NATION IN BRIEF

Farm Leaders Ask To Address Congress

United Press International
American Agriculture leaders have asked to plead their case before a joint session of Congress today on the eve of the scheduled first nationwide farmers' strike.

"We wish to convey that the United States is facing a crisis unprecedented in American history," an American Agriculture spokesman said in a telegram sent to the nation's capital Monday.

"If you allow this nation to face famine, mass unemployment and economic chaos unparalleled in American history, then Congress has failed the American people and must face the responsibility."

Free - But Not For Long

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The Justice Department said 44 of the 142 American inmates already repatriated in the historic U.S.-Mexico prisoner exchange were eligible for release today, either unconditionally or on parole, but the moments of freedom may be short for some.

U.S. Marshal James Lafon noted that at least 29 of the 44 prisoners who have qualified for the release program are wanted in this country on charges ranging from traffic violations to airplane hijacking, making them subject to arrest on the new charges as soon as they are released.

Ford Criticized By Judge

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — The Illinois Supreme Court has ruled the Ford Motor Co. must pay for injuries caused by a gasoline tank design defect and sharply criticized the giant automaker for withholding test crash results.

Monday's ruling technically has no impact outside Illinois but one lawyer said the decision could be cited elsewhere as "authoritative precedent."

Dog Attacked Previously

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — District Attorney General Tom Shriver said Monday that police have statements from at least three people who say a German shepherd dog which allegedly killed a 3-year-old boy Saturday had previously attacked them.

Shriver said there had been no word from the dog's owner, Dr. Charlie R. Smith, on what he planned to do with the animal.

7 College Students Killed

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Seven Providence College students were killed early today — two by jumping out windows — in a fire that swept the top floor of a women's dormitory. At least 16 persons were injured, authorities said.

Mr. P's Top Dining, Entertainment

Mr. P's Restaurant and Show Lounge is Sanford's definitive spot for a complete evening of fine dining and listening. It's everything a nightclub should be. The atmosphere is tasteful and sophisticated; the food is a gourmet's envy; and the band, "Happy Feelings," is polished and professional.

When you enter Mr. P's, you'll know that you're in for a special evening. From the moment you're seated at a candlelit table to the moment you finish your after-dinner drinks, you'll be catered to and entertained in such style as can only be found at Mr. P's.

You will choose from such exotic gourmet entrees as shrimp, scallop, glazed Hawaiian ham, steak prepared in Manager Nick Morte's own special sauce, delicious Florida lobster or prime rib, the house specialty. Naturally, these may be preceded by an appetizer such as escargot snails or a delicious shrimp cocktail. Their French onion soup is highly recommended. All entrees are accompanied by salad from the salad bar, potato and freshly baked bread. Complete your dining with flamboyant cherries jubilee or a warm, rich baked Alaska.

Your enjoyment will just begin with dinner, however. "Happy Feelings," the group appearing at Mr. P's six nights a week, produce the perfect sounds to complement your dining. Versatility is their forte. They play it all, from Broadway to Nashville, 1940 to the Top 40. Billy Delgado, the group's leader and frontman, hails from Boston. Besides songs like "After the Lovin'" and "Sungate," Neil Diamond's hits, Billy doubles on valve trombone and drums. Kevin Kronk is a highly talented keyboard artist from Tampa. He covers the piano, organ and string ensemble. Jerry Frasier is the percussionist.

You'll have that "Vegas Feeling" when you are at Mr. P's, with "Happy Feelings" so put on a smile and come see us.

Frames n Stuff, located at 1550 E. SR 46, Altamonte Springs, has a full line of frames to suit any decor. Whether home or office, and all sizes, too. Custom framing is also done at the shop and will be done online for the holidays.

Brothers Herb and JB Morris, who will be giving the usual two to three day service in the framing business.

The Morris use moderate acrylic panels in place of glass. They are easy to care for and are lightweight and break-resistant. They have found this to be more serviceable in the long run in their framing business.

One of the art pieces they've found to be among the most popular this time of year is holiday cards. Needing a reprint, a crewel, embroidery, and paintings on velvet. These, the brothers say, make a "special" gift for giving.

In addition to the framing business, the brothers carry a full line of artists supplies, palette seals, wet painting carriers, which they've designed themselves, canvases, stretcher boards, for stretching your own canvases, painting knives, art bars for carrying paints and brushes.

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

Senate Committee Seeks Abolition Of Three Boards

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The agencies licensing beauticians and barbers have gotten too close to the professionals they are supposed to regulate, Sen. William Zinkl says, and should be replaced with a single new board.

