Altamonte Pays Off For Accrued Police 'Comp Time'

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

Six proverbial skeletons have been laid to rest in Altamonte Springs, to the tune of $23,391.80.

City Manager Jeff Etchberger told the City Commission on Tuesday night that with a payment of $6,391.80 to Police Officer Clifton Chellev for accrued compensatory time, "We can close the files and put this matter to rest."

The commission unanimously approved payment of the back pay to Chellev, the final of six payments to police officers to cover accrued compensatory time earned before the city adopted a policy prohibiting accumulation of hours from year to year.

"In prior years, the city's policy concerning compensatory time or overtime was that it could be accrued but there was no date for forfeiture," Etchberger said. "Because of that policy, we have found that six police officers did accrue compensatory time and must be paid for it."

However, he said the city devised a formula for partial payment of the accrued time which he said was acceptable to the officers and saved the city about $60,894.

"The payment to Officer Chellev represents 804 hours at $7.95 per hour," Etchberger said. "Under the formula, we paid about 28 cents on the dollar. The officers were agreeable, because if you consider the cost of going through the courts and paying the lawyer his cut, they would have ended up with about the same amount we were offering. They recognized this and were willing to take what we offered."

Among those police officers paid for accrued compensatory time are: James Perry, who received $3,800 for 478 hours; William Doyle, $6,968.86 for 1,024 hours; William Cornaz, $1,181.20 for 300 hours; and Fred Roberts, $4,050 for 675 hours.

Etchberger said. Chellev and Perry are currently employed by the Altamonte Springs Police Department, while the others have sought employment elsewhere, he added.

"Jeff (Etchberger) has taken care of the matter and put in safeguards against such things happening again," said Mayor Ray Ambrose following Tuesday's commission meeting.

"There was an obvious and gross mismanagement of that police unit during the time when the compensatory time was allowed to accrue, but it appears the situation will be avoided in the future."

"I personally am happy to see the bottom line of a saving to the city of $60,894.04," said Commissioner Lee Constantine.

Had the city been forced to pay the entire amount of money owed to the officers, the cost would have been $84,285.90 for 16,602 accrued hours, Etchberger said.

"The Supreme Court ruled in 1976 that Congress did not have the power to regulate the hours and pay of municipal public employees, such as county or city employees," said Frank Govett, of the U.S. Department of Labor, Wage and Hour Division, Tallahassee. "We could not require them (the city) to pay it. However, there could be other policies, such as a city policy or a labor-contract policy, which could require payment."

"How I wish we hadn't had a policy back then," Etchberger said. "Then we would not have had compensatory time accrued, it wouldn't have been on the books, and this wouldn't be an issue. But we had a policy. The only bad thing is that we didn't have a forfeiture policy — a clause that said by such-and-such a time the accrued time must be taken off the books and not accrued from year to year."

Altamonte Police Officer 'Mature,' Psychologist Says

A required psychological examination of Altamonte Springs Police Lt. Richard Laese has determined the 10-year veteran officer to be "mature" and "capable" of performing his assigned duties.

"Lt. Laese's examination results will not be made public because that information is confidential between the officer and the Orange County Sheriff's Department's staff psychologist," said Lt. James Younger, the city's interim police chief. "However, John Cassidy (the staff psychologist) has indicated that Lt. Laese is a mature individual and a professional police officer capable of handling the problems that modern law enforcement demands of a lieutenant."

Younger said Laese will not be required to attend further psychological counseling sessions because "only one session was required by the city manager."

City Manager Jeff Etchberger required Laese to undergo psychiatric counseling to improve communications skills with subordinates following allegations of administrative misconduct against the police officer in February. A two-week investigation by Younger, who is also a member of the Winter Park police department, revealed no basis for the charges against Laese.

"Cassidy told me he would have no problem or reservations at all about Laese's ability as a commanding officer," Younger said. Younger added that Cassidy also said that if Laese were a lieutenant with the Orange County Sheriff's Department he would have no reservations concerning his ability as an officer.

Younger said he regards Laese as a "professional and honest officer of the highest integrity" and that no evidence has been offered to change his attitude or opinion toward the lieutenant.

"If the chief is satisfied (with the psychological report), then I am satisfied," said Etchberger.

Michael Jones, Laese's lawyer, declined to comment concerning the report, saying he has not seen it and has not spoken with Laese concerning the matter. — TENI YARBOROUGH

School Controversies Clergyman Blasts Sex-Education Class...

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

The Rev. John Butler Book said today he will ask the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare to withhold federal funds from the Seminole County public schools because of what he called a "violation of parents' rights."

Insisting that federal law requires parents to be notified in advance and given the opportunity to approve or refuse permission for their children to be taught sex education, the Rev. Mr. Book said the law is being ignored at one of the middle schools in the county.

And Mrs. Karen Hart, 235 Hayes Road, Winter Springs, said her son, Michael, a sixth grader at South Seminole Middle School, was shown a sex-education film in recent weeks without her permission. Mrs. Hart said the film, shown in Mrs. Rebie Hammond's sixth-grade health class, "showed changes in the human body as it becomes sexually aroused."

She said the film was shown in a mixed class of boys and girls. Mrs. Hart said she went to the school and viewed the film herself. "It wasn't quite as bad as the children described it. Still, I didn't consider it something a sixth grader should see," she said.

At the same time, Jack Campbell, assistant principal at South Seminole Middle School, said Mrs. Hammond hasn't changed the curriculum of the health class in several years and that no other complaints have been received. "If a parent is concerned about curriculum, he or she should come in and sit down and talk to us," he said.

At the same time, Campbell said, Principal Sidney Boyette would have to be present at any conference with Mrs. Hammond, and Boyette is busy working on an auditing committee. Mrs. Hammond and Boyette could not be available together for a conference until next Thursday, Campbell said.

"My concern is that they comply with the law before the fact," said Mr. Book today. "The fact is that the law says a parent must give written permission before the film is shown." Mr. Book is an evangelist with the Northside Church of Christ and the Northside Christian School, both in Altamonte Springs.

He said that in addition to bringing the matter to the attention of Richard Schweiker, U.S. secretary of health, education and welfare, he will send a copy of his letter to U.S. Sen. Paula Hawkins, who has indicated her opposition to sex education in the public schools.

When Mr. Book tried to bring the

REV. JOHN B. BOOK
... he wanted to talk

ROLAND WILLIAMS
...he rapped the gavel

matter to the School Board's attention Wednesday night, Chairman Roland Williams rapped him out of order. Williams said the minister had merely asked permission to speak on the issue of controversial materials.

In a confrontation between Williams and the clergyman after the meeting, Williams said school policy requires that anyone wishing to speak to the board go through a screening with School Superintendent Bob Hughes first.

The Board in March 1981 adopted a procedure calling for persons wishing to speak before it to make their wishes known in writing to Hughes.

Mr. Book said that while he is "vociferously opposed" to sex education in the public schools, the opposition does not extend to the usual biology or anatomy classes taught to high school students.

"I'm talking about secular humanism stating that premarital relations are not necessarily to be condemned — the new concept of teaching without morals. These classes can be more provocative than preventative. It's a philosophy of life contrary to the Judeo-Christian ethic," he said.

He added that trying to get an answer out of Hughes is like "trying to nail a custard pie to the wall."

Hughes said Wednesday night that sex-education classes are not being taught in the county's public schools.

...Policy On Debated Materials Delayed

The adoption of a proposed policy outlining procedures for parents to complain about controversial materials used in the county's public school system was delayed again by the School Board on Wednesday night.

This time the issue of "ing the delay was the composition of an advisory board to review parents' and other residents' complaints.

The controversy on the new policy itself has been going on for several months, specifically about whether residents will have input into whether controversial materials will be used.

And Board member Allan Keeth has championed the cause for citizen input.

Keeth's opposition Wednesday night revolved around a section in the proposed policy involving the appointment of a countywide committee to review complaints.

The proposed policy says that if a resident's objection to materials is denied by a committee at a school, he can request a review by the superintendent of schools.

"A county wide committee of school personnel and lay citizens will be appointed by the superintendent of schools to evaluate the materials being questioned and make recommendations concerning the materials," the policy says.

Keeth questioned the number to be placed on the committee and the ratio of school personnel to lay people on the committee.

A second sentence in the proposed policy also got Keeth's attention. The sentence says, "If the citizen's objection is denied by the superintendent and his committee, the citizen may appeal to the School Board."

Keeth wanted the word "his" removed, saying it implies the committee wouldn't be impartial.

"The implication is that the committee is in his (School Superintendent Bob Hughes') pocket," Keeth said, asking whether Hughes will be a member of the committee.

Keeth suggested the matter be referred back to Hughes and the staff to consider the concerns expressed.

Board members Nancy Warren and Roland Williams voted with Keeth to table the proposal, while Bill Kroll voted against it.

The Rev. John Butler Book, evangelist at the Northside Church of Christ and the Northside Christian School in Altamonte Springs, urged the board to change the proposed policy to have the School Board appoint the committee.

The Rev. Mr. Book said that for "an honest review, we need citizens appointed by the School Board and not the superintendent. We don't want the inmates running the institution," he said.

"The citizens of Seminole County would like to get the feeling that the superintendent and the School Board want input other than money, pupils and their vote on election day from the citizens," he added.

School Superintendent: 'You Take This Job And...'

CRESCO, Iowa (UPI) — Norman Blake not only rejected a raise, he decided to quit his job as superintendent of the Howard-Winneshiek Community School District in style.

Fed up with School Board member Harry Kitchen's opposition to his policies, Blake sat in on a board meeting, punched a button on a tape recorder, and put it up to Kitchen's head.

The machine played the tune "Take This Job and Shove It."

Blake, who earns $40,000 annually as superintendent in the northeast Iowa town, told the board and about 600 people who attended the meeting he won't be back next fall.

"In my eight months in the district Mr. Kitchen and I have not seen eye to eye on any issues," Blake said after playing the song. "I've found I can not agree even to disagree with him and that made it difficult for me as superintendent of the school district."

The board had offered Blake $7,500 in raises over three years and a tax-sheltered annuity-claim in his new contract, but he decided it was time to move on.

Herald Series To Start Sunday

Today's wife. Unlike her counterpart of many years ago, she's doing a myriad things...she's working, cooking, sewing, raising children, pursuing an education.

Still, there are those who prefer the traditional role of marriage: taking care of their children and their households.

Beginning Sunday, the Evening Herald takes a look at women as wives in different situations in a four-day series. Those who are married to high-risk men — firemen and policemen — and how they cope; a look into the life of a woman who lost her husband unexpectedly after 28 years of marriage...how she views his death, how she's managing.

The series takes us into the life of a divorcee, a bachelorette, a minister's wife, a widow, a rancher's wife, a newlywed, and a woman married for 61 years.

What's it like to be married a second time? What do marriage experts at Seminole Community College see as the need for better relationships?

For one thing, they see women as having been forced out of a specialist role of mother-wife into a dual role of mother-wife and worker.

They see the need for women to be more of a partner in all areas of the marriage, and the need for husbands to share duties and responsibilities with their wives.

Says one of those experts: "Women are in control of their situation now more than ever as they have become better educated. Yet although they are on top of their status, they are not free of the male-dominated sexual politics. There has to be a trend toward working together — men and women working, compatible and sharing — or there will surely be total destruction of the labor market, family, and perhaps all concerned. Woman is learning the politics involved and forming coalitions in spite of the current odds."

Read how these wives describe their lifestyles beginning Sunday in the Evening Herald.

NATION IN BRIEF

Administration Mum On Covert Nicaragua Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Administration officials will neither confirm nor deny a report that President Reagan has approved a covert action plan against Nicaragua which one congressional critic called a "virtual declaration of war."

The Washington Post reported that Reagan authorized a $19 million program to destabilize the leftist Nicaraguan regime, which the administration says is aiding guerrillas in El Salvador.

U.S. Cuts Aid To Libya

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. ban on oil imports and most trade with Libya is described by U.S. officials as a calculated attempt to hurt, but not destroy, the Libyan government of Moammar Khadafi.

The ban on Libyan oil, under consideration for more than a year, and the prohibition on the sale of high-technology gas and oil equipment was announced Wednesday by the State Department.

Public: 'Rewrite Budget'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than 60 percent of people surveyed said Congress should make considerable changes in President Reagan's budget, a poll released today showed.

The Washington Post-ABC News poll, reported in today's editions, also showed more than 40 percent of those surveyed had doubts the president's program will boost the economy. They believe, instead, that Reagan cares more about cutting taxes for the rich and eliminating social programs than he does about ending the recession.

