Lake Mary Calls For Water-Quality Tests On Wells

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

The Lake Mary City Council has ordered water-quality testing on three wells off Rinehart and Paula roads and Rantoul Lane as part of its study on constructing its own water-supply system.

Consulting engineer Paul Porter told the council Thursday night that the wells, built some years ago, might be purchased to begin the city's own water-supply system. But first, he said, the water in the wells had to be tested for quality.

Mayor Walter Sorenson said it is costing about $40,000 annually for Lake Mary to purchase water for its 850 customers from the city of Sanford.

Porter said the cost of constructing the city's own water supply would range upwards of $600,000 but that the system once in operation would be able to supply the city with enough water to serve twice as many customers. And City Manager Phil Kulbes said that if the city had its own water supply, its growth would accelerate.

Porter warned that the wells are only a small part of the cost of providing water supply. He said on-site piping would have to be provided, as well as a ground storage tank, aerator and building. And in addition it would cost at least $40,000 for a site.

He noted that the wells — he said the city would need two — would have to be at least 100 feet away in all directions from a sanitary hazard such as a drain field or septic tank.

Sorenson also noted that after the city council decides it wants to move forward with acquiring its own water supply, a method of financing must be found.

City Treasurer Madeleine Papa said annual interest rates to cities selling bonds for public improvements are running at more than 10 percent currently.

In other action, the council asked Porter to prepare an outline of the work required to complete a drainage plan for the southwest quadrant of the city, west of Country Club Road and south of Lake Mary Boulevard.

Porter estimated costs of the study at $8,000 to $9,000, saying the work could be done over a six-to-eight-month period. He said the cost would range from $1,000 to $1,200 monthly.

The engineer said his plan has been that the council would determine while the study was going on the scope of the work and the direction it could take.

Councilman Gene McDonald asked Porter, however, to bring a report back to the council on what the study should entail.

Kulbes reported that the Florida Senate in the next few weeks will be passing a bill setting the methods of distribution to cities of federal Community Development Block Grants (CDBG).

He said the cities of the state are urging that the funds be distributed to cities on the basis of size, with cities of like size competing with each other for funds.

The money must be used, Kulbes said, for public works, to assist blighted areas, and projects benefiting low-and moderate-income families.

The cities are asking the Senate to include in the legislation a section permitting cities to receive technical assistance from private consultants as well as from regional planning councils.

Altamonte Suspends Veteran Policeman

One Altamonte Springs police lieutenant was ordered suspended without pay for three days and another was ordered to undergo psychological counseling after an internal Police Department investigation was completed Thursday.

City Manager Jeff Etchberger ordered that 9-year veteran officer Edward Overman lose $248.77 for the three-day period to begin Saturday for failing to follow police procedures and established practice in the handling of evidence from a November burglary arrest.

Overman was accused of keeping evidence from the burglary — a camera, a calculator and a hat — in his patrol car trunk instead of recording the evidence at the police property section.

At the same time, 10-year veteran officer Richard Laese was ordered to undergo psychological counseling with Orange County Sheriff's Department psychologist John Cassidy.

Etchberger said today the counseling for Laese was agreed to in a meeting earlier this week between Etchberger, Laese, Laese and Overman's lawyer, Michael D. Jones, and City Attorney James "Skip" Fowler.

Jones said today, however, that it was never his understanding that Laese was required to do anything as part of going back to his normal duties.

"It was suggested that the psychologist was an alternative open to him," Jones said.

Jones also called Etchberger's decision to suspend Overman for three days without pay "a bit outlandish in light of the fact that Overman has a perfect personnel file with nine years of police work behind him."

Etchberger in a letter written to Overman on Thursday said Overman's actions concerning the holding of the property in the police-car trunk appeared "to be due to negligence, carelessness, or inattention to duty, rather than willful intent."

Etchberger's action was taken after a two-week internal investigation in the Police Department by Winter Park Police Lt. James Younger.

Younger formally assumed duties as acting police chief today while the search for a new chief continues. Younger has not applied for the job and has indicated he is not interested in it.

6 Directors Quit; Pledge Withdrawn

Humane Society In Trouble

By JANE CASSELBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

"A tempest in a teapot" is what Seminole County Humane Society president Helen Wolk, of Maitland, calls the issue that has brought a split in the society's 15-member board of directors, "but one that has brought no end of trouble to the Humane Society," she added.

A conflict among the board members over the policy of requiring people adopting a large dog (over 20 pounds) to have a fenced yard has resulted in the resignations so far of six of the society's directors.

Those resigning over the policy include Mr. and Mrs. Art Grindle of Altamonte Springs, active fund raisers and supporters of the society. The Grindles have also withdrawn a $25,000 pledge to the building fund for a new shelter that is supposed to be built on a site leased from the county near Five Points.

Others who have resigned are Eunice Shomo, fund-raising chairman; Joanne Terry, education director; Pauline McDonald, public-relations director; and Dr. Peter Hoberly, a veterinarian who specializes in large animals.

Mrs. Wolk, who has been on the board for some time and took over as president only Monday night, walked into a hornet's nest.

Mrs. Wolk blames the whole problem on John Bartholf of Apopka, who adopted a two-year-old Irish setter named "Bo" Jan. 15, telling the society he had a fenced yard even though he did not. Bartholf paid a $35 fee to adopt the dog to replace the family's Pekinese, which had died. He says he did not tell the truth that his 120-by-150-foot yard was unfenced because he thought that if he did he would not get the dog.

"We are not absolutely rigid with this policy, and if he had come out and said, 'I don't have a fence,' we would have checked out his yard to make sure it would be safe, and I'm sure he would have gotten the dog," said Mrs. Wolk.

When it was discovered there was no fence the investigator went to Bartholf's home, but he sent the children to the door to say his parents were not home, she

Jones Fired Sanford Policeman May Be Facing New Criminal Charges

By MARK VOGLER
Herald Staff Writer

The Sanford Police Department is reviewing allegations of misconduct involving possible criminal charges against ex-officer Walter Jones, police officials said today.

Jones, a 13-year veteran of the department, was fired Thursday for what Police Chief Ben Butler termed "neglect of duty."

Butler's decision came just a day after a three-man police administrative review board unanimously ruled the policeman had violated departmental policy and committed several actions warranting his termination.

Butler was unspecific in the reasons for the termination. But Assistant City Manager Steve Harriett said the firing stemmed in part from Jones' "failure to patrol his zone as assigned."

Jones already faces criminal charges on matters which Herb Shea, assistant to the police chief, said are not related to the Police Department's investigation. Jones was indicted by a Seminole County grand jury earlier this month on charges of solicitation to commit arson of a structure and false and fraudulent insurance claims.

The indictments handed down link Jones to the Dec. 30, 1980, arson of his home at 1839 Jerry St. in the Goldboro section of Sanford.

Sanford lawyer Jack Bridges, who is representing Jones, said today he will confer with him before deciding whether to appeal the termination.

Bridges declined to comment on the nature of the Police Department's pending investigation.

"Our investigation is not directly related to the grand jury investigation. We've received certain information from a citizen source regarding serious allegations against the officer," said Shea.

... 'neglect of duty'

"As a result of our investigation, a lot of things have come to our attention all of a sudden. It's possible that we may have to go out of our jurisdiction to involve other agencies. We'll know something more early next week," he said.

Shea said the alleged misconduct that resulted in Jones' firing was committed in several instances over a two-year period.

"The fact that he's been terminated as a police officer is serious enough in itself," he said.

Assistant City Manager Harriett said Jones' personnel file reveals "a reasonably unblemished record."

"He has been dealt with for various problems in the past, but none of the seriousness of the charges that resulted in his firing or the grand jury indictment," he added.

The police review board that studied Jones' case consisted of an officer selected by the police chief, an officer chosen by Jones and another selected by both parties.

Save Woman's Life While On Patrol

Former Police Buddies Team Up For Rescue

It's been several years since Allen Hatzel got to work on a rescue mission with his New Jersey police buddy, Rene Valentine.

But for Hatzel, who has been a deputy with the Seminole County Sheriff's Department for two years, it seemed like old times again early Tuesday morning.

Valentine, who recently retired as a lieutenant from the Washington Township Police Department in northwestern New Jersey, planned to get a tour of the area when he joined Hatzel on road patrol Monday night.

But the usually dull graveyard shift DWI (drunken driver) squad assignment got hectic in the early-morning hours when the two men became involved in a possible life-saving act.

Shortly after 3 a.m. while driving southbound on U.S. Highway 17-92 near Five Points, Hatzel said he noticed a woman walking in the median, raising her hand in distress.

She walked toward the police cruiser and called for help. But before the men could open the car door, she toppled over, according to Hatzel.

The woman lay on the side of the road, apparently unconscious.

Hatzel reached down to feel her pulse. There was none.

The deputy touched her on the eyes. No response, he recalled.

"I touched her carotid artery, and there was still no pulse. She was not breathing. So I started CPR. Several minutes later she began breathing. But she was still unconscious by the time the county Fire Department arrived," Hatzel said.

"They (rescue personnel) stuck inhalants in her nose, and there was no response. They pointed a flashlight at her eyes, and there was nothing at all. If we hadn't arrived on the scene at that time, I feel pretty sure she would have died there," said the 30-year-old deputy.

"I was with the police up in New Jersey for more than 15 years. I've seen all kinds of cases. There's no question in my mind that the woman was straight-lined (dead)," said Valentine.

"She would have been dead. And if by some luck she did come out of it, she probably would have wandered out into the road and gotten hit by a car. I doubt very much that she even realizes how close to death she was. And she may never know, either," he said.

The 21-year-old woman, listed as having an Altamonte Springs address, was treated by the rescue units and transported to Seminole Memorial Hospital's emergency room.

A hospital spokesman said the woman later refused treatment and walked out on her own.

The Sheriff's Department has very little information on the woman, since no charges were filed in connection with the incident.

Records from the Sheriff's Department, the hospital and Herndon Ambulance have conflicting spellings of her name.

Hatzel said he doesn't know how the woman wound up on the road.

"We were unable to get that information from her. Who knows? She could have been thrown out of a moving car. She did have a laceration under her neck. It's possible that she could have come from a party at one of the mobile homes nearby. She had a heavy alcohol odor," Hatzel said.

"It makes no difference to me whether I hear from her again or not. It doesn't matter who she is. She's a human being. She needed help. And what I did was just part of my job," he said.

John Spolaki, spokesman for the Sheriff's Department, said Hatzel's action was "highly unusual."

"I want to stress that this is not a normal part of a deputy's job. We have good ambulance units that are trained to respond to situations like this," Spolaki said.

In the rural area of New Jersey where Hatzel worked for a 16-man police department, there were only volunteer rescue units available. So the police often were the first to arrive on the scene.

"Something like this would not be unusual for a New Jersey officer where we came from," said Valentine, who added that he is impressed with the specialization of Florida police and rescue work.

Valentine, at 49, hopes to retire in Florida — but after first putting in some time with a police department in the area.

His first preference is to work for the Seminole County Sheriff's Department. Meanwhile, there's some question as to whether the woman who was assisted by Hatzel and Valentine actually appreciates what they did.

"She had to be restrained. She used abusive language and tried to strike at people. Then, when we got to the hospital, she walked right out of the emergency room and refused treatment," said Don Farnum, a paramedic for Herndon who helped transport the woman to the hospital.

"In my opinion, she didn't act like a woman who had lost all vital signs and had to be revived. She wasn't very pleasant at all," he said.

NATION IN BRIEF

Reagan Mum On El Salvador; May Compromise On Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Refusing to risk diplomatic, political and possibly military leverage, President Reagan won't say what he might do to prevent a defeat of the U.S.-backed government in El Salvador by leftist guerrillas.

The president fielded a number of questions Thursday dealing with the politically volatile issue of Central America during his eighth nationally broadcast news conference — a session marked by his refusal to discuss specific foreign policy options or target dates for an economic turnaround.

Discussing the economy, the president sounded like a man willing to compromise with Congress over the best way to bring down the 1983 deficit he projects to be $91.5 billion, but suggested cuts in defense spending or changes in his tax policy will not be tolerated.

Murder Suspect Arrested

JASPER, Tenn., (UPI) — An ex-convict described as having "a very violent temper" was in custody today in the shotgun massacre of his estranged wife and six of her relatives at a family reunion in a Michigan farmhouse.

A baby girl protected by the body of her mother was the only survivor of the slayings near Farwell, Mich., Tuesday night as the family was about to sit down to dinner.

Robert Haggart, 31, was arrested without a struggle at about 6:30 p.m. EST Thursday at a roadblock on Hog Jaw Valley Road just inside the southeast Tennessee line. A businessman who learned of the slayings through news accounts had spotted Haggart's car and tipped police.

Nuclear Waste Storage Pact

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI) — Six southern states have agreed to work out a plan for regional storage of low-level nuclear waste that would help keep non-regional waste out of South Carolina.

Gov. Dick Riley, who proposed the plan, said Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi and Tennessee have agreed to provide all treatment, storage and disposal facilities for low-level radioactive waste that is generated within the region.

Seats Blamed In Jet Deaths

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal investigators think the 74 victims of the January Air Florida crash died when their seats broke loose and turned them into human projectiles, it was reported.

NBC News quoted safety investigators Thursday as saying "there was almost total failure of seat attachments" when the plane bound for Tampa, Fla., slammed into the 14th Street Bridge after takeoff from National Airport Jan. 13 in a snowstorm and plunged into the Potomac River.

Activists Press The Fight

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Civil rights leaders say the fight to win extension of the 1965 Voting Rights Act will not end on the steps of the Alabama Capitol, but will be carried to other Southern cities.

"We're going to establish our presence in various communities across the Southeast," the Rev. Joseph Lowery, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, said Thursday at the conclusion of a 160-mile voting rights trek across central Alabama.

Correction

The appreciation dinner for Margaret Ganas, executive secretary for United Way of Seminole, is not Feb. 24 as erroneously reported in Thursday's Herald, but is 7 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 25. The deadline for reservations has been extended to Tuesday. Reservations are being taken at the Salvation Army office in Sanford.

Even The Zoo Victimized

Rash Of Burglaries Plagues Seminole

The overnight crime watch was fairly quiet, Seminole County law enforcement officials reported today. But police and deputies still kept busy investigating a string of residential and business burglaries that have hit the area in recent days.

Deputies, at one point, were concerned whether someone may have freed the animals at the Central Florida Zoo west of Sanford.

Gene A. Raspe, the zoo's night watchman, reported that sometime between 2 and 3 a.m. today, someone apparently broke the lock off the front gate of the zoo.