The Senate Governmental Operations subcommittee chaired by Zinkl voted Monday to abolish the Florida Barbers Sanitary Commission, State Board of Naturopathic Examiners and Advisory Board of Shorthand Reporters.

Prize: $100 Million Plant

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Gov. Reubin Askew's economic development campaign has captured its biggest prize so far.

Askew said Monday the AllisChalmers Corp. and Kraftwerk Union of West Germany will construct a $100 million plant in Manatee County to manufacture steam turbines and electric generators.

Florida competed with Alabama and other states for the plant, which will employ about 1,000 people and create many additional related jobs.

Rubin Faces Suit

KEY WEST (UPI) — A Key West gynecologist is suing Miami attorney Ellis Rubin and five other persons for $6.4 million in connection with a 1975 legal abortion case.

In a circuit court suit filed Monday, Dr. Robert Kaminsky charged the defendants with malicious prosecution, perjury, invasion of privacy and conspiracy.

Rubin called Kaminsky's suit "garbage."

"It's not coincidental that this should be filed for publicity's sake at a time when the Florida Bar has chosen to bring other false accusations against me," the Miami attorney said.

Tollkeepers Smiling

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Tollkeepers have been so friendly recently while taking money on Jacksonville bridges that they are causing traffic jams because vacationers confuse them with tour guides, a legislator says.

Rep. John Forbes said Monday he's noticed marked changes in dispositions of the money takers after several Jacksonville radio stations editorialized about grouchiness of the tollkeepers.

"They are so nice that tourists are stopping to ask them questions and they're holding up traffic," said Forbes, D-Jacksonville. "The tollkeepers are smiling now."

Shooting At School

WINTER GARDEN (UPI) — An assistant principal at West Orange High School has been charged with first degree murder in the shooting death of the school's principal.

Classes were cancelled today following the fatal shooting of Principal Raymond Screws, 51, Monday afternoon.

Hoosevelt Holoman, assistant principal for discipline, was charged with murder after surrendering peacefully to a deputy, said an Orange County Sheriff's Department spokesman.

Special Session Today

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Sen. Harry Johnston says a resolution to be taken up by the Senate today defies the five legislators ignoring the Sunshine Amendment instead of doing something about their defiance.

All Those Cancer Scares

We have now been informed that everything we do, touch, breathe, taste, or eat is a potential source of cancer. A multitude of "experts" has been divulging the terrible dangers for us on a soap opera daily schedule.

From charcoal food to saccharin to sunshine to bacon, to, we are told cancer is a menace.

Perhaps now is the time to have the resources used for alarms to the public turned to a more useful purpose. If all this negative attention and its costs were diverted to positive programs for the cure and treatment of cancer, we might see some great results.

With such positive programs there would only be the cost of the action. Negative programs bring about reaction as well as action costs.

A case-in-point is the recent flap about the substance in hair dye being suspected. It appears that after many doses of the usual large scale were fed to mice and/or rats, the rodents gave indications of becoming cancerous.

We have heard of very few (one in fact) incident where women have been drinking their hair dye. Yet, from the source of our information, the suspect substance was fed to the small animals.

This far-out experiment brought about a large scale counter-effort by the industry affected. It appears that the counter-measure was on a more realistic basis. Mice were shaved and the dye applied to their skin and was not rinsed off after the application.

With humans the dye is not used on shaven heads and it is rinsed off within an hour. The experiments conducted by the hair dye industry did not reveal any cancer tendency in the rodents.

This is not a scientific evaluation of the two experiments. It is just a lay observation with an attempt to interject a bit of horse sense into much which we believe is bordering on a bunch of nonsense.

Money, time and effort was spent to arrive at conclusions which in turn caused the industry to spend more money, time and effort. This is a justifiable attempt to prove the first conclusions to be wrong or at least over-stated.

We are getting fed up with a daily dose of cancer scare reports.

Especially when the dosages used in the research are so far from the real dosages that we would be using. The whole matter is disturbing and counter-productive. Why frighten us before the final results are in, justified and proven?

All the interim information is just that—inconclusive and usually raises more questions than it answers.

"Mind over matter" has any bearing on the general well-being of the populace, it might be well to consider that all these constant scare reports may be injurious to health.

Would it now be out of line to suggest that the government "protectors of our health" may themselves be a health problem?

A devil's advocate sometimes serves a useful purpose. But to let him run the show to complete negation becomes ridiculous.

Japan's Door

The trade practices of the Japanese discourage imports of American goods while, in effect, subsidizing exports of their goods to the United States.

