The incidents included:

Sanford's 'most wanted' man makes fugitive list

By Wayne Mize
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Sixteen days after Merle Coffield became Sanford's "most wanted subject" for questioning about the brutal murder of a city businessman, the transient has been added to Operation Fugitive Find's ten most wanted list.

Coffield is sought by Sanford police on a warrant charging first-degree murder in the April 29, stabbing and robbery of Litch Yu, at his Mr. C's Southern Fried Chicken restaurant.

Operation Fugitive Find is coordinated by the Orange County Sheriff's office, and with the help of other central Florida law enforcement agencies, it compiles a most wanted list for the area.

Operation Fugitive Find then distributes posters throughout the central Florida area with a picture of the subject, a physical description and details of the crime. The posters also provide telephone numbers that may be called anonymously by anyone who wants to provide information about the case.

Sanford Police Chief Steven Harriett has also contacted officials with the "America's Most Wanted" television program on the Fox network. According to Harriett, program officials expressed an interest in the Yu murder and were sent all corresponding information.

While Harriett has not yet heard from the network about airing the Yu murder case, he believes the effort was necessary.

"He (Coffield) is No. 1 on our list and if we can place his face around central Florida and throughout the nation, it will be just another step toward his capture," said Harriett.

In addition, a $5,000 reward has been offered by several organizations, including the Chinese-American Association of Central Florida, for information leading to Coffield's arrest and conviction. People with information are asked to telephone the Sanford Police Department at 323-3030.

Coffield, 38, is described as being 5 feet 6 inches tall, 140 pounds, with a black mole on his left cheek and front teeth in poor condition. Coffield has worn a beard but may now be clean shaven.

"He is to be considered armed and extremely dangerous," said Harriett.

Sanford leads state in rain

By Fred H. Cooper
Herald Staff Writer

Nationally, all eyes are on the drought and the ever-increasing crisis the lack of rain is causing. Seminole County has been spared but that doesn't mean we can't keep up with the situation. Actually, some parts have a special interest. In fact, two events of recent days should bring back memories.

There was a report out of Nebraska or Iowa, or one of those weird midwestern states that the folks were grouping together and doing a rain dance. Remember the effectiveness of Seminolians last fall? Anyway, their success was somewhat less than awesome so President Reagan has stepped in an appointed a task force to study the situation. It was not revealed whether the study was to include rainedancing or not. Segments within 13 days have been cited for special aid, to wit, the opening of government reserve lands, and can now be used for hayting. Are you following this?

Further, four states have had the added plague of wildfires and one of these is Washington. Now are you catching on? Last October, folks preparing for the dance competition in the Golden Gate Games followed the suggestion in the section and held two rain dances for the benefit of the parched people in Washington State. Now, as happens, the vibrations missed their mark the first time and poured 48 inches of rain up in Alaska. But the second was successful, broke the drought, and dropped enough water to refill the streams and allow the salmon to continue to their nesting grounds thus saving lucious lox for us this summer.

Obviously the government learned of this Seminole weather lore, and has named the task force. So, just in case, better start practicing. Our local dancers may be needed to save the nation.

Here, though, there's no problem. In fact, Sanford had the largest deluge of the day yesterday: 0.02 inches. That's 2/100th's of an inch, the most of any area in the state. The closest was elsewhere with 0.01, then a trace somewhere else (since they're not in our county, let's not name them). Agonizing temperatures elsewhere we'll name, however, it was 94 degrees out at Crestview and the thermometer dropped to 59 degrees at Tallahassee, caused primarily by the departure of the political party.

Nationally, the highest high was at Bullhead City, Arizona with a reading of 114 degrees. Lowest low was at Marquette, Michigan with 32 degrees.

A Canadian cold front and Atlantic seaboard rain took the steam out of an eastern U.S. heat wave blamed in at least 21 deaths, but a relentless drought dogged Midwestern farmers — witting crops, pushing up commodity prices, and driving one desperate florist to hire an Indian rain dancer.

The hot, dry spell has scorched crops in the northern Plains, parts of the Corn Belt, Texas, California and the South. Corn leaves are twisting and curling, a sign of stress. In Kentucky, North Dakota had record heat in the last week and soil moisture is the lowest since record-keeping began 30 years ago.

(Reports by United Press International and data provided by the National Weather Service were used in compiling this report.)

Pentagon probers serve 200 subpoenas in 'widespread' scandal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A central figure in the still-emerging Pentagon bribery scandal funneled classified or secret defense data to the McDonnell Douglas Corp. to help the company sell its F-18 and advanced tactical fighter planes, a federal search warrant alleges.

The accusations against Melvyn Paisley, a former Navy procurement chief now back in the private sector as a consultant, help to illustrate the alleged conspiracy that already is bringing new ouster for reform.

The allegations were contained in the first publicly released affidavit in the sweeping Justice Department investigation of defense procurement fraud.

"It's big. It's widespread. It's almost a way of life," one law enforcement source said Thursday of the scandal involving bribes-for-insider contract information that has riveted attention in the nation's capital.

Officials speaking on the condition of anonymity said the Justice Department, acting after telephone wiretaps of industry consultants, served more than 250 subpoenas and 38 search warrants on defense contractors and individuals this week in the nationwide investigation.

The probe has implicated as many as 15 military contractors, five Defense Department officials and more than a half-dozen private consultants alleged to have served as middlemen. Sources said it also has led investigators to probe the activities of congressional offices that they refused to identify.

Companies under investigation include McDonnell Douglas, the Northrop Corp., United Technologies Corp., the Loral Corp., Litton Industries and Teledyne.

NBC News reported Thursday that it had access to records indicating nearly 4,800 conversations were monitored in 290 days of court-authorized wiretaps and 671 of the calls were deemed incriminating.

Attorney General Edwin Meese told reporters at the Justice Department he was hopeful all indictments in the case "will be completed within the next 30 to 90 days."

NBC reported that the investigation was ordered not by Meese but by Assistant Attorney General William Weld, whose resignation March 29 as director of the department's criminal division was reportedly prompted by dissatisfaction with the ethical and legal cloud surrounding his boss.

The warrant alleging some of Paisley's activities was issued in federal court in St. Louis, clearing the way for a search of the offices of McDonnell Vice President Thomas Gunn, to whom it said Paisley reported. FBI agents searched simultaneously through Paisley's offices in Washington and McLean, Va.

According to the warrant, after leaving the government a year ago, Paisley fed Gunn classified or secret Pentagon data affecting the sale of its FA-18 fighter bomber to foreign governments and on the competing F-16 manufactured by General Dynamics Corp.

The warrant sought all documents relating to Paisley's "efforts to steer" the Navy's $35 billion advanced tactical fighter to McDonnell Douglas.

McDonnell Douglas, in partnership with General Dynamics, won the long-term contract to build 500 of the ATA light bombers in December after a competing joint venture proposal from the Grumman Corp.

Superman has 50th birthday

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Superman is 50 years old and this weekend in the city where two high school students created the super hero, thousands of people are expected to attend an exhibition featuring comic books, films and even a former Superman.

It's all part of an effort by the non-profit group Neverending Battle Inc. to build a museum in Cleveland, where the Man of Steel was created by writer Jerry Siegel and illustrator Joe Shuster in 1934. Siegel and Shuster sold the rights to Action Comics in 1938 for $130.

"This is probably the world's largest collection of Superman paraphernalia," said John Field, 31, San Diego, whose collection deals only with the television series that ran from 1952 to 1958.

The International Superman Exposition opened Thursday at the Cleveland Convention Center and will run through Sunday.

Fiscal reformer turns backwards

Pentagon mismanagement and voracious military contractors are not the only reasons for the appalling level of waste in defense procurement. Lawmakers' ceaseless penchant for pork-barrel spending also deserves much of the blame.

A classic illustration of how Congress contributes to Defense Department profligacy was detailed by The Wall Street Journal. The case against Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., the chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, is infuriating not because it is extraordinary, but rather because such egregious examples are so commonplace on Capitol Hill.

During his early years as a Pentagon official and now as head of the armed services panel, Rep. Aspin has championed the fight against military waste and inefficiency. Much of his reputation rests on his past battles with the services over unnecessary or technically flawed weapons programs.

Yet, in order to funnel defense dollars to his home state, Mr. Aspin has authored legislation requiring the Army to purchase nearly 4,000 unneeded trucks — at a cost to taxpayers of over half a billion dollars. The vehicles, which the Army does not even want, are manufactured in Wisconsin. One of the reasons the Army rejects the trucks is that they have a history of breaking down on the battlefield during training exercises.

Executives of the truck maker, the Oshkosh Truck Corp., contributed $1.750 to Mr. Aspin's campaign coffers last year. Not surprisingly, the firm's president wrote to the Armed Services Committee chairman, urging him to require the Army to forgo competitive bidding in awarding the truck contract.

Rep. Aspin's wasteful expropriation of the Pentagon's scarce resources comes at a moment when a shrinking defense budget is forcing the Navy to cancel its planned 600-ship fleet, the Army to slash troop levels, and the Air Force to eliminate three air wings. Is there any reason to hope for an end to Defense Department waste as long as the problem is in the hands of reformers such as Rep. Aspin?

Protect creativity

After thinking it over for 102 years, the United States is about to join the Bern copyright convention, formally the Convention for the Protection of Literary and Artistic Works.

The House unanimously passed enabling legislation to make U.S. law conform with the international document and the Senate is likely to follow suit, thus setting the strategy for U.S. adherence to a treaty adopted in 1886 and since ratified by 76 countries. It's an appropriate move, given the growing importance of commerce in intellectual property, a trade in which Americans enjoyed a $1.5 billion surplus last year.

Signatories to the Bern treaty pledge to give the same copyright protection to artists, writers, composers, filmmakers and computer software producers, among others, from other countries as they do their own. The United States already has bilateral agreements with many countries. But 24 countries, mostly in the Third World, have neither adhered to the Bern treaty nor concluded bilateral accords, and experience has shown that they are more likely to respond to bilateral pressure from signatory governments. U.S. adherence would increase that pressure.

Intellectual property is high on the Reagan administration's agenda in ongoing global trade negotiations in Geneva. U.S. arguments that the international community needs more stringent copyright standards and tougher enforcement mechanisms will carry more weight in that forum once this country adopts international norms aimed at securing those objectives.

Reagan says Bush is free to differ anytime

By Helen Thomas
UPI White House Reporter
WASHINGTON (UPI) — No matter how far Vice President George Bush distances himself from President Reagan's policies as the presidential campaign heats up, it's fine with the White House.

The president is prepared to turn the other cheek. And politically speaking, if Bush needs to split with Reagan's views — well, so be it.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater has made it clear that Bush can do no wrong in his presidential quest. In his attempt to prove that he is his own man, Bush apparently has been advised to take new bold stands even if they differ from positions he has endorsed, even applauded over the past seven years as vice president.

He would undoubtedly like some coattail help from Reagan and the president is willing to give him that. Bush, always the loyal team player, has paid his dues and the president is ready to give him a long leash to make his break if necessary.

In terms of wooing constituents, sometimes at the price of differing with the administration, Bush has announced his support of payment of $1 billion in reparations to Japanese-Americans who were interned during World War II; he has endorsed a moratorium on off-shore oil drilling leases to woo environmentalists, and he has announced he favors "some kind of severance pay" requirements for workers displaced by plant closings.

In addition, he took a stand against bargaining with Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega to drop the federal narcotics charges against the Panamanian strongman if he would agree to leave the country.

The vice president also has indicated he would be more supportive of civil rights programs than Reagan, who recently became the first president in 122 years to veto a civil rights bill.

Reminded that Bush was casing away, Fitzwater said: "That's fine. The vice president's free to break with us at any time."

When told that either Reagan or Bush has to be right on a particular issue, Fitzwater said:

"We'll defend our own policies if necessary, but the vice president is free to campaign and to stake out positions as best he can about the future and what he would be doing as president of the United States, and we are not going to get into an argument with the vice president, period."

Bush and Reagan did not see eye to eye in the 1980 campaign when they both sought the presidential nomination in the primaries. Bush still denounces Reagan's policies "voodoo economics," a label that stuck and has haunted him in the ensuing years as he has moved closer to the president.

The vice president is getting a lot of advice on how to approach his campaign and establish his own identity and persona.

Since he has had to submerge his views, especially if they were different from the president, through the years, Bush is having to take strong positions. "Me too," won't do anymore.

Still he is not expected to stray too far from the fold. Most of his key aides in the campaign are veterans of Reagan's two successful bids for the presidency and they bring with them the experience of pros.

Chesterton revisits our minds

George Bernard Shaw, who engaged him in a series of intellectually coruscating debates, called him a "colossal genius." G.K. Chesterton partially returning the compliment, said that intellectually Bernard Shaw resembled the (armless and legless) Venus di Milo. "Everything that is there is good."

I want here to welcome a new collection of Chesterton's writings titled "As I Was Saying" (Eerdmans). Chesterton wrote nothing that I myself would willingly dispense with, but he wrote too much. He has been called the "Shakespeare of the epigram." But then Shakespeare not only wrote "Hamlet" but also "Two Gentlemen of Verona." This one volume collection of Chesterton is just what the reader needs today.

All 314 pages are quotable, pertinent, brilliant, but let me select the following:

"Every one of the popular modern phrases and ideals is a dodge in order to shirk the problem of what is good. We are fond of talking about 'liberty' that, as we talk of it, is a dodge to avoid discussing what is good. We are fond of talking about 'progress'; that is a dodge to avoid talking about what is good. We are fond of talking about 'education'; that is a dodge to avoid discussing what is good. The modern man says, 'Let us leave all arbitrary standards and embrace liberty.' That is, logically rendered, 'Let us not decide what is good, but let it be good not to decide it.' He says, 'Away with your old moral formulae; I am for progress.' This, logically stated, means, 'Let us not settle what is good, but let us settle whether we are getting more of it.' He says, 'neither in religion nor morality, my friend, lies the hope of the race, but in education.' This clearly expressed, means, 'We cannot decide what is good, but let us give it to our children.'"

