The last kiss leaves only the memories

Dave and Susan Wonne, above, have patronized the drive-in since high school in the 1970s. More recently, their two children have accompanied them. Paul and Norma Bordenkitcher, below, say goodbye to Movieland, a favorite family destination for 19 years.

It's 'The End' for Movieland Drive-in

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Like rockabilly, an era in Sanford's illustrious cultural history will flicker to an end when the celluloid flicks nosily off the final reel in the late hours of Tuesday night.

More than a place to watch a movie, the Movieland Drive-in is an integral part of the lives of many in Sanford.

In the 1940s, after the war was over, the drive-in opened in a remote area of town. There were nearly 500 speakers lined up in the vast parking area. Cecil will close its gates for the last time.

Feeney tops Hattaway for House seat

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Former state Rep. Tom Feeney, who left the Legislature two years ago to become the running mate for Jeb Bush in their unsuccessful bid for the governor's office, will take over the District 33 House of Representatives seat left vacant by Marvin Couch, R-Oviedo.

In Seminole County, Feeney's margin of victory over Democrat Jim Hattaway was a mere 72 votes, but the difference was 195 in Feeney's favor in Volusia County and he won by 992 votes in Orange County.

How will I-4 keep up with traffic?

By NICK PFEIFAUF

LAKE MARY — There is no question that what transpires in Interstate 4 construction will have a direct impact on the north end of Seminole County.

This Thursday night is a special presentation during the Lake Mary City Commission meeting, the newest concepts of the interstate will be explained. Mark Boggs, with Post, Buckley, Schuh & Jernigan, assisting in the design and development programs, is scheduled to be on hand for the presentation.

There isn't anything of earth-shattering consequence of major changes in our plans, said Steve Homan, spokesman for the Florida Department of Transportation (FDOT).

Homan said the original plans are still being considered. They call for the interstate to have a total of eight lanes. "In either direction," he said, "there will be three lanes for through travel, and one for high occupancy vehicles (HOV)."

When questioned whether Homan would have retired from FDOT before the improvements are actually built, he hesitated, then responded that there could be that possibility, "but just Thursday, we opened bids for part of the first phase. It will expand the current four lanes (two each direction) between SR 434 in Longwood to Lake

Paralyzed anglers gone fishin'

By ROGER HARNACK

SANFORD — More than 100 paralyzed fishing enthusiasts descended on Lake Monroe Saturday to compete in the Tenth annual U.S. Open Bass Tournament, hosted by the Paralyzed Veterans of America.

Fishing teams, consisting of a paralyzed angler and a boat captain, took to the water shortly after sunrise Saturday morning to seek out linkers hiding in the slews and backwater areas of Lake Monroe and the St. Johns River.

While some of the hand-capped anglers were boating to their favorite bass holes, fish

Some Spaziano charges to be reimbursements raise eyebrows

By The Associated Press

SANFORD — Attorneys who kept Joseph "Crazy Joe" Spaziano from Florida's electric chair want Seminole County to shell out $100,000 for their expenses, but some charges are raising eyebrows.

One bill is for $214.15 in food and drinks for a defense investigator who went to a Cassberry topless bar. Another is for a $208.80 meal at Le Coq Au Vin, an exclusive French restaurant in Winter Park.

"I've never seen anything like this," Assistant County Attorney Susan Dietrich said.

Under Florida law, the county is required to reimburse reasonable expenses to Orlando attorney James Russ and the Holland & Knight law firm, the state's largest. Fees for expert witnesses, photocopies and deposition costs are routinely granted in many cases.

Russ and the firm defended Spaziano, a former Outlaw motorcycle gang member, for 110. Spaziano, 59, won a new trial Jan. 22 after the state witness in his 1976 murder trial for the slaying of Orlando clerk Laura Harbers, admitted to being lured to be on the stand.

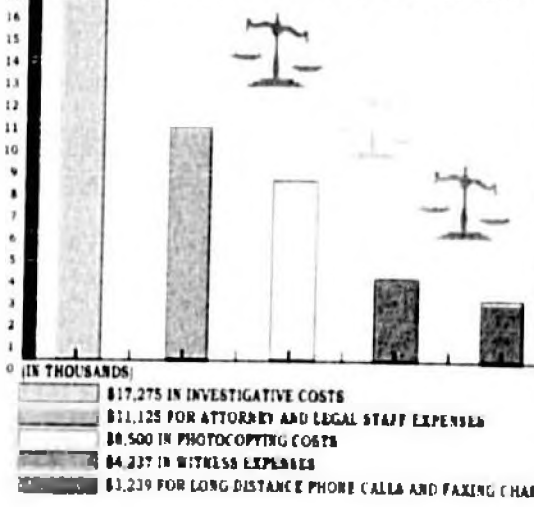

Prosecutors are appealing Spaziano's remains in prison on a 1977 rape conviction.

Tampa lawyer Gregg Thomas and Russ submitted a 2 1/2-inch-thick summary of bills on April 4. The case cost about $400,000 in lawyer time, plus other costs that aren't included in the county bill, Thomas said.

Thomas headed a team of several lawyers and paralegals who worked with Russ on well-known Orlando criminal attorney.

IN BRIEF

Call for auditions

Auditions for the male lead, the part of Michael, for the historic Ritz Theatre production of "I Do, I Do," will be held Monday night, with rehearsals beginning immediately.

Anyone interested in trying out for the play should contact Fred Rogers at 330-9013 or 321-8111.

Board Of Adjustment meeting

LAKE MARY — The Lake Mary Board of Adjustment (BOA) will meet this Wednesday, May 1. The lone item on the agenda is a request for a variance to reduce the minimum required lot size for lakefront property, from 40,000 square feet.

Other business may be presented, but was not listed on the meeting's agenda.

The BOA will meet beginning at 7 p.m. in the commission chambers of Lake Mary City Hall, 100 N. Country Club Road.

Day of prayer

SANFORD/LAKE MARY — May 2 is National Day of Prayer. In cooperation with the Sanford/Lake Mary Christian Ministerial Fellowship, a special food distribution program for needy individuals and families will be held.

The distribution will occur at Seminole Towne Center, in the parking lot on the south side of Burdines.

Individuals in need of food will be given two grocery bags each, containing fresh vegetables, canned goods, and additional staples.

The food distribution will begin at 4 p.m. and last until 7 p.m.

Volunteers from churches and Christian organizations of Sanford and Lake Mary will be sorting, bagging and distributing the food.

Anyone in need of food is invited to attend this fellowship event.

Adam Walsh donation

MAITLAND — The Mid-Florida Home Builders Foundation (HBA) recently presented the Adam Walsh Children's Fund with a grant totaling $84,854.92. The donation, proceeds from the sale of the 1995 Miracle House, will be put to use by the Adam Walsh Children's Fund to place "Kids and Company — Together for Safety", into county schools in Seminole, Orange and Osceola counties.

The program empowers children in grades K-6 by teaching them how to avoid abduction and abuse.

The Miracle House project is a home constructed in a single day, almost entirely with donated materials, with the help of over 600 volunteers.

Budget talks turn on social services cuts, school spending, tuition hike

By ADAM YEOMANS
An AP News Analysis

TALLAHASSEE — Lawmakers find themselves in a familiar rush the weekend before the regular session is scheduled to end Friday.

They're scrambling to work out differences in a nearly $40 billion state budget that kicks in July 1 and provides tax money for schools, prisons, needy citizens, and other government programs.

Like every year, lawmakers left the toughest spending disputes for last.

This year, the budget includes no new statewide taxes, but a tuition hike for college students of at least 7 percent appears inevitable.

In an area likely to draw potential vetoes from Gov. Lawton Chiles, lawmakers are prepared to cut between $300 million and $400 million from social services for the poor.

Public school funding for 2.2 million students is always a sticking point for lawmakers. This year, another 64,000 students are projected to enroll.

"It's always a problem. It is every single year," said House Appropriations Chairman Buzz Ritchie, D-Pensacola.

Both House and Senate spending plans for 1996-97 would total about $39.6 billion, about $500 million more than the current $39.1 billion budget. That's an increase of about a percent, one of the smallest increases in 20 years.

In a year when the 120 House members and half the 40-member Senate face election and legislative leaders want to improve the institution's image, there's an urgency to get done on time.

Senate President Jim Scott has been methodical in getting major issues like welfare reform, education reform and a ban on lobbyist-paid meals for members passed early. He has pointed fingers at the House in the event lawmakers have to extend or go into special session at a cost of up to $40,000 a day.

"We've got to get the budget done or else we're going to be here overtime," said Scott, R-Fort Lauderdale.

Under the state constitution, the Legislature must wait 72 hours after reaching an agreement before taking a final vote on the budget. They hope to do so by Sunday or early Monday in order to print the document — this year's budget was more than 600 pages — and get it to lawmakers Tuesday.

A final vote would occur Friday, the last day of the regular session.

"I'm highly confident on every issue except the budget," said House Speaker Peter Rudy Wallace, D-St. Petersburg. "I'm optimistic about the budget but that's an hour-to-hour thing."

The way we were: spring festival, 1923

Several months ago, Paul Biggers gave me a copy of an article telling of a spring festival circa 1923. It is now springtime again, 73 years later, so I thought it was an appropriate time to bring it to you. Enjoy reading about the pageant with its costumes and also enjoy remembering the participants. You might even find your name here!

I have edited this piece quite heavily for clarity.

South Side Play Festival

Something quite unique in Sanford's history occurred on May 2 in the Fifth Street Park. It was a gigantic play festival with about 350 students from South Side Primary School taking part. There had been play festivals there before, but never anything on quite so large a scale, so carefully planned or so brilliant a spectacle as this was.

The herald, Richard Smith, opened the pageant with an appropriate verse of welcome and a prologue. He was dressed in white with a yellow cape; his hat was adorned with a blue plume.

A grand festival march, with all students participating, followed.

A garden motif was carried out as the pageant unveiled, suggested by the coming of spring. To the refrain of "The Robin Song", the gardeners planted the seed of their favorite flowers with rakes, hoes and shovels. Those playing the part of gardeners were R.Z. Johnson, Theodore Wade, Edwin Campbell, David Smith, Roy Echols, Billy Barber, E.G. Bowen, Frank Veazy, Earl Vaughn, Britt Willetts, Gilbert Williams, Warren Gufford, Walter Feiler, Lee Stenstrom, Samuel Knight, and William Preston. They were dressed in overalls and sunhats.

When the gardeners had accomplished their task, they departed, leaving the care of the garden to Mother Nature who was portrayed by Beulah Lee Davidson. She was dressed in green with a little white bonnet.

When Mother Nature

discovered that the Earth Children had planted a garden, she called upon her helpers, the sunbeams and the raindrop fairies, to assist her in awakening her flowers.

The Sunbeams, dressed in white with orange and white wings, were Virginia Gillon and Dorothy Marshall, Martha Bishop and Mary Nickle portrayed the Raindrop Fairies dressed in white with white and silver wings.

The meeting of sunshine and rain created a rainbow which was carried out by a rainbow drill to the tune of "Barcarolle." Those in the rainbow were Doris Hopkins, Inez Thompson, Roma Wilkinson, Patsy Garrett, Louise Hickson, Lois Shelley, Ruby Coursey, Mel Foster, Virginia Root, Hazel Tew, Marjorie Cannon, and Kathryn Cameron.

Mother Nature's helpers at last managed to awaken the flowers who appeared in their full glory. These now full grown flowers responded in turn to Mother Nature with appropriate speech and song. Playing the part of flowers were Bill Wight, violet; Elizabeth Methvyn, tulip; Richard Deas, Jack-in-the-pulpit; Dorothy Pope, carnation; Nannie Brown Kelly, daisy; Hattie Green, buttercup; Camilla Deas, poppy; Martha May, forget-me-not; Mary Purdom, rose; and Mary Wight, daffodil.

All of these were dressed in parti-colored costumes to represent the "flowers," they personified. This presented a veritable garden with a background of sweet peas and bachelor buttons.

Sweet Peas were played by Edna Rivera, Esther Ericson, Katherine Forster, Pauline Crawford, Dorothy Cheatham, Helen Carlson, Clara Bray, Helen Wilson, Evelyn Sharp, Genevieve Wells, Lois Britt, Helen Dresser, Cornelia McKay, Mary Jane Preston. They were dressed in sweet pea bonnets and frills.

Portraying bachelor buttons were David Earle, Clarence Hopkins, A.J. Kelley, Edgar Lundquist, James McAlexander, George McRory, Randall Priest, William Spear, Jope Stewart, John Henry Talbot and William Vihlen. They were dressed in a bachelor button cap and carried a jaunty walking stick of the same flower.

When the gardeners next returned, they were very pleased with the result of their planting

Burglary resolved

Sanford police arrested Bryan Patrick Howe, 28, of 1010 Olive Avenue at the police station Thursday. According to police reports, Howe is accused of having burglarized a restaurant early Thursday in the 2100 block of French Avenue. They said a number of items valued at $3,300, including food, several telephones, a copy machine and other items were reportedly stolen.

