

American Professionals Will Invade British Golf Field In Less Than Week

By Davis J. Walsh
International News Service

NEW YORK, Apr. 5.—Within less than a week, they will be sending a team of American professional golfers out to the British open championship and because this will be held this year at Muirfield—the elevated felds of high hat will be on for everybody and, if they can have their way, Hagen will be eating with the scullery help. There is no place like Muirfield for giving an American a case of permanent distemper.

It is a place that divides the human race into only two classes. One is a professional and the other a gentleman. And in case you are an American of either classification, all the worse for you.

It was at Muirfield, that Eddie Van Vleck, of the Park Avenue Van Vleck, was given the back of someone's neck when he attempted to play as an amateur in one of the British championships. Edward didn't bring a letter from his cotillion leader or something. Anyhow, they wouldn't let him play, in spite of the fact that he was vouched for by a then prominent British amateur. It must have been like the Morris plan and required three endorsements so that when you stole the piano, there would be a man at each leg to help you carry it back.

The funny thing about it all is that official American golf admires this typically British attitude more intensely and even goes so far as to ape it in some respects.

There isn't any class consciousness in everyday golf here, for Joe Doaks, the prominent caddie master who has worked hard and become club professional, is pandered to as though he was a man among men. But, officially, we are as close to British standards as we can get to get. Hagen is only Hagen on the scoreboard when he plays in our open championship and thereby is made to look like a chump because every amateur in the field rates the prefix "Mr." for some absurd reason.

There are certain clubs, happily few in number, who affect this British chill and, therefore, are correspondingly high in favor. Baltusrol is one of these and in order to preserve the illusion in its original state, it hired as its club manager an Englishman who even looked down a disdainful nose at the club president. When they conducted the amateur championship in 1928, Baltusrol divided the newspapermen into classes, which, as a parlor trick, represents par for any course.

Those who were on the list received credentials and were presumed to be gentlemen until such time as they were found out. Those who weren't on the list were ignored on a very large scale. Getting back to the Anglicized complex under which labor the officials of American golf, didn't they leave Bill Mehlhorn out of their Ryder Cup selections? There is nothing the matter with Mehlhorn's table manners.

DIXIE INCREASES LEAD IN QUINTET MEET IN CHICAGO

Many Upsets Remove Favorites From Big Basketball Tourney

CHICAGO, Apr. 5.—(INS)—Quarter finals in the University of Chicago national professional basketball tournament were to be staged today, following a session of upsets in which the defending champions, together with several highly rated contenders were swept from the competition.

The biggest upset of the tourney came last night when Classes High of Oklahoma City defeated the youngsters from Ashland, Ky., 1928 title holders. The score was 16 to 14.

The East lost its lone hope for the title when a quintet of young giants from Athens, Tex., swept over Naugatuck, Conn., 34 to 20.

The sharpshooting engineers from the Lone Star State are a picturesque combination and have won a big following among the fans.

Of the eight surviving teams, five are from the South, two from the Middle West and one from the Rocky Mountains. The contests of Vienna, Ga., and Heath, Ky., were also rated among major upsets on yesterday's card.

The Georgians especially appeared to be the class of the tournament—until they crossed the path of a fast-stepping quintet from Warren, Ark. The Warren Travelers vetoed the famous "slow train" story to the tune of 26 to 24.

An unheralded five from Jenks, La., rose to superb heights in cutting down the rugged youngsters from Heath, Ky., by another close score, 25 to 23.

A similar victory was that of the unassuming College Grove five of Tennessee, over the highly touted Wheling, W. Va., team. This score was 34 to 20.

Another southern five came through when Wheeler, Miss., defeated Baton, N. M., 31 to 11. Jackson, Mich., triumphed over Potatello, Idaho 15 to 11, but the Far West kept in the running when Jose, Colo., won over Yankton, S. D., 22 to 20.

Today's pairings: College Grove, Tenn., vs. Athens, Tex.

Jackson, Mich., vs. Wheeler, Miss.

Jenks, La., vs. Jose, Colo.

Warren, Ark., vs. Classes, Oklahoma City.

Mrs. Inman Flirted With Man To Make Husband Jealous

"No sir, I feared publicity for myself and because of my father." Mrs. Inman is the daughter of an Indian clergyman.

