

Seminole High Will Face Daytona Beach In Tilt Here Friday

The Buccaneers of Daytona Beach, who on next Monday, will come to Sanford to meet the Seminoles in an important football game against Coach Leonard Lucas' Seminole High eleven. The game will be played at Municipal Park, at 4:00 o'clock, and it will be the sixth game of the season, the fifth played here.

It will be the first real test for the local eleven despite the fact that it holds victories over Winter Garden, DeLand, Rollins Rats and Winter Park, and has dropped a tilt to the probable state, title holders, Robert E. Lee's eleven at Jacksonville. The later two teams furnished real opposition but it does not count in conference standings, and that is where Coach Lucas wants it to count. Only Sanford and Ocala are now considered favorites to win this title, with Ocala having the barest of margins.

Coach Lucas' eleven is in its usual good condition for a game. There are no seriously injured players and with the exception of the four players who were suspended for violation of training rules last week, every member of the squad is eligible for play.

The Daytona Beach team that comes here tomorrow is heavy and full. It will probably outweigh the Sanford team by five pounds to the man. However, it has been unable to fit a winning stride, having tied three tilts, won one and lost one. Probably its most important feat was in holding the young and undefeated for five years Leeburg team to a scoreless tie in Daytona last week. That may be an indication that Daytona Beach is powerful on the defense, and if so, it means that long and rugged runs by Vincent, Smith, and McClelland will be the locals' only hope.

As a matter of fact, most of the gains made by the McClucas men this year have been those long sweeping end runs turned in by that trio of backs. Odom was an expert at this kind of play before he fell from grace. Reports from Daytona today were that two first string linemen are out of action for several days. One is Buzz Baggett and the other, Ernest Nofal, veterans. If they are out of tomorrow's game, there is a real chance that the Daytona line might give it struck hard enough. If they are in the game, end runs will be much more effective.

The team that will start tomorrow's contest is that strong first team that had such a hard time getting started against Winter Park last week but which ran wild when the opposition suddenly wilted. Tomorrow's game will be the first of four real tests Coach McClucas is expecting the team to meet. Here are the players upon whom he is depending, and the probable starting line-up of the Buccaneers:

Diamond Players Stage Meeting For Awarding Cup

At a meeting of the Diamond Ball players at the City Hall Wednesday night the silver loving cup, donated by the Sanford Sporting Goods Store to the Diamond Ball Association was awarded to the Firestone team, winners for the 1932 season.

The presentation of the cup was made by E. H. Cullum, secretary of the Association, who spoke briefly on the subject of "Teamwork." Due to the absence of Mr. W. A. Patrick, sponsor of the team and Mr. Rutledge, its manager, the cup was accepted on behalf of the team by Oscar DuBois, one of the leading players on the team.

During the evening there were several interesting talks concerning the future activities of diamond ball in Sanford made by D. D. Welborn, Ernest Brotherson, Morris Spencer, "Red" Morgan, Miss Dorothy Powell, and others.

RUSSELL TO FLORIDA

ATLANTA, Oct. 27.—Governor Russell, of Georgia, left for Florida yesterday to campaign for the Democratic ticket. He will speak at a statewide rally at Miami Saturday night.

Professor Gives Citizenship Talk At Kiwanis Meet

(Continued From Page One) Dropped 50 cents into his cup, and after walking away, returned to drop another half dollar. He repeated this several times until more than $10 was in the cup. The Union soldier finally asked the Confederate why he seemed so interested in him. The Confederate soldier replied "Well, I'll tell you. I've traveled up and down this country for years but you're the first damned Yankee that I've seen that is trimmed to suit me." Prof. Carleton said, "As it looks to me, the Republican party is going to be trimmed exactly to suit me."

The speaker said that when the measure of citizenship is discussed some people were of the opinion that a successful political figure was a good citizen. "Others believe that a man of great wealth is a good citizen," he said, "while still others believe that because a man lends his aid to every civic or religious endeavor that action marks him as a good citizen."