After he left the restaurant on a bike, he reportedly rode for a brief time, then contacted a taxi cab to take him to several locations. The cab driver is said to have contacted police when the bag reportedly carried by Howe, indicated a telephone and other items.

Police located him in Higgins Terrace and took him to the police station for questioning.

Howe, said to be a former employee of that restaurant, has subsequently been arrested on charges of burglary to a structure, grand theft, and initiating/planning the theft of property.

Prostitution sting

Members of the Seminole County sheriff's department City/County Investigative Bureau (CCIB) conducted an undercover sting early Friday against street-level prostitution, near a motel on U.S. Highway 17-92 in Fern Park. Three persons were arrested:

• Douglas Edward Helton, 35, of Gainesville, was charged with assignment to commit prostitution.

• David Hall Barstow, 54, of Altamonte Springs, was charged with assignment to commit prostitution.

• Gerry Lawrence, 38, of St. Petersburg, was charged with assignment to commit prostitution.

Drug sting

CCIB officers conducted several undercover stings Thursday, against street-level crack dealers.

• In a sting at Southwest Road and Strickland in Sanford, Rodney S. Conquest, 34, of 107 McKay Blvd., Sanford, was arrested on a charge of sale and delivery of a controlled substance.

• In a sting in Midway, Marlon D. Young, 22, 2330 Dollar Way, Midway, was arrested on a charge of sale and delivery of crack cocaine.

• In a sting on Franklin Avenue in Oviedo, Jeffrey Boston, 37, of Oviedo, was charged with sale and delivery of a controlled substance and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Warrant and arrests

Sanford police arrested Terrance Frison, 20, of 27 Castle Brewer Court Thursday. Officers said they spotted Frison on Avacado Avenue near Fifth Street, and attempted to serve a warrant. They said when they approached Frison, he attempted to throw away a bag which later proved to contain cannabis. He was arrested on a charge of possession with intent to sell approximately 10.5 grams of cannabis. He was also served with two active warrants for failing to appear on suspended driver's license charges.

A smashing story

Sanford police are investigating a burglary Thursday in the fenced compound of a business in the 900 block of E. 26th Place in Sanford. Police say someone reportedly entered the compound, started a forklift, and rammed it into three Mack trucks, causing damage estimated at $55,100.

Sanford police reports

• A $600 air compressor was reported stolen Wednesday from a residence in the 1100 block of W. 25th Street in Sanford.

• A box and bag containing a reported $236.21 in cash were reported stolen Thursday from a residence in the 100 block of Laurel Drive.

• A $500 bike was reportedly stolen Thursday from inside a business in the 1500 block of French Avenue.

• A vehicle, reportedly stolen in Orlando, was located by Sanford police Thursday in a wooded area off the 2400 block of Palmetto Avenue in Sanford.

• Someone reportedly threw a rock through the front door of a business to gain entry Thursday, in the 300 block of S. French Avenue. Police said a case containing 25 men's and women's watches, with a total value of $248.75 were taken, in addition to $150 in damage.

Fluttering by for a lesson

Some of the elite of the Sanford business community spent a lunchtime in the butterfly garden at the Central Florida Zoo recently. The Leadership Committee of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce dined in the garden and learned about the animals and the zoo from animal curator Bonnie Brettbell. The garden is designed to attract butterflies to the wildflowers so that people can enjoy their beauty while leaving them untouched.

Olympic flame arrives for 84-day U.S. trip to Atlanta

By BETH HARRIS
AP Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES — Bruce Jenner says he could hardly wait to grasp a bit of history: the beginning of the Olympic flame's 84-day journey that will put it in Atlanta in time for the Summer Games.

Jenner, the 1976 Olympic decathlon champion, is one of 10,000 runners who will carry the flame during its 15,000-mile trip to the opening ceremonies July 19.

He sees the cross-country torch relay, which started Saturday in Los Angeles, as a proud moment for a city wracked by riots, fires, an earthquake and the O.J. Simpson murder trial.

"The flame has the ability for healing. We have been through so much in this city for the last few years," Jenner said. "Maybe everybody can kind of forget about what happened in the past and look to the future."

The flame arrived Saturday at Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum from Greece for a ceremony that took place against the controversial backdrop of two nude, headless statues built at the stadium's entrance for the 1984 Games.

The anatomically correct athlete statues created a stir earlier this week: Olympics officials from Atlanta wanted them covered up so as not to offend a national TV audience. But they were in place, uncovered, as Jenner addressed a crowd police estimated at 1,500 today.

Under cloudy skies, a helicopter touched down inside the Coliseum — site of two previous Olympic games — and delivered the flame.

"This Olympic flame will pass by millions of Americans on its 15,000-mile journey," Jenner said.

Peter Ueberroth, president of the 1984 games here, told the crowd: "Today's gathering recalls rather vivid memories of the 1984 Olympic games in L.A. Then and now the Olympic flame symbolizes the true spirit of the Olympic games."

In a nod to history, Olympic decathlon champion Rafer Johnson will be the first torchbearer. He was the last person to carry the symbolic torch on its international journey to the 1984 Summer Games, running up the imposing steps of the Coliseum to light the towering flame that burned throughout the Los Angeles Games.

Johnson will make his way down a grassy path away from the Coliseum, site of the 1932 and 1984 Olympics, and pass the flame to Gina Tillman, granddaughter of Jesse Owens, who won four gold medals at the 1936 Berlin Games.

Tillman will hand off to Janet Evans, who will seek ahrcord fifth swimming gold medal in Atlanta.

Two-time Olympic volleyball gold medalist Karch Kiraly will tote the torch south of Laguna Beach early Sunday, then take it home to his young sons.

"I asked my wife what she thought if I bought the torch, and she said, 'Go for it,' for a mere $275," he said. "The boys will probably batter it to death."

The 3½-pound flame holder — one of the lightest in Olympic history and first to be gripped in the center of its Georgia pecan wood handle — is made primarily of silvery aluminum with two gold-plated brass bands engraved with the names of previous Olympic host cities. Each torch has enough propylene fuel to burn for 40 minutes, more than enough time for its carrier to cover the half-mile legs that make up the cross-country relay.

"If you haven't made it in 40 minutes, you're in trouble," joked Frank Marshall, a Hollywood producer overseeing the torch ceremony.

Institute trains missionaries for work

By DEBORAH CIRCELLI
The Ledger, Lakeland

LAKE WALES — The night before the slaughter, seven Indiana nursing students prepared for the inevitable.

Squirming in their seats, they tried to think of ways they could duck out of beheading squawking, wildly flapping fowls. Their efforts were in vain.

The slaughter was the culmination of their two-week experience at the HEART Missionary Training Institute, a simulated Third World village six miles south of Lake Wales off U.S. 27.

Prospective missionaries learn to drill wells and pump water; purify water and make irrigation systems; make buildings of wood and concrete; make rope, sharpen knives and work on small engines; cook on an outdoor primitive stove or over an open fire; immunize animals; trim sheep hooves and chicken beaks; slaughter and cook small animals; and establish a health clinic.

Since the institute started, 422 people preparing for missionary work from 24 countries and numerous religious denominations have trained at HEART. Alumni have served in 51 mission and development agencies in 53 countries beyond the United States and Canada, such as Haiti, Uganda and Kenya.

Two 15-week seasons are held in the fall and spring for college students. Prices vary from $25 for two days and one night to $2,875 for the 15-week semester. The public can tour the institute free every Tuesday at 10 a.m.

The nursing students from Anderson University spent two weeks living without electricity, cooking over a camp fire, using an outside bathroom that consisted of a hole in the ground and showering by flashlight, using a fire to heat the water.

"What if we all just run away?" asked Carol Steigerwalt, 60.

The biggest challenge proved to be the last: slaughtering a duck.

"This is the toughest part for students," said Joseph Mattox, executive director of HEART.

Fellow student Carol Marker, 22, said it wasn't the blood, but the act of killing that bothered her: "It's not what we went to school to do. We're supposed to save people."

The lone male student among them was less worried.

"It's just a duck," said Jeff Worst, 41. "Everything is a frame of mind."

In a Third World country, one duck would feed a family of seven for a week, say teachers at HEART, or Hunger, Education and Resources Training.

The institute, started in 1984 by Warner Southern College in Lake Wales and Food for the Hungry International, teaches problem-solving and coping skills that students can take with them as missionaries in poor countries.

"We focus on giving people a hand up instead of a hand out," said Mattox, a professor of missions at Warner Southern.

Mattox said Warner Southern started the program after two professors at the college, Charlie Smith and Robert Clark, both of Lake Wales, wanted a place to provide practical missionary experience.

"They experience a bit of a cultural shock getting rid of the conveniences they had, but they learn to adjust and survive in a new environment," said Mattox, who spent 10 years in missionary settings in Latin America.

HEART used to receive about $20,000 of its $185,000 budget from Warner Southern, Mattox said. But cutbacks forced HEART to become a non-profit organization separate from Warner Southern in January 1995. Although still associated with the college, it now counts on tuition and donations to operate.

HEART, modeled after Peace Corps training camps, is located on a 40-acre site owned by Warner Southern. After a mile of dirt road, the village begins with a field for goats, sheep and ducks.

Next to the field is a garden where students learn how to grow food, such as banana trees, papaya, egg plant, cabbage and carrots.

Two windmills pump water underground to the village. Surrounded by hundreds of trees, the village has six two-story cabins, three outhouses, two outside showers, a classroom and a mess hall. The cabins are named "peace" in various languages.

The program is structured with chores, practical instruction and classroom learning. Days begin at 7 a.m. and end at 5:30 p.m. A cow bell alerts participants to breakfast, lunch and dinner.

Among HEART's goals is reducing the high turnover rate among missionaries. Mattox said that 50 percent of those who go overseas return before their assignment is finished or never take a second assignment because it was not what they expected.

Mattox said some people decide they don't want to go into missionary work after leaving the village.

"A few decide they are not cut out for it. But it is better for them to find out here than overseas," Mattox said. "It takes a special type of person and calling to do missionary-type work."

Marking days of tragedy

Perhaps we should have an official holiday for disasters. We have holidays to honor veterans, both fallen and remaining; there are those in which we remember our pilgrims, forefathers, and the common laborer.

Perhaps this is the time period of the year in which we should hold a disaster memorial day.

●It's the third anniversary of the Chernobyl (Russia) nuclear reactor disaster (April 26). An estimated 31 people were killed and thousands suffered radiation poisoning.

●On April 27, 1865, the steamship Sultana, heavily overloaded with an estimated 2,300 passengers, exploded on the Mississippi River, just north of Memphis. Death tolls range from 1,450 to 2,000. Most of the dead were Union soldiers who had been prisoners of war, and were returning to their homes at the conclusion of the Civil War.

●April 29, 1992 was the day of the Los Angeles riots, which followed the trial of four police officers accused in beating Rodney King. They were found not guilty, and the anger led to violence in the streets.

●Last year, we had the tragic bombing of the Federal Building in Oklahoma City.

●The Oklahoma disaster came almost on the anniversary of the raid on the compound in Waco, Texas two years earlier.

We've lost a lot of people through mishaps and violence such as these events. People who, generally, were just involved in another normal day in their lives. Within an instant, they were gone.

We believe our nation would do well to have a National Day of Mourning, not just for workers, but to pay homage to those we have lost in our various disasters. Not just a proclamation, but an official holiday, complete with a day off work if that is what would be required. A few parades and memorial services certainly wouldn't hurt either.

Think about it.

Greatest showing of poor taste

There was something obscene this week about the auction at Southby's of Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis's personal belongings. When I first heard of the auction, I was somewhat melancholy.

The Kennedy family has come to represent promise unfulfilled, although I was three years old at the time of the assassination of John Fitzgerald Kennedy, and therefore have no personal political or emotional allegiance with the era of his presidency. I had achieved a degree of political astuteness by the time of the death of his brother Robert Kennedy, who, in 1968, was the first candidate on any level which I supported and gave an allegiance.

Beyond the sense of sadness, came the faded memories of a time, an era, a generation, where I was refused service at a hot dog stand in Tampa. African-American servicemen, who had been killed serving the United States were denied the honor of a decent burial in Bartow's segregated cemeteries; where there was only one place you could stop when driving to or from Florida, to the Northeast, and where a little boy could not figure out why at certain points in train rides to visit distant relatives, seating arrangements were so important.

I have no nostalgia for the 1960s, and I do not wish to return. They were not happy days, days of innocence or good times.

As a very young boy, I saw very little of the segregated south, and had limited exposure with Jim Crow, my parents having been in exile in Philadelphia from their Florida homes and families, however the scars remain and the offenses are still vivid on my mind.

Seminole Opinion

Yet with all of that baggage for some reason, the 60s appeared to be a time of hope, expectation and dreams, and age over the rainbow, and through the looking glass, devoid of cynicism, greed and malaise. I felt for the lost opportunity that has come to embody the name Kennedy.

My sorrow, my melancholy, my sense of loss quickly turned to anger. I became angry at the feeding frenzy that I observed occurring over this woman's personal effects, a frenzy that demonstrated very little taste. No one should suffer the indignity in death that this event has demonstrated.