Belushi Died Of Overdose

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Comic actor John Belushi died of an overdose injection of heroin and cocaine — a drug combination known as "hard-balling," Corner Thomas Woguchi says.

"The medical investigation into the death of John Belushi has been completed," he said late Wednesday in a brief official statement. "The deceased died of an overdose due to intravenous injections of heroin and cocaine."

Tenants Protest Evictions

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Tenants evicted to make room for cash-rich World's Fair tourists should refuse to leave their homes until the sheriff throws them out on the street, a tenant leader said Wednesday.

About 1,500 tenants already have been evicted by landlords preparing to charge higher rates for the 11 million tourists expected to visit Knoxville for the fair, which runs from May 1 to Oct. 31.

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT: Winter weather made way for spring across much of the nation today and the Southern tier of the country basked in up to 80-degree temperatures from coast to coast. A cold front still lingered over the Northern Plains. The comic winds that some had forecast would sweep the Earth from the "Jupiter Effect." Planetary alignment never materialized Wednesday and the weather actually moderated, giving a sign spring was just around the corner. Freezing temperatures — a holdover from the chain of fierce early March storms that killed 26 people in a week nationwide — continued to grip northern Minnesota and northern North Dakota. A travelers advisory was issued for eastern North Dakota, where freezing rain was expected to fall. Light snow was scattered throughout the Northern Plains, the Great Lakes region and the Northeast and a cold front spread rain across the northern California coast. The Chicago area received another late-winter spread of snow.

Marital Spat Leaves 1 Shot, 1 Jailed

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

A Sanford woman is listed in satisfactory condition at Seminole Memorial Hospital and her husband has been jailed following a shooting in the couple's home early this morning.

Sandra Barber, 35, of 1600 W. 8th St., was admitted to the hospital this morning for treatment of a gunshot wound to her left arm, hospital officials said.

Curly Barber, Jr., 39, the same address, is being held on $8,000 bond at the Seminole County Jail on charges of aggravated battery and use of a firearm in the commission of a felony in the 1:08 a.m. shooting, Sanford police said.

Barber was arrested after police responded to a disturbance at the couple's home and were told by Mrs. Barber that her husband shot her with a .25-caliber handgun, police reported. Police said the couple were arguing when Barber went into the master bedroom, retrieved the gun and reportedly shot Mrs. Barber.

SUBSHOP ROBBED AGAIN

Robbers knocked a Sanford sub shop manager unconscious and stole an undetermined amount of money from a cash drawer at about 9:45 p.m. Wednesday, marking the shop's third robbery in recent weeks.

Police said two men entered Gabriel's Sub Shop, 2415 S. French Ave., and while one man talked to night manager John I. Montange, the other slipped up behind him and knocked him unconscious.

The thieves then stole an undetermined amount of money from the cash drawer and fled, police said.

Montange said he was hit on the back of the head with a broom handle.

"I really don't know too much about the robbery though," Montange said. "I think some of the guys from the shop next door found me and called the police. I don't know. They (the police) told me what happened."

COINS, CIGARETTES TAKEN

Thieves broke into an Altamonte Springs man's home sometime between 4:28 p.m. Wednesday and 12:20 a.m. today stealing $30 worth of coins and four packs of cigarettes.

Walter J. Sims, 31, of 391 Spanish Trace Drive, told deputies the doors and windows of his home were locked and that there were no signs of forced entry.

CAR VANDALIZED

An Orlando woman's car, parked in the parking lot of a Fern Park bar, was vandalized at about 2 a.m. today.

Dancer Cynthia Kay Thompson, 29, of 4907 Deauville Drive., told deputies she had parked her car in the House of Babes parking lot, U.S. Highway 17-92, and when she returned she discovered someone had broken into her car, and caused about $300 damage, deputies reported.

Deputies said the culprits had broken the turn signal device, light switches and had tampered with the steering wheel of the 1981 Buick Skylark.

TRAILER BURGLARIZED

A Casselberry man's trailer, stored at the Green Acres Campground off State Road 431, was broken into sometime between March 3 and 10:30 a.m. Wednesday, and a stereo and fire extinguisher were stolen.

Kenneth N. Carson, 61, of 145 Valmore Drive., told deputies the trailer door was pried open, and an AM-FM stereo and fire extinguisher was stolen, deputies reported.

Von Bulow Murder Case To Jury

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Justice Thomas H. Needham told the von Bulow attempted-murder jury Wednesday when they enter the little jury room today the time will have come "to hark back to my sponge analysis."

Needham had told the seven men and five women weeks ago they should be like sponges in the trial of the Danish aristocrat, Claus von Bulow, and just soak up the evidence without making up their minds until it was all in. "Tomorrow," he now told them, "you begin to squeeze the sponge."

He said their deliberations would begin around noon today after he had finished his charge on the law to them. That would include an explanation of circumstantial evidence — the kind the state has.

The state has tried to prove through 23 days of testimony the defendant, 55, attempted twice to kill his wife, Martha "Sunny" von Bulow, by injecting her with insulin. The state contends he was driven by love for another woman and lust for his $14 million inheritance.

The judge's charge also would define "reasonable doubt." That is what the jury must not have about his guilt if it is to convict. Otherwise it must acquit.

Wednesday, the opposing attorneys spoke.

The prosecution: "With her death, he could be free — living splendidly, lavishly with the woman he loved on the money, the wealth, of the woman he had murdered."

The defense: "Would this man have murdered Cosima's mother? He would have borne all the wrath of hell rather than do anything to harm that child's mother."

The jury was to take with it into the deliberation cubicle 71 state and 46 defense exhibits, plus the crowded memories of the complicated medical and personal testimony of 50 state and 12 defense witnesses.

Cosima is the daughter, now 14, of Claus and Sunny von Bulow. Her mother lies in a coma the state contends was caused by insulin injection on Dec. 21, 1980. Her doctors say she will not recover.

The defense admits von Bulow had an affair with a Park Avenue beauty, but says it was not a motive because von Bulow and Sunny already were discussing divorce.

The judge told the jury before he sent them home Wednesday: "What counsel says is to assist you in crystallizing your thoughts. It is not evidence. It is your recollection of the evidence that must govern."

"Don't make up your minds as you drive home tonight. Keep an open mind. Don't discuss the case. Avoid reading the newspapers." Then he told them they could squeeze the sponge today.

Legislative Horse Trading In Fight Over Sales Tax Hike

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Angering Republicans, House leaders have found $8 million to wave in front of Senate President W.D. Childers as an inducement for Senate passage of a sales tax hike.

The $8 million was set aside Wednesday for a new civic center in Childers' Escambia County as part of a $10.2 billion state budget approved by the 'ouse 78-39.

The hitch: the civic center, long sought by Childers, would be contingent upon the sales tax hike becoming law.

The House voted 80-39 late Tuesday to increase the four-cents-on-a-dollar sales tax by a penny with the $770 million in resulting revenues shared equally by the state and local governments.

Senate Appropriations Chairman Jack Gordon said his chamber will take up the tax hike next week but will probably provide less money for state government than the House and force local governments to use much of their new funds to reduce property taxes.

The House earmarked the local government funds for property tax relief but gave local elected officials an out to use the money for other things after holding public hearings.

House leaders rushed through the $8 million civic center appropriation — known in legislative parlance as a "turkey" — as a budget amendment, prompting Republicans to complain loudly that the vote was taken before copies of the proposal were passed out.

"It seems to me it's a lot of money to be spending without knowing where it is coming from," protested Rep. Tom Woodruff, R-St. Petersburg.

Under questioning by GOP members, House leaders disclosed that the $8 million — and $4 million for an extra 300 prison beds — came from at least $12 million left uncommitted by the appropriations committee.

Republicans said they had known nothing about this "slush fund" and asserted that never before had House leaders concealed the availability of extra money from House members.

House leaders denied this, saying budget-writers always leave some funds unappropriated for use with bills passed later in the session.

"Nobody's trying to hide any money or sneak it through," said Rep. Jon Mills, D-Gainesville, an appropriations subcommittee chairman.

Rep. Tom Bush, R-Port Lauderdale, said the civic center money should have been spent on criminal justice.

"I would have preferred to see the $12 million spent in turkeys today spent on police officers instead," he said.

The House budget increases money for state law enforcement agencies and provides $385 million annually to cities and counties, with much of that money certain to go for crime-fighting.

Senate President Pro Tempore Curtis Peterson blasted the House's tax increase and budget plans during a brief Senate discussion of financial affairs, saying it has $250 million too much for state government and doesn't guarantee tax relief.

CABLE CAPER

Thieves broke into a southeast Seminole County woman's home sometime between 8:25 a.m. and 1:15 p.m. Wednesday and stole her cable channel selector and control box from her television.

Irene Leblanc, 37, of 3630 Mango Court, near Goldenrod, told deputies the thieves also entered an unlocked utility room, but apparently didn't steal anything.

TV TAKEN

Thieves broke into a Sanford woman's home sometime between 10:05 p.m. Saturday and 11:15 p.m. Wednesday, and stole her 12-inch black and white television.

Priscilla Ann Bradley, 22, of 1704 W. 13th St., told police the thieves opened an unlocked window in her living room, reached in and stole the set which was valued at about $200.

TEENAGER CHARGED

A 16-year-old Deltona youth has been charged with first-degree murder in connection with the beating deaths of a DeLeon Springs couple.

Mariano Junior Garcia is accused of being the partner of Cuban boatlift refugee Ruben Torres, 29, of Deltona, in the killing of Audias and Evelyn Palmo.

The couple was reportedly beaten with a baseball bat during a robbery, according to police. Their bodies were found Monday.

Torres is being held without bond in the Volusia County Jail. Garcia was turned over to juvenile authorities.

PANES-TAKING BURGLARS

Burglars removed two window panes from a Sanford man's home at about 6:03 a.m. today, entered the house and stole a ladies' purse.

Norris Woody, 27, of 2824 S. Park Ave., told police the purse, which belongs to his wife, contained $45 cash, car and house keys, a checkbook and other personal papers, police reported.

Arrests Coming In 'Blue Jeans' Cocaine Seizure

MIAMI (UPI) — The attempt to smuggle 3,748 pounds of high grade cocaine into the United States as an air shipment of blue jeans was so blatant it should lead to some arrests soon, federal Drug Enforcement Administration spokesmen said today.

The shipment from Bogota aboard a Colombian cargo airline Tuesday led to the largest single seizure of cocaine in the United States — a cache worth at least $175 million wholesale and nearly $1 billion if it had gone into illegal retail street sales.

No arrests were made immediately, but Customs agents confiscated the Boeing 707 jet, one of two airplanes belonging to the Colombian air freight company Tampa Airlines (Transportes Aereos Mercantiles Panamericanos) that has operated between Miami and South America since 1979.

"We do expect, within a short period of time, that some arrests will result from the seizure," DEA spokesman Con Dougherty said Wednesday.

"An employee might sneak a carton onto a plane, but it just seems that 21 cartons of cocaine can't be loaded on and off without some operator knowing what's going on," said Robert N. Ballard, Custom's regional commissioner.

Dougherty agreed, saying rarely do smugglers "so blatantly" ship cocaine into this country.

"Supplier and distributors in this country must have obviously thought they would get it through or else they would never have sent it in the manner in which they did," Dougherty said.

The DEA had tipped Customs officials two weeks ago to be on the lookout for an air cargo shipment of cocaine. The tip proved fruitful when Customs inspectors dug into 48x24x18-inch cardboard boxes intermingled with other boxes labeled blue jeans. The cocaine seizure was four times greater than the previous U.S. record of about 850 pounds.

"We're talking about close to $1 billion in retail coke, and Florida has about a $10 billion drug industry," Dougherty said. "I would say this is going to take a pretty sizeable chunk out of that."

Death Squad Murders Priest

TUXTLA GUTIERREZ, Mexico (UPI) — A right-wing Guatemalan death squad crossed the border to beat and strangle a Mexican priest who sheltered Guatemalans fleeing violence in the war-torn country, officials said.

The bishop of San Cristobal de las Casas, Samuel Ruiz, said he feared the killing would be the beginning of a bloodbath to keep religious figures from helping Guatemalan refugees.

Police said Hipolito Cervantes, 35, was found strangled Monday in the town of Mapastepec in Chiapas, a state 98 miles from the border with Mexico. His hands and feet were bound and his body showed evidence of a severe beating.

"They beat his head with a statue but he died by asphyxiation," a police officer said, quoting a coroner's report.