Well, that is Allen Bloom's best-selling "The Closing of the American Mind" stated in a short paragraph.

It is also the epitaph for the American college and university as the century draws to a close.

But it is good to have Chesterton widely available in this new anthology. He died in 1936, one of the master intellects of the twentieth century, but he speaks to us now with a growing intensity.

Bush finance chairman under scrutiny

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta
WASHINGTON — A finance chairman for the George Bush presidential campaign is under scrutiny in a broad congressional investigation into possible ethics violations in the South Pacific.

Fred Zeder is the former ambassador to Micronesia and now a regional finance chairman for Bush in Micronesia and Hawaii. The Hawaii millionaire is a close friend of Bush's and has been widely rumored to be a candidate for a cabinet post in a Bush administration.

While he was ambassador, Zeder was apparently treated to a British Airlines flight, paid for by a London power company that was courting business in the tiny Pacific nations that make up Micronesia.

State Department officials can accept free transportation in some cases if it qualifies as official business. But the flights in question apparently took Zeder and his wife to the 1984 British Open golf tournament in Scotland.

Zeder did not report the round-trip tickets from London to Edin-

Raising minimum pay

EL MONTE, Calif. (NEA) — Although the minimum wage mandated by federal law has remained at $3.35 per hour since early 1981, workers at the bottom of the pay scale here soon will be assured of earning at least $4.25 per hour.

California is not the only state to lose patience with a federal standard that has gone unrevised for seven and a half years, eroding the earning power of those who can least afford it.

Connecticut's minimum wage, already pegged at $3.75 per hour, will increase to $4.25 per hour this autumn. Eight other states also require that the working poor be paid at a rate higher than the outdated federal law mandates.

It wasn't supposed to happen this way. When the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 was enacted, the New Deal initiative was intended to impose a nationwide minimum wage standard that protected the most poorly paid members of the country's workforce.

Although the guaranteed wage initially was fixed at only 25 cents per hour, the statute subsequently was amended 15 times to reflect changing economic conditions. Never before has it gone unrevised for such a long period of time.

Indeed, the cost of living has increased almost 30 percent since the law was last updated. Today, a young man working full-time year-round at the minimum wage and attempting to support a nonworking wife and a child would earn just under $7,000 annually — even though the federal government's poverty threshold for a family of three is slightly higher than $9,000 annually.

According to the Bureau of Labor

Statistics, 5.1 million wage earners receive the federal minimum — or less. (The federal law covers 90 percent of the country's work force; waitresses and employees of low-volume retail and service businesses are in the excluded 10 percent.)

Another 1.7 million workers who are paid a salary rather than an hourly wage receive the equivalent of less than the minimum wage, while an additional 11.5 million employees earn between $3.35 and $4.50 per hour.

Arguing that many of those low-paid people are high school or college students holding part-time jobs or are untrained workers new to the labor force, some business executives have long pressed for a sub-minimum "youth" or "training" wage.

But the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, a highly regarded Washington, D.C. research organization, cites government statistics to discredit that approach. While fewer than one-third of those receiving the equivalent of the minimum wage or less are teenagers, almost half are 25 or older. (The remaining one-fifth are 20 to 24 years old.)

Conservatives and others opposed to raising the federal standard argue that such an action would impair productivity, cut the gross national product, increase the federal deficit, reduce job opportunities and produce assorted other dire results — but none of those claims can be substantiated.

In Congress, a House committee has approved legislation calling for four annual increases culminating in a $5.05 per hour minimum wage in 1992.

SCIENCE WORLD

At the zoo birds, bees all in love

By Deitha Richs
UPI Science Writer

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — She gave him a sideward glance like the ones sailors recall in their reveries on lonely nights at sea.

The season, so it seemed, was favoring love and courtship, forcing an ancient ritual scripted in their genes — hearts pounding, blood flowing faster. The urges were far beyond their control.

And even though this couple was a pair of canvasback ducks, they were in love and relished every minute of it.

"Once he takes on that color, she's attracted to him," said Dr. Warren Thomas, director of the Los Angeles Zoo.

But he has to do more than that, Thomas said of the colorful display of plumage taken on in breeding season by the male canvasback. "He has to get himself into showbiz — head bobbing and struts. It's one thing to get her attention. It's another to pair bond."

Thomas, a veterinarian, monitors courtship and breeding practices of all of the zoo's animals.

Many, from birds to primates, are in danger of becoming extinct in the wild, making courtship and subsequent mating all the more important in zoos, even if the attraction between animals sometimes requires a nudge or two from humans.

"We really have no problem with the chimpanzees," Thomas explained, "but the gorillas are much more difficult. You have to be careful about how you work them together."

"In the old days, when we brought them out of the wild, they identified with people and not other gorillas. So we've learned to break that to help them breed in captivity," he said.

Some of the animals bred in zoos are returned to the wild in attempts to increase populations dwindling because of human encroachment on natural habitats, especially in developing countries. Others are bred and returned to the wild to ensure thriving populations that may have once been decimated by poaching.

"The little monkey called the Golden lion tamarin from South America, cute little thing, weighs less than a pound soaking wet, was teetering on the brink of extinction 15 years ago."

"We have reversed that," Thomas explained of his efforts and those of other American zoo officials.

burgh as a gift on the financial disclosure forms he filed with the State Department. But a record of the flight is included in the bankruptcy proceedings of International Power Systems Co. (IPSECO), Zeder's apparent host.

IPSECO built two expensive power plants in Micronesia before going bankrupt in 1986. Congressional investigators have since determined that IPSECO may have greased its way into one of the projects by handing out questionable payments of more than $1 million to local officials.

Zeder told our associate, Jim Lynch, that he never allowed IPSECO to fly him or his wife anywhere.

A House subcommittee has asked the General Accounting Office to examine the flight and some business deals struck by other former U.S. officials in Micronesia. The GAO will look into possible violations of government ethics regulations.

Those regulations say State Department officials can't accept gifts or favors from anyone who expects something in return.

The Zeder's flight, as recorded in IPSECO's records, occurred during a time when IPSECO was expanding its operations to the United States by adding an office in Hawaii. One year before the flight, Zeder authored a cable which some congressmen believe helped IPSECO seal the controversial deal to build the massive power plant for the island nation of Palau, a U.S. Pacific Trust Territory. The telegram, sent to the U.S. Embassy in London on May 23, 1983, concluded, "The government of Palau should be able to meet its scheduled debt service obligation in light of present and future funds granted to the government of Palau by the United States government."

London banks backing the power plant have since made it clear that they interpreted the telegram as assurance from the United States that Palau could pay back the $32 million cost of the plant.

Zeder and State Department officials claim the telegram was misconstrued and that it did not promise U.S. backing of the loan.

Palau is now buried deep under that debt and has yet to make a payment on the power plant, which engineers estimate could have been built at almost half the amount IPSECO charged.

Zeder told us he never supported the IPSECO plant and denied that he ever took a "nickel" from the now-bankrupt London firm.

He recalls going to the British Open in 1984. The tournament started that year on July 19, the same day as the IPSECO files record the tickets for Zeder and his wife. After we talked to Zeder, a State Department official called us to buttress Zeder's account. He said that although Zeder didn't recall the flight, he definitely would have reimbursed the company if it had occurred.

David Pullen, an accountant for the British liquidation firm handling IPSECO's bankruptcy, did not know whether Zeder ever paid IPSECO for the $300-plus trip.

Zeder was recruited by the Reagan administration in 1982 as the president's personal representative for Micronesian Status Negotiations. The position gave Zeder ambassadorial status until he resigned last year to work for Bush.

Supreme Court rejects appeals from three death row inmates

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The Supreme Court Thursday rejected appeals from condemned death row inmates Carl Jackson, Jimmy Lee Smith and Harold Lee Harvey.

Each of the three men had been convicted of two murders in non-related cases and sentenced to die.

Harvey was given two death sentences for the 1985 murders of Indian River County residents William and Ruby Boyd. Court records show that Harvey and co-defendant Scott Sittler broke into the Boyd's home, robbed and then shot them.

Harvey claimed that numerous procedural errors had been made in his trial and in his sentencing. He said the two death penalties should be revoked and that he should be given a new trial.

The justices rejected all of Harvey's claims and upheld both sentences.

Jackson and Smith both claimed their death penalties should be reduced under a 1987 ruling that a judge cannot restrict a defense lawyer in arguing only mitigating circumstances spelled out in state statutes.

Residents want Singleton out

TAMPA (UPI) — A brother of Lawrence Singleton says although the 60-year-old rapist-mutilator gave a Tampa address when he registered with the Florida Department of Law Enforcement earlier this week, he actually is living at an undisclosed location 2 1/2 hours away.

Residents in the quiet residential area of Forest Hills, just northwest of the Tampa city limits where Singleton's brother lives, are seeking to drive Singleton from the area and attended in a neighborhood meeting Wednesday night with that purpose in mind.

Phil Scaleria, an architect who lives in the area, said he and about 10 other neighbors had an informal meeting with Walter Singleton Tuesday night and were told his brother is living elsewhere.

"We talked to Walter Singleton, and he was rather belligerent about it, but he said he isn't staying there, he said he's using his address," Scaleria said. "He said, 'I can't help it that he used my address. It's my father's fault that he's my brother.'"

Scaleria said the brother invited the neighbors in to look about, but said they declined.

Martinez endorses moratorium

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Supporters of a moratorium on oil and gas drilling off southwest Florida's coast say they won a key committee test largely because of a last-minute letter from Gov. Bob Martinez.

The House Appropriations Committee on Thursday approved the ban 27-19, raising environmentalists' hopes drilling scheduled to begin as early as this fall will be stopped.

"Coming out of the committee with this kind of margin looks very good," said Greenpeace spokeswoman Lynn Davidson. "These areas need to be out of the five-year (oil leasing) plan, they never should have been in there in the first place, and I think that's what the Congress is saying."

The moratorium would affect some 14 million acres south of latitude 26 degrees, that is, south of Naples, Fla.

The vote came only hours after Martinez announced he and the Interior Department had agreed to postpone oil leasing — but not drilling — for at least six months.

Supporters of the moratorium had feared Martinez' announcement would give opponents the ammunition they needed to shoot down the ban. But they gave Martinez credit for saving the day when he telefaxed letters of support to the three Florida congressmen on the committee.

Communist Party officials fired; didn't keep step with reforms

MOSCOW (UPI) — Three Communist Party officials who apparently failed to keep step with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's reform program were abruptly fired from their posts in the republics of Estonia and Russia.

Karl Vajno, dismissed Thursday as party head in the restive Baltic republic of Estonia, was the third leader of a Soviet republic fired in the past month.

Four weeks ago, the party heads in the southern republics of Armenia and Azerbaijan — Karen Demirchyan and Kyanram Bagirov — were fired in the wake of violent ethnic clashes over the disputed mountain enclave of Nagorno Karabakh.

Also fired Thursday were two regional Communist Party first secretaries in Russia, the country's largest republic. The two were identified by the official Tass news agency as Yuri Khristoradnov and Yuri Petrov.

Diplomats said the three dismissals appeared to be a clearing out of leaders viewed as being out of line with Gorbachev's ambitious reform program of "perestroika," or restructuring.

The firings came less than two weeks before the beginning of a special party conference called by Gorbachev to consider changes in the Soviet political structure.

Death squad slayings on rise

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — A church human rights group says 124 civilians were slain by the Salvadoran army, leftist rebels and right-wing death squads in the first five months of this year, compared with 156 political killings for all of 1987.

Tutela Legal, the human rights office of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of San Salvador, released the preliminary figures Thursday amid warnings that attacks by right-wing death squads have risen dramatically since a rightist political party won legislative elections in March.

Tutela Legal said 124 civilians were killed in the first five months of this year, compared with 156 people killed during all of 1987.

It said the army killed 41 civilians from January through May, while rebels of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, known by its Spanish acronym FMLN, killed 23 people during the same period.

Government military forces killed 72 non-combatants in 1987. It did not say how many the rebels killed last year, the group said.

It said suspected right-wing death squads killed 28 people in the first five months of 1988, compared with 24 killings attributed to death squads for all of 1987.

Tutela Legal said another 32 civilians were killed by land mines and other planted explosives. The group said it believed guerrillas set most of the explosives.

Mecham jury returns not guilty verdict

PHOENIX (UPI) — Jurors who acquitted impeached Gov. Evan Mecham of illegally hiding a $350,000 campaign loan say they believed his explanation that he and his campaign treasurer-brother were guilty only of making an innocent mistake.

"The key word was 'knowing' or 'knowingly,'" a juror who asked not to be named said in an interview after the panel of six men and two women returned verdicts Thursday in favor of Mecham and his brother, Willard.

The acquittal ended 18 months of turmoil in which Mecham, a conservative Republican who won the governorship in 1986 on his fifth try, simultaneously faced recall, impeachment and criminal trial.

Mecham, 64, his face flushed and appearing near tears, turned and kissed his wife after the court clerk read the verdicts of innocent on all six counts of fraud, perjury and willful concealment for which he could have been sent to prison for nearly 22 years.

Mecham was removed from office April 4 when the state Senate convicted him of two unrelated offenses in an impeachment trial.

"I have said since October '87 that there was no law broken," said Mecham, a wealthy car dealer who campaigned on a platform of honesty and integrity in government.

"They thought the same as I did," he said of the jurors, who deliberated 6 1/2 hours over two days.

Prosecutors claimed the Mechams concealed the $350,000 loan, made to the 1986 campaign by Tempe, Ariz., developer Barry Wolfson, by lumping it with other money on state-required financial disclosure forms.

Prosecutors said the brothers knowingly tried to hide the loan so Mecham would not have any obvious connections to Wolfson to protect the candidate's image of not being beholden to special interests.

