Officer shot by partner

LOS ANGELES — A uniformed police officer was shot and critically wounded Thursday night by his young probationary partner during a training exercise at the ABC Studios in Hollywood, authorities said.

Kevin Colley, 28, was shot once in the left hip while he and three other officers practiced tactical exercises. Lt. William Hall said.

The .38-caliber bullet fired by rookie Officer Francisco Vega, 22, ricocheted inside Colley's abdomen, causing injuries that required surgery and left him in critical but stable condition at Cedars Sinai Medical Center late Thursday, Hall said.

The shooting occurred as Vega, who has been on the police force for only six months, pulled Colley, a 7-year veteran, from the back seat of a patrol car in a simulated arrest, Hall said.

Two die in plane crash

NORTH VERNON, Ind. — The manager of the North Vernon airport and his son died Thursday when the two-seat Cessna plane they were flying in crashed in a wooded area near the town, an field state police said.

Gilbert Green, 57, and Roger Green, 34, died when the plane developed trouble shortly after a 1 p.m. takeoff, said Sgt. Gary Welfon of the ISP Seymour post.

Four-year-old killed in fire

HEMPHILL, Texas — An electrical fire that smoldered unseen in an attic sent burning debris crashing down into the rest of the home Thursday, killing a 4-year-old boy and severely burning his 9-month-old brother, authorities said.

Firefighters found the body of Rusty Procell Jr. in the bathroom of the wood-frame home, miles west of Hemphill, said Sabine County Fire Marshal Bill Bare trees.

Rusty Procell, 4 months, was in critical condition late Thursday.

No. 7 Auburn and 11th-ranked Alabama meet their final rivals Thursday as they prepare for their rivalry Friday at Birmingham. AP

A Sugar Bowl bid is on the line for the Wake Eagles, who would be Louisiana State for the Southeastern Conference title with a victory. Auburn likely would get the bowl invitation because of a higher ranking. An Alabama win sends LSU to the Sugar Bowl and Auburn to the Hall of Fame Bowl.

Vikes, Oilers, Aggies all win

A couple of NFL matchups on Thursday turned out to be real turkey.

At the Silverdome in Pontiac, Mich., the Minnesota Vikings had little trouble in caging Rusty Hilger and the Detroit Lions.

In Irving, Texas, the Dallas Cowboys dropped to 2-11 with a loss to the Houston Oilers.

Texas was also the scene of an intrastate college rivalry when Texas A&M took on the rival Texas Longhorns. The Aggies cruised out to a 28-0 lead before Texas scored 24 unanswered points to make it interesting.

The Longhorns had a chance to win the contest during the final three minutes but a fumbled punt that was recovered by A&M and dashed any hopes for a dramatic Texas come from behind victory.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Keith hits Bermuda, drifts north

MIAMI — Tropical Storm Keith brought gale-force winds and rains to Bermuda Thursday, but posed little threat of major damage as it headed for probable extinction.

At 6 p.m. EST Thursday, the late-season storm's center was at 35.0 north latitude and 64.0 west longitude, 200 miles north-northeast of Bermuda, with winds of about 45 mph. It was the last official advisory on Keith by the Hurricane Center.

It was moving east-northeast at about 40 mph and its forward speed was expected to increase by Friday as it loses its tropical characteristics and merges with a large low pressure system in the far north Atlantic, forecasters at the National Hurricane Center in Miami said.

Forecasters said the storm would produce strong winds, continued rain and lower temperatures on Bermuda, but only light damage. Winds and rain were expected to diminish late Thursday as Keith moves away from the British dependency.

In Florida, there were hurricane-strength wind gusts Tuesday and Wednesday. Keith caused beach erosion, coastal flooding and some washed-out roads, but there were no injuries or major damage.

In central Florida, many welcomed the rain, which reached 6 inches in some areas. Tornadoes spawned by the storm caused minor damage around St. Petersburg and Orlando.

Keith was the 11th named storm of the Atlantic-Caribbean hurricane season, which began June 1 and ends Nov. 30. It formed Nov. 17 southeast of Jamaica and headed west, but then began a turn east across the state about 3 a.m. Wednesday south of Tampa Bay near Bradenton. It spun off into the Atlantic by 11 a.m.

Forecasters said there did not appear to be other late-season tropical storm threats.

Police probe possible jewelry heist links

CLEARWATER — Police said they are investigating whether a multimillion-dollar jewelry heist at a Boca Raton shop Tuesday night is related to a jewelry store robbery at a Clearwater mall last month.

Gunmen in both cases wore disguises and targeted exclusive mall jewelers. They tossed smoke bombs to cover their escapes and dropped much of the loot while fleeing.

Clearwater police Detective Dick Howard said Thursday that authorities are investigating whether the robberies are related.

"There were some basic similarities," he said, "but it's too soon to know" if the robberies were committed by the same people.

Bob Ferrell, spokesman for the Palm Beach County Sheriff's Office, said his agency has "nothing to tie the two together."

At 8:20 p.m. Tuesday, five gunmen wearing baggy clothes and Halloween masks depicting elderly men stormed into H.T. Stuart Jewelers in Boca Raton's Town Center mall, Ferrell said.

The gunmen knocked a security guard to the ground, raided display cases and took more than $7 million worth of diamonds and jewelry, Ferrell said. The robbers set off smoke bombs to cover their escape through a side door and left the mall in a van.

A deputy sheriff was in the area at the time and noticed the vehicle traveling fast, Ferrell said. The officer tried to stop the van, but some of the gunmen opened fire with automatic weapons from the back of the vehicle.

The gunmen abandoned the van and investigators recovered about $6.9 million worth of the jewels in and near the vehicle where the robbers probably dropped it while running, Ferrell said. About $200,000 worth still was missing.

Experts: Cocaine-sex link in deaths?

MIAMI — The chief assistant medical examiner said his office may have found a link between the repeated use of cocaine in small amounts and sexual activity in the deaths of up to 12 women.

Tests showed the women repeatedly used less than a normally fatal dose of cocaine and died just before or during sex, Dr. Charles Wetli, chief assistant Dade County medical examiner, said Thursday.

