

Pole Argument Is Renewed By Cook Vindication Plea

Explorer Thinks Discovery Claim Has Become Stronger

CHICAGO, Mar. 3.—(AP)—A nervous, dynamic white-thatched man emerged from a gate at Leavenworth federal prison in 1930 and immediately demanded that history correctly record him as the discoverer of the north pole.

Hearings start next Sat. ERICK A. COOK, the man who in 1930 blazed through the Legislator a law requiring the re-registering of all voters in counties having a population of between 18,500 and 18,800. St. Johns county was not specifically mentioned in the bill, but there was no hint of a re-registering of all voters. The county registrar said he then breathed easier, until all of a sudden this thing cropped up.

While Dr. Cook practiced his profession of medicine as a trusy physician in the prison, airplanes and airships zoomed and drifted over polar ice fields.

The convict-physician, serving sentence for fraud in the promotion of oil schemes, had scant time while behind the bars to study the findings of the aerial explorers.

Now he has reviewed reports of Admiral Richard E. Byrd, Lincoln Ellsworth, Roald Amundsen and General Umberto Nobile. They prove, he asserts, his account of discovering the pole Apr. 21, 1906 after a long trip by dog sled.

He explained his view in a letter to the American Geographical Society, requesting the organization to make a "full and impartial investigation of my story."

Cook's troubles began in 1909 when he left. Admiral Robert E. Peary reported he had attained the pole a year after the reported Cook discovery, and found no record of a previous visit. The National Geographic Society in the United States accepted Peary's story.

His fight for recognition of his claim lost. Dr. Cook dropped from public notice. Later he returned to the spot where the government brought the fraud charges at Fort Worth, Tex.

Convicted, he was sentenced to serve 14 years in Leavenworth penitentiary and was paroled after serving one-third of his term.

Since his release Dr. Cook has lectured and prepared his autobiography and a book dealing with explorations of the future.

Citrus Price Is Lowered By Heavy Market Shipments

ORLANDO, Mar. 3.—Florida and California shippers poured heavy shipments of the 1936 Valencia orange crop into markets where the demand was light last week, and prices toppled off an average of 19 cents a box, according to the weekly market summary issued by Lawrence Gentile, general manager of Tree-Gold Cooperative Growers.

700 Thousand Will Be Taken Off WPA Rolls

'Thinning Out' To Be Begun This Month; Private Employment In Spring Expected

Six Million Are On Direct Relief

Problem Is To Keep Relief Work Going Until Next June 30

WASHINGTON, Mar. 4.—(AP)—New Deal officials plan to thin out WPA rolls by more than 700,000 persons in the next four months. They count on Spring expansion of private employment and on such government activities as road building and public works projects to absorb many persons not getting relief through WPA.

Administrator Hopkins said he believed 100,000 persons weekly would be placed in private or other employment from now until July 1st. He will start this month to trim WPA rolls from a February high of 3,037,440 to a minimum of 2,310,100 by next June 30.

President Roosevelt told his press conference he had a general discussion on unemployment at luncheon with Secretaries Roper and Perkins, and Major George Berry, co-ordinator for industrial co-operation, and hinted that further talks would be held.

Asked about the A. F. of L. report, he observed that employment always dropped off in January.

Mr. Roosevelt told reporters one of his problems was to find the Celery Feds and then as coach enough money to keep the work relief program going for the remainder of the fiscal year, which expires June 30.

He said the Administration has not transferred any money lately to the Works Progress Administration from other relief projects, but that it is scraping the barrel to tide over May and June.

Relief headquarters estimated that 14,000,000 persons are supported by the 3,800,000 "employees" holding work relief jobs, and that about 6,000,000 persons are on direct relief.

Congressional Candidates To Meet Thursday

Fifth District Conference Is To Be Held In Palatka; Sharon Will Talk

The dozen candidates for Congress from the new Fifth Congressional District, including Judge Jas. G. Sharon of Sanford, are expected to attend the meeting of the Democratic Executive Committee of the District in Palatka tomorrow. According to the chairman of the committee on arrangements, each will have an opportunity to plead his cause from the stand during the meeting. Judge Sharon intends to deliver a brief address.

Democratic leaders who will make addresses during the day include Horace K. Wells, Tampa, National Democratic Committee woman from Florida; Col. J. B. Hodges, Lake City, chairman of the state executive committee; P. F. Mizell, Tallahassee, president of the Young Democratic Clubs of Florida; H. J. Dame, Fort Pierce, congressional executive committee; R. A. Gray, secretary of state; Cary D. Landa, attorney-general; Nathan Mayo, commissioner of agriculture, and J. M. Lee, comptroller.