Asked who killed the priest, Fernando Rodriguez Alcazar, director of investigations for the Public Ministry in Tuxtla Gutierrez, said, "We presume right-wing paramilitary groups from Guatemala."

Rodriguez Alcazar said witnesses reported the assassins apparently were members of the Death Squad and the Secret Anti-communist Army, both obscure rightist groups widely believed connected with the Guatemalan police and army.

Cervantes was known as one of a group of priests in the frontier region who help peasants and other poor Guatemalans flee to Mexico to escape political violence in their country, which has cost 3,000 lives in the last year.

Anzio Vets Meet This Weekend

The Anzio Beachhead Veterans of World War II will hold their third annual reunion in Orlando this Friday and Saturday evening at the Hilton West on State Highway 50.

This is the 38th anniversary of Operation Shingle, the code name for the amphibious landings in the Anzio-Nettuno area on the west coast of Italy, some 30 miles south of Rome.

The only membership requirement for the two-year old association is to have served in or with the Allied forces on land, sea or in the air over the beachhead anytime during the period Jan. 22-May 25, 1944. At present, there are nearly 400 members.

The reunion festivities will begin with a cocktail party Friday evening in the hospitality room at the hotel. Complimentary tickets for Rosie O'Grady's will be available.

On Saturday, the meeting will begin at 10 a.m. The banquet will be at 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

Reagan Losing Support In Florida, Survey Shows

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Public support for President Reagan is waning in Florida, according to the director of a Florida State University public opinion survey.

The survey, conducted in late January and early February, shows GOP gains in popular support in the early months of the Reagan Administration have not continued into early 1982.

Bail Bondsmen Get Reprieve

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The House Insurance Committee has voted to give the commercial bail-bond industry two years to clean its own house while a proposed commission studies the effects of implementing a public bail system.

A bill (PCB 10) passed by the committee Wednesday would, in effect, put off a decision on whether to replace the current system. And it would impose stricter controls on bond forfeitures, collateral and licensing.

Fourth Launch In June

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — With the space shuttle Columbia set to blast off on its third orbital mission in 11 days, officials now are talking about sending the big-winged rocket ship back into space in late June.

"We have been very pleased with the flow of progress," launch director George Page said Wednesday, discussing preparations for the March 22 liftoff.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Nicaragua Calls For World Pressure To Throttle CIA

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Nicaragua's political parties united in a call for worldwide support to help stop a reported CIA plan to pay mercenary commandos to raid Nicaragua and sabotage its economy.

"We call on the governments of the world, political parties and union organizations to use their good offices to detain the U.S. economic, political and military imperialist aggression," a communique from the Sandinista Front said Wednesday.

Guatemalan Politics Deadly

GUATEMALA CITY (UPI) — An opposition leader said the names of three defeated presidential contenders were on a "death list" and police found the body of an assassinated legislative candidate.

The leader, Union Secretary General Henan Quinones, said eight poll watchers from his coalition "disappeared in El Quiche" province during the Sunday voting the government election commission said was won by the official candidate, Gen. Anibal Guevara.

Non-Whites Get The Blame

LONDON (UPI) — Scotland Yard touched off a racial furor with a report blaming more than half of all London's record number of street crimes on the relatively small number of non-whites.

Black community spokesmen immediately challenged the Wednesday report by Gilbert Kelland, assistant commissioner for crime in charge of London's detective force.

In the Yard's first racial breakdown of street crimes, non-whites were identified as assailants 55.42 percent of the time. By comparison, published reports said only 13.8 percent of the city's population is non-white.

Senate Committee Move Could Be First Step

Will Abortion Become Illegal Again?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Amid words of hope and fear, Congress has taken a big step that ultimately could lead to a legislative reversal of the 1973 Supreme Court ruling that legalized abortion.

But the proposed constitutional amendment, which would give states a greater voice in the emotion-laced issue, still faces a long and arduous road.

By a vote of 10-7 Wednesday, the Senate Judiciary Committee sent to the full Senate the proposal that would allow Congress and each state to restrict abortion.

For a proposed amendment to become part of the Constitution, it must be approved by a two-thirds vote of both chambers of Congress, then be ratified by three-fourths of the states.

Dr. J.C. Wilke, president of the National Right to Life Committee, said the committee vote was "a major victory ... and a milestone in the campaign to restore legal protection to the most defenseless members of the human family."

The National Abortion Rights League, which has campaigned against the measure, said "we continue to be astounded at the willingness of public officials to ignore what is clearly the will of the American people."

Katherine Agard, executive director of Planned Parenthood Southeastern Pennsylvania, said:

"This legislation appears only to defer to the states, but it actually paves the way for a patchwork quilt of laws and even for complete criminalization of abortion by overturning the 1973 Supreme Court decision."

Under the proposal, sponsored by Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, Congress and the states would be permitted to restrict abortions. Whichever law, state or federal, was more restrictive would prevail.

Sponsors maintain in practical terms state laws would likely be the toughest.

Several senators who voted with Hatch expressed strong reservations about his proposal. Some said they did so because they wanted to shift the debate to the full Senate.

Given the amendment's allowance for both congressional and state laws, Sen. Alan K. Simpson, R-Wyo., said it would assure "we have effectively ... forever saddled ourselves with the abortion question at the federal level."

Simpson said he preferred to leave the matter to the states.

Chairman Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said he agreed with Simpson and would seek to amend the proposal on the floor. Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., also said the amendment raised unspecified "serious problems."

Also pending in the Senate is a bill sponsored by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., that would give fetuses limited constitutional rights by defining human life as starting at conception.

Whether Helms would now support the Hatch amendment, or still push his own bill, was not immediately certain.

A 'Nightmare' In Plains

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Susan Clough, back in Washington after making the move to Plains, Ga., with former President Carter, insists she was not fired as Carter's secretary for telling a story about his personal life, it was reported today.

In an interview with The Washington Post, Ms. Clough, a 37-year-old divorced mother of two, described life in Plains as "a nightmare."

The Post, citing unidentified former Carter advisers and staff members, said Carter asked her to resign as his secretary and special assistant, "a decision partly provoked by an evening in Washington's La Fonda restaurant."

table — a story about personal matters involving the former president and his wife. A friend called Carter several days later. A day after that, she was out of a job," said the Post.

"Oh beans," was her response. "I was not fired. When I left, it was best for both of us." She added in the interview her departure was a "mutual decision" over a difference of opinion.

"Yes," she said, "we had a conversation about what had been misinterpreted and conveyed to him (Carter). Someone thought I was going around saying something unpleasant."

She said the parting with Carter was "difficult. The closer you are, the harder it is ... but it was evident both to me and the Carters that this was not what I wanted to do with the rest of my life."

Ms. Clough said in the interview that when Carter talked to her near the end of his term about working for him later, she assumed it would be in Atlanta.

"But he said, 'Now Susan, I really have been worried about whether you would like Plains.' And I'm sitting there thinking, 'My God, he said Plains. He didn't say Atlanta, he said Plains,'" she said, adding that Carter told her he thought she'd like it.

"And I said, 'Mr. President, how many eligible bachelors are there in Plains that you think I would enjoy being with — or would enjoy being around me?' And he did not hesitate in his response. He said, 'Well, there's a military base nearby, isn't there.'"

She said she went because she felt her work with Carter was not finished.

"It was," she told the Post, "a nightmare down there."

'According to people who were there, Clough told a former staffer — at a crowded table — a story about personal matters involving the former president and his wife. A friend called Carter several days later. A day after that, she was out of a job.'

'Mickey Mouse' Has Tax Troubles

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — An unemployed laborer serving a five-year sentence for running a refund tax mill from a Missouri federal prison has apparently filed four more false tax returns from his Florida prison cell.

George Turner, 56, of Chicago has filed more than 200 false income tax returns, including one that earned him the nickname "Mickey Mouse" because he used the name Michael Rodent and listed the Mouseketeers as dependents.

Turner currently is serving a five-year sentence at the Tallahassee, Fla., prison for pleading guilty in Nashville to filing false income tax returns.

The government lawyer who prosecuted Turner in October said the Internal Revenue Service has received four false 1981 income tax returns seeking refunds in the past month from a Mr. George Turner.

"The returns all indicate that 'taxpayer' Turner's address is P.O. Box 1000 P.M.B. Tallahassee, Fla., which just happens to be where George Turner is incarcerated," said a court document filed by Assistant U.S. Attorney Bob Washko.

Ross Alderman of the Federal Public Defender's office has asked a federal judge to reduce Turner's sentence "because he has demonstrated that he is capable of carrying out his tax schemes from within the federal prison system."

Alderman argued that putting Turner in prison cannot be certified as an effective means of removing Turner from society.

Williams Consults Bible As He Considers Quitting

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Amid reports Sen. Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., will resign today, the four-term senator would only say he was considering it and consulting the Bible for guidance.

Williams, convicted in the government's Abscam corruption investigation, was asked by reporters during a break in his Senate trial Wednesday if he would step down now that the mood of the chamber seemed to be expulsion.

"I don't know, I'm going back to the book of St. John, Chapter 8, Verse 7 and think it over," said the 62-year-old senator.

John 8:7 says: "So when they continued asking him, he lifted up himself, and said unto them, he that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her."

CBS News quoted a "senator close to Williams" as saying Williams would resign this morning.

Senate Republican leader Howard Baker set the stage today for a vote on a substitute resolution to censure, rather than to expel Williams.

If it failed, as expected, and Williams refused to resign, an expulsion vote was likely to be held Friday.

Several sources confirmed that Democratic colleagues were pressing Williams to resign and that the censure vote, earlier planned for Wednesday, was postponed to give him another night "to sleep on it."

From head-counts, speeches and declarations, it is known that at least 60 senators favor expulsion. A two-thirds vote — 67 — is needed.

Williams' already uphill struggle to remain in Congress took another big setback Wednesday during the fifth day of his Senate trial as fellow New Jersey Democrat Bill Bradley and four other Democratic colleagues announced they would vote for expulsion.

"Some of my colleagues have said to me they believe censure would be a more appropriate remedy," Bradley told the Senate. "But the issue here is not a minor one."

"It is at the core of Democratic government — the faith people extend to political institutions," Bradley said.

He said a senator should reject the recommendation of the Ethics Committee — which unanimously supported Williams' expulsion — only if the finding is not supported by evidence or is inconsistent with the standards of the Senate.

"Nothing in this case, I am sad to say, suggests such exceptions to me," Bradley said. "I will vote for expulsion."

In rapid fire succession, Democratic Sens. Patrick J. Leahy of Vermont, John C. Stennis of Mississippi, George J. Mitchell of Maine and David H. Pryor of Arkansas, joined Bradley's position.

"I know what I didn't do," Williams told reporters later. "I didn't break any laws."

Tuskawilla School Costs Running Way Over Budget

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

A $3.6 million cost estimate, some $500,000 over budget, for construction of the proposed Tuskawilla Elementary School caused a delay in School Board approval Wednesday night of the schematic plans for the new facility.

The board called a special meeting for 1 p.m. Wednesday to study the school's preliminary plans, prepared by architects Watson and Co. of Winter Park.

And board member Nancy Warren made it clear she is not willing to approve plans which call for a lot more money to be spent.

A representative of the architectural firm warned that delaying approval of the schematics could mean the school would not be finished in time for the 1983-84 school year.

The plans, once OK'd by the School Board, must be sent to the state Department of Education for approval.

The School Board increased property taxes by $3 per $1,000 assessed value last year to raise some $5 million for various capital improvements in the school system.

The planned improvements included not only the Tuskawilla School, but also an elementary school to be built in the Sanford area and an addition to T.W. Lawton Elementary School in Oviedo.

Hugh Carlton, the school administration's director of auxiliary services, said he is not "real enthused" about the Tuskawilla plans as presented. He said that conferences will have to be held with the architects to bring down the price tag.

The proposed plans have the school plant entirely under one roof. But, Carlton noted, unless the state Department of Education grants a waiver, the plans will not be approved.

He explained that state regulations require 10 percent of each classroom be window space. The proposed plans call for no windows, he said.

"With more window space, it costs more to air condition and heat the classrooms," Carlton said. The theory behind the state regulations is that windows could be opened if the air conditioner breaks down, he said.

The school will be located on 10 acres of a 35-acre school-owned parcel off Tuskawilla Road near Gabriella Avenue.

Once construction begins, the school should be completed within 13 months. The facility will house 750 students in kindergarten through fifth grade.