Officials initially thought 12 women found dead since September 1986 were murdered. But officials now think that nine of them — and possibly all 12 — died from cocaine used in much smaller amounts than overdoses in conjunction with sex.

Medical examiner's office officials said the victims, between 16 and 32 years old, each had a history of cocaine use and had arrest records for prostitution or were living on the streets.

"The typical scene is in a cheap room, a clump of bushes or an abandoned building," Wetli told The Miami News. "The woman is naked from the waist down, her clothes are scattered around. At first glance, she looks like she's been raped and murdered."

But, he said, autopsies showed they weren't murdered. All but one of the victims have been classified as "cocaine intoxication accidents." Still, officials are baffled why the cocaine, in each case only about 1 milligram per liter of blood, killed the women.

Few guests attend the big feast

SANFORD — A disappointing turnout for the first Thanksgiving offering at Sanford's Salvation Army could be due to poor publicity, according to Lt. Sam Flanigan, commander of the local office.

While volunteers prepared for 200 people, less than 20 came to enjoy the holiday fare.

"Everything is geared toward Christmas dinners and baskets," Flanigan said. "People in Sanford just don't think of us at Thanksgiving."

Funding and manpower fell short in past years, making the event impossible. But this year, 13 turkeys, 60 pounds of dressing, 10 gallons of mashed potatoes and 35 pies were either purchased or donated.

What wasn't used yesterday, Flanigan said was shipped to two Sanford nursing homes. In addition, 94 people received food baskets two days prior to Thanksgiving.

"We've already decided to do it again," Flanigan said. "We'll just need to work on the publicity."

Above, Lt. Sam Flanigan watches as Tom Fuller, Geneva, carves one of the 13 turkeys prepared by the Salvation Army for Thanksgiving dinner in Sanford. Probe reveals death ride cracked

United Press International

HALLANDALE — A state official says a crack in the arm of a midway ride was the cause of an accident that killed a popular Cooper City teenager and injured six people at the Broward County Fair.

Christy Schafale, 17, described as an "all-around senior girl" at Cooper City High School, died Wednesday night from head injuries, police said. Five other people were treated and released for their injuries.

Christopher Burch, 23, of Davie, Fla., was in satisfactory condition Friday at Memorial Hospital of Hollywood with fractured ribs and bruises, hospital spokesman Russ Ralford said.

In a related incident, a 17-year-old friend of the victim was in jail on first-degree murder charges after he allegedly shot another youth at a party where Schafale's friends gathered to mourn her.

Walter Rich, director of the state Bureau of Airs and Expositions said the crack caused one arm on "The Monster," an octopus-like amusement ride to break off on Wednesday night, sending Schafale plummeting to her death.

Rich told the Fort Lauderdale News and Sun-Sentinel that the arm broke at the spot where the metal had been fractured. It had not been detected by inspectors because it had been painted over.

Parts of the broken arm were shipped to Boca Raton for inspection by Dr. Jeffrey Tenant of Florida Atlantic University, a metallurgist.

"We're hoping he can tell us the speed of the ride and what caused this fracture to become a complete break," Rich said. "We also want to determine how the long the fracture has been there and if there are fractures on the other arms."

Investigators said the ride was manufactured about 10 years ago by the Eyerly Aircraft Corp. of Salem Ore., which has since gone out of business. John Eyerly, the company's owner, is now head of JV Industries, which supplies parts for the ride.

James E. Strates Shows, which owns and operates the Broward County Fair midway, bought the ride in the early 1980s, investigators said.

The more than 80 midway rides were all inspected by state officials before the fair opened Nov. 17 and on a daily basis by fair workers during the fair, officials said.

In the shooting at 3:30 Thursday morning, only seven hours after the tragic accident, Peter Tersigni, 19, was killed and a 17-year-old girl was wounded in the hand.

Cooper City Police Detective Brett Mitchell said Tersigni's last words to Sean Stemmerman, 18, were "go ahead, about me." He said the girl had tried to step between them to prevent the shooting, but Stemmerman fired anyway.

Investigators said Tersigni and Stemmerman were close friends and all those involved were, or had been, friends of Schafale. All except Tersigni were students at Cooper City High School. Tersigni graduated from there in 1987.

They said they knew of no motive and that although there had been alcohol available at the gathering of about six teenagers at Tersigni's, they did not think it was a factor.

They said Stemmerman got the shotgun from a closet in the Tersigni home. They said the parents were out of town for the weekend.

Youth killed in 'wind surfing' accident

United Press International

PLANT CITY — A 15-year-old Plant City youth was killed Thanksgiving Day while "wind surfing," or riding on the roof of a speeding car for thrills, police reported Friday.

The death brought the holiday traffic death toll in Florida to eight. The Florida Highway Patrol had predicted 42 would die during the Thanksgiving weekend, which officially began at 6 p.m. Wednesday and ends Sunday night.

The youth, who had not been identified, was in a group of teenagers who were wind surfing, said police Sgt. Roger Stemmer.

"He was on top of the car and a buddy of his was driving. All the kids were juveniles."

Elderly nursing home patients over-drugged

United Press International

CHICAGO — American nursing homes, largely ignoring persistent warnings that they are overmedicating most of their elderly patients, are giving them psychoactive drugs as a form of "chemical restraint," a study said.

A team from the Program for the Analysis of Clinical Strategies at Harvard Medical School and the Beth Israel hospital in Boston found that on the average, nursing home residents are prescribed 8.1 different drugs per month, and take 4.7 of them for five days or more.

About 65 percent of the residents were prescribed psychoactive drugs, and one in four was taking two or more such medicines.

Dr. Jerry Avorn, who heads the Harvard program and led the study, said elderly nursing home patients "are one of most overmedicated segments of society."

"The irony is that these are the frailest people in the country, yet they are receiving the most intense medication with minimum physician involvement in surveillance" of effects and side effects, said Avorn in a telephone interview, adding he was "troubled and disappointed" by the findings.

"Troubled because the level of use is much higher than it needs to be, and disappointed because the levels are as high as 10 years ago. There has been little improvement in last decade," Avorn said, despite alarms sounded over the years.

