Ban Placed On Abattoirs In City Limits

Orlando Man Given Contract To Build Information Booth Near Municipal Zoo

The City Commission instructed City Attorney Fred Wilson last night to prepare an ordinance amendment prohibiting any slaughter house or abattoir within the city limits. This amendment is expected to be adopted at the next meeting of the Commission, City Manager H. N. Sayer said this morning.

This action followed a heated discussion in a crowded room between opponents and proponents of the proposed abattoir in connection with the Central Florida Quick Freeze plant at Thirteenth and Elm Avenue. Edam Shindler, attorney at law, represented the opponents, and he reiterated a previous demand that the ordinance allowing abattoirs in the city be repealed. Alex H. Johnson, owner of the new plant, submitted results of a local poll, which he said was taken in the area affected and showed 60 per cent in favor of the abattoir.

Discussion became so heated, said Mr. Sayer, that the Commission retired for 30 minutes to deliberate before reconvening.

Section 10 of the City Ordinance adopted in 1911, prohibited slaughter houses in the city limits. On Sept. 9, 1946, following requests of Mr. Johnson and Forrest Gatchel to be allowed to operate a modern, sanitary abattoir in connection with the proposed quick freeze plant, the Commission amended the 1911 ordinance so as to permit within the city limits construction and operation of abattoirs, approved by the State Board of Health.

James E. Hudson, Orlando contractor, was awarded the contract to build a tourist information booth on the corner near the Zoo. His bid was $4,162. Local bidders were Haveland Construction Company and T. S. Crawley.

The Commission adopted an ordinance making it a misdemeanor with penalty up to $200 to destroy written notices served by police. This includes traffic violation tickets.

City Attorney Fred Wilson was instructed to prepare a resolution condemning the St. Johns River Line Washburn dock as unsafe and in hazardous condition. The owners were notified three months ago to repair the structure, said Manager Sayer.

Approval was given to a plat extending Evergreen Cemetery west to the railroad tracks. Fire Chief Mack Cleveland was the main object of the conference of fire marshals in Tampa next week.

A letter from N. L. Bryan of the State Road Department was read. This was an answer to the city's request that French Avenue be repaved and widened by the State as a farm-to-market road. The reply was that the Road Department is not permitted to spend money on projects of this nature, and stated that the responsibility for the improvement is up to the City.

A letter from radio station operator James Rivers to the effect that he expects to secure favorable response to his application for FCC to operate a radio station in Sanford, was read. It was stated that he was ready to sign a 99 year lease and to locate his studio at the Mayfair Inn.

Poland Sets Date For General Election

WARSAW, Nov. 13. (AP)—The Polish government today announced a date for the long-planned general election. The date is Jan. 19, 1947. The Presidium of Poland's National Council set the date under an election law passed in September despite opposition of the peasant party.

The peasant party charged the election statute will deprive thousands of Polish citizens of the ballot. Earlier, in August, both the United States and Britain had asked Poland to establish safeguards for a free election.

Reds Continue Fight Despite Chiang's Order

NANKING, Nov. 13. (AP)—The Chinese press claimed today that Communist troops are continuing their attack on government forces despite Chiang Kai Shek's order for a cease-fire which took effect Monday at noon.

Simultaneously, the official Central News Agency carried a strong warning to the Communists attributed to an unidentified high government official. The spokesman is quoted as saying that Nationalist forces intend to continue Communist positions with redoubled strength if the Red force refuse to come to terms through political channels.

Government sources are described as reluctant to discuss Communist charges that Nationalist forces are closing in around Yenan Communist strongholds and party capital. Neutral observers believe the Communist claim is well founded, and that the Communist capital of Yenan is the main objective of Chiang Kai Shek's troops.

The President's Dilemma

The two-year stalemate between Congress and the Administration has begun with solemn pledges on the part of President Truman that he expects to co-operate wholeheartedly with the Republicans in every move for the welfare of the country, and with loud hoasannas from newly elected congressmen and senators in wild acclaim of the President's attitude and tempered expressions of good will on their part.

And so the change in government begins in an atmosphere of peace and harmony. It remains to be seen how long the honeymoon will last. If President Truman were an exceptional man—something he does not claim to be—or if the Republicans were not politicians, it might reasonably be assumed that there is now some prospect for an early settlement of most of the problems with which this country is vexed.

However, history indicates the contrary. The low ebb of the depression from 1930 to 1933, when thousands of businesses all over the country were failing and millions of people found themselves without jobs, did not prevent the Democratic Congress from scuttling the program of a Republican President to bring some semblance of order out of chaos. And twelve years earlier, a Republican Congress had taken its vengeance upon President Wilson in the field of foreign affairs.

No, it would be nothing short of a miracle if present expressions of goodwill prove to be more than polite gestures.

What can happen when a President is confronted with a hostile Congress can be learned from a study of President Andrew Johnson's administration. He, though Abraham Lincoln immediately following the Civil War, at a time when Republicans controlled the Congress. Born in North Carolina, a former senator from that state, though he had opposed secession, he could not command the confidence of many people in the north.

He vetoed virtually every important bill which Congress passed; and Congress, in turn, passed them over his veto. The situation became so tense that Congress denied the President the right even to appoint his own Secretary of War, and when he insisted, the House Representatives voted to impeach him, and he was tried in the Senate which voted 35 to 19 in favor of impeachment, not quite the necessary two-thirds.

Since history has a strange way of repeating itself, it is encouraging to note that in the present instance the two opposing branches of government are at least getting off to a better start.

Everybody's Business

The present excessive cost of government—federal, state and local—unless pared toward a pay-as-you-go basis, will threaten democracy and invite communism, in the opinion of T. Coleman Andrews, director of a division of the federal General Accounting Office. As an example of tremendous public debt he cites the Indiana situation, where, he says the yearly federal, state and local tax foresees tax reduction as a political issue for many years.