The purported motivation for the auction was additionally troubling. It has been reported that the personal property holdings of Mrs. Kennedy Onassis were so great, that after preserving those items that the family wanted to keep private and donating other items to the Kennedy library, that these items left over represent the unwanted remainder which were to be sold to offset the expense of estate taxes.

Estate taxes in this country run at a rate of approximately 50 percent over the first $500,000, not big issue for most people, however the rate is higher than it needs to be.

I have nothing against the concept of graduated tax rates, however I believe that all income, be it from wages, capital gains, or estates, should be taxed at the same level.

What troubled me about this aspect of the debacle was the fact that the items could have been auctioned for charitable purposes, and the money directed toward that purpose, would have offset the Estate taxes, although not to the same degree as the direct sale, I believe that it would have been in greater taste.

I have a larger problem with the cult of personality that has developed in this country. I have a great problem with the concept that an item, be it clothing, jewelry or otherwise, has a greater intrinsic value, because of who wore it. There is something fundamentally undemocratic about the idea that some people are worth more than others.

Finally, the sums of money spent so nonchalantly, in a time and in a city where people are literally hungry, homeless and without hope, is disgusting. All in all, this spectacle has been the greatest showing of poor taste in society this decade, and is very telling about us as a society.

Raising a perfect child

Sometimes we parents think that our children are the only mischievous, ill-mannered, homework-hating, imperfect creatures on the planet.

As I sat talking to a friend the other afternoon, my daughter Genevieve, who had been playing in the front yard with Susan's son and daughter, slammed the front door open, stomped noisily across the house and out the back door calling out for Susan's husband Dave who was working in the back yard.

Both doors stood wide open as she ignored my barrage of questions.

"What are you doing? Where are you going? Aren't you going to close that door? Aren't you going to close that door? Why are you making so much noise?"

"What?" she asked as she made it to the middle of the house on the completion of her round trip.

You'd think I had never made an effort to teach the child manners. I was embarrassed and shocked, so I sent her on her way, making a mental note to speak to her when we went home about what she had done.

When I turned back to Susan she was laughing hysterically.

"Boy, it's good to see that my kids aren't the only ones who act like that," she said. "Sometimes when you're not around other people's kids you forget that yours aren't the only ones who act like that."

It's easy to forget when your child helps a friend who is feeling down, or when she brings a bunch of wildflowers to her teacher or when she brings you a teddy bear and a blanket when you aren't feeling well.

The temper tantrum when you're sitting in the front pew at church is much more indelibly imprinted on your brain.

The time when, at the age of 11 months, she blurted out her first curse word in front of four generations of your family is much harder to forget.

When two or more parents are gathered together you often hear, "Oh my kid did that too."

But you don't hear anyone say often enough, "You think that's bad, well you should see what my little Emily did..." followed by a tale of woe of their child mooning the priest during the ceremony.

And you never see any other child misbehave (or at least you don't seem to remember it as clearly as the misdeeds of your own little monster).

Little Ryan's mother complains that he is the terror of tiny town. She claims he has an uncontrollable temper and that she can't possibly take him anywhere.

You see an angelic youngster who occasionally speaks his mind.

Of course, if your own child behaved in the same manner you'd lock yourself in the house with her until she was old enough to live on her own and you could claim you'd never seen her before.

Maybe we're too hard on our own kids, but it's only because we love them and have visions that if they aren't perfect they'll never get on as well as we have in this world.

But go ask your parents. Were you perfect? Chances are they'll remember you as just a little flawed, but you turned out OK, didn't you?

Well maybe perfection isn't necessary in our children.

But this leaving the doors open and stomping across the house has got to cease...

Editorial comment

In your recent editorial, you complain about codes not being followed and code enforcement not being followed up on in matters of flagrant violations. Now you come out with "do we need all these codes?" Looks like you're speaking out of both sides of your mouth.

Which do you really mean and endorse? Quite honestly, I believe that you are insulting all city volunteers, the Historic Trust, the Main Street program and anybody who cares about the city.

Could you imagine what the downtown district would look like today had we not had any codes in place? If you look over the last 10-15 years at the historical homes you'll see that district has improved greatly. At one time many of those homes were being converted into slums and with the stiffer codes we see more and more of them disappearing, even though we are not where we need to be.

Which side of the mouth will you speak out of next? Do you or don't you support the Duanny codes?

Commissioner Lon Howell
Sanford

Editor's note: We assume Mr. Howell is speaking about the Olde Sanford Regulations. The Duanny codes were so watered down from his original suggestions that he diplomatically asked that his name not be attached to the codes the city adopted. His comment, paraphrased, was that Sanford is new at this. Eventually they will learn that the historic district will only be preserved with a set of strong codes and those codes must be enforced.

Yes we support the Duanny codes in their original form. Our point in the editorial is that the city with good intentions commands people who are doing a great job restoring the historic homes to jump through hoops in the process.

Often a property owner does not get a permit, or does not appear before the Historic Preservation Board for approval, but instead does shoddy work with inferior materials. Most often, these are income-producing properties: rental units. The city, in our experience, cannot decide what to do, and in most instances the substandard patch job or the aluminum-hung windows or the extra weekly rental unit is ignored until a coalition of neighbors trying to upgrade the neighborhood complains. We also do not know of one case in which the violator was made to undo the non-conforming work. We suggested in our editorial that the city make it a little easier on homeowners doing quality work, just as they make it easy for those who ignore the codes and get away with it.

Mr. Howell cites the struggle residents have undertaken over the past 10-15 years. Actually, Mr. Howell himself was instrumental in the area's renaissance, but it began almost 17 years ago. For 17 years residents have fought for codes that would preserve the neighborhood. For 17 years, neighbors have had to fight City Hall because, like Mr. Howell also says, we're still not where we should be. Why is that, when it took Atlanta only eight years, Savannah even less time?

The solution is pro-active city government, with officials who will take the property owners to task when they complete projects that are non-conforming and violate the codes. Make them undo the work. After all, it's a business to them. Multiply an average $75 to $125 per week by, say 10 rental units and these businessmen are making a pretty decent living on the backs of weekly renters. But until the city stops fearing every landlord with an attorney, we feel it shouldn't be made harder for homeowners trying to better the neighborhood.

I hate to tell the commission but most of the city doesn't care about the downtown area. In fact most will tell you that it is dead and the commission needs to quit spending money on it. Why not let the people who own the buildings spend their money and not the city's? They would then have incentive to put in stores with prices and goods the people would support. The Seminole Center (Wal Mart Plaza) pays more in taxes than the downtown area, and they keep up their area, but the city keeps spending money on a dead horse.

More on codes

The citizens of Sanford need to watch the Sanford City Commission or 90 percent of the population will be stepping and fetching to the wishes of the downtown historical district and a few yuppies who live in the area. Now don't get me wrong I love the way they are fixing up the houses in the older part of town and I agree the area should keep the old neighborhood look. I do not live in the old part of town and have no wish to. Nor do I wish to have city codes pressed upon me because the mayor, some commissioners and the people living in that area want the city to tailor-make everything for them.

First you can't have recreational vehicles in your front yard, then you can't have fences. What next? I know! An order from the commission that all citizens of the city will meet downtown and cheer them as they parade by. Kind of sounds like something from another country and time, doesn't it. And it's sure un-American.

I hate to tell the commission but most of the city doesn't care about the downtown area. In fact most will tell you that it is dead and the commission needs to quit spending money on it. Why not let the people who own the buildings spend their money and not the city's? They would then have incentive to put in stores with prices and goods the people would support. The Seminole Center (Wal Mart Plaza) pays more in taxes than the downtown area, and they keep up their area, but the city keeps spending money on a dead horse.

If they want to protect the looks of the historical district, the Commission should outline the area involved and pass codes which pertain to that area. They should not force codes on the rest of the city which do not apply to a modern community.

We need to watch the commission and their cronies. They have their own agenda and it has nothing to do with the good of the city or the people, unless you live in the historical district.

With the upcoming elections I would hope the people will remember who has supported them and the needs of the city. I would also hope the citizens remember elected officials who lied to them about such things as their support for R.V.'s, and the commissioner who yells racism every time he doesn't get his way.

Remember to ask those running for office if they will follow the now-in-effect city hall policy of 'damn the citizens, we run this town' or if they plan to work for change. Then vote for change.

ermen in the bank division sought out prime locations on Lake Corolla, located in Fort Mellon Park.

The bank division is a two-day competition in which the fisherman who accumulates the most total weight of caught fish wins. There is also a prize for the largest fish.

After one day of fishing in the bank division, John Hill leads in total weight after landing 4.74 pounds, including a 3.34-pound catfish.

Second place is held by Dave Rafter, who landed a 2.06-pound bass on his way to catching 2.84 pounds of fish.

Third through tenth place respectively are: Rud Strohlin, 2.74 pounds; Jim Kennedy, 1.94 pounds; Steve Klemz, 1.82 pounds; Jim Ferrario, 1.56 pounds; James Mathis, 1.42 pounds; George Markland, 1.38 pounds; Raymond Bruce, 1.06 pounds; and Joe Hogans, 1.04 pounds.

Even though James Mathis finished in seventh place, the angler said he was enjoying the event.

"I really enjoy it. I try to fish it every year," Mathis said.

While the bank competition is two days long, the team competition concluded yesterday.

In the team event, both the captain of the vessel and the paralyzed veteran were eligible to fish. The team was allowed to bring eight fish to shore, provided they were kept alive.

The team event concluded Saturday with Gary Rudolph and Capt. Hank Gallagher winning the $1,000 first place prize having caught eight fish for a total of 21.58 pounds.

Second place went to Gary Dornbeck and Capt. Tony Roberts, who brought in five fish for a total of 16.69 pounds.

Dornbeck also caught the largest bass of the day, landing a whopper weighing 6.82 pounds.

Third through fifth places respectively went to Glen Davis and Capt. Dean Morris, eight fish for 13.59 pounds; Steve Senakovic and Capt. John Sobik, eight fish for 13.48 pounds; and Mike White and Capt. Rob Williams, five fish for 11.66 pounds.

Even though the team competition wrapped up Saturday, the teams will be back on the river today competing. This time, however, only the disabled fisherman is eligible to compete.

The winner will be selected based on total weight for five fish.

The winner of the U.S. Open Bass Tournament's boat division today will go home with a Hydro Sports fishing boat.

In addition to the winner of this event, the Angler of the Year will be named.

According to Bruce Jones, 1996-97 season national tournament trail director, the Angler of the Year will be the fisherman with the best season on the PVA's five-tournament series.

Weight-ins at the conclusion of the tournament are expected to begin shortly after 3 p.m. today, at the Sanford Civic Center.

Fishing resumes this morning at first light.

Budget

right now." Some major disagreements still must be resolved.

The rancor over social services cuts has replaced education and prisons as one of the biggest areas of concern. Numerous rallies have been held this session by advocacy groups protesting the reductions, the most severe being pushed by the Republican-led Senate.

In its budget, the Senate proposed cutting $300 million in state money that would mean the loss of a similar amount of federal dollars. The Senate wanted to eliminate 1,400 jobs from the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, reduce monthly cash payments to welfare mothers with two children, and decrease spending on transportation for Medicaid patients.

Leaders in the Democratic-led House proposed cuts in social services of about $150 million — plus a similar amount in federal dollars.

In negotiations last week, both sides tentatively agreed on cuts totalling about $190 million in state money. The loss of federal dollars probably would be nearly the same.

Lawmakers now are haggling over where the reductions will be made. House leaders are opposed to slashing HRS positions and the cuts in welfare payments.

Senate Ways and Means Chairman Mario Diaz-Balart, R-Miami, defended the proposed cuts. He said that's the only way the state can get enough money to pump more money into schools and prisons. Thousands more prison cells will be needed as anti-crime measures passed in the past few years send the prison population soaring.

Social services advocates intend to urge Chiles to use his line-item veto to stop some of the cuts. The governor has called the Senate's proposal a "non starter."

Advocates say there's no shortfall in tax dollars this year, as there was in the recession in the early 1990s that forced sharp spending cuts. In fact, new tax dollars total more than $900 million.

"The point is this — there is no revenue shortfall. There do not need to be any cuts," said Karen Woodall, a social services lobbyist and chairwoman of the state Health and Human Services Board for District 2 in Tallahassee. "They are harmful to people in need of services in this state."

What social services would lose, education would gain.

In the $6 billion spent on students, lawmakers must agree about how to reduce the difference in per pupil spending between the largest counties and smallest counties and provide increased dollars to urban areas with higher costs of living while not shortchanging rural areas.

Higher education spending is another contentious area.

The House wants to give greater authority to university presidents to let them raise tuition and make other decisions about purchasing and programs. The Senate wants to maintain legislative control.

The upshot: Lawmakers are expected to agree to an across-the-board course fee increase of at least 7 percent to start moving Florida out of the basement nationally in its tuition costs.

The House wanted a 10 percent increase that would raise $24 million, but Scott said the Senate wouldn't approve that much. Chiles also had proposed a 7 percent increase.

"We had enough trouble getting any kind of tuition increase over here let alone turning it over at this point to the universities," Scott said. "We'll look at that in the future."

Stinecpher

and joined their flowers in a spring time chorus to the tune of "Spring Song".