Defense attorneys said the charges were part of a political vendetta against Mecham by Attorney General Bob Corbin.

Asked whether he expects Mecham to seek political office again, Corbin said, "I wouldn't be surprised at anything this man does."

Neither Mecham testified during the trial. The defense maintained that Willard Mecham simply made an honest mistake in filling out complicated campaign financing forms that required each contribution be itemized.

Juror Anthony Christie said he agreed with the defense and there was "no quibbling" among the jurors. They took only one vote on each of the six counts against Evan Mecham and the three against Willard Mecham, 67, who faced 9 1/2 years in prison, he said.

Another juror said, "We didn't base anything on sympathy."

Corbin called the verdict "an indication that the public doesn't take public disclosure laws seriously."

Evan Mecham has said Corbin was "out to hang him" and wanted to be governor himself. Corbin denied any conspiracy to get Mecham out of office.

Mecham's supporters are conducting a recall drive against Corbin, claiming he singled out the governor for prosecution when several other state officials were permitted to file amended campaign financial forms without penalty.

Thursday's verdict frees Mecham, a member of Arizona's delegation to the Republican presidential convention in August, to seek public office, which he could not have done as a convicted felon. The Arizona Senate, in convicting Mecham of obstructing justice and misuse of public funds, refused to exercise its option of barring him from ever running again.

Poisoner sentenced today

SEATTLE (UPI) — A federal judge says "it would border on the absurd" to order a new trial for a woman convicted of killing her husband and an innocent woman with poisons already in her system, saying she already has received a rigorous defense before an impartial jury.

Nickell, the first person convicted in a product tampering trial involving deaths, was ordered to return to court today for sentencing.

Federal prosecutors said the defendant "forfeited her right to walk among society for the remainder of her life," and have recommended that Nickell be sentenced to 230 years in prison for crimes as of "horrible magnitude" that amounted to an "unforgivable act against humanity."

Federal Public Defender Thomas Hillier asked U.S. District Judge William Dwyer on Thursday to grant Nickell a second trial based on possible jury tampering and misconduct by juror Laurel Holliday, who recently won an out-of-court settlement of her own product contamination lawsuit.

Dwyer said the events involving Holliday were "unusual but did not detract from the fairness of that juror or any of the others."

"It would border on the absurd to award the defendant a new trial because of the presence on the jury of the only member who initially voted in her favor and persisted through three ballots," Dwyer said.

Nickell was convicted May 9 of five counts of product tampering in the first prosecution involving fatalities under federal anti-tampering laws enacted because of the Chicago Tylenol poisoning deaths of seven people in 1982.

Dwyer ruled Nickell was "afforded the benefits of an excellent defense, rulings throughout the trial that fully protected her rights and an attentive, thorough and impartial jury."

Nickell, 44, was convicted of lacing Extra-Strength Excedrin capsules with cyanide in a plot to kill her husband, Bruce, 52, so she could get out of an unhappy, debt-ridden marriage and collect $176,000 in life insurance benefits.

Authorities say she poisoned at least four other bottles of medication and placed them on store shelves in the Auburn, Wash., area to make her husband's murder look like the work of the type of random killer who terrorized the Chicago area in 1982.

One of the poisoned bottles was bought by Sue Snow, 40, an Auburn bank manager, who died from cyanide poisoning on June 11, 1986.

Bruce Nickell died five days earlier, and his death was attributed to natural causes. But after Snow's death, Stella Nickell asked authorities to review his autopsy results and turned in two bottles of medicine, saying she was concerned about product tampering after hearing news accounts of Snow's death.

The bottles were found to contain cyanide.

The deaths prompted a national recall of Excedrin capsules by the Bristol-Myers Co. and institution of federal regulations for "tamper-proof" packaging.

A key prosecution witness in the three-week trial was Nickell's daughter, Cindy, who said her mother had planned for years to kill Bruce Nickell.

The trial proceedings, however, were marred first by Holliday's revelation after four days of deliberation that she had received an anonymous phone call informing her that Nickell had failed an FBI lie-detector test.

Dwyer allowed deliberations to resume, but after the verdict it was revealed that Holliday had collected $500 in an out-of-court settlement of a product-contamination claim of her own.

The defense asked for a mistrial on the grounds that Holliday might have been disqualified from serving on the jury if information about her lawsuit had been known in advance.

But Dwyer agreed with Assistant U.S. Prosecutor Joanne Maida's arguments that a retrial would be a "travesty" of justice, particularly since Holliday had been the only person leaning toward acquittal until she changed her mind.

INS denies parole to 900 Cubans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Immigration and Naturalization Service said Thursday it has denied parole to more than 900 Mariel Cubans being held in federal prisons nationwide amid reports some prison wardens are increasing security.

The notices are being delivered personally to the Cuban inmates at the discretion of local prison officials to avoid the outbreak of violence that erupted at prisons in Louisiana and Georgia late last November, officials said.

The rioting erupted after the announcement of a U.S.-Cuban agreement the inmates feared would lead to their deportation.

Duke Austin, an INS spokesman in Washington, said the notices, which were sent late last week to the prisons for distribution, do not order deportation.

"These are not deportation cases," Austin said. "The INS has denied their release and they have further relief through the Department of Justice," Austin said.

"These notices will be individually delivered to the detainees. ... These are merely decisions not to release them and they are appealable," he added.

A total of 971 notices are being issued to Cuban inmates nationwide, Austin said.

The Los Angeles Times reported that the warden in Lompoc, Calif., has beefed up security to avoid rioting similar to that at federal prisons in Oakland, La., and Atlanta last November.

After last year's rioting, the Justice Department established two new panels — made up of department appointees — to review the cases of Cuban inmates rejected by the INS for parole or those slated for deportation.

The INS has determined that 59 of the 210 Cubans being held at Lompoc will either be deported to Cuba or incarcerated indefinitely.

Judge rules against defense on immunity

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ex-White House aide Oliver North and his three Iran-Contra co-defendants are closer to standing trial now that a federal judge has denied a key defense motion to dismiss the prosecution's case.

U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell, in an opinion and order filed late Thursday, rejected the defense argument that independent prosecutor Lawrence Walsh improperly used protected testimony by North and two other defendants at last summer's congressional hearings into the Iran-Contra scandal.

The defense claimed Walsh's prosecution team and federal grand jurors had been "tainted" by exposure to the protected, or immunized, testimony that cannot be used legally against the defendants who gave it.

But Gesell ruled "nothing has developed" in his preliminary inquiry to suggest the defendants' Fifth Amendment rights against self-incrimination were impaired "in a manner that significantly affects their right to a fair trial."

(Walsh) from the outset undertook to enforce a prophylactic system whereby various procedures prevented him or his associates directly involved in the prosecution from being exposed, directly or indirectly, to the immunized testimony," Gesell wrote in part.

The judge added that Walsh's "candid testimony" at a pre-trial hearing in late April and documents reviewed by the court "leave no doubt that he maintained and continues to maintain a vigorous program aimed at minimizing the exposure of himself and his prosecutorial staff to immunized testimony."

"Given these factual circumstances, it is not difficult to reach a preliminary decision that the case should proceed to trial," Gesell wrote, adding that "any final consideration of the issues must be deferred until after a full trial."

The judge still must decide one key issue, however, that could prevent trial in the case.

The defense, under the Classified Information Procedures Act of 1980, must give the prosecution advance notice of any classified information it plans to use at trial.

Defense attorneys contend compliance with the classified law forces their clients to disclose the heart of their case before trial and violates their constitutional rights. Gesell could dismiss the case if he finds he cannot balance the defense's needs with those of the government to prevent disclosure of national security secrets.

In a statement Thursday, Walsh said, "We are, of course, pleased with Judge Gesell's ruling. We are prepared to go forward as directed by the court."

Defense lawyers could not be reached immediately for comment.

If the case indeed reaches trial stage, each of the four defendants will be tried separately. Gesell ordered the separation June 8, saying constitutional rights of the defendants against self-incrimination could not be guaranteed in a single trial.

Walsh has told the judge he intends to move first against North, the retired Marine lieutenant colonel fired from the National Security Council staff for his role in the secret sales of U.S. arms to Iran in 1985 and 1986 and the diversion of profits to Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

The four men were indicted March 18 on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government; North and Poindexter also are charged with obstruction of justice.

Trading heavy, stocks up

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened higher today in heavy trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which fell 37.16 Thursday, was up 4.97 to 2099.21 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 462-236 among the 1,035 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 61,980,000 shares.

Stock prices closed sharply lower Thursday in moderate trading as profit taking, a lower dollar and weakness in bonds clipped the wings of a market enjoying its highest levels since October.

The Dow plunged nearly 31 points in the first half hour of trading.

Dollar opens mixed in light trading

By United Press International

The dollar turned mixed today in light trading on major foreign currency markets as traders took a wait-and-see attitude on the upcoming economic summit planned for this weekend in Toronto. Gold moved lower.

In early New York trading, the dollar was slightly higher against key foreign currencies as thin trading as dealers began their countdown to the meeting of the Group of Seven major economic nations.

President Reagan and the leaders of Britain, Japan, Canada, France, Italy and West Germany begin meeting Sunday at an annual economic summit that is expected to touch on issues of Third World debt and agricultural subsidies.

Treasury Secretary James Baker said there will be progress at the summit but economists predicted leaders of the seven major industrial democracies would accomplish little because Reagan soon will leave office and the global economy has recovered from last October's stock market collapse.

In earlier trading in the Far East, the dollar lost further ground against the Japanese yen in quiet trading, ending the week at 125.73 yen, off 0.25 from 125.98 yen on Thursday.

Housing construction plummets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — New housing construction plunged a startling 12.2 percent in May and the slump carried across single-family housing, apartment construction and struck every area of the crantry, the Commerce Department reported Friday.

Construction of private housing began in May at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1,364 million units, down 12.2 percent from the revised April rate of 1,576 million units, the department's Census Bureau said. The bureau had previously reported the April rate at 1,561 million units.

New construction of single family housing dropped to 9.2 percent to an annual rate of 988,000, matching the January 1985 level and the lowest since August 1984 when it was 976,000, the bureau said. The fall followed a 7.2 percent drop from March to April.

Analysts had predicted a drop in housing starts because mortgage interest rates had marched up from about 10.3 percent in early May to 10.7 percent by the end of the month.

The size of the drop was startling. Most analysts had predicted much smaller drops, from 1.3 percent to 0.2 percent.

Morris, who has been on the P&Z nine years, said he decided not to seek the chairmanship again because he has declared his intention to run for the mayor's office in the fall elections. He will remain on the P&Z as a commissioner.

Carl, 32, said he is looking forward to the challenge of being chairman.

"As in any new endeavor, there will be some time spent refreshing myself on all the matters before us," said Carl. "I'm going to try and work with our present city commission and find out whether they are wanting their advisory board (P&Z) to provide any input."

"I also want to find some new guidelines on how better to evaluate site plans and conditional uses."

In other action, the commission:

- Heard a request from Tom Hanson for a waiver of the 25-foot setback from right-of-way requirement for the display of vehicles for sale. Hanson told commissioners that the setback requirement is causing a hardship on his business and that he is losing customers because the cars for sale can not be seen from the street. Commissioners referred Hanson to the board of adjustment, which has the authority to decide cases where hardships are incurred by city codes.

Bikers make 100 more miles

By Wayne Mize
Herald Staff Writer

With fatigue becoming a factor, four bicyclists traveled 100 miles on Day Five of their 14-day, 1,500-mile journey before stopping for the evening in Salisbury, Md.

Jim Clark, John Lommerse and James Quinn, all of Sanford, along with Tom Clark of Manhattan, left Atlantic City, N.J., Wednesday morning.

After taking a ride along Atlantic City's boardwalk, the four began their ride at 7 a.m.

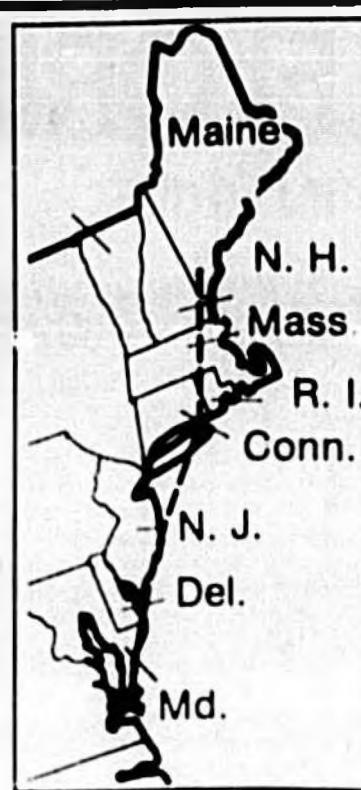

The quartet left Sanford, Maine, June 12 and hope to make Sanford by June 26.

The four, while financing their own trip, are making the trek to raise money for the American Heart Association (AHA).

The bicyclists reported, after three days of battling temperatures near the 100-degree mark and a strong wind from the south, weariness was beginning to take its toll on them.

Exhaustion became evident, the bikers reported, when they fell asleep while taking a ferry across Delaware Bay from New Jersey to Delaware.

The four will traverse the under construction by July and completed 15 months later, may be fully utilized when it is opened, Bible said. Utility agreements with Longwood, Lake Mary and several large developments, including Heathrow, will require the almost immediate expansion of the plant as soon as its opened, he said.

Bible said the plant is designed to be expanded in phases and the second 2.5 mgd phase could be completed about 18 months after the initial construction phase is completed. Bible said the plant is designed for expansion to 20 mgd, within the next 20 to 30 years. If needed, the plant could be expanded to 40 mgd during the next 75 years, he said.

The plant is expected to use either a traditional percolation pond treatment or an overland flow treatment where the triple-treated water would be discharged through the wetlands on the 2,900-acre site and filter into the St. Johns River.

Bible said environmental agencies are mixed in their reviews of the latter plans, but the county can prove the method is environmentally sound.