This can cause serious trouble between our two friendly nations if it is allowed to continue. We have tried to lecture the Japanese on the seriousness of the matter. President Nixon lectured them several years ago. But polite argument has been unavailing. Stronger action may soon be needed.

Recently, the Japanese cabinet was reconstituted. But the ruling party and interests remain the same. It is doubtful that they will change Japan's trading ways without further pressure from abroad.

But the Japanese must come or be brought to understand that free trade is a two-way street. There can be no lasting security in a trade balance as one-sided as our trade with Japan is at present.

$300 Crime Vs. Crime In Offices

WASHINGTON — Perhaps the most significant new development in the field of law enforcement during the 1970s has been the belated recognition of the problems posed by white-collar crime.

But despite the spate of speeches, reports and seminars on the subject, billions of dollars worth of office fraud and theft continue to go unreported, unprosecuted and unpunished every year.

That dirty little secret surfaced here during a recent two-day conference on white collar crime sponsored by the American Society for Industrial Security and attended by scores of high-ranking security officers from major corporations, federal agencies and local police departments.

As the severity of the problem has increased in recent years, it's become fashionable to place most of the blame on judges who mete out stiffer sentences to hardened street criminals convicted of stealing $300 television sets than to businessmen found guilty of perpetrating $300,000 stock swindles.

But not enough attention has been focused on the activity or lack of it — on the part of prosecutors and officers of business enterprises victimized by embezzlement, computer theft, check fraud and countless other criminal schemes.

One attendee at the recent conference, the corporate security manager for one of the nation's largest insurance companies described the frustration of dealing with overworked federal prosecutors:

"Hell, when we get a $50,000 or $100,000 fraud case, nobody in the U.S. Attorney's office will take it unless we have a completely wrapped up case in a neat package and tied with a red ribbon."

Another participant cited a similar situation in New York City: "They've got 150 attorneys in the U.S. Attorney's office in Manhattan, but they're so swamped they usually won't take a case that doesn't run into six figures — that's $100,000 or more needed to attract their interest."

The time and effort required to successfully investigate and bring to trial a complex fraud case gives the prosecutors at least a passable excuse. But the see-no-evil attitude of too many corporate officials is far more culpable.

Management involvement in the battle to cut losses is not sufficiently aggressive," Philip R. Manuel, a veteran investigator with the Senate Permanent Investigations Subcommittee, said in a conference speech.

Several corporate security officers at the conference privately acknowledged that their investigations often are thwarted by top management. "I personally know of hundreds of cases that have gone unreported," said the security director of a major oil company.

White collar crime is costing America's companies an estimated $30 billion to $40 billion each year. But until and unless industry leaders remove their heads from the sand, it's going to continue to be what the business community calls a "growth industry."

Pro-Chemical Advertising Blitz In Works

WASHINGTON — Monsanto, the giant chemical manufacturer, is about to launch a high-powered public relations offensive to convince the U.S. that some chemical products are good for you — even though they are suspected of inducing cancer.

With sales revenues of $4 billion a year, Monsanto is easily able to pay for a combined television and magazine drive to gloss over scientific findings that the chemicals which preserve your food and safeguard crops may be hazardous.

Since more and more Americans are growing wary of the manmade chemicals they ingest, Monsanto will pull out all the stops. It will recruit its own workers to make speeches and lobby for Monsanto chemicals. The pro-chemical advertising blitz will be launched through television and major magazine outlets.

The company's blueprint, which we've seen, calls for a documentary movie and a pamphlet extolling the virtues of chemicals. Company employees are being urged to laud the wonders of Monsanto's laboratory products.

A 15-page report to the employees boasts that "each television message will be built around a strong visual demonstration that lets viewers see for themselves how chemicals improve the qualities of their lives."

Prominent scientists and experts are being lined up to narrate a message that Monsanto

One couple we know has created a Christmas tradition that brings pleasure all year round to everyone concerned and helps narrow the distance between family members living a continent apart.

With their grandchildren, Shawn, 7, and Lisa, 4, far away in Tacoma, Wash., sending gifts at Christmas was a problem for my friends, Eugene and Helen Butler of 1104 Gator Lane, Winter Springs, so they have come up with an idea that spreads the holiday cheer throughout the year.

Last year before Christmas, Eugene rebelled at having to fill shipping cartons large enough to contain the many big gifts purchased by his wife, who admits "I probably do go overboard at times."

"Why give it all at Christmas?" he asked. "Why not spread it out?" So, Helen conceived the idea of sending each child a calendar at Christmas with a special coupon good for one surprise attached to each month. The catch is each child has to return the coupon with a letter she has written in order to receive the surprise. It has been two years since the Butlers have seen their granddaughters, but the monthly exchange of letters and gifts has brought a closer bond. "They know they have grandparents and we can see by the letters how they are growing," said Helen.

