Jackson plans rally in Sanford

By Dan Ping Editor

SANFORD — The Rev. Jesse Jackson and members of his Rainbow/PUSH Coalition will attend a rally in Sanford Sunday night to address concerns about inconsistencies in the voting process.

Jackson was asked by U.S. Rep. Corrine Brown, whose 3rd District includes portions of Sanford, to attend the event, which is billed as a "Fairness and Democracy Rally."

"A lot of people are very confused, frustrated and upset about what happened on election day, and they want to talk about what is happening," Brown said.

U.S. Rep. Brown raises concerns about how election laws are applied

While allegations of voting rights violations haven't been widespread in Seminole County, questions are being raised about how consistently election laws are applied.

For example, local activist Sandra Gaines said some voters had requested absentee ballots but never received them.

Election laws allow such voters to vote on election day at their assigned precinct, as long as the voter signs an affidavit swearing they did not vote absentee.

Gaines said many times precinct workers were unaware of the affidavits or refused to provide them to voters.

"There have always been inconsistencies about what laws apply when it comes to votes in the black community," Gaines said.

Turner Clayton, president of the Seminole County chapter of the NAACP, said while some may see the rally as a partisan effort, the focus is on issues, not candidates.

"The main focus is not who the president will be, but that everyone's rights are protected," Clayton said.

The rally is scheduled for 6 p.m. Sunday at Calvary Temple of Praise, located at 2020 McCracken Road in Sanford.

Discovering mom's recipe for love

Cookbook keeps mother's legacy alive

By Michelle Joris Managing Editor

LONGWOOD — On a normal weekend morning, it's not unusual to find Joan Hansen and her granddaughter, Ashley, in the kitchen making pancakes. Although Ashley is only 5 years old, she already enjoys the intricacies of cooking — a gift she inherited from her mother, Lori.

A special cookbook usually lies open in front of the pair while they are baking. The book of family recipes was compiled during the last 15 months of Lori Madison's life so Ashley would grow up understanding the passion her mother had for cooking. It's a mother's legacy to her daughter.

"Knowing that her life would be greatly shortened, my daughter worked feverishly on projects to help her daughter remember the mother that loved her so much," Joan said. "Out of that passion came the idea of a cookbook to make sure Ashley never lost track of favorite family recipes."

Lori was diagnosed with advanced breast cancer in 1996 — a couple of months after she had a physical and was declared in good health. Her daughter was 16 months old. "Lori had a lot of courage, and she was so inspiring," Joan said. "She always tried to be optimistic throughout the entire ordeal."

The cancer spread rapidly,

Sanford girl stars in Russian Ballet Theater performance

By Jana S. Jacobs Herald Intern

Nichole Crane is determined to reach her goals.

For the Sanford 12-year-old, her current goal is to perform flawlessly as Clara in the Russian Academy Ballet's production of the Nutcracker.

Nichole's long-range goals include dancing her way to the American Ballet, and if that doesn't work out, becoming a pediatric surgeon. She wants to be the best. With several dance titles, a starring role in the Nutcracker, a full scholarship for the Russian Ballet Theater and a 3.9 grade point average, the Lake Mary Prep 6th-grader is already acquainted with the mettle she'll need to accomplish her goals.

Nichole has been pursuing her dreams since her first dance class at age 5 at the Lake Mary Dance Academy. Her mother, Monica Crane, said she loved it from the very start. After her first year at the academy, instructors recognized her potential and she was awarded a scholarship to help further her instruction.

"There is no background in dance in my family," said Ms. Crane, a single mother. "I don't know where she gets this talent, but people who know about ballet said she's got what it takes to be the best. I thought, 'She's only 6, how do you know that?'"

By age 7 she had her first solo performance, Swan Lake, and she took to it like a duck to water.

"It felt wonderful," said Nichole.

It wasn't long before Nichole began entering competitions and winning Petite Miss Headliners, Mini Miss Dance of Florida, and numerous competition high scores and awards. Of Nichole's title as the 1999 Junior Miss Showbiz, her mother said: "You usually don't see ballet in these types of competitions. It was first time someone had won that

Two burglars attack home owner

From Staff Reports

A burglary at a Seminole County home turned into an armed robbery after the homeowner walked in as the crime was in progress.

The incident occurred at 1133 Cardinal Creek Place, near Winter Springs.

According to Seminole County Sheriff's Office spokesman Steve Olson, 37-year-old Lisa M. Ulrich had just returned home from grocery shopping when two burglars, a male and a female, already inside her home, confronted her. The male produced a handgun and put a pillowcase over the woman's head. She told deputies she did not see the female burglar but could hear her giving orders to the male. The victim's hands were bound and she was put into the bathroom.

The burglars then tied the door shut. They ransacked the home and left with an undetermined amount of jewelry, video games and electronic equipment. The two had apparently gained entry to the house by using a tool to pry open the rear sliding-glass door.

Olson said a neighbor saw one of the suspects drive off in an older silver sedan, possibly a Ford Taurus, with a temporary tag. This is believed to have been the vehicle used by the pair. It was later proven to have been stolen. The other suspect drove off in the homeowner's

SEMINOLE SUMMARY

A GLANCE AROUND OUR COUNTY

The holidays are a time to share

My gosh, it's already December. How did it get so late, so early. Seems like we just finished August and are beginning September. But, time marches on, regardless of what we say or do.

Tis the season to be jolly. Now that Thanksgiving is over, Christmas trees are being put up and decorated, gifts are starting to be wrapped, and many Christmas cards are already trickling through the mail. Families are planning on who will be at whose home this year, and the stockings are being hung on the chimney with care.

Nick Pfeifauf

But with all this merriment, we can't overlook those who could be and often are forgotten; the homeless, the poor, elderly, and those without family nearby. Will they have a happy holiday?

Generally, there are two ways to help improve their situation. We can volunteer or we can give. (Of course we could do both). Volunteer workers are needed to help obtain items to be given to the needy. These include those who ring the bells for the Salvation Army, those who will spend time packaging and distributing food, those who are holding bazaars or yard sales to help raise money for the poor, folks rebuilding bikes to be given out, and many others.

Regardless of what they are doing, each of these people is seeking help from others to assist in expanding the Christmas spirit.

As for the bell ringers, many shoppers have a tendency to simply walk past them in front of a department store without so much as a "Hey, how you?" Some even go out of their way to avoid walking near a fund-raiser. They wouldn't put a dime in the kettle, yet they go in the store and spend hundreds of dollars on gifts.

Then there are the lonely folks, those who live alone, those who are in nursing homes or the hospital. While some nursing homes go all out to decorate and make the season as festive as possible, the individuals are often more lonely at Christmas than any other time of year. How can a person enjoy the season of sharing if there is no one with which to share? Pay them a visit. Get your church group to visit them and sing carols with them.

If you know someone who lives alone, include them in your holiday plans. Take them on a trip to see the holiday lights. Invite them for that holiday dinner. Take them to church with you. Many churches will be holding special dinners or events. That's another opportunity to ask them to share.

Time certainly goes by rapidly, especially these days. So the time to make preparations and extend invitations is now — early in the month. If you wait to see if someone else steps in, it may be too late.

And don't pass those bell ringers by. Give what you can, and if you've already given, at least say hello, or "Merry Christmas", or even give more.

Tis the season

Kathy Gehr and Adam Campbell, both employees with the Lake Mary Parks and Recreation Department, decorate the inside of Lake Mary City Hall. The city kicked off the holiday season Friday with a celebration at City Hall.

Christmas rush slows mail to snail's pace

By Joe DeSantis Staff Writer

SANFORD — Better plan on a little wrap, wrap, wrap, and ship, ship, ship with your Ho-Ho-Ho this holiday season.

U.S. Postal Service officials are expected a 3 percent increase in holiday mail volume over last year and are encouraging customers to keep some deadlines in mind as Christmas approaches.

Nicholas Barranca, vice president of Operations and Planning process put this year's anticipated deluge in perspective this week.

"On an average day we postmark about 100 million pieces of mail," he said. "From Thanksgiving through New Year's the daily average increases to 150 million pieces per day."

Postal Service officials predict this season's peak mailing day to be Dec. 11 when an anticipated 280 million post marks are expected. Because Christmas falls on a Monday this year, officials expect Dec. 18 to be a secondary peak day. The Postal Service's busiest delivery days are expected to be Dec. 13 and 20.

According to Barranca, planning for this holiday season began months ago. To handle the expected holiday volume increase the agency has taken a number of steps including adding nearly 40,000 temporary seasonal employees; put nearly 60 million more sacks and trays in service; established three Christmas Network Hubs with more than 80 supplemental airplanes dedicated entirely to moving mail; added thousands of additional trucks and dozens of additional trains; and set up additional temporary processing facilities.

Here in the Central Florida area, Customer Relations Coordinator Elaine K. Pancake said the situation is similar.

"We expect our daily letter volume to jump 25 percent during this peak mailing season," Pancake said from her Orlando office. "Normally we handle 170,000 parcels per day from this area but we expect that to jump as high as 520,000 by our peak day of Dec. 11."

Pancake said Central Florida post offices are still hiring temporary seasonal employees. There are still 350 positions available at $8 per hour. Applications for the slots can be completed at One Stop Career Centers at local unemployment offices.

For customers sending their holiday packages by Parcel Post mail, the suggested mailing deadline to insure Christmas delivery is Dec. 8. For those choosing Priority Mail the suggested deadline is Dec. 18. Past that date Express Mail should be used.

Barranca said the last regularly scheduled mail delivery will be on Saturday, Dec. 23.

Some cities may have limited Sunday delivery.

For last-minute shoppers, Express Mail will be delivered even on Christmas Eve and Christmas Day in some major metropolitan areas.

Holiday mail users are encouraged to visit the Postal Service's on-line at usps.com. At the agency's web site customers can do ZIP Code lookups, use a postage calculator and buy stamps at the Postal Store. Stamps may also be ordered at the toll free number 1-800-STAMP24.

Drugs Near School

An 11 year old female Idyllwild Elementary Student is the focal point of a drug investigation by Seminole County Sheriff's deputies. According to an incident report, a school resource officer in front of the school Wednesday, noticed a girl at a telephone. When she asked what the girl was doing, the girl said she was waiting for her mother, but reportedly wouldn't say why. When the female officer investigated, the girl reportedly said someone had placed crack cocaine in her jacket. The student reached into her pocket and handed the officer a clear small plastic baggie, containing six pieces of crack cocaine which later tested positive to be crack cocaine.

The substance was taken into custody and deputies were called. The officer said she believes the girl may have been a victim in the incident and wanted to get rid of the drugs before she got into trouble.

No charges were filed, and an investigation is underway.

He Thought About Robbing A Bank

Nigel R. Williams, 27, of Forest City, was arrested by Altamonte Springs police Thursday. An officer said he was investigating a suspicious person seen on a bike in a parking lot on SR-434. After Williams was approached, a witness told the officer he had seen Williams in the parking lot for 30 minutes, looking into car windows. Williams is said to have been carrying a large bag. He told the officer he believed to have seen Williams throw a gun into some bushes. Williams then reportedly started to run from the area. The officer located a small handgun in the bushes nearby.

After Williams was apprehended, officers said they found some clothing and a face mask in his bag. Williams reportedly admitted he was desperate and was planning to rob a nearby bank. He was arrested on charges of attempted armed robbery, carrying a concealed weapon and resisting an officer with violence.

Home Burglary

The Seminole County Sheriff's Office Intelligence Section and District 3 (Lake Mary) are investigating a home burglary that they believe may be linked to a caution released several days ago regarding traveling criminals, or "gypsies" as they are often referred to.

On Nov. 17, between 5:30 and 6:30 p.m., a woman reportedly used a patio chair to break a glass door leading to the master bedroom of a residence in the Alauqua Lakes subdivision in Lake Mary. She removed jewelry valued in excess of $20,000.

Deputies believe there was an accomplice in a waiting vehicle.

The burglar is described as a Hispanic or Indian female, approximately 5 foot 5 inches, heavy set, with dark black slicked back hair tied in a tight bun. She was last seen wearing a tanned colored skirt and long sleeved jacket.

Homeowners are urged to be cautious as this is what is known as the Traveling Criminal season. Anyone with information regarding the burglars is asked to notify Investigator Jan Kloth at the Seminole County Sheriff's Department, 407-444-0567.

Real Drive-In Service

Friday morning, Dec. 1, at approximately 9:20 a.m., a black Honda Prelude when through the front plate glass window of the Exxon "Tiger Mart" at 1850 SR-426 and Mitchell Hammock Road in Oviedo.

None of the store occupants was injured and there was no structural damage to the building except for the windows, which were estimated at over $6,000. Vehicle damage was approximately $3,000.

Oviedo police say the driver lost control of his vehicle while attempting to pull into a space directly in front of the store windows. Rather than braking, the vehicle jumped the curb and sidewalk before striking the plate glass windows.

The driver, Gina Demizio, 37, of Oviedo, was not injured. No charges were filed, although an investigation is continuing.

