RUHR INDUSTRIAL LEADERS HAVE BEEN ARRESTED FOR BLOCKING FRENCH

AND REFUSING TO OBEY ORDERS ONLY FROM BER- LIN AUTHORITIES MUST RESUME

The Mining of Coal Deliveries to France or Belgium Not Later Than Today

(By The Associated Press)
ESSEN, Jan. 17.—The French occupational authorities announced this afternoon they will begin operating the mines of the Ruhr district tomorrow requiring German labor if necessary. Ruhr coal magnates who refused to co-operate with the French will be prosecuted before court martial.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—Reuter dispatch from Essen filed Tuesday says that according to reports from German sources four of the Ruhr industrial leaders were told by French authorities at Dusseldorf to consider themselves under arrest after the magnates reiterated they would only obey orders from Berlin.

How far the Franco-Belgian occupation ultimately will extend and what other punitive steps are contemplated are questions uppermost in the minds of the Ruhr population because of the new ultimatum delivered to the mine directors at Dusseldorf. General Degoutte's latest order, which is declared to be final, provides for resumption of the reparations on coal deliveries to France and Belgium not later than this morning; otherwise Germany will be subjected to further penalties.

The German mine owners say they were not given a hearing at the Dusseldorf meeting and reiterated their intention to abide by the federal commissioner's instructions to withhold the deliveries.

While it was revealed at the conference that the occupation of Dortmund was the price paid for the commissioner's action, French circles in Essen declined to disclose the nature of the additional penalties to be exacted. Reports are widely current that Moenster will be the next large place to fill; yet those are skeptically received because that city is so far outside the so-called Ruhr area.

It is pointed out, however, that Moenster possesses great strategic importance, as it is one of the big central points of the railroad through to West, which runs parallel to the railroad through Hamm, Dortmund, Bochum, Essen and Duisburg. Thus its occupation would aid greatly in effecting control of the Ruhr traffic, as the occupying forces are reported to be planning.

Control stations already have been established on the lines about Essen, freight trains being required to stop for fifteen minutes while their papers are inspected. It is feared here that one of the steps in the program of occupation will be to place such a tight ring of patrols about the occupied territory that the rest of Germany will be deprived of Ruhr coal. It is stated in German quarters that no more freight cars are being permitted by the railroad administration of unoccupied Germany to enter the Ruhr and hundreds of cars were hurried off during the first stages of the occupation.

Entente engineers today went to six mines in the neighborhood of Essen determined to see if deliveries were being resumed and to obtain other data. They were unsuccessful in their mission and are reported to have left word that if the information were not supplied voluntarily soldiers would seize the books.

One of the labor leaders gave it as his opinion that very probably the miners would continue at work, whether the occupying forces finally obtained deliveries for cash or resorted to confiscations. The miners, he said, would have to keep employed in order to support their families; thus economic necessity would force them to overlook whether French or German capital was paying them. He therefore believed a strike was not likely unless the entente tried to extend the working day of the miners.

DUSSELDORF, Jan. 17.—Representatives of the German magnates failed to appear before the control commission, sending word they had decided to obey only instructions from

PRESIDENT VERY ILL TODAY REMAINS IN BED

(By The Associated Press)

Body of Ocie McCreary Found in Lake Monroe, Drowned Probably

Little Dwarfed Negro Was a Town Character for Many Years

The body of Ocie McCreary, known to everyone as "Ossie," was found floating in the waters of Lake Monroe near Grassy Point this morning by Gene Oglesby, who came to this city and reported the discovery to the sheriff's office. Deputy Sheriff Williamson went over in a boat and brought the body back to this city where it was viewed by the coroner's jury at an inquest called by Judge Stringfellow.

The verdict of the jury had not been given out as we go to press. Ocie was a harmless little negro who was dwarfed by nature and who led a homeless life in this city, going to his work occasionally and usually taking up with some hunting or fishing party and remaining away from the city for days at a time. He had no relatives except a sister with whom he made his home when he was at home. He was a town character and stranger to the city were always struck with his grotesque figure with his short legs and long arms and big head. He was about thirty years old and was said by those who knew him and as he had received many good offers from carnival companies to travel with them he preferred to live here and eke out a precarious living by doing odd jobs around different places of business.

His death is probably mourned by as many people here today as though he was one of the prominent citizens, principally because he was harmless and was liked by everyone. It is thought, that Ocie was fishing some time yesterday and fell off the bulkhead and as he could not swim he was drowned.

ASSAILANTS KNOWN

(By The Associated Press)
HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 17.—Goose Creek parties who flogged Mrs. R. H. Harrison, 30 year old widow, and D. A. Armand, oil field worker, are known and justice will be meted out to them, Sheriff T. Binford announced here yesterday as the Harris county grand jury prepared to renew its investigations of the assault. Two arrests are expected and the sheriff said he was ready to lay information concerning the affair before the grand jury.