In other business, the School Board gave tentative approval to a plan by the Lyman Boosters Club to have lights installed at the baseball diamond at the Longwood school.

School Principal Carlton Henley said when the lights are installed, Lyman will have the only lighted baseball diamond in the county, and one of the few in the state.

Henley said the Boosters' Club will pay $9,500 annually for four years on a lease-purchase arrangement for the lights and in the fifth year will pay $1,800.

School Board Attorney Ned N. Julian Jr. was instructed to prepare the documents necessary to allow the Boosters to take full responsibility for the lights and the costs.

'No Retreat' Deadlock...

In contrast to the extraordinary collaboration between the White House and Congress last year, which produced a stunning series of tax and spending cuts, the President's new budget remains frozen in apparently hopeless deadlock. The impasse centering on a predicted $90 billion deficit has created about as much disaffection among Republicans as did Reaganomics earlier among Democrats.

Although the budget debate commands an inordinate amount of national attention even to the neglect of other challenging problems, it drags on and on. No one seems to be in a hurry. The Democrats, looking to the November elections, believe time plays into their hands, and so they have not come up with an alternative budget package. Ironically, most of the budget initiative on Capitol Hill has been from concerned Republicans, some of whom are breaking ranks and joining Democrats to propose higher taxes as the best way of reducing the deficit. As for supporting deeper cuts in federal spending, Republicans are about as scarce as Democrats.

Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., influential GOP chairman of the Senate budget committee, would address the deficit by reducing defense spending to 5 percent above inflation, by freezing most domestic spending, and by eliminating cost-of-living increases in Social Security benefits and government pensions this year; he would also raise taxes $122 billion during the next three years. Even Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker joined the hue and cry for higher taxes the other day with an appalling suggestion that a special surtax be piled on the individual income tax.

Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker gave dramatic support to a spending-freeze budget alternative such as that suggested by Sen. Domenici by predicting it would produce a substantial drop in interest rates. Mr. Volcker knows he cannot deliver interest rates on demand. But he also knows that the principal reason for high market interest rates is fear of inflation and he sees interest rates coming down with the declining inflation rate.

Amidst these conflicting economic forces, President Reagan's victory over inflation is too often overlooked or underestimated. The inflation rate went down from 12.4 percent in 1980 to 8.9 percent in 1981 and for the last three months of last year was only 5.3 percent. The scant 0.3 of a percent in January works out at an annual inflation rate of only 3.5 percent. Interest rates are already a percentage point below their mid-February peak.

Indeed, Federal Reserve Board members are saying economic recovery is likely by this summer. A strong rebound could melt as much as $50 billion from the deficit.

President Reagan, therefore, has good reason for staying the course, as he says, and for selling his economic program in a vigorous personal campaign across the country. He has made it as clear as he can that, come deficit or defeat in Congress, he will not compromise on his defense-rebuilding program or the 25 percent tax cuts enacted last year. In this he is on solid ground. The personal tax cuts are barely enough to prevent bracket creep from increasing the share of income paid in taxes. Moreover, Mr. Reagan remembers Herbert Hoover's bitter experience in trying to tax a depression into prosperity. And, about defense spending: The U.S. spent 5 percent of its gross national product on defense in 1980 compared with 10 percent in 1960 in a time when spending for social programs was doubling to 6.9 percent of GNP. Moreover, the administration is emboldened by a perception of broad public support for its basic tax and defense policies.

Within the current budgetary deadlock, then, negotiations must center on reducing entitlements, which are running some $431 billion this year or about 60 percent of the budget.

BERRY'S WORLD

"I presume, if this federal spending freeze goes into effect, you'll be leaving me for someone in the private sector."

A curriculum advisory committee named by Seminole County School Superintendent Bob Hughes to study whether high school graduation requirements should be increased locally has been meeting on the issue for months.

But before it can make its recommendations to the School Board, new state law may be adopted mandating new requirements.

The Florida Legislature in 1978 abolished all state requirements for high school graduation, leaving those standards up to each county school system.

However, a commission on secondary schools, named by Gov. Bob Graham, has recommended the adoption of state standards to "give Florida the highest academic standards of any state in the nation."

The commission's recommendation would require "all high school students to:

—Complete four years of English.

—Complete three years of mathematics including one semester in microcomputer literacy.

—Complete three years of science with two courses having a laboratory component.

—Complete three years of social studies including one year of American history, one year of world history, one semester of economics and one semester of American government.

—One semester of practical arts selected from: typing, business, industrial arts, home economics, vocational education.

—One semester of fine arts selected from music, dance, theater, painting, sculpture.

—One semester of personal health including nutrition, parenting, drug education.

—One semester of physical education.

The total requirements would be 15 credits.

Currently, graduation requirements in Seminole is 19 credits total, with 14 of them above the ninth grade level. The 10 required courses include three years of English, two of which must be in grammar, composition, literature or vocabulary; one year in science above grade 9; two years in social studies with one year in American history and at least 30 hours of Americanism Vs. Communism; and two years of physical education. The remaining nine hours are electives.

Andy Bracken, the county's director of secondary education says if the requirements recommended by the governor's commission go into effect a lot of Seminole County prospective graduates couldn't meet them.

"A lot of students just can't meet college requirements," he said, warning that the result would be that many students would quit school and some others wouldn't be able to graduate.

Space Efforts Foolish?

Here's a story with everything — good news and bad news, and a dateline 20 million miles away.

It is the Soviets' successful soft landing of a spacecraft on Venus. If nothing else, it demonstrates that contrary to the message we have been hearing from some quarters, they have something on their minds other than wiping us out at the earliest opportunity.

It is, of course, much more. It is a first-class scientific achievement that will add greatly to man's knowledge of his living space that he is gradually extending into space.

Venus has had other visitors from earth. The Soviets have made two other landings. And an American probe, still orbiting, has made the first radar maps of the planet's surface.

But this one is different, a sophisticated automated laboratory equipped to take color photos, analyze soil samples and carry out other tests on the cloud-shrouded, baking-hot planetary surface.

For the American scientific community, the good news is that the Soviets will share, or so they say, information relayed from Venus.

For the American space program, the bad news is that the Soviet success comes as U.S. efforts are slowing down.

Project trimming under way for several years has been accelerated by the current budget bind. Projected cuts now include switching off the existing Venus orbiter, which was originally programmed to continue transmissions through 1992, and canceling a follow-up Venus mission.

Still on the schedule are the Galileo probe of Jupiter's system and atmosphere, the Voyager probe of the outer planets and the delay-plagued space shuttle flights.

Space enthusiasts are, naturally, not happy with the cost cutting. They can make a good case of the pound-foolish variety.

In the two decades since inception of the all-out effort to put an American on the moon, the space program has not only enriched science itself but had an immense and beneficial effect upon the economy.

The billions poured into the Apollo program alone had a stimulative effect on the computer, semiconductor and aero-space industries that brought them to a current state of their arts that they could not otherwise have expected to achieve in so brief a time span. These are the very high-technology fields that are the hope of the American economic future.

There have been other spinoffs that have become so familiar or are so prosaic that Americans take them for granted — in everything from medicine to lightweight fabrics and digital clocks to tougher, longer-lasting paints.

By this reckoning, the space effort in the long run has not cost Americans anything but paid for itself many times over. But it is difficult to sell that to accountants preoccupied with the short-run bottom line. Unless there are some totally unexpected changes in Washington attitudes and policies, Americans can expect to be observers of rather than participants in most of the coming space spectacular.

It can, of course, be argued that the Soviets are merely catching up. Their Venus craft is doing essentially nothing that the American Mars lander hasn't been doing since 1978. (Although it should be noted that since 1981 private funds have been raised to finance continued contact with and analysis of data from Viking I on the Martian surface.)

Where are we both going from here?

There's A New Twist In Filing Lawsuits

WASHINGTON — Americans have become increasingly lawsuit-happy in recent years. The courts, already overburdened by legitimate legal actions, are being swamped by nuisance suits that have no business on the docket.

As an investigative reporter, I've had my share of legal threats from corporations and individuals whose particular os I've gored. They rarely get beyond the grumbling stage.

Now I've discovered a new wrinkle in the litigiousness that is sweeping the county — the lawsuit instigated behind the scenes by a third party with an interest in the outcome.

Sworn statements filed in connection with a recent lawsuit against ABC News show that the legal action was prompted by the nation's largest seller of cancer insurance, which had been criticized on a television series by the defendants. Yet the company, American Family Life Assurance, of Columbus, Ga., was never a party to the lawsuit.

The plaintiff was a Virginia insurance agent whose questionable sales pitch was clandestinely filmed and was then shown briefly on the nationally broadcast news program in November 1978. It was part of a series on the House Aging Committee's probe of so-called Medigap insurance policies, which supposedly plug the gaps in Medicare coverage. The investigation, incidentally, led to corrective legislation by Congress.

The agent's sworn depositions, and conversations with her, make clear that she didn't file the suit after suffering financial harm, viewing the TV show herself or even being told about it by friends. In fact, she said in a deposition, "I had no idea that such a thing had ever been aired." And she told my associate Tony Capaccio that "people came up to me after the show and talked about it, but no one associated it with me."

Yet the agent sued ABC and the House investigators for violating her civil rights. How did this happen? Simple enough: An attorney representing American Family Life in another lawsuit slipped his business card under the door of her boyfriend's apartment in Alexandria, Va., in mid-1980.

"He is the one who originally brought this to my attention and set up the whole — the whole case for me," the insurance agent said in sworn testimony.

She had the attorney, Anthony Dilmetin, paid for her September 1980 trip to New York. In the presence of an American Family Life vice president, the attorney played a videotape of the ABC news show for her.

Did Dilmetin suggest, she was asked, "that you ought to file suit?" The insurance agent replied: "Yes."

She testified that Dilmetin helpfully identified the House investigators who appeared on the TV show and were also sued. "Since I had no idea who had to be sued," she testified, "Mr. Dilmetin was informing me of the proper persons that would be involved in the lawsuit."

Her attorney told us that the insurance company purchased depositions of the House

What's Needed In El Salvador

For weeks, Americans have been subjected to a flood of stories that present the revolutionary forces in El Salvador as the guys in the white hats. Reporters from liberal media have been taken on conducted tours of guerrilla camps and reported they never saw a Soviet weapon.

It brings to mind the stories that Herbert Matthews of The New York Times wrote after visiting Fidel Castro's camps in eastern Cuba. The Times, in those days always referred to Dr. Castro and hailed the so-called agrarian reformers.

The American people desperately need a sound understanding of what is going on in El Salvador and how the events are being treated in the major media.

Such an understanding was displayed in a recent statement by Dr. Robert Lancaster, former dean of the University of the South, a distinguished political scientist who possesses scholarship, wisdom and a sharp sense of the national interest. His remarks, first presented as a letter to the editor, follow in this space:

"One communist state on our doorstep is enough! Our policy in El Salvador should be to prevent a communist takeover of that small state by peaceful means if possible, by force if required. Central America is crucial for our defense. It guards the approaches to the Panama Canal; it lies astride important air and sea lanes, it falls within the sphere of our historic interests.

"Nicaragua should be the final policy lesson in the area. That state is now firmly in the hands of the Marxists whom we permitted to displace a friend. Somoza was a tyrant but he was our friend. Those businessmen who worked for his removal find themselves in worse position than they were before — oppressed and silenced by the malign power of an evil ideology.

"Why is it that priests and laymen alike are too often taken in by a godless creed and a pernicious practice that, once in power, forbids the Mass and pulverizes the union?

"Why is it that the nightly news commentary sometimes subtly, sometimes openly portrays our policy as shallow, opportunistic and oppressive? Only tonight I heard 10 minutes of news blowing out of proportion the sighting of four of our advisers in El Salvador carrying rifles. For protection a machine gun might have been better. Why is it that men of good will constantly underestimate the results of a Marxist triumph? Could it be that our leadership fails to articulate our goals clearly, frankly, and without a sort of whining apology? Does the Vietnam Syndrome continue to weaken our resolve and make timid our leaders.

"Whatever the cause, we need to have expressed clearly and frankly by our leaders our determination to defeat the communists in El Salvador, our resolve not to permit that state to become another Cuba. Those who carp and will not learn must be thrown on the defensive lest the best interest of the nation be jeopardized.

"No doubt the struggle between the government and the Marxists is bloody and cruel. The civilian caught between the two forces suffers not only the continual indignity of fear but terrible loss of property and life. So it always is in such a contest. But finally we know that the only hope of an ordered state, reformed and civilized lies in the victory of those who fight communist domination.

Managers At Fault?