Family Owned & Serving Central Florida Since 1989

We are alarmed by the decision of some corporate owned funeral homes to remove PreNeed trust funds from the Trust. Florida Law does allow a funeral home to buy a bond in lieu of depositing PreNeed funds in a state approved trust.

At the time you pre-arranged your funeral we told you your money would be deposited in a state approved trust fund according to the requirements of Florida Statutes. As promised, the proper deposits have been made to the trust fund.

Our promise to provide a loving and respectful funeral according to your wishes will be honored. Your peace of mind is important to us...so we send this assurance that your money will stay in the trust fund until we certify to the trustee that death has occurred and we have provided the services and merchandise.

Our funeral home is family owned and operated and we thank you for knowing our family is good to our word. If you have any questions, please call us.

Our View

Seminole Vision casts collective eye on county's future

While many of Floridians remain the target of barbs from our northern neighbors about our inability to count ballots, at least in Seminole County we can take comfort that we now have a more collective focus on our county's future.

Two recent developments illustrate that focus. A year ago a homogenous organization was formed giving birth to Seminole Vision, a group whose membership includes a representative cross section of local elected officials at the municipal and county level, as well as representatives from public education, the private sector, social service agencies, education, and health.

By breaking bread at the table of common interests and shared concerns, we are beginning to harvest the fruits of that collaborative effort. We are also embarking on a departure from self interests and parochialism that has often pockmarked the logjam between good intentions, well conceived programs and limited resources.

The first case in point came this week when the Board of County Commissioners discussed with representatives from the Seminole County School Board the concept of sharing revenue that would be garnered from a voter-approved second generation one-cent Infrastructure sales tax. A decade ago Seminole County voters approved the tax, targeting revenues for much needed road and transportation improvements. That measure will sunset in 2001 and it's possible voters will be faced with a decision to continue the penny sales tax for another decade or abolish it. The departure of self interests was evident at this week's commission meeting. The School Board has the statutory right to float its own half-cent sales tax referendum. That possibility could conceivably result in Seminole County voters facing two referendums this fall. The refreshing change is that county officials as well as representatives from the educational community are well aware that taxpayers have only so much appetite for being nickled and dimed.

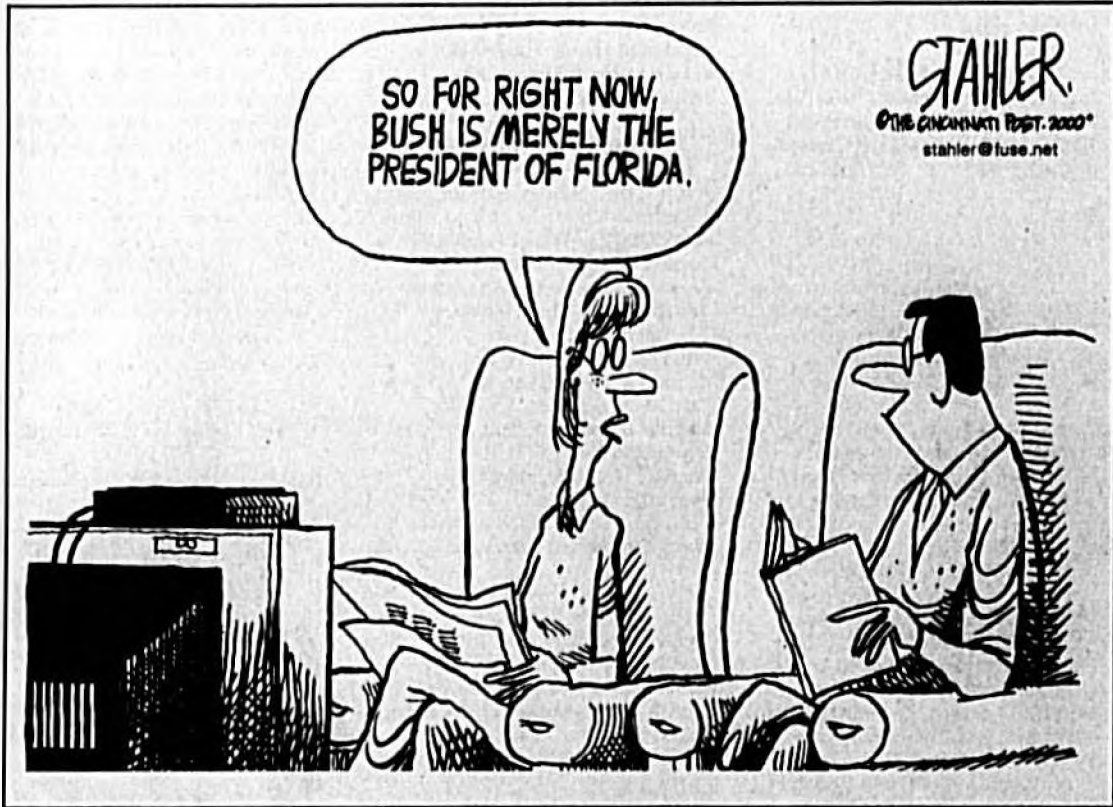

County Commissioner Carlton Henley astutely stated: "There is a level of limits in which the public can be persuaded to support this effort. Without a cooperative approach on this issue the risk is there that the public would favor a transportation referendum over an educational referendum or approving one at the expense of the other."

School Superintendent Paul Hagerty echoed that sentiment by commenting, "There is good value in the cooperative approach behind our efforts for a common good."

Under the revenue sharing plan the school board would receive $133 million over the next decade to address program changes, student population growth and reducing class sizes while the county and its seven municipalities would split the remaining $400 million for road and transportation improvements.

The second example provided by the springboard of Seminole Vision takes place Dec. 7. The Seminole County Youth Commission will hold a half-day workshop to examine issues and concerns of youth from birth to 18 years old, and make recommendations to address those concerns. The Seminole Youth Commission's gathering marks the first time there has ever been a county-wide approach to tackle the problems faced by 24 percent of the county's population. Its membership likewise reflects a broad and comprehensive representation of all parties who deal with the health, safety, welfare, and education of our children.

Big may not necessarily always equate to better. But by collectively speaking with a reflective voice of shared interests and common goals, Seminole Vision is helping us take steps in Seminole County toward a more mutually inclusive future for all residents.

Sellers upset about Lessard's cynical remarks

To the editor, Please cancel my subscription to The Seminole Herald effective upon receipt of this letter; Reason being — Brady Lessard's cynical remarks directed at one of our Florida NFL football teams. He acts like he has some sort of hateful vendetta towards the Dolphins. His comments of the Jaguars aren't appreciated either.

We want a sports reporter that can earn his "exorbitant salary" by researching and featuring key players on our Florida teams for that week's games. There are more Dolphin fans than you think here in Central Florida, and definitely more Floridians! Sincerely disgusted, Linda Sellers Longwood Editor's note: Mr. Lessard, while refusing to back off his comments about the Dolphins, has offered to purchase a one-year subscription for Ms. Sellers.

Harold thanks people who have helped academy

To the editor: We would like to take just a moment to acknowledge and sincerely thank the following patrons of the Hopper Academy who have worked so hard to help us get where we are and who will be with us as partners in the future of the Hopper Academy:

Sheriff Don Ealinger and the Seminole County Sheriff's Office, the Seminole County Sheriff's Juvenile Corrections Department, Marveen Kelly and the Week-end Warriors, the Seminole County School Board and the city of Sanford. Sgt. Matt Hardesty and Bernerdette Hardy Blake's efforts are greatly appreciated.

And last, but certainly not least, we gratefully acknowledge and thank all of the individuals too numerous to mention who have given so unselfishly of their time, their efforts, their labor and their donations in preparation of the Hopper Academy to this point and time and all the time to come.

It is our fervent prayer that this institution will stand as a model of service to the citizens of Georgetown and its surrounding communities in the present, while at the same time serving as a monument to our great heritage of the past, and the preservation of our future heritage in the generations to come.

Thank you, Juanita G. Harold, Georgetown citizen

George W. Bush: The accidental president

A funny look briefly came over George W. Bush's face during his televised statement last Sunday night. It might have been my imagination, I admit, but I can still see it in my mind. In an otherwise stiff and aristocratic speech, Bush suddenly seemed to awaken to the improbability, even preposterousness, of what was happening. Here he was, the frat-boy cheerleader whose one true aspiration well into adulthood was to run a baseball team, and now he was about to become, in all likelihood, the next president of the United States.

I remember his words at a Hartford, Conn., fund-raising speech early in his presidential campaign, when his candidacy was raising eyebrows. "Friends of mine from Yale are in the audience tonight," he said, "and they're in a state of shock."

He was only half kidding. One gets the sense that, as surprised as some of us might be that he could very well be our president, perhaps no one is more surprised than Bush himself.

Joan Ryan

When I interviewed him during the South Carolina primary, I came away with the impression that Bush was like a boy riding this bus not so much because he has his mind set on a particular destination, but because this happened to be the bus that came along. And because of his family's political connections, his family's wealth, his own abilities or plain luck, Bush seems, through little effort, to have ended up in the right place at the right time.

He is Forrest Gump with a trust fund.

"I've never been one to worry about what my next move will be," he said, as we talked aboard his campaign bus. "Somebody asked, 'What are you going to do after governor?' I said, 'I don't know. And I'm not the least bit worried about it either, I want you to know.'"

He went to Andover because his father went to Andover. He went to Yale because his father went there, too. He's still not sure why he went on to Harvard Business School.

"I just went. I didn't have a game plan. I just thought it would be an interesting opportunity to broaden my horizons. About halfway through my senior year, somebody asked, 'What are you going to do?' I said, 'I dunno.'"

"And so it just happened that I went to Midland (Texas) on the way to visit friends in Tucson. And it became clear: This is it. I started a little company and things went well."

Bush smiled and shrugged. "It's the nature of my life."

Things just always seem to work out. It didn't seem to occur to Bush as he talked that he sounded like the trust-funded, safety-netted, well-connected kid he was, the oldest of five children whose wealthy grandfather served in Congress and whose wealthy father became president. I sensed he had yet to question why he has sailed along the course set by his father, from Andover to Yale to the oil business to politics. It seemed simply to be the path he found himself on, and he found no compelling reason to find one of his own making.

He seemed truly passionate about education reform but offered up no driving reason for his candidacy. When I asked what he could teach if he suddenly had to come up with a semester-long course, he replied, "Modern American politics." But it turned out he didn't mean governance.

"I'd look at advertising, message, themes, how a candidate develops issues and the timing of campaigns. I've got a very good sense of timing in campaigns," he said.

He has campaigned well enough, it appears, to reach the White House. But in that moment during Sunday's speech, I wondered if he was asking himself the same awful question another accidental leader, Robert Redford in "The Candidate," asked in 1972: "Now what do we do?"

Art Zielinski asks people what they think ...

Our everyday lives have become cluttered by an avalanche of numbers to remember. Telephone numbers, social security, fax, cellular phone, e-mail address, drivers license and license plate are just a few of the numbers we keep stored in our brain. Now the Seminole County elections office wants to reject some absentee votes because the people didn't remember their voter registration number. So we asked, "Do you know your voter registration number?"

No, not by heart. We have too many numbers to remember. Deborah Stewart, Sanford

No I don't. But I guess if it's required we should know it. It's lucky they put it down on paper for us. Joshua Blackburn, Oviedo

Yes, I know my number. It's my social security number plus the number four. Everyone should know their number. Thomas Watkins, Geneva

No I don't, but that's why I check my voter card. If you have a number and you're going to vote you should use it. Susie Kellough, Deltona

No I don't. But it only happens once every four years that you have to vote for president, so you shouldn't have to memorize it. Argline Allen, Sanford

Fire Department urges you to light up the holidays safely

From Staff Reports

The Altamonte Springs Fire Department has issued a check and caution list for citizens lighting up their homes for the holidays. The suggestions pertain to one and all, in the name of safety first.

Fire Chief George S. Gaston commented, this time of year is marked with holiday lights, trees and ornamental candles. Unfortunately, the fire departments of Central Florida also see an increase in the number of injuries and property loss due to fires. The following are a few safety reminders for the holiday season.

- Check labels of lights to be used outdoors to see that they are suitable for outdoor use. Never use indoor lights outside.
- Use no more than three sets of lights per single extension. Read the manufacturer's instructions carefully and do not use more than the recommended number of lights in one circuit. Each year during the holiday season, fire departments are summoned to extinguish blazes, many caused by faulty wiring. While they stand ready to answer your call, they would prefer that people exercise extreme caution and avoid any serious losses that could take the joy out of the season, and perhaps safe a room, a home, or even a life.

TREES

• Christmas trees that are not kept moist can present a very serious fire hazard. A dried out tree can be totally consumed by fire in less than 30 seconds.

• Take special precautions when buying a tree. Trees with brown shedding needles should be rejected. When the trunk of a tree is bounced on the ground, a shower of falling needles shows that tree is dry.

• When you bring a tree home, cut about an inch off the end of the trunk. This will remove the dried end and allow the tree to absorb water.

• Always turn off lights on trees and other decorations when you go to bed or leave your home. A short circuit in any of the equipment could cause a fire.