Telling the story of the "broken nose" incident Mrs. Inman said: "I had attended a tea party with some women friends. Their husbands joined the party and I was invited to dinner. I telephoned Walker and he said it was alright. When I returned home about 2:30 A. M. he was asleep. I said 'Walker, darling get up.' He was very drunk and struck me. I couldn't phone because he cut the wires and I ran into the hall calling for a doctor. The hall boy asked if I had any medicine and I said: 'No, no. Just get me a doctor.' I didn't want gossip around the apartment house. He struck me again with his fist and said he was doing it so no one would ever love me again. I wretched to get up and fight back. My eyes were black for a month."

Milane Has Colleen More Film Tonight

Colleen Moore, typifying the 1929 version of the modern American girl, comes to the Milane Theatre tonight in her newest First National picture, "Why Be Good?" according to an announcement by the theatre management.

"Why Be Good?" is regarded as one of the most entertaining pictures in which Miss Moore has ever appeared. The story, which was written especially for her by C. E. Wilson, deals both humorously and seriously with the age-old conflict of ideas between present and past generations.

Opposite the piquant star of "Why Be Good?" is Neil Hamilton, whose portrayal of Digby as "lean Geste" won him a host of admirers. Edward Martindel, Basil King, Louis Natheaux, Lincoln Stedman and John St. Polis also appear prominently in Miss Moore's drama in this modern comedy-drama.

Appointments Of Givens Held Up By State Senate

led to the belief that final action had not been taken. The rule as to secrecy might be lifted tomorrow, members said.

Governor Carleton, questioned regarding the subject under consideration at the executive session, said his only message to the senate contained the nominations of Givens and Judge Pettway. Beyond this he was silent. Up to the hour of closing the governor's office had been closed to the public and the press came just after President Parri h of the senate had completed the reading of appointments to the 40 committees which will handle preliminary business during the session.

Not a senator would answer a question about what took place behind closed doors. Dozens of them were questioned by reporters and house members. But they observed the rule that they were not to talk.

SALES MANAGERS IMPRESSED WITH PLYMOUTH AUTO

Outlook Is Declared Bright By Officials Attending Meeting

DETROIT, Mich., Apr. 6.—Following their first inspection of the new Plymouth Motor Corporation plant in Detroit, regional sales managers of the company returned to their territories this week extremely enthusiastic concerning the quality of the Plymouth car and the sales outlook for Spring. During the week, in addition to witnessing modern, volume manufacturing methods at the plant, the managers learned from A. vanDerZee, Plymouth general sales manager, of the support dealers will be given by the factory sales organization.

Managers attending the conference, the first since formation of the new Plymouth sales organization early this year, were L. J. McCracken, of the Atlantic; J. H. Corvill, of the Northern; K. R. Spencer, of the Lakes and M. A. Campbell, of the Western region. Mr. vanDerZee, discussing the meeting, said: "Years of association with automobile companies have familiarized these regional managers with modern methods of car manufacture, yet they were visibly impressed with the new Plymouth plant, and the exacting methods employed in building quality into this low priced car. "Following the various steps of manufacture they frequently commented upon the way each part was tested before it entered into the assembled product. Special interest was shown in testing the Plymouth crankshaft. Costly apparatus in charge of highly skilled mechanics, tests the balance of these crankshafts statically and dynamically with great accuracy and rapidity. This accuracy of crankshaft balance is one of the important factors that insure the smooth yet powerful operation of Plymouth engines."

General Tire Sales Show Good Gain In Three Months

AKRON, O., Apr. 6.—Sales of General Tire and Rubber Company for the first quarter of the year ending February 28th showed a substantial increase over the same period of last year in spite of lower selling prices. This increase was gained through the shipment to their exclusive distributors for replacement tires.

General Company does not use original equipment tires. The Automobile Manufacturers' Association has distributed to the retail distributors of the General Tire Co. just been increased 1-3 percent in larger sizes and 1-5 percent in smaller additions to the Akron increase in capacity for tires was made to meet the growing demand for tires by owners of popular cars who are swinging to the present low prices bringing the General tires in the reach of everyone. The cost of today's prices and cents difference between the cost of a General tire and a comparable small size is comparatively small. Demand for the General tire has been further increased by the New Dual-Ballion tire which is being heavily advertised for car owners who are changing now to carry the extra tire. The new tire is claimed to equalize the former Ballion construction in that extra cord fabric have been added for safety and freedom from punctures.