A preliminary investigation revealed that nothing had been taken. And the animals remained in their cages and unharmed.

Sanford police were still investigating a Wednesday evening burglary of Lois Place at 210 E. 1st St. An undetermined amount of clothing and jewelry, believed to be valued at several thousand dollars, was taken in the break-in.

Police said that someone cut out the screen in the alley behind the Court Yard Restaurant, then unlocked the door leading into the women's clothing shop. Locks from two interior gates were removed.

Sometimes Wednesday night, $121 in cash was reported stolen from Kennedy Tractor at 3400 State Road 46, Sanford. Entry was made through the front window, according to police reports.

Several tires, valued at more than $800, were taken from a tire carrier at Home Distributors, located at 1221 State St. in Sanford.

Police said the offender probably used bolt cutters to cut chain locks on the carrier.

ROTARY TILLER STOLEN

Doan Bang, of 2513 Orange Ave. in Sanford, reported that a rotary tiller, valued at $400, was stolen recently from his backyard.

TEEDOFF

The Sabal Point Golf Course, near Longwood, was the target of vandalism this week.

Sometime between Tuesday night and Wednesday morning, someone drove a car over the number eight green. The club greenskeeper estimated that it will cost at least $500 to repair the damage.

WANTED IN TEXAS

Tyler Ray Strader, 18, of Lochlon Drive in Sanford, was observed sitting idly on a parked car at the intersection of State Roads 425 and 427 Wednesday evening.

A computer check of his license plate revealed that he was wanted on a charge of felony theft. Strader was arrested and being held in Seminole County Jail on $10,000 bond.

SHOPLIFTING AT K-MART

A security officer at K-Mart on U.S. Highway 17-92, Fern Park, aided in the arrest of two shoplifters who fled the store Wednesday morning with a pair of blue jeans.

Arrested and released from Seminole County Jail on $100 bond were Betty Ann Field, 37, of Orlando, and Joseph Lee Haywood, 34, Tampa.

TALKING POLITICS

State Senator John Vogt (D-Cocoa Beach) and State Rep. Jason Steele (R-Rockledge) talk with Bob Caldwell, Forest City Realtor and vice president of District 2 of the Florida Association of Realtors at a barbecue in Tallahassee. Steele's present district will be eliminated under proposed reapportionment and he will be considered the incumbent if he runs in the new district, which includes Seminole County. Caldwell was in Tallahassee for the annual Legislative Day Tuesday.

explained.

"But when the investigator said, 'That's all right, I just came to get the dog,' Bartholf came roaring in the door and wouldn't let them take the dog," said Mrs. Wolk.

"He said he would phone the newspapers and TV stations, and that's what he did," said Mrs. Wolk.

"We have many who have adopted large dogs who are without fenced lots," she said. "Before the policy was put into effect many of the large dogs, such as setters, put their nose to the ground and took off from their adopted homes that did not have fences, and they were killed or badly injured."

Mrs. Wolk said she would have gone out to the Bartholf's Errol Estates home sooner and gotten the matter settled, but she had to wait for the committee members, many of whom work. She said a five-person investigating committee is scheduled to visit the home this evening and will recommend to the board whether the dog should be allowed to stay there or be returned to the shelter. The Bartholfs live on a cul-de-sac with little traffic and have a screened porch where the dog sleeps.

"I know what the outcome will be, but I'm not at liberty to divulge the information, as I have to go through channels," she said. "I may contact the board members by phone instead of waiting."

Mrs. Wolk said she feels many of those who resigned had been looking for a way out before and just used this issue as an excuse.

The schism could not have come at a worse time for the Humane Society, which is trying to raise $150,000 for a new shelter. Mrs. Wolk says there is currently about $46,000 in the fund. "It seems everything is against us including the economy. People who ordinarily send donations for shelter maintenance have donated to the building fund instead, and it can't be touched. Our income is not keeping up with expenses," she said.

"I admit it's going to be some kind of a struggle. The resignation of the Grindles is indeed a terrible loss," said Mrs. Wolk. An emergency meeting will be held Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Longwood Community Center, at which time new board members will be appointed.

4-H Fashion Winners

Francine Huggins a 10-year-old member of the Lake Orienta Clovers 4-H Club, has won first prize in the fashion show at the State Fair in Tampa in the 8-12-year-old division.

Miss Huggins, of Altamonte Springs, modeled a beige corduroy suit which she made herself. Her blue ribbon also brought with it a $25 award.

This was the second year the fashion show competition was held at the state fair and the first year a group from Seminole County has entered.

Dawn Huges, 14, of the Cloverettes 4-H Club in Altamonte Springs, won a second place ribbon and $15 in the Youth Division for her dress. Alice-Margaret Bose, 17, of the Sanford Mighty Clovers 4-H Club, won second place in the Separates Category for her three-piece blouse, jacket and skirt outfit.

Ruth Ashby, also of the Cloverettes, won one first, two seconds, and one third place for a total of $22.

Ricky Vaughn, 10, of Wagner, who belongs to the Mixed Breeds 4-H Club, went to Tampa last week to accept his awards for winning second place in a statewide coloring contest sponsored by the Florida State Cow Belles Association. He received a trophy, $10 and 40 ride coupons for the fair midway.

Others from Seminole County who modeled their clothing at the fashion show were Ruth Ashby; Alison Cammock, Lake Orienta Clovers; Tabitha, Tammy and Tiffany Moore, of the Cloverettes and 4-H leaders, Mrs. Bonnie Moore and Mrs. Nancy Huges.

Father Testifies

'Wayne Was Home' At Time Of Murder

ATLANTA (UPI) — Homer Williams testified today his son was home in bed on the evening the state claims he killed the last of the 28 young blacks slain in Atlanta.

The 68-year-old retired physics teacher said he was out with the family car until 11:30 p.m. on the night of May 21, when the prosecution claims his son, Wayne, killed Nathaniel Carter.

"When you got home, was Wayne at home?" asked defense attorney Jim Kitchens.

"Yes, sir, he was in bed when I got home," the elder Williams said. He said Wayne then went out in the family station wagon.

Three hours later Wayne had his encounter with stakeout police at the Jackson Parkway Bridge.

The 23-year-old black free-lance photographer and would-be talent scout is on trial for the murder of Carter, 27, and Jimmy Ray Payne, 21, two of the 28 young blacks abducted and murdered in Atlanta. Testimony has tied him to 10 more of the victims.

One of the state's last witnesses claimed he had seen Williams holding hands with Carter on a downtown street about 9:30 p.m. May 21. But the elder Williams said he had the family station wagon at a Kiwanis meeting that night, and then went out to fulfill a photographic assignment and "I got back home between 11 and 11:30, about 11:30, I would say."

"Mr. Williams, I need to ask you this: has your son ever exhibited any homosexual tendencies?"

"I can say without a doubt, no," said Williams, who with his wife, Faye, has sat in the front row of the spectator section each day of the trial, hearing two witnesses claim Wayne made homosexual advances to them.

"Is Wayne proficient in Karate?"

"Proficient?" gasped Williams, whose remaining hair leaps in a long fringe around his balding pate to give him the air of the man facing a permanent headwind. "He doesn't know anything about it."

"Is your son an athlete?"

"No. You can look at him and tell that," he said, glancing fondly at his short, chubby son, who also laughed at the suggestion.

Williams recounted in detail the horror that descended upon his family after police at the Jackson Parkway Bridge heard a "big loud splash" in the Chattahoochee River at 3 a.m. on May 21, and saw Wayne driving the station wagon off the span.

Carter's body surfaced downstream two days later.

During two massive searches, Williams said, his house was nearly destroyed. Black fingerprint powder was smeared on the walls, carpet ripped out — "every bit of it, just ripped it up. A wrecking crew, I called it."

He said he had never seen any of the 28 victims in his house.

When Wayne was taken to FBI headquarters on June 3, and his house searched for the last time, Williams said he tried to reach Wayne by telephone. He finally got him on the phone about 11:30 p.m., he said, but "I couldn't understand what he was saying because somebody evidently snatched the phone from him."

"I was really upset then," he said, so he took a cab to FBI headquarters.

After waiting several hours, he said, Atlanta police officials told him they would like him to talk to Wayne and convince him to stay at FBI headquarters another "12 hours."

"They said, 'We got enough to lock him up.' I said 'If you got enough to lock him up, then lock him up.'"

He said they took him to his son, and "I told Wayne they didn't want to lock him up but they wanted to keep him there."

"He said, 'Dad, I want to go home.'"

Two detectives took them home, he said.

"Mr. Williams, when you got home with your son, what did you find?" Kitchens asked.

"Oh, Lord, that's when the circus started," he said with a shiver. He saw his lawn was full of reporters and camera crews, and they became a daily fixture until his son was arrested June 22.

Williams reiterated today his statement that the carpet squares in the family utility room were installed on Memorial Day — after the killings had stopped.

But the state claims fibers from those squares were found on Carter, on Terry Pae, whose body was found on Jan. 23, and on Charles Stephens — who died in October 1980.

Williams was not asked when he bought the squares, but he did say they were "brand new" and had never been used before.

Patients May End Up Paying For Large Malpractice Awards

ORLANDO (UPI) — Hospital administrators say skyrocketing malpractice verdicts have emptied the treasury of Florida's hospital self-insurance program and the extra charge will be passed on to their patients.

John Odem, general manager of the Florida Patients' Compensation Fund, said Thursday the fund may eventually have to pay an estimated $177 million in jury awards for medical mistakes over the last six years.

The fund, however, took in only $50 million in premiums during that time, which means another $127 million may have to be collected from the members.

Some 129 of Florida's 256 hospitals belong to the state-run self-insurance program, which also insures doctors. Some hospitals that have dropped out of the program will nevertheless be billed to cover settlements for years when they took part.

"We've been hit with large verdicts all over the state," Odem said. "They're tremendously more than they were in the past.

"Juries are giving away money in areas they should not be giving it away in, like pain and suffering. We had one case where the pain and suffering exceeded two-million dollars; "It was the wrongful death of a newborn and this was awarded to the parents."

The Florida Hospital Association had scheduled a meeting for today in Orlando to determine whether to file a lawsuit to prevent the fund from charging hospitals proportionately more than doctors to pay malpractice suit awards.

Spokesman Ken McGhee said it is unfair that insured doctors can be charged a maximum of $500 when hospitals can be charged whatever it takes to pay the verdicts.

"The hospitals get stuck making up the difference and in the majority of these cases it was the physician who was at fault," said Bill Bell, general counsel for the hospital association.

House And Senate Battle Over Sales Tax Increase

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Senate leaders vow they'll never pass a penny sales tax increase, but House leaders pushing the tax aren't worried.

House Speaker Ralph Haben won Gov. Bob Graham's support for his penny sales tax increase Thursday, but Senate leaders said they will cut the budget, not raise taxes, to get the state through the recession.

Anti-Abortion Bill To Court?

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The Florida American Civil Liberties Union is ready to go to court if Senate Rules Chairman Ed Dunn's tough anti-abortion bill becomes law.

The Senate Health and Rehabilitative Services Committee Thursday unanimously approved the Daytona Beach lawyer's proposal (SB 984) requiring many abortions to be performed in hospitals and saying the parents of minors must give their consent in many cases.

Also approved by the committee was a bill (SB 326) by West Palm Beach Sen. Don Childers saying hospitals cannot deny staff privileges to doctors refusing to perform abortions or euthanasia (mercy killings).

Protecting The Children

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Bills intended to protect toddlers from auto crashes and their older brothers and sisters from dope peddlers have moved closer to becoming law.

The Senate Thursday approved and sent to the House a bill that would require parents to place children three and under in protective seats and wrap four-and-five-year olds in seatbelts when on the road. Failure to comply could lead to a $15 fine.

The House, meanwhile, gave final approval and sent to Gov. Bob Graham a bill that would give school officials and teachers the right to detain unauthorized persons found on school grounds.

CLOCK WATCHING

The Sanford Downtown Merchants Association will celebrate a Washington's Birthday sale on Monday. In addition to savings, some of the merchants will offer free cherry tarts to customers when a purchase is made at 22 minutes after the hour or 22 minutes before the hour, or when an alarm goes off. Keeping an eye on the clock is Rose Jacobson of Roday's, 220 E. First St., and Boyd Coleman, merchants association president, from Gifts by Nan, 228 E. First St.

Lake Mary To Investigate Substandard Living Conditions

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Lake Mary City Manager Phil Kulbes will investigate reports that a number of families in the city are living in possibly substandard homes with no sanitary facilities.

Councilman Vic Olvera asked for the investigation after he received reports that some families off Humphrey Road are living in a bus and a travel trailer which have no toilet facilities.

Olvera said he has also been told that the residents are using a bulldozer to push their garbage onto the railroad tracks rather than paying for garbage collection services.

In at least one area Kulbes said he doubts that more than one home has a septic tank while numerous types of other non-permanent residences, including two lean-tos, sit on the property. Kulbes said he may call on the Seminole County Health Department to assist in the investigation.

Meanwhile, the council on a 3-2 vote with Mayor Walter Sorenson casting the tie-breaker, Thursday night, waived a city ordinance to permit a mobile home on property owned by Barbara Hoyle Harper at 300 Humphrey Road.

The ordinance requires that mobile homes be parked in agriculturally-zoned areas only and that the site be at least 10 acres in size.

Mrs. Harper said her mobile home was set up before the city incorporated and that she did not know that municipal law did not permit her to remove the old trailer and replace it with a different one.

Voting in favor of granting the waiver were Councilmen Gene McDonald and Ray Fox while Olvera and Councilman Kenneth King were opposed. Councilman Richard Fess was absent.

A month ago, Sorenson appealed to the council a waiver granted by the city's Board of Adjustment permitting a mobile home to be placed on less than the 10 acres of property required by city law. City Attorney Gary Massey said the board has no authority to waive the ordinance and the council agreed, overturning the Board of Adjustment decision.

With Massey absent Thursday night, acting City Attorney Harvey Alper said that "technically" it was improper to grant Mrs. Harper the waiver, pointing out that the ordinance makes no provision for the granting of a waiver. Alper said the action may come back to haunt the Council.

In other business, the council adopted an ordinance rezoning from agriculture to residential 10.9 acres north of Lake Bingham, south of Main Road and east of Second Street as requested by Hans Schweizer.

Single-family homes are to be built on the property.

An ordinance was adopted giving the Florida Forest Service authority to issue burning permits in the city for land clearing purposes only.

The City Council tentatively approved a proposed ordinance establishing flood prone areas and a flood prone areas zoning classification as required by federal law.