The researchers surveyed drug use among 850 residents, who on average were close to 85 years old, in a dozen typical intermediate care facilities in Massachusetts.

Writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association, published Thursday, they said about 220 residents were being given anti-psychotic drugs, which reduce delusions in young patients with schizophrenia.

But just 38 of the residents actually had such diagnoses, and Avorn said, "In the elderly all (anti-psychotics) do is quiet people down. They do not clarify the mind in the way they do in young schizophrenics."

The researchers said the high frequency of toxic reactions to these drugs is well known, and side-effects include confusion, constipation, incontinence and tardive dyskinesia — disabling involuntary movements that may persist after the drugs are stopped.

Most of 119 patients getting anti-depressant drugs were not diagnosed as depressed, and one-fourth of these patients were given amitriptyline, the anti-depressant "least favored for geriatric patients" because side-effects include memory problems, disorientation, constipation, difficulty urinating, blurred vision and other problems.

"Reliance on scheduled regimens of psychoactive medicines indicates that these drugs are not used transiently for periods of special need. Instead this pattern of use is compatible with the concept of sedation as 'chemical restraint,'" the researchers said.

Many of the patients received sedatives that are long-lasting, can build up to high levels in the bodies of elderly people and have side effects similar to those of amitriptyline.

Avorn said "a combination of factors" led to overmedication, including "economic incentives to run nursing homes with as little staff as feasible. That creates a real incentive to use chemical restraints or sedatives to keep people quiet."

He added, "Physicians tend not to be as careful about prescribing drugs for the elderly as they should be. Plus, society tends to look for chemical solutions to problems."

"If a patient is wandering or upset, the reflex often is to use a sedative" rather than find out what is troubling the resident or adapt routines to match patients' rather than the staff's needs, Avorn said.

The team is now trying to improve drug use in the homes and seeing "encouraging" results from work supported by the John A. Hartford foundation of New York.

Dr. Don Riesenber, a senior editor at JAMA, said in an editorial that anti-psychotics, sedatives, and anti-depressants have been linked to costly falls and hip fractures in the elderly. He said $3.9 billion in Medicaid goes to intermediate care facilities.

What a hostage has to be thankful for

United Press International

BOSTON — Terry Anderson, the American journalist held hostage in Lebanon for 1,350 days, has gone on hunger strikes, smashed his head against his cell until it bled and spends day and night shackled to a bed, the Boston Globe reported Thursday.

Details of Anderson's captivity were based on interviews with three Americans and one Frenchman who shared his ordeal but have since been freed.

Anderson, the 41-year-old Middle East bureau chief for the Associated Press, has never seen a daughter born after his capture and does not know that his father and brother have both died of cancer, the former hostages said.

Marcel Fontaine, a French diplomat released May 6, said he filled Anderson in on a lot of news after he was captured, but omitted word of the deaths because "I was afraid he might commit suicide."

Another captive, David Jacobsen, said one of the hostages were almost freed once when Amal militiamen searching a Beirut neighborhood came to the very house where the Americans were being held.

After Anderson passed the 1,000 day mark chained by the ankle in a 10- by 10-foot cell, he began pounding his forehead against the plaster until blood flowed.

—Former hostage Marcel Fontaine

"They stopped downstairs. The guards were getting ready to fight it out, but convinced the militia nobody was hiding there and they left," he said.

But Fontaine warned against any attempt to rescue Anderson.

"You must never do that. He (Anderson) will die right away. When there was a knock at the door, the jailer would put us on our knees and hold a gun to our heads. Often it was a Kalashnikov (Soviet-made machine gun) in one hand and a hand grenade in the other."

Fontaine, interviewed at his home in a Paris suburb, also told the Globe how, after Anderson passed the 1,000-day mark chained by the ankle in a 10- by 10-foot cell, he began pounding his forehead against the plaster until blood flowed.

When Fontaine hugged Anderson, telling him he had a family that loved him, but still could not calm him down, he called the guards who subdued Anderson but did not treat his gashed head.

Fontaine, the Rev. Lawrence Martin Jenco, Benjamin Weir and Jacobsen said Anderson has undergone hunger strikes in futile attempts to obtain a newspaper and defiantly gave his captors a Nazi-like salute. They said he is constantly shackled to his bed and is allowed only 15 minutes a day to use the crude bathroom, shower, clean his utensils and wash his clothes.

He is blindfolded whenever guards are present and always eats with his right hand, his left hand being used to clean himself with water because he has no toilet paper, they said.

Mandela family dismisses announcement

United Press International

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — The wife of black nationalist leader Nelson Mandela dismissed a Justice Ministry decision to ease restrictions on her husband, saying he "remains a prisoner of the South African government" with no sign of release.

The government announced Thursday that Mandela, transferred from prison to a Cape Town clinic for treatment for tuberculosis in August, would be transferred to a "comfortable and secure living accommodation" and allowed greater contact with his family.

The brief announcement by Justice Minister Kobie Coetsee tended to confirm widespread speculation Mandela would be released in a step-by-step process in a bid to prevent massive celebrations among blacks and defuse persistent international appeals for his freedom.

But the announcement stopped short of granting Mandela freedom and was swiftly dismissed by Mandela's wife, Winnie, in a statement released through the family attorney in Johannesburg.

The government announcement indicated Mandela was recovering from his disease in the exclusive Constantiaberg Clinic in Cape Town and could be moved eventually. But citing fears over his safety, it said he would be transferred only to a "secure living accommodation."

Coetsee said Mandela's health had "improved to such an extent that should the improvement continue it will eventually no longer be necessary to care for him in a clinic."

Bush's agenda faces fight

For the first time in nearly three decades of presidential elections, the party that lost the race for the White House has picked up seats in the Senate and House. These gains have emboldened Democratic lawmakers, who are hungry for a more assertive role after eight years of domination by the most powerful chief executive since Franklin D. Roosevelt. For President-elect Bush, the Democrats' new-found strength poses a significant threat to his ability to govern effectively.

Many other presidents have faced a divided government and still managed to exert considerable control over Congress. But Mr. Bush, at least at this juncture, is confronted by a potent combination of forces that could weaken his capacity to be a strong president.