A business session presided over by Chairman Ray Selden, Daytona Beach, will occupy the morning meeting at the Woman's Club with the speaking and a trip through the Ravine Gardens arranged for the afternoon.

Mayor John W. Campbell of Palatka, will welcome the visitors, with Ellis F. Davis, Kissimmee, and Mrs. Frances Laughlin, Orlando, responding for the committee.

A dance at the Woman's Club has been scheduled to wind up the day's festivities.

County And City Tax Adjustment Boards To Meet

Tax adjustment boards for both County and the City will meet tomorrow. The County Commissioners will sit as a tax adjustment board in the Court House at 9 o'clock in the morning, and the City Commissioners will sit as a tax adjustment board in the City Hall at 7:30 o'clock in the evening.

Tomorrow's meeting is supposed to be the last of the County board will hold this year for the purpose of adjusting taxes, but City Commissioner P. N. Whitehurst has been delegated to ask the County Commissioners to recess from time to time and not adjourn until the end of the month. If this is done property owners who are delinquent in payment of their taxes may be able to have them adjusted by both boards, it was explained.

Service Clubs Asked By County Agent To Help Further Consumption Of Celery

A visitor at last week's meeting of the Sanford Kiwanis made some caustic comments on the fact that celery was not included on the bill of fare at the Club's luncheons, so County Agent C. R. Dawson gave a crate of celery to today's meeting of the Club in the Mayfair Hotel and, while he was not on the program to make a speech, he delivered an oration on celery, its uses and how the Kiwanians and other service clubs can help further its consumption.

The county agent suggested that the Sanford Kiwanis, Rotary and Lions Clubs would be at the community if they will see to it that celery is on the bill of fare at every luncheon during the season, and that there is some one at the meeting to give a "little talk" about it for the benefit of the visitors.

"We take it for granted that because we who live here know all about celery and how appetizing it is and how good it is for a person's health, but there are mil-

Free Cup Of Tea Leads To Strike Of Scot Workers

LONDON, Mar. 4.—A cup of tea caused a strike in Scotland. Laborers working on a $65,000 water scheme at Whitborn, Wigtonshire, were offered a cup of tea by a kindly housewife.

But the foreman complained at the stoppage of work and one man was dismissed. The laborers then walked out, demanding a ten-minute tea interval every 40 hours. Having gone so far they decided to add to their demands one for an increase in wages.

TOKYO, Mar. 4.—(AP)—Astounding Prince Konoye, leader in the imperial naval circles, declined today to become the youngest Japanese premier, sending Emperor Hirohito and his advisers on a new search for a man able to head the government in the crisis. The 42-year-old Prince Konoye pleaded ill health.

Marlins headquarters announced today that more than 1,400 officers and men took part in the rebellion which broke last Wednesday.

Seven leaders of the Japanese Army, including two mentioned as the possible next premier, tendered their resignations last night from the supreme war council because they felt indirectly responsible for last Wednesday's coup.

In an unprecedented situation, the seven generals asked Gen. Yoshijiro Kawashima, minister of war, to submit their resignations to Emperor Hirohito.

They are Seimoru Hayashi and Sadao Araki, both mentioned as possibilities for premier; Nobuyuki Abe, Jinzaburo Mazaki, Goro Nishi, Keikichi Ueda, and Count Junji Teranishi.

If the resignations are accepted only the four imperial princes, Kuni, Nishimura, Higashikuni and Asaka will be left on the day of voters desiring to register in order to be eligible to cast their ballots in the June primary.

The army leaders explained they felt responsible for condoning the revolt.

Prince Konoye Declines Offer To Be Premier

Japan's Emperor As-
Yet Unsuccessful
In Finding Successor To Okada

TOKYO, Mar. 4.—(AP)—Aristocratic Prince Konoye, leader in the liberal naval circle, declined today to become the youngest Japanese premier, sending Emperor Hirohito and his advisers on a new search for a man able to head the government in the crisis. The 42-year-old Prince Konoye pleaded ill health.

Martial law headquarters announced today that more than 1,000 officers and men took part in the rebellion which broke last Wednesday.

Seven leaders of the Japanese

Army, including two mentioned as the possible next premier, tendered their resignations last night from the supreme war council because they felt indirectly responsible for last Wednesday's bloody military coup.

In an unprecedented situation, the seven generals asked Gen. Yosuke Kawashima, minister of war, to submit their joint resignations to Emperor Hirohito. They are: Sankuro Hayashi and Seizo Araki, both mentioned as possibilities for premier; Nobuyuki Abe, Jinzaburo Masaki, Gichiro Nihei, Kenkichi Ueda, and Count Juichi Terauchi.