Poland Blasts Church;

May Soon Jail Priests

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Poland unleashed its harshest attack in 12 years against the Roman Catholic church and reportedly readied a list of priests to be arrested, some of whom have urged resistance to martial law.

The criticism in a Warsaw Radio commentary Thursday was directed at local priests but hit hard at Polish Primate Archbishop Jozef Glemp. "It was the first such major attack in 12 years," said one source close to the church.

'Clean' Turkish Dress Code

ANKARA, Turkey (UPI) — Turkey's military government has banned head kerchiefs, short skirts, and pants for women employed in state offices while men must give up their beards and wear socks.

An official notification giving guidelines for "clean and secular" dress warned Thursday state employees ignoring the advice would face punishment. The punishment was not specified.

2 SHS Students In Running For National Scholarships

Seminole High School seniors Melissa Roffe and Stephanie Baker have moved up from semi-finalists to finalists for college scholarships under the National Merit Scholarship and National Achievement Scholarship competitions.

Miss Roffe placed 127th among the 30,000 Florida students who took the statewide PSAT (Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test) during their junior years.

Carrying a 3.8 grade point average during her first three years in high school, she attends two classes daily at Seminole High School and is scheduled to be graduated in June.

Miss Roffe is president of the National Honor Society at Seminole and is a two-year veteran of Mu Alpha Theta, a math honor society.

The daughter of Mrs. Dorothy Blankenship of Sanford, Melissa plans to go to Northwestern University near Chicago to study bio-medical engineering.

Miss Baker, daughter of Stewart Baker, an agricultural teacher at Seminole High, and Shirley Baker, an English instructor at Lyman, is celebrating her 18th birthday today. She is one of 1,200 students nationally competing for 650 awards worth $23 million. She has been accepted by the University of South Florida and Florida State and plans to become a pediatrician.

The scholarships for which Miss Baker is competing range from grants of $1,000 to full four-year scholarships.

Miss Baker and the other finalists represent the highest scoring black students in their regional selection units.

She has excelled in foreign languages — she is active in the LaGente Spanish club — and has done independent study of the language. She has also excelled in math and chemistry and is currently president of the Seminole High Student Government Association.

The $400,000-A-Year Social Security Benefit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The average annual Social Security benefit for a man who retires in the year 2050 could top $400,000, but that's not quite as good as it sounds. By then the newspaper that now costs 25 cents may sell for $4.77.

A study by a Social Security actuary said Thursday, depending on how well the economy performs, the average man who retires in the middle of the 21st century could collect between $119,000 and $403,000 a year.

In today's dollars, that would translate between $6,230 to $21,099.

For women who retire in 2050, the average annual benefit will be as high as $267,700, the study said. Social Security payments are based on past earnings and women tend to earn less and more often have on-and-off work histories.

Steven McKay, the study's author, said in an interview the "astronomical" benefit figures for the next century are not as good as they look.

His study assumed it will take $19.10 in 2050 to buy what a dollar buys today, meaning today's 25 cent newspaper will cost $4.77 in 2050.

"Average benefits to be awarded and paid in future years are projected to vary significantly, depending on the (economic) assumptions," according to the report, published in the current issue of the "Social Security Bulletin."

McKay and Social Security Commissioner John Svahn cautioned the long-range projections are based on many variables and it is difficult to make any firm predictions.

The report projected future benefit levels depending on four different sets of economic assumptions and varying demographic factors such as the birth rate and death rate.

Under the rosiest economic projections, with inflation rising an average 2 percent and wages going up 4.5 percent, the average newly retired man would receive $118,999 a year; the female average would be $77,302, the study said.

Using a slightly optimistic set of assumptions, envisioning a 3 percent inflation rate and 5 percent annual hike in wages, the new male retiree would get $185,547 and the new woman retiree would collect $108,639, the study said.

Under the intermediate set of assumptions the Social Security Administration prefers to use, which project a 4 percent inflation rate and a 3.5 percent wage hike, the newly retired man would receive an average $231,805 in 2050. For a woman, it would be $155,503.

Under the worst set of economic assumptions, projecting a 5 percent inflation rate after 1997 and an average 8 percent wage hike, a man who retired in 2050 would collect $483,218 a year and a woman would collect $287,706.

The Budgetary Crisis Is Political

President Reagan's magnitudinous budget for fiscal 1983 understandably raises some basic questions in Congress and out in the provinces.

The projected $91.5 billion deficit, hinted at earlier in preparation by the White House, staggers the citizen in the street along with Republican and Democratic leaders. Is such a deficit really necessary? Is defense spending too high? Are the nation's poor already bearing more than their share of budget cuts? Shouldn't tax reductions enacted last year be postponed or canceled and new taxes levied?

In short, just how good is this budget?

House Speaker Tip O'Neill more or less summed up the jaundiced Democratic reaction by proclaiming that he disagrees "with 80 percent of it." And stunned Republicans could find solace only in the apocalyptic vision of how much worse things would have been for the Republic had Jimmy Carter been re-elected.

Even the $91.5 billion deficit, largest in history and representing 12 cents of every federal dollar to be spent, is founded on optimism. It depends on the President's obtaining $55.9 billion in spending cuts and revenue increases. The major cuts will come from $14.2 billion in discretionary social programs and $11.7 billion from entitlement programs such as food stamps, student loans, nutrition, Medicaid and Medicare. Mr. Reagan knows better than anyone that such controversial cuts are extremely problematical in an election year.

Actually, despite a great public outcry, the Reagan cuts in welfare spending turn out to be reductions in inflation-programmed growth. Welfare growth in the '83 fiscal budget will be 5 percent instead of about 9 percent.

What about defense outlays? Unfortunately, the largely unchallenged Soviet military buildup during the Carter years leaves no hope now for budgetary salvation from the Pentagon. In fact, the $33.1 billion defense increase being requested by the President in the next fiscal year for a total military appropriation of $257 billion is still well below the GNP levels of preceding decades. Moreover, the Soviets are still spending 50 to 80 percent more than the United States for military supremacy, according to Deputy Secretary of Defense Frank Carlucci.

Inasmuch as President Reagan served notice during his recent State of the Union address that he would not repeal last year's tax incentives, the very heart of his revolution, the only remaining place to seek large reductions abides in the direct benefit, entitlement payments, which account for 43 cents or the largest part of every federal dollar spent.

But Mr. Reagan learned a hard lesson last year when he bravely and unsuccessfully tried to trim Social Security benefits. He knows how politically difficult this would be. Indeed, the President's "new federalism," wherein he would transfer certain entitlements to the states, may be an end run. Mr. Reagan may have given up on Congress's ability to cut spending and decided to pass this challenge out and away from Washington.

So, knowing he has little or no chance of reducing entitlement programs during an election year, the President is hanging tough all around — on increased defense for a strong America; programmed tax incentives for turning the country around economically; and, much to his anguish, weathering an unprecedented deficit in the hope of better times. For their part, the Democrats have offered no alternatives to the Reagan budget but new taxes, defense cuts, and, generally, unchecked welfare outlays. Despite the current, painful recession, American public opinion reflects little support for these policies, largely discredited by a half-century of trial and error.

With government spending — federal, state, and local — now consuming 35 percent of every dollar being earned by Americans, our acute budgetary problem should be seen as a crisis of democracy. And this crisis is more political than economic. If, therefore, free enterprise cannot devise a political solution, as Mr. Reagan intuitively realizes, economic retribution will surely impose bankruptcy and serfdom.

BERRY'S WORLD

I know why they did it but that doesn't mean I approve.

When federal bureaucrats decided we should observe the nation's first president's birthday on the third Monday in February each year, they must have been thinking about convenience. It's convenient for them to take a holiday on a particular weekday each year instead of floating around the calendar from Sunday through Saturday. Why should the facts matter?

But in George's defense, birthdays are special. George Washington was born on Feb. 22, not Feb. 15 so who are we to decide when to observe the date of his birth? Would you want someone to decide when you can celebrate your birthday?

I was born on Jan. 22 and I sure wouldn't want to celebrate it any other day. So, why should the "Father" of our country be any different?

However, for some reason I doubt the government big boys, who decided to rearrange history in the first place, will see their way clear to change this recent pick-a-date, any-date method of observing George's birthday. Next year his birthday will again be observed on the third Monday in February and it won't even be Feb. 15. Such inconsistencies that plague our nation...

But, rest assured, although we won't observe Washington's birthday on Feb. 15, there will be a birthday celebration on that day for many years to come.

Angela Yarbrough, my new-born niece, will celebrate her first birthday on Feb. 15, 1983.

She was born to my brother, Keith, and his wife, Susan, Monday morning, weighing in at 6 lbs. 13 oz. in Waco, Texas. But, for a Texan she's not real tall—only 19 inches.

You can bet Feb. 15 will be a special day for the Yarbrough family. And it won't be because George Washington's birthday was observed on that day.

We will be celebrating Feb. 15, because on that day—and none other God gave my brother and sister-in-law a healthy daughter, two sets of parents, a lovely first grandchild and Keith's five brothers and sisters a gorgeous little niece.

Happy Birthday, Angela. I'll wish you a happy birthday next week, George...

Drugs For The Elderly

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Health Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Some older people take and possess so many drugs they are mini-pharmacies, and a specialist says that means doctors must use extra caution when prescribing tranquilizers and other mind-affecting drugs for the elderly.

"Elderly patients often take several medications simultaneously, which can lead to altered drug effect," Dr. Carl Salzman, of Boston, tells fellow doctors in the report in Hospital & Community Psychiatry, a journal of the American Psychiatric Association.

"As the physical health and independent status of an older person declines, the number of drugs taken usually increases. This combination of failing health, aging body, and multiple drug prescriptions may contribute to alterations in drug effect.

"Practicing clinicians must be aware of these alterations and adjust their prescription of psychotropic drugs accordingly," said Salzman, director of psychopharmacology at the Massachusetts Mental Health Center in Boston.

According to one study, an average list of medications taken by elderly medical or surgical patients in a general hospital includes: flurazepam, diazepam, propoxyphene, antibiotics, aspirin, milk of magnesia, stool softeners and vitamins.

Outside the hospital, the elderly may take over-the-counter medications in combination with psychotropic or medical drugs without consulting a physician.

"These non-prescription drugs," Salzman said, "may be sedating (sleep medications, antihistamines, geriatric elixirs that contain alcohol) or may cause or aggravate anticholinergic toxicity (antihistamines, sleep medications.)"

Salzman told doctors: "It is extremely important to determine what medications, including over-the-counter preparations an older patient is taking before prescribing a psychotropic drug."

He made these other points about tranquilizers and other psychotropic drugs: — They will usually take longer to work in an older patient, will stay longer in the body, and will often produce a greater effect per milligram dosage than it would in a younger person.

— Delayed onset of action can be caused by slower absorption and distribution of the drug.

— A prolonged effect may result from delayed or decreased (or both) drug metabolism by the liver and excretion by the kidneys.

— Enhanced response may occur because of decreases in activity of central nervous system neurotransmitters and altered sensitivity at the drug's site of action.

Salzman suggested the following to fellow clinicians prescribing psychotropic drugs for elderly patients:

1. Keep in mind psychotropic drugs usually have a prolonged and heightened effect on the aging body.
 2. Determine all of medications an older patient is taking before prescribing a psychotropic drug. This includes self-prescribed drugs (borrowed or old pills), medications from other physicians, and over-the-counter preparations.
 3. Conduct a careful, complete assessment of the patient's physical health before drug treatment begins.
- His final caveat: Any older patient who is receiving a psychotropic drug and who appears restless, agitated, confused, forgetful or depressed may have psychotropic drug toxicity.

Feds Try To Discredit Whistleblower

WASHINGTON—Four government agencies are ganging up to discredit a lone whistleblower. He is Ralph Sharer, the counter-intelligence expert who uncovered shocking evidence that the Soviet KGB had obtained top-secret documents from the General Accounting Office.

Sharer's report on the KGB penetration obviously shook GAO higher-ups, who responded first by exiling him to a do-nothing job and then by arranging his transfer to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. It wasn't long before the indefatigable Sharer found evidence of waste and corruption at NASA. The agency's reaction was to order Sharer fired on questionable charges.

The third federal agency embarrassed by Sharer is the FBI, which has spent two years in a vain effort to uncover the Russian espionage at the GAO. The G-men are now trying to pretend they never heard of Sharer, even though they earlier thought highly of him.

ROBERT WAGMAN

It's Jerry Vs. Barry

LOS ANGELES (NEA) — The race for the Senate seat of retiring S.I. Hayakawa continues to shape up as one of the most interesting of the year.

The latest polls show that if the primary were held today, the winners would be Gov. Edmund "Jerry" Brown for the Democrats and Rep. Barry Goldwater Jr. for the Republicans.

But the primary will not take place until June, and quite a bit can happen between now and then.

The Democratic race seems cut and dried. The polls show Brown to be leading his closest rival, State Sen. Paul Carpenter, by 51 percent to 13 percent.

Brown has raised more than $1.9 million for his campaign, while neither of his principal primary opponents, Carpenter and Fresno Mayor Daniel Whitehurst, has been able to collect more than $250,000.

In fact, Brown's strategists think so little of their Democratic opposition that they say the governor will spend virtually nothing on the primary and will wage only a token campaign.

But the same poll that shows Brown so far ahead of his primary opponents also shows him to have some tremendous weaknesses.

Brown has a "negative popularity" of 59 percent; that is, 59 percent of those questioned said that Brown had done a poor job as governor and that they would not vote for him again for any office.

Moreover, Brown lost by a substantial margin when the poll matched him head-to-head against the leading GOP nominee.

Privately, the Brown camp is worried that a strong Democrat may jump into the race between now and the March 31 filing deadline. The name mentioned most often is that of Ken Cory, the popular state controller who could run a strong race against Brown.

But money is the key to a winning campaign. Many observers doubt that Cory could raise enough contributions at this late date to match Brown's war chest.

The GOP contest remains a jumble, though slightly less of one since Hayakawa announced that he would not run for re-election. That decision had been urged on him by most of the California Republican Party.

The latest statewide poll shows Goldwater in the lead with 34 percent, almost twice the 18 percent received by his two closest rivals, San Diego Mayor Pete Wilson and Rep. Paul McCloskey.

Thanks in no small measure to his father's popularity among conservatives, Goldwater has a high degree of name recognition and has amassed the money to wage a successful campaign.

Wilson and McCloskey are political moderates and therefore appeal to the same segment of the Republican electorate. If one were to drop out of the race, the other would probably inherit most of his support and then would nearly equal Goldwater in popularity. But neither seems likely to step aside.

This Republican primary is reminiscent of its 1978 counterpart in which the conservative Hayakawa ran against moderates Robert Finch and Al Bell. Finch and Bell split the moderate vote and handed the election to Hayakawa.