CANDLES

• Never use lighted candles on a tree or near other evergreens.

• Always use non-flammable holders

• Keep candles away from other decorations and wrapping paper

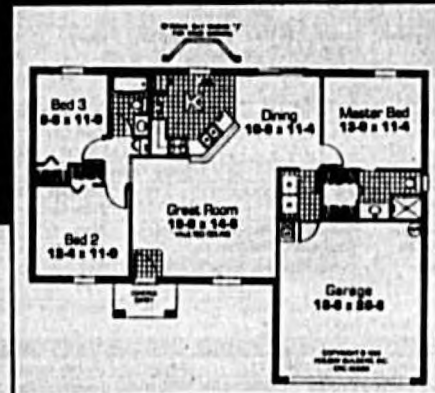

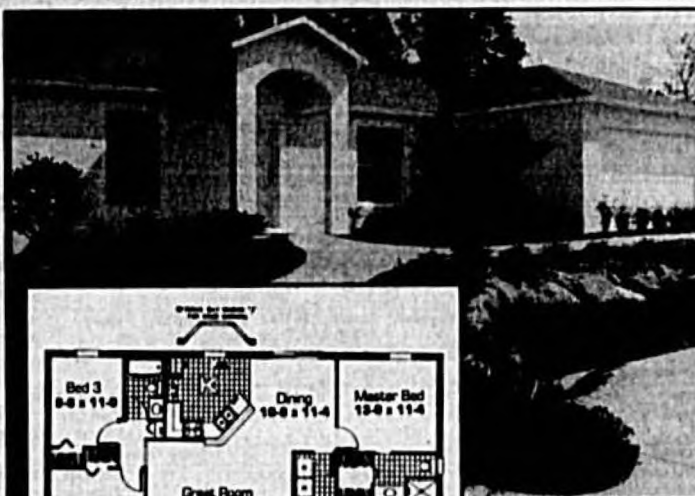

• Place candles where they cannot be knocked down or blown over.

Insurance policy scam targeting holiday consumers

From staff reports

Paying an advance fee for a personal loan is a scheme once again working its way through the Central Florida area according to officials with the State Comptroller's Office.

Unwary consumers are being targeted through advertisements encouraging them to apply for an easy personal loan over the telephone.

Senior Financial Investigator David Burley, in the Comptroller's Orlando office, has been investigating recent victim complaints.

"It's a loan scheme just in time for the holidays," he said. "While it's not a new scam, it works because there are people who are struggling financially and think they have nowhere else to turn. Being able to quickly borrow money, from hundreds to thousands of dollars with a 'simple' application process is enticing. It goes right back to the old saying, 'If it sounds too good to be true, it probably is.'"

The scam works like this. People needing money see an ad with a toll-free number and an Orlando address. When they call, they are promised a loan and asked to provide preliminary loan application information, including their Social Security Number, place of employment, driver's license number, and monthly household income.

After providing the information, the applicant is asked to call back later that day or the following day. When they do, they are told their loan has been pre-approved. At that point, the loan representative falsely touts the importance of purchasing a "life and disability policy" to protect them and their family members in the event they are unable to work and cannot meet their monthly loan payments.

The cost of the insurance policy usually varies from five to 10 percent of the loan's face value. The unsuspecting borrower receives a release form in the mail and is instructed to return it, with a money order for the insurance, to an address in Ontario, Canada.

Florida officials, including the Statewide Prosecutor's Office, are working closely with Canadian law enforcement agencies to end this scheme. They have identified the names of several suspects but, as Burley explains, the Postal Service has determined the Orlando mailing address does not exist, and the names of the fraud suspects are just as bogus.

For additional information, contact the Central Florida Regional Office of the Department of Banking and Finance at 407-295-070, or, toll-free, 1-800-342-2247.

Workshop scheduled to focus on Seminole County youth

By Joe DeSantis
Staff Writer

SANFORD — Representatives from local governments, education, and the private sector will gather in Maitland Dec. 7 to discuss and make recommendations on improving the quality of life for Seminole County youth.

The half-day Seminole County Youth Commission workshop is designed to identify the most pressing issues of children from birth to 18 years old and then make recommendations on how to address those concerns.

"We have a representative cross section from the community who deal daily with these issues," said Youth Commission co-chair Wayne Weinberg. "This is a cooperative effort to bring issues to the table to find out what agencies and organizations are doing, what cracks there are in the system, and to look at long-term solutions."

Weinberg said some of the obvious concerns of the youth population are readily evident.

"You don't have to say, duh, we are aware of teen pregnancy problems, literacy problems, juvenile delinquency problems," he said. "Those are issues everyone is aware of. At the same time we want to examine new concerns that may be developing on the horizon and issues we need to be on the lookout for."

With the youth population of Seminole County representing 24 percent of the total population, Weinberg said there has never been a county-wide or community-wide effort to determine if the most important needs of youth are being addressed.

The Youth Commission is a spring-board project stemming from a county-wide Seminole Vision program that earlier this year brought together representatives from virtually every corner of the county to start addressing issues from a broad-based perspective and an eye on the future.

Among those expected at the Dec. 7 workshop are the mayors of Seminole County's seven municipalities, representatives from the Board of County Commissioners, various chambers of commerce, the Seminole County School Board, the county Health Department, and private enterprises.

The morning will kickoff with introductory remarks by Weinberg, co-chair Dr. Hortense Evans, Associate Superintendent of Seminole County Public Schools, and county commissioner Carlton Henley. Keynote comments will then be delivered by Orlando Magic executive Julius Erving.

Commission members will then break into smaller teams for discussion and a vote on the most pressing issues facing youth. Prior to lunch the groups will then develop recommendations to address those concerns and for future communication and implementation.

"We're attempting to get everyone involved on the same page and be proactive," Weinberg said. "We'll discuss the troubling things facing our youth and we'll also talk about the good, positive things they are doing. Hopefully we'll get closer to answering the question: 'How can we enhance their quality of life.'"

The Way We Were: Anecdotes from the doctor

Here are more anecdotes from Dr. Charlie Park Jr.'s book, "True Grits ... What Else?" Enjoy.

Dr. Park Chases Off A Burglar

Dr. Park, Sr. loved his toys. It didn't make any difference if it was a new fishing plug or a new car; he enjoyed admiring it until the newness wore off.

When Charlie was a preschooler, they lived in a small house in the 2400 block of Palmetto Avenue. No one had much, but there were a lot of break-ins. Dr. Park felt they needed protection, so Police Chief Roy Williams got him a pistol, a most impressive weapon.

On the day it arrived, Dr. Park assembled and disassembled it several times before placing it in the bedroom closet. The next evening, he admired his gun again and then turned and aimed it out the window. There was an immediate crashing sound like someone running off in great haste. Dr. Park called the police. An investigation revealed footprints and cigarette butts outside the window.

Grace-Marie Stinecpher

The break-ins abruptly ended.

SNAS Plane Crashes

Several of us will remember this terrible incident, but Charlie happened to be directly involved.

In 1956, a fully fueled bomber took off for Norfolk from our Navy base, but soon lost power in one engine. The pilot jettisoned fuel and tried to return to the base. As the plane turned into its landing approach, it suddenly lost power in the remaining engine and clipped several pine trees before nosing into the ground. It struck a railroad track and stopped over and landed on top of a house on Orange Avenue. The sole occupant of the house, Cotton Brown, was somehow thrown out of the house and was not injured. The crew of three was killed instantly.

The family next door was eating lunch in their screened porch when the right wing tank broke loose and slid across the yard, throwing burning gasoline all over them. The six year old boy ran out of the door where he was grabbed by a neighbor who was able to put out his flaming clothing and hair. The mother and dad also got out and doused themselves with water. They weren't able to get the baby out of her high chair.

When they arrived at the hospital, Charlie took over the care of the mother and child and another surgeon treated the father. Both parents were horribly burned and died a few days later. The boy was also terribly burned, but responded well to treatment. Charlie consulted with a plastic surgeon in Orlando who gave him advice on treatment, which Charlie explains in detail.

For six weeks, the child never said a word. Finally, after the sixth graft, he suddenly said, "Did they take this time, Dr. Park?" Grafting was done every week and he gradually improved. Charlie said that it was hard for him to believe that this little guy is now a grandfather.

I well remember this crash. I was home from college during the summer and my mother and I were in the kitchen. We heard this horrible crash and thought it was surely just across the street. In fact it was about eight blocks due east in the 2400 block of Orange Avenue. We could see the smoke and such from our front porch. And along with the other gawkers, we drove there soon afterwards to see the damage and hear the story. A terrible tragedy.

Patient Punishes Charlie

An 80 year old lady who had been a long-time patient of Charlie's dad was fishing on the river when she tumbled down an embankment. She sustained a bad fracture of her wrist and a few bruises. Charlie explained that he could reposition the fragments, but that it would heal in a slightly deformed position. When the cast was removed six weeks later, she had the expected deformity but rapidly regained full motion and strength.

However, she didn't like the look of her wrist and came to the office often to complain about it. Charlie couldn't seem to get across to her that this was as good as one could expect.

One day she asked to talk to him alone. She began by saying that she really liked him and knew that he was just beginning his practice, but she was very unhappy about her wrist. She said that she had prayed about it and even discussed it with her pastor, Dr. W.P. Brooks. He had told her to do what she felt in her heart she

Teen wants to straighten out boyfriend's love triangle

DEAR ABBY: I recently met this guy. He's unbelievable! He is sweet, charming and loving. We went to the same high school, but I didn't know him very well then. He tells me he's infatuated with me and can't stop thinking about me. He says he prides himself on being in control, but when he's with me he feels completely out of control.

We really don't date because he goes to law school three hours from my home.

He tells me all the time I have nothing to worry about because he would give me anything I want. He buys me beautiful gifts.

There is only one thing that troubles me. He has a girlfriend. He has been with her for five years. I know he loves her, but I wonder how that can be if he comes around to see me. He says he's working on breaking it off with her, but he has to take it slow. Last night he said if everything is "meant to be" it will happen, and to just follow my heart.

Abby, I'm trying not to, but I'm starting to fall hard for him. I told him I didn't want to share him. He says he totally understands how I feel. Should I continue seeing him and wait to see what happens, or break it off now?

CONFUSED VIRGINIA TEEN

Dear Abby

DEAR CONFUSED: You are an intelligent young woman. You can see that although this young man is sweet, charming and adorable, he isn't completely honest. A five-year involvement is usually a serious one — so someone is going to be hurt. I don't want it to be you.

The next time you see him, remind him that he told you he'd give you "anything you want." Tell him what you want is for him to do the honest thing and inform the lady he's been seeing that he's met someone. His reaction will tell you everything you need to know about his level of sincerity.

DEAR ABBY: You frequently address family-gathering issues in your column.

Last year I had the best holiday season since my childhood, and all because I declined every invitation I received.

My husband, our two children and I stayed home for Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's. What a stress-free experience it was! No pressure, no uncomfortable conversations, no fights — just relaxing, delicious meals. Please pass this idea along to your readers: It is OK to decline invitations.

COLLEEN IN WILLOWICK, OHIO

DEAR COLLEEN: I'm pleased to do so, bearing in mind the old saying, "Different strokes for different folks."

Every year at holiday time I receive letters from conflicted readers who are under pressure from parents and in-laws to spend the holidays with one side of the family or the other. While those traditions can be rich and fulfilling, I advise them that it's equally important to establish family traditions of their own. Alternating holidays with extended family can also provide emotional dividends.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WANTS TO GET RICH QUICK" IN NEVADA: The slots are not the answer to your dreams — gamblers usually lose because the odds are not in their favor. The quickest way to double your money is to fold it in half and put it back in your pocket.

Nicole began studying with the Russian Academy Ballet under the instruction of Vadim Fedov because, she said, "It's the best place to go." She studies ballet three hours a day, five days a week. On Saturday she's in dance classes for six hours. On Sunday, "I don't do anything on Sundays," she said, "I'm very busy all the time with homework and dance classes so that's the one day I don't do anything." Nicole has a full scholarship for tuition to the academy, funded by private donors who believe in her talents. The academy invites guest instructors and dancers so the students have the opportunity of learning with the best dancers in the world.

"Good students need the professional teachers and we give them that," Fedov said. "Students need to see the best dancers and what they can do. Every school needs professional teachers." This is the academy's first production of the Nutcracker. The cast features about 50 dancers from ages 4 to 16 years old. Fedov said the academy will produce two new productions each year. Their next project will be Cinderella. Performances of the Nutcracker are scheduled for Dec. 15 through 17 at the Plaza Theater located at 425 N. Bumby Ave. in Orlando. Call 407-896-0309 for show times and ticket information.

"We really could have used that money, but it was totally her decision and she decided it's better to go for the training rather than the awards and accolades," said Monica Crane.

