that earned him the nickname "Ironhead."

"I drove aggressive and careful," Earnhardt said after receiving the first-place check for $48,500.

Earnhardt was carefree until the last 10 laps, when Bill Elliott took advantage of traffic to place his Ford Thunderbird on the rear bumper of Earnhardt's Goodwrench Chevrolet. That is when Earnhardt battled hard to keep his car in front of Elliott, and he eventually finished one car length in front of the Dawsonville, Ga., driver.

Geoff Bodine finished third, followed by Davey Allison, pole-sitter Alan Kulwicki, Harry Gant, Darrell Waltrip, and Richard Petty. The second-place finish boosted Elliott into the lead in the Winston Cup standings with nine races remaining.

Elliott has 3,027 points to 3,011 for Rusty Wallace and 2,901 for third-place Earnhardt. With three more short track races (facilities less than one mile long) remaining, Earnhardt is in position to start closing in on Elliott and Wallace.

"We started our advantage here tonight," Earnhardt said.

Jones survives Neumann's charge

United Press International

BUFORD, Ga. — Rosie Jones admits she almost caved in to the pressure Sunday before recovering in time to win the LPGA World Championship and a record $41,500.

The 28-year-old Californian began the day with a 5-shot lead and wound up winning by 1 stroke over Liselotte Neumann of Sweden. Jones finished 2 strokes ahead of Hall of Famer Nancy Lopez, 1988 LPGA money leader Sherri Turner and Patty Sheehan.

"I was nervous when I started out, no, I was scared," Jones said. "I wasn't handling a 5-shot lead very well at all. I don't know where Rosie was, but she wasn't out on the front nine."

"At times I was real aggressive and at times I was a real wimp. I'm not pleased with the way I handled the pressure. It was a learning experience. But I do have to give myself credit for not folding. I played good enough. I beat the best."

The best consisted of the top 16 lady golfers in the world.

Jones, 11-under through the first three rounds, posted a 2-over-par 74 Sunday for a four-day total of 9-under 279. Neumann, the women's U.S. Open champ, vaulted out of the pack with a closing 66-280 to earn $43,000.

Lopez (71), Turner (70) and Sheehan (70) tied for third at 281 and defending champion Ayako Okamoto wound up in sixth place, at 73-284.

Angels blast Yankees, 13-2

United Press International

Instead of celebrating a birthday Sunday, New York Yankees Manager Lou Piniella languished through a lost weekend that perhaps ended his team's pennant hopes.

The Yankees blew a six-run lead Friday night and lost 7-6 to the California Angels. New York was embarrassed 12-0 on Saturday and dropped their third straight, 13-2, on Sunday.

California banged out 19 hits Sunday and totaled 32 runs and 54 hits in sweeping the Yankees, who have lost four in a row and trail the Detroit Tigers by 5 1-2 games in the American League East. New York committed four errors, three by shortstop Rafael Santana.

"This is rock bottom right now," said Piniella, who turned 45 Sunday. "I feel as bad as anybody, and if some of my players don't, then they don't have any pride."

"A loss is a loss but you certainly don't want to get blown out two days in a row like we did."

Bob Boone and Chili Davis each homered and drove in three runs, and Tony Armas collected four hits and two RBI to power the Angels.

"There's no explaining it," California designated hitter Brian Downing said. "The Yankees are loaded with talent, but pitching is the name of the game. When your pitchers are struggling, you're going to struggle."

The Angels scored solo runs in the first three innings and put the game away with six runs in the fifth, all charged to Tommy John, 8-6. John surrendered eight earned runs and 12 hits in 4 1-3 innings.

"I should have pitched better," said John, who at 45 is the oldest player in the majors. "When you're scuffling like this team, you look to veteran people to give you a good game. I didn't and I apologize."

California starter Chuck Vinley, 8-12, scattered six singles over 5 2-3 innings. Stewart Criburn pitched a perfect 2 1-3 innings. Dwayne Duke hurled the ninth, allowing a home run to Dave Winfield and Gary Ward's RBI single.

Boone led off with his fifth homer and Davis contributed his 19th homer, a three-run shot, in California's four-run seventh inning.

In other American League games, Milwaukee defeated Detroit 12-10, Boston downed Seattle 7-2, Kansas City trounced Minnesota 12-3, Cleveland nipped Chicago 5-4 in 11 innings, Baltimore edged Oakland 2-1 in 11 innings, and Toronto edged Texas 6-5 in 11 innings.