McGraw Predicts Victory For Giants Despite Their Want Of Second Baseman

Davis J. Walsh, International News Service Sports Editor. NEW YORK, Apr. 6.—If it is true that a ball team is no stronger than its second baseman, then in the inelegant phraseology of the curbside, John McGraw must be getting ready to lay an egg with his New York Giants this season. Mr. McGraw has been pausing ever and anon in his travels through the South to issue statements in a most rash and impetuous vein and his sales talks are not without merit considering the club's record of 13 victories in 15 starts.

But all of this mouth wash ran for Mrs. Sweeney's husband when the club reached Biloxi, Miss., the other day and Mr. McGraw felt constrained to request Casey Stengel, his former hired man, to shift his Toledo lineup in order that John might look at Eddie Moore for a few innings. True, he had looked at Edward almost incessantly while the Pittsburgh Club in 1926 and the Boston Club in 1927 were finding out that they didn't really care for him in a big way. But a man will look at anything, it is a period of weeks, he has been looking mostly at nothing.

The same game saw Melvin Ott, the reformed catcher and present outfielder, on second base and Andy Reese on the bench. They said Andy needed a rest, whereas everybody with the club knows that what he actually needs is a permanent assignment to the outfield.

Mr. McGraw, it seems, also wished to gaze upon Herb Thomas in the act of performing some second basing, so he contrived to have the young man appear on Mr. Reese's behalf before the game was over.

Whippet Makes Big Record In Period Of Only Three Years

TOLEDO, O., Apr. 6.—The soundness and thoroughness of the work of Willys-Overland engineers is well illustrated in the history of the Whippet since its introduction nearly three years ago.

When this car was first announced in June of 1926, it set a trend in car design which has since that time been followed by practically every motor car manufacturer. While both the chassis and the body of the new Whippet set entirely new standards, it was the motor particularly which departed radically from the accepted design and engineering practice followed up to that time.

The high speed high compression Whippet motor with its exceptionally high horsepower for the bore stroke employed, permitting of exceedingly economical consumption of gasoline and oil, and capable of sustained high speed under all road conditions, readily won a leading position in American motordom.

Since the first Whippet was introduced, while these have incorporated number of changes and refinements in both the engine and power line design, including the transmission and rear axle, fundamentally there have been no major changes. The new Superior Whippet still follows these basic principles.

WOMAN FLIER SEES PLANES AS FINELY OUTFITTED AS AUTOS

DETROIT, Mich., Apr. 6.—Louise McPhetridge Thaden, who remained aloft in her open plane 22 hours 4 minutes at the Oakland Calif., airport on March 17, setting a new endurance record for women fliers, predicts that airplanes will be made, in time, to equal comfort, convenience, and ease of handling of the motor car, through the influence of women.

"What women have done for the automobile they are going to do for the airplane," says Mrs. Thaden. "Do you remember the bare, uncomfortable, inconvenient automobiles of a few years ago? Well compare them with this! With a gesture she indicated a Graham Paige sedan standing alongside her plane. "Do you see the difference? Women brought that about. Luxurious upholstery, starters, easy gear-shifts, color, beauty, ease of handling, convenience—these are women's work. Automobiles now are nicer than parlors used to be."

"Airplanes used to be just as bare as the old automobiles. Remember Lincoln Beachey sitting on that uncomfortable wind-swept seat out in front of his old pusher plane? Well, already women's influence is being felt in airplane design, and look at the changes! Now we have enclosed planes, lined with upholstery, comfortable chairs instead of the old, hard narrow seats; windows that slide open at a touch, carpets on the floors, beautiful color schemes. Women's influence has made airplanes attractive."

Seaboard Puts Out Million Yearly On State Gasoline Tax

JACKSONVILLE, Apr. 6.—Florida motorists rarely give a thought to the part they play in the building of this State every time they visit a filling station. As individuals, the few pennies paid for the state gas tax seems a trifling matter, yet in the aggregate, it becomes a vast source of revenue for the State.

Officials of the Seaboard Oil Company, serving a gigantic network of over 700 Blue and White Service Stations in Florida, estimate that during a year the public pays them and they pay your State considerably over $1,000,000 in gasoline taxes alone. This of course, does not include the many thousands of dollars which this great Florida Company pays in taxes on their hundreds of Blue and White Service Stations, or their 31 huge bulk plants and terminals, or on their 100 or more huge trucks that busily serve the Blue and White Service Stations from this network of strategically located bulk plants.

The faith of large companies, such as exemplified by the Seaboard Oil Company, in Florida's growth and prosperity is great indeed. When one considers that by this Company alone over $3,000,000.00 is invested in plants, equipment and properties in this State. And further that through its activities, the earnings and livelihood of some 1400 Florida families depend.