"I've long since rejected all of these beliefs," Prof. Carleton said, "and I submit to you that my ideal good citizen is a man or woman who first of all has found his place as a worker in this world, a person who, in engaging in some sort of productive work that benefits humanity, it matters not what kind, has done so joyfully, has adjusted his personality to his work."

"A good citizen," he continued, "is a man who can see his role in the rest of the world, a man who can rise to the responsibility of the other point of view, whose vision, however, is broad enough to permit him to swear allegiance to the whole pattern. He is a man who can show patriotism, who sees the folly of believing that his personal views are the only ones to be considered."

"He is a man who is independent of thought and action although not stubbornly so," said Prof. Carleton. "A man who is self-reliant, with the courage of his convictions, and one who stands firmly on those convictions whenever he believes himself to be right."

All of these measures, Prof. Carleton said, while vital to the whole picture of the good citizen, must save for their foundation, the one quality that might be gained by a little careful schooling and training, the quality of having a little respect for the importance and inevitability of constant change in society.

As he expanded on this statement, Prof. Carleton told how that out of the doubts, scepticism, persecutions, and sufferings of the great men of the world have come great truths that were at first ridiculed and scorned as heresies but which later slowly became the customs and habits and truths of today.

"There is in every generation a few remarkable men, geniuses, prophets of the most extraordinary mental and spiritual capacities," he said, "persons whose piercing thoughts have been doubting shafts that at first brought them in the range of bodily harm from those who cried 'heresy,' and later saw them hurt spiritually. Their dreams and visions were in many cases not recognized until after their deaths but their genius remains recognized even to this day. To this class belonged Pasteur, Galileo, Copernicus, the apostles Peter, Paul, Barnabas and others, Fulton, Edison, Napoleon, Weyliffe, Huss, Luther, Wilson, and even 'Christ himself.'"

"Obviously," the speaker said, "it is impossible for the average man to reach those heights, but he can at least have some sense of the inevitable and changeless law of change. He must have a measure of this sense if he is to be the good citizen as we know him."

Concluding his exposition and description of the "Good Citizen," Prof. Carleton said that the ideal to be sought is a composite of all the qualities he had stated. "A man who first has found his life work, who serves society in a practical way, who takes an active part in the business, religious and civic affairs of his community, state and nation, who can rise about partisanship, is independent, courageous, self-reliant, and finally, a man who, realizing that life is constantly changing and old orders are being replaced by the new, can, instead of being fearful and suspicious of the inevitable change, help bring the change about and thus insure a better world in which to live."

Election of officers followed Prof. Carleton's address and the result was similar to the results of the nomination of officers last week. Howard Ourlin was elected president; C. E. Mason, 1st vice-president; Coepts Johnson, 2nd vice-president; Arthur Brunson, treasurer, and C. A. Byrd, R. F.

As such she has often appeared as principal speaker at National conventions throughout the world, and at present she is considering a lecture tour in New Zealand and Japan.

The convention, expected to attract 150 delegates from all over Florida, is the first to be held here in 34 years. It opens at the City Club Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock with a banquet. Tuesday and Wednesday sessions will be held at the First Methodist Church. Dr. Elizabeth Tracy is local president of the Union which has about 30 members in this section.

Valdez Dining Room To Be Opened Tonight

Another indication of the approach of the winter tourist season is the announcement today that the dining room of Hotel Valdez, after undergoing thorough renovation and painting, will be opened to the public this evening at 8:00 o'clock.

The dining room is under the direct supervision of Mrs. Wurt W. Warner. One of the most experienced cooks in the city has charge of the kitchen, and white waitresses will be employed in the dining room and the banquet room adjoining.

Meals will be served at breakfast, lunch, and dinner, starting at 7:00 o'clock in the morning. Luncheon is served from noon to 2:00 o'clock while dinner is to be served from 6:00 o'clock until 8:00 o'clock.

