BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY

YOU CAN'T SQUARE YOURSELF WITH GOD BY A BRIBE. HE WANTS REPENTANCE NOT SACRIFICE. The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit, a broken and contrite heart. O God, thou wilt not despise.—Psalm 51:17.

Appropriation bills have met with clear sailing in the Legislature when it comes to tax bills, that's another story.

The telephone strike is over, but it may take some time to get the two sides back to work again.

This isn't the first time this country has been troubled with inflation. Our grandfathers used to tell about how the people used to kick about having to pay 35 cents a dozen for eggs.

Almost as if acting upon our suggestion, the government has decided to reduce the subsidy on cotton from two cents a pound to 1/2 cent a pound. Now if it will do the same on other products, prices may soon come down.

German Food Crisis Acute—headline. Lack of Food Iks Paris Workers—headline. Europe Suffers for Want of Food—headline. Two years after the war! When are those people ever going to return to work?

Anyone who thought the commercial airlines were going out of business once the war was over may be interested in these figures: In 1945 Pan American flew 589,804,000 commercial passenger miles; in 1946 it flew 1,004,492,000.

The Tampa Tribune, in its quest for additional state revenues recommends a state lottery, suggesting that the state might realize $100,000,000 from this source alone. But it adds, "We doubt if we'll ever have a Florida legislature with sufficient courage to pass a state lottery law."

Personality factors are as much to blame for industrial accidents as anything else, says a statistician in Chicago. The statistician and other safety devices can do much good in saving life and limb as far as the clumsy, the high-strung, the absent-minded, and the show-offs are concerned, he insists. It is also a well known fact that a man is also as likely to have an automobile accident when driving while angry as when driving while drunk. The place for a mad person is in a cell by himself.

Governor Caldwell wants the Legislature of an impending $15 million dollar deficit if new tax resources are not provided, or to put it another way, if the spending brakes are not applied. All the new appropriations so far have been for meritorious measures, and the only chance to cut expenses is to eliminate some of the apple pie of previous years. This is something not likely to be done, for political reasons. However, a little tax mending should be able to straighten out the deficit as it now stands.

Of particular interest to Sanford boys who fought the Germans on the Western Front will be the following "news" item from the Russian newspaper Red Star. "We fought for three years alone with the few under trying conditions. A second front (in France) as it is known, was opened only after the Soviet army inflicted a decisive defeat on the Germans and it became clear that the Soviet Union was able with its own forces, without the aid of the Allies, to occupy all of Germany and liberate France." No doubt it was the Russian who also defeated Japan.

Better Education

The two-day inauguration ceremonies installing William E. Stevenson as president of 114-year-old Oberlin College, Oberlin, O., are reported as being impressive but sobering. The elm and maple shaded campus was crowded with distinguished educators from all parts of the country.

Typical of the sentiments expressed were those of Princeton's President Harold Willis Dodds who said liberal arts colleges are facing an uncertain future. Federal Judge Robert N. Wilkin, Oberlin trustee and author of the newly published "Eternal Lawyer," a biography of Cicero, warned that "not only our freedom but our very lives depend on an informed and disciplined citizenry." The new president countered with this:

"Our scientists keep warning us that thanks to their own accomplishments the end of civilization is far from an idle dream, and yet we turn the deaf ear of complacency and inertia.

"The hope of the future lies in more and better education. If it doesn't prove to be better, the need will be for less."

Here were some of the nation's top educators solemnly taking inventory, emphasizing the fact that there is a heavy responsibility.

But education covers a broader field than that of the colleges, and responsibility for improving it comes home at last to rest to some extent on the shoulders of every citizen. Children trained better at home, elders who read good books or join a study class now and again, who do a little solid thinking about things, all make part of a better education for everybody. So does everyone who learns from today's task how to do tomorrow's a little better. That's education, too.

National Hero

A break has come in Spain's long civil war. While Franco and his opponents will continue to strive for each other's downfall, they will take time out in 1947 to join in common homage to the Spanish national hero, Miguel de Cervantes. This year is the 300th anniversary of his birth; while the exact date is not known, he was baptized on Oct. 9, and this will doubtless be the great day. The nation will gladly do honor to the immortal author of "Don Quixote."

Beginning as a satire on the popular stories of knights and their incredible adventures, "Don Quixote" soon becomes more than that, and turns into a mirror of Spanish life from nobles to peasants, the whole seen by a wise and witty student of human nature. It is one of the few books that can be enjoyed by grown-ups and children alike, and one of the still fewer of which the continuation is better than the original book.

Dante in Italy is perhaps the only other author who is a national hero. Even Shakespeare in England and the United States is not so much a part of the popular being as Cervantes to the Spaniards. And while primarily Spanish, he, like Dante and Shakespeare, has been taken over by the whole world.

Are You Light Or Dark

If a blond, you will never be a bank president. If a brunette, you are probably slow to learn but will eventually make a good office worker. The darker your complexion, the greater your resistance to disease.

These discoveries were announced the other day by an Ohio representative of employment agencies, speaking at a legislative hearing. Could they not be carried further? A gadget might be devised, measuring the degree of blondness, brunetness and redheadedness. Reference to a table would show whether the applicant had the right shade of hair and complexion to run a restaurant or a glue factory. And if the necessary qualifications were lacking, they could perhaps be supplied by dyeing (with an e).