But there is a big difference this year: Rep. Robert Dornan, an arch-conservative who blately entered the race after redistricting made his House district so liberal that he was unlikely to be re-elected.

Dornan, a former television personality, is a dynamic politician with a large national following among conservatives. He has been able to assemble a top-flight campaign staff and is likely to garner substantial financial support from across the country.

Dornan is lagging in the polls because he lacks state-wide name recognition. But if he can finance and mount a media blitz between now and June, he will not only boost his standing tremendously but will siphon off much of Goldwater's support.

Dornan's strength was evident recently in his winning of the straw poll at the state GOP convention.

Some party experts predict that Goldwater and Dornan will split the conservative vote while Wilson and McCloskey split the moderate vote. Given this very real possibility, any of the four could emerge as the primary winner.

As for November, the Republicans are convinced that any of their candidates could handily defeat Brown. As one GOP leader put it, "We could run Minnie Mouse and beat Brown easily."

Less-biased observers are not so sure. Said one veteran of California politics: "The love-hate affair between California voters and Jerry Brown is becoming legendary. Despite what the polls say today, you can't count him out."

DON GRAFF

Death Of A Penalty?

The same arguments have been made hundreds of times.

Capital punishment is murder by the state. It is per se cruel and unusual punishment and therefore unconstitutional.

Imprisonment under a death sentence, even when the implementation is repeatedly postponed, is in itself a form of psychological torture.

Application of the death penalty is arbitrary, varying from state to state and even court to court, and discriminatory, falling much more heavily upon the economic and racially disadvantaged than upon the more fortunate segments of the population.

There is no incontrovertible evidence that it is a deterrent to crime. On the contrary, some studies have shown increases in capital crimes following executions, possibly a consequence of the publicity they attract.

It may, however, be a deterrent to jurists. Jurors in capital trials may be inclined to convict defendants whose guilt they don't question of lesser counts rather than be parties to an execution.

There are more and, to repeat, none are new.

Amnesty International, however, is bringing them all up again in a concerted campaign to persuade all the United States to abandon the death penalty. Worldwide affiliates of the organization, which is best known for its opposition to political imprisonment and human rights violations, beginning Feb. 16 are directing appeals to American authorities, singling out for special attention those in the 28 states where there are prisoners on death row.

Capital punishment has been an issue of both controversy and uncertainty in the United States for more than a decade. It was suspended for 10 years, 1967-77, as a consequence of Supreme Court decisions that invalidated existing state laws on various grounds but stopped short of going all the way and ruling the penalty itself unconstitutional.

As a result, most state legislatures have made the effort to bring their laws into conformance with what is perceived to be court thinking on the subject. A majority have the penalty on their books, but many continue to run into objections from lower courts and veto-wielding governors.

Further, the Supreme Court has not definitely made up its mind on the subject, raising the possibility that any capital case reaching that court could result in a reversal of the ambiguous ground rules the states are following.

Despite the ambiguity, four executions have taken place since 1977 — a long way from the peak year, 1933, when 199 condemned individuals were electrocuted, gassed, hanged and shot in the United States.

There is, however, no lack of candidates for the penalty at present. There is an immense population, relatively speaking, on death row — at least 924, by Amnesty International's count. Most are concentrated in a few states with, according to a 1981 Justice Department survey, half or more in just three — Florida, Texas and Georgia.

The United States is one of the few Western countries in which capital punishment is still practiced. While still in the laws of several European nations, it is no longer invoked. Only one member of the 21-nation Council of Europe — Turkey — has carried out executions recently, according to Amnesty International.

Maybe you'll hear more on the subject during the campaign and maybe not. The arguments, to repeat again, are familiar.

banishment to a study of marine mammals, and his eventual transfer to NASA. There he discovered that his colleagues in the inspector general's office were guilty of the same kind of cheating they were supposed to be uncovering in other departments of the agency. In retaliation, NASA held up his salary; he has not been paid for four months.

The Sharer report then tells how his NASA bosses got another IG's office—the Housing and Urban Development Department's—to "investigate" his charges. Instead, the HUD team whitewashed its fellow IG office and delivered a personal attack on Sharer.

Footnote: In a curious Orwellian twist, a letter from an FBI agent commending Sharer for his help in an important investigation has apparently disappeared down the memory hole as far as the bureau is concerned. The letter, dated March 27, 1981, is included in Sharer's report. But its author, special agent Theodore Gardner, would neither confirm nor deny that he had written it.

Baker Had A Rattlesnake He Took To School One Day

Jesse Baker, State Wildlife Officer, visited the Geneva Elementary School Wednesday afternoon, bringing several of his "critters" with him.

Baker had a caged rattlesnake who "did his thing—that is, he rattled" all afternoon. He also brought a 6-foot Blue Indigo snake—the hit of the program.

After giving a wildlife talk and describing his job duties, Mr. Baker let the children at the elementary school see the boat he uses to travel up and down the St. Johns River.

Mrs. Nancy McNamara, principal of the school, said, "This is one of the most interesting programs we have had for the children."

Don't forget the big rally at Fort Lane Park Saturday, Feb. 20 at 10:30 a.m. Sponsored by the Geneva Citizens Association, the rally is an effort to get the governor and his cabinet to re-route the power towers.

Oviedo High School began running an after school activities bus Feb. 1. The route is as follows: from school down 426 to Red Bug Road; right on Red Bug Road to Tusawilla; right on Tusawilla to 419; left on 419 to 434; left on 434 to Winter Springs Elementary; turn around and return to Oviedo on 419.

Mrs. Bennett, the bus driver, lives in Chuluota, and will be taking students in that area home, too.

The bus will leave school a little after 4:30 p.m. According to the school, they will start off charging 50 cents per day to ride. If the costs go up, naturally, the fee will also have to go up.

Right now, the run does not include students in the Geneva area. If at least 10 students from Geneva request this service, the school would include this run.

Feel free to call Mrs. Stoner, assistant principal, at 363-5671, if you have any questions, or if you have a student who needs this service.

The Science Fair at Jackson Heights Middle School in Oviedo Tuesday evening was "the biggest and best yet" according to Mr. Jones, the assistant principal.

Both the gym and the library were needed this year to house the many large exhibits from the sixth, seventh and eighth grade students.

The Science Fair was open from 7 to 8 p.m. for students and their parents and it was no place for those with a weak stomach! Some exhibits included fresh brains from a large animal, eyeballs and skeletal remains—labeled, of course!

There were many exhibits showing the Columbia and related space exploration projects—the effects of smoking—a black box showing optical science—and a project on Acupuncture—Oriental Medicine, just to name a few.

On March 2, at 7:30 p.m. Oviedo High School will present a program on "alcohol-drugs—use, misuse and abuse." It will feature talks, hand-outs, a movie and first hand accounts by abusers. There will also be a question and answer period.

Do you know: How long it may take for a young person to become an alcoholic? What the chemicals in marijuana do to a young body? Where to go for help?

These questions and others will be answered as part of OHS's Action Plan to educate teachers, students and parents on the problems of alcohol-drugs in our area. Please come.

DAR Student Awards

Sallie Harrison Chapter, National Society Daughters of the American Revolution, honored five outstanding high school seniors Feb. 12 at the monthly chapter meeting at the Florida Power & Light hospitality room, Sanford.

Representing each senior class in Seminole County high schools, the students were recognized as winners of the annual DAR Good Citizen Award.

Each school winner was presented a pin and a pamphlet about the significance of the DAR Good Citizen Pin. Those selected as Good Citizen must have the qualifications of leadership, dependability, service and patriotism.

Each completed a questionnaire related to high school activities; service rendered at home, church or synagogue, community; future plans; leisure interests and hobbies; and the qualities used for selection.

The competition also required submission of an essay on the subject: "Our American Heritage and our Responsibility for Preserving It."

The State winner is awarded a $100 Educational Award. Division winners receive a $250 Educational Award. The National Good Citizen award is a $1,000 scholarship to the college of the winner's choice. The winner is also presented to the Continental Congress and is given a sterling silver bowl engraved "National DAR Good Citizen-1982."

Judges selected Carole Anne Reinighaus as Seminole County representative in state competition. She is a senior at Lyman High School and is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs.

Ronald Reinighaus, Maitland.

Other winners are: Fred Baber III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Baber, Altamonte Springs and a student at Lake Brantley High School; Kathryn M. Cattaneo (Lake Howell H.S.), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Cattaneo, Maitland; Robert Isner (Oviedo H.S.), son of the Rev. and Mrs. Gary Isner, Geneva; and Shelley Brisson from Seminole High School. Shelley is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brisson, Sanford.

Winners will be recognized at the annual senior awards day program in their respective high schools. At that time they will also receive their Good Citizen certificate.

Awards were also presented by the chapter to outstanding students of the Seminole County schools at the same meeting.

Mrs. Mills Boyd, American History Month Chairman, presented the awards for the Essay Contest. The essay topic for this year was "A Famous American Born in February."

The award for the outstanding essay by a fifth grader was presented to Jennifer Caputo of Forest City Elementary School. The seventh grade award was presented to Jennifer Codemo, a student at Liberty Christian School, and the eighth grade award was won by Lynne Weiss of Jackson Heights Middle School.

Certificates of Appreciation were sent to all other entrants.

Woman Can't Stop Crying Over Beloved Dog's Death

DEAR ABBY: I need help. I'm not a silly kid, I'm a 34-year-old woman who can't cope with the terrible loss I suffered two weeks ago. My dog died. "Naffkie" was like a child to me. I had her for 12 years. I got her at the animal shelter when she was 3. I was told if someone didn't adopt her she would be put to sleep within one week. She was part poodle and part cocker spaniel and she really was a beautiful dog. And smart! I'd say, "Let's go out," and she'd run and get her leash and bring it to me!

I can't stop crying, Abby. She wasn't even sick. She just started to have convulsions, and by the time I got her to the vet she was gone.

Everyone tells me I should get another dog, but no other dog could ever take Naffkie's place. Besides, I don't ever want to go through this again. It's like losing a child. I can't even look at her bowl or leash without crying. Maybe you or one of your readers can tell me if I should get another dog or not.

GRIEVING IN JERSEY

DEAR GRIEVING: You can never replace Naffkie, but you can fill the emptiness she left by getting another pet. Go to the animal shelter and rescue another homeless dog. It could be a lifesaver for both of you.

DEAR ABBY: My husband had a triple bypass operation 14 months ago. He is doing fine now and does everything he used to do before — except one thing. He hasn't made love to me since his operation. He says he is afraid the excitement might damage his heart. Abby, is this true? Don't tell me that every man who has had a bypass doesn't ever lay a hand on his wife again!

We've been married for 15 years and had a good sex life before this. I would hate to think our sex life is over so soon. Please ask some of your heart doctors about this.

NO LOVE IN TEXAS

DEAR NO LOVE: My heart doctors inform me that normal marital relations cannot be resumed following bypass surgery without fear of heart damage. Your husband should consult his own doctor for confirmation and reassurance.

DEAR ABBY: We have read you for years, but this is our first time to write. We need someone else's point of view. My husband and I have a golden wedding anniversary coming up in the beginning of 1983. We have 12 children. Some are far away, and in winter the roads are sometimes very bad.

Would it be appropriate to celebrate our anniversary in the spring or summer? Some say yes, some say no. What is your opinion?

J. IN YAKIMA, WASH.

DEAR J: I vote yes. The less you and your guests have to worry about, the better. Congratulations and God bless.

DEAR ABBY: Who said, "Civilized man arrived in the Pacific armed with alcohol, syphilis, trousers and the Bible"? I would like to convey to him my heartiest congratulations.

CHARLES
DEAR CHARLES: Havelock Ellis. And it's too late. He died in 1939.

Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 33923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Correction

The amount of sugar required in a cake recipe appearing in Lou Childers' Cook Of The Week column Wednesday was incorrectly printed by The Herald.

The corrected recipe is as follows:

- 1-2-3-4 BUTTER CAKE
- 1 cup butter or margarine
 - 2 cups sugar
 - 3 cups flour
 - 4 eggs, separated
 - 4 teaspoons baking powder
 - 1 cup milk
 - 1 teaspoon vanilla

Cream butter; add sugar. Mix together until creamed. Add beaten egg yolks. Mix and sift dry ingredients, adding them alternately with milk to butter and sugar mixture. Add flavoring. Fold in beaten egg whites. Bake in two 9-inch cake pans or a 9x13 sheet pan at 365 degrees for 15 to 25 minutes. The Herald regrets the error.

Publicity Procedure

The Herald welcomes organization and personal news. The following suggestions are recommended to expedite publication:

1. Releases should be typed (lower and upper case), double spaced, and written narrative style (third person).
2. Do not abbreviate.
3. A contact person's name and phone number is necessary.
4. Keep releases simple.
5. Organization releases (the program should lead the meeting account) must be submitted no later than two days after the event.
6. Advance notices should be submitted one week prior to publication date.
7. Photographic coverage requests should be made one week in advance.

Howard Hurls 6-Hitter At State Champions

By SAM COOK
Herald Sports Editor

Seminole's Freddie Howard threw some curves Thursday that would have turned Bo Derek green with envy.

The crafty righthander, with last-out relief help from Tracy Walker, nipped the bats of defending 4A state champion Boone on six hits as the Fighting Seminoles shocked the Braves, 5-2, in prep baseball action at Sanford Memorial Stadium.

"After I saw Boone beat Lake Brantley 21-2, I said I've got to pitch against those guys. Oh no," said Howard after his masterpiece. "But after I got through the first inning I realized they were human."

Walker threw "about 50 percent curves" during the gem and Tribe manager Bobby Lundquist gave a lot of credit to catcher Brett "The Count" Von Herbulis for calling a sound game.

"They've got some real good hitters," pointed out The Count. "We just tried to keep the ball outside. If they were going to pull it, they were going to hit little ground balls to shortstop."

Which is what Boone did most of the game. Shortstop Walker was kept busy. He handled six ground balls flawlessly and in the sixth inning he made a great stop to his left and gunned down the runner at first to prevent a run from scoring.

"Tracy did a great job of making the routine play," lauded Lundquist. "I watched Boone play last year and that's what they did, made the routine play. We just beat them at their own game today."

Center fielder Alton Davis did most of the beating. "Sticks" rapped out three straight hits including a rope to right field from the left side of the plate in the sixth inning. The slender senior had worked on switch-hitting in the off-season, but had gone strictly lefthanded until Thursday.

Davis accounted for the first Seminoles run in the third inning. After two outs, Von Herbulis drew the first of his three walks for the day and Walker reached from second base.

