RAASKOB WARNS DEMOCRATS TO BE WET OR DRY

Home Rule Plan As Way Out Of Fust Over Liquor Issue At Congressional Conventions

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(A.P.)—The elms of New Orleans today for their annual spring sojourn. As dawn brought the Feast of the Epiphany and the heralded glances of another carnival season, tonight, the twelfth after Christmas, staid business men will leave their desks, don downy bells and capes of cavaliers for the "Twelfth Night Revelers" in annual ball which opens in a period of pre-Lenten merry-making almost as old as the city itself. The event is one of a dozen such festivities to be held before Mardi Gras, Feb. 6.

RUTH STATES HE IS IN HIS FINEST PHYSICAL SHAPE

Avers He Is in Better Trim Now Than He Has Been in 5 Years

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(A.P.)—Baby Ruth, the big business man, is in mid-season condition for any debate, whether it involves his golf game, his 1932 pay-check or the major league home run crown. "Never felt better in my life," Ruth bellowed yesterday when the annual cross-examination on the subject of his health and waist-line was conducted. "Old? Say, I'm feeling younger than ever but let me tell you about that mashie shot I made over the woods put at Winged Foot. No? Well, that cost your friend, here, Artie McGovern, some dough."

McGovern, however, was more anxious to dwell on professional topics. For nearly 10 years he has helped keep the big fellow in good physical shape. He says Ruth is in better trim now, with his 23th birthday barely a month off, than he has been at any time in the past four or five years.

The Babe scaled 222 1-2 pounds after 36 holes of golf in the rain Saturday. He has kept his waist line down to a mere 43 inches or thereabouts.

He now eats only two meals a day. In his younger and more "holierous" days six was a good average.

Things are greatly altered for the Babe now in many ways. He has his golf, rain, snow or shine. He has his million picture interests, a forthcoming new series of "shirts" which he completed recently on the coast. He has money in the bank and a trust fund. He has income taxes to worry about.

He has a new contract to sign, before or after going to St. Petersburg, Fla., for an early start on spring training. Colonel Ruppert, the Yankees' owner, has said he will never get another $50,000 pay check. The Babe as he did a year ago before "compromising" on the salary question, is marshalling the figures to show why he should not be paid less in 1932 than most everybody expected.

High School Five Is Getting Ready For Its Opening Clash

Coach Leonard McLucas is almost ready to send his Seminole High basketball quintette into action in its opening game of the season here with Plant High of Tampa, Friday night.

Practice has been a daily ritual since the football season closed early in December, and at the present time the Coach has assembled one of the best teams ever to represent the High School. A strong schedule has been arranged, and some of the finest teams in this section are to be met.

While the Coach has not indicated his starting line-up it is possible that the first team will be composed of Kanner, Preston, Hester, Knight and Smith, with reserve strength in Lyles, Courier, and a host of others.

The game will start at 8:00 o'clock at the Seminole High court. It will be attended by almost the entire student body of the school, for basketball fever is said to be high there.

Basketball fans will recall that Sanford went to the state tournament last year with a fine team after an interesting district tournament here. Sanford was eliminated in first round play with Miami, which team later won the state championship.

SCHMELING LANDS IN NEW YORK TO DEFEND HIS TITLE

German Fighter Hopes Trip Will Net Him Profit Of $1,000,000

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(A.P.)—Max Schmeling arrived here yesterday from Germany on a business trip that he hopes will net him a profit of $1,000,000.

The heavyweight champion, looking as fit and ready for conflict as the day he battered down Young Stribling in Cleveland last July, is in this country for a title match with Mickey Walker in Miami, Feb. 25, and he hopes an engagement with Jack Dempsey in June.

If Dempsey returns to the heavyweight class by June, and success still clings to the Schmeling banner, Max hopes to settle his differences with Jack Sharkey in some prominent ring by September. On these plans, the champion bases his hope of the $1,000,000 bank account by the time he sails again for Germany in the fall.

Although the match has not been definitely made, Schmeling said he would sign for the Walker engagement with Madison Square Garden officials Wednesday. At a late hour yesterday the Garden still was discussing terms with Jack Kearns, manager of Walker.

Weighing 192 pounds, just three above his fighting weight, Schmeling was in fine fettle as he discussed the future.

Schmeling's new hobby is hunting, he said, and he wants to go to Africa to chase big game when this trip is over.

Schmeling said he had been boxing twice a week for months at his home in Bad Saarow, Germany, and was in perfect condition.

He is almost eager to fight Dempsey, because of the fine financial prospects, and if the former champion is not ready to go in June, Max will wait until September for him. In that event, however, Sharkey will have to wait another year for revenge of the foul that gave Schmeling the title here in 1929.

Schmeling expected little trouble beating Walker. He will start a short exhibition tour in Paterson, N. J., Jan. 7. He will leave Jan. 15 for Florida and expects to start training at Palm Beach about the 20th.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"God" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, Jan. 2.

The Golden Text was from Joel 2:27. "Ye shall know that I am in the midst of Israel, and that I am the Lord your God, and none else; and my people shall never be ashamed."