By LeROY POPE
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Executives who are too self-centered and have little loyalty to their employers contribute heavily to current problems in American management, says Consultant Fred Steingraber.

Steingraber, who is in the Chicago office of A. T. Kearney, Inc., puts much of the blame for this on the philosophies taught in university graduate business schools.

Why, he demands, is the country that originated the university business school and has more of them than all the rest of the world put together, having so many serious management problems in business? What has gone wrong?

Steingraber says there is no single answer but it is absolutely clear that it is management and not workers who are responsible for the declining productivity of American business.

With MBA's holding virtually all top executive positions, he said, there are too many generalists and not enough specialists in top spots and the MBA generalists no longer realize the critical importance of the specialists.

Steingraber says he thinks the trouble goes a lot deeper and is a lot broader. The young MBA's are imbued with extravagant personal goals, a $40,000 starting salary and "absurd expectations for fast track rotation, advancement and positioning in top management." Steingraber says this is "a built-in basis for management failure."

There are people, coming out of the graduate schools, he said, who are more concerned with achieving goals than with what they have to do to accomplish them. "They are obsessed with rotation and rapid advancement, giving credence to the form but not to the substance of what they are learning."

This orientation towards rapid success makes one excessively loyal to one's own ego and leaves little basis for loyalty to the company or institution one works for, he said.

Steingraber says proof of this may be seen in contrasts between American, Japanese and European management climates. In the first place, management turnover is excessively high in the United States as compared with Japan and Europe.

Next is the disproportion between chief executives' pay and that of other executives. He said the range of executive pay differences in General Motors is seven-to-one while it is only two-to-one in Japan's Toyota company, which is giving GM competitive fits at the moment.

From this, he concludes that Americans overrate the importance of CEO's absurdly and underrate the value of team management enormously. He concedes that the decision-making process under Japanese and European team management is rigid, complex and time consuming, but he says there is much greater commitment to decisions once they are made under this method than is the case in American business.

So Steingraber is strongly in favor of shifting much more extensively to consensus management.

He also believes American business and American labor unions increasingly are going to have to modify, and ultimately abandon, their adversary philosophies and time-honored confrontational tactics. He says the cost of living in this confrontational world is just getting too horrendous. "These concepts of checks and balances are luxuries we no longer can afford."

The problem is, he added, "We find ourselves in a constant state of confrontation. Then, when things get desperate as they did at Chrysler, we gesture by saying — 'Welcome to the Chrysler board Douglas Fraser!'"

He called it ironic that the auto companies wanted to start to talk to labor about profit-sharing "until the time when there are no profits to share."

Soviet Spies In Southeast Asia Come In From The Cold

JAKARTA, Indonesia (UPI) — Embarrassed Soviet spies have been coming in from the "cold" in Southeast Asia in increasing numbers lately, showing the area has become an espionage target that fights back.

Indonesia in February threatened to execute one Soviet agent caught without benefit of diplomatic immunity before releasing and expelling him after a week of interrogation. Two other Russians were kicked out at the same time. Within a few days Singapore expelled two Soviet officials for spying in the island republic.

The cases echoed Malaysia's publicized expulsions of Soviet diplomats last year for bribing the political secretary of soon-to-be Prime Minister Mahathir Mohamad.

None of the three countries is a mighty military power, has U.S. military bases or any original high technology worth stealing.

But security officials say Malaysia, Singapore and Indonesia are key targets for Soviet espionage because they control the strategic passages between the Pacific and Indian Oceans and hold the balance of power in the increasingly potent Association of Southeast Asian Nations.

The other members of ASEAN have long drawn Soviet attention — the Philippines, with major U.S. military bases, and Thailand, which borders two Soviet allies, Laos and Cambodia.

As Soviet involvement has grown in Vietnam, Cambodia and Afghanistan, the importance of the targets has grown apace. In Malaysia, Soviet agents were seeking influence and information from the political secretary of then Deputy Prime Minister Mahathir Mohamad.

When the dynamic Mahathir was tapped to become prime minister in place of the ailing Datuk Hussein Onn, it appeared the efforts of Soviet spies had paid off well.

But the Malaysian security police, trained in the battle against the Chinese-influenced Communist Party of Malaya, had been on to the agents for more than a year.

They waited only until Mahathir was confirmed as successor before seizing the spies and the variety of James Bond-like equipment.

At just about the same time, Indonesian counterintelligence agents had discovered a hydrographic department officer, I.A. Col. Susdaryanto, who was having secret meetings with Soviet officials.

SUSDARYANTO confessed he had been turning over maps of sensitive areas and information on salt densities to Soviet agents.

Security chief Admiral Sudomo said the information could enable Soviet submarines to slip undetected through the Sumba Straits. Those strategic straits lead from the Indian Ocean toward the area of the South Pacific where the United States has a naval facility at Subic Bay in the Philippines.

SUSDARYANTO was watched until early February when security officials were able to catch Soviet Military Attache Sergel Egorov taking secret documents from him.

The Indonesians were expelling Egorov quietly when another Soviet official implicated in the spying — Aeroflot airline manager Alexander Finenko — tried to slip out with him.

A Soviet marine superintendent attached to a local shipyard, without diplomatic immunity, was expelled at the same time for trying to recruit an agent network. In each case money, not ideology, was the inducement for the local agent to spy against his country.

Security officials at the airport move in to stop him and a brief melee of punching, biting and kicking broke out before Finenko was taken into custody.

The offended Indonesians first threatened to put Finenko on trial for espionage, with the firing squad the result of a guilty verdict.

But after a week of interrogation the Indonesians expelled Finenko, "to avoid any unnecessary antagonism," foreign minister Mochtar Kusumaatmadja said.

Singapore gave Indonesia the immediate support of a similar expulsion the next week.

Urbane and handsome Soviet Second Secretary Anatoly Larkin was accused of posing as a Swedish journalist to obtain "sensitive military information" from a Singapore armed forces officer, a government statement said.

A Soviet marine superintendent attached to a local shipyard, without diplomatic immunity, was expelled at the same time for trying to recruit an agent network.

In each case money, not ideology, was the inducement for the local agent to spy against his country.

The three Southeast Asian countries have shown that communism is not needed to modernize their societies and it has lost its appeal.

But the battles with communism fought when the countries were newly independent have given each of them the security apparatus that made it difficult for the spies to succeed.

Security officials do not expect the attempt to cease because of a few expulsions.

"It is like playing chess," Admiral Sudomo said. "There are moves and counter-moves."

The Sixth Senses Of 'Lesser' Animals

By The Editors of The World Almanac

Animals possess senses more highly developed than man's, and some species even possess senses in addition to the normal five.

Every species of living thing adapts itself to its environment by developing one or more of the senses that will optimize its ability to find food, avoid predators, communicate with other members of the species and move about.

On a scale of all animal species ranked by acuteness of senses, man would rank roughly in the middle. In humans, the five senses — sight, hearing, touch, smell, taste — are well-developed, though none highly so.

Other animals are more "lopsided" in their sense profiles, often developing one or two of the senses to levels of tremendous acuteness and letting the others remain relatively unused.

Birds have a highly developed sense of sight. Some of the high-flying species, especially scavengers like the vulture and carnivores like the eagle, have eyesight at least eight times as keen as a man's. A buzzard can pick out a beetle on the ground from hundreds of feet in the air.

Owls possess sight especially adapted for night hunting, with retinas packed with rod cells, the vision receptors that are sensitive to low light levels. Owls also have tremendously acute hearing and are able to pick out and hone in on the rustle of a mouse moving on the ground, a sound inaudible to the human ear.

Among mammals, hunting species usually emphasize either sight, hearing or smell; herbivores use either smell or sight in food-gathering and smell for detection of

The sense of hearing is perhaps most spectacularly developed in the bat. Bats have only dim eyesight (though they are not blind), but their predators.

Hunters, which must be able to see prey by detecting small movements, have vision dependent on rod cells in the retina; rod cells are color blind but are very sensitive to movement, especially at low light levels.

Animals that gather food, such as some monkeys, have an entirely different vision system. Their retinas are supplied mostly with cone cells, which are color-sensitive and able to discriminate among stationary objects; such vision enables the animal to locate fruit on trees, for instance, or nuts where they have fallen on the ground.

Still other species have a so-called selective sense of vision; the animal's brain is programmed to recognize only those visual stimuli that are important to its survival. A frog, for example, "sees"

Neither do dogs possess a discriminating sense of taste. They eat only flesh and bolt their food quickly, unlike other animals, such as herbivores, which need to taste their food to ensure that it is edible and not poisonous.

When flying in the dark, bats emit high-frequency squeaks; the return echoes enable the bats to maneuver without bumping into objects and even to hone in on such fast-moving targets as flying insects. How bats manage such fine tuning is still a mystery. All bats seem able to recognize their own echo signals, never confusing them with those of another bat even when flying in groups of thousands.

Experiments have been conducted to try to "jam" the bats' radar signals. Loud signals, broadcast on the bats' wavelength and 2,000 times as loud as the bats' own squeaks, failed to confuse the bats.

hearing has been elaborated into an intricate radar-simulating mechanism of phenomenal sensitivity.

The sense of smell is also highly developed in certain insects, especially those for whom scent plays a part in the mating instinct. Butterflies can detect each other miles away during the breeding season by smell alone.

Other insects use the sense of smell in food-finding. Certain beetle larvae are sensitive to the smell of carbon dioxide. They feed on special vine roots that give off carbon dioxide. The larvae are sensitive to no other smells, but they can unerringly locate the vine that provides its food supply.

The sense of hearing is perhaps most spectacularly

At 42, 'Yaz' Sir Still Houck's Baby

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (UPI) — If being in love means never having to say you're sorry, Ralph Houck must love Carl Yastrzemski because he has absolutely no intention of ever saying that to him.

When Yaz finally quits, he'll be the one to punch his own ticket.

At 42, the Boston Red Sox' lean and sun-tanned elder statesman is about to begin his 22nd straight season with them.

He's in marvelous physical shape having worked hard at it all winter. You watch him bouncing around first base, grabbing those tough ground balls, firing them to second and then hustling back to the bag again for those body-exerting 3-6-3 double plays, and you can tell he isn't thinking of hanging it up. Houck isn't thinking that way, either.

"I'll never tell him he's through," says the Red Sox manager. "He'll play as long as he wants to play. When you have the kind of star like he is, he's the one who makes the decision. One thing I know, he'll never embarrass himself or the ball club."

Yastrzemski looks at it the same way. "Right now," he says, "I feel good and if I stay injury free, I think I could play in 130 games. I honestly don't know how much longer I'll play. It depends. I'll be the first to know when I'm all through. I'm certainly not gonna ever embarrass myself or the team and I will never put Houk on the spot."

Yaz has achieved many of his original goals since first reporting to the Red Sox in 1961 when he was 21. He has 3,192 hits and 428 homers and among his individual accomplishments are winning the Triple Crown in 1967 and the American League's MVP award the same year. He has played in two World Series and been named to 16 All-Star teams. And, he has picked up seven Gold Gloves.

Last year wasn't a particularly good one for him, however, and a foreshadowing of things to come might have been when he missed his first Opening Day ever with back spasms. His 246 average in 91 games was the lowest of his career but Houk feels Yastrzemski will be much more productive this year.

"The guy can help you," he says. "Sure, he can't steal bases anymore, but he can still go good from first to third, he knows how to hit and he's a great asset to the club. He's still one of the best clutch hitters we've got. He led the club in game winning RBI and that speaks for itself."

"I plan to use him as DH a lot this year," says the Red Sox pilot. "If I can keep him strong and in the right frame of mind, he can do a lot for me. He also can fill in at first base for me. I'm trying to play the kid (Dave Stapleton) at first base and Yaz is doing everything he can to help him. That shows you the kind of guy he is."

Houk considers Yastrzemski a sure future Hall of Famer. Chances are the one-time boy shortstop may even make it into Cooperstown on the first ballot.

More than likely, Houk will still be with the Red Sox when Yaz finally does retire.

And it'll undoubtedly make him think back to the feeling he had as manager when three other superstars who played for him, Mickey Mantle and Whitey Ford with the Yankees and Al Kaline with the Tigers, also came to the end of the road.

"I felt bad about every one of them leaving," Houk says. "Especially Mantle. I hated to see him quit. He was going to retire the year before he actually did, but I talked him into playing one more year. All three of those fellows, Mickey, Whitey and Al, made the decisions to leave themselves. I didn't have to tell them."

Houk had to tell one other Hall of Famer, though. That was Robin Roberts.