The Yanker Lake site was the subject of a two-year controversy after commissioners decided to purchase the site at 2 a.m. in 1985 from frozen pizza magnate and developer Jeno Paulucci.

County critics say the decision was illegal and illegal deals were made. However, two state grand juries cleared the county and county officials of wrongdoing in the matter. Environmentalists are concerned the plant may pollute the extensive wetlands on the site and add to the St. Johns River pollution.

The goals and objectives subcommittee's report says if the best of present land development regulations were implemented uniformly along the boulevard, the result would likely fall short of the envisioned scenic parkway concept.

The group suggested the current 25-foot building setback be increased. The setback would become both a building setback and a landscape buffer requirement.

The committee also heard from representatives from Southern Bell, Florida Power and Light, and Storer Cablevision about costs associated with running underground cable utilities along the boulevard instead of aerial cable.

The meeting was the group's fourth. The committee, made up of representatives of the cities of Lake Mary and Sanford, and Seminole County, began meeting in a cooperative effort to reach a consensus on the future appearance of Lake Mary Boulevard. The street runs through all three governments' jurisdictions.

The group's next meeting will be July 20 at 7:30 p.m. at the Seminole County Services Building, when members are expected to reach agreement on the subcommittee's recommendations.

Heat wave blamed for 20 deaths

By United Press International

The sweltering heat wave that scorched the East and Midwest and killed an Indianapolis nursing home resident is believed responsible for at least 20 deaths in the Boston area this week, authorities said.

Temperatures soared into the 90s for a fourth consecutive day in Boston Thursday as authorities reported at least 10 people were found dead in their homes, including an elderly woman and her daughter.

"It certainly is unusual to have that many people die in the neighborhoods, but the heat is also unusual," police spokeswoman Jill Reilly said.

The oppressive temperatures, which hit a record 97 Wednesday, were expected to dip into the 70s in most areas today, with a cooling rain forecasted.

The first reported deaths Thursday included an east Boston woman, Lillian Shanahan, 83, and her daughter, Theresa Foley, 56, who were found dead by Foley's husband at 8:20 a.m. in the elderly woman's home, Reilly said.

The home reportedly was not air-conditioned and the doors and windows had all been shut, despite temperatures outdoors that climbed into the 90s.

Police spokesman Scot Gillis said autopsy results were not due for several days.

"It's apparent they're because of the heat, but we can't say for sure because we're not doctors," he said of the deaths.

Reilly said the bodies of eight other people whose deaths appeared due to the heat were found in their homes between 6 a.m. and noon — three in east Boston, two in south Boston, two in the city's Dorchester section and one in the north end.

Many of the victims were elderly and many were in poor health, Reilly said. Some were found dead in bed by relatives or home health aides, she said.

In a Boston Globe report today, Yvonne Williams, administrator for the state medical examiner's office, said four other Boston deaths, apparently due to the heat, were reported to the state office Thursday.

Williams declined to identify the four additional victims, but said three were in their 80s and 90s and a fourth was 56.

Suspected killer's van found

ESCANABA, Mich. (UPI) — A van belonging to a man suspected of killing a family of four on an Indian reservation was found less than two miles east of the victims' home, authorities said Friday.

Vincent Loonstoot, 26, was believed to have driven the 1978 Chevrolet van from Chicago to the Hannahville Indian Reservation in Menominee County near Wilson where the slayings occurred late Tuesday night, investigators said.

About 40 state, county and local law enforcement officers have combed a 4-square-mile area with tracking dogs since early Wednesday when a car belonging to the slain family was discovered.

An air search also had failed to turn up any clues, police said.

"This pins down the vehicle that we believe he came into the area with," Hal Hetherhoff, special agent in charge of the FBI in Michigan said Friday.

"We had a report that he left Chicago late Monday or early Tuesday in this van, but then we couldn't account for the van in this area and it was a mystery to us how he arrived in this area."

There was some concern that he might have left the area in the van but this leads more to the theory that he is still in the area on foot or that he could have committed suicide," Hetherhoff said.

He said other theories are that Loonstoot could be on foot outside the search area or could have stolen another vehicle and fled the area.

Tracking dogs picked up what investigators hoped was the suspect's trail Thursday but Hetherhoff said there had been no new developments in the search by late Friday morning.

Hetherhoff said Loonstoot, an American Indian originally from Baraga, is considered armed and dangerous. Investigators said Loonstoot was wearing camouflage clothing while his wife was wearing purple slacks and blouse and reportedly is about three months pregnant.

Hetherhoff said the van was found late Thursday night less than two miles from the reservation of Potawatami Indians where Peggy Loonstoot's brother, David Smith, sister-in-law, Sherry, and their two daughters were shot to death.

A third child, Amanda Smith, 10, remains in good condition after surgery Wednesday to remove bullets from her chest, authorities said.

There were indications the incident may have been triggered by an Ojibwa court ruling awarding custody of the Loonstoots' 11-month-old daughter to Peggy Loonstoot.

The ruling resulted from assault charges made against Loonstoot by his wife.

Shortly after he was denied custody of the girl, Loonstoot "took off for Chicago," according to Capt. Matt Shalloo, chief of the Ojibwa police in Baraga.

In addition to Florida, Cofield is known to visit three states, North Carolina, Massachusetts and New York.

Cofield is wanted by the Federal Bureau of Investigation for interstate flight.

He is also wanted by Boston police as a suspect in a homicide where the victim was beaten beyond recognition, according to Harriett. Cofield also has a earlier record with Boston police for dealing in stolen property.

Fernandez upsets Sabatini at tuneup

EASTBOURNE, England (UPI) — Mary Joe Fernandez upset Gabriela Sabatini 6-2, 7-5 Thursday at a $250,000 Wimbledon tuneup to advance to the semifinals against Martina Navratilova.

It was the third time the 16-year-old high school student from Miami has beaten the Argentine, the world's No. 5 women's player.

Navratilova, using Eastbourne as her traditional Wimbledon warmup, advanced with a 6-4, 6-4 victory over Larissa Savchenko of the Soviet Union.

In Friday's other semifinal, Natalia Zvereva of the Soviet Union will face Pascal Paradis of France.

Zvereva, who ousted Navratilova from the fourth round of the French Open two weeks ago, defeated Caterina Lindqvist of Sweden 6-4, 0-6, 6-2. She said she was blanked in the second set because she was trying to rest her sore arm.

Paradis, who previously beat defending champion Helena Sukova, downed Anne Minter of Australia 6-4, 6-3.

Charlotte trying to land NFL's Falcons

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Sports entrepreneur George Shinn is meeting with the owner of the Atlanta Falcons in an effort to woo the NFL franchise to Charlotte.

Shinn, who nabbed the NBA expansion Charlotte Hornets, met with Falcons owner Rankin Smith Sr. about moving his team to North Carolina.

"Charlotte is a hot article right now," said Smith.

Smith has said the Falcons will not play in Atlanta's Fulton County Stadium when the lease expires in 1990, but he says he would prefer to keep the Falcons in Atlanta if a suitable stadium can be built. A $100 million domed stadium has been proposed for downtown Atlanta.

Smith told The Charlotte Observer he plans to visit Charlotte within the next month, Jacksonville, which has the 82,000-seat Gator Bowl to offer, has also courted the Falcons.

"We're not blind to Jacksonville," said Smith. "They've got a place to play."

Senna favorite at Detroit Grand Prix

DETROIT (UPI) — Brazilian Ayrton Senna is the heavy favorite to repeat as the champion of the 1988 Detroit Grand Prix when the Formula One cars tackle the narrow, winding downtown street circuit Sunday.

Even though he has captured the last two Detroit races, Senna said Thursday nothing can be taken for granted in the 64-lap race.

"Detroit is a very hard circuit," said Senna, who is in his first year of driving for the McLaren Team.

Pistons take 3-2 lead Lakers hope to regroup on home floor

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — The Detroit Pistons are just one victory from their first NBA title but the Los Angeles Lakers have them right where they want them — at home.

The Pistons grabbed a 3-2 lead in the NBA Finals with a 104-94 victory Thursday night but now the scene shifts to Los Angeles for Game 6 Sunday afternoon and possibly Game 7 Tuesday night.

"It's 3-2. We've got a chance," Detroit Coach Chuck Daly said after his team won by overcoming a 15-2 deficit in the first 4:30. "We know what's ahead. They're in their own building. But we did it once."

Detroit delighted the largest crowd ever to see an NBA playoff game, a screaming collection of 41,732 who got vocal as soon as the Pistons made it 15-4. It was probably the last NBA game in the Silverdome since the Pistons are moving to their own arena in nearby Auburn Hills next season.

The Pistons have won two straight from the Lakers after losing the first of the three games in the Silverdome.

"I can't get the whip out," Daly said. "Butting heads? I can't do that, it's not allowed. Punching them? I'd lose that."

"We're one game from the world championship," said Detroit guard Joe Dumars, whose 19 points were second to Adrian Dantley's 25. "If we can't keep our concentration now, we've got serious problems."

"I like our chances," Los Angeles coach Pat Riley said. "I still believe this team is going to win the championship this season. It's on our shoulders. We go home now and our fans are going to be vocal."

Los Angeles has been better at home (10-2) in the playoffs but Detroit is responsible for one of its last seven road games.

"We don't want to talk about a possible seventh game," Riley said. "If we don't win the game Sunday, it isn't there. It would have been a lot worse if we hadn't broken through (last) Sunday."

Los Angeles was about three minutes shy of breaking through again Thursday night when it hit its first five shots and took advantage of six Detroit turnovers to post the 15-2 lead.

Sanford athletes run well

Staff and wire reports
TAMPA — Sanford's Ocky Clark and Clifton Campbell both turned in strong performances Thursday night in the preliminaries of the U.S. Track and Field Championships at the University of Tampa.

Clark, running for the Mazda Track Club, won his heat of the 800 meters with an excellent time of 1:47.64 which was the fastest time among the four heat winners. The top four in each heat advanced to the semifinals.

Clark, a Seminole High graduate who attended Florida State, locked up in a heated duel with Charlton Hamer of Illinois. Hamer finished with a time of 1:47.74, the second-fastest time of the prelims. Clark and Hamer were the only runners to break 1:48. In fact, the four fastest times of the prelims all came out of Clark's heat.

Campbell, a 1985 graduate of Seminole High who currently attends Auburn University, was second in his heat of the 400 meter prelims with a time of 45.93. Campbell, running for the Atlantic Coast Track Club, advances to the semifinal round. The heat winner was Willie Smith who turned in a time of 45.68.

The top time for the 400 meters in the prelims was a 45.48 by Tim Simon, also of the Atlantic Coast Club. Campbell's time ranked fifth out of the top 16 finishers.

The lowlight of Thursday's schedule came when Jane Frederick, just hours from an apparent 10th national heptathlon title, re-injured her left knee and withdrew from competition.

Frederick built a 355-point lead after Wednesday's four heptathlon events but jammed her left knee in the high jump. When the heptathlon continued Thursday with the long jump, Frederick registered a leap of only 15 feet and limped away from the pit favoring her left leg. She walked slowly toward a bench and was consoled by javelin thrower Duncan Atwood, who also competes for Athletics West.

"I thought I pulled my hamstring, but I didn't," said Frederick, who would not risk further injury with the Olympic Trials scheduled for July 15-23 at Indianapolis. "My leg cramped and I want to keep it minor. If this were the Trials, I'd have continued. I don't think I'll have a problem next month."

The heptathlon, won by Sheila Tarr, and the women's 10,000 meters, where Carol Urish-McLachie finished first in a time of 34:25.33, were the only finals run Thursday, when competition began in five field events and 15 running events. Tarr finished with 5,881 heptathlon points to edge Cathy Tyree by 20 points.

The Outdoor Championships, its field diminished by the absence of Carl Lewis, Edwin Moses, Renaldo Nehemiah and heptathlon record holder Jackie Joyner-Kersey, drew just 3,126 spectators to the campus of the University of Tampa.

"The reality of this is that I'm not ready to beat Jane Frederick and Jackie," said Tarr, who won despite an eighth-place finish in the final event, the 800 meters. "I know what Jane was thinking about tonight and I would have done the same (withdrew), probably sooner. No offense toward Jane, but I'm glad she dropped out."

A quiet crowd witnessed some solid performances on a muggy night when a brief shower punctuated the start of the troubled 3,000-meter steeplechase. The beginning of the steeplechase was delayed 80 minutes because officials forgot to fill the trench with water.

Roger Kingdom, running unattached, edged Tomie Campbell of the Bee-Fit Track Club in one heat of the 110-meter hurdles, then captured a semifinal in a wind-aided 13.15. Campbell won the other semifinal, edging Arthur Blake in a wind-aided 13.24.

Eric Metcalf, a star running back at the University of Texas, won the long jump qualifying with a leap of 26 feet, 3.4 inches. Metcalf, the NCAA long jump champion, edged Tyrus Jefferson of Arkansas (26-0 1-4).

Stephanie Hightower, a former American record holder in the women's 100-meter hurdles, crashed into the first hurdle in her heat and did not finish.

Oviedo Majors triumph

CASSELBERRY — Jason Alford tossed a one-hitter Wednesday night to lead the Oviedo Majors to a 11-1 rout of Casselberry in Little League Top Team Tournament action at Wirz Park.

The Top Team Tournament is a playoff between area teams who won in their league during the regular season. The double-elimination tourney will continue through next week.

Alford struck out 12 Casselberry hitters in pitching his gem while getting offensive support from Chris Tulp and Sean McSorley with two hits each.

In Major Division play at Altamonte's Eastmonte Park, Jamie Amburger pounded out two doubles and a triple, driving in five runs to lead the Rolling Hills Dodgers past the Pine Hills Royals, 11-7.