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the ending, said the Lord, which is, and which was, and which is to come, the Almighty" (Rev. 1:8).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, by Mary Baker Eddy: "The starting-point of divine Science is that God, Spirit, is All-in-all, and that there is no other might nor mind,—that God is Love, and therefore He is Living Principle. To grasp the reality and order of being in its Science, you must begin by reckoning God as the divine Principle of all that really is"

FREE-FOR-ALL CONTEST AT MIAMI AIR RACES

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 5.—A spectacular re-enactment of a Zeppelin raid on a French village at night; a fishing contest over placid Biscayne Bay between an autogiro and a Goodyear blimp; harpooning and hunting contests for amphibians, and a slow descent race between an autogiro and a parachute jumper.

These are just a few of the unique stunts that will be put on as a part of the fourth annual edition of the Miami All-American Air Races here January 7-9, inclusive. The air carnival is expected to draw the greatest concentration of aircraft ever assembled at one point.

The Zeppelin raid will be the most awesome event on the whole program. Four thousand sticks of dynamite will be exploded over an 18-minute period during the sham air attack, and five military organizations will participate in the maneuvers.

Another feature of this night show will be a pageant depicting the development of Florida, in which more than 1,100 persons will take part. The manuscript for the pageant has been prepared by the Rev. Don Henshaw from translations of documents in the archives of Madrid, Spain, and from various other sources.

Every type of aircraft will come in for its full share of stunts, racing, and demonstrations during the air meet. Military and sportswomen pilots will compete for prizes of $10,000 and for costly trophies. The Navy, the Army, the Marine Corps and the National Guard are sending large fleets of planes to the meet.

All indications point to this year's races being the largest ever staged in the four years the annual event has been held in Miami. A number of Central and South American countries are sending one or more planes to the races via the Lindbergh route, and two foreign countries, France and Ecuador, are donating valuable trophies.

Two special competitions have been arranged for amphibians. They will take off in a harpooning contest, each plane accompanied by an experienced harpooner. They will fly to either the Bay or the Gulf Stream, harpoon a fish and return to the field. Hunters will fly over the Everglades and will not return until some kind of game has been shot.

The races will bring together as official guests of the City of Miami a galaxy of government officials, including David S. Ingalls, assistant secretary of the Navy in charge of aeronautics; W. Trubee Davison, assistant secretary of war in charge of aviation; Clarence Young, assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics, air attaches from foreign embassies, and many others.

World Parley To Stimulate Trade Is Being Proposed

Er's statement issued after the conference, the policy committee indicated that with the Republicans in control of the Senate and White House, it would be difficult to attempt to change the tariff.

In that connection, the statement written by Senator Hiram Bingham of Arizona, the Democratic leader, and approved by speaker Clegg, said:

"The committee does not undertake at this time a detailed or complete definition of policy respecting tariff. The committee believes that it is more important to proceed with the present program to balance the budget, and to improve the tariff structure, than to attempt to change the tariff at this time."

The committee also believes that the "most practical and successful method" to be followed in the tariff revision is to continue the present tariff structure, and to make modifications in the tariff structure in the case of articles which are produced in the principal exporting country or countries.

Chairman Clegg introduced the measure, and called for hearings this afternoon before the House Ways and Means Committee.

The first attack on the proposal came from Representative Hiram Bingham of New York, the Republican leader and an advocate of protective tariff.

"Of course, I would say that the measure is a perfect 'Demagogue document'," he said.

"It has no bearing, not in specific direction, and it is known where the ending will be. It is even a document presented to Congress, showing the incapacity of a political party to guide the tariff policies of the country. It is a failure."

Snell said the Democrats had promised to reduce the tariff if they had the opportunity, but added that now when they have control of the Ways and Means Committee, that influence upon legislation they were not planning to do it.

Congratulations

In extending congratulations to Mr. Dumas upon his reelection last night to the office of mayor, we are inclined to believe that it is the people of Sanford, perhaps even more than Mr. Dumas, who are to be congratulated.

The office of mayor is an exacting one. Clothed with scarcely any more authority than a commissioner, it is nevertheless the mayor to whom the public looks for every consideration. If a neighboring city's interests with proper radio reception, it is the mayor's telephone that rings.

At the same time the real responsibilities of the office are no less great. Particularly in times of deflation do the problems and complexities of a municipality's chief executive weigh heavily.

That Mayor Dumas during this trying period of the past twelve months has conducted his office with such honesty, efficiency and diplomacy as to maintain the loyal support of the fellow commissioners and the utmost confidence of the citizens of Sanford and to merit to the full extent his re-election, bespeaks a worthy citizen of the city.

At the same time we cannot allow this opportunity to pass without saying a word regarding the Commission as a whole. We do not believe there is a city in Florida which is better represented by its local governing body than Sanford. There is not any professional politician or habitual office holder on the Commission.

At the same time we cannot allow this opportunity to pass without saying a word regarding the Commission as a whole. We do not believe there is a city in Florida which is better represented by its local governing body than Sanford.

Sanford is proud of its City Commissioners and renews its pledge of unqualified support.

RASKOB WARNS DEMOCRATS TO BE WET OR DRY

and adopt a brief platform touching all vital issues without the usual verbiage.