Davis followed with his second straight hit to push the margin to 5-0 by scoring Von Herbulis. Howard jacked one to right center, but John Molsinger hauled in the drive with a nice running catch to end the threat.

Boone finally broke the ice without a hit in the fifth. Barden walked and Vic Mason reached when Register dropped his fly ball. A walk to Todd Denson loaded the bases and brought a trip to the mound from Lundquist.

Howard stayed and threw a perfect double play pitch which Childers hit on the ground to Walker. Griffin, though, couldn't get the ball out of his glove after a short pitch from Walker and the run scored after the force out at second. Molsinger then flew out to Register.

In the seventh, the Braves finally got to Howard. Mason walked, but Tribe third baseman Greg Hill hit Griffin with a perfect peg after fielding Denson's ground ball and the Tribe second baseman turned it over for a double play.

Childers, however, drew a walk and Molsinger singled. Catcher Ronnie Karkovics, who is being touted as a possible number one draft pick this summer, delivered with a liner over shortstop to score Childers and drive Howard from the mound.

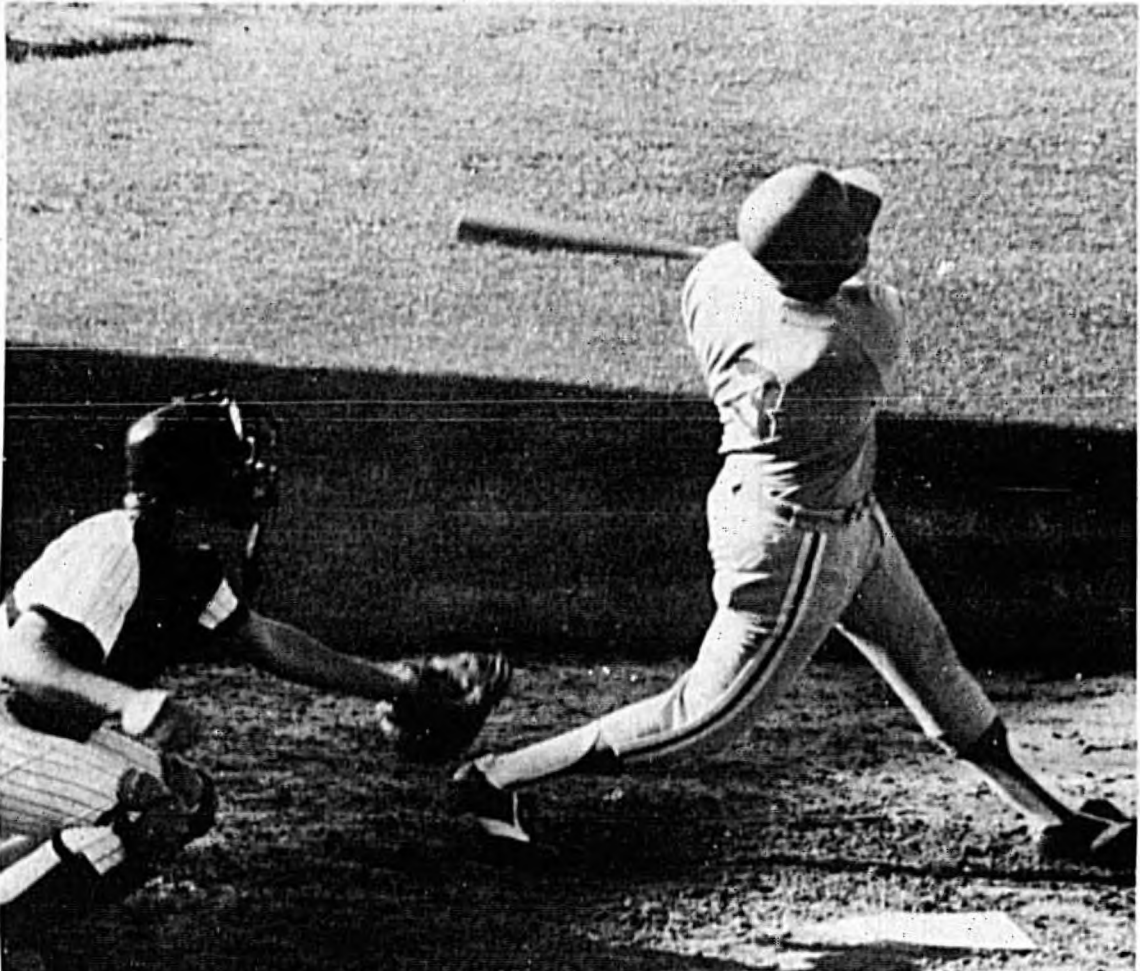

Walker, though, came on and got cleanup hitter Bob Simmons to ground to Hill and the husky junior beat Molsinger to the bag for the final out and the upset of last year's state champions.

Howard picked up his first victory in his second start, while Walker earned his first save. Mike Damon suffered his first loss for 1-1 Boone. Seminoles, 2-2, hopes to avenge Tuesday's 5-4 setback today at 3:30 against Winter Park at Sanford Memorial Stadium.

Oviedo 'Man Among Boys' Too Much For Silver Hawks

"He's a man playing among boys."

Lake Howell basketball coach Greg Robinson accurately put things into perspective with this six word statement following a one-man Oviedo wrecking crew which dropped his Hawks to their 21st setback of the season.

The man — 6-4 junior Ronnie Murphy (see related article on 7A) — scored 29 points, grabbed more rebounds than you can count, and blocked five shots as the Lions romped, 64-50, at Lake Howell Thursday night.

"Ronnie took a couple of bad shots in the beginning," said coach Dale "Digger" Phillips about his young phenom. "But I thought he had a super all-around game. His passing was super."

The victory concludes a 16-12 "rebuilding" year for the Lions. Next Thursday, they open play in the District 3A-4 Tournament at Leesburg.

Despite hitting just 3-of-13 shots, Oviedo bolted to an 11-4 first quarter lead. Murphy had six points in the quarter and junior forward Bill McCartney muscled inside for four.

Murphy blew the lead up to 20-10 just four minutes into quarter two by scoring seven of the Lions' first eight points. Senior center Mike Ohlinger got hot in the closing minute with three buckets — the last at the one second mark — to give Oviedo a 22-16 intermission edge.

Early in the third quarter, the Lions went up by 18, 38-20, and Murphy then turned the game into "show time." Twice he took the ball the length of the court for "Dr. J.-type" layups.

Lake Howell senior standout Mark Layton, who didn't start because of back problems, tried to stay with Murphy when the Hawks went man-to-man, but no one was staying with the elusive junior on this night.

Prep Basketball

The Hawks managed to pull within, 42-30, when Richard Dasher hit a 15-footer, but Murphy promptly stole the ball and hit a bank shot, then rebounded at one end and scored at the other for a 46-32 ball game at the end of three quarters.

Before retiring with 3:29 to play, Murphy "turned on" twice more for the sparse crowd. Midway through the fourth quarter, he beat Layton on the baseline and reversed a layup with just enough English to drop through.

The crowd pleaser, though, came a minute later. After an Oviedo missed free throw, Murphy broke back underneath his basket, stole the ball from a bewildered Silver Hawk, and reverse dunked two-handed to boost the Oviedo lead to 18 points, 53-35.

Following Murphy in the scoring column was Ohlinger with 12 points. Senior Tim Rae led Howell with 12 markers, while Layton and Fred McNeil each totaled 10. Sophomore guard Troy Quackenbush hit eight.

In junior varsity action, some superb free throw shooting in the final minute by Oviedo kept the junior varsity Silver Hawks winless (0-20) for the season, 75-71.

The Hawks held a one point lead, 69-68, with just 44 seconds to go, but Wally Wirth coolly dropped two free throws to move the Lions into a lead which they sustained until the end.

Wirth led the Oviedo cageas with 19 points. John Kewley (18), Steve Cohen (18) and George Dumas (11) all hit double figures.

Howell's Eddie Norton had a game-high 21 points and handed out nine assists. Alan Banjacski (15), Crockett Bohannon (13), Joe Branton (13) and

TIM RAE ... 12 points

Jeron Evans (10) joined Norton with double digits. Banjacski and Evans had seven rebounds. Branton had seven steals.

The Silver Hawks conclude their regular season tonight by hosting Five Star Conference champion Spruce Creek. The Hawks will also play Spruce in the first round of the district tournament next week at Apopka. — SAM COOK

Don't Undersell Cinderella Tribe

Either my foot is getting smaller or my mouth is getting bigger. If you don't think so, ask Seminole quarterback-turned-designated hitter Jeff Litton.

Boone High School won the 4A state baseball championship last year. The Braves had a young man named Chris Howard drafted in the first round and signed by the Boston Red Sox. Boone also lost its best pitcher from last year.

Outside of that, however, a lot of the team returns intact. A couple of days ago, the Braves took on Lake Brantley and murdered the Patriots, 21-2. On Thursday, they came to Sanford Memorial Stadium.

I talked to a couple of the Braves before the game and they indicated that this year's team was as good as last year's. I talked to manager John Hart and he was a little hesitant to say so yet, but he gave the indication that they were pretty good.

So when I ventured to the Seminole dugout, Litton immediately jumped on me about his favorite topic, "why I didn't ever write anything nice about the offense of the Seminole football team?"

Since being a wise guy is my nature, I cracked, "What offense?"

With football still on my mind I remembered the Lake Brantley-Boone score of a few days ago and said, "Speaking of football, Litton, do you plan to hold these guys under 20 runs today?"

"Hold them under 20?" Litton said incredulously. "We're going to beat them."

I kind gave him that look like, yeah, I'll see you after the 10-run rule.

Of course, you know by now what happened if you started at the top of this page and read down. Litton was right, I was wrong. Seminoles decisively whipped last year's state champions, 5-2.

For a split-second, I temporarily lost my mind. I forgot who I was dealing with. These guys are Bobby Lundquist's Cinderella Seminoles, only a year older. The same crew that lost 10 games in a row last year, then came back to win a district championship and almost knock off Eau Gallie in the regional.

Sorry guys. It won't happen again. See you at the state tournament.

Sanford baseball fans will get a special treat on Saturday afternoon.

At 1 p.m., the Seminole alumni baseball team takes on this year's young upstarts. If you haven't been in Sanford the past five years, the alumni is loaded.

Pencil in Tim Raines, the National League's Rookie of the year (Sporting News) in the leadoff spot. Bat David Wiggins (San Francisco Giants) either third or fourth. The Smith brothers — Jean, Robert and Terry — will be in the lineup somewhere.

It may be a sunny day on Saturday, but more Raines are coming. Levi, who's always been a better hitter than Tim, will probably be somewhere in the infield. Ned, who's always been faster than Tim, will be somewhere in the outfield. Sammy, you might not know that Raines, he's just playing on his name. He'll be there somewhere.

"We're going to murder those guys," Wiggins promised the other day.

"They've only beaten us once," revealed Tim Raines. "And that was Dean Smith's fault. It seems that the alumni called on the portly lefthander for a few innings of relief, but Dean had trouble locating the plate."

About five weeks later, he found the plate, but one of the Seminoles lined his offering for a game-winning baseball."

Courageous McCray Bails Out Raiders

By JOE DeSANTIS
Herald Sports Writer

LAKE CITY — Seminole Community College accomplished in five minutes of overtime here Thursday night what it couldn't do in 40 minutes of regulation play.

Deadlocked with Santa Fe at 78-78 after two halves, sophomore Bruce McCray dragged an ailing leg off the bench and teamed up with Lonnie Jones and Eric Ervin as the Raiders outscored the Saints, 19-8, in overtime for a 97-86 victory in the semifinal round of the Mid-Florida Conference Tournament.

The win lifts the Raiders into tonight's 7:30 clash against host Lake City with a state tournament bid on the line. Lake City mauled Daytona Beach, 73-55.

SCC entered the semifinal showdown considered a favorite, but a horrendous start by the Raiders and solid play by the underdog Saints, spelled trouble for SCC from the outset.

The Raiders found iceicles hanging on their goal following the opening tip, and didn't score until the contest was four and one-half minutes old. Santa Fe took advantage by spurting to a 14-4 lead and set the tone for a night-long struggle for the Raiders.

Though SCC couldn't seem to buy a bucket early in the game, a strong pressing defense forced several Saint turnovers as Joe Sterling's squad slowly crawled back into the contest and managed to tie the score at 23 all. With four minutes left in the first half Ervin swiped a Santa Fe pass to feed Jones for a layup.

Santa Fe and SCC swapped the lead seven times before intermission with the Saints taking a 37-35 advantage to the locker room on guard Steve Morgan's shot at the buzzer.

Foul trouble plagued both squads when the second half began. And, as the seasaw battle grew older, so did the list of players who fouled out.

Holding a precarious 60-54 advantage with 10 minutes left, the Raiders were dealt a big blow when center Reggie Butler hit the bench with five personals. Through the first 30 minutes, Butler was the Raiders' singular factor on the boards, grabbing eight rebounds, while battling away six Saint shots.

With Butler gone and McCray on the bench with an ailing knee, Santa Fe roamed the middle at will and eventually tied the score at 70 all with 4:20 left.

The Saints spurted out to a 76-73 advantage with 1:23 left before Ervin swiped another pass and fed re-inserted McCray on a driving layup that resulted in a three-point play to tie the score.

Seconds later, Ervin snared another Saint pass and drove for a layup to put SCC in front, 78-76, with 30 seconds remaining.

But Walt Spurlin canned a quick jumper from the baseline for Santa Fe and when a Lonnie Jones shot at the buzzer went in then rolled out, the Raiders and Saints had to go overtime.

It was no contest in the extra five minutes. A courageous effort by McCray produced seven of his 15 points for the night, while Jones and Ervin teamed up for another 10 to nail down the victory and end the night-long battle.

Jones finished the night as the game's top scorer with 30 points and would have had quite a few more if the Raiders hadn't shot so poorly from the foul line.

JC Basketball

Jones hit on just 10-of-19 charity tosses, while the Raiders connected on only 25-of-47 free throws for the contest.

Ervin and Travis Filer chipped in with 16 points each. Santa Fe was paced by Dennis Smith's 16 points while Spurlin and Leafus Thomas had 16 each.

"I expected us to play better," said a relieved Joe Sterling. "As bad as we played, we were fortunate to win."

"I know the boys came out ready to play, they really wanted to have a good game tonight. I don't know what it was, just a lot of little things. We played tight in the first half and just couldn't seem to get a bounce or hit a foul shot or hit the shots we usually do."

With foul trouble on the horizon throughout the second half, Sterling was forced to go to a constantly changing lineup.