Rolling Hills built a 8-3 lead after four innings when Pine Hills came up with four runs in the top of the fifth with Daniel Ketchersid's run scoring double playing a major factor in the inning. After the hit two errors were made allowing the Royals to pull within 8-7.

Rolling Hills, though, put the game out of reach with three runs in the bottom of the fifth inning.

NOW: Muzzle 'Neanderthal' Knepper

HOUSTON (UPI) — A women's rights group that dubbed Houston pitcher Bob Knepper "Neanderthal of the Year" for his comments about female umpires will present the player an Astros cap with a muzzle to acknowledge his latest comments.

Knepper's remarks about the National Organization for Women are included in the June 20 issue of Sports Illustrated.

"NOW is such a blowhard organization," Knepper is quoted as saying. "They are a bunch of lesbians. Their focus has nothing to do with women's rights. It has everything to do with wanting to be men."

Knepper, who is with the Astros in

BASEBALL

Cincinnati, has said the comment was made in jest.

"He has put a label on an organization he knows nothing about," said Kathy Aubin, president of the NOW Houston chapter. "I don't think it is a joke. It is a serious accusation. We are offended. He should pitch and really not talk about something he doesn't know about."

Aubin said Knepper's comments foster bias against feminist groups. She said the muzzle for Knepper will be delivered through the Cincinnati NOW chapter.

"We are certainly going to request that the team make an official apology, and come meet some of our members to find out what we've been doing for women's rights over the last 21 years," Aubin said.

Knepper said he received more than 40 telephone calls at his hotel room Wednesday after his comments about NOW were made public.

"I finally got tired of it and just unplugged the phone," he said.

National League President A. Bartlett Giamatti disapproved of Knepper's remarks.

Astros spokesman Rob Matwick said Knepper's comments do not reflect the views of his teammates or the ballclub.

Lyle putts way to share of lead

BROOKLINE, Mass. (UPI) — Making up for his nightmarish tee shots with deadly putting, Sandy Lyle grabbed a share of the first-round lead Thursday at the 88th U.S. Open and kept alive the dream of capturing the Grand Slam.

The reigning Masters champion compensated for seven errant tee shots by using just 23 putts on his way to a 3-under-par 68 over The Country Club's demanding course.

Lyle, among the afternoon starters who had to deal with the wind, rolled in birdie putts on Nos. 16 and 18 to tie journeymen Bob Gilder and Mike Nicolette.

The Scotman says completing the first-ever professional Grand Slam — capturing the Masters, U.S. and British Opens and PGA in the same calendar year — "is possible, but I don't fancy the odds looking too good."

The threesome at the top held a one-stroke edge over a group of five golfers that included defending champion Scott Simpson and Spain's Seve Ballesteros. Also 2-under-par were 1987 Masters champion Larry Mize, Paul Azinger and Dick Mast.

At 1-under 70 were Lanny Wadkins, Curtis Strange and Craig Stadler. The large group at even-par included Andy Bean, Ben Crenshaw, two-time Open champion Hale Irwin, D.A. Weirberg, Iano Aoki and U.S. Amateur champion Bill Mayfair. Lyle tied using his 1-iron from the tee on six occasions, but continued to find the rough. On only eight of the non-Par 3 holes did he stay in the fairway.

32nd consecutive year. But afterwards, his thoughts were on the disappointment of being six shots off the pace.

"I expect more from myself than I really get," said Nicklaus, 48, who now plays only a limited schedule. "I thought I might have a chance. For all intents

Davis' homers propel Astros

United Press International
Despite a slump occasionally interrupted by home runs, Glenn Davis has a piece of the National League RBI lead.

Davis powered two of loser Mario Soto's pitches out of the park in the first and third innings, both times with Bill Doran on base, to knock in four runs for winner Mike Scott in the Houston Astros' 7-4 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Eric Davis duplicated the feat Thursday with a pair of homers and contributed three RBI in a losing cause.

Glenn Davis, now tied with Pittsburgh's Bobby Bonilla for the National League RBI lead with 52 after hitting his 14th and 15th homers, has been battling a slump that has seen him go 4-for-34, all four of the hits being home runs.

"I can't explain the slump," Glenn Davis said. "It's just one of those things you go through in the course of the year. But there have been some good things in it, because I've still been able to drive in some runs and contribute."

Eric Davis, who has 11 homers, lifted his average to .250, but declined to talk about his production.

"I've got nothing to say," he stated, after having his left ankle, right hand and right shoulder iced down.

Soto, 3-7, said he was having a tough time now, but felt that he was throwing the ball well.

"I'm okay," he pointed out after giving up six hits and four runs in five innings. "My arm feels good but I'm having hard luck. But I've been around long enough to know that that's part of the game. It just seems right now that every pitch I make has to be perfect."

Reds Manager Pete Rose agreed that Soto was okay, but added "I think his problem is that he's not making quality pitches. And when he makes a mistake, they're pounding it out of the park." Scott, 8-2, was forced to leave the game with two out in the eighth when he pulled his left hamstring.

Braves 9, Dodgers 2

At Atlanta, Ken Oberkfell keyed an 18-hit attack with four hits and three RBI, powering the Braves. Zane Smith improved to 3-3 while Dodgers starter Ken Howell fell to 0-1. Howell was making his first start of the season since being recalled from Albuquerque of the Triple-A Pacific Coast League.

Royals 9, A's 5

The Royals recorded their 13th success in their last 14 games while the A's, having lost nine of their last 11 games, has seen their lead in the AL West dwindle to 4½ over the Royals.

Brad Wellman struck four hits to lead Kansas City to its sixth straight victory, and its sixth victory over Oakland in 10 days. Pat Tabier picked up three hits and drove in four runs. Kevin Seitzer had three hits. Frank White, in his first game this season as designated hitter, homered.

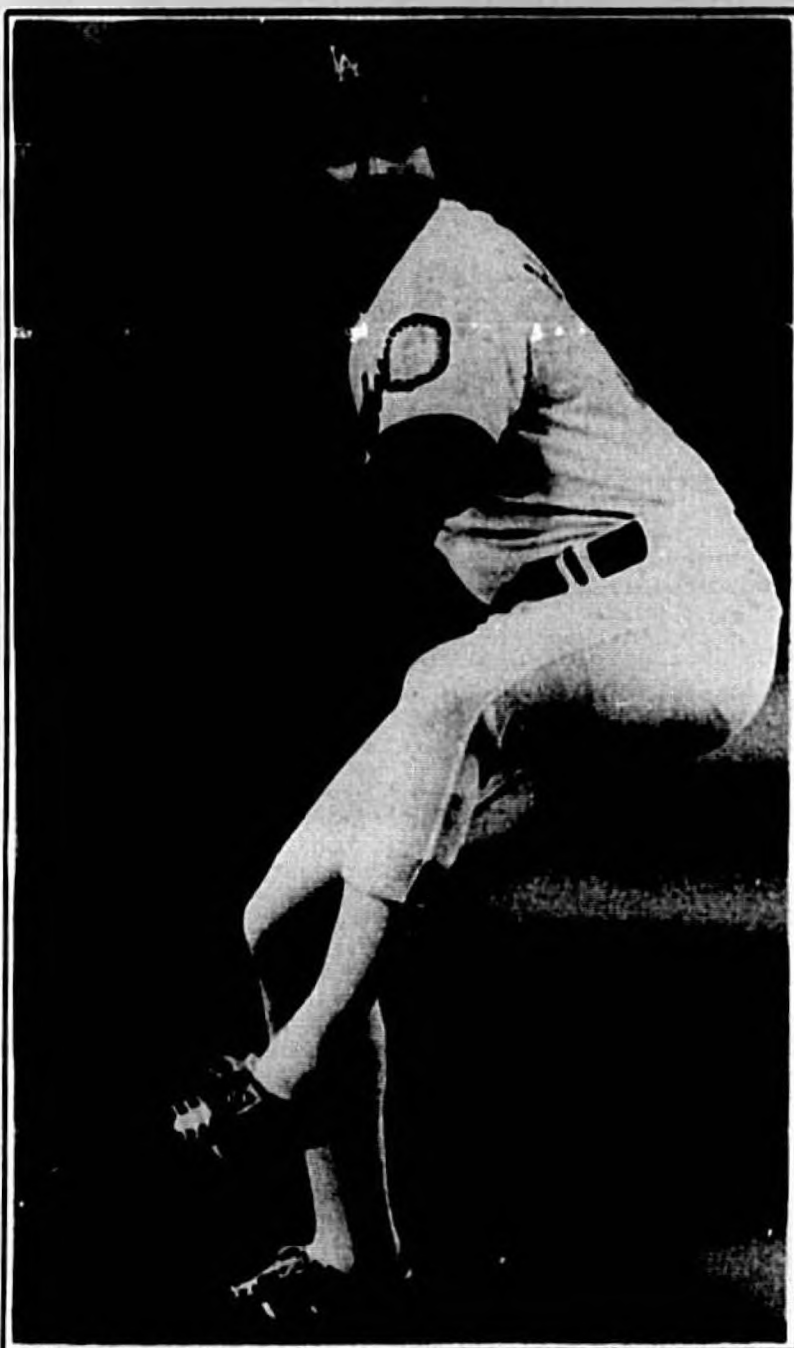

Curt Young, 4-4, the first of six Oakland pitchers, took the loss.

Blue Jays 13, Tigers 5

At Detroit, Mike Flanagan allowed five hits over eight-plus innings and Ernie Whitt went 4 for 5 with four RBI, denying the Tigers the chance to pull within a half-game of the first-place Yankees. Flanagan, 6-4, walked six and struck out seven. Jack Morris, 6-4, basted 2-3 innings, yielding seven runs.

Orioles 8, Red Sox 4

At Baltimore, Cal Ripken Jr. and Mickey Tettleton each delivered a two-run double to power the Orioles. Jeff Ballard, 3-3, scattered seven hits over seven innings. Marty Barrett stole home. Boston's first steal of home since Tommy Harper did it May 28, 1973 at Kansas City.

Angels 3, Texas 6

At Anaheim, Calif., Kirk McCaskill hurled a three-hitter for his first victory in seven starts and Wally Joyner and Bob Boone delivered RBI singles to carry the Angels. McCaskill, 3-5, winless since beating Toronto May 8, struck out a season-high 10 and walked three. Paul Kilgus, 6-5, took the loss.

White Sox 3, Brewers 1

At Milwaukee, Jerry Reuss and Bobby Thigpen combined on a seven-hitter to help Chicago snap the Brewers' four-game winning streak. Reuss improved to 6-2, and Thigpen, making his American League-leading 33rd appearance, pitched two innings for his 13th save. Chris Bosio, 6-7, worked 8 1/3 innings.

Oklahoma discloses contents of inquiry

FOOTBALL

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI) — The University of Oklahoma Thursday released a summary of alleged violations in the school's football program contained in a Letter of Official Inquiry received from the National Collegiate Athletic Association in February.

The university had earlier refused to disclose the contents of the letter, but made the release Thursday in accordance with the settlement of lawsuits filed against the university by a newspaper and a television station in Oklahoma City.

The allegations came from an investigation made by the NCAA with the cooperation of OU and the athletic department, the summary said, and are currently under investigation by OU officials.

"The University of Oklahoma is continuing its efforts to seek the earliest resolution of all matters relating to this inquiry," OU President Frank Horton said. "The university has cooperated fully with representatives of the NCAA during the investigation which led to the official inquiry, and this cooperation will continue."

The 16 specific allegations contained in the letter include:

1. In the spring of 1984, an alumnus of the university allegedly provided a prospective student-athlete a used automobile and employed the young man during the summer of 1984 for which he was paid but did not work.

2. During the 1984-85 academic year a staff member allegedly twice gave a prospective student-athlete a ride to the young man's home. On one occasion the staff member gave the young man a T-shirt and turf shoes, both with the university's emblem on them.

3. During the 1984-85 academic year an alumnus allegedly provided local automobile transportation and purchased lunch for a prospective student-athlete's brother.

4. During the 1984-85 academic year, while recruiting a prospective student-athlete, two staff members allegedly led the young man to believe that extra benefits would be provided to him if he enrolled at the university.

5. During 1985, a staff member allegedly offered $1,000 cash in an envelope to a prospective student-athlete on high school premises to induce the young man to sign a letter of intent with the university.

6. During the 1983-84 academic year, during a recruiting contact of a prospective student-athlete, a staff member allegedly made statements to the relatives of the young man which led them to believe the student-athlete would receive extra benefits if he enrolled at the university.

7. Prior to and during the 1984 football season, a staff member allegedly sold a season football ticket for each of two student-athletes and gave them the cash received, which was more than the tickets had originally sold for.

8. During the 1984-85 academic year, a staff member allegedly gave a student-athlete $10 to $20 for incidental expenses on at least two occasions.

9. In July 1984, a staff member allegedly arranged for a prospective student-athlete to receive a free one-way airline ticket to travel from his home to Oklahoma City in order to accept summer employment.

10. On several weekends in January and February 1985, a staff member allegedly arranged for a rented vehicle to be provided to student-athlete hosts for entertainment of prospective student-athletes during the prospect's official visit to the university campus.

In addition to the specific allegations, the NCAA charged that staff members at OU did not on all occasions act in accordance with the generally recognized standards normally associated with the conduct and administration of intercollegiate athletics.

The letter also asserts that certain of the allegations would constitute a knowing and willful effort on the part of these persons to operate the university's intercollegiate football program contrary to the requirements and provisions of NCAA legislation.

McEnroe says he can win

WIMBLEDON

HOYLAKE, England (UPI) — John McEnroe, once the top player in tennis and now ranked 19th in the world, is convinced he can win Wimbledon a fourth time.

"I certainly feel capable of beating anyone," he said. "I have a lot of experience playing at Wimbledon and I feel my game is best suited to grass."

The New Yorker won Wimbledon in 1981, 1983 and 1984. He is sharpening his grass-court game at the $250,000 Writtle tunicup in preparation for Wimbledon, which begins Monday.