Berlin government instead of French orders as to coal deliveries, thus placing the next move squarely up to the French occupying the industries.

The ultimatum delivered to the industrial leaders yesterday directing them to resume coal deliveries under heavy penalties for failure, expires at four o'clock this afternoon. No action will be taken by the French, it is stated, until full twenty four hours from delivery of ultimatum has elapsed.

Grand Jury Presentment

The grand jury finished their labors Tuesday morning and were discharged by Judge Perkins. Following is their presentment:

To His Honor, James W. Perkins, Judge of the above-styled court: We, the grand jurors, having been impeached and sworn to investigate and find for the body of the county, and the presentment made, lay leave to report unto the court as follows:

We visited and inspected the poor farm. In the poor house we found five white and three colored inmates, all of whom seemed to be properly cared for, but we recommended that a new cook stove be purchased for the use of the poor house, and that the west porch thereof be repaired; also that the oranges be picked and sold without delay. We further recommended that one screen door be placed in the house for the colored inmates. Otherwise the conditions around the poor house were all right.

Having visited and inspected the convict camp, we make the following recommendations: That suitable seats be placed in what is known as the "Bull Ring," and that the catting tables be widened; and that the "Bull Ring" be extended six feet west and the shed thereof be made three feet higher and extended eight feet westward; that a screen front door be placed to the guard house, the old wires having rusted out. We find that the lights are not sufficient, and should be increased. One large size wash pot should be purchased for the convict camp. We desire to stress the fact that we found conditions around the gas house in a very filthy state, and recommend proper drainage for the same at once. There are no bath conveniences, and we think there should be. We recommend that a metal oil house be erected for the storing of gas—instead of where it is kept at present. We observed that the water is now emptied out on the ground where the prisoners eat, in the "Bull Ring," this should not be done, and we recommend suitable drainage here. We also find that the prisoners have not sufficient covering for their beds, and recommend that thirty-five new double blankets be purchased for the prisoners, also that a comfortable chair and three lanterns be secured for the watchman.

We recommend that the ceiling in the grand jury room of the court house be repaired, and that comfortable chairs be secured for the members of the grand jury, and that these chairs be fastened to the floor, to the end that they may not be removed from the grand jury room. We recommend that all rubbish be removed from the basement of the court house, because of the hazard due to probable fire; and we also recommend that some arrangement be made whereby there may be a separation of the white and colored users of the toilet in the basement of the court house.

We visited and inspected the offices of the clerk of the circuit court, the tax collector and the tax assessor, and find each of these offices in commendable condition, and the incumbents thereof affable and obliging. And the same may be said with respect to the Sheriff's office. It gives us special satisfaction to report that we found the county jail in good condition, sanitary and otherwise, and all the prisoners properly cared for.

From an inspection of the roads, we recommend that on the A. C. L. railroad, between Sanford and Ocoee) new boards be placed where needed, as the present ones have rotted and are dangerous to drive over. Also, the crossing, out on the cemetery road, on route to Lake Mary should be repaired, and there is another danger spot at the corner of Hughes and Lake avenues, near the cemetery, where the vines have grown so thickly on the fence that it is practically impossible to see another car coming around this corner, thus placing lives in jeopardy.

The audience was entertained with songs by individuals and the entire cast. Four witty black faced comedians related quite a few jokes and songs that were enjoyed by all. Citrus Exchange Directors Met Today in Monthly Meeting

Campaign of Selling Inaugurated by Exchange Bears Fruit

TAMPA, Jan. 17.—(Special to the Herald).—One hundred per cent attendance marked this morning's session of the board of directors of the Florida Citrus Exchange in regular monthly meeting, every member being present. The selling campaign of the current season was reported by Sales Manager George A. Scott, as under full headway with general results regarded as quite satisfactory. Already more markets have been sold than were covered during the whole of last year. A detailed analysis of the advertising accomplished since the opening of the shipping season showed a greater degree of efficiency than previously attained and notable results in expanding distribution and holding prices to levels affording Exchange members a fair return on their fruit crops. The cumulative effects of the San Diego advertising in the past year are now becoming evident in the country. These are manifested both in dominant consumer demand and in friendly attitude by the trade. Many dealers advise that they are now compelled to carry adequate stocks of Seed Sweet grapefruit and oranges or lose customers. To more progressive stores which do offer them, competition on a lower price basis from the fruit of non-organized growers who market through speculative agencies continues to be a vexatious problem to the sales department of the co-operating growers. Reports from a large number of markets indicate that Seed Sweet fruit must overcome quotations running from twenty-five cents to one dollar a box lower. Careful investigation demonstrates however, that the price concessions made by the independent operators to get trade seldom if ever are passed on to the ultimate consumers of Florida grapefruit and oranges. Dr. J. H. Ross, president of the organization, was in the chair, C. E. Stewart, Jr., served as secretary and all executives attended the meeting. A number of matters of a routine character were considered and acted upon.