One rationale discussed at Tuesday's meeting was projecting the public's appetite for continuing the tax for another decade and the fact that the school board has the statutory right to enact a one-half cent sales tax on its own. "There is a level of limits in which the public can be persuaded to support this effort," said commissioner Carlton Henley. "Without a cooperative approach on this issue the risk is there that the public would favor a transportation related referendum over an educational referendum or approving one at the expense of the other." Seminole County Public School Superintendent Dr. Paul Hagerty agreed. "There is great value in the cooperative approach behind our efforts for a common good," he said.

Hagerty told the board the school district would not use any of the projected $133 million for capital projects, but would instead dedicate the additional funding to address three pressing issues. "Student population growth, program changes, and reduction in class sizes are the areas of concern we need to address over the next five years," he said. Preliminary discussion was given to the concept of "forward funding" opportunities for the school board; a process in which the school board would receive the bulk of its money up front, allowing it to purchase bonds to generate revenue immediately and forego waiting 10 years to receive all projected cash. No concrete decisions about advancing the referendum issue were made Tuesday, but the board of commissioners invited school district officials to return in February for further discussion.

Any possible fall referendum would require substantial groundwork over the next several months. Among the tasks to be completed prior to presenting the issue to the public would be the formalization of transportation improvement proposals of Seminole County's seven cities; drafting necessary ordinance and interlocal agreement documents, and then integrating input/reviews among nine entities; and developing a coordinated public information program pertinent to the purposes for which a re-enacted one-cent sales tax would be levied.

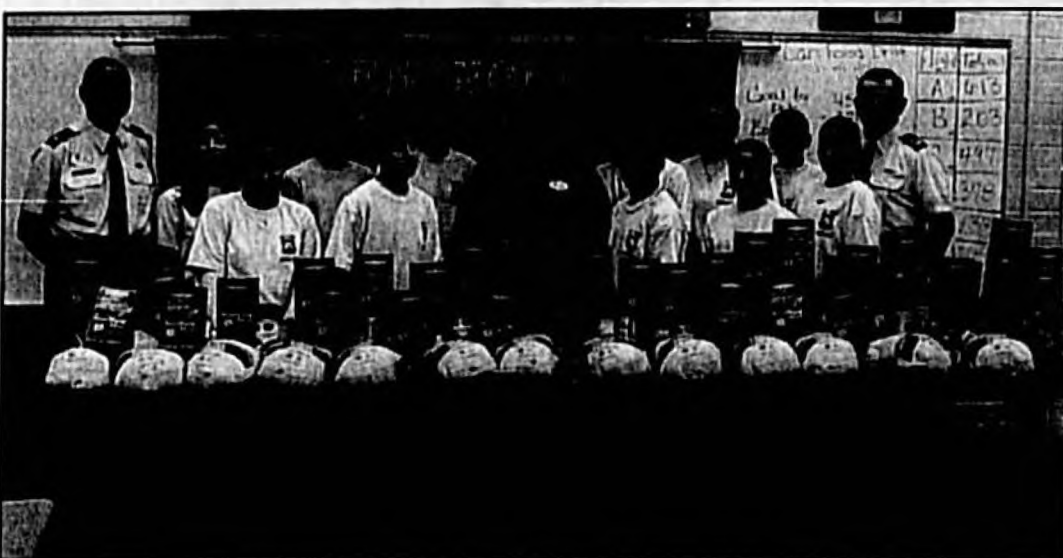

Additionally, ballot language would have to be approved and set not later than 60 days prior to a referendum, and arrangements would need to be completed for the Seminole County Supervisor of Elections office to conduct the referendum for voters. The estimated cost of a countywide referendum is between $125-$150,000. These funds would also have to be approved by the Board of County Commissioners.

Jr. ROTC cadets donate food

Thanksgiving is a time for giving and every year during this season the Seminole High School Air Force Junior ROTC cadets give turkeys and can goods items to needy families in the community. In the past six years, the corps and contributors from the community have given assistance to more than 100 families. Seminole High School cadets raised money to support this project by parking cars at school events, working community service projects, and receiving donations from the Seminole High School staff, students and the local community.

The boys moved in the next day and were at once the heroes of the high school, while Charlie and Kathryn were deluged with calls asking if they had lost their minds. The intrepid freedom lovers lasted five whole days. A steady diet of baloney sandwiches and the screaming kids and shouting parents upstairs made home look a lot better. Bubba later told them that as soon as the sun went down, the roaches marched out, 12 abreast. (I had taught both Bubba and Brent when they were sophomores and well remember hearing of their apartment adventures from my students.)

Bubba Rents An Apartment

Charlie stated that he and Kathryn had made lots of mistakes with their children, but tried to not get bent out of shape unless the matter involved a principal. This approach was well demonstrated when their son, Bubba, a senior at Seminole High, announced that he and his friend, Brent David, wanted to get an apartment and live on their own. They had worked as roofers the previous summer and had saved a little money, and felt they were responsible enough to live alone. They had found a furnished apartment they could rent by the week with no down payment. Charlie and Kathryn's first reaction was an emphatic no, but after thinking it over and discussing it with Brent's mother, they told them to go ahead.

Then, in the middle of their meal, a patient walked up, placed his feet on a chair, pulled up his pants leg and proudly displayed his recent incision. "Didn't that heal well, Doc?" he inquired. Charlie admired his handiwork and made appropriate comments. After he left, Charlie told his wife, "Thank God it wasn't a hemorrhoidectomy."

True Grits, Available
True Grits ... What Else? can be purchased at the Sanford Museum. Other books available there are "When Celery was King," "Strange Florida" and "I Got my Dress Tail Wet in Soda Water Creek" all by Charlie Carlson. The Sanford Historical Society has also reprinted "The Tale of a Mosquito," a story of early Sanford written by Mrs. J.N. Whitner in 1910. A new book, "A History of Monroe," written by Charlie Carlson and Christine Best, will probably be available by the time you read this. It has also been published by the Sanford Historical Society. Visit the Sanford Museum for your Christmas shopping.

One Hazard of a Small Town Doctor
Charlie explained that one hardship of being a small town doctor was being interrupted by patients when eating out. Therefore, he and Kathryn usually reserved his night off for a nice meal out of town. On their way out one evening, Charlie checked by the hospital and got delayed by an emergency. Consequently, they ended up at Dennys in Sanford and Kathryn was a little miffed.

'Strings, Guppies make it 2-for-2 in Fall

By Dean Smith
Sports Editor

SANFORD — Double your pleasure, double your fun.

With another trophy on the line the regular season champion Shoestrings and Guppies came out on top again, winning their respective End of the Season Tournament's for the City of Sanford Recreation and Parks Department Fall Co-Ed Volleyball League in the Dan Pelham Gymnasium at Sanford Middle School last Monday evening.

And both team's did it in style, each rolling to perfect 3-0 records in the event.

Just as they had done for the majority of the regular season, the Shoestrings romped to a fairly easy triumph in the A League Tournament, whipping MJ's and Nation's Fence by identical 15-4 scores, and easing past Beer 30, 15-10.

The Shoestrings actually all but wrapped up the crown in their first game with the victory over MJ's as they came back from the defeat to beat Nation's Fence, 15-9, and outscore Beer 30, 15-12, to finish the tournament in second place with a 2-1 record.

Those two wins forced the Shoestrings to win its final two games, but they did so rather handily.

Beer 30 finished third, topping Nation's Fence, 15-9.

The final records in the A League were (regular season records in parenthesis): the Shoestrings, 29-3 (26-3), Beer 30, 19-13 (18-11), MJ's, 17-15 (15-14), and Nation's Fence, 0-32 (0-29).

The B League Tournament was also like the regular season as the Guppies, who had to go perfect on the final night of the regular season to win the crown, was pushed hard in its three games in the tournament.

In fact, the B League Tournament was hotly contested in every match, with five points being the largest margin of victory in any one match.

Idylwilde opened the tournament with a 15-12 nail-biter over the Saints, but Idylwilde could not keep the momentum going as it dropped its next two matches to Sanford Church of God, 15-13, and the Guppies, 15-11, and finished the tournament in third place with a 1-2 record.

Then came the match that was to determine the champion as the Guppies edged Sanford Church of God, 15-10.

The Guppies then very nearly let the championship slip away, possibly suffering a letdown with the win over Sanford Church of God, having to go a pair of extra points to nip the Saints, 17-15, and secure the championship.

Sanford Church of God then wrapped up second place by disposing of the Saints, 15-11.

The final records in the B League, with the regular season records in parenthesis, were: the Guppies, 16-6 (23-6), Sanford Church of God, 24-8 (22-7), the Saints 14-18

Lake Mary 5-1 after hardwood wins over Seminole and Lake Brantley

SANFORD — It looks like the Seminole Athletic Conference has a three-headed monster in girls basketball again this season.

Lake Mary stamped itself as a threat again, running past both Seminole and Lake Brantley in Seminole Athletic Conference contests this week.

On Tuesday, the Rams fell behind Seminole 6-7 after the first quarter, but came back to outscore the Tribe 31-13 in the middle two quarters and handed the hosts their first loss of the season, 46-35, at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium.

Jackie Beik led all scorers with 16 points for Lake Mary, while senior Felicia Willingham paced Seminole, which was playing without center Chequilla Jesse, who was injured in pre-game warmups, and got into serious foul trouble, with eight points.

never were threatened as they took an 18-9 lead after one quarter, but then turned the game into a rout, outscoring the Patriots 30-12 in the second half to romp to a 59-34 victory.

Boys soccer battle ends in 1-1 tie

Lake Brantley, Lake Mary go scoreless in second half

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — The first real heavyweight battle of the 2000 boys soccer season turned into a defensive struggle at Tom Story Field Wednesday evening.

Lake Brantley and Lake Mary scored one goal each in the first half then went scoreless the rest of the way as they ended in a 1-1 tie.

Shots were almost as scarce as goals as the Rams outshot the Patriots just 8-to-7.

Senior Tom Schuk scored the goal for Lake Mary, while Fulmore scored the Lake Brantley goal on an assist from Lemus.

The Rams are now 2-0-1 on the season and will play a pair of home Seminole Athletic Conference matches next week, hosting Lyman on Tuesday and Oviedo on Friday.

Both matches are set to begin

SCC women club St. Pete JC again

By Dean Smith
Sports Editor

SANFORD — The Seminole Community College women's basketball team must be 46 points better than St. Petersburg Junior College.

For the second time this season the Raiders beat the Trojans by that margin, following an 84-38 triumph in St. Petersburg earlier this month with a 86-40 victory Tuesday night at the SCC Health and Physical Education Center.

The outcome was never in doubt as the Raiders jumped out to a 16-3 lead and held SFJC to only 17 points in the first half, taking a 39-17 advantage at intermission.

In fact, the Trojans had as many three-point field goals, two, as they did two-point field goals in the first half.

Freshmen Brandi Davis and Sheri Harrison got their first starts of the season for SCC and were outstanding.

Davis, a 6-foot center/forward from Bushnell, has been playing excellent ball off the bench and continued her play on Tuesday, dominating the paint in the first half, scoring 12 points, and also completely controlling the backboards on both ends of the floor.

Harrison, a 5-foot-5 point guard from West Hempstead, New York, got the start when fellow freshman Yolanda Johnson had to miss the game because of an injured shoulder, ran the Raiders offense to near perfection and keyed the SCC defense, which forced numerous turnovers.

Dolphins destroy The Crystal Ball's blissful season

Welcome to Week 14 my friends. After 13 weeks of seasonal bliss, The Crystal Ball of Football finds himself on the defensive.

On Wednesday, The Herald received a blistering letter to the editor criticizing my harsh treatment of the Dolphins in this column. I readily admit that I have been tough on Miami over the last few years but for good reason.

A true Dolphin fan, which I once was, will remember the treatment of Coach Don Shula in his last season. Shula was one of the most honorable coaches of recent history, and he was treated like a bum. That was enough to upset me with the franchise.

The cruel reality was that they were disposing of him to hire a thug named Jimmy Johnson and that was a declaration of war.

Remember Jimmy?

He's the one who guaranteed us a Super Bowl as long as we ignored the fact that he was bringing in convicted criminals to play for our beloved team. Jimmy Johnson drove me into the arms of our Divisional rivals the Buffalo Bills. Understand this my friends, I make no apology for my dislike of the Miami Dolphins. Real Dolphin fans will know my hurt as they remember names like Jim Jensen, Don Strock, Griese, Duper, Clayton, the Blackwood Brothers, the list goes on.

Jimmy Johnson stole our innocence in his failed tenure as coach, and only now, with the addition of classy players like Rob Konrad are we getting it back.

Let's take a look at the schedule and find some winners.

BUFFALO (-3) VS. MIAMI

So much for making up with Dolphin fans. My beloved Bills are eagerly awaiting this game for good reason. This will be a thumping Miami won't soon forget. Flutie or Johnson.....same result. Bills 30, Dolphins 13.

WASHINGTON (-6) VS. N.Y. GIANTS

The Deadskins should wrap this game up early but they have been finding ways to disappoint. A loss here will guarantee the dismantling of this "Dream Team." Deadskins 23, Giants 17.