First, the Democratic majorities on Capitol Hill interpret the election as a directive from the voters for lawmakers to assume a greater partnership with the president in setting the nation's agenda. This is largely because the Democrats defied history by gaining one seat in the Senate and five in the House even as they failed to get the Oval Office. By contrast, when Ronald Reagan was elected in 1980, the Democrats lost 12 seats in the Senate and 33 in the House.

In addition, the lack of specific new proposals advanced by Mr. Bush during the campaign means that his election mandate is defined as continuation of present policies and accorded little respect among Democrats in Congress. Perhaps more significant, the president-elect excites little political fear among his opponents, who clearly doubt his ability to go over their heads to the voters as Mr. Reagan has done so masterfully.

Among the issues on which President Bush will encounter a strong-willed legislative branch is the deficit. Democratic lawmakers generally favor a tax increase rather than steep spending cuts to meet the declining deficit targets required by the Gramm-Rudman law. Consequently, Democratic leaders are prepared to refuse to enact major spending reductions unless Mr. Bush embraces a tax hike. The outcome of this test of wills in the early days of the new administration may set the tone for the next four years.

Another area in which the White House and Congress may clash are potential appointments to the Supreme Court. The three most liberal justices — William J. Brennan, Thurgood Marshall, Harry A. Blackmun — are now 80 or older. The odds are good that President Bush will have an opportunity to replace all of them with his own appointees. But the bruising battle over President Reagan's nomination of Robert H. Burk demonstrates that Democratic senators will not hesitate to try to block any Bush nominee whom they regard as too conservative.

As a former member of Congress himself, Mr. Bush has a keen understanding of how to deal with lawmakers on a personal basis. The president-elect is also more pragmatic, flexible and willing to compromise than his predecessor. The trick will be to boost popular support for his policies, on the one hand, while negotiating deals with Congress that do not betray the conservative mandate he was handed on Nov. 8.

New federal anti-drug bill may be a bust

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Despite the publicity being given the "tough" new anti-drug bill passed by the 100th Congress, the legislation is a watered-down version of both the original House and Senate bills. In fact, it may make drug enforcement more difficult.

For example, a major component of the bill shifts enforcement emphasis from the seller to the "recreational" user. To make it easier for prosecutors to punish casual users, House Republicans backed a new provision that authorizes the Justice Department — through local U.S. attorneys — to administratively assess penalties of up to $10,000 for possession of "personal use" amounts of specified illegal drugs.

This would facilitate punishment of users without requiring a full-blown trial. However, under the insistence of the Senate, provisions were added giving a defendant the right to ask for a civil jury trial with full procedural safeguards — such as right to counsel and a beyond-a-reasonable-doubt burden of proof on the part of the government. Given this burden, it is questionable how often a fine will be imposed.

Further, since the process is akin to receiving a glorified traffic ticket (for example, it will leave a defendant with no criminal record), some law enforcement officials and congressmen believe the new bill effectively decriminalizes small-amount possession.

Also trumpeted is a section of the new bill that permits a judge to deny a defendant convicted of drug possession future access — for a specified period — to certain federal benefits. These include public housing, grants, contracts, loans, mortgage guarantees, student loans and some forms of veterans' aid. Federal benefits that cannot be denied include Social Security, Medicare, welfare, veterans' disability benefits and hospitalization rights.

Part of the process is akin to receiving a glorified traffic ticket.

But then a variety of safeguards were added. First, the denial of benefits cannot be simply administrative, but must be imposed by a sentencing judge. It is completely discretionary until a third conviction for trafficking, when denial becomes mandatory.

Then, at the insistence of Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Select Committee on Narcotics and Drug Abuse, a provision was added that allows a waiver of the denial if defendant has entered, completed or tried to enter a drug rehabilitation program.

Further, to give Congress an out, the effective date of the provision was put off until Sept. 1, 1989. The president will be required by May 1 to submit a detailed report on the likely effect of the program, giving Congress time to modify or even kill it.

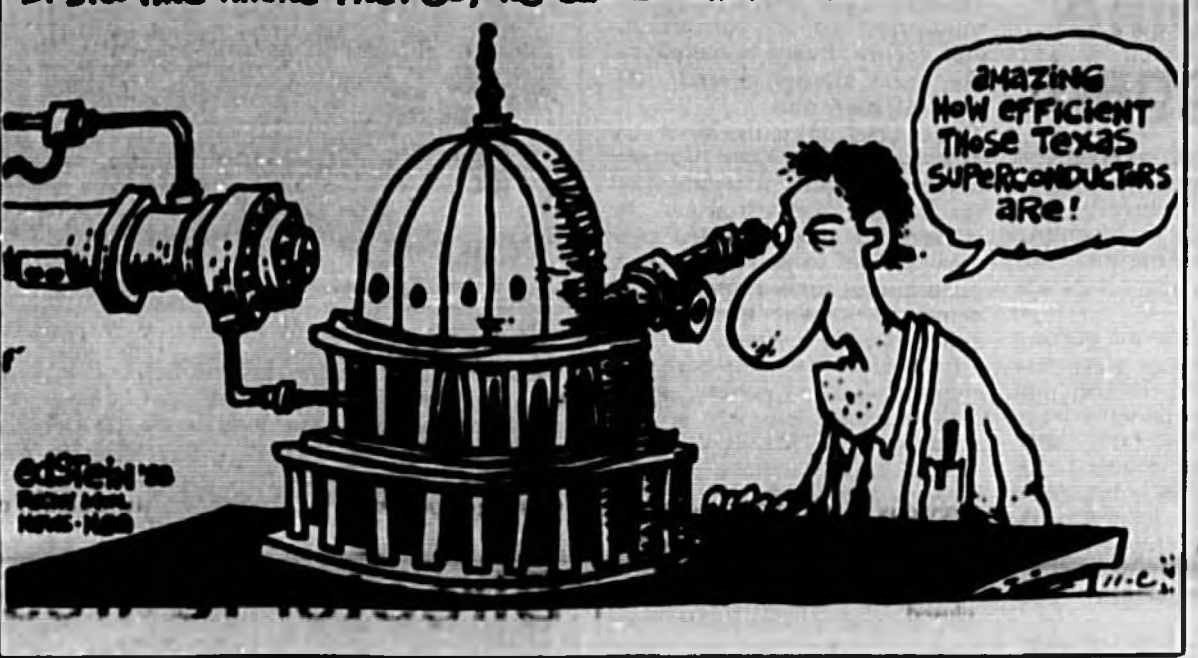

The Reagan administration has fought the war on drugs through an entity called the National Drug Policy Board. Congress has argued that, as a result, no one individual is in charge and accountable. Both the Senate and House agreed that a single individual must be placed in charge.