"We tried Bruce at the start and could see he was favoring the leg and couldn't do the job on defense," Sterling pointed out. "Then we got some people in foul trouble and they were killing us on the boards. We got to overtime and I'll tell you, it wasn't looking good."

McCray, Jones and Ervin quickly changed the picture for the Raiders in overtime, however, to wrap up the victory.

"Bruce did a super job coming back late in the game for us," said Sterling. "I think it was something personal for him. I'm not sure if he was mad at us for taking him out or even madder at Santa Fe, but he was a big help toward the end."

The Raiders square off in a rubber match against Lake City tonight at 7:30 with the winner advancing to the State Junior College Tournament at Stetson University in Deland next Thursday.

Lake City and SCC split regular season games. The Raiders took an 85-80 decision at Lake City, while the Timberwolves got even with a 78-73 decision at SCC.

"Lake City looked great tonight," observed Sterling. "Their rebounding is so strong and their scoring is balanced. Right now they're playing great basketball."

"We know we can play with them, we've shown we're capable of that in the first two games."

"If we're going to beat them, we have to play Raider basketball," he added.

Ronnie Rules Cage Court With Magical Moves

By SAM COOK
Herald Sports Editor

A few years ago, Oviedo varsity basketball coach Dale "Digger" Phillips was having trouble beating the junior varsity team during their daily scrimmages in practice.

Digger's varsity squad wasn't yet at full strength because the Lion football team was marching its way to a 12-1 season and a berth in the state 3A playoffs.

Leading that march was quarterback-defense back Troy Kessinger and fullback Mike Scott. Kessinger just happened to be the best guard on the hardcourt team and Scott supplied the muscle underneath.

Add to that, a slow rehabilitation period for star forward Horace Roland and you can see why Phillips was suffering a few moments of anguish when he threw out the ball and told the varsity and JVs to go to it.

When Digger sat down one day, however, he realized that a majority of the problem was missing the likes of Kessinger, Scott and a half-speed Roland. Another headache, though, was the play of a spindly 6-2 freshman named Ronnie Murphy.

"He was just killing us," Phillips remembers about his precocious freshman of two years ago. After a few more beatings at the hands of the junior varsity, Digger yanked his headache upstairs to the varsity.

"Then," he says with a large smile. "We never had any trouble beating the junior varsity again."

In fact, with the 6-2 future prep All-America, the Lions didn't have too much trouble beating anybody, much less the JVs. Murphy moved right into the starting lineup and has been there just about every day since. Now a junior and still growing, the 6-4, 205-pound leader is already the best player in Seminole County and maybe the best in Central Florida.

Ironically, it was the release of Ronnie's brother—Bernard—which gave the frosh his chance at the varsity. Bernard Murphy, a senior, had been a nine-point per game scorer for Phillips as a junior.

"When Bernard came out his senior year he had problems getting along with the other players. It got to be a morale thing and we just thought it would be better to get along without him," said Phillips.

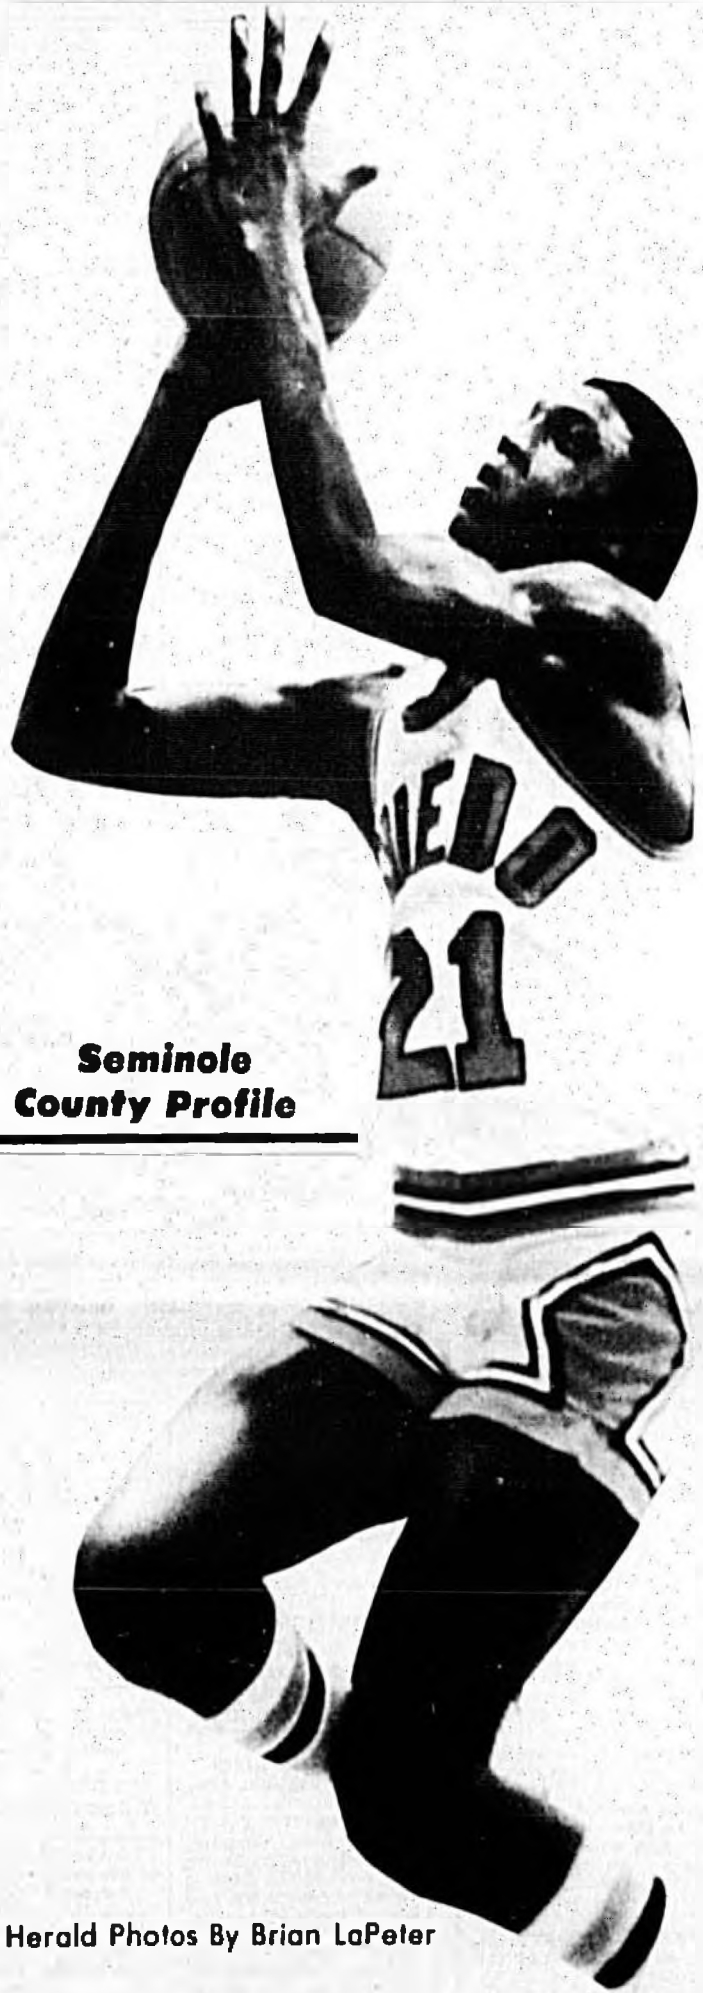

So, with the departure of one Murphy came another.

And this Murphy has been coming so fast, that Phillips envisions a career in professional basketball for the young phenom.

Already, Murphy has statistics that have an NBA look to them. He is averaging 25 points a game. The 6-4 jumper pulls down an awesome 18 rebounds a game. EIGHTEEN REBOUNDS a game, when one-half that figure would be great.

"That's really something isn't it?" nods Phillips. Murphy does this night after night despite being double and triple teamed. The Lions are pretty much a young team and all the defensive impetus is put on the graceful junior.

But what about the competition? After

Seminole County Profile

Herald Photos By Brian LaPéter

all, Oviedo is a 3A school. That's true, but it's a 3A school that has been beating up on the 4As for years and years.

Take a look at the Orange Belt Conference. There should be no less than five all-state performers from this grouping that includes Osceola-Kissimmee, Bishop Moore and Eustis.

Osceola's junior tandem of guard Jimmy McCrimmon and forward Frank Ford are both bonafide all staters. Eustis' 6-8 center Kenny Green was named on a preseason All America team. Bishop Moore's Greg Mullee was touted by some all-state teams last year and the 6-7 Hornets' stock hasn't gone down any with his 20-odd points and double figures rebounding this year.

Whether it be 3A, 4A or 10A, it would be very difficult to put up five better players from a conference than the Orange Belt. And, the remarkable thing is that McCrimmon, Ford and Murphy are all juniors.

And like a lot of great players, Murphy seems to have his best games against the best competition. Two weeks ago, he tossed in a career-high 44 points against Bishop Moore.

"I think playing against good teams like Bishop Moore helped me as a freshman," says Ronnie who recorded his first dunk in the Golden Dome that ninth grade year. "I didn't know whether to dunk it or lay it in. I was up so high, I just slammed it."

But Murphy is the best of the best. He combines all of the talents that an excellent basketball player has to have. He can run. He can shoot. He can pass. He can jump, boy can he jump. He can hit the boards with any of them. And more importantly, he can play defense, although he gets stretched kind of thin because the Lions have several deficiencies on that end of the court.

Murphy put his defensive critics to rest one night in Eustis. He took 6-8 Kenny Green head up, one-on-one and held the big standout to a mealy 10 points.

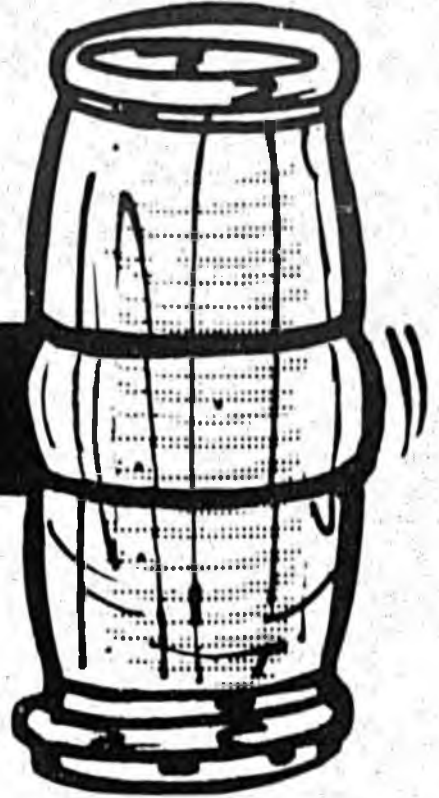

The biggest turnon with Ronnie Murphy though is when he comes down with the defensive rebound and takes off for the other end. In what seems like three steps he arrives. Then he passes off for a layup, pulls up and hits a 15-footer or scales the crowd for one of his rousing, backboard-ringing slam dunks.

It just takes your breath away to such mobility for a man his size. Or, such unselfishness for a young man so good. He probably could get away with less passing, and not a word would be said. But, that's not Ronnie Murphy. And it never has been.

"I've always liked to pass the ball," he said before a big game recently. "Sometimes it's just as exciting to see another guy score knowing that you helped him."

There came a time during the season, though, when these pinpoint passes were hitting slower teammates in the chest and not the hands. Not Murphy's fault, but just the fact that he was too good for his supporting cast.

It was during this time that the Lions dropped five straight games and the pressure got to the budding superstar. He scolded his teammates for their lapses. It was a time when he reminded Phillips of that other Murphy.

"Yeah, I could see a little of Bernard in him then," recalls Phillips. He was definitely feeling the pressure. Thank God he came out of it."

Murphy now realizes that his skills are beyond those of his teammates and he must take that into consideration before he talks. "I just shake it off now," says Murphy. "And tell them to catch next time. Good try."

Before Murphy and Phillips gaze longingly into the future of the big money a pro basketball contract might bring, the two have a disciplined structure set for his collegiate career.

Murphy likes to deal with computers. He hopes to have a future in that area. His grades in math and science were A and B, respectively. If the reserved junior can keep his grades at that C-plus average, he's going to have more than a few schools knocking on the Lion's Den next year.

Already there has been interest from all over the country. Georgia, North Carolina—Charlotte, Jacksonville, Iowa State, Toledo, Ohio State, Illinois, Western Kentucky, South Florida, Stetson, Florida and Tennessee.

Phillips has taken a fatherly role with his young standout. Murphy spends considerable time at the Phillips' house and the Digger is trying to channel his college effort in the correct direction.

Phillips entered Murphy in a typing class, hoping to prepare him for the exam papers that he will face in college.

This was one subject, however, that Ronnie is having a little trouble with. It's not a mental problem, now, it's just that his hands are too big to fit on the typewriter.

While these hands may have trouble hitting keys, they have no trouble finding the basket or an open teammate. They're a definite advantage on defense and rebounding, to where Murphy will sky heavenward, snatch the ball and outlet to an open teammate at the other end.

If there's one fault that Murphy does have it's his inbetween size. At 6-4, he could play either guard or forward. Of course, if he grows another two or three inches he'll be a natural forward.

Along with Phillips, Murphy lists his mother, Bessie, and ex-Oviedo guard Kurt Kline as his biggest influences. "My mother tells me, 'to go at it hard. Make something of yourself. Don't be like your other brothers.'"

Kline, a super playmaker on last year's team, has helped Murphy go at it hard. "Kurt helped me a lot last year with my ballhandling, especially my dribbling. He taught me how to go, for the open man," reveals Murphy.

Ronnie isn't even thinking about pro basketball right now. He'd like to see Oviedo win a state championship. If he had his choice, he'd like to go to UCLA or Indiana.

Phillips is not shy when extolling the virtues of his franchise. "By the time he's a senior he'll probably be able to go anywhere he wants," said Phillips. "We hear from a new school just about every day."

When asked to compare Murphy with past players or other players in the area, the Digger was just as outspoken.

"There's no comparing him to anybody else around here," he said. "Ronnie's head and shoulders above anybody he's played against."

And, you can usually find those head and shoulders somewhere around the run.

RONNIE MURPHY
...basketball's 'Magie Man'

MURPHY'S LAW — Just when you think Ronnie Murphy has done everything with a basketball, he amazes you again. He joined the Darryl Dawkins League at practice the other day.

The 6-4, 210-pounder was playing a game of 21 with some teammates. He went sky-high on a drive, slam dunked and then watched the backboard shatter into a million pieces.

