STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, July 3.—The two recent deaths in its ranks—Senator Robert M. LaFollette's and Senator Edwin F. Ladd's, coming so close together, have jolted the Progressive group in congress considerably. Between now and the national legislatures next meeting some effective reorganizing must be done or the "bloed" will find itself materially weakened. In the last congress Progressivism was pretty formidable. Senators LaFollette, Ladd, Lynn J. Frazier, and Smith W. Brookhart were the nucleus. Senator George W. Norris was of the group in everything except that he contrived to retain his Republican party standing—nominally. Senators Henrik Shipstead and Magnus Johnson, farmer-laborites, were allies. Senators William E. Borah and James Couzens were Republican insurgents much of the time. Senators Hiram Johnson, Arthur Capper, and R. B. Howell, were occasionally so—a little. Senator Burton K. Wheeler of course belonged to the "bloed" but didn't count as a vote to the good against the administration, inasmuch as a Democrat; he was anti-administration anyway. The same thing might be said of Shipstead and Magnus Johnson, yet the administration did gain at the "bloed's" expense by a "regular" Republican's defeat of Johnson at the last election. Of the seven original dependables—LaFollette, Ladd, Frazier, Brookhart, Norris, Shipstead, and Magnus Johnson—three, then, are gone. LaFollette and Ladd by death, Johnson by defeat. As a partial offset against the new senator, Thomas Schall's victory over Magnus Johnson, the independents are able to count the retirement of the very regular senator, Thomas Sterling, in favor of W. H. McMaster—not an "ultra" Progressive but as much so, say, as Borah and Couzens. There remain LaFollette's and Ladd's seats to be filled.

LaFollette's seems certain to be filled by a man he himself would have chosen—his son, Bob, Jr., from all indications. The Progressives are hopeful as to Ladd's, too. So, however, are the "regular" Republicans. Ladd's state was "pro" the present national administration at the last election, which is what the "regulars" base their faith on. It was quite progressively so, however, which is what encourages the independents. All in all, it looks as if Ladd's successor, if not an out-and-out insurgent like Ladd himself, at least will fall, like McMaster, in the Borah and Couzens class. It isn't altogether a question, however of how the senate lines up next December. There the future also to be looked into—the latter half of President Coolidge's present term. The administration is quite likely to face some senate seats to the Democrats next year. Republican members of the upper house come up for re-election in Arizona, Kentucky, Maryland, Missouri and Oklahoma. These states choose Democrats oftener than they do Republicans. Other states in which successors must be chosen to Republican solons are Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Nevada, New York, Utah, and Washington. These are at least doubtful. It will be odd if out of this dozen of commonwealths, the Democrats don't score some gains and the Republicans suffer a few losses. So the administration can't afford to have much insurgency in its own ranks. If it has, the same situation will prevail which has prevailed since the middle of President Harding's administration—insurgents will hold the balance of power, and use it against the president. The Progressive "bloed" is a bit rattled at the moment, yes, but to assume that it's done for, as the "regulars" have been doing since Ladd dies, is premature until time is given to see how well the independents rally.

Pullman Company Names A Car For Heroic Employee

CHICAGO, July 2.—For the first time in its history the Pullman company has named one of its cars after a porter. The porter was Oscar Daniels, of Chicago, a negro, who lost his life in an effort to save the lives of passengers on his car when the train was wrecked near Rockport, N. J., June 16. At the time of the wreck Daniels was seated on the forward end of the first Pullman, which left the rails, halting near the locomotive from which dense clouds of steam poured into the sleeper through a door jarred open. Daniels, thrown to the floor, regained his feet and braved the steam to close the door. He did so but fell mortally hurt. He was still alive when a rescue party entered the car, but after being taken out refused first aid, saying: "Tend to that little girl first," pointing to a seven-year-old child nearby. The doctors complied and when they returned Daniels was dead.

Georgia's Wealth Puts State Ahead In The Southeast

ATLANTA, July 2.—Georgia leads the states of the southeast in the individual ownership and distribution of wealth, it was shown Wednesday in figures released for publication by T. J. Rose, collector of internal revenue for this state. The government figures are based on the latest income tax information available at the treasury department at Washington. The compilation of the southeastern states by the treasury department gives Georgia 71,341 individual tax returns made to the government in 1924 for incomes during the year 1923. North Carolina is first with $231,861,410, and Georgia second with $223,729,676. The per capita available in Georgia in 1924 was $3,136. Other Southern states show total tax returns as follows: Alabama, $150,433,225; Florida, $168,128,503; South Carolina, $35,204,334. OKEECHOBEE — Three-story hotel and $15,000 apartment house assured. DADE CITY — 150 miles of Pasco County roads to be hard-surfaced.

Keep To The Wide Roads.

It isn't necessary to note the fact that there are now more than twenty million registered motor vehicles in the United States, with approximately four million additional being manufactured every year to be convinced that the era of road building has only begun.

When we look back and notice the great progress that has been made in the last few years in the matter of building roads, we pat ourselves on the back and think we have been a very progressive people, but when we look ahead and see the great many roads that must be constructed and without great delay, we wonder just how we are going to be able to accomplish the job.

Drive out in the country around Sanford. In every section you will see where good roads ought to be constructed. We have only just begun our task and the next few years will see more roads needed as more roads are constructed.

Another thing we must remember is that in building highways not to make them too narrow. With heavy traffic, such as is found on roads between Sanford and Orlando, the narrow road is dangerous.

Do You Know Your Friends?

Do you buy from mail order catalogues or from peddlers who call at your door? Or are you a sound supporter of the business men of your home town and patronize those who are contributing to the welfare of your community?

This is a question worth pondering. The person who is forced to admit that he sends his money out of town is doing little to help his own home town grow, while the one who spends his money with the merchant who in turn spends it at home, is making his business count for the most.

The next time you are tempted to send away an order for merchandise that you can buy just as cheaply in Sanford, stop for a minute and ask yourself how much the out-of-town merchant contributed to Sanford causes during the last year, how much he pays toward the Sanford Chamber of Commerce, what religious institutions he helps support in this city and how much taxes he pays.

It is your friend in the home town that you should do business with and by so doing help not only his business but indirectly assist in keeping money in circulation right at home where it can quickly find its way back into your own pocket.

The Kissimmee Gazette puts it like this: "Through pleasure and palaces though I may wend, I find the home merchant a much valued friend.

INTELLIGENT MEN know that earthquakes like high winds, floods, outbreaks of disease, may happen anywhere. Owners of the great Equitable Building in New York City have put a $2,000,000 policy against earthquakes on their building.

BOLSHEVIST LEADERS suspect that you can't go upstairs two flights at a time. What Sidney Webb, distinguished British Socialist, calls the "inevitability of gradualness" draws upon them.

THE GLACIER moves, but you hardly see it moving. A great nation like Russia may have a violent explosion, but cannot move 120,000,000 peasants, living in their 200,000 little villages, suddenly overnight, in the name of Marx, Lenin and Trotsky.

TO LEAD thousands of men and their families into a strike, to last, perhaps, through the Winter, if any way out can be found, would be cruel folly.

THE MAN responsible for the success of the coal miners' union knows that this is not the best time for strikes, and he will avoid THIS strike, if in any way it can be done.