The bitterest battle of the compromise was fought over the powers to be exercised by the new "drug czar." The Senate wanted whoever would fill that position to have operational control over individual agencies, both on the enforcement and demand reduction sides of the anti-drug equation.

PLO view of Israel unchanged

WASHINGTON—The Palestine Liberation Organization's wit, like the rarest wine in the cellar, is saved for special occasions, such as the Algiers conference. There Abul Abbas, planner of the Achille Lauro hijacking, said this about Leon Klinghoffer, the American shot in his wheelchair and dumped overboard: "Maybe he was trying to swim for it."

Abbas, the convicted murderer and member of the PLO executive committee, said that with a half-smile, thereby embarrassing the PLO, which is conducting a peace charade. It is having some success. Thus last week ABC's evening news said: "We begin tonight with a landmark decision in the Middle East. The Palestine National Council, which is in essence the Palestinian parliament in exile, has formally declared that Israel has a legitimate right to exist." That report was wrong.

More circumspect reports said the PLO "hints at" (New York Times) or "implies" (Washington Post) recognition of Israel, but even they erred. The Algiers decision, far from being a departure from the PLO's "rejectionist" stance regarding Israel, is designed to advance an explicit strategy of destruction.

The PLO has long been divided about how to pursue liquidation of Israel. One faction has simply favored terrorism leading to war. But so-called "moderates" argued for violence supplemented by diplomacy. They say force will work only after Israel has been shrunk to indefensible borders. This two-stage, two-state solution was affirmed in Algiers. It is peace as a tactic of war.

What flummoxed wishful-thinking Westerners was the PLO's dusty semi-approval of U.N. resolution 242, which endorses secure and recognized boundaries for "every state in the area." The PLO began with its standard misrepresentation of 242. It involves the missing definite article.

The resolution calls for withdrawal of Israel "from territory occupied" in 1967. The absence of "the" before the word "territory" expresses U.S. and Israeli insistence that 242 does not prejudice the final disposition of the West Bank, does not require restoration of the 1967 borders. The Algiers declaration says 242 requires withdrawal of Israel from "all Palestinian Arab territories occupied since 1967, including Arab Jerusalem."

More important, the PLO approves 242 only in the context of other U.N. resolutions "relevant to" Palestinian issues. Those resolutions have the cumulative effect of mandating Israel's destruction. They include the 1975 resolution that characterized Zionism as racism and aimed at the de-legitimization of Israel. They include a demand for internationalization of Israel's capital, Jerusalem (which has never been the capital of an Arab or Moslem state). They include a demand for return to Syria of the Golan Heights from which aggression came in 1973.

They include partition plan 181 of 1947, under which Israel was to be three semi-triangles touching at the tip—without the Negev, without much of Galilee, even without the southern outskirts of Tel Aviv. (The Algiers declaration of an independent Palestinian state is based on 181, which the PLO charter has called "entirely illegal regardless of the passage of time." Israel attained its pre-1967 borders by winning the war launched by the Arabs when they rejected 181.)

The U.N. resolutions that condition PLO approval of 242 include the one affirming the "right of return" for Palestinians. That would strip Israel of an essential attribute of sovereignty, control of immigration.

The West's appeasement reflex confused people to identify dangerous men like Arafat as "moderates" who deserve encouragement lest "hawks" (in the Kremlin closet, in other Palestinian factions) supplant the supposedly embattled "moderates." So Arafat now says: Accept this plan or "I can always come back to our council and declare that moderation does not pay."

When Arafat soon seeks a visa to visit the United Nations—that author of so much mischief, where he once was applauded when he took a pistol to the podium—the U.S. government should say no. That decision will say that this government sees the extremism beneath the weasel-words and evasions.

Shortly before the Algiers meeting codified Arafat's thinking, he told Time magazine his thoughts: The United Nations, he said, has branded Israel a racist state and "we don't want a racist state in the area." In August, Abd al-Hamid Sayekh, chairman of the Palestine National Council, said the "interim solution" advances the goal of total control of Palestine. In September, Abu Ayad, Arafat's deputy, called the PLO initiative "a mechanism to implement the phased policy ratified in 1974"—the two-stage solution to the problem of Israel. In October, he said it implied no rejection of the PLO charter which vows destruction of Israel: "It is inconceivable that we will recognize the right of our enemy over any piece of territory on Palestinian soil."

The PLO has long been divided about how to pursue liquidation of Israel.

Khomeini's eyes on terrorism

WASHINGTON — The Ayatollah Khomeini may be sweetly suing for peace in his eight-year war with Iraq, but he is an unrepentant provocateur of terrorism.

In fact, with his attention diverted from costly open warfare, he has more time and energy for the kind of underground mayhem that is his forte.

We have learned from well-placed Iranian sources and U.S. intelligence sources that Khomeini and speaker of the Parliament Hashemi Rafsanjani, have put new emphasis and assigned new personnel to fomenting terrorism outside Iran's borders.

Khomeini and Rafsanjani assign their diabolical dirty work to two main groups — Hezbollah and Pasdaran. Hezbollah, the Party of God, is based in Lebanon and has been behind most anti-American terrorism. The Pasdaran, or the Revolutionary Guards Corps, is a fanatical clique of Khomeini's soldiers who are itching to turn their energies to a new front now that the war with the "heathen" Iraq is ending.

There appears to be a new emphasis, too, on locating and killing Khomeini's enemies inside Iran — specifically the members of the People's Mojahedin who dealt the revolutionary guards some humiliating defeats this year, launching attacks from bases inside Iraq.