Reports were presented by several regular and some special committees. Estimates showing the approximate amounts of fruit remaining to be moved were presented by the Sub-Exchange managers, whose association had its customary meeting late yesterday afternoon presided over by Chairman C. H. Walker. This afternoon the directors of the Exchange Supply Company are in session with a practically complete attendance of its members. Present at this morning's meeting were President, J. H. Ross, Vice-President D. C. Gillett, Business Manager C. E. Stewart, Jr., J. W. Ponder, John A. Sively, F. C. W. Kramer, Jr., Dr. J. E. Klock, V. B. Newton, E. B. Casler, Joy Heck, J. C. Morrill, R. J. Kopler, Jr., S. C. Warner, P. C. Peters, Lee M. Hamell, C. J. Stubbs, Judge Wm. Hunter, H. G. Gumprecht, H. N. Barnes, A. V. Anderson, W. W. Raymond, L. A. Hakes, W. F. Wiman, J. E. Mattern, W. E. Standing as the good friend of all the parties, it has been the Italian belief from the start that Italy may be in a favorable position to act as a mediator and may be able eventually to bring about complete co-operation among the entente powers.

PROPOSES TO EMBRACE ECONOMIC CONTROL OF THE RUHR SECTION

WITH ALLIANCE

To Be Made With Germany That Would Settle Reparation Question

(By The Associated Press)
Italy has offered to mediate between France and Germany on the reparations question, says a Central News Dispatch from Rome, quoting announcement by the Italian minister of foreign affairs.

Italy's proposals, the dispatch adds embrace economic control of the Ruhr together with a commercial alliance with Germany. Italy is represented as anxious that such an alliance nowise assume an anti-British character.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—To the utmost, consistent with the preservation of its relations with France and also with Great Britain, the Italian government has been exerting itself within the last few days to restrain French officials from proceeding with extreme measures of coercion against Germany.

A clear exposition of Italy's delicate and difficult position in connection with the problem of the Ruhr invasion has already been made known in Italy's allies and undoubtedly, while not sufficient to cause any startling change in the French plans, the views of the Rome government have received serious consideration.

A disclosure of the Italian position is likely to be made soon to official Washington, and meanwhile, some of its features have been learned through persistent inquiry in informed quarters. One of the most important disclosures is that the Italian government while, of necessity concurring in the decision of the reparations commission that Germany was in voluntary default in the supply of coal and other supplies required to be turned over to the allies, never contemplated a military invasion of the Ruhr.

It is quite clear that what the Italian government supposed was to be done was to leave collection of the overdue reparations in the hands of technical experts, and that it is still convinced that such a plan might have worked out successfully without the adoption of severe military measures. It was believed in Rome that strong measures would defeat their very purpose of insuring a supply of coal regarded as absolutely vital to the economic renovation of Italy.

The cost of collecting the penalties by force probably would absorb the entire product, it was held by Italian officials, in view of the enormous expense of a military occupation of the Ruhr, even if it were assumed that the German miners and factory workers would consent to continue under French employment. Meantime, great unrest among the industrial class in Italy, more or less sympathetic with the workers in Germany, supplemented by real distress and unemployment among the Italians, caused by the cutting off of their fuel supply, has caused the Italian government no little concern.

There has been no question of Italy's adherence to the alliance, if for no other reason than that she absolutely must obtain German coal which can be had only in accordance with the provisions of the Versailles treaty. In addition, even more weighty financial considerations are involved in the case of Italy. She must have the coal to run her industries, and on the other hand, she cannot afford to pay for coal imported from countries other than Germany, since the German coal was to come to her without cost as part of the reparations due under the peace treaty.

Standing as the good friend of all the parties, it has been the Italian belief from the start that Italy may be in a favorable position to act as a mediator and may be able eventually to bring about complete co-operation among the entente powers.

"LIFE OF CHRIST" WONDERFUL PICTURE SHOWN AT K. OF C. HALL TO BIG CROWD

One of the most truly wonderful motion picture productions ever staged in Sanford was that of the "Life of Christ," shown to a capacity house at the K. of C. Hall last night.

This picture carries the audience from the time of the annunciation all through the life of Christ to the ascension into heaven. It is a reproduction of the Passion Play, and well worth the time and small price of admission to see it.