"He was the toughest to ever have to tell I didn't have any room on the club for him," says Houk. "What made it so tough was that he never really pitched for me when he was with the Yankees, but I was the manager when I had to let him go."

That was the year he went over to the Orioles and had such a good year for them. Lee MacPhail was with Baltimore then and he called me after we had to let Roberts go. Someone on the Baltimore staff had hurt his arm and Lee was looking for a pitcher. I told him I thought Roberts could help him. He went over there and did fine for the Orioles."

Lions Land 3-2 Win Over Tribe

By JOE DeSANTIS
Herald Sports Writer

You'll have to excuse Fighting Seminole baseball coach Bobby Lundquist if his mind seemed to be somewhere else during Wednesday night's battle with Seminole County neighbor Oviedo at the Sanford Stadium.

After spending the morning pacing outside the delivery room at Sanford Memorial Stadium, patiently awaiting the arrival of a new addition to the Lundquist household, the Tribe coach found himself pacing the dugout, not so patiently waiting for his Seminoles to uncork a big inning against Howard Maybe's Lions.

At approximately 11:30 a.m., Mrs. Bobby Lundquist (Francie), came through with a six pound future shortstop. The Lundquists have named their new son Robert Brett. The proud father is still, however, waiting for that big inning. It didn't come Wednesday night as Oviedo copped a 3-2 win in a tough battle of pitching staffs.

It was Oviedo with the big inning which eventually proved the difference in the one-run ball game.

The Lions rattled starter John Polk for three runs in the third before Greg Hill came on to blank the Lions the rest of the way on one hit.

Todd Duncan got things going for the Lions with a one-out single to left, promptly stole second and took third on a wild pitch by Polk.

Oviedo starter Robert Isner followed by delivering a perfect suicide squeeze bunt that scored Duncan. Isner would up safe at first on the play when Polk overthrew at first base and moved up to second on the miscue. Phil Robinson sacrificed Isner to third and the Lion pitcher scored when Brett Thayer reached Polk for an RBI single.

Down 3-0, Hill came on for Polk and Seminole appeared headed for a comeback.

Freddie Howard unloaded a triple off Isner in the bottom of the fourth and crossed home plate on Litton's ground out RBI.

The Tribe blew an opportunity for another run in the fifth after Phil Burgess drew a leadoff walk from Isner but was wasted when Hill hit into a double play. Seminole did manage to notch another run in the sixth with some aggressive base running. With one out Howard drew a walk from Oviedo relief man Turner. Litton then slashed a single. Lundquist called for a double steal which came up successfully, moving Howard to third and Litton to second. Consecutive walks forced in one run for the Tribe but Hill grounded out with bases loaded to end the inning for Seminole.

Isner was credited with the pitching decision while Turner earned a save in relief. Starter Polk (0-2) took the loss for Seminole.

"We've got to start swinging the bat," said Lundquist after the loss. "That's the fourth one-run ball game we've been involved in. We kind of beat ourselves in that third inning when we threw the ball away, but I was happy with the pitching."

Lundquist was also happy with the new member of the household.

"Having a boy is great," smiled the Tribe coach. "I was hoping we'd have one this time around."

Seminole coach Bobby Lundquist gives some last minute instructions to his Tribe batter. Seminole mounted only three hits against Oviedo in what turned out to be a four-man pitching battle Wednesday night.

Oviedo catcher Eddie Turner puts the tag on Seminole's Bret Von Herbulis during Wednesday night's Oviedo-Seminole clash at the Sanford Stadium. Turner took a cutoff throw from shortstop Thurman Granville to make the play and save an important run in Oviedo's 3-2 win. The Tribe's on deck batter, Tracy Walker eyes the call at the plate.

Stripp Handcuffs DeLand, 2-1

The last time Billy Stripp took the mound for Lake Howell's Silver Hawks, the lanky thrower tossed a five-hitter but lost 3-0 to Apopka. Wednesday night Stripp was even more effective, spacing out just two Bulldog hits while blanking DeLand after the second inning to help Lake Howell score a 2-1 win over the Bulldogs in Five Star Conference play.

Stripp (3-1) struck out eight and surrendered just two walks in leading Lake Howell to its seventh win of the season against four losses. The Silver Hawk's district mark improved to 3-1 with the victory.

"We're a much better hitting club than we've been showing," said Silver Hawk skipper Berto Benjamin. "I'm glad Stripp hung in there after losing his last start with a five hitter."

Benjamin will send Handy Hamroth to the mound when Lake Howell plays host to neighbor Lake Brantley in Friday's 3:30 Five Star Conference clash.

Patriots Post Volusia County Split

Sam Mornary's Lake Brantley Patriots crossed the Volusia County line Wednesday and returned in better shape than most Seminole County baseball squads do. After dropping a 7-0 decision to Daytona Seabreeze, the Patriots bounced back behind a three-hit shutout pitching effort by senior right hander Billy Greene to ship Daytona Mainland 4-0 and earn a split in the double header.

In the opener Lake Brantley couldn't get the bats going, mounting just four hits against the Sandcrab. Meanwhile Seabreeze got a bases loaded triple in the second inning from Bill James and came out of the frame with a 5-0 lead over Lake Brantley. Seabreeze added two more runs in the fifth when James tripled again, came home on a single, and watched as his Sandcrab teammates added an insurance run.

Patriot skipper Mornary summed up the 7-0 defeat as a simple case of "left on base."

"We must have left 12 guys sitting out there," he said. The second half of the twin bill proved more to Mornary's liking.

Lake Brantley struck for three runs in the top of the second to jump out in front of Mainland's Buccaneers.

Pitcher Billy Greene reached on an error. Mark Hobson followed with a single and Joe Mincey reached on what started out to be a fielder's choice but turned into an error when the Buccaneer shortstop bobbled the throw to first.

With bases loaded, Brian Wright stepped up and blasted a long fly ball to center that turned into a three-run error in favor of Lake Brantley.

The Patriots added insurance in the fifth when hard hitting John Simas rifled a triple and scored on another Mainland miscue.

"That was the difference in the ball game," pointed out Mornary. "They made five errors and we made one. We played good defensive baseball."

Mornary's strong right hander Greene (2-1) didn't do a bad job on the mound either. Greene spaced out three hits, fanned six and walked none enroute to his second straight shutout. Greene's last effort was a no-hit shutout against Jones High School.

"He was really sharp out there," complimented Mornary. "He kept the ball down low the whole game and we got a lot of ground balls."

The double header split moved Lake Brantley's overall record to 4-6 and 2-2 in district play.

"The Patriots face a busy weekend, meeting Lake Howell Friday and Bishop Moore on Saturday.

Grapefruit League

World Series Star Guerrero Powers Dodgers Past Boston, 3-2

By United Press International

St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog said Wednesday he has been impressed with newly acquired shortstop Ozie Smith's desire to work during the early spring training sessions.

"He's doing something extra every day — extra hitting, extra ground balls," Herzog said. "He really wants to improve and why not? Look at the money he's going to make."

Smith will make his first official appearance in a St. Louis Cardinals' uniform today in the team's exhibition opener against Houston. He will lead off in the Cardinals' lineup.

Bob Shirley will start today. He is scheduled to be followed by rookie Dave LaPoint and John Martin. All three are left-handers.

In games Wednesday, the Los Angeles Dodgers looked to a World Series' hero for their first victory of the spring.

Pedro Guerrero, who drove in seven runs in the World Series, led off the 12th inning with a double and scored on a single by Candy Maldonado to give the Dodgers a 3-2 victory over Boston, their first victory in three Grapefruit League games.

In other games, Atlanta beat Montreal, 7-5, Toronto stopped Philadelphia, 7-3,

San Diego defeated California, 1-0, and Seattle blanked Arizona State, 12-0.

At West Palm Beach, Fla., two-run doubles by Jerry Royster and Claudell Washington helped Atlanta to an early lead and the Braves held on to beat the Expos for their fifth straight victory.

At Clearwater, Fla., the Toronto Blue Jays took advantage of two balks and four Philadelphia errors to defeat the Phillies, who were playing their first exhibition game.

At Tempe, Ariz., Jim Beattie pitched three perfect innings, striking out the side in the first inning, and Reggie Walton had two doubles and a triple, scoring three runs and driving in three runs, to lead the Mariners.

At Yuma, Ariz., Tim Flannery's two-out 10th-inning single scored Rick Lancelotti with the only run of the game and five San Diego pitchers held California to two hits.

At Phoenix, Ariz., Mike Tyson drove in three runs with a bases-loaded double in a fourrun sixth inning in leading the Chicago Cubs to a 9-6 victory over the Oakland A's.

At Sun City, Ariz., Mark Brouhard hit two homers and Ned Yost drove in three runs to lead the Milwaukee Brewers to a 15-3 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

At St. Petersburg, Fla., a sacrifice fly by Joel Youngblood in the 10th inning scored Hubie Brooks with the winning run and gave the New York Mets a 4-3 victory over Eckerd College.

At Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Brad Guiden knocked in a pair of runs, and Dave Revering rapped two singles and a double to lead New York to its first win of the spring, 3-1, over the Texas Rangers.

At Bradenton, Fla., Dale Berra's seventh-inning error paved the way for four Cincinnati runs in a 4-1 triumph over the Pittsburgh Pirates. All four were unearned.

Little League Day At Tinker Highlights Twins-Toronto

The kids will get their chance to see how the big leaguers do it when the Minnesota Twins host 'Little League Day' at Tinker Field Sunday, March 14, when they host the Toronto Blue Jays in a 1:30 p.m. game.

On 'Little League Day,' all organized youth groups in the central Florida area, whether baseball-oriented or otherwise, will be admitted free of charge through the Tinker Field pass gate. The ground rules: the youngsters, boys or girls, must be no more than 16 years of age; all members of the group must be wearing some sort of uniform identification (caps, t-shirts, etc.); a maximum of two coaches and/or parents will be admitted free with each group; the stadium gates will open at 11:30 a.m.; seating will be in the general admission sections.

'Little League Day' is an annual affair at Tinker Field during the Twins' spring training period. It's the Twins' way of recognizing the contributions to baseball made by the many outstanding youth baseball organizations of many age-levels throughout central Florida.

Inverrary Field Impressive

LAUDERHILL, Fla. (UPI) — Fourteen of 1981's top 20 money winners plus major foreign stars are gathered in the best golf field of the year teeing off today in the first round of the $400,000 Inverrary Classic.

Tom Kite, last year's money leader, is defending champion and is coming from a playoff victory over Jack Nicklaus and Dennis Watson at Bay Hill Monday.

Nicklaus is here, too, along with such other big-name tour stars as Tom Watson, making his first south Florida appearance in four years; Bill Rogers, 1981 Player of the Year; Johnny Miller, Ray Floyd and Lee Trevino. Jerry Pate also had signed up but withdrew Wednesday.

Joining the U.S. links masters are such standout foreign players as South Africa's Gary Player, Spanish champ Seve Ballesteros, Japan's putting wizard Isao Aoki and West Germany's Bernhard Langer, whose play started the British Open last year before Rogers won it.

For many in the field the big purse that includes a $72,000 first prize was the incentive to play. But the top stars indicated they need the action to warm up for the Tournament Players Championship at Jacksonville next week.

"I guess everybody just wanted to get out of the cold weather and get down here and warm up for TPC. Plus, this is a good golf course," said Andy Bean.

The turnout is also due to "the tournament itself — it's been a good event over the years," said Hale Irwin.

As for Nicklaus, it is obvious the Palm Beach County resident feels an obligation to south Florida tournaments.

Playing Inverrary means Nicklaus will play four in a row. The last time he did that was in 1979 — his worst year ever.

"From the standpoint of my game, it's not the thing to do, but I do feel an obligation toward the south Florida schedule," Nicklaus said.

"It's very difficult for me to skip Doral or Inverrary. I had decided to play Bay Hill because I missed it the last two years, and I have to play TPC so I guess four is the number," Nicklaus said.

Kite said he feels he is on the verge of a winning year. In 1981, Inverrary was his only victory. He won the money title by stacking up second and third place finishes.

"The way things are going this year, there is an indication it will be better than last," Kite said. "I certainly hope so. I know last year wasn't my peak."

"I don't have to improve a lot to have a great year. The difference between second and third and fourth is not that great, so I figure I'll be getting more victories than last year."

The blue ribbon entry list has pumped new life into the Inverrary, which appeared ready to collapse a few months ago.