In the National League, it was San Francisco 7, New York 4; Los Angeles 5, Philadelphia 0; San Diego 5, Montreal 3; Atlanta 4, Chicago 2; St. Louis 5, Cincinnati 3; and Pittsburgh 4, Houston 3.

Brewers 12, Tigers 10

At Milwaukee, Paul Molitor drove in four runs, two with a tie-breaking home run in the seventh inning, to highlight a season-high 18-hit attack. Molitor's 10th homer, off Mike Henneman, 7-4, completed the Brewers' comeback from a 9-4 deficit. Odell Jones, 5-0, pitched 12-3 innings for the victory.

Red Sox 7, Mariners 2

At Seattle, Mike Greenwell stroked a bases-loaded double to key a five-run sixth inning and Bruce Hurst, 16-4, won his seventh straight decision for Boston. Greenwell has a major league-leading 103 RBI and helped move Boston within one game of first-place Detroit in the American League East.

Bob Boone, an iron man behind the plate, had a good day at the plate Sunday as he stroked a double and homer in California's 13-2 rout of New York.

Royals 12, Twins 3

At Kansas City, George Brett, Bo Jackson and Jamie Quirk homered in a seven-run seventh inning to give the Royals a three-game series sweep. Brett and Jackson hit three-run homers, and Quirk added a solo shot. Jeff Montgomery, 7-2, was the winner. Allan Anderson, 12-8, took the loss.

Indians 5, White Sox 4

At Chicago, pinch hitter Ron Kittle homered leading off the 11th inning for Cleveland. Kittle hit his third pinch-hit homer of the season. Kittle connected off Barry Jones, 0-1, for his 17th homer. Doug Jones improved to 2-3 despite permitting the White Sox to tie the score in the ninth.

Orioles 2, Athletics 1

At Oakland, Calif., Pete Staniek singled home Joe Orsulik from third base with two out in the 11th inning to lift Baltimore. Orsulik tripled with two out in the 11th off Gene Nelson, 7-6. Four Orioles pitchers combined to hold Oakland to just four hits. Mark Williamson, 4-5, worked one hitless inning.

Pirates rally past Astros, 4-3

United Press International

The Pittsburgh Pirates, against one of the best pitching staffs in the National League, Sunday scored more than two runs in a game for the first time since August 16.

Jose Lind and Andy Van Slyke each had a run-scoring single in a three-run eighth inning to lift the Pirates to a 4-3 triumph over the Houston Astros. Pittsburgh moved within 6 1-2 games of New York in the NL East. Houston dropped to 5 1-2 games behind Los Angeles in the West.

"The Astros have such good pitching and it's tough to see the ball here," said Van Slyke, who had three of the Pirates' six hits. "I haven't had a three-hit series here, much less a three-hit game."

Doug Drabek, 13-6, allowed two runs on six hits in seven innings, winning for the eighth time in his last nine decisions.

"I kept the score close as we could have a chance," said Drabek, who walked one and struck out six. "We came back and scored three runs today. That's what we were doing the first half of the season."

"We needed a win real bad," Pittsburgh Manager Jim Leyland said. "We haven't scored a lot of runs for anyone, but especially Drabek."

Trailing 2-1, the Pirates scored three times in the eighth. Pinch-hitter John Cangelosi ignited the rally with a walk off Danny Darwin, 6-11.

"I thought the first pitch to Cangelosi was a strike," Darwin said. "I guess I kind of lost my composure after that. I picked a bad time to get a little wild. I walked a guy and made a couple of bad pitches and it cost us a ball game."

Gary Redus, pinch-hitting for Drabek, was hit by a pitch. Juan Agosto relieved and gave up a pinch single to Lind that scored Cangelosi. Van Slyke singled to drive in Redus with Lind moving to third.

Larry Andersen replaced Agosto, and with Van Slyke attempting to steal second, Andersen threw the ball into center field for an error allowing Lind to score.

Jim Gott worked two innings to gain his 25th save, despite yielding Kevin Bass's 12th home run leading off the ninth.

Barry Bonds hit his 22nd home run for Pittsburgh. Houston got homers from Glenn Davis, his 26th, and Billy Hatcher, his fourth.