Hudson Company's Soon To Celebrate 21st Anniversary

DETROIT, Mich., Apr. 6.—In their sentiment in big business? Executive, of the Hudson Motor Car Company will tell you there is. This is the "coming of age" year of the company, during which it will celebrate its 21st birthday.

Last year the executives planned to make 1928 the biggest year in the company's history, thus making the "majority year" a dual celebration. From the heads of the departments down to the men on the production line; field service men, distributors, dealers salesmen and service men, came pledges to work towards that end.

The first indication that the pledge has been kept was officially made known when thousands of men from all over the country, and from the overseas countries which Hudson-Essex serves went to Detroit to see what the engineers, artists and workers at the factory had done as their part in the program.

What they saw pleased them. Hudson was introduced to them as the greatest Hudson. It was more beautiful, had higher standards of performance, was more economical, faster, roomier, more comfortable and had 64 improvements. Essex was christened the Challenger, because, said the men who created it, it could successfully challenge anything in the field in speed, comfort, roominess, fast get-away, brakes, economy, durability and value. Essex the Challenger had 76 improvements.

Mac Smith Hopes To Shake Jinx Which Has Followed Him Through Golf Career

By Naa O'Reilly NEW YORK, Apr. 4.—(INS)—Will Mac Smith be able to beat the championship jinx this season.

The Scot, now on his way across the big pond, is hoping that when he returns to the United States in May, he will have to account to the customs for an extra piece of baggage—a little silver cup, more or less roccob in design and of little material value. Yet to Mac it will be worth all the gold in the Treasury, for it will mean that he will have broken through the championship jinx which has haunted his footsteps since he came to this country two decades ago.

When you watch the Carnoustie man swing a club, you marvel that he doesn't walk away with every title in the world, bar none. But that championship complex, from which no divot-digger is ever really free, has kept Mac from the blue ribbon class, even when it didn't seem possible that he could fall to win.

When Mac's tee up at Muirfield early in May, in quest of the British open title, will the ghost of that disastrous 82 he took at Prestwick walk along the fairway with him? If he can wipe that score out of his memory, Mac will be a dangerous man in that field, the fastest in the golf world.

Smith must have had many a nightmare over that 82. Think of it—needing 78 to win the British title, and taking 82 to finish fourth! That was Mac's portion in 1928. It would seem that a 78 for a master golfer such as Smith, should have been simple under any conditions, but Mac, with his nerves jumping and his teeth on edge simply couldn't stand the gaff of having twenty thousand golf-mad spectators push him and maul him all over the course.

A Tough Break They say that in sportsmen they never come back. Well, Mac did. He came to this country in 1908, a gangling youngster with a thick Scotch burr (from which he has never parted), and basked in the reflected glory of his brothers Alex and the late Will. The Smith boys had put the clan in the limelight by winning a pair of national titles, but it wasn't long before Mac made his bid for fame.

Fate had the cards stacked against him even then, for after finishing in a three-cornered tie for the national open at the Philadelphia Cricket Club, he was beaten by his brother, Alex, Little Johnny McDermott, who third man in the "Scotch" class is the oldest of ten golfing brothers and he wanted to see the kid get along, but a national title was a national title and so he roared off a 71 to win his second crown. McDermott was next with 75 while Mac, overcome by the occasion, added up an inlignorous 77. It was a tough dose for him to swallow—a kid of nineteen!

It doesn't seem as though Mac has ever been able to get over that beating, for since then he has won district titles of all kinds and descriptions but faced by the prospect of a national championship something snaps. In 1914, he created a sensation by winning the metropolitan open with an amazingly low total of 278, exactly nine strokes ahead of the second man, Will Macfarlane, national title holder in 1925. That score, made over the Seaside course, was never equalled until last Summer when Tommy Armour rang up his 278 at Shokan, Amazon.

Mac drifted westward a few years later, and for some time he disappeared from the golfing firmament entirely. Stories drifted back from California concerning the golfer, who was wagging what seemed to be a losing fight. But the Smith clan is a hardy one—and in 1921 Mac startled the world by coming back strong at Columbia, where his score of 299 was first.

Today Mac's mental state is perfect. He is comfortably fixed, has a grand job at the Lakeville Golf and Country Club, and if ever fortune is to smile on him, Muirfield is the place, and 1929 the time.