Another Family Has Settled In County

Seminole County has gained another family and industry in the arrival here of E. J. Dannacher, of Nashville, Tenn., who has purchased land on Route 2, south of Sanford, and will move his family here next week. Mr. Dannacher was at trade body office, yesterday afternoon, seeking information relating to the city and county. He expressed himself as well pleased with what he had seen of the city and said that he is planning to specialize in the raising of chickens. He has had considerable experience in that capacity in Tennessee.

Women Democrats Issue Appeal For Campaign Workers

Because they plan to insure the casting of a ballot by every woman in this county who is registered as a Democrat, Mrs. John G. Leonardy, chairman, and members of her Woman's Campaign Committee, this morning issued an appeal for more workers who are willing to spend a few hours on election day in this cause.

Mrs. Leonardy said that under present plans it is necessary that there be a volunteer woman worker for every City block, and several in each town in the county. Women who offer their services will be expected to see that every woman in the block goes to the polls on Nov. 8, she said. This same applies to those women who volunteer from county towns. They will be expected to work with present local chairman in scanning registration lists and calling upon those women who are eligible.

She added that transportation will be furnished throughout the day so that there is no need for any woman to say that she was not able to reach the polls.

Women who have already volunteered and are working actively toward getting out a record vote are: Mrs. E. M. Galloway, at large; Mrs. Juliana Stanko, of Atlantic City; Mrs. Bert Gahner, of Altamonte Springs; Mrs. Wallace Billingsley, of Longwood; Mrs. John Galloway, of Lake Mary; Mrs. Kate Barker, of Oviedo; Mrs. G. G. Walker, of Oviedo; Mrs. Samuel Levy, of Geneva; Mrs. Floyd Land, of Ocala; Mrs. R. J. Dunn, of Chuluota; Mrs. H. L. Laney, of Palatka; Mrs. Mary E. Finnell, of Sanford; Mrs. Warren Easterby, of Sanford; Mrs. Dick Childers, of Lake Monte; Mrs. Frank Melach, Mrs. Frank Peters, and Mrs. J. E. Preston, of Sanford.

Librarian Tells Rotarians About Details Of Work

Mrs. Lucy Whitner Moughton, who is the librarian at the municipally-owned Sanford Public Library, told Sanford Rotarians meeting at the Celery Club at noon Tuesday why hers is an onerous task that has shown steady increase during the past few months.

She explained that all circulation records have been broken during the past year and that during August alone over 7000 books and magazines were read by the membership of the library. She told how many operations were necessary in one day's work as librarian, and lauded the assistance that had been given to her by volunteer workers during the year. Concluding, she urged that Rotarians take advantage of the many facilities that the library afforded and become regular users of its books and magazines.

The Communist Platform

We hear a great deal about Communism and Bolshevism in these days of hard times and unemployment. We hear a great deal about it from people, we believe, who do not know what they are talking about.

Communism in Russia has been interpreted in a multiplicity of ways and it is pretty difficult, remote as it is, to get at the absolute truth of the situation.

We wish that every man in Sanford might read one of these Red platforms. We wish that every man in America might read one. Unfortunately they are restricted rather generally to those who may be somewhat in accord with their revolutionary theories.

The Communist platform as adopted at the National convention in Chicago on May 29, 1932 begins with a call upon all oppressed classes, which it lists as the "industrial workers, the persecuted Negroes, the toiling farmers"

Then comes a denunciation of negro persecution. "The Negro people", says the Red platform, "always hounded, persecuted, disfranchised and discriminated against in capitalist America, are, during this period of crisis, oppressed as never before."

1. Unemployment and social insurance at the expense of the state and the employers. 2. Against Hoover's wage cutting policy.

3. Emergency relief for the impoverished farmers without restrictions by the government and banks, exemption of impoverished farmers from taxes, and no forced collection of rents and debts.

4. Equal rights for the Negroes and self-determination for the Black Belt. 5. Against capitalist terror against all forms of suppression of the political rights of the workers.

6. Against imperialistic war, for the defense of the Chinese people and of the Soviet Union. In order to bring this about the Communist Party then proposes "an organized mass struggle for the above immediate demands of the workers, as the first step toward the establishment of a workers' and farmers' government."