In other action, San Francisco blanked New York 7-4, Los Angeles stymied Philadelphia 5-0, San Diego downed Montreal 5-3, Atlanta beat Chicago 4-2 and St. Louis slipped past Cincinnati 5-3.

Detroit-Boston wage heated battle

By RICHARD L. SNOOK
UPI sports writer

It is not much as classic pennant races go, but it appears the Detroit-Boston struggle in the American League East is all we have left.

Oakland and the New York Mets have comfortable leads in the AL West and National League East. Oakland is playing superior ball to Minnesota while the Mets challengers fire and fall back.

The Los Angeles Dodgers could go into the dumpster in the NL West, but who will catch them? Houston? The Astros cannot get their offense in sync with their pitching. San Francisco? The Giants' pitching is too precarious to mount a serious challenge with a sputtering offense.

That leaves us with the Tigers and Red Sox, both losing at a sufficient pace to make the New York Yankees' annual collapse look less than it is.

Detroit, whose only glamour name among its position players is Alan Trammell, is beginning to show the strain of having to win without an offense. Its rock-solid pitching is showing cracks as both Jeff Robinson and Frank Tanana will skip their next starts Monday and Tuesday in Chicago.

Robinson was flown back to Detroit for examination of a possible circulation disorder that has left his pitching hand cold, physically and metaphorically. Tanana has a sore shoulder.

The good news for Tiger fans is that Eric King, who replaces Robinson, has pitched extremely well, and Paul Gibson, who takes Tanana's turn, has handled everybody but Boston this season. And one of next year's starters, lefty Steve Seary, will surface when rosters expand Sept. 1.

Another crack in the Tigers' armor is their defense. The season-long trend has been for Detroit to give away nothing and take advantage of everything.

Now Detroit finds itself making costly mistakes, knowing any mistake could be costly with an offense generating just two to three runs a game.

Boston thus finds itself with a great opportunity. And if the Red Sox beat out the Tigers, Boston truly will have earned the division title.

The Red Sox have just four series' 113 games with Cleveland, Baltimore, New York and Toronto left in Fenway Park, where they are 45-23.

Boston, realizing the importance of its current road trip, went into Seattle and acted like a team expected to heat up on the Mariners.

But the next stops are Oakland, California and Baltimore — tough tasks for a team whose ace, Roger Clemens, is on a four-game slide with a well-conditioned body beginning to show signs of wear.

Dennis Boyd pitched well in Seattle before leaving with a sore arm again. Bruce Hurst is also questionable.

There is a contrast in styles between the Red Sox and Tigers. Where Detroit is bland, colorless and plays baseball the way a baseliner plays tennis, Boston is schizoid. It is alternately exciting as its sluggers pound the Fenway fence, or pathetic when its offense short-circuits on the road.

What most people don't see is that even though Boston's road record is under .500 (28-32 entering Sunday's game), Detroit's is just a tick better (32-31 before Sunday). The Tigers are nearly as strong in Tiger Stadium (42-23) as the Red Sox are in Fenway.

Detroit has essentially played .500 ball since the All-Star break, allowing Boston (or anybody) to get back into the race. The Red Sox, since going 19-1, have also played break-even ball.

Both clubs are playing like they're being forced to run a 10K race after a marathon.

SCHROEDER BENCHED

WASHINGTON — Washington Redskins quarterback Jay Schroeder, who lost his starting job to Doug Williams last season, apparently has lost his second-string role as well.

Coach Joe Gibbs benched Schroeder before Saturday night's 34-17 Redskins victory over the Atlanta Falcons, and the team will try to accommodate the 1986 NFC Pro Bowl quarterback's demand to be traded, Gibbs said.

"I think Jay, right now, wants to be somewhere else and shouldn't be playing quarterback for this team with his frame of mind," Gibbs said. "So that's how it stands right now. It's tough for him to be mentally right."

Schroeder said, "My feeling is I can play anytime, anywhere."

The Washington Post reported Gibbs further said that as the situation stands, Schroeder will not play for the Redskins again.

Schroeder, who was widely criticized for complaining after being benched last season in favor of Williams — who went on to become the Super Bowl MVP — has made no secret of his desire to be traded.

The Redskins reportedly have discussed possible deals with at least two teams, the Los Angeles Raiders and Green Bay Packers.