McEnroe believes he is one of six players with a chance to win the two-week tournament. He says the others are Pat Cash, Boris Becker, Ivan Lendl, Stefan Edberg and Mats Wilander.

McEnroe, 29, ended a seven-month layoff in April. "I'm enjoying myself and my tennis and it just remains to be seen how well I do at getting back to being number one," he said.

McEnroe said he was pleased with Wednesday's straight-sets victory over Alexander Volkov in his opening game at Hoyalake — his first match on grass in England since a quarterfinal loss to Kevin Curren at Wimbledon in 1985.

McEnroe is seeded No. 8 at Wimbledon. He says he wants to enliven tennis and prevent the "robot" players from killing the game.

"There are no personalities today," he said. "In the early 80s, there was myself, (Jimmy) Connors and (Jorn) Borg. But I don't see that spark any more."

"I hope it comes back otherwise the game will stagnate."

Introducing: The 'Tall of Fame'

By RICHARD L. SMOOK
UPI Sports Writer

If you're tall — roughly 6-foot-6 by baseball standards — and want to be a major-league pitcher, you've got big problems.

Now that measurement includes Jeff Robinson, who notched his second shut-out Wednesday night for the Detroit Tigers and has won seven straight, plus John Candelaria of the New York Yankees and Mike Witt of the California Angels.

But a laborious run through the Baseball Encyclopedia shows a total of just 80 pitchers in major-league history (through 1987) listed at 6-6 or taller.

The tallest was 6-foot-9 Johnny Gee, who was 7-12 with a 4-41 ERA for Pittsburgh and the New York Giants from 1939-46. So if the Montreal Expos ever call up Randy Johnson, let's congratulate the tallest person to pitch in a major-league game. Johnson is 6-10.

"As a rule," Detroit pitching coach Billy Muffett says, "real tall people have bad coordination. It takes them longer to get everything together. They've got so much more to get together.

SCOUTING REPORT

"We're kind of getting away from that now. It used to be that 6-foot-3 was tall. That's not so nowadays. Guys are just bigger today, that's all there is to it."

Better conditioning, weights and diet are some of the reasons for bigger athletes today.

Consider: Of the 80 pitchers on the big man's list, 34 worked in the 1960s. Another 18 pitched in the 1970s but didn't make it into the current decade. That's more than half the total in the last 18 years.

It should be noted, one of the 80 is Dave Kingman (6-6), who pitched in a 1973 game.

Candelaria (6-7) is the ace Tall of Fame pitcher with a 151-95 record entering this season. Ron Reed (6-6), who once played with the Detroit Pistons, is next with a career mark of 146-140.

Fred Toney (6-8) was 137-102. Bob Veale (6-6) was 120-95. J.R. Richard (6-8) was 107-71 while Rick Sutcliffe (6-7) took a 104-78 record into this year. Those are the only 100-game winners who were taller than 6-foot-5 Don Drysdale.

Other famous tall pitchers include Dick Radatz (6-8), one of the most feared relief pitchers of all time; Gene Conley (6-8), a forward with the Boston Celtics in an age when you could play both sports; and Dave DeLusschere (6-6), former Detroit Pistons and New York Knicks great who tried pitching for the Chicago White Sox for two seasons.

Ewell Blackwell (6-6), Dick Hall (6-6), Steve Hamilton (6-6), 1961 Rookie of the Year Don Schwall (6-6), North Carolina State NCAA championship forward Tim Stoddard (6-7), Frank Sullivan (6-6 1/2) and Cecil Upshaw (6-6) are other big notables.

"I've never really walked a lot of people," says Detroit's Robinson. "Muffett has really worked with me on getting myself balanced. I'm so big it's easy for me to fly all over the place. It's so easy for little things to go."

"When we first signed Robinson," Muffett said, "his mechanics were not that good. You have to work at it constantly."

Hard work should get today's taller pitchers somewhere. As the record book shows, there's plenty of room at the top.

Defending champ has solid round

BROOKLINE, Mass. (UPI) — Even after beginning defense of his U.S. Open title with a 2-under-par 69, Scott Simpson says there will be a new champion Sunday.

On Thursday, Simpson played his usual conservative game, carding three birdies and only one bogey, on the 18th hole, when he pulled his drive into the left rough.

"I'm playing pretty good right now, but it's not all there," he said. "I still think there will be a new U.S. Open champion."

"Hopefully, I can stay in contention, but there are just so many good players on the tour and around the world. Someone else will probably win, although I won't rule out my chances."

On the course, Simpson forgets about last year's success.

"I don't really think about it," he said. "I put it pretty much out of my mind."

The U.S. Golf Association puts together a rugged test for the Open each year, which is fine with Simpson.

"I like courses that play tough, where it takes your whole game and you have to be accurate, where you can't just be bombing around the whole lot," he said. "I'm not outstanding in any area, so it suits my game fine."

Through the early rounds, Simpson worries about his game more than his score.

"It's too early to think about winning," he said. "You just think about playing good golf and let the end result take care of itself."

Temperatures were again steamy, rising into the 90s for the third straight day. But Simpson said the heat didn't bother him.

"We play a lot of places where it's a lot hotter," he said. "Like Kings Mill (in Williamsburg, and purposes I guess you could consider me a ceremonial player, but you still try to keep trying."

Gilder and Nicolette are testaments to the virtue of persistence.

Gilder, 37, who says he was "disenchanted" with the tour because of internal politics, is coming out of a four-year slide in which he never ranked better than 100th on the money list.

On Thursday, he was the only player to hit the fairway with his tee shot on all 15 holes which are par 4's or 5's.

"It was a fun round to play,"

he said. "I got myself in good position to come into the holes."

He says his resurgence this year is due mostly to a more positive outlook.

"Your game won't change your attitude around, but your attitude can change your game."

Nicolette, who is not on the PGA's exempt list, qualified to enter the Open and says that to return to the tour "I have to win. Finishing second means nothing."

In the past three years he has struggled financially, getting occasional wild-card invitations to PGA tournaments, while also playing a few mini-tour events.

"I've got to play real good this week," he said. "Let me put it this way, my bank account is real low."

The 90-degree heat and high humidity, which have gripped the Boston area, continued for the fourth straight day, making the greens harder and the high rough less treacherous.

"With the rough dried out, you can knock the ball onto the green and 5- or 8-under would win the tournament," said Mize. "If it rains, that will all change."

The 7,010-layout continued to receive praise from all the competitors, who see the course as a fair test of a golfer's shot-making ability and emotional resolve.

Speedworld to host USA event

Orlando Speedworld will host its second United Stock Car Alliance event tonight as the highly competitive late models will race for 100 laps. This Florida-based series started in 1987, as a way to bring together weekly racers from around the state to compete against each other under a common set of rules, similar to those used at their own track.

Carl Vanzura

So far in 1988, the USA circuit has been successful in drawing many of the top weekend drivers, most of whom have made plans to be at Orlando tonight. One of the entries is Dick Anderson of Wildwood, who has won three races, including a victory at Orlando this season. Joining Anderson will be a young driver from Lakeland, Joe Nemechek, who has made the jump from driving four-cylinder Min-Stocks a year ago, to driving the big V-8 powered Late Models in impressive style.

Nemechek has two USA wins this year. Tuck Trentham continued his charge back to the top of the point standings by posting his third Winston Racing Series Late Model win Saturday night at Volusia County Speedway. Greg Ward got the early jump on former Sanford driver Steve Harris and opened up a sizeable lead in just a few laps. Trentham, however found some first lap running room and moved around Harris, it took only three laps for Trentham to chase down Ward and capture the lead spot. At tomorrow's races the DeLand Cruisers will be on hand displaying some of the areas sharpest hot rods, low riders and cruisers of yesterday.

Frank Tovornik, a part-time crewman on Alan Kulwicki's racecar a couple weeks ago found something "unusual" in the car. It was a three-foot-long black snake. Tovornik discovered something inside the drivers door by the rocker panel as he was hooking up Kulwicki's "cool suit" apparatus. "At first I thought it was black tape," said Tovornik, "but it wasn't tape. It was a snake. He was there, coiled up, and no one would believe me. He got me on the left-middle finger." Tovornik wasn't injured and worked the race. Carl Vanzura is Sanford Herald Motorsports Writer.

Propagation of plants preserves pocketbook

Most people enjoy having plants in their homes. They create an atmosphere of warmth and life that cannot be equaled by any other home furnishing.

Unfortunately, many plants outgrow their locations, or they become spindly and unattractive. These plants can be cut back and repotted or replaced with a plant obtained from propagating a portion of the old plant.

The most common and satisfactory method of propagating most house plants is by cuttings. A cutting is a portion of a plant taken from a parent plant. There are many types of cuttings, but the most important ones in propagating house plants are stem and leaf cuttings.

The rooting medium for cuttings should have good drainage yet hold moisture and be sterile. A suggested medium would be 1/2 peat and 1/2 perlite, coarse sand or vermiculite.

Root-inducing hormones can be used on plants that are difficult to root. When conditions for rooting are ideal, growth substances may reduce rooting time and permit a higher percentage of cuttings to root. Root hormones are available from garden supply stores. Follow directions on the container label when using rooting hormones.

Plants such as African violets, begonias, gloxinias, sansevierias, and most succulents are easily propagated from leaf cuttings. Leaf cuttings are two types—those where new plants arise from the leaf tissue, such as the Bryophyllum, rex begonia, and sansevieria (snake plant), and those where the roots and shoots arise from the base of the petiole, such as African violet and gloxinia.

Sansevieria leaves may be cut into sections about 3 to 4 inches long and stuck about one inch down into the medium. It is important that the section remain right side up. Roots and shoots will form from the section and should be removed from the leaf section when the new shoot is 3 to 4 inches long. The variegated sansevieria will not reproduce true to type using this method. To retain its characteristics, it must be propagated by division of the original plant.

Leaves of Rex begonia and other fibrous begonias develop young plants from their primary veins. Make small cuts across the larger veins on the undersurface of the leaf. Then lay the leaf right side up on a moist medium. Use toothpicks or wire to hold the leaf in contact with the medium. New shoots should appear in about two weeks. When the new shoots are 2 to 3 inches high they can be transplanted. African violets and gloxinias can be propagated using entire leaf (leaf blade plus petiole) cutting. Cut the leaf from the plant leaving 1-1/2 inches of petiole attached to the leaf. The leaf cutting should be stuck into the rooting medium only deep enough to keep the cutting upright, and at an angle.

Most house plants root easily from stem cuttings. Terminal cutting of 3 to 6 inches in length should be taken from healthy, vigorously growing plants. Make a clean cut about 1/4 to 1/2 inch below a node (joint) with a sharp knife. Avoid crushing the stem. Remove a few lower leaves from the cutting to prevent wilting, but the cutting should not be heavily defoliated. Stick the cutting one inch into the medium and firm gently so that it remains upright.

Stem cuttings can be rooted in plastic bags or in containers covered with plastic bags. The plastic cover keeps the humidity high, but does not prevent oxygen and carbon dioxide movement in and out of the container. Set the container where it is exposed to daylight, but never in direct sunlight. Heat from direct sunlight will be trapped in the plastic bag and kill the cuttings.

Division is simply separating a large plant into two or more plants. Plant division is often used for ferns and many other plants that produce several shoots from a central growing point.

Division can be done by hand or a "wile" can be used to split the plant apart. Be very gentle and try to obtain as many roots with each plant part as possible. Put the divided sections up in a sterilized potting medium.

Young retires from schooling

Joe Young retired recently after 33 years of service to the youth of Seminole County as a coach and classroom teacher in the Polk and Seminole County school system. Young's concern for the youth he taught will live on in the lives of the students he taught.

Cynthia Holt was the Toastmistress for the evening at the retirement dinner, held at the Sanford Civic Center June 11 at 7 p.m. This occasion was indeed the surprise of a lifetime as over 50 family, friends and guests gathered to say thanks to Joe Young.

Soloist for the evening was the Rev. Benjamin Adams, who also spoke of Young as a friend and co-worker. Special selection was "May The Work We've Done Speak For Me."

Young's former co-worker and friend at Sanford Middle School, Joyce Wright, spoke of the deep respect she has for the honoree, who has been a role model to the students. His daughter, Zora Green, gave words of love and appreciation on behalf of the family.

As a Christian and teacher, he will always remain in the memories of those who know and love him.

Family and Friends day will be celebrated at St. James AME Church, Cypress Avenue and Ninth Street. The service will be at 11 a.m. on Sunday, June 26.

Guest speaker for the morning will be Amelia Greka, chairman of the WINS Steering Committee. Music will be rendered by Choir No. Two of St. James AME Church. The Rev. James Hannis is Pastor.

Revival services will take place at Providence Missionary Baptist Church, Lake Monroe, from June 20-24 at 7:30 p.m. The Rev. Emmanuel Johnson of Seneca Falls, New York, will be the Minister of the Week. The Rev. James Hagin is Pastor.

First Shiloh Missionary Baptist Church in Sanford will observe their Annual Men's Day on June 19 at 11 a.m. The guest speaker will be Attorney Jerome L. Davis, a native of Sanford and a former graduate of Croombs High School.

Attorney Davis has served as county judge for Palm Beach County for the past four years. He is a member of Payne Chapel AME Church.

At 3 p.m., the guest speaker will be Orlando City Commissioner, Nap Ford, who has served as commissioner for many years and is a graduate and former instructor at Jones High School in Orlando. Ford also serves as minority counselor at The University of Central Florida and is an active member of Shiloh Baptist Church in Orlando.

The Sanford Alumnae Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta, Inc., invites the community to attend the annual Greek Extravaganza.

This will be a display of talents from our community. The 1988 extravaganza will highlight your evening with singing, recitals, skits, a step show and a fashion show. This joyous occasion will take place on Saturday, June 25, at 7 p.m. at Goldsboro Elementary School, the site of the Greek Extravaganza. Ella W. Robinson is president.