This company putting on this picture has had many urgent requests to show again in Sanford on account of the limited space at the K. of C. Hall. And they have consented to show again Wednesday night, Jan. 17th at the High School auditorium.

In addition to this wonderful picture a western play and a comedy is shown, giving the audience a one night's entertainment had to beat.

All you that were unfortunate in not witnessing this mammoth production last night, will therefore have the chance of seeing it tomorrow night at the High School Auditorium.

WHY THE AGITATION ABOUT BRICK

Several years ago Seminole county voted bonds for new road building in the eastern end of the county. It was a special road district and came under the head of a special road district bonds. At the time the bonds were voted it was thought that brick would be used. Meantime the price of all kinds of material had gone up and when it came to receive bids it was discovered that the amount of the bonds would not buy brick and some other material would have to be used. Those who were here remember the howl that went up about this paving and the matter was threshed out for many months before it was finally decided that since brick was out of the question other material would have to be used. Other material was used and the money made to go as far as it could go with the result that the districts obtained their mileage but they received a poor quality of road and last year it was necessary to vote a special bond issue to take care of the road that had gone to pieces in one year's time. Down in Orange county the same thing has occurred. The people voted a certain amount for a road from Orlando to the east coast. It seems that the majority of the tax payers thought they were to get a brick road. Just how this happened we are unable to say for the notice for the bond election evidently read "brick or other materials." But when the contracts were to be let and it was found out that insufficient money could be obtained to put in a brick road there was an awful howl went up from all over Orange county about this road and it was demanded that the commissioners reconsider their decision and have another bond election and make the road of brick.

We are not living in Orange county and know nothing of this affair other than reading about it in the Orange county papers. It is something that occurs all over this state and other states. It is difficult for a board of county commissioners or city commissioners to look ahead and tell what a certain project will cost months after a bond election is made. What we want to know is why the people of counties and cities in so many cases demand that brick be used for paving the county roads and the city streets. Why do they want their public servants to be more careful in selecting their road materials and why do they want brick roads and streets almost without exception?

Why is the sentiment here in Sanford for brick streets? It must be because the brick streets and the brick roads have proved to the tax payers that brick has the right kind of wearing qualities and even with our experience on some of the county roads with a poor grade of brick and wooden curbing sentiment is still stronger than ever in the minds of the people that brick is the most desirable paving for the heavy traffic of today and the still heavier traffic of tomorrow. There must be something behind all this brick talk aside from mere sentiment and what is really behind it is the fact that brick is the only material used so far in this section of the country that has really stood the wear and tear of heavy traffic. The Herald is only trying to avoid the mistakes of the past and to profit by the experience in the past to obtain that material which will wear the longest and give us the right kind of paving for this day and for the future. We have no right to foist these bond issues upon the future generation unless we leave them something of a heritage that will prove an investment for their money. Some of us will not live to see these bond issues paid off. They must of necessity fall upon the shoulders of our children.

Our public servants then owe it to the present generation as well as the next generation to buy the material in street paving that they know will last and prove the best investment for the people's money.

FLORIDA'S GROWTH CAUSES WIDE COMMENT

The figures compiled by the Tampa Tribune showing the growth of the leading Florida cities during the year 1922 as evidenced by the tabulation of the building records of these cities, have been quoted throughout the eastern section of the country by newspapers that are pointing to Florida as a state where there is taking place a development outstanding in its character and the wonder of our sister states. The Tribune listed 11 Florida cities, the records of which total $104,594,760. Of course these figures do not take into account several other smaller towns, the aggregate from which would add a considerable amount. Jacksonville takes first place, Miami takes second, St. Petersburg takes third, Tampa takes fourth, Orlando takes fifth, West Palm Beach takes sixth, Daytona takes seventh and Lakeland takes eighth. Sanford ranks a close race for seventh position, her figures being $1,213,000, as against our $1,243,295. A study of these figures will reveal a remarkable uniformity in Florida's development, due in a large part to the building of permanent paved highways which bring in thousands of new people where former there were scores. Lakeland Star Telegram.

HOUSES APE HOMES NOWADAYS

It is delightful to see that every dwelling house practically which goes up nowadays in frame, in stucco, 1 1/2 or in brick, is a home, a real home, with a spacious living room as the center of family life. Gone is the formal old "front parlor," where chairs sat in stiff rows, and everything had a "touch-me-not" air. Instead of the family photographs of long ago and the stereoscopic type are books overflowing with snap shots, records of the family made possible through the informal Kodak, which has recorded incidents in the lives of the children since before they were able to toddle. Books, magazines, pictures and the open fireplaces for cool evening chat can one have a better setting for the family group?