Their leader, Masoud Rajavi, recently sent a telegram to the prime minister of Turkey asking for help in stopping Khomeini's terrorists from operating in Turkey. Khomeini henchmen allegedly had abducted two People's Mojahedin members from a Persian restaurant in Istanbul in two separate instances.

Targeting Iranian dissidents and foreigners, such as Americans, assures that Iranian-sponsored terrorism will be a growth industry. According to our sources, the new makeup of the Khomeini/Rafsanjani terrorist organization includes key training centers sprouting up on the Iranian landscape.

The complete guide to Iran should include these high spots: — A center next to the Libyan Embassy in Tehran on Takht-e Tavous Street coordinates intelligence for terrorists and trains agents who are recruited from other countries. A man named Assadi, a member of the revolutionary guards, runs the center.

— The Imam Hussein Post, formerly called Ehratabad, is attached to the Revolutionary Guards Corps and is the site of military, terror and sabotage training for recruits from the region.

— The Manzarieh camp is comfortably close to Khomeini's house in the Jamaran section of Tehran. The camp trains terrorist agents who are not from the Middle East.

— The Chamran Post is the site of explosives training for the revolutionary guards who euphemistically call themselves "expeditionary" soldiers. That means they are preparing for terrorism, and not for the war with Iraq. The post is named after Khomeini's first commander of the revolutionary guards who disappeared mysteriously and is presumed dead.

— The Aqlasleh Post on the outskirts of Iran has been operating for two years, and is now receiving new funding and people. Death squads train here to be dispatched abroad for killing, not kidnapping. There is some disagreement among intelligence sources whether the recruits make a suicide pact or plan escape routes for themselves.

— The Qods Post about 10 kilometers from Tehran is specifically for dissident Iraqis recruited because of their support for the Iranian form of Islam.

Bangladesh train crash kills five

DHAKA, Bangladesh — An overloaded passenger train slammed into the wreckage of a freight train and derailed, killing five people and injuring three, railroad sources said Friday.

The freight train had derailed shortly before the Thursday collision and some of its cars toppled over onto tracks used by passenger trains, the sources said. Several attempts to warn the passenger train's engineer failed.

The overcrowded train crashed into the wreckage and derailed, killing five passengers and injuring three. All the victims had been clinging to the outside of the locomotive, the sources said.

One dead, three wounded during protest

QUITO, Ecuador — A general workers strike erupted in violence Thursday, leaving a teenage boy dead, three people wounded and 52 others arrested, authorities said.

In southern Quito, where a general strike was held by the Unitary Workers' Front, an unidentified gunman shot to death Victor Vilana, 13, said Luis Felix, deputy minister of the interior.

In the southeastern city of Guayaquil, three people were shot and wounded by unknown assailants and 32 people were arrested by police, said Rafael Guerrero, Governor of the Province of Guayas.

The arrests were made when workers who chose to strike clashed with those who refused.

Troops foil ambush, kill 15 rebels

MANILA, Philippines — Government troops, tipped off to a planned attack by communist insurgents, ambushed a guerrilla squad in the southern Philippines, killing 15 rebels, the military said Friday.

Col. Orlando Soriano, a brigade commander on the southern island of Mindanao, said two soldiers were wounded in the two-hour gun battle Thursday in Sinogon village in Davao del Sur, 650 miles southeast of Manila.

Soriano told the official Philippine News Agency the soldiers had received a tip from local villagers that rebels of the communist New People's Army were planning to attack their outpost.

He said the soldiers instead ambushed the rebels, killing 15 of them in one of the worst defeats inflicted this year on the 25,000-member NPA, the armed wing of the outlawed Communist Party of the Philippines. The NPA is waging a 10-year rebellion against the central government in Manila.

Chun sparks protests, pardon sought

SEOUL, South Korea — An opposition leader today demanded the appointment of special prosecutors to investigate alleged wrongdoing by the government of former President Chun Doo Hwan, while Chun's successor prepared to seek a pardon for the disgraced politician.

Officials said President Roh Tae-woo would go on nationwide television at 10 a.m. Saturday (8 p.m. Friday EST), when he is expected to appeal to South Koreans to support a pardon for Chun.

An aide said Roh will also promise to keep his government free of corruption and to actively push for democratic reforms. He may also propose compensation for victims of past government acts, including those who suffered in a 1980 civil uprising in Kwangju that left nearly 200 people dead.

Chun made a televised apology to the nation Wednesday for his government's misdeeds, turned over his wealth to the current government and said he would go into internal exile.

In Seoul, about 2,000 students demanding Chun's arrest and imprisonment rioted and hurled rocks and firebombs at police in a two-hour demonstration at the city's Tongkook University.

Iran, Iraq begin POW exchange

MANAMA, Bahrain — Iran and Iraq released a total of 71 POWs but in the process entangled themselves in a new controversy on the first day of a program to repatriate more than 1,500 sick and wounded prisoners from the eight-year Persian Gulf war.

Iran's Islamic Republic News Agency said 49 Iraqi soldiers and three officers were flown to Baghdad aboard a DC-9 airplane Thursday after Red Cross officials concluded medical checks on the prisoners.

The agency said 41 Iranian prisoners were expected to arrive in Tehran from Baghdad on the aircraft's return journey, but only 19 Iranian POWs were aboard.

Iraq said it deliberately reduced the number of Iranian prisoners of war sent to Tehran in retaliation for alleged "cheating" by Iran. An Iraqi Foreign Ministry spokesman said the government had been expecting 115 Iraqi POWs to be repatriated in the initial exchange, but Iran returned only 52.

IRA apologizes for bomb deaths

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — The IRA apologized for the deaths of a civilian retiree and his granddaughter in a bomb attack intended for police, while the dead girl's grieving Catholic school classmates were urged to avoid "hatred in your hearts."

"The Irish Republican Army has nothing to gain by the death of civilians and, in fact, has much to lose in terms of support and in terms of the propaganda use which the British government will make out of this incident," an IRA statement said Thursday.

Thirteen-year-old Emma Donnelly and her grandfather, Barney Lavery, 67, a retired school crossing guard, were killed when an IRA bomb exploded outside a deserted police station, blowing their car off a road.