DEAR ABBY

Woman hung-up about call-waiting service

DEAR ABBY: This is not a terribly serious problem, but I would like an opinion from you, and maybe some of your readers would like to comment.

Several of my friends have the "call waiting" service on their telephones (I have not.)

Recently, my friend "Joyce" (not her real name) called me.

All she said was, "Hello. How are you?" then, before I could even answer her, I heard her "call waiting" signal beep. She immediately said, "Oh, somebody is trying to get me—I'll call you right back." Then she hung up on me.

About 15 minutes later when Joyce called back, I told her I thought she was extremely rude to have cut me off and taken the call from the other party. I said, "Since you called me, you could have put me on 'hold' for two seconds while you told the other party you were talking to someone and would get back to him." I also told her she made me feel like I was second choice—that she was hoping someone more interesting was on the other line. To my surprise, Joyce wasn't angry with me for telling her off. She agreed with me and apologized.

What are your thoughts on this, Abby?

SECOND CHOICE
DEAR SECOND CHOICE: Congratulations for having the courage to tell Joyce how you felt about her rudeness. And good for Joyce for acknowledging it and having the humility to apologize.

CONFIDENTIAL TO REGRETFUL IN GEORGIA: Your letter has been destroyed, so please stop worrying.

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.)

Consultant completes studies

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD— Creating a department of community development for building, planning, zoning and code enforcement, a professional master parks development plan and purchasing a new computer system for the finance department are among recommendations made by consultant Jeff Eitelberger after completion of the final six departmental studies.

The last of the departments to be evaluated were building, planning and zoning, finance, the city attorney's office, city clerk's office, parks and recreation and purchasing.

Eitelberger said creating the new department would not mean any additional cost because another planning position is already planned. He said the director could be hired in house or from the outside at a projected cost of $45,000, including salary and fringe benefits.

City Administrator Gene DeMarie concurred with Eitelberger on the need for combining the functions under one department head. DeMarie said, "I did this in North Miami Beach soon after assuming office as city manager. It is a unified source of information for developers and a unified development code. That lends an air of sophistication to a city."

DeMarie said it is his "strong feeling" that a director for the proposed new department should primarily have a strong planning background and capability. Eitelberger said combining the departments streamlines the organization by having fewer department heads reporting directly to the city administrator.

He said one professional planner on staff is insufficient to ensure that the necessary review and evaluation is conducted of all development projects while continually performing other intermediate and long range planning efforts. He said while City Planner Chris Nagle has been able to accomplish a number of major objectives during the past three years, he is in need of additional help.

Although he admitted Acting Finance Director Mary Triplett has done an excellent job since taking over in September 1987 after former Finance Director Barry Weeks resigned under fire, Eitelberger said she does not have the broad background and experience to handle the job permanently. However, he said she does have the basic education and experience in accounting required to be of great benefit to the department.

Eitelberger recommended the city administrator recruit and select someone for the position as soon as possible.

DeMarie said he has received more than 114 resumes for the position of finance director — including Triplett's — and has already eliminated 60 percent of them. He said he will be setting up interviews for the position for the last week of the month.

Eitelberger said Triplett has implemented a number of needed changes which are considered essential to straightening out the unacceptable condition of the city's financial systems. Major changes are still required. "It is evident," Eitelberger said, from the number of deficiencies noted in the auditor's report, and the review of the department he conducted, that prior city commissions and city administrators haven't made any attempt to establish proper financial operating systems and procedures. "It will be left to the present city commission and department officials to correct past mistakes," he said.

Eitelberger recommends the position of account clerk be reclassified to accounting services supervisor to be directly responsible for the general accounting and treasury divisions of the finance department, and Triplett be appointed to the position on a six month probationary basis subject to her obtaining her degree within three years unless extended with approval of the city administrator. She would also attend training and development programs as recommended by the city auditor.

Recommended starting salary for accounting supervisor is $25,000 a year. The total estimated increased cost of the reclassification and upgrading including salary and fringe benefits would be $10,950.

Eitelberger also recommends replacing the city's computer system, which has been a major reason for the city's past book keeping problems.

Dukakis brings tough talk to South

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) — Democrat Michael Dukakis, decried by Republican presidential rival George Bush as too liberal for most of America, is fighting to dispel that notion by sounding an anti-drug and anti-crime theme throughout the conservative South.

In his first major campaign swing since clinching his party's presidential nomination June 7, Dukakis is on a seven-state, three-day tour of Dixie. His stops today included Miami, New Orleans and Biloxi, Miss., where he arranged to meet with various law enforcement officials and to visit a drug education program — his message clearly pinned to the fight against crime and narcotics.

Dukakis began pushing that Southern strategy Thursday, arriving in Nashville, Tenn., to declare that in his third term as Massachusetts governor he has worked hard "to wage a real war, not a phony war, on drugs."

"How can we say to the people, 'Say no to drugs,' when we can't say no to Noriega?" he asked, reiterating a favorite piece of rhetoric used to job President Reagan and Vice President Bush about their record with Panama's military strongman Manuel Antonio Noriega indicted on U.S. drug charges.

Dukakis aides circulated a six page paper at a stop in South Carolina Thursday, outlining his anti-crime and anti-drug positions and portraying their candidate as a "winner" in the battles.

Bush at the same time was pushing his own anti-drug theme, addressing the national Jaycees convention in Richmond, Va. He praised the young business leaders for contributing to the "Just Say No" campaign and urged them to ask for drug testing at their jobs.

"In this increasingly competitive world marketplace," he said, "approaching the issue as one of cost effectiveness, we can't afford to show up for work impaired. We can't beat foreign competitors if we don't beat foreign substances."

The anti-drug speech came on the heels of a Wall Street Journal NBC News poll showing voters feel Dukakis would be tougher against illegal drugs than Bush, who has led the administration's narcotics task force.

The poll also found Dukakis leading Bush 49 percent to 34 percent nationwide among prospective voters. The sampling data was not immediately available.

The governor got even more good news from an independent poll of Southern voters, who in theory would be backing Bush because of the region's mostly conservative nature and loyal support of Reagan.

"Right now we have a real horse race in the South," said pollster Claiborne Darden in releasing his survey, which found Dukakis with 45 percent support compared to Bush's 42 percent. There was a 3.6 percent margin of error.

"This election is George Bush's to lose and right now Bush is doing a wonderful job at it," Darden declared.

The survey from June 8 to June 11 telephoned 750 residents of North and South Carolina, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee and Virginia.

By taking this campaign trip far below the Mason-Dixon line rather than into a supposedly more friendly region, Dukakis is sending Bush a message that the vice president will have to fight in every corner of the nation.

By choosing the crime and drug issues to focus on, he is hoping at the same time to avoid a protracted discussion about his defense policies, which Bush has attacked even more severely with an eye on conservative Southern voters.

"We aren't going to concede one single state in this country, my friends, and that includes the state of Tennessee and that includes the states of the South," Dukakis said Thursday in Nashville after he picked up the formal endorsement of Sen. Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn.

George Bush does not come across in the South, Gore argued. "George Bush does not have the personal qualities of Ronald Reagan."

Older Floridians continue working

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — Despite the state's reputation as a retirement haven, many older Floridians continue to hold jobs to earn more money or to simply get out of the house, a University of Florida researcher said Thursday.

Labor force participation rates were 54.9 percent for state residents between the ages of 55 and 64 and 12.9 percent for those age 65 and older, according to a recent study by UF's Bureau of Economic and Business Research.

"Those who hold jobs that provide satisfaction are more likely to desire to continue working past the normal retirement age than those whose jobs are drudgery, all else being equal," said David Lenz, a UF economist and one of the study's researchers.

"For some people, their job is their life," said Robert Epting, a researcher and the study's co-author. "Someone like Florida Congressman Claude Pepper epitomizes this concept of remaining active in later years because one's job is one's life."

Older people may work for a variety of social and economic reasons, ranging from a need to supplement retirement income to a desire to simply get out of the house, Epting said.

Generally, the percentage of elderly people represented in the labor force in Florida is lower than the national rate, which has been steadily declining. But the study found some notable exceptions.

Miami-Hialeah, for example, had a higher percentage of elderly workers between the ages of 55-64 and those 65 and older than the rest of the nation in the 1980 census. Labor force participation rates for residents age 65 and older in both southeast and southwest Florida increased between 1985 and 1986, Lenz said.

Among people age 75 and older, 7.3 percent of those who are working have more than one job, the study found. Low incomes and part-time jobs are typical reasons for the elderly to hold multiple jobs, Lenz said.

Since many elderly people move to Florida to retire, it is not surprising that the state has a lower percentage of older workers than the nation at large, Epting said. The UF College of Business study identified southwest Florida as the state's "retirement haven," with 34.5 percent of the state's retirees age 55-64 and 37.9 percent of those age 65 and older living in the region.

The continued decline of elderly people in the nation's labor force is largely due to the increased availability of social security, pensions and other types of income that make it easier and more affordable for people to retire and to retire early, Lenz said.

The national decline of older workers is expected to continue unless increased life expectancy prompts aging baby boomers to postpone retirement in order to make pensions and savings last longer, said Stephen Golant, a UF geography professor.

Hughey and David Smith of Geneva, who has four aquariums, said saltwater fish are more colorful than fresh, and with modern chemicals and equipment are just as easy to tend.

Fish, Smith said, react to movement, so they appear to notice what's going on outside their tank. In the case of an octopus, Hughey said, the tank must be tightly capped or the octopus will slip out and die.

The key to an easy life with tanked fish is having a good filtering system, they said. When something does go wrong, Hughey said, don't seek advice from several sources, where information might conflict. Follow treatment of the tank or fish recommended by one source, he said.

There are many books available on aquarium set ups, Smith said advice should be sought from aquarium shop keepers who specialize in fish and who have been recommended by friends as being knowledgeable.

Rules can be broken, but at the risk of losing your investment in fish. It costs about $200 to establish an aquarium. Fish cost from about $2 up.

Mike Weippert, who set up a 10-gallon aquarium about three weeks ago, said he started out with 15 fish, which would be a maximum capacity for that size tank. However, he was given 16 more fish, which were added to the same tank. All have survived so far. Weippert said his 11-month-old daughter is fascinated by the showy fish.

Fish can eat either live (other sealife) or processed food. For some reason, Hughey's eel didn't eat two black mollies put into its tank for food. The mollies are still there. "The eel's adopted them for pets," Hughey said.

A major killer of tropical fish is overfeeding, he said.

Suggestions for a proper set up and maintenance begin with research through reading and discussions with an expert who deals strictly with fish, Smith said.

Other tips include:

● Choose the largest aquarium possible. The greater the volume of water the less likely you are to develop water problems.

● Put the tank away from direct sunlight, which spurs the growth of algae. Also consider that water may splash from the tank onto the floor.

● The tank must be placed on a sturdy surface or stand to bear the weight of the water.

● A high quality filter is of primary importance and will reduce the need for extensive maintenance and cleaning of the tank. If there are a lot of fish in the tank they will need added oxygen from a separate air pump.

● The tank should have a tight fitting cover with a fluorescent light fixture.

● Water temperature for tropical fish must be maintained at about 75 degrees, so a heater and thermometer are needed.

● Since an aquarium is part of the decor, consideration is needed on the over-all look of the showpiece, blending fish with plants and groundcover gravel or coral.

● The chemicals added to the water will depend on if the tank is freshwater or saltwater. Once the environment is established only a few fish should be added initially, so they can help further help develop the biological conditions in the tank. After about one month of successful operation, new fish, from a professional supplier, can be added.

● Every two weeks no more than 20 percent of the water should be siphoned from the bottom of the tank and replaced. On a monthly basis the filter should be checked and cleaned as needed.

Star Speak

Talking with Tom Skerritt

They're back — for a third time in "Poltergeist III," the movie series that could set the value of suburban real estate back 50 years or more.

But this time, instead of just trashing a single suburban home and kidnapping the blond moppet Carol Anne (Heather O'Rourke), the ghostly title star has an entire apartment building — all 102 stories! — in Chicago to demolish.

The parents from the first two films, Craig T. Nelson and Jolbet Williams, are out of the picture. They've been replaced by Carol Anne's aunt and uncle, played by Tom Skerritt and Nancy Allen, who welcome the child into their Windy City apartment.

Skerritt has a history of turning up in scary movies, from "Alien" (1979) to Stephen King's "The Dead Zone" (1983). But he has also managed to appear in such critically acclaimed films as "The Turning Point" (1977), in which he starred opposite Shirley MacLaine, and blockbusters like "M*A*S*H" (1970) and "Top Gun" (1986). Despite his numerous film credits, Skerritt is perhaps best known to TV viewers as Evan Drake, wealthy owner of "Cheers" and unrequited love interest of Rebecca Howe (Kirstie Alley).

His leading ladies often make the A-list of actresses working today, including Elizabeth Taylor and Jill Clayburgh, who worked with him in TV movies. Skerritt's first film, "War Hunt" (1982), also marked Robert Redford's big-screen debut.

The Detroit native didn't plan on becoming an actor. He was studying art at Wayne

State University when he decided to dabble in summer stock during school vacation. Hit by the acting bug, he soon relocated to Los Angeles, where he enrolled in UCLA's theater-arts department. While appearing in a local production, a studio representative spotted him and cast him in "War Hunt."

Right now, 56-year-old Skerritt is working on "The Hunchback of UCLA," a spoof of the Gothic classic. No, he doesn't play the title character. In fact, Skerritt finds himself in the unusual position of being a graying sex symbol as the model for Guess? Jeans' over-40 wear.

Here he talks about the alleged "Poltergeist" curse, his famous co-stars and his desire to direct.

Q: How scary is "Poltergeist III"?

A: It's more scary than its predecessors because the monster gets to take over an entire building. It won't let anybody in, so we have to crash in — from the 100th floor!

Q: A lot of actors shy away from sequels because they are considered "hand-me-down" films. Why did you agree to do a sequel to a sequel?