If the resignations are accepted only the four imperial princes, Kanin, Nishimoto, Higashikuni and Asaka will be left on the war council. Masaki and Araki are firm nationalists, while Generals Hayashi, Ueda and Abe are known as moderates.

The army leaders explained why they feel responsible for conditions in the army which had made the revolt possible.

Indicating dissatisfaction, however, has been restored, the government today withdrew the first fleet from Tokyo Bay, where it had been called during the height of last week's trouble. Tokyo, however, remained under martial law and troops were still occupying strategic positions.

Wilcox Pressing
Bill Of Defense
Of Pacific Coast

WASHINGTON, Mar. 4.—Congressman J. Mark Wilcox, Democrat, Florida, said today he is "pressing the master" strenuously and expects action within a few weeks on his bill to establish a chain of air bases along the Pacific coast. A report by the War Department on the measure is awaited by the appropriations committee. The department is expected to recommend that the government withdraw the first fleet from Tokyo Bay, where it had been called during the height of last week's trouble. Tokyo, however, remained under martial law and troops were still occupying strategic positions.

The House Navv Affairs Committee, meanwhile, is preparing to report a bill to authorize construction of 54 auxiliary ships over a 10-year period embracing $21,000 tons of vessels as a cost of Speaking over the radio Sunday night, W. J. Cameron, an economist connected with the Ford Motor Company, declared that business has done more for recovery and relief of the unemployed than the government has. We hear so much from the politicians about what the government is doing that we sometimes lose sight of the fact that many other factors in our modern life are also contributing to the full extent of their ability in order that the return of prosperity may be hastened and the plight of the destitute relieved.

Mr. Cameron recalled that the government has now or is preparing to spend out of the President's $1 billion fund, some ten billions of dollars on public works projects of one kind and another and in some instances a dole for the unemployed. During approximately the same length of time, what Mr. Cameron calls American Business spent 27 billion dollars, or nearly three times what the government spent, for pretty much the same purpose. During the year of 1933-34, while the government was spending 2 billion dollars on work relief, American Business was spending $11-2 billion dollars for the sole purpose of keeping men employed.

Mr. Cameron bases his figures on the differences between receipts and expenditures of American Business. Far from making any money during these years, business as a whole lost money, and was compelled to draw upon its reserves, accumulated out of the savings of previous years, to keep the wheels of industry turning. If there had been no reserves to draw upon, or if business had declined to make the sacrifice, there would have been millions more unemployed than there actually were. Cameron says that from 1930 to 1934 American Business took in 214 billions, and paid out for wages, taxes, supplies and the other necessities of operation, 241 billions, or 27 billions more than its income. It is this 27 billions taken from the savings of more prosperous years and wisely conserved for just such emergencies, that represents American Business' contribution to relief and recovery.

Much in the same manner life insurance companies have done their share toward keeping the wheels of industry turning and aiding people who were out of jobs or otherwise in trouble. During the six worst years of the depression American life insurance companies paid out over 13 billion dollars to policyholders and beneficiaries. Last year alone some $2,600,000,000 was distributed in this manner among people who for one reason or another were in trouble. Indicating that one does not have to die to win when he takes out an insurance policy, a total of $1-700,000,000 of this sum was paid to living policyholders.

The National Association of Life Underwriters reveals that there are now 65,000,000 policyholders in the United States who own more than 100 billion dollars worth of life insurance. These policyholders come from every walk of life, rich and poor, and have policies ranging from $1,000 to a million dollars or more. In time of stress, due to unemployment, sickness in the family, accidents, or death, the benefit payments from these life insurance policies save thousands of families from being forced on charity or becoming the charge of government relief agencies.

And so when we hear so much about what the government is doing to save the country, we must not forget that American Business and the Life Insurance Companies, as well as the churches, fraternal organizations, endowed hospitals, orphan asylums, maternity homes, and countless other charitable foundations, have aided millions of distressed people and are worthy of the utmost thanks and praise for the contributions they have made toward relief and recovery.

The Accident Toll

Accidents in the United States last year caused approximately 99,000 deaths, according to estimates made public recently by the National Safety Council. There were 386,000 permanent disabilities and 9,180,000 temporary disabling injuries. The cost of these accidents, including wage loss, medical expense and property damage, was approximately $3,400,000,000.