This chorus attracted Lady Spring, Minnie Waters, who was dressed in light green with floral wreaths. Following closely behind her was Merry May, Ruth Pearman, dressed in pink with pink wreaths. These two broke into a happy chorus, asking "Who would be the Queen of May?"

Merry May then bid the bees, birds and butterflies to find and bring her a dainty woodland fay which she had passed on her way.

The Robins were portrayed by Junior Fesler, Tolar Bryan, Jack Brannon, Billy Tyre and William Preston; Blue Birds were J.H. Coleman, Joseph Thompson and Jack Russell; Butterflies were Paul Biggers, Jack Gillon and Teddy Morse.

The Maypole Dance was next. Those taking part were Ida Louise Abbott, Katherine Adams, Dorothy Garrett, Marion Haines, Eleanor Hickson, Sadie Leinhart, Frances Mahoney, Maria Ann Powers, Jane Sharon, Margaret Squires, Eugenia Warren, Betty Wheelers, Marrie Milton, Caroline Biggers, Marjorie Pope, Susie Hatch, Georgena Hart, Gladys Garner, Sadie Garner, Katherine Brooks and Eva Cunningham.

At the close of this dance, the Herald proclaimed the approach of the Queen. All the flowers, anxious to see this woodland wonder, rushed together, blocking the way. That made it necessary for the pages to clear a pathway for the queen. This pathway was formed by the drawing of ribbons from the throne.

The pages, Osborne Herndon and John Minerik, were dressed in quaint white suits with white hats adorned with long pink plumes.

The May Queen approached in her pink and white chariot drawn by four robins. She was preceded by the bees, birds, and butterflies and followed by her attendants, Frances Wilson, Ora Mae Culp, and Rose Mae McFarland.

The Queen, Juanita Smith, was assisted from her carriage by her attendants who paved the way to her throne with Easter Lilies and roses.

Dressed in white and gold, the Queen danced her way to the throne where she was welcomed by Merry May. Merry May then took the crown from its bearers and officially crowned her the Queen of May.

All participants then serenaded her with "Hail, Hail to the Queen of May, Hail, Hail to the Queen Today" and also "Lovely May".

The writer of the article stated that most of the dancing was true folk dancing, not a demonstration of trained work or of modern ideas. It was the sort of dancing that one engages in on the lawn as a joyous expression of the spirit of May.

The pageant was under the auspices of the PTA and realized about $125 which would be used for playground equipment.

Musical numbers by the Sanford High School Orchestra helped make the festival a wonderful success.

Thomas contends defense lawyers expected to bear some of the costs of representing Spaziano and asked for only those costs "plainly necessary" to prepare the case.

"We wanted to be as conservative as possible," Thomas said. "My feeling is we incurred these costs. If the judge decides to award them, fine. If not, our firm will absorb them."

Seminole County officials are studying which items should be paid and which are questionable.

Defense attorneys will meet with county lawyers in about a week to negotiate the bill. Any disputed items will be decided by Seminole Circuit Judge O.H. Eaton Jr. at a May 17 hearing.

out 20.26 percent (8,645) of the registered voters in Seminole County. Elections supervisors had expected such a turnout.

Both Feeney and Hattaway are attorneys and each rent homes in Oviedo to qualify to run in the district.

A special election was necessary because of the resignation March 1 of Couch. He resigned just eight days after being arrested in Orlando for soliciting oral sex in public during the middle of the day.

Couch, 42, is married and has six children. After his arrest on three misdemeanor charges, he said he had paid prostitutes for sex in the past.

He earned a perfect rating from the Christian Coalition of Florida and attended prayer meetings in the Capitol with other lawmakers who call themselves the "God Squad."

Feeney, 38, served in the Florida House between 1990 and 1994 and has received campaign support from Bush who is again expected to seek the Republican gubernatorial nomination in 1998. Feeney works in Orlando.

A native of Seminole County, the 28-year-old Hattaway is making his first run at public office. He has been helped in his effort by U.S. Sen. Bob Graham. Hattaway's practice is in Sanford.

Feeney's margin of victory in Seminole County was highest in the eastern portions of the county while Hattaway did better in the northern part of the county.

HEART sent people to the village to build an irrigation system to raise crops, Dodge said. "It's heart-breaking. Such simple technology can change their way of living so much."

Fred Coey, spiritual life coordinator for HEART, has lived in a trailer at the HEART village for three years with his wife, Debbie, and their four children. The couple have done missionary work in the United States and Mexico.

The Coeys keep in contact with many students who go overseas.

"The first three weeks they are here they can't wait to leave," said Debbie Coey, who teaches gardening. "They say, 'I can't endure this.' But when the semester is over, many sit in the parking lot crying because they don't want to leave."

By the end of their two-week stay, the Anderson nursing students were looking forward to staying in Orlando before going back to Indiana.

Mary Boulevard. It will be expanded to six lanes, three in each direction.

Homan said he expects that work could get under way in the very near future.

Homan said the work from SR-434 to Lake Mary Boulevard has already been funded. "We still need to determine where the money will come from for the rest of the project," he added.

In addition to the ultimate eight lanes for vehicular traffic, he said work is still under way for rapid rail transportation. "Basically, when this gets started, it will go from SR-46 or U.S. Highway 17-92 in Sanford, south to Orlando." Some FDOT information indicates the rapid rail system may run from Sanford, through Orlando, to the Celebration community being built in Osceola County by Disney.

Homan said while many of the plans indicate the rail system will be built in the median, engineering and financial studies are still under way to determine the exact route. Some of it could be adjacent to the highway rather than in the middle.

FDOT officials have been presenting a number of public meetings regarding what is known as the "I-4 Multi-Modal Master Plan." Recent meetings, mostly for the purpose of information, have been held in DeLand and Orlando.

One of the goals is to obtain public and governmental input regarding the impact the highway expansion and rail system may have on particular areas. This includes possible problems with the environment and congested interchange areas.

The FDOT presentation is scheduled for the Lake Mary City Commission meeting this Thursday, May 2, beginning at 7 p.m., in the chambers of city hall, 100 N. Country Club Road.

IN BRIEF

Norville to speak

ORLANDO — Emmy Award-winning news journalist Deborah Norville will be the featured speaker at the Arnold Palmer Hospital for Children & Women's seventh annual Mother's Day Luncheon on Saturday, May 11.

The luncheon will be at the Walt Disney World Yacht and Beach Club.

Norville is the lead anchor, field reporter and producer of the television news magazine Inside Edition.

She is also the mother of two sons and a volunteer with many social agencies.

The Mother's Day luncheon will also include some informative exhibits provided by some of the facilities of the Orlando Regional Healthcare System.

This year there is also a "Mother of the Year" essay contest sponsored by Radio AHS (AM 950). The winner will receive four tickets to a Walt Disney World theme park, dinner at Planet Hollywood and admission to the luncheon.

A $500 donation will be made to her favorite women's charity organization as well.

Tickets for the luncheon are $30 each and include ten room modeling, door prizes and a gourmet lunch.

For information concerning registration or the essay contest, call 648-7899.

Low cost prescriptions

Is your medication too expensive for your budget? If so, information in a new booklet might help.

The Cost Containment Research Institute of Washington, D.C. has published a 32-page booklet called "Free and Low Cost Prescription Drugs."

The booklet gives information on where and how to get free and low cost prescription drugs.

"Many major drug companies provide free or low cost medication, but rarely, if ever publicize these programs," says Heather Kerrigan, director of the Institute. "We've published an A to Z listing of all the drugs that are available to certain qualified groups for free or at very low cost directly from the manufacturer."

Consumers can receive a copy of "Free and Low Cost Prescription Drugs" by sending $3 to cover the cost of postage and handling to: Free & Low Cost Prescription Drugs, Booklet #PD-260, 611 Pennsylvania Ave. SE, Suite 1010, Washington, D.C. 20003-4303.

Celebration barbecue planned

WINTER PARK — The Center for Independent Living (CIL) is hosting the third annual fundraising barbecue on Saturday, June 8 from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m.

The event will mark the 17th anniversary of the non-profit organization.

The barbecue will be held at Fleet Peoples Park on Lakemont Avenue between the Orlando Naval Training Center and the Winter Park Memorial Hospital.

The Kiwanis Club of East Orlando is donating and preparing the fixings which include barbecued chicken, baked beans and cole slaw.

The cost of the meal is $6 and all proceeds benefit CIL.

May is Mental Health Month

Lunch break lectures address varied mental health issues

By VICKI DeBORMIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

ORLANDO — Tired of the same old, same old at lunch?

That brown bag filled with the same kind of sandwich you've eaten since you were five-years-old can really get you down.

Not only is it probably not very nutritious, it is not doing much for your mental health either. Is it?

The Mental Health Association of Central Florida and the Florida Hospital Center for Psychiatry have a solution to your dilemma: a celebration.

In honor of Mental Health Month and the mental health association's 50th anniversary, the public is invited to "Achieve a Better You," through a lunch time lecture series.

For no cost at all, you can bring your lunch (try something new for a change) and the sponsors will provide the program and a beverage.

Inspiring speakers have been lined up to help you achieve better mental health.

Organizers promise they will "provide their know how in lively, interesting and entertaining programs."

There will be programs in both downtown Orlando and in Altamonte Springs to serve people in who work in either Orange or Seminole County.

The Orlando programs will be at the First Presbyterian Church of Orlando, 106 E. Church St., in downtown.

The program schedule for that location is:

● Monday, May 6
Giving the Love You Want
Presented by Cheryl Malone, M.A., P.A., LMHC.

Singles and couples will profit from these approaches to seeking meaningful relationships or improving the one they have.

● Tuesday, May 14
Building a Brighter Tomorrow
Presented by Scott Spielman, M.S., Executive Director of PHP, Florida Hospital.

Success begins with you; strength begins in you.

● Tuesday, May 21
Don't Go Off the Deep End
When Your Child Comes Home
With Purple Hair

Presented by Joann Vanlooven, R.N., B.S.N.

Parenting in the 90's: the importance of family dynamics.

● Tuesday, May 28
Relief is Spelled H-U-M-O-R

Presented by Marge D. o. RN, BSN, Coordinator of Nursing, Continuing Education, Orlando Regional Healthcare System.

A bird's eye view of how humor helps reduce stress.

The Altamonte Springs programs will be at the Florida Hospital-Altamonte — Chailos A & B, 601 E. Altamonte Dr.

The program schedule there is:

● Tuesday, May 7
Mental Health Through the Ages

Presented by Pierre Lubold, Psy, Florida Hospital Center for Psychiatry.

Honoring their members

Members of the Central Florida Regional Hospital Auxiliary gathered recently to honor their own for various accomplishments. Edith Avenel, right, was named as an honorary member of the auxiliary by president Dottie Floray.

Business

IN BRIEF

New projects manager

SANFORD — William A. Meister has been appointed senior special projects manager for Harper Mechanical Corporation, 5401 Benchmark Lane in Sanford. Meister, with 26 years of experience in the mechanical field, will be responsible for business development and project management throughout Central Florida.

William A. Meister

Business relocation

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Jim Zirkel, CEO, has announced the relocation of Home Design Services, Quantum Architecture and 10,000 House Plans, "The House Plan Store." The companies will be located in the Landing Towne Shoppes, 1/2 mile off SR-438 and SR-434, at 580 Cape Cod Lane, Suite 9.

The grand opening of the 10,000 House Plans and the office complex is planned for July of this year.

Business classes

DELAND — The School of Business Administration at Stetson University in Deland has joined a group of just over 100 of the nation's business schools in business administration and accounting accreditation.

The accreditation was announced by the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB), during a meeting this past week in California.

Programs at Stetson receiving accreditation include the Bachelor of Business Administration (BBA) with majors in accounting, economics, finance, general business, management and marketing, and minors in business law and information technology.

The School of Business Administration at Stetson, which will celebrate its 100th anniversary in 1996-97, has an enrollment of 569 undergraduates and 87 graduate students in the MBA program, with 11 in the Master of Accountancy program.

Home building

● OVIEDO — Picerne Homes has started construction on a new model home, the Nantucket, at its community of Creekwood, in Oviedo. The Nantucket, with 1,300 square feet in a three bedroom two bath home is priced at $89,900. There are 40 homesites in the community, but only eight were available as of earlier this week.

● LONGWOOD — Home Design Services, Inc., of Longwood, is designing ten custom homes in Disney's Celebration Community, for builders Derrick Builders, Kissimmee, and Goehring and Morgan, of Altamonte Springs. The homes will range from 3,000 to 5,000 square feet in size.

● HEATHROW — During the first two weeks of April, Stirling International Realty, Inc., of Heathrow, reported handling 12 transactions for a dollar volume of $4.5 million according to partner Roger Soderstrom. During the first three months of this year, the company handled a total of 60 transactions for a dollar volume of $16 million.

BellSouth VISA for small business

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writers

SANFORD — "We want to show small business owners and operators that BellSouth is doing everything we can to assist them," said Larry Strickler, BellSouth regional manager.

BellSouth Small Business Services and the Prudential Bank, have launched the BellSouth VISA Small Business Card. It is a combination calling card and credit card, designed especially for small business customers. The cards are now available.