Persons may say what they like about the modern destruction of the "family life." But place the blame where you may, it cannot be laid on the home, or the home-builder, for surely houses never had more of the "home atmosphere," the home possibilities, than have the dwellings of today, with convenience, comfort and livableness as the paramount considerations. St. Augustine Record.

WE MUST RESPECT THE LAW

A session of circuit court usually brings to mind the fact that in our courts lie the salvation of the country. Unless we are all imbued with the proper respect for the law the very foundations upon which this country is built will fall from non-support. There are times when the passions of men overwhelm them to such a degree that they are prone to forget the law and endeavor to take the law into their own hands and every time a mob is formed the law loses just that much respect from the minds of the men who form the mob and those that fear it, and the city and county and state have a black mark placed against their name in the category of cities, counties and states and the country itself loses caste and prestige and character. There are crimes where it would seem that there is only one way to proceed and that way is usually carried out if possible.

We do not say we would not proceed in the same way were it brought to our door, but even in extreme cases the mob law does not make for good citizenship. In the case just brought to our attention from the fact that the murderer will hang publicly for his crime we wish to commend the men of Seminole county and especially the relatives of the man who was killed. They had provocation enough to punish the perpetrator of cold blooded murder to take the law into their own hands but once the culprit was in the hands of the law and a speedy trial was provided and that promise has been fulfilled, it is better for all parties concerned that the fair name of Seminole be not tarnished by mob law. We should all have more respect for the law. We are all to prone to break the laws, great and small when we think we can break them without being caught. We are all too prone to wink at infractions of some laws and get about from the house tops about our good citizenship. We must make a start now to endeavor to get the proper respect for the laws by our own individual actions in upholding all the laws at all times and we can then take a supreme satisfaction in advocating that which we ourselves are endeavoring to carry out. We need more respect for the laws and we believe that the country is getting better in this respect.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK FOR 1923

Richard H. Edmonds, editor of The Manufacturers' Record. Writing of the prospects of 1923 says:

"The reversal of the financial policies which wrought wreck and ruin in 1921 and from which we have not yet fully recovered marked the closing years as epochal in national affairs. From the gloom and midnight darkness which covered the land following a depression which if we include in farm property swept away probably $50,000,000,000 in value, we are emerging into the dawning hours of returning sunshine.

"We have diagnosed the almost fatal disease from which we suffered and the remedy is being applied. The disease was due to ignorance or incompetence or worse, but those responsible for that condition are no longer in control and with the remedies now being used the patient—American business—is rapidly regaining vitality.

"The new year will have to face many problems, but none of them, we are sure, will be as complex, and as hard of solution, as those which we have met and mastered during 1922. In the very realization of the agricultural problem which has come to the whole country is to be found the assurance that the nation will overcome these difficulties and once more make prosperous agriculture the foundation of our larger and broader national life and our business activities.

"The development of our industries, the expansion of our transportation facilities, the building of modern highways throughout the land, the construction of hundreds of thousands of much needed dwellings, the expenditure of hundreds of millions upon roads, churches, and municipal and other buildings will all combine to tax the constructive powers of the whole country.

"We are going to pay our national indebtedness by increasing our national wealth through the larger utilization of our boundless resources rather than by niggardly, cheap, paring methods which, while nominally saving a penny would for every penny they saved be destroying a dollar of our created potentiality.

"It behooves us, therefore, with our financial situation being cleared up, and our business interests reviving, to take courage and go forward.

"The supposed lions in the path of progress will prove to be only timid rabbits ready to run from us when we determine that forgetting the things that are behind us we will press forward to new and larger victories in 1923 than we had in 1922."

THE LEGION AND POLITICS

From several sources there comes great fear that the American Legion will divert its activities to politics. What if it does? From what we know of the performances of the individuals who constitute the American Legion, we will feel a great deal safer in their hands than in the hands of these great patriots, the "dollar a year men" who operated the government while these boys were fighting their battles.

Of course it would be an unfortunate affair if the Legion should fall into the too common error of supporting a candidate for office simply because he is a Legion man. But all things being equal we cannot see any reason why a Legion member should not support a Legion man in politics. They supported each other in the most dreadful hours of the world's history; we treated them then. We can trust them to do the big and manly thing now.

The soldiery of America has always had preference in the matter of office holding. The old soldiers have had their turn, and it is now but rational and consistent that our young soldiery be permitted to show their capacity for government. The good, sensible and moral young men of the Legion can accomplish great things for this country as they will hold back the designing and unreliable members of their order and see to it that good and reliable men who will merit the good will and the confidence of the better people of the land are put forward. This is essential to the life and usefulness of their order and the welfare of society. When the call came for the men to face the dangers of war, the young men of America did not stop to inquire: "What are we going to get out of it?" They went to the front and they did their work so well that some people think they brought about the finish too soon. But if those in charge of the government and the big affairs of the war had done their part as fairly and efficiently as the soldiery on the field no one would now be saying the war came to an end too soon. Perhaps we need some new blood and some new pep. If the Legion leadership is put in the hands of its best men the country will be blessed by that leadership.—Reporter Star.