Their daughter, Barbara Hacker, is as enthusiastic about the calendar idea as her children. When she asked the youngsters what they wanted from their grandparents this Christmas, there was no hesitation as they both said, "A calendar!"

So again this Christmas, Grandma and Grandpa are preparing to send calendars, a filled stocking and one toy to each granddaugher.

Each month they will receive a small gift such as school supplies, toys, books or an item of clothing as reminders of their grandparents' love and on their birthday month there will be an extra gift in the package. The monthly remembrances are even more special because they come at times when the child is not deluged with as many gifts as once at Christmas.

Did you know Santa and his elves will make pre-Christmas house calls? For the second year the Sanford Rotatac Club is sponsoring Rent-A-Santa with the proceeds going to the Central Florida Zoological Society.

Santa will be available for home visits on the nights of Dec. 20, 21, and 22 and for schools, nurseries, businesses and parties the dates and times are flexible. You may call WTRR at 322-1440 Dec. 12-17 and request the day which you wish to visit from Santa and give names and ages of children.

Every attempt will be made to accommodate all requests and they will notify families on Dec. 18 and 19 the day and time Santa will arrive.

The minimum donation for home visits is $10; nurseries, $20; and schools and office parties, $25.

Inflation: Will It Ever End?

By DONALD E. GRAFF

The Wall Street Journal had some good news for us the other day. "Inflation," it reported, "has seldom been under better control than it has been lately."

The consumer price index during recent months has been going up at an annual rate of 4 percent, comfortably short of the 6 percent considered inflationary. Prices of key industrial items such as steel have held steady.

But wait, don't relax yet. There's more. It's not likely to last, warns the Journal. Wage increases, rising raw materials costs and anticipated congressional action on an energy bill, Social Security revision and a tax cut are among the economic omens pointing to an inflationary upturn next year, possibly to the double-digit level—10 percent and above. That would put us right back where we were in the early '70s.

Will it ever end? Probably not. A look at the record indicates inflation is one way of summing up civilized man's economic experience. It has been around as long as men have been doing business with each other on a basis more sophisticated than rudimentary barter.

The United States, along with the Western world in general, has been in a state of continuing inflation since World War II. And a case could be made that this is but the latest phase of an epochal trend dating back to the 15th century when the wealth from New World with which Spain flooded Europe.

That was inflation of a classic type with which societies back to the Egyptian and Sumerian have been familiar—a sudden increase, from nowhere or conquests, in the supply of monetary metal exceeding the supply of goods to be purchased with it.

Contemporary societies, served or mis-served by the printing press, have been able to dispense with the necessity of acquiring actual physical wealth to overexpand the money supply. But the basic cause and effect relationship holds as true today as it did way back then.

The effect has been a rise in the cost of living, with which we are all too familiar, which translates into a decline in the value of currency, as the dollar has been doing for quite a few years now. It has a lot of company. The first rule of currencies is that over the long term they devalue.

This is a notable exception to the rule, because the balance of the signs before the deadline even going so far as to remove signs from trash in driveways.

City attorney Ned Julian Jr. said a candidate can't be held responsible for signs put up by someone not under his control and that an individual wants to put up on his private property.

Council Chairman J.R. Grant said in the past signs had been left up on private property and when the building inspector David Chacey went to take them down the owner ran him off. Goldberg, who won his bid for re-election to council, during the campaign complained to police that someone had painted swastikas on some of his signs.

Prayer, which was replaced with a silent meditation last January, returned to city council meetings Monday night. Grant asks his wife, Ruth, to be the first to pray.

CHRISTMAS PARTY Mrs. Goldberg, who is chairman of the city's annual Christmas party for 12 years old, reported the event will be held Saturday from 2 to 5 p.m. in the city recreation center in Sun-nyshade Park. She said she had received $425 in donations so far for the party in addition to gifts and refreshments donated by businesses. The 500 children expected to attend will be served hot dogs, cold drinks, candy and ice cream, she said.

Children are being asked to bring a non-perishable food item to the party for distribution to needy families. There will be entertainment by the church choir and a raffle. Mrs. Goldberg's home is decorated with a variety of candy donated by Ric and Cindy Stallings of 342 E. Warren Ave.

HOLIDAY SPIRIT While in the holiday mood, council approved a suggestion by Billy Mitchell of Windsor Manor to hold an old-fashioned Fourth of July celebration in an area zoned B-1. Council unanimously authorized preparation of an ordinance for a zoning change from Business (B-1) to Commercial for property at 121 SR 434 requested by B.D. Simpson in behalf of the Southern Corporation.