Strickler commented, "Tailored to meet the specific and unique demands of the small business customer, the card offers many outstanding advantages. It carries higher available credit limits than most cards available today, offers cash back on phone charges and purchases, has no annual fee and provides a year-end report for financial management."

Strickler said the card is accepted virtually anywhere in the world from any phone. By using the card as a BellSouth calling card call, customers will receive 20 percent cash back.

If they elect to pay their monthly business phone bills with their card, they will receive an additional two percent cash back, based on their total monthly BellSouth phone bill amount.

Small business customers can apply for the BellSouth VISA Small Business card by calling toll free, 1-888-488-VISA. In addition to the cash-back features, BellSouth is offering a number of additional features including lost luggage and auto rental insurance, emergency medical referral assistance, an available credit line up to $25,000 plus other advantages.

"This is just further proof that when it comes to helping small businesses communicate," Strickler added, "BellSouth is the only name to remember."

BellSouth, with headquarters in Atlanta, serves approximately 21 million local telephone lines, and provides local exchange and IntraLATA long distance service over a modern telecommunications network.

Where does Sanford stand?

From staff reports

SANFORD — The City of Sanford is not known as an industrial city. At least in eyes of the 1996 Florida Manufacturers Register.

The document, published each February, reports detailed information about the manufacturing environment in 478 cities and towns in Florida that contain at least one industrial plant.

Miami heads the manufacturing community with 2,204 plants according to the 1996 edition. Tampa is second with 1,146 plants. Third is Jacksonville, home for 944 plants.

Fourth place goes to the city of Orlando, which reported 904 manufacturing establishments. The only city in Seminole County listed among the top 25 was Longwood, with 158 manufacturing establishments.

The only numbers released at the present were the top 25, so it remains undetermined regarding where Sanford, Lake Mary, or other Seminole County cities and towns may be listed.

Electronic and Electric Equipment plants provide the greatest number of industrial jobs in Florida according to the register: 68,838 total jobs, or 11.32 percent of the total of the 1996 registry information for the entire state.

The Printing and Publishing industry ranks second with 64,331 jobs or 10.58 percent of the total.

The food industry is third with 57,465 jobs, followed by Transportation/Equipment plants, and Metal Fabricating firms.

In a breakdown regarding the number of plants however, the Printing and Publishing industry comes in first with 3,262 manufacturing establishments. Industrial Machinery/Equipment is second.

Merger off

SANFORD — There will be no sign changing in the near future at Rite Aid Pharmacies in Sanford. The Rite Aid merger with Revco D.S., Inc., the nation's two largest drug store chains has been called off in the face of government complaints that the new company could nearly monopolize business in parts of the East and Midwest.

Rite Aid Corp. abandoned its $1.8 billion purchase of Revco D.S. Inc. on Wednesday, saying the deal's expiration date of Monday made it impossible to fight opposition from the Federal Trade Commission.

Making the cut

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Gingrich predicts repeal of gas tax

ANAHEIM, Calif. — House Speaker Newt Gingrich said Saturday he believes Congress will be able to repeal a 1993 gasoline tax by Memorial Day, when Americans begin their peak driving season.

Speaking at a gas station during a visit to Southern California, the Georgia Republican said the 4.3 cent-per-gallon tax, passed by Congress in 1993 and signed by President Clinton, has aggravated the recent gasoline price increases.

"While government is not the only problem, it's clear that government is a major problem in terms of the cost of living and in terms of gasoline," said Gingrich, who was in the state this weekend campaigning and raising money for fellow Republicans.

A proposal to repeal the tax will be introduced in the Senate as early as next week by Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, Gingrich said. He predicted the proposal would get wide support in Congress.

In a letter Dole sent to Clinton on Friday calling for the repeal of the gas tax, he did not specify how he would offset the estimated $4.8 billion in lost revenue.

White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta said he wasn't sure if the proposal was a serious one or a campaign ploy by the certain Republican presidential nominee.

Gingrich responded Saturday: "If you want to help lower the cost of gasoline ... why don't you test us?"

In response to Gingrich's comments, Tom Umberg, the California director for Clinton's re-election campaign, said Dole supported federal gas tax increases in 1982 and 1990.

"I think it's hypocritical for Bob Dole to have his surrogate, Newt Gingrich, come to California and blow smoke about the tax increase," Umberg said.

Building leveled during testing

MADISON, Ala. — An explosion at a military contractor Saturday leveled a two-story building housing a Hellfire missile and shattered about 50 windows in nearby apartments. No one was hurt.

Wyle Laboratories Inc. said the explosion happened during routine testing of a small rocket motor and that the cause was under investigation.

Employees were working on the missile but had left to get coffee when the explosion happened around 4:30 a.m., the Huntsville Fire Department said.

Nearby residents were jolted awake.

"Within a matter of two or three seconds there was a tremendous sonic boom and tremendous blast and then all the car alarms went off," said Irene Applegate, who said she started praying after the shock wore off.

Another resident, Christopher Burroughs, said he thought the explosion was a freeway accident involving a gas tanker. The impact knocked pictures off the walls of his apartment, four buildings away from the testing site.

"Every once in a while there is a loud noise over there, but this was different, much different," Burroughs said.

Wyle Laboratories, based in El Segundo, Calif., provides research, engineering, testing and support services to aerospace, defense and energy industries.

The laser-guided Hellfire missile was carried on Apache helicopters during the Persian Gulf War and experienced accuracy and reliability problems, according to congressional investigators.

Kidder's mid-life career depression

LOS ANGELES — Margot Kidder's dizzying fall from the heights of Hollywood stardom took a heavy mental toll on the actress who once flew with Superman.

Relegated to B-movie parts and doing scenes for CD-ROM computer games, Kidder hit bottom last week when she roamed the city telling wild, paranoid tales and disguised herself by hacking off hunks of her hair and trading clothes with a transient.

After three days of wandering, she was found dazed and filthy, cowering in a suburban back yard not far from the studio lot where she became famous playing Lois Lane.

Kidder was taken to a county psychiatric ward and later was checked into a private facility by family members.

Friends said the 47-year-old actress was pushed over the edge by her inability to find quality acting work.

"Once you hit a certain age, maybe put on a little weight, the roles become fewer and fewer," said Kevin Holt of New York. "It's an unfortunate thing."

Broadway producer Robert Franz spoke with Kidder by phone late in the week and heard her tell of her career depression.

"Hollywood has a system that, when you reach a certain age, you're dumped — they spit you out," she said, Franz told the New York Post.

WORLD BRIEFS

Truce after 16 days

JERUSALEM — Israeli and Muslim guerrilla guns fell silent Saturday after both sides agreed to a U.S.-brokered truce that will allow more than a half-million refugees to return home.

The truce, which marked a major success for U.S. Secretary of State Warren Christopher and his brand of shuttle diplomacy, was aimed at ending the worst fighting in the Mideast in three years.

The cease-fire arose from worldwide revulsion to the shelling of a U.N. refugee camp by Israeli gunners on April 18.

Christopher said the truce set the stage for an extended period of calm along the Israeli-Lebanese border and for an eventual Israeli troop withdrawal from southern Lebanon.

"We have achieved the goal of our mission," he told a news conference in Jerusalem.

Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres, standing next to Christopher, thanked President Clinton for sending his secretary of state to the Middle East. "I think you served peace," he told Christopher.

Hezbollah said it would abide by the agreement, which its secretary-general, Sheik Hassan Nasrallah, called "very good."

India begins huge general election

NEW DELHI, India — From a former prime minister's widow to an octogenarian on a mattress, Indians voted by the millions Saturday in an election expected to end with the defeat of a centrist party that has held this diverse nation together for decades.

An estimated 80 million voters — about 50 percent of those eligible — braved scorching heat in the first phase of voting that will go on for a month, election officials said.

Many polls published before the parliamentary election predicted the Hindu nationalist Bharatiya Janata Party would finish ahead of the governing Congress Party.

But the surveys also said no party would win a majority, meaning the president would have to invite the first-place finisher to form a coalition government with smaller parties.

Mrs. Onassis's things talked for her

By CATHERINE CROCKER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — The very private Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis — who hid behind sunglasses and dignified silence in life — finally revealed herself.

Her personal side was not only on display, it was for sale, at the frenzied auction of her estate.

And finally it was her things — her dishes and jewelry, her pictures and books and furniture, her keepsakes and mementoes — that did her talking for her:

— From the French grammar book she doodled in as a schoolgirl to the cameras she used as a curious photographer in her pre-Kennedy days.

— From the furniture she selected for the White House, like the desk on which President Kennedy signed the Nuclear Test Ban Treaty, to the lavish jewelry Aristotle Onassis gave her.

— From the thousands of volumes she collected as a book editor to her car, a dark green BMW sedan.

Her things told about a life of privileged jet-setting, triumph, tragedy, family, fame and plain hard work.

And her fans, with wallets wide open, put a dollar-figure on the story told by the 6,000 items for sale. The grand total: $34.5 million.

Sotheby's had estimated that the four-day auction would bring, at most, $4.6 million. The prediction apparently failed to account for the Kennedy mystique.

"She is an icon. The closest thing we have to royalty," said Carolyn Meyer of New York City, whose dream "to have something from Jackie" was dashed by what some disappointed fans called "bidding from Mars."

Elsie Lewis of Toronto wanted something from her childhood, like the French grammar book with her schoolgirl doodles of fashionable ladies sketched inside that sold for $42,550. She didn't get it.

Two cameras dating from the time when she was an inquiring photographer for the Washington Times-Herald sold for $11,500 each.

Like most of the hundreds of bidders, Don Carter wanted a keepsake from the Kennedy White House years. And he got one, paying $123,500 for a bound collection of every inaugural address from George Washington through John F. Kennedy, with an inscription from the newly widowed Mrs. Kennedy to her mother and stepfather.

"You'll just get ready to cry when you see this," Carter told his wife when he came across the book at Sotheby's preview exhibit. The inscription reads: "For Mommy and Uncle Hugh, Jack was going to give this for Christmas — Please accept it now from me — With all my love, Jackie, December 1963."

Also fetching high bids were JFK's golf clubs, Arnold Schwarzenegger, husband of JFK niece Maria Shriver, kept them in the family by shelling out $772,500 for the set of MacGregor woods.

The action movie hero also bought a Norman Rockwell portrait of JFK for $134,500 and a personalized leather desk set for $189,500.

The desk on which Kennedy signed the Nuclear Test Ban Treaty of 1963 sold for $1.43 million. The buyer was an unidentified European foundation.

An oak rocking chair the president used to soothe his bad back brought $453,500. It was a gift from songwriter Carol Bayer Sager, who co-wrote "That's What Friends Are For," to her fiancé, Time-Warner co-chairman Bob Daly.

"I never felt in my lifetime about a present the way I feel about this present," she said Saturday. "Bob is Irish and Catholic — I think it fits him. I think he'll be a good custodian of it."

A triple strand of fake pearls that a photographer once captured the former first lady's toddler son playfully tugging sold for $211,500.

A set of 40 copies of guides to the White House sold for $9,200 after frantic bidding that started at $300. Mrs. Kennedy had re-decorated the White House, hired the first permanent White House curator and organized its first guidebook. She won accolades for her 1962 television tour of the White House.

Elizabeth Bloom of San Francisco paid $27,600 for pictures that Mrs. Kennedy had hung in the White House.

"Anything pre- the Onassis period, I was interested in," Bloom said.

Something from the Onassis period — the 40-carat diamond ring that Aristotle Onassis gave her — was just what Anthony J.F. O'Reilly, the chairman and chief executive of H.J. Heinz Co., was looking for.

He paid $2.59 million for the ring, the highest price at the auction.

The family of his wife, Chryss Goulandris O'Reilly, and the Onassis family were "friendly rivals" in the shipping business, explained Albert Lippert.

chairman emeritus of Heinz's Weight Watchers subsidiary, who placed the bid.

Mrs. Kennedy Onassis began her publishing career in 1975, the year Onassis died. At Doubleday, she was known for her perfect manners and down-to-earth style. She even fetched her own coffee. She was a working woman by choice.

A Ms. magazine cover, featuring her and titled "Why Does This Woman Work?" from March 1979, brought $40,250. It was signed by about 50 staffers at Ms. magazine with a presentation from Gloria Steinem.

The very last item on the block was Mrs. Onassis's 1992 BMW — a 325i four-door sedan. It sold for $79,500.

Her belongings were done talking. They had told her story.

Bales, who was employed as the drive-in's projectionist and maintenance man for 50 years, said.

Young families came with their young children to see the newest films and meet their friends and neighbors for a night of socializing.

"There wasn't TV to distract people from a night out with their friends," Bales said. "They'd come out and talk and watch the movie. The crowds were well behaved. The place was always full."

Lucille Sherrill and her great-granddaughter, Loriann Kendall, drive slowly through the exit and cruise each aisle looking at each speaker standard, each blank spot and at the blank screen on Saturday afternoon.

Kendall, 17, is behind the wheel. Her blue eyes, open wide, absorb the remains of what had once been an oasis for those in search of entertainment.