For Saturday, February 20, 1982

YOUR BIRTHDAY
 February 20, 1982
 Dealings with members of the opposite sex this coming year should work out rather well in advancing your hopes and dreams. These involvements won't necessarily be of a romantic nature.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
 Be very, very careful today where joint ventures are concerned. A wrong choice could involve you with persons whose ethics are not on a par with yours. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in each of the seasons following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph, Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
 He careful today that you don't put yourself in awkward positions where you'll champion an unpopular cause or take a stance against unfavorable odds.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
 Instead of first setting the proper example today, you might tell others how to do this or that while doing the opposite yourself.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
 Be doubly careful today in business or investment matters. Don't jump into anything unless you're absolutely certain you have all the facts.

CANCER (June 21-July 21)
 In dealing with family members today, you could be a trifle too ambivalent to do any good. In some instances you may be too kind, in other too harsh.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
 Being industrious may not come too easily today. The spirit could be willing, but it might be hard to exert the necessary physical effort.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
 Should you feel inclined to give something of value to another today, try to do so in a way that won't make this person feel obligated or think there are strings attached.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
 You may run into some situations today which could cause you a degree of frustration. You must be careful not to take your animosity out on the undeserving.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
 You're very capable today. This will be evident to others, but perhaps not to yourself. Don't let negative thinking slow you down.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
 As always, you're likely to give in to your generous inclinations. Unfortunately, today you may be too kind to the undeserving.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
 Even though your intentions are good today, there's a possibility you could do things in a manner others will find annoying. Act tactfully...

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
 If the idea to be helpful originates with you, you'll treat others very kindly today. However, when demands are made of you, you may totally ignore them.

Diet Won't Help Osteoarthritis

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 78 and have osteoarthritis. I was wondering if it could be arrested by diet. Is there a danger of bones breaking suddenly? My knees bother me the most but don't ache. Would bone meal help? It started bothering me about eight months ago.

DEAR READER — Remember that osteoarthritis is degenerative arthritis, or wear and tear arthritis. It is the form of arthritis that most people develop if they live long enough. It tends to involve the weight-bearing joints such as the hips, knees and spine. It is not the same thing as osteoporosis (dissolving bones) which is associated with bony fractures.

If you have osteoarthritis, it is unlikely that you will have any spontaneous fractures but osteoporosis is the underlying cause of as many as 75 percent of hip fractures.

Maintaining adequate calcium intake is important in preventing and arresting osteoporosis (which really is not arthritis anyway) but it has no influence on the common form of osteoarthritis. Bone meal won't help.

In fact, the Arthritis Foundation and most doctors who specialize in arthritic diseases will tell you that there is no special diet to treat or prevent osteoarthritis other than measures to eliminate or prevent obesity. Obviously, since the arthritis is from wear and tear on weight-bearing joints the less you weigh the better for the joints involved.

There is a new fad that using a nightshade diet will cure arthritis. This assumes that tomatoes, potatoes and other "nightshade" plants are poisonous and eliminating them will cure osteoarthritis. That is total nonsense and it won't do a thing for your arthritis unless eliminating potatoes helps you lose weight. Like many other diseases that cannot be cured, many unfounded and false cures are foisted upon the public; so are other false cures for arthritis. Don't begin any arthritis treatment that has not been approved by your doctor.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-10, Osteoarthritis: Degenerative or Wear and Tear Arthritis. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My father, who is 83 and in good health, insists he read that older people who take baths or showers more often than twice a month die sooner. He has a prostate problem and leaks urine and cannot smell it on his clothes. He claims the odor is our imagination.

I am at my wits' end on how to get him to shower. Are there any statistics on dying because of showers? He dies have some hardening of the arteries.

DEAR READER — Cold showers may raise the blood pressure. Hot showers or hot tub baths may work the heart to help the circulation eliminate heat. At moderate temperatures, water will do neither and the only danger here is slipping in the tub or shower or having excess drying of the skin.

Tell him not to worry. And you might have him see an ear, nose and throat specialist about his ability to smell as well as a urologist about his prostate problem.

Sometimes older people stop looking after their appearance because they are depressed. The lack of cleanliness is a sign of depression.

Dr. Lamb

East's three heart opening is the desperado type bid made by some players who feel that any pre-empt is worthwhile when not vulnerable against vulnerable opponents. East's raise to four is a further pre-empt, but South is too strong to be shut out. North gets into the act by cue bidding hearts and the spade slam is reached.

South wins the heart with dummy's ace and plays trumps to find that West started with three of them. Even a desperado is likely to have seven hearts for a three level pre-empt so South counts the hand and marks West with just three cards in the minor suits. He cashes his ace of clubs and everyone follows. What should he do next?

The answer is to lead a diamond and duck in dummy. Now West is left with just one minor suit card.

If East leads a heart, South ruffs, leads a diamond to dummy's ace and finesse his 10 of clubs with certainty of success.

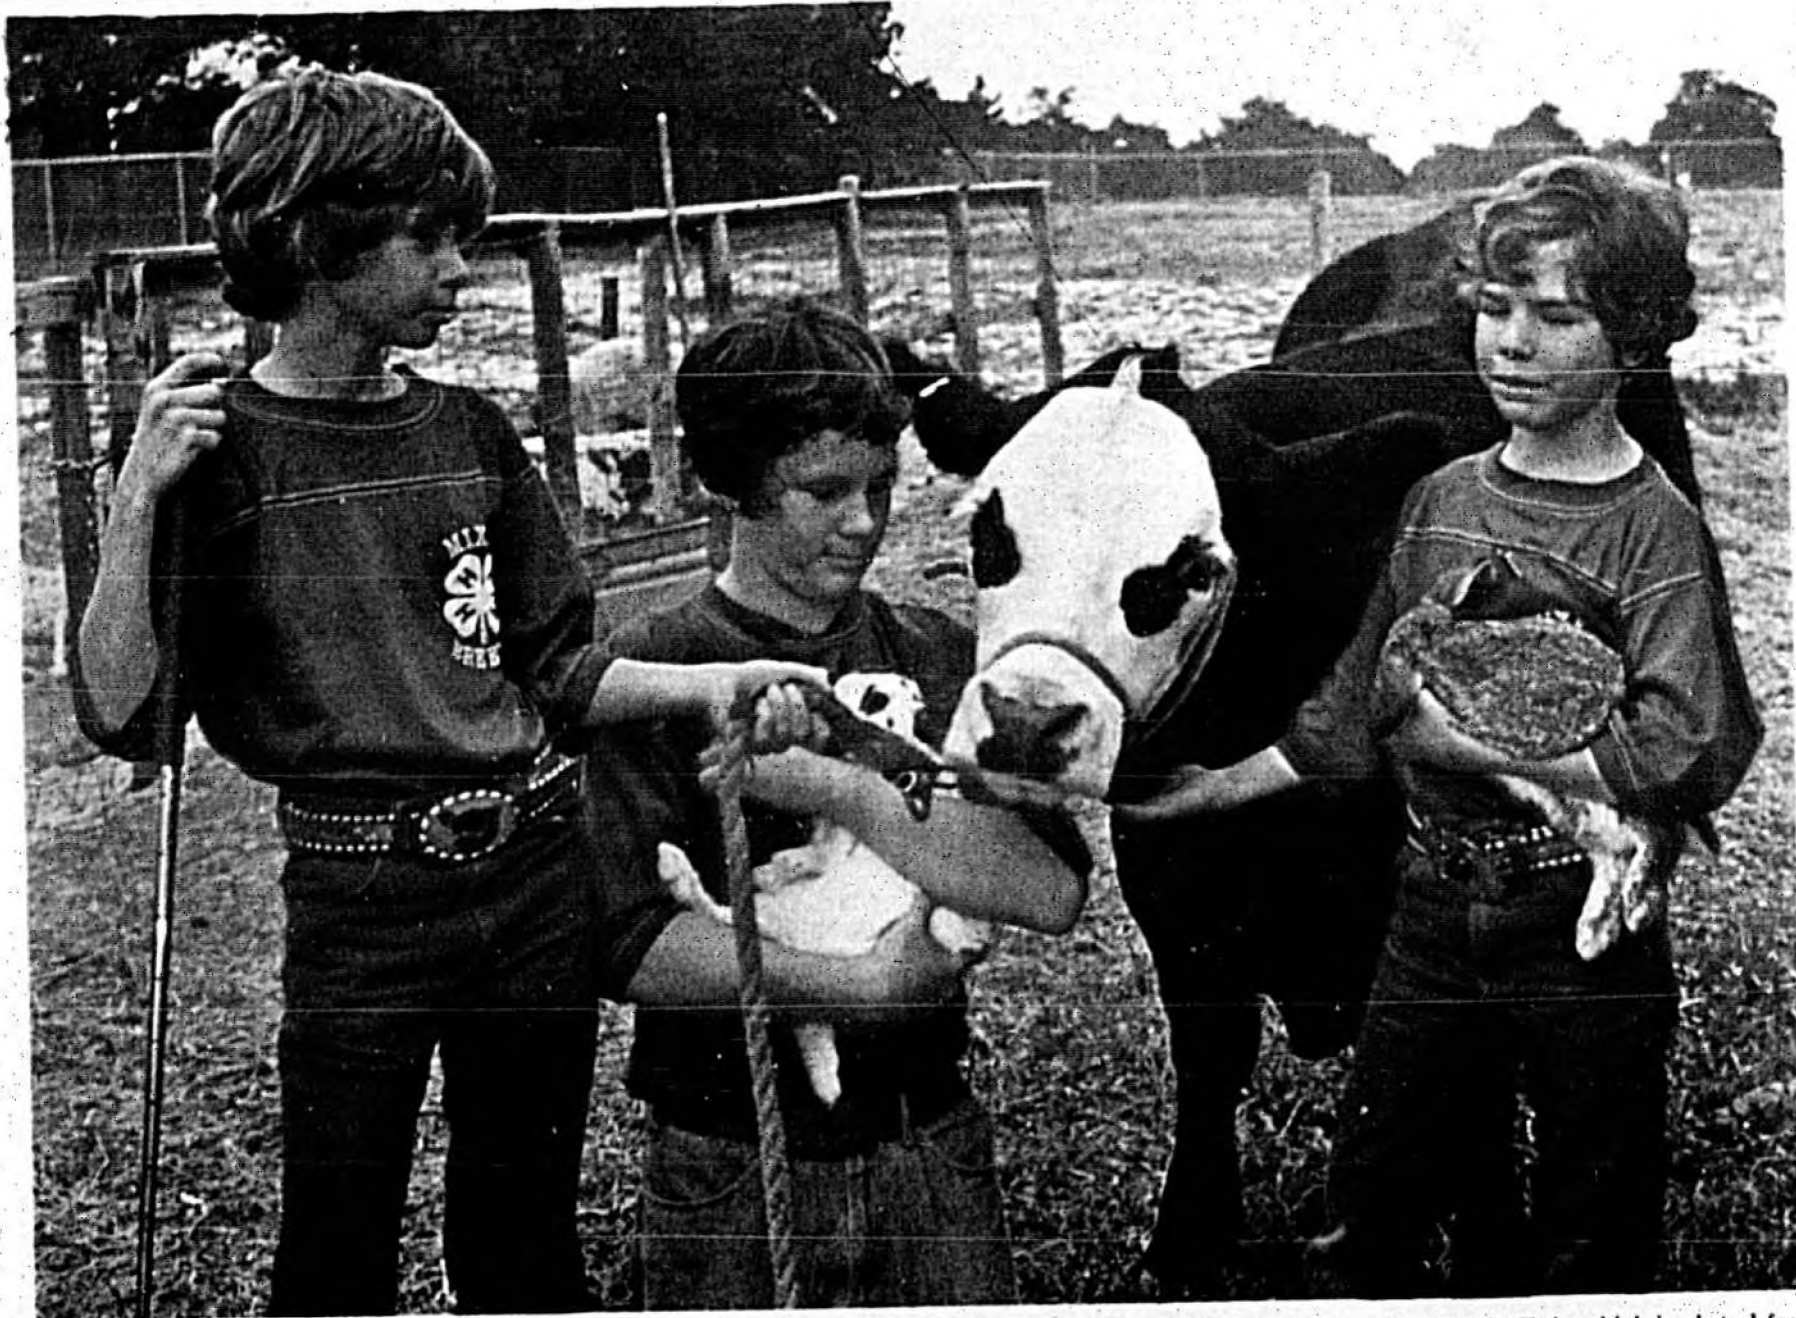

Suppose East leads back a club right away. South simply plays a high club. West shows out, but now South simply ruffs a club in dummy and the last heart back to his hand. Now he plays his last trump and East is squeezed in clubs and diamonds. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Kids And Their Critters At The Fair

By JANE CASSELBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

This year, for the first time in two decades, members of Seminole County 4-H steer clubs will be showing their animals at the Central Florida Fair which will be held Feb. 23-March 6 at the fairgrounds on West Highway 50 in Orlando.

Although 16-year-old Heather MacLeod, of Oviedo, has entered a steer in the fair for the past three years and her sister, Christy, 12, for two years, because there was no club in this county, they were forced to enter under the auspices of the Orange County 4-H.

This year, they are members of the "Mixed Breeds" 4-H Club of which Mrs. Gay McIntosh is the leader. the McIntosh family lives on Big Mac Farms, situated on Lake Jessup between Winter Springs and Oviedo, with an assortment of animals — pigs, geese, pheasants, rabbits, a ferret, a dog, and cattle, among others.

Despite all those critter distractions, Mrs. McIntosh's son, Robert Vaughn, 11, has for the last six months, been concentrating his efforts on his Angus-Herford steer, "Big Deal." Brother Richard, 10, meanwhile, has been readying his pure bred rabbits.

Another club member, Alan Green, 12, of Chuluota, plans to exhibit his rabbits at the fair, too.

All three say they are excited about competing in the 4-H livestock competitions for the first time.

"My mom mentioned steers and when we went to the fair I decided to get one," says Robert, a sixth grader in Jackson Heights Middle School. "I got mine for $415. He's 13 months old now and weighs about 900 pounds. I hope to have him up to 950 by show time.

"It takes up to 42 lbs. of feed a day to fatten up the steer to the proper weight to show," according to Mrs. McIntosh. "You start with 10 lbs. a day and work up to as much as he will eat. The only time the steer goes out of his stall is when Robert takes him out. He has to walk "Big Deal" around at the rate of two acres an hour with no less than one hour a day."