ST. LOUIS (-8) VS. CAROLINA

The Rammies feel good as they get their quarterback to return, but the Panthers have played teams close this year. Eight points sounds too big to me. Rammies 31, Panthers 30.

NEW ORLEANS (EVEN) VS. DENVER

The Aints impressed the League by beating the Rammies without Blake or Williams last week. I hope they can keep things going but I sense a few bumps in the road. Not sure that the Broncos are a bump, but they won't lay down in this one. TOO CLOSE TO CALL.

OAKLAND (-3) AT PITTSBURGH

The Cheaters are still counting their blessings from Thanksgiving. They seem poised to blow through the A.F.C. West, and get to beat up on the Steelers in this one. Coach Gruden is so fired up he may suit up for this one. Cheaters 31, Steelers 17.

TAMPA BAY (-10) VS. DALLAS

I still think the Cowboys are salvaging some dignity with their play the last few weeks. The bad news for them is they are coming to Tampa where a loss would extinguish any hopes of the playoffs. Etched in stone. Bucs 23, Cowgirls 14.

TENNESSEE (-3) AT PHILADELPHIA

The Titans are about to learn that the Eagles are for real. These teams are evenly matched and I expect a great game. When in doubt I'll take the home team. Eagles 21, Titans 20.

N.Y. JETS (-2) VS. INDIANAPOLIS

The Colts have all but collapsed and the Jets will look to capitalize. Manning seems to be out of sync and the defense seems to be following. Tough to bet against the Jets at home. Jets 27, Colts 24.

JACKSONVILLE (-15) VS. CLEVELAND

The Jags finally face an opponent they can beat. They'll get the win, but a 15 point spread? Please. Jaguars 24, Brownsies 14.

NEW ENGLAND (-1) VS. KANSAS CITY

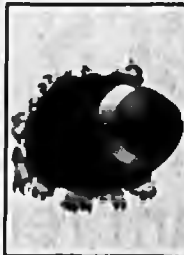

Worst Monday Night Football game of the year. Both teams are out of the playoffs and will look to rebuild at the end of the season. Dennis Miller will be the only entertainment in this one. Patriots 31, Chiefs 20.

Due to the importance of the BUFFALO BILLS game with the MIAMI DOLPHINS, there will be no LOCK OF THE WEEK selection today.

I apologize for any inconvenience this may cause loyal readers, but I hope you understand. I need to concentrate all my efforts on making sure my beloved team has all the tools and mental powers to guarantee victory.

If lightning does happen to strike, and Miami somehow wins this game, you can expect a full apology from the Crystal Ball of Football.

Enjoy your football this weekend and remem-

Seminole Community College men struggle in loss to Paco-Hernando

By Dean Smith Sports Editor

SANFORD — Seminole Community College sophomore forward Chris Calderon played the game of his career Tuesday night at the SCC Health and Physical Education Center.

Unfortunately, the 6-foot-6 leaper from Apopka's efforts were not enough as the Raiders fell to Pasco-Hernando Community College, 83-68.

Calderon has been labeled with the unenviable "potential" tag, but until Tuesday had shown only glimpses of the player most observers felt he could be.

And he did it despite not starting for the first time this season, coming off the bench to score 11 first half points and finishing with 24 points.

He was also a terror on the backboards, pulling down at least 15 rebounds and blocking several shots.

But except for the long-range shooting of fellow sophomore Matt Story (13 points on the strength of three 3-point shots), no other SCC player scored in double figures.

"I don't know what I'm going to do with this team," said SCC head coach Stan Cromartie, who saw his team fall to 5-5 on the season. "We have 13 freshmen and right now they are playing like freshmen. We can fall behind teams like Brevard and Hillsborough and come back to win, but you can't do that against good teams like Pasco and Miami."

The Raiders fell behind by almost 20 points in the first half, but rallied back to within four points late in the half before the Conquistadors (8-5) righted the ship and took a 48-30 lead at intermission.

SCC fought gamely back to within nine points in the second half, but could get no closer as P-HCC pulled away.

Five players finished in double figures for the New Port Richey-based Conquistadors, led by Marcus Ghent with 24 points. Also in double figures were Michael Jones (17 points), Frank Craig (13 points) and Jason Byrd and Michael Morris (11 points each).

The Raiders were to have traveled to Tallahassee to take on the Eagles of Tallahassee Community College on Saturday and then stay on the road to compete in the Manatee Community College Tournament in Bradenton next week-end (Friday and Saturday, Dec. 8-9).

Stewart tossed in 10 for Lake Brantley (0-5).

Seminole got back into the victory column on Thursday, rolling to a 57-36 road victory over Oviedo.

The Tribe outscored the Lions (2-5) in every quarter, but it was a 14-2 third quarter differential that was a killer for the host squad.

The Mitchell's, Matia and Jamala, netted 16- and 10-points, respectively, for Seminole, while LaQueena Grayson was also in double figures with 14 points.

The Fighting Seminoles were also 5-1 on the season heading into a home game with tough Edgewater on Friday and will host undefeated Winter Springs at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium on Tuesday.

The Bears improved to 4-0 on the season on Wednesday with a 41-36 victory over previously undefeated Bishop Moore in Orlando.

No Winter Springs player scored in double figures with Jen Forst topping the Bear scorers with eight points.

Such was not the case on Tuesday as Missy Guadagnino (19 points), Forst (12 points) and Sally Johnston (10 points) all scored in double figures as Winter Springs crushed Lake Howell, 72-32.

In boys hoops action, junior Shawn Witherspoon tossed in 26 points and junior Jake Pickett added 12 as Oviedo improved to 2-0 with an 84-53 rout of Bishop Moore.

On Thursday at the Greyhound Invitational at Lyman High School, Winter Springs evened its record at 1-1 behind 14 points from Djuan Fort and 13 points from Tony Bell in a 47-34 victory over Seabreeze.

for whom the bell tolls

Anderson mans red kettle in hopes of making Christmas merry for everyone

By Joe DeSantis
Staff Writer

With a steady flick of the wrist and a warm smile, Sanford resident Charles Anderson is busy this holiday season manning his traditional pre-Christmas perch just outside the front doors of Wal-Mart in the Seminole Plaza. His steel-gray eyes sparkle with a smile of thanks as shoppers entering and leaving the store stop long enough to drop donations ranging from pennies to crisp dollar bills into his fire engine red kettle.

As he continues to ring his small brass bell, Anderson thanks each passing contributor.

"Merry Christmas, thank you and have a blessed day," he responds, never once skipping the steady cadence of his bell ringing. Anderson is a familiar soldier in this holiday army, part of a legion of Salvation Army bell ringers that dot the local and national landscape from Thanksgiving to just prior to Christmas day. Their mission: collect from those more fortunate to help provide a semblance of Christmas for those whose wallets are not fat with shopping cash and whose circumstances leave them wanting at this celebratory time of the year.

"I love to see the smiles on the faces of people who drop off a little something in the kettle," Anderson said. "Those who help out know they are doing something good."

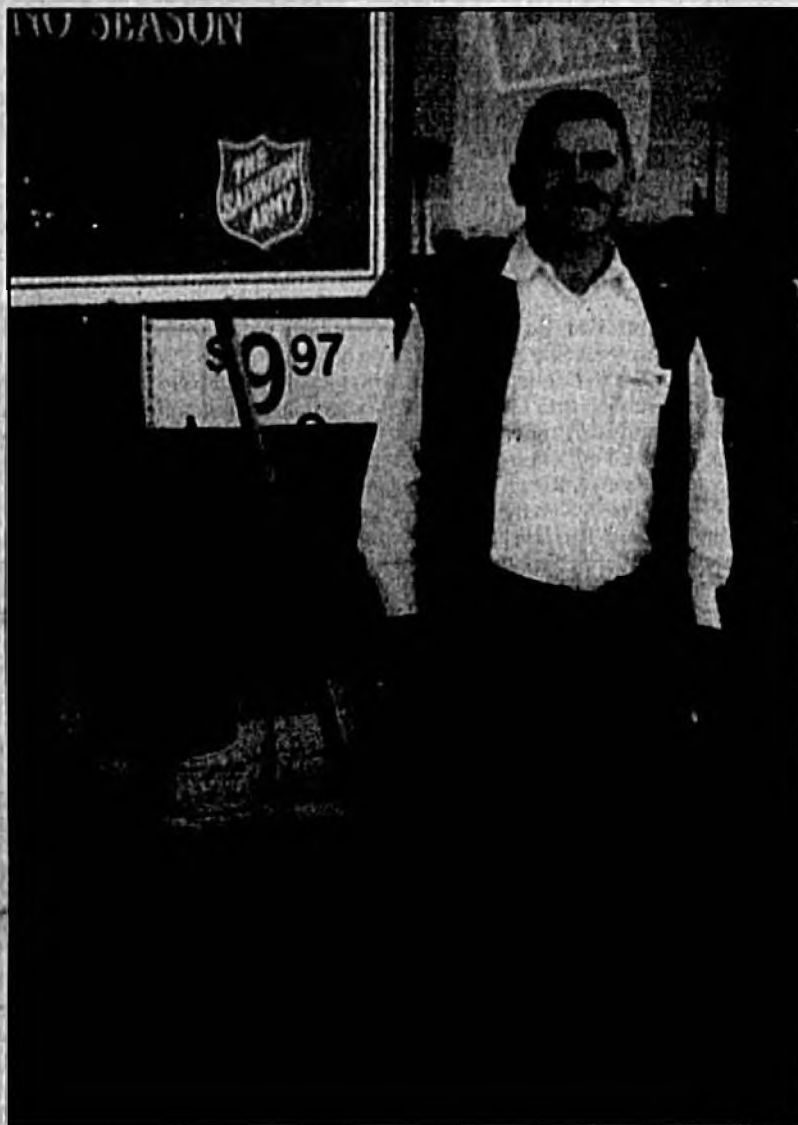

Eight days into his holiday mission this week, Anderson observed that people appear to be donating more this year than last.

"Things are looking pretty good so far — seems people are giving more than they did last year," he confirms.

Anderson said he has been a bell ringer for more years than he can remember. What he does remember as if it were yesterday is that the Salvation Army came to the aid of his family years ago.

"There was a time many years ago when my family, located in Branson, Tenn., didn't have food or electricity. The Salvation Army helped us out and that is something I'll never forget," he recollected during his Monday shift.

Anderson said he plans to work daily this holiday season at both Wal-Mart and Target, armed with his red kettle and ready smile.

Charles Anderson mans his traditional pre-Christmas perch just outside the front doors of Wal-Mart in the Seminole Plaza. Anderson is a volunteer for the Salvation Army.

"We get our assignments from the Salvation Army and get dropped off and picked up each day," he said. "Sometimes I work a normal shift from 8:30 in the morning until 3 in the afternoon. Sometimes I'll work a double shift."

Anderson said it's easy to see how the red kettle collections help those in need because the money collected in Seminole County is put to use in Seminole County.

"There have been times when it's been real hot during the holiday season and there have been times when I've had icicles on my bell," he laughed.

"But year after year people show how good they can be. The shoppers take care of both the kettle and me."

"Already this morning I've had people drop off hot coffee and some donuts. In all the shifts I've worked over the years, I've never gone through the day without people dropping off a little something besides money."

Anderson said as he rings his bell from day-to-day, he tries to put what he termed "good people instincts" to work.

"I used to say 'God bless you' to everyone that donated but I've changed that to 'have a blessed day' because people have different religious denominations and we don't want to offend anyone," he explained.

"I just want everyone to be happy and to have as good a Christmas as I can help provide as a bell ringer."

Salvation Army bell ringers part of Christmas tradition since 1890

By Joe DeSantis
Staff Writer

SANFORD — Those familiar red kettles and bell ringers stationed at major shopping centers by the Salvation Army have long been a part of the holiday season, but most folks don't realize just how long.

According to Major Bruce Williams of the Sanford chapter of the Salvation Army, the tradition officially dates back to 1890.

"It started in San Francisco," explained Williams. The country was in a deep recession at the time and the San Francisco director wanted to do something to raise money to hold a dinner for unemployed sailors who previously worked on the San Francisco-Oakland Ferry run. She set up a big kettle and started ringing a bell to raise the money. Within 10 years the practice spread nation-wide.

Williams said there are about 250 slots for bell ringers in Seminole County, staffed mainly by volunteers from various civic organizations such as Kiwanis

There are 250 slots for bell ringers in Seminole County. Money collected in the red kettles is used throughout the year to support various programs.

and Rotary Clubs as well as church organizations. He said it is often difficult to staff all of the county locations during evening shifts simply because, "Nobody wants to work at night."

Williams said there is also a misconception about the traditional holiday kettle collections.

"A lot of people remain under the impression the money raised from Thanksgiving to Christmas is used just for the Christmas season. Actually it is used all year round to support our programs. Need has no season."

Williams said as the holiday season arrives there are now 1,000 families who have asked for assistance. He said last year some 2,800 families received social service assistance in some form from the Salvation Army throughout the calendar year.

The Salvation Army veteran said Seminole County has always responded positively to the holiday bell ringers.

"Seminole County is generous, one of the most generous I've seen in 26 years," he said.