"This is so cool," Kendall says. "Mammie said she used to come here way back in the 40s and 50s, but my grandma and my mom never came and I always wondered what this was. I didn't even know it was still open."

Shattered beer bottles, ground nearly to a fine powder, mix with the shells beneath the tires of her Toyota. Dust scatters in her slow wake.

"Mammie said this was the funnest place in Sanford and says it's a good thing that screen can't talk, ain't that right, Mammie?"

Sherrill says nothing, but wipes a tear from the corner of her eye. They drive on slowly, then pull back out the exit into the fast-moving traffic on U.S. Highway 17-92.

In the 1950s the teens who had grown up around the wheels of the cars at the drive-in brought their friends and their dates to the movies.

"Everyone was there," said Elaine Galloway, who went to the Movieland with her dates, especially the man she eventually married, David.

Contrary to the stereotype, she noted, the drive-in was not the place where you went to "make out." Certainly there were couples who passed their way through the movie, but there weren't wild orgies in the back seats of cars.

"There was always someone coming to the window to say hello and to talk," she said. "Once we had this one friend who had a fight with her date and she ended up sitting in the front seat with us and watching the movie."

The crushed-shell parking area was filled with cars every night of the week for two, sometimes three movies.

David Barnes lives in DeLand these days and "never, ever" goes to the drive-in any more, but when he heard of the Movieland's demise, he wanted to make one last pilgrimage to the place where he spent many a happy night in the 1960s.

"Oh, I just wanted to look around and see what was left. You know, I might have been better off with my memories. It was a really beautiful place in those days, at least I remember it that way. Now, it's kinda rusty and peeling and dirty."

Galloway said she had very pleasant memories of the way the drive-in used to look, but the tattered reality of the present did not bother her.

"There are just so many wonderful memories," she said. "It really makes me sad to see it close."

The 1960s, Bales said, nearly brought the end of the drive-ins when nearly everyone in town got a television.

"Everyone had a television and it was easier to sit at home and watch the television than to go out to the movies," he noted.

Bales said that in the 1960s those who came to the drive-in were a rougher crowd and not as well-behaved as they had been in the past.

"Fewer families came to the drive-in," he said. "Between TV and the air-conditioned movie theatres, who wanted to come sit out in their car?"

Still, families came for "a cheap night out."

A paved playground at the base of the screen was the favorite hangout for youngsters. They could wile away the hours while their parents watched the movie, knowing they were safe and occupied.

Dave Merrill said he can remember playing in the playground as a tyke, knowing his mother was close by, but knowing he had a bit of independence away from her.

Evenings at the drive-in began early, because his family never stayed for the second feature.

"I think things probably got a little rough late in the evening after the teen-agers started getting high," he said. "All I know is that we were there when the gates opened and we played through the first movie and then my mom came and got us after the first movie."

Becky Ryder remembers going to see "Gone With the Wind" at the Movieland when she was four or five years old in the early 1970s.

"That has always been my favorite movie since then," she said. "We used to go to the drive-in when I was a kid. There were five of us kids and my parents and all seven of us would pile into the big old family car and go down there."

She said she's sorry to say that she has never taken her own four children to the drive-in.

"There are four of them. It would be great, but I've just never done it," she said. "Now I'm sad to hear they're closing and I've never taken them. I have lots of fond memories of the place."

Business fell dramatically when television really took hold, Bales said.

"I think it must have dropped off 25 or 30 percent in the early 1970s," he speculated.

The introduction of VCRs and cable in most households was probably the death knell for the drive-ins he said.

A number of schemes, including grocery give-aways, raffles and even a used car give-away fell by the wayside, he said, when they failed to bring in the crowds of old.

Bales said the place started to fall into disrepair in the late 1970s and into the 1980s as he got on in years and found some of the upkeep a little more difficult. And, since the facility was not a money-maker, the owners were less likely to want to spend much money on renovations, upgrades or mere maintenance.

"I did my very best to keep it up and things have really fallen off since I was forced to retire last summer," he said.

Bales, who is 90 years old, was still working there in July of 1995 when he slipped and fell.

"It was like they say, I fell and I couldn't get up," he said.

Fighting back through physical therapy, he's still not strong enough to return to work, so Bales said he is retired, finally.

"And now with the drive-in closing up, I guess I don't have work to go back to anyhow," he said. "But it was a good life. I hate to see it go."

Melissa Hendrix stands quietly by the concession stand in the heat of Saturday afternoon and shakes her head.

"It's too bad," she says. "I really like coming here with my husband and the kids. It's not fancy or nothing, but it was a cheap night out and a fun way to spend an evening. The kids can run around, up and down the aisles screaming their heads off as long as they watch out for cars and ain't nobody gonna complain. I don't know if I can take them to an inside theatre. They don't know how to sit down in a seat during a movie."

She crushes a cigarette out under her heel and steps toward her car.

"Heck, I don't know if I could sit still inside."

Many come to reminisce or to see the drive-in for the first time on Saturday afternoon.

As they make their way through the parking area, manager Larry Metz moves slowly through the area doing his job as he has every day for many years. Today is no different for Metz. Reality, he says, will probably not set in until the last show is over and in the can.

He shakes his head as he stoops to pick up overturned speaker standards and is visibly shaken when he finds yet another one with the RCA Drive-Ins speakers ripped away.

"Since the publicity started about us closing, people have been coming in here and ripping them off," he says.

A full third of the remaining speaker standards stand empty. From some, thin black cords hang like tails on some bizarre metallic creature, soon to be extinct. On others, even the cords have been ripped away.

With a nail attached to a pole, Metz gathers discarded paper, cups and half-eaten food.

He tidies the wildflower garden and talks to those who made the trek through the facility for a final look around.

The screen, whitewashed a few years ago at a cost of $4,500, looms over the park, casting a dark shadow in the afternoon brightness. The intricate metalwork holding it in place is rusted, layers of green and brown paint flaking off in arm-sized chunks.

A tree, allowed to grow untrimmed, reaches a leafy hand in front of the screen, ready to taunt moviegoers for a few more days.

The drive-in, like nearly 20 of its compatriots across the state, including two in Orange County, has been closed by MasTec, the Miami-based telecommunications company that recently purchased Floyd Theatres.

"It's more valuable to them as land than as a movie theatre," Metz said. "They just want the cash."

The Sanford property is on the block for $3 million. No serious offers have yet been made on the property, however.

Still, Metz said, the drive-in will be closed at the end of April. The gates will be locked and he and the two employees who operate the concession stand will walk away a final time.

"I'll miss this place," he said and turned to pick up another fallen speaker standard. "It's been a good place to work and a nice place to spend some time."

The Bordenkirchers in their 1963 Plymouth Valiant convertible revisit some memories for the last time.

Magic pound Pistons

ORLANDO — The Orlando Magic began what they hope will be a journey back to the NBA Finals with a 112-92 playoff victory Friday night over the Detroit Pistons.

Dennis Scott made six 3-pointers and scored 23 points as the defending Eastern Conference champions ruined the Pistons' first taste of postseason action in four years.

Orlando broke the game open by outscoring Detroit 33-17 in the third quarter after the game was tied at halftime.

Shaquille O'Neal had 21 points and Anfernee Hardaway 18 for the Magic, who can take a 2-0 lead in the best-of-5 series by winning again Sunday at Orlando Arena.

Grant Hill led Detroit with 21 points. Allan Houston had 19 and Joe Dumars 14.

Bulls handle Heat

CHICAGO — Unable to shake Miami for a half, the Chicago Bulls finished their playoff opener the same way they ended 72 regular-season games — victorious.

Michael Jordan scored 35 points and Ron Harper excelled in the momentum-shifting third quarter as Chicago defeated the Heat 102-85.

Tim Hardaway scored 30 points for Miami, which will try to pull even in the best-of-5 Eastern Conference series on Sunday. The Heat will need a better showing from Alonzo Mourning, who had only 10 points and two rebounds and spent most of game on the bench in foul trouble.

Miami also had 27 turnovers, several of them coming in the key stretch of the third quarter when Chicago pulled away.

Sheffield ties record in win

SAN FRANCISCO — Gary Sheffield hit his 11th home run, tying the record for most homers in April, and Kevin Brown pitched a seven-hitter Friday night to lead the Florida Marlins over the San Francisco Giants 3-0.

Sheffield, leading the majors in homers, drove a 2-1 pitch into the left-field bleachers in the first inning. Quilvio Vera drew a leadoff walk before Sheffield connected and extend Florida's winning streak in San Francisco to five.

Three others have hit 11 homers in April — Willie Stargell with Pittsburgh in 1971; Craig Nettles with the Yankees in 1974 and Mike Schmidt with Philadelphia in 1978.

Brown (2-3), who came over to Florida as a free agent from the Texas Rangers, struck out seven and walked one in extending his scoreless streak against the Giants to 17 innings. It was his eighth career shutout.

No Giants runner reached second, and the Marlins' defense also helped out with a pair of double plays, the last in the seventh when Tom Lampkin struck out and catcher Charles Johnson threw out Mark Carreon attempting to steal second.

Sheffield scored the Marlins' third run after singling to start the fourth. He was balked to second, advanced to third on Terry Pendleton's single and scored on Greg Colbrunn's sacrifice fly.

Irvan wins Talladega pole

TALLADEGA, Ala. — Ernie Irvan won his first pole since a serious crash over 20 months ago, taking the top spot for Sunday's Winston Select 500.

Irvan's fast lap of 192.855 mph was just good enough to relegate Robert Yates Racing teammate Dale Jarrett to the outside of the front row with a lap of 192.560 at the 2.66-mile Talladega Superspeedway.

Meanwhile, the latest attempt by NASCAR to gain some education about what its teams are doing with their equipment proved something of an embarrassment.

After qualifying, NASCAR impounded the Ford of Irvan and the Chevrolet of fourth-place Sterling Marlin for the stated purpose of getting some horsepower readings.

In testing Irvan's car, Gary Nelson — the Winston Cup director for NASCAR — slipped the clutch, bringing a puff of black smoke and sparks from the car's tailpipe. The clutch broke and the engine may have been damaged, said Robert Yates, Irvan's car owner.

Nelson actually went through the gears twice before the computer that was registering and analyzing the results suddenly went blank.

LAKE MARY — The pitching combination of Sarah Reeber and Lisa Sieber helped Oviedo High School capture the District 4, Class 6-A Softball Championship Friday night with a 13-4 debacle over Lake Mary High School.

A large crowd representing both schools, witnessed the young freshman, Reeber, earn the win by

Sanford teen rolling to top of BMX

By JEFF BERLINCKE

SANFORD — Nick Sollen has had a pretty interesting career so far.

The 13-year-old Sanford resident recently qualified for the BMX bike state championship on the basis of a first-place showing during a meet in Fort Myers and has consistently finished atop the leader board in Orlando-area events.

Not too shabby for a kid who's only been riding for a little more than a year.

Nick Sollen, 13, has quickly risen to the top of BMX racing despite being involved in the sport for a little more than a year. The Sanford teen will next compete in the state meet in Tampa on May 18-19.

THE KING IS HERE

Today could be one of the final chances to see a real American loon in action as 71-year-old Eddie Feigner brings his 60-plus mile per hour fastball and his four-man fastpitch softball team to Sanford

Memorial Stadium for a 2:30 p.m. game against the Orlando Orange (women's professional baseball team) and members of the Seminole High School softball team. Tickets are available at gate.

Pirates do In Braves

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Donald White and Nick Erickson combined on a two-hitter as the Moose Lodge-Pirates clubbed the Braves 12-1 in Sanford Babe Ruth Baseball League action Friday evening.

The Pirates will be in action again Monday, hosting the Kiwanis Club-Indians at 5:45 p.m. at Sanford Stadium. At the same time, on Zinn Beck Field, the Steve's Pharmacy-Athletics will take on the Elks Lodge #1241-Devil Rays.

Doing the damage for the Pirates (7-0) were T.J. Thompson (double, single, three runs), Adam Frank (double, single, two runs), Justin Erickson and Tug Daniels (two singles and two runs each), Nick Erickson (two singles), James Drake (single, two runs), Donald White and William Cleveland (one single each) and Alex Scott (run).

Hitting for the Braves (1-6) were Andrew Battey and Danny Weyh (single) and Shane Burnard (run).

Take a hike on the wild side

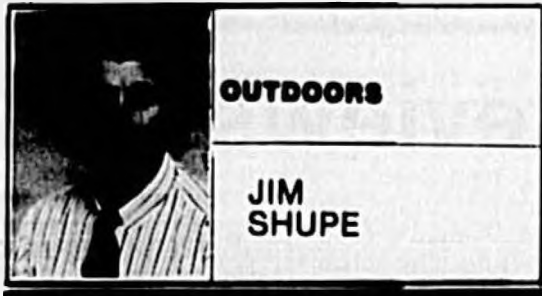

Florida is a great place to hike and springtime is a great time to do it. The Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission (GFC) has several wildlife management areas (WMAs) in the central Florida area that offer great places to explore and hike, including parts of the Florida National Scenic Trail.