A: I took the job because I wanted to work with the director (Gary Sherman). He's a class filmmaker. I want to be a director, so I find myself picking projects based on who the director is. I originally turned down "Alien." Then they called me back and told me Ridley Scott had been assigned to direct.

Q: Dominique Danne, the elder sister in the first "Poltergeist" film, was strangled by her ex-boyfriend. Julian Beck, the mad preacher in the second, died of cancer. And Heather O'Rourke, who played Carol Anne, died in February of a bowel obstruction. Is there a "Poltergeist" curse?

A: I'm not superstitious. I don't dwell on things like that. It never would have occurred to me if the press didn't keep asking me about it. I don't discount the possibility of parapsychological phenomena, but I'm not going to let it bug me.

Q: You've worked with major stars, Elizabeth Taylor, Robert Redford, Tom Cruise. Do you ever feel intimidated by them on the set?

A: Should I be? They're just people. I can't be bothered by who's who. More often than not, I find that after talking with them for a while, they're all just people. If they seem standoffish to the press, it's for their own protection. They don't act that way with their colleagues.

Q: What are your thoughts on the superstars you've worked with?

A: Elizabeth Taylor was absolutely wonderful. She acted like one of the guys. Shirley MacLaine was just getting into her other lives when I worked with her, and we discussed that. Robert Redford had an inkling that he'd become a superstar. You could tell just by the way he held himself.

Q: You've been in a lot of action films. Is that by choice?

A: I'd actually like to make films like "Tender Mercies," "Ordinary People" or "Terms of Endearment."

Q: What direction would

'I don't discount the possibility of parapsychological phenomena, but I'm not going to let it bug me.'
—Tom Skerritt

you like your career to take?

A: I want to direct. My wife (of 12 years) and I have written three screenplays we're trying to get produced. So far, no luck.

Q: You're now hustling Guess? Jeans. Did you find it surprising to follow in the footsteps of Donna Rice?

A: Believe me, I didn't pursue it. They contacted me. Things just came to me. I never pursued acting, either. It just came to me.

CBS calms mutinous affiliates

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The CBS affiliates arrived at their annual June meeting with their network in a mutinous mood, but by the time the speeches and programming presentations were over they had mellowed.

The 206 stations that make up the CBS Network Affiliates had something to be discontented about — the network ranked third in the Nielsen ratings for the 1987-88 season, the first time in history CBS finished last. And they made their displeasure known at a private four-hour meeting as the three-day conference opened Sunday, June 12.

By the time the conference broke up on June 14, things were looking better. By then they had heard CBS President and Chief Executive Laurence Tisch take responsibility for some of last season's programming mistakes and they had seen an 11-hour presentation of the new season's CBS prime time lineup, which offers eight new series totalling 5 1/2 hours.

"I believe the new programs, with a few exceptions, will play well in the midwest," said David H. Bailey, general manager of WTHI in Terre Haute, Ind.

"That is always critical to a television network. You need that base of support in the midwest."

The loudest ovations came for a situation comedy, "TV 101," and "Murphy Brown," a comedy-drama starring Candice Bergen as a television anchor and reporter.

A body believed to be Mason's was found in the rubble of the burned out mission. Julia refuses to believe that Mason is dead. Cruz investigated Mason's death and suspects some kind of foul play. Father Michael kept Cruz from questioning Sister Sarah by locking her in a room. Scott was shocked when Heather told her that Father Michael is her father. Sarah escaped and went to Julia's home to have her a note about Mason, but the note was ruined in a rain storm. Phillip overheard Ming Li admit to Kai that she's neither Cain's or Phillip's daughter. Ming Li lied that she's Cain's daughter so that she could come to America. Later, Phillip blackmailed Ming Li into showing more than daughterly affection for Cain. Gina and Beth had to postpone their marriage because the chapel burned down. Pamela blackmailed T.J. into helping her break up Jeffrey and Kelly.

Rex warned Nina to stop treating Father like a servant. Cassandra told Paul that she's not ready for a close relationship with him. Jessica, who has been having trouble breathing, made a plane reservation for Kansas City after she phoned her doctor's office. Lisa revealed to Lisa that he's happily married to Traci and that he wants Lisa to stay away from him from now on. Carol is convinced that Ship doesn't want to be alone with her because he's uncomfortable with the fact that she wears a leg brace. Danny was thrilled that Rex attended his concert. Scott realized Traci and Dennis are more than just friends.

Moss returned home after he was paroled. Jesse wasn't injured during the aborted attempt by John (Henry) to escape from the law. Kara was arrested for breaking into Natalie's apartment to watch her claim that would prove that Natalie had something to do with Silver's disappearance. Erica kept mum to everyone that she found Silver's necklace on the floor of Natalie's pad. Jeremy flew to Paris to check out the facts surrounding Silver's death and realized that she couldn't have been driving the car she supposedly died in. Hillary and Cecily succeeded in getting Thane and Langley to reconcile their romance. Natalie finally realized just how much Palmer loves her after she learned that he arranged Silver's "death". Rex and a high roller, John Harrington, decided to go into business together. Shyri convinced Laura to keep mum that Shyri is no longer in a coma.

ANOTHER WORLD

Shaklene Frame Watts and her daughter, Jack, shared a warm reunion with her brother, Jason. Michael learned that Imma, who hasn't been able to get close to Mikey, paid to have Zach and Scott find the boy's parents. With a little help from Cass, Nicole told Drew that she doesn't want to date him anymore. Jason regretted married Jack for using his phone to talk on the teen party line. Matthew ("Captain Cind") and Jason ("Nerve") met, Amanda and Sam hired Jack to babysit for Alie. Amanda and Sam tried to definitively tell Rachel that they didn't want her taking over the care of their baby, Alie. Zach was smitten with nightclub singer, Tiffany Simone. During the day, Tiffany, who is known as Bonnie, is a nurse. John met Shaklene and Jesse. Lisa told James that she knows he still has feelings for Vicki. James later went out with Vicki. 'Try to Remember' a week in 1969

By Joan Hanner UPI Feature Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — It was a time when Americans were watching "Hogan's Heroes," reading Jacqueline Susann, recognizing "The Peter Principle" and tripping to Jants Joplin.

The year was 1969 and in one week of that year the country experienced the high of Woodstock and the terror of Hurricane Camille.

If you have forgotten, tune in to "Try To Remember," a CBS News broadcast to air Thursday, June 23, 8-9 p.m. Eastern time.

Correspondent Charles Kuralt will take you back to the second week of August 1969.

You'll see the American astronauts just back from the moon. You'll hear and see never-before-released footage of Joplin at Woodstock and listen to survivors of Hurricane Camille tell their heart-breaking stories.

You will watch the beginnings of unending civil strife in Northern Ireland and learn about the peaceful revolution won by formerly disenfranchised black voters in Greene County, Ala.

The hourlong show is a pilot for what CBS News hopes will become a regular half-hour series.

The strike by the Writers Guild of America, which may delay the start of the fall television season from its usual mid-September date to sometime in late October or early November, could pave the way.

"We could do eight or 10 half-hours quite inexpensively and be able to talk about how we were doing original programming," said Robert Northshield, executive producer of "Try To Remember."

Three shows already are in the can — the one-hour program on 1969, as well as half-hour shows of a week in November 1965 and a week in May 1954, which includes the Army-McCarthy hearings.

Northshield was asked how those particular weeks were chosen — an amateur might have been tempted to begin with the week that included the assassination of John F. Kennedy, for instance.

"If we become a series," Northshield said, "I hope the first one to be seen on the air would be the one that ends Nov. 22, 1963."

"But I think the end is going to be..." he interrupted himself and said, "Well, I don't want to tell you what it would be, but you're not going to see this man get shot. Everybody knows what happened."

"I would think it would end with something from Kuralt, perhaps the speech Kennedy didn't give in Dallas that day. It was a wonderful speech, a marvelous speech. And what happened that day demands understatement."

To relate again those events would be a simple recalling, reminding people what happened so they could put themselves into the situation.

"That's just fine, but we want to move beyond that. We want to deal with people who experienced events and were changed by them, who are what they are today because of those events," Northshield said.

He pointed out that in the 1969 show, director Martin Scorsese speaks of how filming Woodstock changed his life. A minister who lost his wife, his church and almost his life in Hurricane Camille speaks about learning the terrific strength of faith.

"We don't want to ask Sen. (Stuart) Symington and Clark Clifford inevitable questions about the Kennedy assassination. We want to talk to folks like you and me," Northshield said. "In this first show, except for Scorsese, the interviews are all with people nobody ever heard of."

If the show goes to series, it will concentrate on the 1980s, with occasional forays into the '50s and '70s. It can't go back much further because the television news footage isn't there to support it.

In the pilot, there is a small, painful segment in which Kuralt notes that 325 American servicemen died in Vietnam that week. The camera pans to the Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Washington, D.C., and plays over the names of those 325 casualties listed on the wall.

"This will be a tough series in terms of Vietnam," Northshield said. "We can't do the same thing every week, but we can never skip it completely. I thought the segment in the one-hour show dealt with it directly for four minutes and eight seconds and it is a terribly persuasive symbol."

Northshield and Kuralt have been working together for 10 years on the CBS News 'are a smooth team. "Try To Remember" is not as leisurely paced as "Sunday Morning" or as offbeat as Kuralt's "On The Road" pieces, but the thread of exploring the American character prevails.

"I think the emphasis is on individuality, on the absolute sanctity of the individual," Northshield said. "It's a basic American concept. When we emphasize how an individual life is changed by circumstances, then we emphasize how valuable an individual life is."

Mariana Trench

The Mariana Trench in the Pacific Ocean is 5,973 fathoms deep (35,840 feet), according to The World Almanac.

Spanish Armada

In 1588, the "invincible" Spanish armada of 132 vessels was defeated by an English fleet. The English used only 32 ships, according to The World Almanac.

Are Scott and Billy related?

Dear Dick: I am wondering about Scott Jacoby, who played in "The Little Girl Who Lives Down the Lane." Is a brother to Billy Jacoby of "Silver Spoons." — M.B., Edna, Texas.

Dear M.S.: Yes, Scott Jacoby and Billy Jacoby are brothers.

Dear Dick: I am a student doing a research paper on the history of the soap opera. I am having difficulty locating information about the origination of the soap opera. I thought you might be able to assist me. — R.B., Wyomissing, Pa.

Dear R.S.: There is no unanimity of opinion among students of old radio about when and where soap operas began. However, one strong candidate for the honor (?) of being the first soap opera is "The Smith Family," which went on the air in Chicago in 1925, with the late Jim and Marian Jordan. They went on to become Fibber McGee and Molly.

Dear Dick: Can you tell me if there was a movie made in 1953 called "The Houston Story," with John Wayne and Mamie Van Doren? My husband says it was filmed at the Shamrock Hilton and he was the bartender. It's hard for me to believe. — M.S., Houston.

Dick Kleiner

Dear M.S.: There was a movie called "The Houston Story," but it was released in 1956. And the stars were Gene Barry, Barbara Hale, Edward Arnold, Paul Richards and Jeanne Cooper. I see no mention of a bartender.

Dear Dick: Could you tell me the name of the movie starring Burt Lancaster and Telly Savalas. Burt is a trapper and Telly is a bad guy who steals all his furs. Is it out on video? — C.B., Idaho Falls, Idaho.

Dear C.S.: That sounds like it might be "The Scalphunters," a 1968 release which is not available on video.

Dear Dick: Some time ago, my family and I watched a movie called "Bluegrass" with Cheryl Ladd, Mickey Rooney and others. I thought Mickey Rooney was dead, but my family says no. Who is right? — D.M., Salem, Mo.

Dear Dick: I just heard that Pee-wee Herman died of a drug overdose. I sure hope he's still with us, but, if he did die, how old was he? — J.D., Allegan, Mich.

Dear D.M. and J.D.: Bad rumors, both. Mickey Rooney and Pee-wee Herman are both alive (and, occasionally, kicking).

Dear Dick: Who sang the song "One Bad Apple"? Was it The Jackson Five or another group? — C., Lebanon, VA.

Dear C.: It was another group, specifically The Osmonds. That song was No. 1 for five weeks in 1971.

Dear Dick: I'm a 50-plus female, but I thoroughly enjoy "The Charmings." I especially like Judy Parfitt. Can you give me some background information on her? — K.F., Greenville, Ohio.

Dear K.F.: Judy Parfitt is a veteran London stage actress — once she played Gertrude in "Hamlet," with Anthony Hopkins. She has also done a lot of English TV work. In the memorable "Jewel in the Crown" series, she played Mildred Layton. She still makes her home in England.

Dear Dick: Could you tell us about Miss Kitty's occupation on "Gunsmoke." Was she JUST a bar owner? What was her relationship with Matt Dillon? I thought I read in your column that she was a madame. — A.L.W., Muskegon, Mich.

Dear A.L.W.: Not in my column, you didn't. Technically, all Miss Kitty (Amanda Blake) was was the owner of the Longbranch Saloon. On the radio show, that preceded the TV show, it was pretty clear she was a hooker, or whatever they called them back in them thar days. But on TV she was simply an entrepreneur, and she and Matt (James Arness) never did more than shake hands.

Dear Dick: Please give me the date and place of birth for Tony Randall. A small bet rides on your answer. E.P., Tyngsborough, Mass.

Dear E.P.: I hope you bet he was born in Tulsa, Okla., on Feb. 26, 1920, because that's the where and when of it.

Dear Dick: Quite often I see a male singer on these country music shows and rock music shows wearing one ear bob in his ear. What does this mean? I have been told it was a sign a male is gay when he wears an ear bob in his ear. — J.B.W., Scottsbluff, Neb.

Dear J.B.W.: The earring really has no significance. Some guys wear them — but some macho types wear them, too. As far as I'm concerned, all it is a sign of is that the guy has poor taste.