O. P. SWOPE BUYS VALUABLE HOME IN ORLANDO

A business transaction of unusual interest to all of Seminole county has just been consummated in Orlando by which Mr. O. P. Swope, buys an elegant home there, known as the McAdoo home and located on Lake Eola.

Mr. Swope has been a wonderful factor in the upbuilding of Seminole county for the past 12 years, coming to the county from the west and locating in Oviedo where he and his associates took over a large tract of absolutely wild hammock land and began actively to clear, tile and put it in cultivation, with the result that in the last season there was fully 500 acres of winter vegetables grown and shipped from this section, and it is now one of the most promising sections of our county. Contemporaneous with this development which meant the spending of very large sums of money, it has naturally attracted many new families who are now numbered among our most contented and prosperous residents of the county.

Mr. Swope has also been very unselfish in the giving of his time and talent to the general welfare of the entire community and state, serving for three terms as county commissioner of his district and in all these years could always be depended upon to do everything within his power for the promotion of the entire interests of the whole county. Being endowed with unusual business sagacity and indomitable energy his efforts have resulted richly toward putting Seminole county in the fore front of the most progressive counties of the state.

It is with great pleasure that we are able to state that Mr. Swope still retains large interests in the city and county and will continue to be actively associated with its business interests and welfare, and although he will reside in Orlando he will continue to spend a great deal of time in our county and can still be absolutely relied upon to put his business energy and ability in helping to promote the interests of Seminole county and Sanford.

Mr. Swope owns one of the best business blocks in Sanford, is a member of the board of trade, the Kiwanis club and is regarded, and will always be regarded as one of our own best citizens.

NEW DEVELOPMENTS IN KIDNAPPING CASE AT MER ROUGE

(By The Associated Press) BASTROP, La., Jan. 16. New ground was broken today by State Attorneys in their task of unearthing of the mystery surrounding the kidnapping of Watt Daniel and Thomas Richard, victims of blind hooded kidnappers, and by the statement of Ka Klux Klan men, a rental was put into the records describing an assemblage of Klansmen in a store here in anticipation that Mer Rouge citizens might swoop down on Bastrop in retaliation.

James F. Harp and "Jap" Jones, farmers of Bonita, a village in the southern part of the Morehouse parish, testified that after the kidnapping of Daniel, Richard and three other men on the Mer Rouge-Bastrop pike, August 24 last, a dozen or more men described as Klansmen, gathered in a hardware store here, armed themselves and prepared for eventualities. Both insisted that the Klan had no part in the kidnapping, but that the gathering of the Klansmen was deemed advisable as a precautionary measure in view of intense feeling in the parish.

Boydton Presents Settlement Plan For Reservations

Action American Observer in France Completely Mystified Washington

(By The Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Jan. 16. Dispatches from Paris stating that Boydton, American observer with the reparations commission, has submitted a reparations settlement plan to the commission completely mystified officials here. The state department disclaimed all knowledge of the plan in a formal statement.

Officials felt certain there had been a misapprehension some where along the line. The prompt action of Secretary Hughes in authorizing a statement was supposed to be the clue that it should be definitely understood that the Washington government had no connection with any project which has been laid before the reparations commission. The statement fell like a bomb.

The department does not know what this department knows. Neither the secretary nor any member of the department has approved any plan for settlement of the reparations commission or any national or any such settlement. The department is not attempting directly or indirectly to fix German reparations or to prepare plans for the reparations commission. Mr. Boydton has no instructions to prepare any plan of the sort.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Jan. 16. A patient who had escaped from the Florida Criminal Asylum, was found in St. Petersburg, Fla., today. The patient, who was reported to have fled in this direction.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Jan. 15.—A letter received from Dr. J. W. Peacock, former physician here who made a sensational escape last year from the criminally insane department of the state penitentiary, is said to contain a statement that he has been declared sane by Florida alienists and has been released by a Florida judge. The letter, which is post-marked at Lakeland, Fla., is also said to contain a request to his wife to send him his office fixtures as he plans to begin the practice of medicine in Florida and that he would be in St. Petersburg today.

Dr. Peacock was confined to the criminally insane department of the penitentiary last year following his trial on a charge of killing the chief of police of Thomasville. The jury found that Dr. Peacock was insane at the time of the killing and his commitment followed.