American Motors had dropped its sponsorship, CBS-TV had terminated its relationship and even Jackie Gleason, started the event, was gone in a dispute over his billing.

But tournament organizers have somehow pulled out a winner. First they signed Honda to a five year contract as sponsor, upped the purse to a whopping $400,000 and persuaded NBC-TV to televise the event.

Knight's Netters Fall, 4-3

The Lady Seminole tennis squad of coach Donalyn Knight took it on the chin in a tough one Wednesday afternoon, dropping a slim 4-3 decision to Lyman's Lady Greyhounds. The loss dropped Seminole to 5-4 overall and 2-2 in district tennis play.

Chalking up victories in the outing against Lyman was number two singles seed Angela Barley, who came out on top of a hard fought 8-7 tie-breaking decision.

Number four singles seed Susannah Human also got the Tribe on the scoreboard by taking her match in easy 8-0 fashion.

Knight's scrappy number two doubles tandem of Barley and Patti Edgemon remained undefeated by posting an 8-3 win over the Lady Greyhounds.

"They'll be hard to beat when they get to district competition," praised Knight of the unbeaten duo.

Today at 3 p.m. the Lady Seminoles travel to Boone, seeking their first win over the Lady Bravcs.

"We're looking for a real good match," said Knight. "We never have beaten them so we're looking for that first win. We'll be ready."

Lions Shade Lake Mary, 4-3

Oviedo's junior varsity Lions stuck a 4-3 loss on Lake Mary's Rams in Wednesday prep baseball action.

Oviedo mounted a four-run, seven hit attack against losing pitcher Paul Alegre.

Alegre was busy turning in a two-way effort for Lake Mary. The Ram's starting pitcher put in a 1-4 performance at the plate. His lone hit was a big one, a two-run homer for Lake Mary.

Greg Shatto also chipped in for the Rams with an RBI double while going 1-4 on the day.

The loss dropped Lake Mary's season record to 3-3-1.

Healthy Bird Bounces Back To Pace Celtics Over Indiana, 121-100

By United Press International
Both Larry Bird and the Boston Celtics look too healthy for the rest of the league.

"Bird looked like he was injured for three minutes — he missed two shots," Indiana Coach Jack McKinney said wryly Wednesday night, after watching Bird return from a five-game absence with a broken cheekbone to lead the Boston Celtics to a 121-100 decision. "He's as tough as ever. But the Celtics are tough without him. They're proving to everyone they're the best in the league."

Bird tossed in 21 points and Cedric Maxwell who picked up much of the slack with Bird out, added 20 to lead Boston to a season-high ninth straight victory.

Bird looked a bit behind the pace in the first period.

"I don't care who you are, you've got to find yourself," said Boston Coach Bill Fitch.

"Larry showed the pro he really is in the second half," added Celtics' forward M.L. Carr. "One of the hardest things to do is come back from an injury."

It was the second straight loss for the Pacers, battling for the sixth and final playoff spot in the Eastern Conference.

"We didn't play well at all," McKinney said. "Nothing was good. Our rebounding was horrible or should I say lack of it. We had breakdowns on defense."

In other games, Philadelphia hammered Golden State, 134-114, Denver outscored Detroit, 124-114, New Jersey clipped Phoenix, 113-105, Chicago shaded Milwaukee, 101-98, and Dallas nipped Portland, 104-102.

Sixers 134, Warriors 114
At Philadelphia, Maurice Cheeks scored 18 points and handed out 10 assists to give the 76ers their fourth straight victory. World Free had 19 points and Bernard King 16 to lead Golden State.

Nuggets 124, Pistons 113
At Pontiac, Mich., Dan Issel scored 35 points and Kiki Vandeweghe added 30 for Denver, which battled from an early 11-point deficit.

Nets 113, Suns 105
At East Rutherford, N.J., Ray Williams scored 25 points and Buck Williams added 15 points and 12 rebounds for the Nets. Waiter Davis had a game-high 23 points for Phoenix.

Bulls 101, Bucks 98
At Milwaukee, Rickey Sobers scored 17 points, 13 in the final quarter, to help extend the Bucks' losing streak to four and end their seven-game home winning streak.

Mavericks 104, Trail Blazers 102
At Dallas, Rolando Blackman scored 16 of his 22 points in the fourth quarter and combined with Mark Aguirre to score the Mavericks' last 14 points.

Tar Heels Top NCAA Field

By United Press International
The No. 1 college basketball team in the nation finds itself on the defensive even before the opening of the NCAA Tournament.

North Carolina, 27-2, is the top-ranked team in the country and the No. 1 seed in the East Regional. The Tar Heels, who begin play Saturday in Charlotte against the winner of tonight's James Madison-Ohio State game, won the Atlantic Coast Conference Sunday by beating Virginia.

But what price victory?
"We are not going to change the way we play even though some of you here might think we should," North Carolina Coach Dean Smith told sports writers Wednesday. "I don't want them to feel guilty by winning with our delay game because that is something we do very well. Their (Tar Heel players) goal is to win — my goal as a coach is to help them win the best I can."

Against the Cavaliers, the Tar Heels went to the stall with a one-point lead and eight minutes to play. Virginia Coach Terry Holland refused to chase North Carolina and the anticipated thrilling finish deteriorated into a listless stretch of "keep-away" basketball.

Illinois Claims Big NIT Victory

For 29 games, Long Island University proved it knew how to score points. But Wednesday night the Blackbirds displayed a remarkable facility for giving them up.

Illinois shattered several scoring records, including the major college mark for most points by a team in post-season play, in crushing the Blackbirds, 126-78, in an opening-round game in the National Invitation Tournament.

"We live by the sword and we die by the sword," said LIU Coach Paul Lizzo, whose Blackbirds led the nation in scoring this season. "Illinois took us out of our game plan. We were awed. I hope we see Illinois in the Final Four."

So does senior guard Perry Range, whose career-high 28 points led six Illinois players in double figures.

"They were quick, but we can run too," Range said.

The previous Assembly Hall record for most points by an Illinois team was 121 in 1965, and the NIT record broken was held by Marshall (W.Va.), which scored 119 against Nebraska in 1967.

The 126 points also was the most by any major college team in post-season play, NIT or NCAA.

The Illini, 18-10, used a devastating fastbreak and a decided height advantage to dominate the Blackbirds from the opening tap, opening a 65-29 halftime bulge. Following Range were Jay Daniels with 20 points, Craig Tucker with 18, Anthony Welch with 13, Derek Harper with 12, James Griffin with 11 and Quinn Richardson with 10.

Long Island, 20-10, was led by Riley Clarida's 14 points. Elsewhere in the first round Wednesday night, Purdue beat Western Kentucky, 72-65; Dayton edged Connecticut, 76-75, in overtime; Texas A&M topped Lamar, 60-58, and Washington defeated Brigham Young, 66-63.

At West Lafayette, Ind., Big Ten scoring champion Keith Edmonson had 29 points as the Boilermakers, 15-13, beat a sloppy Western Kentucky team.

"It was shocking," said Purdue Coach Gene Keady about Western Kentucky's 24 turnovers.

At Dayton, Ohio, Roosevelt Chapman scored 21 points to lead the Flyers, 20-8, to a gritty overtime triumph. With one minute left and Connecticut leading 67-66, Dayton's Kevin Conrad fouled Karl Hobbs, who then turned around and hit Conrad. Hobbs was ejected, giving Dayton the chance to tie in regulation. Shawn McNally's layup put Dayton ahead for good in the overtime.

At College Station, Texas, a dunk and free throw by Claude Riley with 35 seconds left gave Texas A&M a 4-point lead and ensured a victory over Lamar. Terry Long led the Cardinals with 22 points.

"They beat us inside," said Lamar Coach Pat Foster. "We just couldn't contain them."

Taste Verdict: Merit.

Former higher tar smokers applaud MERIT
as "Best-tasting low tar I've tried."

Can a low tar cigarette provide the taste incentive to switch smokers from higher tar brands?

Research proves MERIT can.

Taste Debate Ends.

Nationwide survey reveals over 90% of MERIT smokers who switched from higher tar are glad they did. In fact, 94% don't even miss their former brands.

Further Evidence: 9 out of 10 former higher tar smokers report MERIT an easy switch, that they didn't give up taste in switching, and that MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they've ever tried.

MERIT Landslide.

In addition, extensive unmarked-pack tests confirm that MERIT delivers a winning combination of taste and low tar when compared with higher tar leaders.

Confirmed: The overwhelming majority of smokers reported MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading higher tar brands.

Confirmed: When tar levels were revealed, 2 out of 3 chose the MERIT combination of low tar and good taste.

Year after year, in study after study, MERIT remains unbeaten. The proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking—is MERIT.

SMCA Presents Operetta Tonight

Gabriel von Elsenstein demonstrates for the ladies his novel "chiming watch." "An infallible girl-catcher," he declares. This scene is from the National Opera Company production of "Die Fledermaus."

By DORIS DIETRICH
OURSELVES Editor

The third concert of the 1981-82 season sponsored by Seminole Mutual Concert Association is scheduled tonight at 8 p.m. in the auditorium of Lake Mary High School, Lake Mary.

SMCA president Dr. Sara Irrgang says the concert association had "a sellout" on memberships for the season and is financially solvent.

"Although the membership is sold out, we are not filling the auditorium (LMHS)," commented Ruth Gaines, SMCA vice president and membership chairman regarding attendance of the two previous concerts.

But Dr. Irrgang and Mrs. Gaines are optimistic that SMCA concert patrons will turn out for Johann Strauss' delightful Operetta, "Die Fledermaus, (The Bat)," tonight.

The fast paced operetta, with the gaiety of 19th Century Vienna, will be performed by the National Opera Company troupe of singers. "Die Fledermaus" was first performed in Vienna in 1873 and has since pleased audiences around the world, including America, with its excellent English translations.

Although Strauss was encouraged to try his hand at operetta, he did not feel he could fit words to music. His famous "Blue Danube" was nearly lost to the world because of a bad combination of words and music, experts say.

Later several Strauss operettas received acclaim and it looked like he was on his way to fame in this field.

By an ironic twist of fate, Vienna suddenly found itself in a Great Depression as fortunes were wiped out in a stock market crash of 1873. At the moment "Die Fledermaus" was first performed, its infectious gaiety already belonged to the past.

Marriage Ceremony Not A Medical Report

DEAR ABBY: I'm surprised at the pastor who thinks it is "sacrilegious" for a couple to say "I do" after they have already done it.

Done what? The vows "I do" are to love, honor, obey, cherish, etc. I could find no references in either civil or religious marriage texts to sexual intimacy or pregnancy. So the bride was obviously with child. So what? If they have already loved, honored, etc., is it sacrilegious to repeat those vows before God and witnesses? The ceremony is a mutual commitment to moral values — not a medical report.

Dear Abby

together, "legitimately," and with as much chance for a normal life as God gives any of us. This is wrong?

A rite is only as good as the wrongs it corrects or prevents, and you are right on, Abby.

P.D. IN LA.
DEAR P.D.: Apropos brides who are with child, read on:

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are faced with a problem we don't know how to handle. Our first child, now 12, was born seven months after our wedding. I'm sure she's already put two and two together, but hasn't said anything yet. If she asks, should I give her that "premature baby" story and hope she buys it?

EMBARRASSED
DEAR EMBARRASSED: No. Tell her the truth.

DEAR ABBY: Please help resolve a crisis that is threatening my relationship with my girlfriend.

She says that only two kinds of men wear plaid slacks in this day and age — golfers and old men.

I am 23, and I happen to like plaid slacks. We await your opinion.

IN A PLAID PANIC
DEAR IN: Plaid slacks are out! But don't let that bother you. If you like plaid slacks (and are thin enough), go ahead and wear 'em.

DEAR ABBY: I live on a canal in Florida, and my husband and friends go fishing quite often. My problem is that when he brings fish home I cannot help crying because I feel so sorry for the fish.

Am I the only person who feels this way?

SAVE THE FISH!
DEAR SAVE: You are not alone. I'll bet a lot of my readers will take the bait on this one.

DEAR ABBY: Why all the fuss about whether "I feel bad" or "I feel badly" is correct? Why not say, "I feel lousy," and let go at that?

FEELING LOUSY IN DAYTONA BEACH

DEAR ABBY: Will you join me in nominating for "Boob of the Year" those perfectly healthy, active (and usually young) individuals who park their cars in spaces clearly marked "For the Handicapped"?