Williams added that bell ringers surprisingly raise more money in tight economic times than in times of general prosperity.

"That runs counter to what you might guess, but it appears, when times are tough, people realize there may be more people in need and they respond to that."

William Booth: Founder of the Salvation Army

William Booth began The Salvation Army in July 1865. Preaching to a small street congregation in the slums of London, his spirit was as militant as that of a professional soldier while battling an almost overwhelming enemy.

Thieves, prostitutes, gamblers, and drunkards were among Booth's first converts to Christianity. His congregations were desperately poor. He preached hope and salvation. His aim was to lead them to Christ and link them to a church for continued spiritual guidance.

Even though Booth's followers were converted, churches did not accept them because of what they had been. However, Booth gave their lives direction in both a spiritual and practical manner and put them to work to save others who were like themselves. They, too, preached and sang in the streets as a living testimony to the power of God.

In 1867, Booth had only 10 full-time workers. By 1874, the number had grown to 1,000 volunteers and missionaries. They served under the name "The Christian Mission" and Booth assumed the title of General Superintendent, although his followers called him "General." Known as the "Hallelujah Army," the converts spread out of the east end of London into neighboring areas and then to other cities.

In 1878, Booth was reading a printer's proof of the organization's annual report when he noticed the misstatement, "The Christian Mission under the [sic] Superintendent's of the Rev. William Booth is a volunteer army." He crossed out the words "volunteer army" and penned "Salvation Army." From those words came the basis of the foundation deed of The Salvation Army which was adopted in August of that same year.

The Salvation Army gained a foothold in the United States by the work of Lieutenant Eliza Shirley, who had left England to join her parents. She held the first meeting of The Salvation Army in America in Philadelphia in 1879. In 1880, General Booth sent a party of eight Salvationists, led by George Scott Fillion, to officially begin the work of The Salvation Army in the United States.

In 1886, President Grover Cleveland received a delegation of Salvation Army officers and gave the organization a warm personal endorsement. This was the first recognition from the White House and was followed by similar receptions from succeeding presidents of the United States. The Salvation Army expanded rapidly to Canada, Australia, France, Switzerland, India, South Africa, Iceland, Germany, and many other countries.

General Booth's death in 1912 was a great loss to The Salvation Army. However, he had laid a firm foundation for the organization. Today, The Salvation Army serves people in 103 countries.

Women writers from Florida's past visit Lake Mary

"We are happy to have with us this evening, the author of the book that brought about the end of slavery in America — 'Uncle Tom's Cabin.' Ladies and gentlemen — Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe," said Ettie Jane Keogh while introducing the special guest speaker at a recent Lake Mary Historical Commission meeting.

Mary Rowell

Mrs. Stowe told the people attending the meeting she was delighted to be in Florida. She knew that some Floridians resented her a bit because of her book, "Palmetto Leaves." The book, a collection of essays about Florida, brought a large influx of tourists to North Florida after its publication in 1873.

Mrs. Stowe loved her home in Mandarin, located in North Florida. Her husband told her publisher that the author had found Mandarin as heaven on earth, as described in Revelations barring the alligators.

The book that made Stowe famous, however, was "Uncle Tom's Cabin," which was published in 1850. The inspiration behind the book came to her as she prayed in a chapel. She was distraught by the fugitive slave act of 1850. Stowe herself sheltered run-away slaves in her home and taught children of slaves to read.

The book, at first, was published on a small scale and was only read by abolitionists. But once the book made it to England, it was published on a wider scale.

When things began to happen because of the book, Mrs. Stowe never believed that the government would end slavery. In her heart, she believed that the churches of the United States would band together to abolish slavery. It was troublesome to her that the churches remained silent.

Then, the Catholic Church first censored then banned "Uncle Tom's Cabin." While there were many people on Mrs. Stowe's side, there were many opposed to her. Once she received the ears of a slave in her mail. She prayed that the man had not suffered too much. During the campaign of 1860, Mrs. Stowe began to believe that the government would get involved in the issue. South Carolina threatened to secede if Lincoln were elected. Well, of course, no one believed South Carolina when they said they would leave the Union. The state had threatened to secede many times during the years before the Civil War, especially in 1832 as a result of a tariff. And, when the war came, everyone thought it would last only a few weeks.

At the beginning of the war, Lincoln said, "I will make no motion to free the slaves that will not preserve the union." But, the war raged on. The Emancipation Proclamation said to the state, "If you come back to the Union, you will receive consolation, if you do not, we will free your slaves anyway."

Mrs. Stowe went to Washington in November 1862 to talk and pray with Lincoln about the proclamation. The president told Mrs. Stowe he did not believe he would live to see the end of the war if he signed the proclamation, however, on Jan. 1, 1863, he signed it.

Following the Civil War, Stowe moved to Florida in 1866. She came to campaign for the rights of ex-slaves, to start schools and help with voter rights and registration.

Stowe's appearance in Lake Mary was actually one of three character performances given by Betty Jean Steinsouer. The artist is a scholar and Chataqua performer as well as a speaker for the Florida Humanities Council, who sponsored her evening at the Historical Commission. By becoming the writers instead of lecturing about them, Betty is able to convey an understanding of who the women really were.

Along with Stowe, Betty presented Sarah Orne Jewett and Laura Ingalls Wilder. For each author, Betty changed her outfit slightly, but the amazing thing was the change in her voice and manner for each author.

Jewett is the author of such classic New England sketches as "The Country of Pointed Firs." She came to Florida in 1888. Finding the weather more temperate than that of her home state of Maine, Miss Jewett began spending her winters in St. Augustine, staying at the Ponce de Leon. Yearly, she sailed from New York to St. Augustine, stopping at either Savannah or Charleston on the way. The rates at the Ponce were a little high at $5 a day. Henry James, a fellow writer and friend of Miss Jewett refused to stay at the Ponce, thinking it was too ostentatious.

Miss Jewett decided to become a writer in 1862 after reading "The Pearl of Orr's Island" by Harriet Beecher Stowe. Many of her sketches, as she preferred to call her stories, were about her home town of South Berwick and some of its more unusual citizens. She was especially fond of the Queen's twin, a lovely lady who insisted that she was born the twin of Queen Victoria and would often invite friends to her royal teas. But she spoke of this charming eccentric lovingly. Miss Jewett's father had always told her not to talk about people or use them, but to show them in her writing.

Miss Jewett also spoke fondly of her friend and protégé, Willa Cather. She chided Miss Cather because her early works sounded like those of Henry James. "My dear," Miss Jewett told Miss Cather, "you must aspire higher."

The final guest is probably the most widely read of the three. Her Little House books transcend time and generations.

The first Little House book Laura Ingalls Wilder wrote was "Little House in the Big Woods." She had originally titled it "Prairie Girl" but the publishers didn't like that title. The first book came out in 1932. Because of the depression, Mrs. Wilder's daughter, Rose, was afraid the book wouldn't do well. But, it did exceptionally well, far exceeding anyone's expectations. While the books were based on Mrs. Wilder's life, she did make changes because she always believed that a book should have a happy ending. Mrs. Wilder's books did have happy endings and they set a precedent.

The Little House books were the first multi-volume set of books written for children.

After the whole family was stricken with diphtheria, Almanzo had trouble with the bitter cold of North Dakota. Seeking warmer weather, the family moved to the Piney Woods in Westville. Westville was full of "Nellie Olsons," according to Mrs. Wilder, and other troublesome creatures. She took to carrying a silver gun in her dress for protection and not just from the snakes! In Westville, Mrs. Wilder found no spirit of giving, no friendliness. Things became worse after she was called an uppity Yankee because she wouldn't let her 4-year-old daughter, Rose, dip snuff with the neighbors.

Mrs. Wilder never wrote a word about Florida, but her daughter, Rose, did and received an O'Henry prize for the story.

After Florida, the family moved back to North Dakota and lived there for a year until they saved enough money to move to Missouri. Mr. Wilder wrote solidly for 11 years then quit to enjoy the rest of her life.

Mrs. Wilder believed the secret to the success of her books was something that happened in her younger years. When her sister, Mary, went blind after rheumatic fever, Laura's father told her that she had to see everything for Mary first. She thought that's what gave her the ability to describe things so vividly. Her sister, Carrie, was the only one in the family who lived long enough to read all her books.

Finishing her last character, Betty Jean Steinsouer was introduced to the audience. She is currently writing a book about the "Yankee Ladies in Florida." In addition to the three women she became during the evening, she will cover five other women, including Rose Wilder Lane, Edna St. Vincent Millay, Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings, Elizabeth Bishop and Marjory Stoneman Douglas. The book will be published by the University Press of Florida in the very near future.

Breakfast With Santa — It's been a holiday tradition for many years! St. Peter's Breakfast

With Santa continues this year on Saturday, Dec. 9, from 7 to 11 a.m. at St. Peter's on Rinehart Road in Lake Mary. Of course, there's more than just food. There's also a lot of fun! For the kids, there's a moonwalk, games, face painting, sleigh and train rides, crafts and more. For adults, there's a silent auction, a bake sale, a raffle and more. Advanced tickets for adults are $5, and $2.50 for children 3 and up. Advance tickets will be available at St. Peter's until Dec. 8. Tickets at the door are $6 for adults and $3 for children. Game tickets are four for $1, the moonwalk and train ride are each 50 cents. Two four-by-six professional pictures with Santa are just $4. All proceeds from the event benefit St. Peter's pre-school and kindergarten.

AARP Plans Christmas Luncheon The Lake Mary Chapter of the AARP had a very melodic meeting in November. Their guest for the meeting was Mike Wierzbowski. Mike plays the dulcimer. There are two types of dulcimers: mountains and hammered.

The mountain dulcimer that Mike plays bears a slight resemblance to a viola.

The traditional way to play a dulcimer is with a feather. Mike prefers to strum the dulcimer like a guitar. The sound of a dulcimer is beautiful and unlike any other stringed instrument.

AARP President Cynthia Pitcock reminded members that if they haven't gotten in their reservation for the Christmas luncheon, they need to do so by Dec. 12. This year's luncheon will be held at the Timacuan Country Club in Lake Mary. To make your reservation or for more information, call Treasurer Jim Carmona at 407-323-9249.

Historical tour attracts many people to Sanford

Tours of the historical sites of Sanford have begun to attract visitors to this great city of ours.

The Georgetown Community Association and the citizens have worked to complete the restoration of this historical site - Hopper Academy.

The historical significance of the structure has drawn many people to Georgetown where the Hopper Academy School is located, 1101 Pine Avenue. The facility has now been restored and named the Hopper Academy Community Center by the Community Improvement Association of Seminole County, Inc.

This building was erected around 1906 as the second home of Hopper Academy. Formerly named Sanford Colored School No. 11, the name was changed to Hopper Academy in 1916 when new facilities were added.

The building served as an educational facility until 1961. It has also housed the services of Community Action of Seminole County, a social service project under the direction of Rev. Amos Jones.

Recently touring the site was 75 participants who were attending the conference on the Education of Blacks of Florida. They were representatives from Florida A&M University, Bethune Cookman College, Edward Waters College, Florida Memorial College and other educational facilities.

Shown sharing a historical moment with historian and author of the latest Black America Series of Seminole County, Altermese Smith Bentley, are Floridians Ray Jackson, Tyrone Broady, Joseph Jones and Rene Posey. These young men were part of the educators who toured the Hopper Academy Center. Also sharing Hopper's history was retired Seminole County educator Willie Agnes Riggins-Knighton, also a student and teacher of Hopper Academy.

Bentley's recent book tells the story of life with African Americans in the Georgetown, Goldsboro, Sanford Heights, Lockhart, Bookertown, Midway/Canaan, Markham Lawtonville, Washington Square, Jackson Heights, Johnson Hill, The Square, Boston Hill, Snow Hill, Geneva, Jamestown, Winwood, East Altamonte and Longwood areas.

This new book shows photographs and stories that threads together records, legacy and culture in the history of Seminole communities. The book is available at a book signing, this weekend at the Hopper Center, 1101 Pine Avenue. The fee is $20.

The tradition of the Annual Harvest Meditation Service at St. Paul Missionary Baptist Church was held Sunday, Nov. 26, at 5 p.m. Mistress of Ceremonies was Queen Jones. Meditative musical moments were rendered by Earl E. Minott, with Roberta Harper at the console. Lighting of the Harvest Candles were done by Chairperson Vivian H. Bowden and Sherilyn J. Polk, who also gave the occasion for this historical event.

"I came to praise His Name" was the welcome extended the worshippers by Cynthia Hicks. Musical selections were rendered by Bennie Gregory, "I Want to be at the Meeting", the Southwind Singers, "I Been Blessed," "Give me what it takes." Solo by Arlene C. Jones touched the heart, "Lord I hunger for Holiness" as Gerilyn Jones Guy danced to the selection of praise sung by her sister.