More than 190 dead in floods

United Press International

BANGKOK, Thailand — Rescue workers digging through mountain villages buried under tons of logs and mud found more bodies today, raising the death toll from slides and flooding in Thailand and Malaysia to at least 192.

Officials said widespread illegal logging that denuded hills above the stricken villages had worsened the tragedy.

Thai officials said 188 people were killed and 194 missing in Thailand's 12 southernmost provinces. In Malaysia, officials said the death toll rose to 27 today, with some 47,000 people still huddling in evacuation centers.

Rainfall eased today after six days of torrential downpours, but the people of southern Thailand and neighboring northern Malaysia were still stunned by the extent of the destruction.

Malaysian Prime Minister Mahathir Mohamad, visiting victims of the floods, called the destruction "extraordinary — hitting areas which were not known to be flood-prone."

Many villages in low-lying areas were still under water in Malaysia, but the worst devastation came in mountainous areas of southern Thailand.

Col. Banchon Chavanit, spokesman for Thailand's southern-based Fourth Army, said waves of mud and logs, loosened by the rain, rushed down mountainsides in at least two places in Nakorn Srithamarat Province, about 380 miles south of Bangkok.

Banchon said 71 bodies had been recovered from the devastated mountain villages in Phibul and Lansaka districts, and 191 of the injured were hospitalized. Hundreds more were feared buried under the mud, he said.

"I don't know what the final death toll will be, but the figure must be very high," Banchon said in a telephone interview. "Bodies keep coming in all the time."

He said more than 1,000 soldiers were assisting civilian authorities in rescue operations.

Surin Pitsuwan, a member of Parliament from Nakorn Srithamarat who visited the mudslide areas, said illegal loggers had cut down huge stands of forest that might have slowed rain run-off and left the logs on the hills to dry.

"The picture of thousands of illegal logs which came with flash floods smashing through villages, houses and bridges shows that what was behind this great damage is the extensive illegal logging in the south," Surin told reporters.

Initial estimates of the damage in Thailand included 690,000 acres of orchards and rice fields destroyed, 1,007 shrimp farms wiped out, 2,200 houses swept away, and at least 288 bridges seriously damaged.

Deputy Interior Minister Trairong Suwanhkhri, who inspected some of the worst-hit provinces, said damage would exceed $400 million.

Nakorn Srithamarat Gov. Nipon Bunyapattaro said rescue workers were trying to reach people still stranded by the flood waters.

"We have already sent out more than 100 helicopter sorties to help them, but all we can do is drop food and medicine to them," he said.

Pro-Iranian slogans voiced in Soviet protests

United Press International

MOSCOW — Hundreds of thousands of people, some chanting "Russians get out!" and waving portraits of Iran's Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, staged a third day of anti-Armenian demonstrations in the troubled Republic of Azerbaijan. Soviet officials and dissident sources said.

Pro-Armenian counter-demonstrations were reported Thursday in Yerevan, capital of the neighboring and predominantly Christian Armenian Republic, a dissident source said.

The third day of unrest in the Transcaucasian region stemmed from a 6-month-old dispute over who should control Nagorno Karabakh, an autonomous region of 177,000 mostly Christian Armenians situated inside Moslem-dominated Azerbaijan.

The official news agency Tass said the unrest had "seriously complicated normal public life."

"The situation in Azerbaijan and Armenia over recent days has deteriorated and there have been clashes between Armenians and Azerbaijanis."

— Soviet news agency Tass

Industrial and transport operations, classes (of schools and colleges) and medical services and kept the population in tension, posing a threat to their security and not letting them live and work in calm."

Dissident and official sources said an all-night curfew had been imposed in three Azerbaijan cities where hundreds of thousands of people had taken to the streets over the past three days.

"The situation in Azerbaijan and Armenia over recent days has deteriorated and there have been clashes between Armenians and Azerbaijanis," Tass said.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov told a news conference in Moscow that troops, tanks and armored personnel carriers had been dispatched to the Azerbaijan cities of Baku, the capital, Nakhichevan and Kirovabad to monitor "street disorders" including a mass demonstration in Baku's central Lenin Square.

He said demonstrators in the three cities waved placards "of a nationalist nature," chanted and disrupted traffic by halting buses. He said a session of the Azerbaijan Supreme Soviet, or the regional parliament, had been suspended because of the unrest.

Gerasimov announced the three cities today were put on a special status, "with a 10 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew."

An Azerbaijan Foreign Ministry official said the unrest stemmed from fears among citizens in Azerbaijan that they could lose control of Nagorno Karabakh.

Six survive plane crash in Michigan

United Press International
MARQUETTE, Mich. — Six people survived the crash of their small plane in a forest in Upper Michigan after the craft apparently ran out of fuel, officials said Thursday.
 "It's been worth it. They're alive," said Marquette County Sheriff's Deputy Mick Kuhlbe, who was part of the search party that hiked for six hours through marshy forest land to the scene, about 11 miles west of Marquette.

 The 7-seater Piper Cherokee private aircraft disappeared from monitors shortly after 11 p.m. Wednesday when pilot Don Giackino, 33, Marquette, radioed that he had run out of fuel.
 Giackino, who was discharged after treatment at Marquette

General Hospital, also indicated that rough weather had interfered with a flight plan that was to take the group to Lansing via Houghton in the Lower Peninsula.
 Also hospitalized and released were passengers, Robert Pernaski, 25, Hancock and Stephen Cass, 4, Okemos.
 David Cass, 30, his wife Carol Cass, 28, were in stable condition on the orthopedic unit at Marquette General Hospital, where they were taken for further care after initial treatment at Bell Memorial Hospital in Ishpeming, said Marquette nursing supervisor Patricia Blake. Their daughter, Kristina, 6, remained "in stable condition under observation" for unspecified pains at Ishpeming, a Bell nursing supervisor said.