LAKELAND, Jan. 16.—Court records show that Dr. J. W. Peacock who escaped from the criminally insane department of the North Carolina state penitentiary last year, was declared sane at Arcadia, Fla., last Thursday before Judge George W. Whitehurst, after an examination by Dr. H. M. Richards and Dr. R. R. Sullivan of Lakeland.

Gompers Plans Fight by Labor on Dry Measure

(By The Associated Press) CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 16.—Mobilization of the forces of American organized labor offer a modification of the Volstead act, which would provide for the manufacture and sale of beer and light wines was arranged for at a conference held yesterday between Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor and the general executive board of the Brewery Workers' International Union at that organization's headquarters here.

"We plan to make America once more the home of the sane and the land of the free," the labor leader declared, following an all day conference with the board members who represent every section of the United States and Canada.

While the conference was held in secret, it was announced that plans were discussed for a nation-wide drive for the revision of the prohibition law and that every member of congress would be interviewed personally and made acquainted with the position labor takes on the prohibition law.

"Wine and beer of light alcoholic content are sure to come back and they will come back soon," declared Mr. Gompers, who made a hurried trip from Washington to attend the conference.

Mr. Gompers said there was a vast difference between the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act. The latter, he said, went far in advance of what was contemplated in the organic law.

"Where the fanatical dries erred in attempting to prove that beverages containing more than one half of one per cent is intoxicating," he declared, "beer or wine containing a moderate percentage of alcohol is not only harmless; it is positively wholesome and would serve many good purposes. It would promote temperance. It would be an antidote or strong drink. Asked if he favored a restoration of the saloon, Mr. Gompers emphatically declared: "No, Nobody does. The saloon is an institution of dark ages. It is gone forever. And whiskey as a beverage also is a thing of the past."

VACCINATION OF POULTRY, WHAT IT IS AND WHAT IT DOES

By DR. SIMON E. PETERSON Chickens, quip, fowl diphtheria, and cholera are, perhaps, the greatest source of loss to the poultry industry today.

According to Friedberger, the noted German authority, the mortality in chickens and fowl diphtheria is 95 to 70 per cent. Where the infection is less severe, and the mortality not so high, the total money loss may be even greater than when many birds die. If the disease is not properly treated in the beginning, and convalescence is slow, the egg loss and the reduced vitality which makes the birds poor layers is often greater than the value of the bird itself.

The mortality in cholera is often as high as 75 to 95 per cent. It frequently runs a very rapid course from death may result in 21 to 48 hours. Fowl Cholera has been recently included among the diseases requiring official notification in Germany, Austria, and Hungary. Upon the appearance of the disease, the infected premises, localities, or when the disease is very virulent and widespread even a town may be quarantined against traffic in fowls. Early treatment is always advised; it decreases mortality considerably.

What is Vaccination? Vaccination is a simple, safe, scientific method of preventing and treating disease. During the Spanish American War, before vaccination was generally established, 1 soldier out of every 5 contracted typhoid fever and 1 in every 50 died from the scourge. In the World War, because the soldiers were vaccinated on entering camp, only 1 man in each 200 contracted the disease, and only 1 in each 2,000 died of it. Vaccination was responsible for this low death rate.

Vaccination is the answer to the poultry problem as well. Investigation has shown that Fowl Cholera, Roup, Canker, Sore Head, Chicken Pox, Diphtheria, and other similar diseases can be controlled by this method. Practical experience has proved that vaccination has reduced losses from these diseases to a minimum. The more the poultry public becomes familiar with this scientific treatment the more will it be possible to reduce the terrific annual loss from preventable poultry diseases.

Vaccination is not new. Pasteur, the great French scientist and originator for the Pasteur treatment for rabies or hydrophobia, practiced vaccination for fowl cholera in 1880. Manteuffel, another French scientist, succeeded in vaccinating chickens against chicken-pox and diphtheria. The fowls were made immune to subsequent infections for over a year. In order better to understand the theory as well as the practice of vaccination; that is, just what vaccination is, and what must take place in the body of a fowl that has been vaccinated to produce immunity to disease or to affect recovery, it is well, right here to define certain medical terms. Knowing the definition of these terms, will make the remainder of this article clear and easier understood.

Vaccination is the injection into the animal body (human beings, as well as fowls, are animals, biologically speaking) of bacteria or their products in such a way that immunity to disease is established. Bacteria or Bacterial Organisms are disease germs. The products are poisonous albumins called toxins. Immunity is that condition in which an individual or a species of animals exhibits unusual or complete resistance to an infection.

A Bacterin consists of dead organisms suspended in normal salt solution and when introduced into the body, produces immunity by the formation of antibodies. An antibody is a substance present in the blood stream which is capable of destroying or neutralizing bacteria or their toxins.