Prayer of thanksgiving was offered by Glynette Brown. Tammy Glover danced to the selection "Total Praise". The spirit continued to flow as our hearts were blessed with the soul-stirring message through songs from the dynamic voices of Cynthia C. Brown, who sang, "I Need to Hear from You", Patricia Merritt Whatley sang "Sweet Sweet Spirit", Carshena Baker sang "Lord Give me a Praying Spirit", musical instrumental selections were given by Dr. Thomas Silimmon, who rendered the message, "Amazing Grace" and the hymn, "Swing Low Sweet Chariot."

The young performers of Tajiri School of Arts and Academics, were under the direction of Patricia Merritt Whatley, whose mother gave birth to the idea of the yearly Harvest Meditation Service. These young people entertained the worshippers with their selections, "Everything will be all right". Yes they showed us some love as they reminded all that you are my brother, and to keep love alive to make for a better world.

Oh what tributes of thanks were given to the Christian teachers founder Julia Ray Merritt whose desire to have a special day to give thanks for the Harvest the Lord has given each of his children. After her demise, Margaret Dixon Oliver continued to prepare the harvest at St. Paul for the season. After her demise, Choir No. One Musician Anny V. Mells also carried out the harvest of thanksgiving. These Christian servants and leaders have departed, but have left the legacy to be carried on by Choir No. One and other Christian workers who are willing to prepare the harvest for reaping and the service of thankfulness and praise.

The tribute of thanks to the carriers of the harvest torch were given by Deacon Victor Dargan, Levather Whitby and Betty Robinson. Candlelighters of honor were Alleen Dixon, Flossie Tennon, Roberta Terry, and members of the choir.

The closing selection was sung by Mary L. DeBose who electrified our souls with the rendition of "What God has for me it is for me", the words of the song will linger in our minds and will be a part of the lives of all present.

Truly all in attendance joined in the hymn of gratitude as she gave thanks for the many blessings bestowed upon all of His children. Special thanks to Chairperson Vivian H. Bowden, Choir No. One President Dorothy L. Curry, and Pastor Albert L. Covington.

Benediction was given by guest minister, Rev. Gene A. Brown of Orlando.

Meditation is sweet in moments of serious thoughts, praise and thanksgiving.

"Enjoying: The Harvest"
He has smiled on our path
As welcome to a bend in the road
He has given us peace and good health
Unearned grace has lightened the load

Let us gather at the storehouse
With a gift offered to the King
Let us raise our voices
And with song to Him sing.

The blessings flow from on high
To an underserving lot
Jesus' blood has cleansed our souls
Not leaving a single blot

The day will come when
He will seek His own
Time is of the essence
Our sins to atone

We thank you this day for
That price paid by Your Son
We lift our voices toward heaven,
For You are the Holy One

Variety-packed ballet heralds holiday season

The wonderful world of dance has embraced the Sanford-Seminole community since the Rye sisters, Miriam Doktor and Valerie Weld, arrived here thirty-something years ago to open a school of dance. Not only has the school provided the opportunity for thousands of dancers to show off their talents, with many reaching professional status, but it has also been a step forward in cultural enrichment for the community.

Miriam and Valerie soon founded Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole, a non-profit dance company, which has taken national honors, along with regional and local recognition. The guild will present its 32nd annual performance Saturday, Dec. 9, at 8 p.m., at Winter Springs High School.

Entitled "A Holiday Mix & Match (With a Catch)", the variety-packed extravaganza will spotlight excerpts from "The Nutcracker" on through to kids cutting capers with crutches to the tune of "Let It Snow." The opening number will see a bevy of high-stepping beauties doing a spirited jazz number while jingle bells dangle from their wrists.

"The 12 Pains of Christmas" will be humorously depicted and a group of 30 will swing to "Man with the Bag." Thom Lake, a retired professional dancer who got his start with School of Dance Arts, has choreographed "A Silent Night," which he will perform with Haley Singleton in a dazzling white Christmas setting. Vince Gargani flew in from Los Angeles to choreograph "Rock, Ye Merry Gentlemen."

Among the guest dancers are Patrick Caolo-Boo, Kyle Ricker and Billy Higgins.

And there's lots more. The costumes are exquisite and following the performance, the audience is invited to a reception.

Ballet Guild has been rehearsing for the production for some time. At a recent rehearsal, Jackie Caolo and her daughter, Susan Caolo-Boo, catered a luncheon for the cast and crew. The mother and daughter arrived on the scene with a variety of delicious edibles. The Caolo-Boo family is making Sanford their home, having moved here from The Netherlands.

Tickets, at $8.00 each, are available at the door or by calling School of Dance Arts, 407-323-1900.

Convention Winners

Dancers of School of Dance Arts participated in and competed at the annual Florida Dance Masters Convention held at Sea World's Stouffer's over the Thanksgiving holidays. According to Valerie Weld, a committee member along with her sister, Miriam Doktor, "It was wonderful." Miriam and Valerie are in charge of the "Rising Star" competition, and Valerie is second vice president of the board of directors.

It was a weekend of intense classes and competition, Valerie said. However, not all of the dances were in competition. The local dancers starred in a ballet, "Celebration," which they performed when they toured China several years ago, and which brought the house down.

Winning first in his age group in the male Rising Star category was Vince Autorino, 11, who did a take off on Fred Astaire, complete with top hat and tails, to the tune of "New York, New York." Courtney Roberts was fourth runner-up in the overall Rising Star competition.

Scholarship recipients were: Angela Baragona, 2, Deon Lehnard, Roxanne Hirt and Haley Singleton.

George Weld wanted to do his wife proud, so he donned his "monkey suit" to make his entrance to the Saturday night banquet and festivities. Not only did George make a striking appearance in his tux, but he had a hard time convincing several that he was not Johnny Carson.

Incidentally, George left early last Sunday for Atlanta to pick up daughter, Natalie Weld, who is on tour with Pokemon Live! Father and daughter visited George's mother in North Carolina where a caravan of about 20 attended opening night in Charlotte. The show, under the direction of Luis Perez Jr., formerly of Sanford, has received nothing short of rave reviews.

The Literary Group of the Sanford Woman's Club met for the November meeting at the home of Frances Mitchell. Libby Prevatt was unable to fill her designated co-hostesses role due to illness.

Fran outdid herself in preparing delicious fare for her guests featuring an assortment of finger sandwiches including chicken salad, cream cheese and raisins and nuts, cream cheese and cucumbers, and cream cheese and asparagus. The group also enjoyed pastries, mini quiches, nuts and dried fruit. Beverages included orange juice, apple cider and freshly brewed coffee poured from silver service.

President Charlotte Knowles called the meeting to order and heard routine reports.

Mindy Tooley reviewed the book, "Winter Solstice," by Rosamunde Pilcher, giving an overview of the five main characters and the interaction they had with each other. Mindy said, "Pilcher's style enables the reader to enter the world of the characters by giving one the feeling that you are a silent partner in their conversations, meals and everyday life." Mindy added, "The book is well-written and has been read by several members of the club."

Following the book review, the women shared the names and authors of some of the books they have read.

Off We Go!

Laurie Hartson had no idea she would be caught up in a bit of history on her recent flight to St. Louis to join her husband, Lt. Michael Hartson. Laurie just happened to be on Pan Am's first flight from the new terminal at the Orlando Sanford Airport on Nov. 21. She said there was a lot of hubbub going on at the airport with Pan Am officials on hand to celebrate the occasion. Refreshments were served at the airport and firemen supplied an arch of water for the first Pan Am plane to land at the new terminal.

Less than 30 passengers took the St. Louis flight and were treated to food and beverages. Laurie said the one hour and 40 minute flight was "reasonable and restful." She mentioned the airport furnishings in the sparkling waiting room are quite attractive and functional. All of the passengers on the inaugural flight received a certificate stating they were among the first passengers aboard the plane leaving from the new airport terminal.

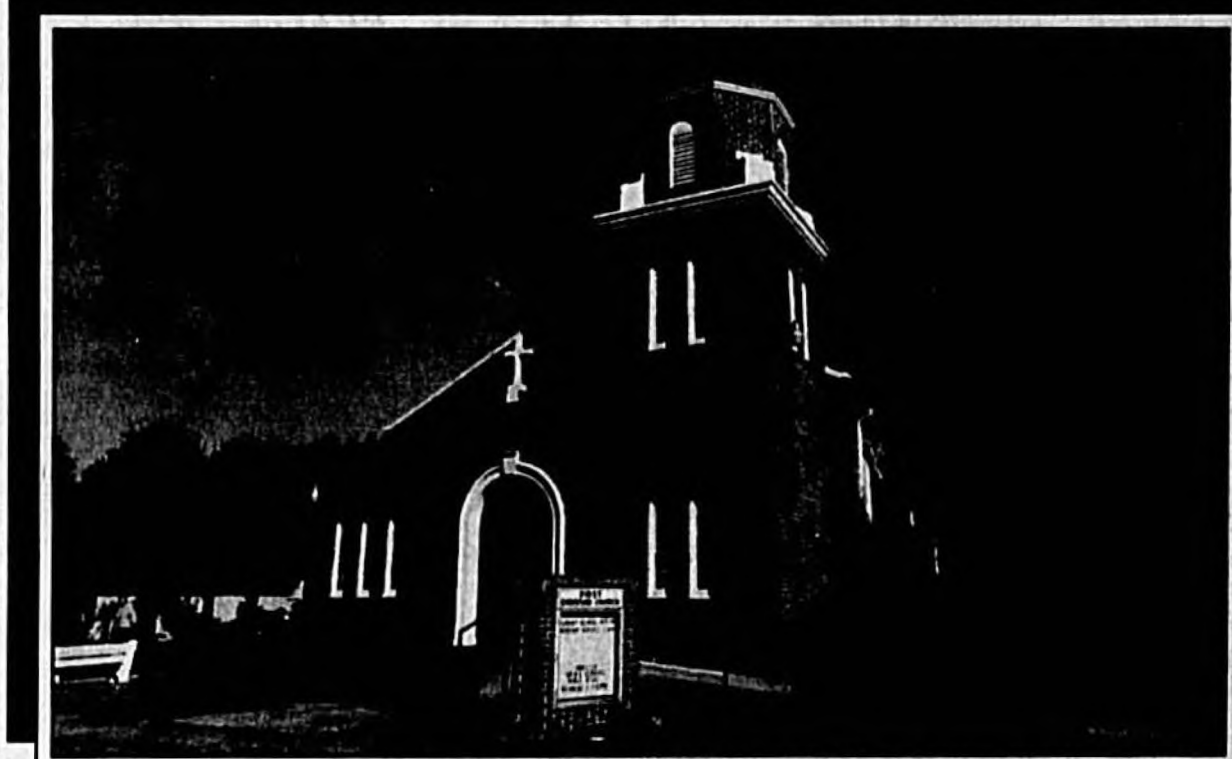

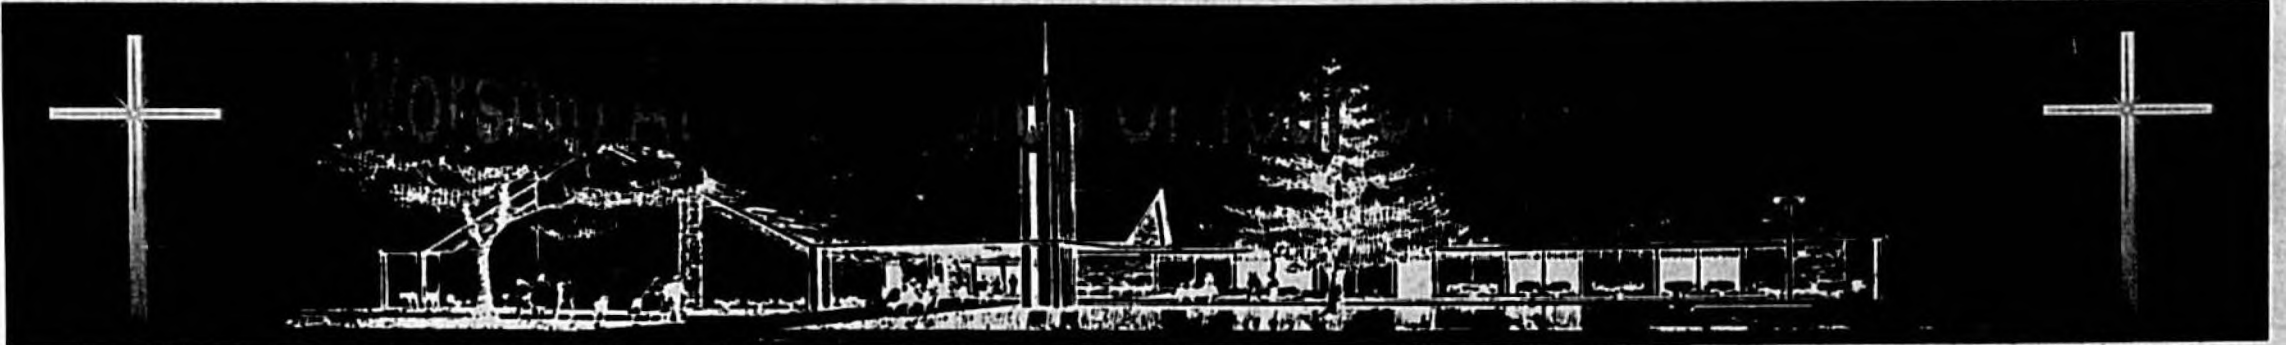

The young couple departed from St. Louis, where Mike is in training to fly medical evacuation planes, to spend Thanksgiving with his mother and family in Tulsa. Laurie returned to Sanford Monday, via Pan Am, of course. "It's wonderful flying from and landing back at the Sanford airport — practically in our own back yard," Laurie said.