The city attorney also was authorized to draft an ordinance which would permit churches to annex zoned B-1 property in any other zoning by special exception. The city presently has no zoning classification for churches and the First Baptist Church is planning construction in an area zoned B-1.

In And Around Sanford ... The Party Of The Season

The party that Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth (Annette) Wing threw Sunday night at Orlando's Cirrus Club just has to be the party of the season.

In fact, this event was the largest private gathering I have attended in several years. When asked how many guests were included, Dr. Wing said, "Oh, just a couple or so."

The spacious luxurious club was closed for regular business Sunday night. Even the underground parking lot overflowed. Beautiful people were lined up at elevators to get to the 12th floor of the CNA building.

A lengthy receiving line formed where the host and hostess greeted every guest. And there were several hundred-odd to elbow-from-all walks of life.

Annette, wearing a smile and a willow-wreath creation complemented with a matching corsage, was typical of the gracious hostess. Ken probably shook about 500 hands—maybe more.

Many were shaking their heads while agreeing this was a super great party — and a very large one. Everything was just perfect — food, drink and music provided by a combo.

Several comments were received that this party might have been a carryover from the "good ole days" of the December opening of the social season at the former Mayfair Inn, where elegance and hospitality were in command.

So to the Wings — we all thank you! Beautiful! The Ballet Guild Board of Directors entertained at a dinner party Sunday night at Buck's Restaurant honoring three choreographers and master teachers, Richard Arve and Loretta Rozak from the Chicago area, and Mildred M. Caskey of Sanford.

Viola was given a standing ovation as a tribute to her late husband, she received gifts at the Christmas party following the ceremony. Pat and June Miller of Sanford escorted her to the event.

Jeanne and Gerald Warnke from Colorado spent a few days in Sanford as the guests of Bill and Walter Gidlow. The Warnkes lived in Sanford several years where Jeanne was a Herald scribe. They made the rounds visiting friends and relatives. She is now in the hospital at the University of Florida Hospital South following leg surgery. She is the founder and was the first president of Sanford Senior Citizens Club which now has a membership of about 400.

Lou Baker is hospitalized at Florida Hospital South following leg surgery. She is the founder and was the first president of Sanford Senior Citizens Club which now has a membership of about 400.

'I Am Dying Inside'

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 12 years. I mean who, from all outside appearances, is an ideal husband. Nothing could be further from the truth.

I'm 34 and he's 49. I don't drink or smoke, and I've never looked at another man. We have no children because he's never wanted any. He thinks sex is for animals, but he does accommodate on my birthday, anniversary and Christmas. Then he acts as though he's doing me a favor.

He is a good-looking, meticulous in his dress, and has a very successful business. The only people we see socially are his relatives and a few business associates.

I spoke to my rabbi about my loveless marriage, and he said as long as my husband doesn't mistreat me, I have nothing to complain about.

I started shooting this wedding at 4 and was still shooting at 10 while the wedding dinner and dance were going on.

They had an elegant sit-down dinner, but nobody invited me to have dinner. I saw several empty places set up for dinner, but didn't think I should sit down like an invited guest and eat, even though I was starving.

It is customary to invite the photographer to have dinner? And how about the band? ALSO HUMAN

DEAR ALSO: The thoughtful host and hostess will invite the photographer and the band to eat if they are engaged to work a five- or six-hour stint. A separate table or a place in the kitchen is usually provided for those who are "working" a party.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please settle a disagreement between my husband and me? He thinks I'm some kind of cleanliness nut because I bathe every night before going to bed. I believe it's just good personal hygiene.

My husband says I'm "flaky," and bathing before going to bed is not necessary. What do you say? MISS, CLEAN

DEAR MRS. CLEAN: I vote with you. And my mail tells me that there are a lot of men out there who wish their wives were as "flaky" as you. I.P.S. A little soft soap at bedtime wouldn't hurt your husband either.

Problems, tell them to Abby. For a personal unpublished reply, write to Abby, Box 6900, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Where do I go from here? CRAVING AFFECTION

DEAR CRAVING: To your husband, with the announcement that if he doesn't see a counselor about improving the quality of your marriage, you are going to sue a lawyer. There is more life in than three square meals a day. You may have to support yourself, but craving affection as you do, it could be preferable to being yoked to a cold fish for the rest of your life.

DEAR ABBY: I am a wedding photographer, and recently I found myself in a situation that I didn't know how to handle.