Tom Braatz, the Packers executive vice president of football operations, denied a report that a deal would involve holdout linebacker Brian Noble and two draft choices.

"It's a total fabrication," Braatz told the Milwaukee Sentinel.

Schroeder's benching makes Mark Rypien, the Redskins sixth-round draft pick in 1986 out of Washington State, the team's second-string quarterback.

Rypien, who was 5 of 9 for 64 yards and one touchdown Saturday night, is highly regarded but has never taken a snap in a regular season game.

Surgery can tighten loose, sagging skin

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 40 and recently lost quite a bit of weight. The area under my chin is looking pretty awful - loose, saggy skin. Is this fixable by exercise or is plastic surgery the only way out?

DEAR READER: I'm sorry to say that the inelastic skin you describe is unlikely to be tightened up by exercise, creams, lotions or any other non-surgical treatment. Although the skin may contract with time, plastic surgery - to remove the excess tissue - is probably your best bet.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have one leg a quarter-inch shorter than the other. One hip is also higher. Seven years ago the short leg began to go numb and cause pain when walking. Routine tests are normal. What is the next step?

DEAR READER: Routine tests are not normal. One leg is shorter than the other. This can cause pelvic tilt and chronic back strain that may progress to actual damage of the hip and spinal column. You could possibly be helped by a lift in your shoe. Therefore, your next step ought to be into the office of an orthopedic surgeon or qualified podiatrist to see if a quarter-inch lift would relieve your symptoms.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 69 and keep myself clean, but am beginning to have trouble getting the foreskin back on my penis. What could be the problem?

DEAR READER: As a result of chronic, low-grade inflammation and the skin changes that come with age, the foreskin may become too tight. See a urologist to determine if a simple surgical procedure may spare you further difficulty.

It's important that you find a doctor who suits your needs - and Dr. Gott tells how in his new

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

In desperate circumstances South might have considered a slam when his partner opened the bidding and then raised hearts. South's hand possessed one important requisite for slam - controls. But aces and kings alone are not enough to justify playing at the six-level unless the combined high-card strength is ample. In fact, slam was not too far fetched. Let the trump suit behave and the club ace be in East's hand, and 12 tricks will be there for the taking. South rightly settled for a conservative game contract, but he still had to play carefully to make it.

wrong. The answer was that East might win a trump trick and then lead through the empty king of clubs to take four tricks and set the contract. And so, despite the fact that the percentage play in a vacuum is simply to hand down A-K of hearts and hope for the queen to come down, this time South played dummy's king of hearts and then a low heart back to his 10. If that lost to the queen in the West hand, the contract would still be safe, since the club king could not be attacked. Here there was a reward for virtue. East did hold the guarded queen of hearts but lost it. Declarer made 11 tricks and in fact was playing for 12 when he eventually got around to leading up to the club king.

With the queen of spades lead, declarer took stock in what seemed to be a good contract, declarer asked himself, as he always did, what could go

Rainy season is both danger and boon

"Welcome to Florida, the Sunshine State." We've all seen the sign at one time or another. But, as the natives have always known, it's not the whole truth. By the end of his first full summer here, the transplant realizes that Florida is as wet as it is sunny.

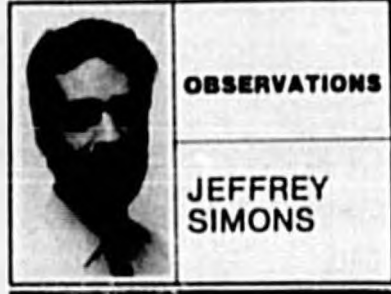

While our driest season may be spring, there's no question that the wettest is summer. Florida receives an average of 62 inches of rain every year, with the majority falling from May to September. These months comprise the rainy season.

Starting as early as May, though often not until June, the moisture rises from either the Gulf of Mexico or the Atlantic to form dense clouds. These clouds continue massing moisture until thunderheads of varying size are created. A thunderhead can be identified by its dark, dense base topped by a thick, white, billowing tower. Those in the advanced stage of formation show an anvil shape on the top. This is due to high-speed upper level winds. Thunderstorms sporting a flat-top are often packing quite a wallop, too.

4-wheeled submarines

If you've lived here very long, you've heard beach-goers, golfers or timid drivers speak harsh words about our summer storms. Beach-going and golfing may be out, but there are some common-sense solutions to the perils of driving in rain.