ANAHEIM!
"DEAR ANAHEIM: A 'boob' is one who makes a stupid mistake. An able-bodied person who would deliberately deprive a physically handicapped person of a more convenient parking place is worse than a boob. He's an inconsiderate, selfish hog. (P.S. He's also "handicapped" license plate, which was totally ignored.

Abby, not all handicaps are visible, but I wish people would realize that in order to get this special license plate, a doctor's certification is necessary.

So I nominate "Anaheim" for "Boob of the Year." He (or she) is most assuredly character-deficient.
RUTH IN CORONADO, CALIF.

Do you have questions about sex, love, drugs and the pain of growing up? Get Abby's new booklet: "What Every Teen-Ager Ought to Know." Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

The Saga Of Norm Sawicki

SAN FRANCISCO (NEA) — The saga of Norman Sawicki reads like one of those six-hour television mini-series, or maybe a Michael Cimino episodic movie. From Polish plowboy in the corn fields outside bucolic Cass City, Mich., to haute cuisine restaurateur in cosmopolitan San Francisco. And in between enough vagaries and tribulations to fill a daytime soap opera.

But for Norm Sawicki, it was all real life, which took him off the farm and into the GM plant in Pontiac, Mich., as a car paint sprayer. He was drafted into the Army in the mid-1960s and wound up a first lieutenant leading a platoon on search-and-destroy missions in Vietnam, caught up in the dread Tet offensive. He still won't talk about some of the horror he witnessed and even participated in, and he has never seen one of the movies about Vietnam.

Back in Michigan after a three-year hitch, he drove a van to Texas to enroll at the University of Houston, got one whiff of the 100 percent humidity and rolled on to California, where he had an uncle in Sacramento.

Norm became a professional bowler, then a collector for a loan agency in San Francisco and soon was on a plane for Australia because "it was as far away as I could get."

He was on the streets of Sydney with 85 cents in his pocket, when he got a job as a bartender at the Texas Tavern. He had never taken a drink. He spent 75 cents for a booklet on mixing drinks. A year later, he was in Perth on the other side of the continent in pursuit of an Australian lass and managing a restaurant. When she got more serious than he intended, Norm quickly made a getaway back to San Francisco. Enter Judy Officer, a Southern California beauty just out of tony Mills College and living in the same apartment complex on Bay Street in San Francisco's Marina district. She saw this handsome guy with the perennial tan, who, when he wasn't sitting by the pool, always had a tennis racket under his arm. "He doesn't have to work," she thought, "so he must have money."

Recalls Norm, "I was broke, and out of a job." They met on New Year's Day. Eight months later they married because Judy's father was going to visit her, and she couldn't very well let him know that his baby was living with Norm in a tiny studio apartment. "He would have gotten out the shotgun," says Judy.

All of this is a prelude to the real drama. In October 1972, Norm and Judy were giving a candlelight dinner for the best man at their wedding, Marshall Kadon, who is a doctor. Marshall observed a small growth on Norm's neck and suggested that he get it examined.

Norm, who was running up to 20 miles a day and was in great shape, scoffed. Marshall insisted. A biopsy was taken, and the results came back a week later. Positive. Norm had cancer, a particularly virulent form that attacks the lymph nodes in the body. It was in the fourth stage. The fifth is terminal.

A week later, he was in Stanford University Hospital as a "protocol patient"—which meant he wouldn't have to pay any of the bills—for a laparotomy. The incision, from the sternum to below the navel, exposed a widespread cancer that led to immediate removal of the spleen and the diagnosis that it had already infested his liver and kidneys and was even in the blood stream.

Privately, the doctors told Judy that Norm had six months to live, at most. He was put immediately on an intensive chemotherapy program in a last-ditch effort to arrest the malignancy (the doctors never used the word "cancer" to him).

Two weeks later, his stomach still draining from the operative wound, Norm was back out running.

A month later, Norm, who was working for a restaurant chain, and Judy, a secretary in a bank, decided to open their own restaurant. They went the limit on their Master Charge and refinanced Norm's van to raise the money for The Provocative Pimiento.

Later, they branched out to The Tantalizing Tomato, a sandwich shop a block away; began their own catering business; and started still a third nutrition cafe, called The Healthy Habit.

Meanwhile, the chemotherapy was affecting Norm. One day he was in the shower and shampooing his hair. He let out a scream: "Judy! Look!" Most of the hair on his head was in his hands. He was virtually bald. He shaved the rest and bought a wig, which he wore for only two days. "I looked," he says, "like a Hare Krishna."

He also couldn't eat, so Judy started cooking gourmet meals at home to tantalize his palate. Norm had been raised on Polish staples like kielbasa and pierogi. Now he was recycled to veal oscar, tournedos rossini and the like.

At Stanford, the doctors were amazed. The six-month deadline for life passed, and Norm's lymphoma remained in a state of remission. Twice, the doctors took him on what they called "grand rounds"—assemblies of physicians where unique cases were thoroughly analyzed and the patients shown off.

After three years, the chemotherapy was stopped. Now, Norm Sawicki, 37, has regrown a full, carefully coiffed head of hair and is in perfect physical shape.

All persons having claims or demands against the estate are required, WITHIN THREE MONTHS FROM THE DATE OF THE FIRST PUBLICATION OF THIS NOTICE, to file with the clerk of the above court a written statement of any claim or demand they may have. Each claim must be in writing and must indicate the basis for the claim, the name and address of the creditor or his agent or attorney, and the amount claimed. If the claim is not yet due, the date when it will become due shall be stated. If the claim is contingent or unliquidated, the nature of the uncertainty shall be stated. If the claim is secured, the security must be described. The claimant shall deliver sufficient copies of the claim to the clerk to enable the clerk to mail one copy to each personal representative.
All persons interested in the estate to whom a copy of this Notice of Administration has been mailed are required, WITHIN THREE MONTHS FROM THE DATE OF THE FIRST PUBLICATION OF THIS NOTICE, to file any objections they may have that challenge the validity of the decedent's will, the qualifications of the personal representative, or the venue or jurisdiction of the court.
ALL CLAIMS, DEMANDS, AND OBJECTIONS NOT SO FILED WILL BE FOREVER BARRED.
Date of the first publication of this Notice of Administration: March 11, 1982.

PEOPLE IN BRIEF

Violinist Makes Debut As An Opera Singer

United Press International
Concert violinist Itzhak Perlman has made his "farewell debut" as a singer.
Perlman said it took "a lot of chutzpah" (nerve) to make his singing debut before millions of people appearing with Luciano Pavarotti and the New York Philharmonic in a "Live From Lincoln Center" performance of "Tosca." Perlman sang the role of the jailer.
He told Dave Marsh, anchorman of WCBS-TV's "News At Five," it was "an opportunity that'll never come back again. It's just there and it's going and it's 17 seconds, and afterwards everybody sent me cables ... I got cables from several opera companies in the United States."
But he added, "my singing career is over and what you heard was my farewell debut. That was the end of that ..."

Danny Thomas Boulevard?

New editions of the game Monopoly may have to make room on the board for Danny Thomas Boulevard. The board game is based on the streets of Atlantic City, N.J., and now City Parks Commissioner Edmund Colanzi has asked the City Commission to rename a one-block stretch of Pennsylvania Avenue, between Boardwalk and Pacific, Danny Thomas Boulevard to honor the entertainer for his help in bringing legal casino gambling to the resort in 1977.
Thomas gave a benefit concert to raise money for pro-gambling groups and promoted the idea in television appearances.
Colanzi said Thomas thought the street name idea was "very nice." Thomas already has a street named for him in Las Vegas.

Duffy's Golden Otto

Some actors win Oscars, but Patrick Duffy has his Otto.
Duffy, who plays J.R.'s younger brother, Bobby, on the CBS series "Dallas," won his Golden Otto in a contest for Top International Television Actor held by the West German magazine Bravo. Some 4 million readers entered the contest.
Another winner was Gabi Lange, 17, who voted for Duffy. Her name was drawn at random from among contest entrants. The magazine flew her to Hollywood to personally present Duffy his Otto.
Gabi caught up with Duffy as he rode his horse, "Citylights," during off-set hours.
She had only one request: "Would you mind giving me 50 autographs? I have promised them all my friends and teachers. Even the mayor of my town asked for one."

What Turns You On?

Any doubts about the wisdom of the old saw, "different strokes for different folks?"
Cosmopolitan magazine decided to take a poll of what turns people on, and here are some of the answers.
Vidal Sassoon: "Natural body odors. They get animal instincts going and can be a marvelous turn-on."
Bill Boggs: "Dancing close."
Pia Lindstrom: "Lying in bed on Sunday morning, eating muffins, getting the crumbs and butter all over the sheets."
Joe Namath: "I've thought about this a lot, and I could say something funny like 'clean sheets' — but, honestly, it all depends on the woman ... What really counts is what happens privately between two people who care about each other."

Vietnamese Put Squeeze On Khmer Rouge

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — The war between the Vietnamese army and Khmer Rouge guerrillas in Cambodia is threatening to spill into Thailand for the first time in 18 months, according to military and diplomatic sources.
The sources said the long-expected Vietnamese dry season offensive has squeezed the Khmer Rouge into about 40 square miles of dense forest near the Thai border.
They previously occupied about 400 square miles of largely unpopulated territory in western Cambodia. The Khmer Rouge expanded into this area when Vietnamese troops withdrew from their frontlines in 1980 to concentrate on protecting population centers so the Hanoi-installed Heng Samrin regime could build a political base and hold national elections.
Since the Vietnamese launched their offensive in January, however, the Khmer Rouge have steadily retreated rather than engage in a head-on confrontation.
"The Vietnamese have seized the initiative and are bloodying the Khmer Rouge," said a Western Indochina specialist, "but the Khmer Rouge's main force remains intact because the Vietnamese army has not yet brought it to battle."
The Vietnamese main thrust is directed against Pol Pot's strongholds in the Phnom Malai and Khao Kin mountains south of the Thai town of Aranyaprathet.
To effectively crush the Khmer Rouge in this rugged area, military sources said the Vietnamese would have to mount a pincer operation through Thai territory.
"The only way to destroy the Khmer Rouge," explained a Western military attache, "is to encircle them and attack from the Thai side."

But international ramifications of such an act might be too high for the Vietnamese to try it.
That military officers said the situation along the border was more volatile than in June 1980 when the Vietnamese attacked a Thai border village.
This time, they said, the Vietnamese are preparing to use combined air and ground forces to clobber the Khmer Rouge. They point to a steady buildup of men, heavy artillery and tanks along the frontier.
Squadron Leader Prasong Soonriri, secretary-general of Thailand's National Security Council, said the Vietnamese have placed anti-aircraft artillery three miles from the frontier. "The Khmer Rouge don't have airplanes," he said, "so why do they have these weapons there?"
In recent weeks intensified fighting in the Khad Din area has resulted in scattered border incidents. Vietnamese artillery shells have landed near several villages, killing at least one civilian and forcing many people to flee their homes.
Increased Vietnamese reconnaissance forays into Thailand resulted in a clash with Thai troops. Five Thai border patrol police died in that firefight.
The rapid Khmer Rouge retreat to enclaves along the border and their surprisingly lackluster performance over the last two months are causing Western military analysts to reexamine the rebels' strength.
Although Thailand's Supreme Command maintains the Khmer Rouge have 40,000 armed men, Western military attaches think their fighting force is substantially smaller.
Basing their estimates on interviews with refugees, non-

Communist resistance fighters and Khmer Rouge defectors. Western military sources say Pol Pot has a maximum of 30,000 armed guerrillas divided into 11 so-called divisions opposing the 180,000-man Vietnamese occupation army.
Some military analysts place the figure as low as 18,000. The largest Khmer Rouge division — 320 in the Khad Din and Phnom Malai area — has 2,500 to 3,000 armed troops. The average age of the rebels is 17 and many of the commanding officers are only 25 or 26 years old.
Military sources blame the confusion about the guerrilla strength on the Khmer Rouge proclivity to use a plethora of aliases. For example, one of the most notorious Khmer Rouge leaders, Ta Mok, has at least four noms de guerre (war names). He commands a division with at least two names in the northwestern region.
"There are a lot of aliases for commanders, divisions, regiments and battalions," said one Western military attache. "It gives the impression that they have more troops than they really do."
Khmer Rouge forces also suffer from an inability to recruit new soldiers because of their murderous record during their 3½ year rule.
Nevertheless, most Indochina watchers believe the Khmer Rouge, supplied by China, will survive the Vietnamese offensive.
The Vietnamese, also beset by internal economic and political problems, may have difficulty sustaining their current drive once the rains start in June.