He told newspapermen "there is no question prohibition is going to be an issue in the national convention." However, he expressed the hope no attempt would be made at Saturday's committee meeting to modify a resolution simply referring the whole question to the convention.

He also insisted that the South "is willing for a referendum." And that he thinks the South is not "different from the rest of the country."

In his letter to the committee members, Raskob said his recent poll of contributors to the 1928 campaign fund showed 93 percent of those replying to his questionnaire favored returning prohibition to the decision of the people; 80 percent endorsed a popular vote on his home rule plan and 79 percent wanted a referendum on repeal. Of 77,500 questionnaires submitted, an attached statement said, 25,878 replies were received.

Discussing the prohibition question, the letter said:

"I believe that in the ranks of our party there are men and women as sincerely and honestly convinced that national prohibition is good, just as there are those who believe with equal sincerity that prohibition is undermining the morals of our country and will overthrow the government unless changed in some manner."

"I believe there will be either a definite split between the Democratic party of the North and the Democratic party of the South or there will be formed a liberal party in America unless those of us who love the traditions of the Democratic party find some common ground under the teachings of Jefferson upon which both the wet and dry elements in our party can unite without resorting to expediences and sacrificing the high principles of either school of thought.

"I believe that this common ground must be found before the convention meets in order that Democrats everywhere may have opportunity to study it carefully and understand it, thus enabling delegates to the convention to act with a great sense of security in the adoption of a platform plank that will take prohibition out of the hands of propagandists and politicians and place it with the people for decision.

"Many say prohibition will not be an issue in the 1932 campaign; that people want bread, not beer. Granting this, there still remains not the slightest doubt that prohibition will be an issue with which the Democratic national convention must deal."

Raskob went on to outline the varying views of those within the party who are seeking a change—a "strong element" calling for repeal and another group asking legalization of light wines and beer, and numerous other points of view.

"I am opposed to all these," he said, "because... I am opposed to any plan that in the slightest degree commits our party to the wet or dry side of this question."

"I believe this is a constitutional question dealing with what has been defined by some as the greatest social experiment ever tried on a large nation of free, intelligent people. Our people have had 12 years of real, practical day-by-day experience living under social conditions imposed by prohibition. As a result, a great minority, if not an actual majority, of these people are demanding a change. It is my belief that most of these are Democrats whose opinions must receive consideration at their party's convention.

If this be true, it would be the height of folly for us to try to avoid, instead of courageously meeting and solving this problem."

Turning to his "home rule" plan, the presentation of which aroused a storm of dissension at a meeting of the committee last March, Raskob said he was "still firmly of the belief" that the national convention should give it "most earnest and thoughtful consideration" in preparing the 1932 platform. He described it as in reality a referendum and said its endorsement would not commit the party to either side of the prohibition dispute.

"I would take the form, he said, of a constitutional amendment substantially as follows:

"Nothing in the constitution of the United States shall prevent any state from taking over complete control of the manufacture, transportation, importation and sale of intoxicating beverages within its own territory and other states, territories or as do not prohibit same, provided, however, that the plan under which the state proposes to take over such liquor control is first approved by the people of that state in a state-wide referendum.

"The amendment might also provide that a state at any time may rescind its previous action, thus again submitting itself to the provisions of the Eighteenth Amendment.

"May I again point out," he said, "that this proposal cannot become part of the constitution unless and until ratified by a majority of the people in 36 states and also that should this amendment be adopted the Eighteenth Amendment will remain in full force and effect with respect to all the states until such states as so desire work out liquor control plans of their own which must be approved by their people in a state-wide referendum before they become effective.

"This plan leaves all other states in the position of still having national prohibition and all the power of the federal government for its enforcement. It almost certainly guards against the return of the old-fashioned saloon, because a majority of the people in no state would vote in favor of a local state liquor control plan which permitted a return of the deplorable conditions which existed under the old saloon system."

He went on to emphasize a belief that his proposed plank would have the following results:

It would bring party recognition of prohibition as "a constitutional and social question," take prohibition out of politics, would not commit the party to the home rule plan but to a decision by the people and permit all members of the party to work for or against the home rule plan as they think best.

In addition to its prohibition phases, Raskob said his poll of party contributors had shown that 93 of each 100 who replied "favor a short concise platform declaring the party's determination to restore our liberties and the spirit of the constitution through recognizing state's rights, home rule, the need of decentralization at Washington and the cutting of riotous national expenditures with consequent relief from burdensome taxation."

Twenty-two percent of those replying he said, were of the opinion that economic issues will be so urgent in next summer's campaign that the party "can successfully ignore the prohibition question with its economic problems by refraining from any platform of prohibition enforcement."

At closing he repeated a paragraph from his speech at last March's meeting of the national committee:

"To me it seems impossible to call ourselves Democrats and lovers of liberty and be unwilling to extend to the people of these United States the opportunity to vote on this proposed new amendment and to abide by the decision if a majority of the people in 36 of our 48 states should vote in favor of it. We cannot honestly and conscientiously call ourselves a Democratic party or a liberal party in one breath and deny the people this right in the next."