Hikers can begin their adventure in the Ocala National Forest, where the famous Florida Trail was started by a handful of volunteers about 30 years ago. The Ocala National Forest Wildlife Management Area is a 382,408 acre expanse of Florida scrub habitat located in Putnam, Marion and Lake Counties. The trail runs in a north-south direction through the middle of the area, and observant hikers are likely to see a large variety of wildlife including deer, fox, alligators, bears, and a wide assortment of birds, including bald eagles. And, don't forget your fishing poles. Numerous fishing holes located along the way offer excellent opportunities for those who want to stop and cast a line.

Continuing south on the Florida Trail leads to the 6,000 acre Seminole Ranch Wildlife Management Area, which borders the St. Johns River in east Orange County. The area is a wildlife haven consisting primarily of river marsh, open pasture land, hardwood hammocks and cabbage palm hammocks.

The Toxahatchee Wildlife Management Area is next along the way. It consists of 28,000 acres in Orange County near the community of Christmas. Here the famous trail runs beside swamps, through pine flatlands, oak forests and along tree-lined dikes along the St. Johns River floodplain. The loop trails in Toxahatchee make good day hikes, and there's plenty to see.

Right now is a great time to head to Jim

Creek Swamp on the north side of Toxahatchee to see a virgin bald cypress stand. The area is home to a host of wildlife including deer, turkey, osprey and eagles, and in the springtime it bursts with colorful wildflowers including wild iris whose purple blooms blanket the woods, drainage areas and the edges of the swamp. Don't forget the camera for some unforgettable pictures!

In addition to the wide variety of flora and fauna, there are at least 30 known Indian mounds on Toxahatchee.

Bull Creek Wildlife Management Area is the next stop along the Florida Trail. It's a 22,000 acre expanse of pine/palmetto flatwoods, scattered bayheads and creek swamps in Osceola County. Remnants of the old turpentine, pitch and resin industries are still evident in Bull Creek in the form of rail and tram roads used for logging during the early 20th century. Pines in the northeast corner of Bull Creek WMA still have "catfaces"—areas on the trees where iron gutters were attached to harvest the pitch.

The trail passes through stands of cabbage palms, hardwoods and cypress, scrub oak and sand pine communities. The west leg winds through pine flatwoods and prairies dotted with cypress domes.

Before the Florida Trail leaves GFC's Central Region, it passes through beautiful Three Lakes WMA, a 45,300 acre area in Osceola County. This WMA includes the Prairie Lakes Unit, which is open from 8 a.m. until sunset, and requires a permit for camping.

SHUPE'S SCOOP

IT IS REFRESHING TO SEE HOW MANY PEOPLE REALLY ENJOY HIKEING AND VIEWING WILDLIFE IN THE GREAT OUTDOORS.

FISHING FORECAST

The weather could really be great this weekend if the predicted cold front really stalls out. The river is dropping and bass action is picking up around runoffs, where bait is concentrated. Topwater lures and spinnerbaits are good choices. Bream, catfish and specks are concentrated in the deep beds.

Sebastian Inlet is getting hotter by the day, as snook, redfish, small bluefish, flounder and Jack crevalle increase in numbers with the warming water temperatures and as bait becomes more plentiful. Most snook are running in the 10-15 pound range.

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral reports that 3-5 foot seas have kept most boats in Port, but king mackerel are on SA reef and Pelican Flats. Cobia are scattered, and dolphin are showing up from 140-300 feet of water. Sheepshead, flounder and snook are active inside the Port. Trout and redfish are rated as good on the flats of the Banana and Indian Rivers.

Drum, sheepshead, bluefish, redfish, and flounder fill the bill at Ponce Inlet. The hole at the tip of the north jetties is the hot spot, and live or dead shrimp is the most popular bait.

TUNA FISH ANYONE?

District 3, Class 6-A Champions Deltona, who beat Ocala-Forest 11-5 Friday night, at home against Lake Mary. Oviedo will take on Ocala-Forest at Oviedo High School.

and one walk in five innings of work. Sieber, who is moving to Georgia Monday, worked her last two innings of relief for Oviedo by striking out five batters and earning the save. "We knew they would be out for blood," Oviedo Head Coach Anna Hollis said. "However, good pitching and good offense wins championships."

Rama starting pitcher Sarah Smith (6-3), who beat Oviedo during the regular season, lasted only four and one-third innings. After taking a 3-2 lead in the bottom of the fifth inning, Smith gave up 10 runs, eight of them earned, off nine hits and one error.

After opening the inning with two consecutive singles that put runners on second and third, Lions batter, leftfielder Desirae Schwartz, checked her swing that stayed fair. Instead of going to first, the Rams opted to go home for the out. However, after getting the out, catcher Jill Wilcott forced a throwing error back to second base that scored the tying run.

The next batter, centerfielder Alison Parker, then doubled off Smith scoring two more runners. The flood gates opened when Smith gave up a walk and three more singles that put the Lions ahead 10-3. "Mental errors shut us down," Lake Mary Head Coach Jeannie Fisher said. "We also had no offense in the first three innings. We can't expect to win that way."

Starting rightfielder Hallie Sowards, who came on in relief with one out and the bases loaded in the bottom of the fifth inning, gave up three runs off three hits while striking out two. Everyone in the Lion's starting lineup scored at least one run and every batter with the exception of two, had at least one hit. "We knew that once we started hitting the ball, that it's hard to stop us," Hollis said. The Regional quarterfinals, set for Tuesday, April 30, has against Lake Mary. Oviedo will take on Ocala-Forest at Oviedo High School.

Monday's semifinal win over Lake Brantley, but was taken out because Lyman coach Bob McCullough felt Bogeajis wasn't quite ready to pitch again. "When you start a game, it's a different situation than when you come into the game as a reliever," McCullough said. "We needed this game to get Danny back into the flow of things. After we tied it up in the seventh inning, Danny went out and took control of the game."

Things looked very promising for Lyman in the early stages of the game. Clyde Chaney drew a walk to open the Greyhounds' first inning, took second on a sacrifice bunt by Kevin Naas, and reached third when Jason Shipley and Jason Dickey drew consecutive walks to load the bases. Freddie Young put Lyman ahead 4-0 with a 400-foot grand slam home run to dead center field.

Bogeajis gave up just three hits and recorded three strike outs over the first three innings to make the lead stand up. Shawn St. Dennis reached first base to open the Lake Mary fourth inning, and reached third when Jason Yero walked with a double one out later. Brad Klinger began a two-out rally by the Rams with a single that scored St. Dennis and made the score 4-1.

Justin Hogan, who came in as a pinch-runner for Jason Yero, scored behind Klinger to pull Lake Mary within 4-3 on a single by Drew Young. Young then scored to knot the tally 4-4 as Carey Hobbs reached first base on a single as the ball took a bad hop.

St. Dennis tripled with one out in the Lake Mary seventh inning, and scored to give the Rams a 5-4 lead on an error following a fielder's choice by Mike Buky. Buky hit a high-bouncing ground ball down the third base line that Shipley fielded cleanly and threw to catcher Jason Gronert. St. Dennis jumped in an attempt to avoid the tag, and Gronert dropped the ball in a collision.

"We can't play any better than we did against Lyman," said Lake Mary coach Allan Tuttle. "I don't see how we can face tougher pitching than Bogeajis or Lake Howell's Kevin Knorst. Vesacy did a great job for us."

Naas drew a one-out walk in the Lyman seventh inning, took second on a sacrifice bunt by Shipley, and scored on a single by Dickey to send the game into extra innings. Gronert walked to lead off the Greyhounds, took second on a sacrifice bunt by Chris Ramirez, and crossed the plate for the winning run when Gronert singled to left field.

"There was no added pressure on us, we just take a lot of pride in winning," McCullough said. "The experienced players who were on last year's team helped the younger kids stay calm."

Chaney and Dickey were each 2-for-3 at the plate to lead Lyman, while Naas, Shipley, Ramirez and Joe Sustaita each had sacrifice bunts. Freddie Young had a hit and four RBI for the Greyhounds. Gronert drew three walks, and Jonda added a hit. Jimmy Smith was 2-for-4 for Lake Mary, while Hobbs, St. Dennis, Yero, Klinger, Young and Scott DeGraff each collected a hit.

Lyman will host 6A, District 3 runner-up DeLand on Wednesday, while Lake Mary will travel to play 6A-3 champion Ocala Forest. The Wildcats defeated the Bulldogs 5-2 Friday in the 6A-3 championship game.

Fashions herald spring; ESO reviews first ladies

Helen Baker (right), who spoke to the ESO (from left) Terri Millikan and Toni Hobson, about first ladies, is joined by Frances Webster hostesses for the meeting.

A spring fantasy was captured at the Sanford Woman's Club Wednesday when the club presented the annual fashion show and luncheon to benefit its educational programs.

The newly decorated clubhouse reflected beautiful and ornate spring decorations under the direction of Jean Williams. Wispy and glittering hand fans, colorful parasols, sparkling urns of spring blossoms, flitting butterflies, and a variety of posters and other signs of spring were captured in the outstanding decor and table centerpieces. Assisting Jean were Libby Prevatt, Polly Pezold, Roberta Zittrower and Frances Webster.

The lively event started at 11 a.m. and lasted until 1 p.m. After a delicious luncheon prepared by Vivian Buck, the serious business of a spring fashion parade got under way.

Fashions were from Petite and Pretty, Slim and Sassy and Bigger and Better in downtown Sanford. Vivacious Jean Clontz was the fashion commentator and gave an interesting biography of each model. Diana McIntyre, store manager, narrated the fashion story, describing each outfit, from color to fabric.

Models showed an exciting array of spring and summer styles to please the most discriminating. Fashions ran the gamut from casual shorts

ESO learns about first ladies

The local Epsilon Sigma Omicron Chapter, a reading society of the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs, met at the Lake Mary home of Toni Hobson for the April meeting. Co-hostesses were Frances Webster and Terri Millikan who served delicious refreshments to those attending.

Helen Baker, artist and musician, spoke on the nation's first ladies. According to Libby Boyd, the speaker reviewed the following observations: Martha Washington could not read nor write; Sally Polk allowed no alcohol in the White House; Abigail Fillmore was Millard's teacher; Lucy Hayes, an advocate of the temperance movement, was called "Lemonade Lucy;" Chester A. Arthur, a widower, asked his sister, Mary McElroy, to act as first lady and had Louis Tiffany to redecorate the White House; Frances Cleveland was 25 years older than President Cleveland; Edith Roosevelt, second wife of Teddy, was stepmother to ir-repressible to Alice; and Lou

Faux jewelry show

Are diamonds a girl's best friend?

Diamonds are a girl's best friend. Of course, not all girls can afford diamonds. But you can look like you can with faux jewelry. Jeanie Redmond, co-owner of Orlando's Secret Jewelers in the Longwood Village, was the guest speaker for the April meeting of the Lake Mary Woman's Club. Jeanie brought some lovely jewelry for club members to model.

The jewelry fashion show was quite a success. Members modeled necklaces, earrings, bracelets and rings. Members saw man-made emeralds, pearls, diamonds and more. The faux stones can be set in 14K gold or in faux gold. Jeanie also buys and sells estate jewelry, so some of the pieces were real. It was hard to tell the difference. Even a trained jeweler may have difficulty telling the difference.

Jeanie said. With diamonds, the test used to be cutting class. But cubic zirconia will cut glass just like a real diamond. It is heavier than a diamond and conducts less heat.

Even if you can afford the real stuff, faux jewelry still makes sense. When you're traveling, you still want to look good, but you don't want to worry about losing an expensive piece of jewelry or an heirloom. Buying faux instead of real will also save you on insurance, Jeanie said.

The next meeting of the Lake Mary Woman's Club will be Wednesday, May 22, at 10:00 a.m., at Timacuan Country Club. Officers will be installed at this meeting.

Leader-Daughter held

When your mom is a Girl Scout Troup leader or co-leader, you have to share her with other girls at every meeting, every camping trip and every special event.

That's why the Stardust Girl Scouts in Lake Mary hold a Leader/Daughter event every year. The event is just for leaders, co-leaders and their daughters. It's a time to thank the girls for sharing their moms.

Stardust held their Leader/Daughter event Friday, April 19, at Celebration Church in Lake Mary. This year the event was a Dessert Sampler. It was the tastiest event ever. Moms and daughters got to sample different kinds of desserts which included red velvet cake, chocolate mint cake, coconut cake, lemon pound cake, ice cream cake, cheesecake, chocolate cheesecake brownies

CIA meets Monday

The quarterly meeting of the Lake Mary Community Improvement Association will be held tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. at the community building in Lake Mary on Country Club Road. The speaker for the evening will be Seminole County Sheriff Don Ealinger. Anyone interested in joining the CIA is invited to attend. Membership is $3 for the year.

For charities: LaSertoma views fashions, Sertoma bowls

The Greater Seminole LaSertoma Club sponsored its fourth Annual Luncheon-Fashion Show on April 20 in the magnificent Garden Room of the Maison et Jardin which featured a silent auction and extravagant door prizes with the fashions by Jacobson's of Winter Park.