Laurie is at home with her parents, Mary and Barry Hillman, while Mike completes his last leg of pilot training. The Hartsons will depart Sanford in late December for Ramstein, Germany, where he will serve a three-year tour of duty with the U.S. Air Force.

Christmas Alternative

Altamonte Chapel offers unique gift items

By Jana S. Jacobs
Herald Intern

In addition to the many gifts, crafts and jewelry items from around the world for sale this weekend at the Alternative Christmas Market in the Altamonte Chapel, buying from the market means giving developing countries the tools for building a future.

Every item at the market is handmade by artisans from third-world countries. Through a cooperative with SERRV International, a non-profit church owned program, crafts from more than 40 developing countries are made available to American markets. All the money collected from sales goes directly back to the communities from which the crafts came.

The concept is simple, helping people to support themselves by paying them fairly for their crafts.

The Alternative Christmas Market also includes organizations like Habitat for Humanity, Christian Sharing Center and Church World Service.

"Tools of Hope," the newest outreach ministry of Church World Service turns contributions into tools and production materials needed to build futures.

In Gracanica, Bosnia, a group of unemployed women needed a way to provide for themselves and their children. Sewing machines, irons, textiles and other items necessary to begin production of children's clothing were purchased. Mothers are now able to provide items for their own children as well as helping to clothe the disadvantaged children of the community.

The women at the Truetlen Sewing Center in Soperton, Georgia, make African-American dolls in partnership with a South African woman's organization, a program that is helping to empower women in two countries, while raising the self-esteem of the children who receive the dolls.

Tools of Hope believes that tools put in the hands of eager hands and minds will soon be tools of change. From water

Finding their identities: Let kids be kids

A bunch of us were coming home after a swimming party one night when we passed a farmer's cornfield. Suddenly, we became hungry for sweet corn.

We were in the cornfield in a flash, grabbing two or three ears apiece. Then we went over to Doris Jacobsen's house, where we cooked the corn and ate it with salt and pepper and plenty of butter. And my, was it good!

I mention the fact that our mouths were watering for corn not because that makes stealing any less wrong, but because I was reading a while back about a youth who stole just for the thrill of stealing. I wonder whether a psychologist would say mine was a higher or lower form of juvenile delinquency.

Actually, the youth said, he would take one bite of the stolen pears and throw them away. In fact, he had a pear tree in his own yard. His explanation was that he stole simply because he knew it was wrong.

My only purpose in asking a psychologist whether this boy's case was more serious than mine would be to try to trip up the psychologist. I would expect him to say that the boy who stole for the thrill of stealing was in a worse way than I was.

Then I would tell him that the pear thief grew up to be St. Augustine, one of the most famous Christians, while I ended up a newspaper columnist.

I always like to tell stories like this to mothers who worry about the misdemeanors of their wayward offspring. It need not mean a thing. There are more examples than just St. Augustine and myself to prove it.

Napoleon graduated 42nd in a class of 43. Well, you say, Napoleon was a military genius. He wasn't cut out for Greek or rhetoric. Yes, but this was a military school!

At the age of 15, Isaac

Newton showed so little promise that his bewildered parents actually took him out of school and put him to work on a farm.

The teacher of Henry

George Plagenz

Ward Beecher, who became one of America's greatest preachers, wrote this on his report card: "Henry is a poor writer and a miserable speller. He has a thick speech and is so shy he actually seems stupid."

Darwin did so poorly in school that his father once told him he would grow up "a disgrace to the Darwin family."

disgrace to the Darwin

Lucky for these youngsters that their parents and elders gave them up for hopeless. Had they dragged them from psychologist to psychiatrist, they might have straightened them out and made them normal.

In a recent issue of the medical newsletter "Health and Healing," physician Julian Whitaker criticizes his profession for using drugs to correct children's behavior problems. "Why in the world are 2-year-old children being drugged because they act like 2-year-olds?" asks the prominent California doctor.

Speaking of youngsters with hyperactivity problems, Whitaker says, "These are not symptoms of disease. They are characteristics of childhood behavior. There were plenty of overactive kids when I was growing up, and I was one of them." When he got too far out of line, he says, "I got the what-for at home and that was that."

If a child is too energetic, Whitaker writes, "what's wrong with running him around the track a couple of times?"

If modern-day shrinks had been diagnosing kids of the past who didn't conform, says Whitaker, "both Beethoven and Mozart would have been turned into little robots."

Gastronomy is, as everyone already knows, an art. Romanian contributions are valuable ones, and Romanian traditional foods can compete with any specialties — more or less modern — of the international gastronomy. Divided by areas and regions, Romanian culinary art impresses by diversity, age and, above all, by taste and flavor. "Eating food" is the meaning of existence for most Romanians. It's not in vain that the Romanians spend several hours every day cooking.

Sica Nacu

It is well known that food is one of the most important elements human beings need to survive. But, nowadays, for civilized people, it has become an art, and they have come to be more and more preoccupied with it. A great dinner or lunch involves more than a good food or a brilliant chef. The manner in which the table is laid, some colored candles and the napkins skillfully arranged are only some of the tricks people use to create the right atmosphere, which very essential in enjoying the dinner. By publishing spicy articles with useful advice, I am trying to give a hand to all those who find in eating the most hidden pleasures.

Serving Drinks And Food

Any party that wants to be a success has to follow certain rules of arranging food on the table and in the way drinks and food are served. The success of an impeccable serving stays in respecting the rules, as follows:

- Generally, all food is served on the left side of the guests, except cups of coffee or tea, cakes and ice cream, which are served on the right side of the guests.
 - Also, drinks, soda or sparkling water are served on the right side. The dishes that are dirty must be taken from the table on the right side of the guests.
 - During the appetizer, drinks like "tzuica" (Romanian traditional drink), vodka, mastic can be served.
 - For cooked vegetables or fish, white wines and beer can be served.
 - For roasted steaks, red wines can be served.
 - During dessert, champagne can be served.
- After the dessert and coffee are served, cognacs and liqueurs can be served.

- The drinks must not be served all at the same temperature. For example, the aperitif drinks are served between 6 degrees Celsius and 8 degrees Celsius. The white wines are brought to the table well cooled down at 8 degrees Celsius up to 10 degrees Celsius, the optimal temperature being 10 degrees Celsius. The beer must be served at temperatures between 13 degrees Celsius and 14 degrees Celsius. The red wines are not cooled down and are served at room temperature. The champagne is served at the temperature of 1 degree Celsius up to 2 degrees Celsius.
- When serving the following, order must be respected: First the women are served. If the women are different ages, the elder ones first are served first, then the younger. After serving all the women, the men are served, also by the age criterion. At a dinner organized to celebrate a woman, the woman will be served first, no matter what her age may be. If the celebrated person is a man, then, first all the women, after the age criterion, will be served, then the men, after the same rule. If there are children at the table, they should be served before women, but it is preferable all the children have the meal separately, in another room, and food for their age must be served.

Stuffed Cabbage Rolls "Sarmale"

Stuffed cabbage is not at all difficult to prepare, but it does take a lot of time. However, the time spent is well worth it. Everyone loves this "sarmale." In fact, I suggest preparing this in large quantities, as they taste even better re-heated the next day, and they can be frozen. In Romania, this is by far the most popular dish of all special treats for Christmas dinner.

- 1 head of cabbage, 3 or 4 pounds, or 2 smaller ones
- 6 tablespoons of olive oil
- 1 onion peeled, chopped and sautéed
- 2 garlic cloves, peeled and chopped
- 2 1/2 tablespoons of rice
- 1/4 cup of hot water
- 1 1/2 pounds pork meat
- 1 1/2 pounds beef meat

Stuffed cabbage rolls, "Sarmale," and fluffy polenta "Mamaliga moale" are two food dishes that are perfect for any Christmas feast.

- 1 slice of bread without crust
 - 2 tablespoons of fresh dill chopped
 - 1 tablespoon of ground thyme
 - 2 teaspoons of salt
 - 1 teaspoon of fresh ground black pepper
 - 1 teaspoon of crushed hot red pepper
 - 2 tablespoons of water
 - 3 cups of chicken stalk
 - 4 bay leaves
 - 1/2 can of tomato paste
 - 3 cups of sauerkraut
 - 6 strips of smoked bacon
- Serves 12
Preparation time: 2 hours
Cooking time: 3 hours

Place cabbage on a work surface. Remove loose outer green leaves and save. With a sharp knife, cut out the hard core of the cabbage. Wash cabbage well. Blanch outer green leaves about five minutes, and save. Blanch cabbage in boiling water, with the hole down, for about five minutes. Remove, drain, and place on work surface with hole up. Gently, with the aid of two forks, try peeling off whole leaves, as many as will come off easily. Place leaves in a large bowl, and repeat operation, until all leaves at least 3-by-3 inches have been removed. Chop up the remaining cabbage, and save to add to sauerkraut.

Take each leaf from the bowl, and with a sharp knife, shave off some of the thick center vein so that it is the same thickness as the rest of the leaf. In a skillet, add 1 tablespoon of olive oil and heat over medium-high heat. Sauté onion, garlic, and raw rice, stirring with a wooden spoon until onion and rice turn a nice golden color, about five to six minutes. Add hot water. Lower heat to medium-low, stir, and simmer for about 10 minutes. Remove from heat, cover, and let stand for about five minutes or until rice has absorbed all water. Let stand and cool.

Prepare meats by blending together in a big bowl. Dip bread in water, and then squeeze to remove excess. Add bread, onion, and rice to meat. Stir well. Add dill, thyme, salt, pepper, hot pepper, and 2 tablespoons water. Mix well with your hands or wooden spoon.

In a bowl, mix 3 cups water with sauerkraut juice and bay leaves. Place sauerkraut in a sieve, rinse well with cold water, strain, and press well with spoon against sieve to squeeze out excess juice and water. Add chopped cabbage.

Take one cabbage leaf in the palm of your hand with the base at your wrist. With your other hand, center a small amount of meat mixture, the size of a walnut or larger, depending on the size of the leaf. Shape meat in the form of a little sausage near the base of the leaf, cover with one side of the leaf, roll leaf around meat, and end up by tucking the other side in so as to seal it. Continue until all meat is used up.

Oil a large casserole with lid, using 2 tablespoons of olive oil. Cover the bottom with a thin layer of sauerkraut. Place three strips of bacon across sauerkraut. Cover with a layer of stuffed cabbage placed side by side. Add another layer of sauerkraut. Spread the dill springs over the sauerkraut. Sprinkle the rest of the olive oil over the top. Then pour the water and sauerkraut juice mixture over all. Cover with the large outer leaves to keep moisture in.

Preheat oven to 375 degrees Fahrenheit. Place casserole over high heat, and heat until sauce begins to bubble. Lower heat to medium-low, cover, and simmer about 20 minutes. Cook, covered, in oven 1 1/2 hours. Add tomatoes paste (diluted in a little water), cover and braise another 45 minutes. Remove lid and continue cooking about another 15 minutes. Don't worry about overcooking. Romanians say that the longer the stuffed cabbage cooks the better it tastes. Serve hot, by itself or with warm polenta (mamaliga), complemented by potatoes, if you like. Sarmale taste even better re-heated.

- FLUFFY POLENTA "Mamaliga moale"
 - 3 cups water
 - 2 teaspoons salt
 - 2 teaspoons butter
 - 1 cup yellow corn meal, coarse or medium ground
 - 1/2 cup sour cream
- Serves 4
Preparation time: 15 minutes

Cooking time: 15 minutes

Heat water in a cacon or kettle over high heat until boils vigorously. Add salt, and a pat of butter. With one hand slowly start pouring the cornmeal into the boiling water, while stirring continuously with a wooden spoon until all the corn meal has been added and until the liquid bubbles again.

As soon as the liquid starts to boil, lower the heat to medium low, and continue stirring until polenta starts to thicken and all the water has been absorbed. Cover kettle with a lid and let stand for another 2 minutes. Then shake the covered kettle to loosen the edges, and turn the polenta into a bowl or deep serving dish.

Spoon polenta onto each plate while polenta is still hot and somewhat fluid. Top each portion with a pat of butter, and serve with sour cream.

The polenta can be served by itself as an appetizer or as a side dish to any main course. An attractive way to serve this dish the next day is to pour it into greased individual round dishes, and refrigerate. When cold, loosen edges with knife, turn upside down and fried in a couple of tablespoons of olive oil. Serve with sun dried tomatoes, or a mixture of sour cream and cheeses.

I hope you have fun cooking and enjoy these dishes as much as we do!