The platform concludes with the following exhortation: "Every worker and workers' organization which is ready to fight for the immediate demands is invited to be represented in the Communist Campaign Committees which will organize and conduct this campaign."

"Support the Communist Election Campaign! Rally behind its platform and candidates! Make this the starting point of a gigantic mass movement against starvation, terror and war! Resist with all your energy and strength the brutal attacks of the capitalists! Fight for unemployment insurance, against wage cuts, for relief for the farmers, for equality for the Negroes, against the murderous capitalist terror and against the plans for a new bloody imperialist war."

As is usually the case in such activities, the perpetrators of the Jacksonville reign of terror were probably actuated by a sordid and cowardly desire for excitement rather than by any motive for justice or civic betterment.

The very foundation of our government lies in a man's inalienable right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, and to a fair and impartial trial before his peers.

qualified to act as both judge and jury? We hope the designated processes of law will function quickly and efficiently in this case and help convince those who usurp the functions of the courts that they are committing a serious offense against the people.

MINISTER FOUND GUILTY IN POISON DEATH OF WOMAN

Verdict Carrying Life Sentence Fails to Break Composure

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Oct. 22.—The Rev. S. A. Berrie, 52-year-old unrocked Cumberland Presbyterian minister, Tuesday was convicted by a jury of the poison murder of his first wife, Mrs. Fannie Berrie.

The verdict, which carried a life prison sentence, did not appear to even momentarily break the composure of the preacher. He appeared calm when he was returned to his cell. Sentence will be passed formally next Monday.

His comely 19-year-old second wife, the former Ida Bess Bright, a Sunday School teacher in his church apparently was unmoved by the jury's decision.

During the long trial Mrs. Berrie, named by the prosecution as the motive for the poisoning, appeared by the side of her husband and asserted her belief in his innocence. He is the writer of numerous hymns.

The state alleged the preacher had been intimate with the young woman several months before the death of his first wife, and substituted poison for sedatives taken by the older woman so he might be free to marry the Sunday School teacher.

As the convicted pastor was returned to jail, his attorneys indicated they would present a motion for a new trial and if this is denied an appeal probably will be taken.

After being sentenced, Berrie will be taken to the state penitentiary at McAlester, where he will remain pending outcome of a possible appeal.

Tliff Berrie, the pastor's 20-year-old son, and his wife, Ruth, were in the courtroom when the verdict was read.

Mrs. Fannie Berrie died last Mar. 21 after taking a capsule at a church service.

The minister married Ida Bess Bright on May 17. She was exonerated by authorities of any connection with the poisoning.

A grand jury returned a murder indictment after Mrs. Fannie Berrie's body was exhumed Aug. 3 and state chemists reported "poison sufficient to kill" was found in the viscera.

Apparently confident through more than two months in jail, the hymn writer turned once more to versification for solace, reiterating his innocence and the conviction he would be acquitted.

A fat packet of love verses, purportedly written by Berrie to Ida Bess before the death of his first wife, figured prominently in the grand jury investigation and in the trial, as did a booklet of verses which Berrie wrote to his first wife on their twenty-eighth wedding anniversary last Dec. 13.

WARNING ISSUED AGAINST BELIEF OF FAST UPTURN

Society Sees Recovery As Possibly Requiring Much Time

New York Times
NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—A warning against the spreading assumption that rapidly increasing and lasting prosperity is in sight, based on the current improvement in business in this country, was sounded by the Taylor Society in a report published yesterday, which saw in the reduced purchasing power of the majority of consumers a threat to any extended trade revival.

The society cited the falling birth rate, the dependence of industry on small wage earners, the maladjustment of national wealth and sharply curtailed incomes as major reasons why industry may encounter difficulty in finding a market for its normal production.

"Just now there is an improvement in business in the United States," the report continued. "Although it manifests itself chiefly in the field of security prices and trading, there is also some advance in commodity prices and in the production for replenishment of certain basic commodities. Most of us assume that prosperity is in sight. Yet a considerable group of thoughtful industrialists and economists is doubtful. They believe that a recession is possible within the next six or eight months and highly probable within two years.