President Cynthia Miller began the program by welcoming the members and their guests to this event and introducing the chairpersons of the various committees who worked hard to make this year's benefit a grand success.

Marilyn Armstrong, LaSertoma Governor of Mid-Florida, recognized and thanked the various sponsors responsible for the financial success of the club's major fund-raising event of the year.

Joyce Cable, international director of the LaSertoma and chaplain of the greater Seminole LaSertoma Club, provided an inspiring invocation, followed by a song performed by Christy Meyer, last year's top scholarship recipient.

The French cuisine made famous locally by Maison et Jardin was greeted appreciatively by the guests for its artistic beauty as well as its quality in preparation and service.

Beth Blocker, fashion director, introduced each model's fine fashions, where and when they might be useful, and how to accessorize each to the advantage of the outing. With over 125 items on display in the silent auction, the guests were encouraged to bid and enjoy their shopping spree while supporting the various programs sponsored by the Greater LaSertoma Club.

LaSertoma (LADIES in SERVICE to MANKIND), an international organization with clubs in the United States, Mexico and Canada, is dedicated to serving others. The club actively raises funds to support deserving high school seniors who are seeking scholarships, who are actively involved in the community and who have financial need. This year, the club's efforts have also been to encourage positive community spirit and participation in the earlier middle school years and to present an award to a deserving middle school student aspiring to achieve the goals of the club at such an early age. The club also supports Camp Endeavor, a privately supported non-profit summer program designed and organized to serve hearing impaired youth.

In addition, the club donates monies to the Marie Taylor Fund, an educational based service for students in need of shoes or clothing, the basics, just to attend school. The club also supports juvenile diabetes and spina bifida, and gives numerous hours of service to organizations such as adult care centers and The Grove.

together to accomplish so much to contribute and make such a difference in the lives of so many. The luncheon-show chairman, Nancy Chenet, eloquently thanked the members for all their hard work and dedication to this year's major fund-raiser and their "Service to Mankind."

Sertoma Bowl-A-Thon

The South Seminole Sertoma Club is probably the club that has the most fun raising money. This club benefits its international organization as well as local residents in benefiting those who are hearing impaired or have speech impairments.

The latest fund-raiser involved a Bowl-A-Thon, held at the Longwood Bowling Alley on Savage Court when the management donated free shoes and allowed play during the busiest time for only $1.00 per game. The Winn-Dixie (although they are under construction and trying to do business at the same time) donated a wonderful assortment of food and snacks for an appetizing luncheon with the help of their competitor, Publix.

Publix and Winn-Dixie also contributed by participating in the Bowl-A-Thon as competitors on the floor and in fund-raising. Although Winn-Dixie won the fund-raising event and took home the plaque, Publix won the bowling competition and escaped with that honor.

The Altamonte Springs Fire Department and Explorers and the Seminole County Sheriff's Office also competed on the bowling alleys and fund-raising. The sheriff's department won the plaque for display at its headquarters, but the jury is still debating the fund-raising trophy. Pat Clark and Bill Shafer of the local news channels competed against each other on the alley. So sorry Bill Shafer! The real contest began when Seminole County Sheriff Don Ealinger and Orange County Sheriff Kevin Beary began a little friendly wagering between themselves based on the best bowling performance. The final arrangement involved the loser washing the other sheriff's car, and there was the "Best Bowler" plaque to be awarded. Unfortunately or fortunately, the rules See Longwood, Page 6B

WEDDING

Reynolds-Richard vows exchanged

Tracy Lynne Reynolds of Deltona, and Steve Richard of Lake Mary, were married March 31, 1996, at 5:30 p.m. at the DelBary Country Club, DelBary. Judge Wallace Hall performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don T. Reynolds of Deltona. The bridegroom's parents are Steve and Gail Fitzgerald of Oak Hill.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows an informal tea-length dress and carried a bouquet of assorted spring flowers.

Mickey Reynolds attended her sister as maid of honor. She wore a pertwinkle blue dress and carried a bouquet of mixed spring flowers.

The bridegroom's father served his son as best man and ushers were William Talmadge and Tommy Talmadge, the bride's nephews.

Readings were presented by Vicky Talmadge and Christy Reynolds, the bride's sisters, and Shannon Budd, the bridegroom's sister. Kathleen Westerfield, the bridegroom's niece, kept the guest book.

Following a cruise to the Bahamas, the newlreds are making their home in Lake Mary. The bride is an English teacher at Lake Brantley High School and the bridegroom is employed as a route salesman for Wayne Densch Inc.

Brittany Scott takes a sentimental journey with her cherished collection of stuffed toys.

Cuddly toy collection has a sentimental attachment

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Stuffed toys fill the spare bedroom of Brittany Scott. She and her husband began this sentimental collection when they first began dating in 1991.

At times her rhodeoson ridgeback dog, Bud, blends right in with the scenery there although he actually is forbidden to enter the furry storage sanctuary.

Smiling treasures ranging from cats, dogs, fish, rabbits and bears occupy their cozy home. Even her house carries a bit of sentimental charm since it was her grandmother's. She and her husband worked long and hard before their marriage to restore and make improvements to the country cottage.

Scott dated her husband for five years before they married in October of last year. Much of the additions to her stuffed toy collection are prizes from various vending machines that her husband won for her over time.

The keepakes only become more special because of the hard work, money and time her husband utilized in order to present these treasures to his bride. "When we were dating he would try to win a toy for me every time we passed a machine," she said. "He'd play and he usually won."

According to Scott, "the collection just got more intense when we started dating because I already had so many of them. As a child I didn't play with Barbies. I only have a few Cabbage Patch dolls but they are fairly recent."

A true favorite of Scott's was named as a "Shamu" that a relative purchased at a local theme park. "My uncle Doug took me to SeaWorld when I was younger," she said. "He got me a 'Shamu' whale. That toy means a lot to me. The funny thing about it is that he only has one eye now."

With over 50 toys and more added almost daily Scott did cite information about the troop. A small pink rabbit measuring five inches was named as the smallest in the collection. This was a recent addition at Easter of this year, also from a vending machine.

Largest of the toys was named as a one-foot black bear with a plaid bow surrounding its wide neck. Concerning a favorite, Scott said, "I couldn't part with any of them. They are all special to me."

Scott shared that she "stays interested in them because they are so soft" and she "loves to look at them. Most of my stuffed toys are bears in all colors and rabbits."

She continued by saying, "Ben enjoys getting them for me and I enjoy getting them."

A few porcelain dolls have crept into the room. Scott mentioned that she would like to begin a collection of ceramic and porcelain dolls.

Scott and Ben have been married six months and they attend the Sanford Church of Christ. "Their only child," as Scott referred to was named as a puppy, "Bud." He is presently recovering from a car accident, but he was not the driver, just the pedestrian.

Hoover and her husband, Herbert, were Quakers. The speaker also reviewed the lives of the last 10 first ladies, with whom the members were more familiar.

The next meeting will be at the home of Amy Sokol with Hazel Cash as co-hostess. The speaker will be Dr. Charlie Parker, author of "True Grits."

Mother's daughters invited to banquet

The United Methodist Women of the First United Methodist Church will host a Mother-Daughter Banquet on Monday, May 6, in fellowship hall of the church. According to Lottie Echols, UMW president, the annual festivity will begin at 6:30 p.m. Church member mothers are invited to bring their daughters and church member daughters are invited to bring their mothers.

Pet adoption campaign asks for open hearts and homes

DEAR ABBY: Hats off to you! Because you reminded your readers about the importance of spaying or neutering their pets, thousands of cats from pet owners all over the United States were made to our SPCA/USA hotline number.

Abby, will you please inform your readers about an event that we have conceived and developed that is truly history-making? On May 4 and 5, more than 700 shelters throughout the United States, Canada, England and India will be united for "Pet Adoption '96." The participating shelters will remain open for 36 hours straight with the hope of finding a quality home for each and every dog, cat, puppy and kitten in their care.

Just think -- with the help of your readers, thousands of "little lives" all over the world could be safe and sound in adoptive homes by the end of Adoption weekend! Please ask all animal lovers to open their hearts and homes on May 4 and 5. Go to your nearest Pet Adoption '96 shelter, pick out a faithful lifetime companion, and enjoy the unconditional love that only a pet can give. For the name of the nearest Adoption shelter, call the toll-free hotline number: 1-800-863-4267.

On behalf of all our furry friends, we thank you! MIKE ARMS, NORTH SHORE ANIMAL LEAGUE, PORT WASHINGTON, N.Y. DEAR MIKE ARMS: I'm delighted to help in this noble effort. I can already hear the "meows" and "bowwows" in Southern California.

DEAR ABBY: I'm getting married in four months and was planning on having a "dollar dance" at my reception. My soon-to-be father-in-law is totally against it. He says it's tacky, and he would be embarrassed in front of his millionaire friends. I told him that I have had friends do this at their receptions, and nobody thought it was tacky. Help, Abby. I don't know what to do.

DANCE DILEMMA IN ST. PETERSBURG, FLA.

DEAR DILEMMA: Since your father-in-law-to-be has told you that he would be embarrassed, I suggest that you skip the "dollar dance." The few dollars it would bring in aren't worth risking your relationship with your future in-laws.

RE: SEC 20, TWP 18S, RGE 30E S 1 CH OF N 2 CH OF W 5 CH OF E 10 CH OF NW 1/4 (261 N. HENDERSON LANE) A recent inspection of the above described property revealed the unoccupied structure is unsafe, unsuitable for occupancy and detrimental to the health, safety and welfare of the general public. This structure is a health and fire hazard due to inadequate maintenance, dilapidation and abandonment. In accordance with Seminole County Ordinance Number 90-16, the above mentioned structure is declared to be public nuisance and must be demolished and removed from the property. The demolition and removal of this structure must begin within thirty (30) days and be completed within ninety (90) days after receipt of this notice, or you may undertake the appeal process as outlined in Section Seven (7) of County Ordinance Number 90-16. In order for you to follow the appeal process, it will be necessary for you to appear before the Board of County Commissioners and present any relevant or material facts or evidence as to why the above mentioned structure should not be declared a public nuisance. If you wish to appeal to the Board of Commissioners, please let me know and I will request the Board to set a time and date for a hearing. Failure to begin removal of this structure or failure to appeal to the Board of County Commissioners within thirty (30) days of this notice may result in action being taken by the County to have this structure demolished and removed. All costs incurred by the County for the demolition and removal of this structure will be assessed to you and may become a lien against your property. PUBLISH: April 7, 14, 21, 28, 1996 DEO-55

HOROSCOPE

Your Birthday

Sunday, April 28, 1996

Conditions that had a restraining influence on your life last year will be alleviated in the year ahead. You will be free to pursue the things you want in the way you want to pursue them.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) An enterprise in which you play a key role can be successfully promoted today if your name is displayed prominently. Do not share the spotlight with others. Taurus, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Make sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Associating with friends with whom you have strong personal bonds will yield the greatest benefits today. Each person will do what he can to give you a boost.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) In general, conditions look favorable for you today. Something you've hoped to achieve might work out exactly as you had anticipated.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Devote as much effort as possible today to situations that can enhance your financial position. You may be luckier than usual in this area at this time.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Try to listen well today if you are exposed to an inspirational message. It might contain valuable information that could improve your attitude profoundly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today, you may be unaware of a profound development that has begun to brew. When it comes to light, you'll be happy you didn't get in your own way.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your cooperative attitude will be one of your best assets today. The more you appreciate others, the more they'll appreciate you in return.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Do not be withdrawn or timid when chasing your dreams today. You can achieve success if you pursue your objectives with enthusiasm.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Try to maintain a positive attitude even when faced with uncertainty today. If you believe in yourself, you'll make the right moves.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You may have to contend with some unforeseen changes today. However, your chart shows that these could turn out better than the ones you plan yourself.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you feel restricted today, try to get out and move around. Mobility will improve your attitude without putting too many miles on your car.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You will find several strong possibilities for financial gain today, especially if you perform a service for others.

WIN AT BRIDGE

An own goal

By Phillip Alder

PHILLIP ALDER

Did you see that funny moment in the high-school basketball game last January? A player was taking his final free throw. The ball hit the rim and bounced out. One of the other team jumped up, snaring the rebound. Then he promptly leapt back into the air and slam-dunked into his own net! In soccer terminology, he scored an own goal.

A declarer can score the equivalent of an own goal at the bridge table. Watch South's performance on this deal.

If you were in six spades, how would you continue after West leads a trump?

North's four clubs was a splinter bid expressing slam interest in spades with at most one club.

As a 3-2 trump break would have given him 12 top tricks, declarer won the first trick with dummy's spade jack and played a spade to his ace. However, after East discarded the heart three, declarer exited with a club. Defending accurately, West went in with the 10 and switched to a heart, killing declarer's communications. (On another exit, South can ruff a club in the dummy, draw trumps using the diamond king as a hand entry, and run the hearts.) Now South had to draw trumps and run the hearts, discarding clubs, but he lost the 13th trick to West's diamond queen.

The best play, after two rounds of spades, is to cash the ace-king of diamonds, play off two top hearts, discarding the diamond four from hand, and ruff the diamond jack in hand with the spade 10. Then declarer draws