For Richard, the hardest part has been learning to hold the rabbits and he's had the scratches to prove it. It takes him about an hour a day to groom, feed and water his animals. Breeder rabbits cost around $25; standards, $15. The rabbits are only judged at the fair, not sold. Richard will breed his rabbits, keep the best of the litter and sell the rest. What they can't sell winds up on the dinner table.

...Raising Animals For Show And Sale

Feb. 27 will be 4-H Day at the fair and Seminole County 4-Hers will be presenting various demonstrations and will have an exhibit in the 4-H and Future Farmers of America pavilion.

Rabbit show judging starts at 8 a.m., Feb. 27. Steers are checked in at the fair on Feb. 21.

Members of 4-H and FFA will compete in the Youth Beef Show for ribbons and prizes on Feb. 23 and 24 beginning at 7:45 p.m. On Feb. 25, at 7:30 p.m., the steers are marketed at an auction open to all buyers.

It is at the auction that the youngsters learn if all their hard work and investment in time and money have paid off... whether they have lost money, broken even or have a little nest egg after expenses for next year's project.

It also means saying goodbye to steers that they have raised and bled for so long knowing it will end up on someone's dinner table, so sometimes a few tears are shed.

Seminole County Agricultural Extension Agent Frank Jasa is overall advisor for the 4-H steer program.

Youngsters interested in the 1983 Central Florida Fair should contact the 4-H office at the Seminole County Agricultural Center at Sanford for help in obtaining a steer by August 15. To join a club, youngsters may call the 4-H office at 323-2500 and they will put them in touch with the leader in their area. National 4-H dues are only 10 cents. First official weigh-in for the steers entered in the fair is in September.

4-H'ers have the sole responsibility for caring for their steer. This means figuring out what and how much to feed the steer, feeding, watering, measuring or weighing the animal to make sure it is gaining properly, worming, cleaning out stalls and buckets, brushing, bathing and grooming, exercising, and keeping a record of the project.

It takes nearly $1,000 to buy and raise a steer for market, according to Jasa. Competition will be tougher this year as the numbers of entries has doubled over last year. The steers brought a good price at the 1981 fair and it stimulated interest, he says.

The minimum weight for entering a steer in the Central Florida Fair is 850 pounds, maximum weight, 1,250 pounds.

To assure a good price for their steers, it is necessary for the 4-H'ers and their leaders to line up buyers willing to commit themselves to bid on the animals (either a specific steer or one from the county).

More sponsors are still needed for this year's sale. Under certain circumstances, the cost of purchasing a steer can be tax deductible. More than one person or business can join together to buy a steer.

"We're not asking for a profit, just to break even," says Mrs. McIntosh. "It's a learning experience to fit out a steer for market. We will have to get $1.20 a pound to come close to breaking even."

Whodunnit In 1946 Thriller 'The Big Sleep'?

Q. The question of "whodunnit" would seem to be one of the vital considerations of any mystery movie, but I don't remember ever hearing the all-important answer to the question in the movie "The Big Sleep."

Who did it?

A. No one knows. The question of who killed Owen Taylor in the 1946 thriller was never resolved.

The star of the film, Humphrey Bogart, noticed the omission and asked the director, Howard Hawks. Not sure himself, Hawks asked William Faulkner, who helped write the screenplay.

When Faulkner didn't have the answer, Hawks wired the author of the novel, Raymond Chandler. When Chandler facetiously replied, "The butler did it," Hawks gave up.

Q Today "Roxy" is almost a cliché name used for movie theaters. Where did the name come from?

A. Surprisingly, it was the nickname of a baseball player in Pennsylvania. Samuel Lionel Rothafel (1882-1938) earned the handle "Roxy" because "Rothafel" was simply too much of a mouthful for his fans to shout.

Q The extensive re-editing done on the recent movie

"Heaven's Gate" was well-publicized, but have there been any other movies that needed so much careful re-editing?

A. One stand out in particular, but the editing job was less than "Careful." The film was "Lost Horizon," which was released in 1937, but only after the director,

Frank Capra, burned the first two reels when the preview audience laughed where no laughs were intended.

Barbara Rush Adores The Prime-Time Soaps

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — The prime-time soap operas go marching on — "Dallas" and "Dynasty" and "Flamingo Road" and "Knots Landing" and all the rest of them. They are undeniably entertaining, but who would have thought that anybody would say they had lasting social value?

That somebody is Barbara Rush who, as Eudora Weldon, is a major part of the success of "Flamingo Road" on NBC. And she says that in two areas — perhaps not areas of great significance, but still worth noting — these prime-time soaps are changing the face of America.

"Most of them," she says, "are concerned almost entirely with wealthy families. I guess 'Knots Landing' is the only exception to that. And so the people on shows like ours are able to wear nicer clothes than on the average TV show."

Barbara Rush has always been one of the most elegant ladies on the Hollywood scene. You will never catch her with so much as a hair out of place, even when you see her walking around the Beverly Hills streets. So appearance and clothes mean a lot in her scheme of things.

"Remember when we were young," she says, "and we would go to the movies just to see what the ladies were wearing? That doesn't happen with movies any more. Films like 'Blue Lagoon' and '10' have ladies not wearing anything at all.

"But now, on shows like ours, clothes are very important. We dress to kill."

She says they have a wonderful wardrobe department, overseeing what she and Morgan Fairchild and the other ladies on her show are wearing. She cites the work of the department's head, Shirley Cunningham, and her "marvelous" dresser, Karen Davis, as doing noble work to keep her looking her best.

Her second reason for feeling that the prime-time soaps are making a positive contribution is in the area of employment. She says shows like "Flamingo Road" and "Dynasty" and "Dallas" are giving a lot of acting opportunities to "women like me — not ingenues any more."

BARBARA RUSH

"The other prime-time shows, the sit-coms and such," she says, "are primarily aimed toward younger audiences and so they feature younger actors. But our audience is from many different age groups, so there is room for older actors."

Miss Rush, hardly to be considered ancient, still manages to cut one of the most glamorous figures around. She is, as always a genuine beauty and it's high time she was recognized as such.

That recognition has come to her from publisher Robert Ringer, who has asked her to write a book about beauty and health hints for the older woman.

Proctor & Gamble Halts Dark Trademark Rumor

Ask Dick Kleiner

DEAR DICK: A friend of mine told me that a representative of Proctor & Gamble was on Phil Donahue's show and said that the symbol on their packages is for the occult. Could you please verify this? KAREN COLLINS, Ventura, Calif.

It is funny — and dangerous — how dumb rumors sweep across various parts of the country from time to time. Donahue's people tell me this wild rumor is confined exclusively to the West Coast. It is totally untrue — nobody from P&G was on the show. They have gone through every show for the past year, thinking maybe the so-called "representative" may have been in the audience. Nothing. P&G is disturbed because the rumor alleges the company's trademark has satanic connotations. They say it isn't true — the 13 stars (inside a circle with the man in the moon) stand for the original 13 colonies, nothing sinister at all. The P&G trademark dates from before the Civil War.

DEAR DICK: A year ago, the movie "Tribute," starring Jack Lemmon, was advertised in our paper. It was scheduled to come to one of our local theaters. What has happened to that eagerly-awaited film? B. MERTZ, Williamsport, Pa.

Unfortunately, it didn't turn out to be as good as we all expected it to be. It came and went like a shadow in the night — and you'll have to see it some time on TV, perhaps.

DEAR DICK: Do the Muppets on "The Muppet Show" work by a string or what? GLENDIA BAYS, Pierceton, Ind.

No strings. It's camera trickery, but the basic idea is more puppetry — hands and arms inserted in a doll and worked from below — than anything else.

DEAR DICK: What can you tell us about an NBC made-for-TV movie, "Pigs Vs. Freaks," starring Tony Randall and Grant Goodeve? It was filmed in Salem and Corvallis, Ore., in August and September of 1980. Is it ever going to be shown? R.H.L., Vancouver, Wash.

You missed it. The network aired it on Nov. 11, 1980.

DEAR DICK: You probably think this is silly, since I'm a married woman with three children. But I feel sillier because this is the first time this has ever happened to me. I got hooked on "Flamingo Road" and the main reason is the man who plays Sam Curtis. I'd like to know his real name, age and anything else you might have on him. MRS. HUNSANGER, Warren, Mich.

Nothing silly about being a fan. Sam Curtis is played by John Beck, who is married and a father. The 6-foot-2 inch, 185 pound Beck was born in Chicago. He's a veteran actor who has been in many movies — "The Other Side of Midnight," "Rollerball" and "Audrey Rose" among them. He is 40, or thereabouts.

DEAR DICK: I would like to know if Henry Fonda was in a movie in the '40s called "The Male Animal." PAUL E. POZNICH, Weir, Kan.

Yes, he was. The 1942 film, which also starred Olivia DeHavilland and Jack Carson, was a comedy about a professor, his wife and an ex-football hero.

DEAR DICK: When did Con Conrad, the songwriter, pass away? Did he personally or with others compose the music and/or the lyrics for "The Continental?" What else can you tell me about him? G.J.M., Tucson, Ariz.

Conrad — really Conrad K. Dober — died in '38. He wrote many songs, with his biggest hits being "Ma, He's Making Eyes at Me" and "Prisoner of Love." He won an Oscar for "The Continental" in 1934. He was the composer, with the lyrics written by Herb Magidson. Conrad wrote with many fine lyricists, including Billy Rose and Buddy De Sylva.

DEAR DICK: Why don't we ever see the man who sings the Lowenbrau beer commercials? Why can't he sing in person so we could see him? A man with a voice like that should be seen as well as heard. I.A.S., Cheyenne, Wyo.

John Denver Hosts Grammys

John Denver will host the annual Grammy Awards telecast on CBS, Wednesday, Feb. 24.

The 1982 ceremonies mark the 24th anniversary of the Grammy Awards and Denver's third appearance as host. The recording artists who will be featured as performers or presenters on the "24th Annual Grammy Awards Telecast" are, in alphabetical order, Peter Allen, The Archers, Burt Bacharach, Pat Benatar, Christopher Cross, Jackie DeShannon, Al Green, Al Jarreau, Kenny Loggins, Ralph McDonald, Anne Murray, Stevie Nicks, Lionel

Richie, Carol Bayer Sager, William Salter, Rick Springfield and Bill Withers. "Rock & Roll Dreams"

The emergence of a newly formed rock'n' roll band is detailed visually and musically in a one-hour Project Peacock presentation, "Rock & Roll Dreams," on NBC's Peacock Showcase Sunday, Feb. 21.

The group, which eventually chooses the name The Innocents, includes Michael Hurt, lead singer; Marten Ingle, base guitar; Tommy Newman, keyboards; Tony Kowalski, lead guitar; and Chris Kaye, drums.

In the documentary-style approach, the special focuses on the various behind-the-scenes aspects of launching a new rock 'n' roll group, as the dream becomes a reality: the selection of a name; creative conflicts over the size of the group; an album-cover session with rock photographer Norman Seeff; a conversation with a former rock star, Billy Guy; business meetings; wardrobe planning; attendance at an Albert King performance and some personal advice from him; a recording session; and, finally, a public performance at Madame Wong's, a club in Los Angeles' Chinatown.

Warren as showgirl

Caesars Palace, the hotel-casino in Las Vegas, will be the interior and exterior location for "Jillian: Portrait of a Showgirl," a made for television feature film for CBS.

The Robert Hammer Production, which is being filmed this month, stars Lesley Ann Warren in the title role and co-stars Tony Curtis and Rita Moreno.

Over 50 television movies and variety specials have been filmed and taped at Caesars Palace over the past decade.

SUNDAY

Al Pacino is a young attorney who desperately cares about the people he defends in "...And Justice for All," to air Sunday, Feb. 21 on ABC.

MONDAY

Suzanne Somers strikes a pose during her musical show, "The Suzanne Somers Special," staged before an audience of 6,000 sailors, to air Monday, Feb. 22 on CBS.

Miller's 'Price' At UCF

The University of Central Florida will honor playwright

Arthur Miller during the Arthur Miller Theatre Festival this spring.

The University Theatre presents, "The Price," a drama set among the cobwebs of an attic in an old Manhattan brownstone where two brothers come to terms with the conflicts of their past.

"The Price," which premieres at the university campus March 18, will open at 8 p.m. March 18, 19, 20, 25, 26 and 27 with a special matinee performance on Sunday, March 21 at 2 p.m. Senior Citizens are encouraged to take advantage of the discount ticket price of $2 at the matinee performance only. General Admission is $3. UCF students and their dates will be admitted free with a current ID card.

For further information and reservations call the University Theatre at 275-2861.

Stars Who've Risen Above Typecasting

By RUTH THOMPSON
Here's that old question again: Is typecasting a killer for an actor? Now, here's a new question: Have times changed? If so, has it increased the actor's options? In my interviewing of English actors, I've always asked them to pick America's greatest actors; the names mentioned most often are Marlon Brando and the late Edward G. Robinson.

Robinson's great fame came from the tough gangster and/or other rough-diamond types that made him a Hollywood movie star. Late in his career, more rounded roles came his way (as the dual-role scientist-spy in "The Prize" and as the mellow senior in "Song of Norway"). But the actors who give him accolades did so on the basis of what they saw in the gangster films. Most of them weren't around when he first earned plaquards on stage, in Shakespearean roles.

The Robinson face was deemed that of "a character actor" even when he was very young. In Hollywood that ruled out the romantic roles. Now the term does not rule out glamour, even among females.

Glenda Jackson, in television interviews earlier this season, blessed her luck in not being born too early to get good roles of such a wide range as the fiery Elizabeth I of England and the recent television ducodrama about another fine actress, Patricia Neal, in which Jackson reenacted Neal's ordeal of learning to move and to speak again after a massive stroke.

Miss Jackson is trim of body and magnetic of personality, she is stern about no-frills hairdos and she lets the gums show above her teeth when she smiles. All that didn't diminish her image one whit, however, as the sarcastic but sexy divorcee in "A Touch of Class," the movie costarring George Segal, which did well at theater box offices and is now making the rounds on television.

Somebody with the classic good looks of the ideal leading man, Anthony Andrews, could have had the problem of not being able to "stretch" and play bad guys and neurotics. Andrews, now in his 30s, looks even younger and is charmingly modest. He doesn't describe himself as a leading man — he just says that when offered the role of Charles Ryder, the narrator and eventual romantic lead, in the nine-week "Brideshead Revisited" on PBS, he opted instead to play the tormented and self-destructive Lord Sebastian Flyte.

"Brideshead," he says, is the role that should increase his options for the future so that producers would think of him for heavy dramatic roles — but still not rule him out for what he calls the "fun" parts, the latest of which stars him next week (Tuesday, Feb. 23 on CBS) in the title role of "Ivanhoe."