"They base their concern on the particular combination of factors with which the new activity is resumed—price maintenance, wage reductions, spreading of work, a generally lower standard of living and a consequent inadequate purchasing power sufficient to carry the volume of production, which will satisfy industry as a normal activity in terms of existing production capacity, its capitalization overhead and burden of fixed costs."

The report asserted that business men as a whole have not been heeding the tendencies shown in the falling birth rate and in the virtual stoppage of immigration. The birth rate today is only about one-half of what it was sixty years ago, and the last ten years have seen a drop of more than 20 per cent. from about twenty-three per thousand. The outstanding feature in the changes that lie before us in the next generation will be a marked reduction in the number of young and a corresponding increase in the number of old people.

"From the point of view of consumption and of stability of business and investment it is obvious that the decline in the rate of increase of population accompanied by a rise in the rate of increase of productivity creates most serious economic problems. At the same time the quantity of capital seeking profitable investment is increasing," the report pointed out.

Concerning the dependence of industry on the small wage earner, the society pointed out that nearly 80 per cent of the total volume of goods purchased yearly in this country is bought by wage earners receiving less than $5,000 a year, 87 per cent by those receiving less than $3,000, 96 per cent by those getting between $1,000 and $2,000 and about 18 per cent by those earning less than $1,000.

At the same time, the decline in real payrolls—that is, payrolls expressed in terms of the amount of goods they will buy—has been 50 per cent, a decrease of more than five billion dollars in the purchasing power of some 8,500,000 factory workers in the United States, the report explained.

But, despite the fact that the largest amount of purchasing is done by the wage-earning class, the society declared that, while wages dropped precipitously, the total volume of dividend and interest payments, exclusive of some common stocks, in both 1930 and 1931 was higher than in 1929 and in the first half of this year they were still 72 per cent above the 1926 level. A great part of these payments were made out of surplus accumulated before 1930, the report pointed out, but the important thing is that they were maintained and put into additional production facilities. On the other hand, payrolls decreased steadily since the middle of 1929 until in the first half of 1932 they reached a level 55 per cent below that of 1926.

Distribution to consumers or retail sales would be stabilized if mass purchasing power, largely represented by wage and salary payments, were maintained out of surplus and capital, as are interest and dividends, the society declared, adding that it was capital and profits which were most over-expanded in the boom period and which, therefore, should be deflated, and not wages.

The report concluded that the chief problem is maintaining or expediting business recovery by distributing adequate consumers' purchasing power to consume the goods produced. Reducing wage rates is not a policy which will bring this about. Likewise, those proposals for national planning which have as their purpose merely the control of production and capital expansion without a program for expanding or maintaining consumers' purchasing power, would not seem to give much promise of success, the society said.

SCIENCE IS USING LIGHTS OF STARS IN EXPERIMENTS

Astronomers Are Plotting The Size And Shape Of Universe

PASADENA, Calif., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Astronomers plotting the size and shape of our universe are using the light from remote stars as a "yardstick" with which they hope to confirm their belief that it is a cartwheel-shaped star cloud like others far out in space.

With the aid of statistics, astronomers are measuring the approximate distances from the earth of millions of stars whose actual distances cannot be measured, just as an actuary can calculate the average expectation of life among a large group of men, though no individual's length of life can be predicted.

Knowledge of the approximate distances of the stars is enabling them to piece together a "plan" of the universe; as a man on a roof top on a dark night might figure out the size of a city by estimating the distance of various lights by their brightness.

How this "plan" of our part of the universe is being built up by the statistical method of "star counts" is described by Dr. Walter S. Adams, director of the Mount Wilson observatory of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, in a bulletin of the institution.

"Star counts" enable astronomers to learn the approximate distances of stars from the earth ranging from a few to a million light years (the distance light would travel in a year at its speed of 186,000 miles a second).