Public debt has grown to such astronomical proportions that only experts now understand the figures. The time has come when the public needs to pry this specialized knowledge loose and begin to study it.

Very truly yours, Claude Pepper

Dear Friends:
 The Republican Party has captured the two Houses of Congress by definite majorities. This is the one fact we, none of us, can escape. This election seems to repeat the pattern after World War I, when the Republicans first won the House of Representatives in 1918, and elected enough Senators to prove an effective block to President Wilson's plans for a permanent peace organization.

I am sure that many of the same elements that led to the Republican victory in 1918 contributed to their victory in 1946. There was a genuine letdown after World War I, when the Republicans first won the House of Representatives in 1918, and elected enough Senators to prove an effective block to President Wilson's plans for a permanent peace organization.

And despite the great prosperity, the great majority of the people were caught between controls and shortages on the one hand and rapidly rising prices on the other. But the most important element in the Republican victory, I believe, is the failure of sufficient voters to come to the polls on Nov. 5. While there is no official and official tabulation of the votes in all the states, the newspapers estimate that the total vote fell below 35 million. Thus, despite the much higher registrations which so much impressed us whenever I went during the campaign, millions of registered voters failed to cast a ballot.

It is worth emphasizing the fact, for what appears as a Republican landslide because of the number of House and Senate members elected by party, does not actually represent such a great difference in the total votes of the two parties. I estimate, on preliminary figures, that a 5-percent shift in the total vote—and of regional districts—would have resulted in a Democratic victory. I, therefore, do not share the discouragement of many of my friends about the future. While many of the results dismay official and businessmen knowers, I am still convinced that when a great majority of the people come out to vote they will vote the Democratic way in support of the liberal program and foreign policies of Franklin D. Roosevelt, provided those policies are clearly explained and adhered to.

I shall lose many close personal friends in the Senate who were defeated—Senators Guffey, Walsh, Tamm, Mitchell, Murdock, Hoffman—as well as many members of the House whom I have come to know during the years for their steadfast devotion to our common Democratic policies. I rejoice in the victory of my colleague and friend, Senator Kilgore of West Virginia, for whom both the United States and the Democratic Party will turn again to the Democratic Party. But the Democratic Party must be ready to meet the test and it must be without compromise the real voice and champion of the people. The safety of the future here and throughout the world lies in not less democracy, but more. The anti-democratic forces have won a battle, but not a war. The people have not had enough of democracy.

Very truly yours,
 CLAUDE PEPPER

Miss Lewis Is Wed To John Crowell

Miss Gretchen Lewis became the bride of John E. Crowell on Nov. 12 in a beautiful evening candlelight service held at the home of Mrs. W. A. Cagle, aunt of the bride, with Ernie E. W. Ware and Rev. J. E. McKinley officiating.

The picturesque stairway was decorated in fern-like jacinthe blossoms and soft green and small white lights. The bride and her attendant descended the stairs and stood before the improvised altar in the living room. The jacinthe, gladiolus and fern decorations were used throughout the home.

Mrs. Ernest Southward sang "Sweetest" and "I Love You Truly" accompanied by Mrs. Lather Harkey who played nuptial music proceeding and during the ceremony.

The matron of honor Mrs. Max Louisa, aunt of the bride, wore a pastel yellow crepe gown, a halo of orchid maline and carried a bouquet of pink and white flowers. The bride was attired in a sheer lace and allover satin gown which featured a lace bodice, sweetheart neckline and tiny covered buttons down the back. The full skirt of satin was fashioned with a distinctive lace bodice and long train.

A reception was held immediately after the ceremony. The dining room was lighted by candles in crystal holders and the table was appointed with silver and crystal. The table covered with a white lace cloth was centered with a tiered wedding cake.

Flowers were given by Mrs. C. P. Harkey, Mrs. John Kader, Miss Jewell Pittman, Mrs. W. C. Edmond, Mrs. H. J. Lehnman, Mrs. Edmond Meach, Mrs. J. H. Menick, Mrs. M. E. Hagan, Mrs. J. B. Hagan, Mrs. L. Hagan, Mrs. E. H. Clements, Mrs. H. E. Tooke, Mrs. George Tooke, Mrs. J. B. Hagan and Mrs. A. R. Key.

Wanda Hasty Feted With Shower Friday

Mrs. John Donohue and Miss Edith Chestnut honored Miss Wanda Hasty, bride-elect, on Friday evening at the home of Mrs. W. A. Cagle and Mrs. William Chestnut.

The rooms in which the guests were seated were decorated with white and pink flowers and ferns. The dining room was lighted by candles in crystal holders and the table was appointed with silver and crystal. The table covered with a white lace cloth was centered with a tiered wedding cake around which ferns and flowers were placed.

Numerous guests and contests were enjoyed. The prizes were given by Mrs. H. J. Lehnman, Mrs. Edmond Meach and Mrs. V. G. Hasty. Mrs. Lehnman presented the most valuable prize, a diamond ring.

Mr. Crowell is affiliated with the government in aviation research work. He is a native of North Carolina and received his education in that state.

Women Bid High For Vanderbilt China

An odd lot of glass stoppers for which the auctioneer asked "What'll give me a dollar?" went for $5.

The Vanderbilt table equipment came up men paid only three or five dollars for hardware, silverware, and moving equipment. The auctioneer said that when the auctioneer's gavel fell on the lot, the crowd went wild to bid for the lot.

SAVING BEHAVIOR
 If you want to wait a few days before making a costly decision, you can't do better than to wait. If you wrap it in a square of ordinary rubber sheeting and place the bundle in the refrigerator.