The accidental death total was the third highest in history, says a Safety Council bulletin. "It was exceeded only in 1934 and in 1930. Motor vehicle accidents again led as a cause of death, with home accidents second. Council tabulations show that the 99,000 deaths occurred as follows:

Motor Vehicle	36,400
Other Public	17,500
Home	31,500
Occupational	16,500
Total	99,000

Note: Total eliminates duplication of 2,900 occupational motor vehicle deaths.

The motor vehicle death total last year registered an all-time high, increasing one percent over the 1934 figure. Deaths were twice as high as in 1928 and nearly 50 percent above 1927. Two-thirds of all traffic accidents last year occurred in small towns under 10,000 population and in rural areas. Rural fatalities have increased 64 percent since 1924, whereas deaths in cities have advanced but 27 percent. More than 40 percent of the traffic accident victims last year were pedestrians.

Two sections of the country were able to reduce motor vehicle deaths in 1935, despite the national increase. These were: (1) the eastern area, including the New England and Middle Atlantic states, and (2) the western area, including the Rocky Mountain and Pacific Coast states. Fourteen individual states succeeded in reducing traffic deaths seven percent or more. They were Delaware, District of Columbia, Illinois, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Montana, North Dakota, Oregon, Rhode Island, Utah, Vermont, Wyoming and Washington.

Great Ship Lost 50 Years Believed Sighted

BALFOUR, Alaska, Mar. 4.—(AP)—Identity of a derelict ship locked in the Arctic ice for 50 years has puzzled natives and whalers for years, but some believed she might be one of seven staunch whalers which sailed into the northern seas 50 years ago and never returned.

The vessel, a two-masted schooner, first was sighted a week ago. Whalers attempted to reach it but failed.

The mystery of the derelict may be solved when the ice pack clears this summer.

How lays Two-Tone Eggs

SHREVEPORT, La.—More than half of the H. H. May chicken yard had something to cackle about when she laid a two-ton egg. This was white; the other, light brown.

The red ones, however, are produced continuously throughout the year and the life of the rust is, therefore, independent of the berries in those states.

The next day the two officials were informed by the Admiralty office that the vessel was known to be visiting England. This came to official dignity, however, never to be published.

On another occasion Mr. Cole, while walking in London, saw his distinguished friend, Commander Oliver Lockhart-Lampson, M. P., a career naval officer. Cole took after him, shouting "Sleep Tight!" and before the admiral could speak English. An address of welcome was read and the British officer, who had been seated by a crowd, and turned over to a sailor. Mr. Cole, meanwhile, had disappeared, but numerous members of the crew were willing to swear that they had seen Lockhart-Lampson take command's watch, and he went to the white horse.

Lockhart-Lampson finally was recognized with some difficulty. He gained his revenge by having an ordinary notice of Cole published in a daily paper.

One morning Mr. Cole saw a group of Chinese sampling among bushes with a large collection of peacock feathers, roses and blossoms.

"What the hell are you, man leading for?" he asked.

The men explained that they had been told he was there.

"Incorrect," said Mr. Cole. "I follow you. You are too many men here now."

He led them to Piccadilly, near Bond Street where at his orders they were required to sweep up the street.

After some remonstrating, that Mr. Cole had every right to drive the Chinese away by revoking their permit, and especially quite a sizeable air raid bomb made up the scene. Mr. Cole had disappeared while the little company finally cleaned up the bushes because the black spuds are formed in May or early June and cannot survive the long, hot summers, he said.

The red ones, however, are produced continuously throughout the year and the life of the rust is, therefore, independent of the berries in those states.

In northern states the barberry bush is regarded as a distinct menace and a vigorous campaign has been carried on to eradicate it, about 18,000,000 bushes having been destroyed.

This rust, as well as the others, is caused by a tiny, parasitic mold-like fungus plant above ground.

The spores fall on the plants and send out one or two green tubes which enter it through the breathing pores. Inside they develop through their life cycle until nourishment drawn from the plant, finally breaking through the epidermis as minute filled with the next generation of spores.

Dr. Humphrey pointed out that the even, ripe spores have two sugars, red, which normally is found through the summer and black, which usually appears when the wheat starts to ripen.

The black spores will not germinate immediately, but generally remain on straw or stubble through the winter and cannot infect grains or trees.

They infect only certain species of the barberry bush, which in turn produce the spores dangerous to growing crops.

Because of the peculiarity the rust problem is somewhat understood, Dr. Humphrey said.

Family Colony In Texas Bought By Its Residents

WASHINGTON, Mar. 4.—(P)—
Sale of Houston Gardens, a fifty-family resettlement project near Houston, Tex., to residents of the place for $165,000 was announced by the Resettlement Administration. This is the second resettlement project to be sold to residents within a week. Sale of Houston Gardens, a larger project near Houston, Tex., was announced several days ago.