SANFORD FORUM

Editor The Herald, Sanford, Fla.

Dear Sir:

The new Bethel AME Church located in Cannon City, west of this city is facing a crisis and desperately in need of assistance. We must raise $1500.00 to remodel our house of worship. Both the church and the paragonage must be repaired. Help, church and paragonage stand badly in need. Our membership has struggled hard and have given sacrificially in order to save our church and properly equip it for the carrying out of our program of expansion. Our people have given to the limit of their resources, hence this urgent but reluctant appeal. We make this appeal because necessity drives us to do it. This church has assumed and cared for all of its legitimate obligations. At no time has it failed when actual need was known. The obligations facing us at this time however are beyond our ability to meet without the aid of our sympathetic White friends. The membership is poor but worthy and they are striving heroically to finish remodeling of our house of worship. The church is needed as never before. Wherever you find a Negro preacher and his Church, you do not find communism, gangsters, mob violence nor racial troubles.

This church is one of the oldest Negro organizations in this City. This church is a child of the former Methodist Episcopal Church and through the years has had its lasting care. It has been a beneficiary and has made its contribution toward the preservation of the continuity of the spirit and influence for good out of proportion to its membership. This church has exerted and is exerting an influence for good.

The purpose of this much needed church is to give opportunity for the training of our young people to be good and reliable and faithful in the domestic field where they serve their employers. The young Negro must be trained in manners as well as books. I have been preaching 41 years and I was born in the south. I have always obeyed those in authority. I never thought it wrong for me to say, "Yes, Sir," "No, Sir." I was trained from a child to be many. Now, we are calling upon every red-blooded White man and woman an here in Sanford to come to our rescue and help us to raise this needed fund. We work and live here, spend our money in your business places and if it were not for the church, we could not have good citizens among our group. Will you make your check now to the Bethel AME Church and send to: Rev. Robert W. Wells, Church Secretary, Bethel AME Church, Cannon City, Fla. Route 1, Box 284

Florida—The Sunshine State—primarily interested in merchandising.

"Sunlight hours" are of such a premium that in many states, even during the longest days of the year, time is advanced one hour.

We Floridians, engaged in the business of selling sunshine and its accompanying advantages, should, in my opinion, create our own year-round "Florida Time" by permanently advancing our time by one hour.

Such action by the citizens of Florida would create an invaluable promotional aid for the merchandising of our year-round recreational advantages of "fun in the sun." Our customers and ourselves could have greater utility from our "sunlit hours."

Permanently advanced "Florida Time" would eliminate the seasonal, contradictory and confusion of moving from one time to another. It would simply establish "Florida Time" in the same recognized categories as Eastern Time, Central Time, Mountain Time and Pacific Time.

Practically acute Floridians insist that Florida must lead the nation with its State promotional program. Our partnership with the sun suggests to me that Florida should be the first to greet it each day of the year.

The advantages of "Florida Time" justify the temporary inconveniences of adjusting ourselves to its schedule. Very truly yours, James T. Larimore, Miami, Fla.

THE BOARDWALK

Louise Homer New York Herald Tribune

Often ranked as one of the half dozen greatest contraltos of the world and, at the height of her career, probably the most admired and best loved of American-born singers, Louise Homer delighted audiences at the Metropolitan Opera House for nineteen successive seasons, beginning in 1900. Here were the great and unforgettable days of Nordica and Melba, of Jean de Reszke and Carrara, and in such a group she shone conspicuously for her native and achieved talent. She had dramatic skill—much of it inherent of a high order, and her voice had the power and quality which made her completely successful in the Wagnerian roles in which she began to appear in 1902. She possessed the important stage gifts of physical grace and beauty. Those lucky New Yorkers who heard her in Gluck's "Orpheus and Eurydice" carried away long memories of her charm. Madame Homer would have been the first to agree that her whole life had been a happy one. Carefully reared in a devout Presbyterian household, in 1895 she married in Boston the young music teacher who in 1893 gave her lessons and who later aided and shaped her European studies and career. In 1939 Sidney Homer, himself a distinguished composer, under the title of "My Wife and I," wrote the story of their years together. When the Homers in 1946 celebrated in Florida their fiftieth anniversary, six children and fifteen grandchildren were living. They had been fortunate children, for it had been said that Madame Homer carried art into her home

May 12 Is Hospital Day

By W. V. BITTING Touchian Drug Co.

Perhaps there is a significant fact in the fact that Hospital Day falls in the hopeful month of May.

It is a bright and cheerful time and hospital service stands for hope and cheer to the sick. May 12 is a day to remember. It has been set aside as Hospital Day. Recognition of the five, scientific services performed by our hospitals is made important now than ever.

We remember with extreme gratitude that all over the nation hospitals are doing a major job in caring for and restoring to health our returned wounded.

We must remember too that our "civilian front" still stands in need of special and expert care, afforded by our splendid institutions—the American Hospitals.

and some of her home into her art. In writing of his wife Sidney Homer expressed the happy conviction "that the world was a fascinating place in which to live, that love played a great part in it, that humanity could be trusted." All these good and simple things it is certain Louise Homer, too, believed. She believed that it was possible for life to be lived not only in harmony but in melody. Here was, as her husband wrote of her in one of her roles, "a pure soul and a noble quest. To portray the part of Orfeo she had only to be herself." And those who remember her will agree.