When driving in a Florida downpour, visibility can be greatly impaired. Always keep your wiper blades under check and replace them when they begin to streak. Slowing down can also increase visibility.

OBSERVATIONS

If visibility is still poor, get well off the road as carefully as possible and use your emergency flashers so that other motorists can easily see you. Do not use your flashers in traffic, however, as it is confusing and may cause an accident. Breaking distances are lengthened by wet conditions, so avoid tailgating. Hydroplaning (when the tire rides the surface of the water instead of the road) can be prevented by reducing speed as well.

The local police agencies all groan when storms coincide with rush hour. This is because too many drivers don't follow the above guidelines. Chances are, if you heed them, you're less likely to become one of their statistics.

Whirling winds

Thunderstorms represent some very real natural dangers. The frequency of tornadoes in Florida has earned the state distinction as the spawning ground for more tornadoes than are seen in the Twister Belt of the Midwest. Tornadoes usually are far less catastrophic here, however, due to a greater consistency of wind direction.

Protecting oneself from the dangers of a tornado seems, at best, a futile effort. Some guidelines do apply, though. When indoors, look for the smallest room, preferably near the center of the house or structure. If possible, choose a room with no windows. Closets and bathrooms often meet these requirements. If such a room is not available, find one with heavy furniture. Get under or behind some piece of furniture against an inside wall. Above all, keep covered to protect yourself from flying glass and debris.

White lightning

The greatest danger of the rainy season is, of course, lightning. Central Florida is the lightning capital of the world, this title being determined by the number of cloud-to-ground strikes. We also hold the record for the greatest number of people killed by lightning each year. These are grim statistics, so grim that national companies in the area stress safety tips to their transfer employees through brochures and short films. It is obviously not a force to be reckoned with.

There are precautions to be taken with regards to this deadly phenomenon. If inside the house, stay there! In addition to that, unplug all appliances, except the refrigerator, avoid the telephone, stay clear of all plumbing fixtures—all of these can carry the lightning indoors when a strike occurs nearby.

If outside, seeking shelter is a primary concern. Get in a car or under a shelter that doesn't stand alone—some shelters in the open spaces of a golf course can become death-traps. Similarly, do not stand under a solitary tree. In extreme cases, stand in a grove of smaller trees; your chances are better there. Most importantly, stay away from water, fences, rails and all other horizontal conductors of electrical current, which can carry a far away strike your way. Lightning can travel up to 30 miles away before it reaches ground.

Calm after the storm

The most obvious advantages of the rainy season can perhaps be best described as sensory: the sight of a solitary storm lum bering over our flat landscape, dragging its wet feet; the spectacle of lightning flashing across the sky in a magnificent display of power; and the frequent rainbows and double-rainbows that delight young and old.

However, the greatest advantage to the rainy season can be found underground. As water becomes a more precious resource and shortages become more commonplace, Florida's aquifers grows accordingly precious in value. It is from this massive subterranean source that nearly all of North and Central Florida draws water. Without it your water bill might soon exceed your electric bill.

(Frightening thought, isn't it?) As long as we have normal amounts of rain each year, the aquifer will be dealt a new lease on life, so pray for rain.

All in all, in light of its necessity, we should speak praise, not curses, when the rainy season rolls around each year. Think kind thoughts when enjoying a glass of water, when savoring food from the garden, when fishing from a lake that still has water; when sleeping with the windows open. And remember, the rain shares the sky with the sun.

Woman wonders about talking to strangers

DEAR ABBY: I am going with a very nice man I met on a street corner. You probably won't believe this, but I was lost and this nice-looking, well-dressed man approached me and asked if he could help me. I told him my plight and he walked me to where I was going, and that's how we got acquainted.

ADVICE
ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

When people ask how we met, I'm embarrassed to say I just met him on a street corner. It just doesn't sound right.

Abby, what if you meet a person in a restaurant? Would you call that a "pickup"? How about getting acquainted in a library? (That has a little higher-class ring to it.) Meeting someone in a bar sounds rather cheap, but some nice people go to bars alone and don't mind if someone strikes up a conversation with them.

I avoid eye contact with people I pass in a park, especially if they're walking slowly, or like they're just killing time.

I think you get the idea. What's OK and what isn't?