The property has been tax-exempt as Federal property, and the sale will place the land and buildings back on local tax books of the state and county. Residents of the project have formed a corporation which is buying the property from the government.

The sale price is payable over forty years with interest at 3 per cent. The total includes $9,372 for administrative expenses, and is sufficient to liquidate the entire cost of the project, except for $1,574 spent on roads and parks.
These have been dedicated to the State of Texas.

VISUAL NEWS of the WORLD IN PICTURES

U. S. ACCEPTS BOULDER DAM

"Hard rock" engineers don't go in very much for formality—and so the great Boulder Dam on the Colorado river was delivered to the United States government by the contractors with no more ceremony than a handclap. "It's yours," simply exclaimed Frank Grawe (right), superintendent for the builders, as he greeted Ralph Lewry (left), engineer representing the federal reclamation service, upon completion of the gigantic project. LAST 'DEBT' PRISONER FREED

Having served six months in jail at Chicago for failure to pay a $7,500 judgment on grounds that she alienated the affections of a policeman, Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blackidge, former federal internal revenue collector for Illinois, is shown bidding farewell to Warden Frank G. Said. The law under which she was imprisoned has been revoked and officials say no other person will be jailed in Illinois for "debt." (Associated Press Photo)

STRIKE PUTS JACK TO NURSING

BUILDING WORKERS' STRIKE CRIPPLES NEW YORK

Walking up long flights of stairs and singing in vain for the Justice became the order of the day when building employees went on strike in New York's business and residential districts. Workers are shown in front of an apartment house on Madison and Avenue, which made out as best they could to get babies down from upper floors for outings on the sidewalk. (Associated Press Photo)

A COUPLE OF TIGERS GO IN FOR HORSEPLAY

Maybe it was joy over being traded from the second division Chicago White Sox to the world-champion Detroit Tigers that caused Al Simmons, slugging outfielder, to indulge in a merry bout with Manager Mickey Cochrane at the Bengal training camp in Lakeland, Fla. That's Mickey on the ground. (Associated Press Photo)

EASTERN CHAMP 'TRAINS' FOR AUTO RACE

Auto racing has its pros for George Washington of Edinborough, Pa., champion of the eastern states, but there's certainly nothing unusual about the way George does his "training" for the National Championship stock car race at Daytona Beach, Fla., March 8. These four girls between two things were back to keep him from thinking about the hazardous side of his work. Left to right: Agnes Gummere, Fannie Eileen, Barbara Colman and Helen Goss. QUEEN OF THE BIRD DOGS

Young Girl Has Been Laughing For A Week

WESTON, W. Va., Mar. 4.—Odds to stop laughing, 10-year-old Irene Marshall spent her seventh day under the care of doctors trying to diagnose her strange ailment.

Miss Marshall, who is in a local college, had a bad headache in a three-day period and has been laughing most of the time since.

Doctors and a radio personality have been unable to determine the cause for her mirth.

She and visitors to where she lives, say, are a constant source of laughter which keeps her from sleeping.

DR. ROBERTSON AND DAUGHTER

DEANS READ OF THEIR HOLD-OUT

Here are the two big league baseball pitching brothers—the Deans—as Dallas, Tex., residents of their hold-out town with the St. Louis Cardinals. Jerome (Dusty) Dean, behind the sign, and brother Paul (Buddy) Dean both have threatened to quit baseball unless substantial pay increases are forthcoming. Dusty is demanding $10,000 and says he means it this time. (Associated Press Photo)

LEADER HELD IN MURAL MORAL ROW

DOG GUARDING BODY DEFIES GAS

Accompanying a wife to investigate a shooting in Washington, D. C., police found this dog standing guard over the body of her slain husband, John Wallace, a lawyer. Wallace left his home, the husband of 20 years, outside last night to catch a bus to Minnesota, his home state, saying he intended not stopping over on his vacation. (Associated Press Photo)

WHERE SNOW SLIDE BURNED TRAIN, KILLING 3

Dr. Jack Fletcher (top) places his innocence under the care of God in what he describes as a "moral row" in which he is charged of murdering his wife (bottom), and dismembering her body. He is also accused of killing their son, Robert, June 20. (Associated Press Photo)

Patty's Companion

Robert Fletcher, 41, New Haven, Conn., is shown here last night after his trial for the death of his wife, June 20. Fletcher, a lawyer, was found guilty of first-degree murder and sentenced to life imprisonment. (Associated Press Photo)