One Strain and Many Strain Bacterins

Experience has shown that the injection of bacterins has produced immunity to specific diseases when properly administered. It is a scientific fact, beyond dispute that, certain diseases are caused by specific organisms. Other diseases, complications of a primary infection, may be caused by a variety of bacteria. Such diseases are usually called mixed infections. It is clear, then, that vaccination against one strain does not always protect against another. Bacterins are, therefore, prepared containing bacteria of many races or strains, and isolated from as many sources as possible. A bacterin containing only one strain is called univalent; a bacterin containing many strains is called polyvalent or mixed.

This leads us up to the vaccination of poultry. Which is the right bacterin to use, and why? It is obvious that, from our knowledge of colds, roup, chicken-pox, catarrh, cholera and associated diseases, all from infections, that no single organism can be the cause. A few fowls may contract a cold; in a short while the entire flock may show symptoms of a cold; then croup and diphtheria may set in. Chicken-pox may be the primary disease; it may be complicated with roup. Cholera may or may not appear alone. Can these complications be caused by a single germ? No!

We have learned that a univalent bacterin does not protect against another strain or a mixed infection. Consequently to protect a poultry flock from the various diseases, and complications which have been mentioned, only a bacterin made from many races or strains, isolated from as many sources as possible, will afford protection; a polyvalent or mixed bacterin.

When should a flock be vaccinated? It is difficult for the layman to vacccinate. How long with vaccination remains permanent? Will vaccination cure all poultry diseases? Will vaccination introduce disease into a flock? Is vaccination expensive? How shall the poultryman know he is buying the right kind of bacterin?

The proper time to vaccinate is in the fall, winter and early spring, or for that matter, any time. Better late than never, if protection is wanted. Vaccination is done before the flock becomes diseased the owner may be reasonably sure that his birds will remain free from infection; they should be protected up to a year. Three doses, three to five days apart are recommended as a full treatment. Because of conditions encountered on the show circuit, an extra dose should be given a week or ten days prior to shipment. If disease is already in the flock, vaccination may or may not save all the birds. That depends upon how far the disease has advanced, and how many complications are present. It will, however, save a big percentage of them. Vaccination will not cure all poultry diseases. AVIAN (fowl) tuberculosis is incurable. Gapes, intestinal worms, lice, mites, and other diseases for which vaccination is not intended; cannot be cured by this treatment.

Vaccination is simple and easy. Reliable manufacturers' directions are so plain that anybody with ordinary intelligence can, with one assistant and a little practice, vaccinate from 100 to 200 or more fowls an hour. The cost is only a few cents per bird; and the extra eggs laid and the better health of a vaccinated bird soon pay for that. We have learned that a bacterin contains only dead organisms, consequently when properly prepared, Avian (fowl) bacterin is non-poisonous and absolutely harmless and its use positively cannot introduce disease into a flock. We have also learned that a single strain bacterin will not protect against a mixed infection. Therefore, the proper bacterin to use is one made from many strains, or a mixed bacterin. To be certain that, when buying bacterins, you get the right product, insist upon only those which are manufactured under Veterinary License, issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

PREPARE FOR BREAKDOWN

LAUSANNE, Jan. 16.—A gloomy statement concerning the accomplishment of the near east peace conference and the possibilities of a satisfactory settlement was made today by spokesmen for the British delegation. The statement gave the information that the British, at least, were preparing public opinion for a breakdown of the conference.

The Turks failed to meet the suggestion that the Turkish loan, both principal and interest, should be divided among Turkey and the so-called succession states or territories detached from Turkey since the World War.

TAILOR-MADE ADVERTISING One great fact must be remembered by those who have made the decision to advertise. The advertising plan must fit the business to which it is applied. There are no ready-to-wear advertising plans; each one must be tailor made. The purpose of advertising is to increase business and NOT to relieve any one of his arduous duties. The manufacturer's salesman who regards advertising as a substitute for his own efforts has missed the point. His efforts are needed more than ever to support the advertising and put it across. His reward is larger sales. Likewise, the merchant who chooses the advertised brands because they are "soft and easy" selling, has overlooked the essential idea. Certainly they sell easier; but this is not the big important truth. Rather, he should see that the manufacturer's advertising is an instrument put into his hands for increasing volume and speeding up his turnover. Looking at the matter in this light, he will bend every effort to co-operate with the advertising and seek to make it pay him additional profits. Advertising is not a form of perpetual motion that goes on forever without human assistance. The biggest problem any man has to settle after he has determined to advertise, and decided HOW to advertise, is this: How can I use my advertising so as to get the most out of it? Without close-linked co-operation it dissipates its force into air. It must be hitched on to a business properly. Then it must be utilized with intelligence. When these conditions are fulfilled it does a type of work for which there is no efficient substitute.