Distances of about 5,000 stars have been measured indirectly by analyzing their light with a spectroscopic and learning from this their actual brightness. This, compared with the brightness of stars whose distance has been measured by methods used in surveying, shows the distance of the stars.

Distances of about 25,000 stars have been measured directly by surveying methods—measurements of the angles and sides of giant triangles laid out in the sky.

Distances of most stars, however, can not be measured in either of these ways, because they are too distant to be measured by surveying methods or too faint to allow their light to be analyzed by the spectroscopic. To get around this difficulty, astronomers have invented the method of star counts.

"If we compare several pairs of stars in the sky," says Dr. Adams, "in each of which one star is apparently brighter and the other faint, the fainter star may in for finances to help overturn the Republican administration in the United States." As everybody knows, every contribution must be accounted for in our reports to Washington and our accounts are checked and audited.

"I do not know how to characterize this political impropriety any more than I have done. There is not a word of truth, either in the substance of the letter or in the insinuations of the Republican headquarters that preceded and followed it."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—(AP)—The Republican national committee last night issued a statement saying an item in the Montreal Star had "disclosed" the Democratic national campaign committee had "appealed" to foreign interests for finances to help overturn the Republican administration in the United States.

The statement said:

"The item printed in the Star of Tuesday, Oct. 25—a photostatic copy of which is attached—says that James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national campaign committee, wrote to an unnamed Montreal shipping man asking for a financial contribution to the Democratic campaign fund. As quoted by the Star, Mr. Farley wrote the Canadian that the United States needed a change in public administration and that the only way to bring it about was to elect Governor Roosevelt.

"If you are sympathetic with this view we shall greatly appreciate any financial assistance you may be willing to accord us," the letter said, as quoted by the Montreal Star. "Checks should be drawn to the order of treasurer, Democratic national campaign committee."

A few cases prove to be the norm.

"If a great many stars are compared, however, the fainter stars on the average will invariably prove to be farther away.

"The errors introduced by the occasional nearer stars will be negligible when great numbers are used, and these errors may be still further reduced by comparing stars of the same color.

"Accordingly we find here a simple but extremely valuable means of ascertaining the arrangement of the system of stars as a whole."

TARIFF ADOPTED AT OTTAWA NOT SEEN AS HOSTILE

Sentiment Expressed By Andrew Mellon In Talk In England

MANCHESTER, Eng., Oct. 28.—Assurances that the imperial trade preferences adopted at Ottawa are not considered hostile to America were given by Mr. Andrew W. Mellon, United States Ambassador, in an address before the Manchester branch of the English-speaking Union here recently.

"Our first concern must be to restore prosperity within our own borders and build up the consuming capacity of our own people," Mr. Mellon declared.

"If we in America can do that by means of our tariff and you can do the same thing for Britain by your agreements at Ottawa, then let us wish each other well and enter upon a friendly race to see which can do most for our own people, knowing that in each country increased prosperity will inevitably have a favorable effect on the other and the rest of the world. We shall be sorry to see some of our trade with you temporarily lost; but, after all, the world currents of trade have a way of adjusting themselves and the trade which we may lose for the time being as a result of these agreements will not in the end be worth nearly so much as a more prosperous Britain as a customer."

Apart from his much appreciated references to forthcoming imperial tariff reductions, the American Ambassador invited most of his address to an exposition of domestic political conditions in the United States. He praised President Hoover for staying the tide of panic and assisting the nation to recoup its financial strength. He believed that America had now demonstrated that its reserves were such that no shock from the outside world and no power outside the country could undermine the dollar.

"There is a disposition," Mr. Mellon remarked, "to blame President Hoover for calamities which have overtaken America and the world. It would be just as unreasonable to blame the Governor of Massachusetts for the low prices of textiles in the United States of Minnesota for world conditions that have brought low prices in wheat. In the case of the President, it is particularly unfair, for no one has worked harder, and with more courage and vision, than the President, both in his effort to avoid impending calamities and to minimize their effects."

Contrasting the English and the American systems of government, Mr. Mellon pointed out that if the American people vote for a change in administration, "there will be an interval of four months during which the United States, and to a certain extent the world, will mark time until the new administration takes charge next March.

"That is a situation which under your form of government you are never called upon to face, but it is one that is causing much concern to thoughtful Americans, regardless of what their political affiliations and desires in the present election may be."

Mr. Mellon emphasized America's need of a desire to build up world trade, but he believed that this could be accomplished without "leveling all trade barriers between nations." His own view was that the immediate task was to build up domestic purchasing power. At the same time he declared that the United States was zealous of giving its wholehearted support to the world economic conference.

"The present economic crisis," said the Ambassador, "is the price we pay for war, and would seem to be a sufficiently compelling reason, apart from the other horrors of war, why we should organize ourselves for peace and determine that no nation, on whatever account, shall be allowed to disturb the peace of the world."

Tempo Of Modern Life Will Shorten Words, is Opinion

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Leaving tempo of modern life will eventually result in a condensation and shortening of words in American speech, in the opinion of Mr. Richard Borden, professor of public speaking at New York University. Carelessness is the chief defect of speech, Professor Borden declared, as he renounced stilted precision of diction which is invading the theater and public speaking platforms as the standard of correct English.

"The true standard of correct speech in America is the language spoken by educated and traveled Americans," he said. "It is not the speech in America; it is the language spoken by educated and traveled Americans," he said. "It is not the speech of the theater which is retained as an hierarchy of education teachers."

Professor Borden held that an Academy of Speech was an increasing necessity in the United States to decide on the correct pronunciation of words. As it is now, with every public speaking instructor an authority, there is plenty of disagreement, he added.

Assimilation of letters in words, dropping of letters and separation constitute the chief defects in American speech, Professor Borden continued. Saying "government" for "government" and "mystery" for "mystery" were cited as examples of shortening words to the extent of a sound unit or a syllable, due usually to haste in speech. The pronunciation of "pumpkin" for "pumpkin," "massachusetts" for "what is the matter" are examples of the attempt by the careless speaker to make himself understood with the minimum of lingual effort, he added.

"The effect of carelessness as a motivation in the evolution of speech in the United States is best appreciated when it is understood that speech habits are largely fixed in infancy," Professor Borden said. "The child models his speech on the careful utterance of parents or servants with careful speech. To this he adds the burden of his own carelessness as he matures, only to pass the new model on to his children."

You've never tasted such Hominy!

HERE'S THE RECIPE

1 1/2 cups water 6 tablespoons Klim
1/4 teaspoon salt 1/2 cup hominy

Place water and salt in sauce-pan over direct flame. Mix hominy and Klim. When water boils, add hominy mixture and stir rapidly to avoid lumping. Cook until thick over direct flame, stirring constantly. Cover, and cook over boiling water from 1 1/2 to 1 hour.

Six tablespoons of Klim is 1 1/2 cups of milk. You couldn't possibly get so much milk into this recipe if you used liquid milk. Instead, you use Klim—and so make the hominy more delicious and far more nourishing. In the same way, you can make all your cooked dishes tastier and more nutritious. If your children won't or can't drink enough milk, let them eat milk in their regular, every-day food.

Klim is milk—rich, pure, safe. Only the water content has been removed, by a scientific process. You use Klim dry—just like sugar or salt. The amount you can use is not limited by excessive moisture.

Family Nights At Theaters Is Aim Of Club Federation

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The Broadway to the critics, the out-of-town visitors and the New Yorker on a holiday, the City Federation of Women's Clubs will concentrate its forces on getting "family night" programs in the community motion picture houses.

The federation's program for the year was launched recently at a meeting presided over by Mrs. William Baldwin Smith, at which Mr. M. A. Lightman, president of the Motion Picture Theater Owners of America, declared that "there is a time and place for special children's programs in every theater," but that "the special children's theater and, for that matter, the whole little theater idea will be impractical for a long time," arriving only when "production is planned for minorities."

The family night program, in