Taxpayers pick up tab for most gun injuries

United Press International
CHICAGO — Hospital bills for gun-related injuries cost an average of close to $7,000 per person, and total medical costs for the victims nationwide run up an annual tab of at least $1 billion, with taxpayers footing most of the bill, doctors estimate.
 The researchers at the University of California, in an effort to gauge the costs of treating firearm injuries, looked at the hospital records of all 131 patients admitted to San Francisco General Hospital with gunshot wounds in 1984.
 "I hope this study will help elected officials realize that the issue of firearms restriction is not simply one of individual rights since the taxpayers pay the vast majority of the costs associated with firearm injuries," said Dr. Michael Martin, the study's chief author. He said he thinks San Francisco's rate of gunshot wounds is fairly representative of most U.S. cities.

 In a report in the current edition of the journal of the American Medical Association, the researchers said hospital costs, excluding doctors' fees and repeat hospitalizations, totaled $905,809 — or $6,915 per patient.
 Government sources, such as Medicare and state medical assistance programs, covered 85.6 of those costs, third-party insurers paid 12.8 percent, workers' compensation paid 0.2 percent and only 1.4 percent was paid for by patients themselves.

 Extrapolating the San Francisco figures to the United States as a whole, which has about 62,000 firearm injuries annually, the researchers calculated total costs of acute hospitalizations stemming from gun-related injuries at $429 million per year.
 Pete Shields, chairman of the Washington-based Center to Prevent Handgun Violence, called the results of the California study "startling."

Second body in mass murder identified

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — The coroner Thursday identified the second of seven bodies unearthed at a boarding house where police believe the landlady killed her tenants for their assistance checks and buried them in the yard.
 The body was that of Alvaro "Bert" Montoya, 52, a former tenant whose disappearance prompted the initial police investigation, the coroner's office said.
 Police believe landlady Dorothea Montalvo Puente, 59, a petite, matronly ex-convict who spent nearly three years in prison for drugging and robbing bar patrons, killed tenants for their Social Security and other assistance checks. She was listed as a payee on some checks under a routine procedure to ensure that her often down-and-out and unstable boarders used their checks to pay their rent.
 Although a suspect in seven deaths, Puente has been charged with only one count of murder, that of Montoya. The investigation started when Montoya vanished but his checks continued to be cashed.
 Only one other body has been identified, that of Benjamin Fink, 55, described as an alcoholic drifter who had lived at the house. Both he and Montoya were identified through fingerprints.
 One body, that of a woman of about 50 or 60, was decapitated and its hands and feet removed.
 All the bodies have been autopsied, but the coroner has said no cause of death could be determined. Results of lab tests for drugs or poison are expected in about two weeks.

Hearst asks for presidential pardon

SAN FRANCISCO — Patty Hearst, the one-time hostage taker, has quietly asked for a full presidential pardon from her bank robbery conviction, and is hoping Ronald Reagan will act on the request before leaving office.
 Hearst, 34, whose seven-year federal prison sentence was commuted by President Jimmy Carter in 1979, submitted the pardon petition in Washington last August, the San Francisco Chronicle reported Thursday.
 Apparently Hearst is counting on Reagan to act on the pardon before being replaced in January by George Bush, who is less familiar with her case.
 Reagan has granted 374 pardons since he took office, and as governor of California, he was among dozens of political leaders who called for executive clemency for Hearst a decade ago.
 Hearst maintains she is not a bank robber, only after being brainwashed by the radical, by-lioness Liberation Army after members of the group kidnapped her in Berkeley in 1974.
 Later Hearst took part in an armed robbery at a bank in San Francisco.
 Hearst was released from federal prison on Feb. 1, 1979, after serving 23 months of her sentence. She has since married her former bodyguard and lives quietly in New England.

Drug targeting kills AIDS carrying cells

DALLAS — A genetically engineered protein altered to kill cells carrying the AIDS virus has been successfully tested in the laboratory, possibly offering a way to stop the spread of the disease, scientists announced.
 Researchers in Dallas and San Francisco reported in the current issue of the journal Science that a protein, CD4, acting as a molecular "decoy" delivers a killing dose of toxin to the AIDS-carrying cell without harming healthy cells.
 The finding, one in a series of similar tests nationwide, offers the potential for reducing the ravages of acquired immune deficiency syndrome by stopping the virus from spreading to other cells in the body.
 Ellen Vitetta, director of cancer immunobiology at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center in Dallas, said repeated treatments might keep the HIV virus under control.
 If caught early enough, it might be possible to prevent or delay the onset of AIDS in patients who carry the virus but have not developed an advanced case of the disease, she said.
 Bioengineered CD4 molecules resemble the protein structure of T-4 lymphocytes, cells to which AIDS viruses are particularly attracted, said Vitetta.
 She said that while recent lab results with the engineered molecule are encouraging, it will be at least another year before scientists know whether it is ready to try in patients.

Greek banker Koskotas arrested

BOSTON — Sources said a son of Greek Prime Minister Andreas Papandreu tipped authorities to the whereabouts of a Greek magnate who was arrested in the Boston area on a warrant related to corruption scandal that rocked the government in Athens.
 George Koskotas, 34, the former president of the Bank of Crete, Greece's second largest financial institution, disappeared from Athens on Nov. 6 despite police surveillance and a court order that he remain in the country until investigations were completed into the charges against him.
 He was arrested early Thursday by FBI agents at an airport in Bedford, a suburb 15 miles northwest of Boston, after stepping off a private jet and was held for a hearing today before a U.S. magistrate in Boston.
 Greek authorities have asked for Koskotas's extradition. If the magistrate approves, Secretary of State George Shultz would have to make a final decision.
 Koskotas was held under an international agreement allowing U.S. authorities to detain suspects wanted by foreign governments, the FBI office in Boston said.
 The multimillion-dollar scandal and Koskotas's subsequent disappearance have embarrassed Papandreu. Opposition parties have said Koskotas left the country on a commercial airline and that the Socialist government masterminded his escape.
 The government's public order and justice ministers have resigned over the scandal, and Papandreu has reshuffled his Cabinet in an effort to stem protests.
 But Greek government sources said Koskotas fled from Greece in a private jet and was apprehended while en route from Jamaica to Washington via Massachusetts.

Taiwan policy clouds Sino-U.S. relations

BEIJING — China's ambassador to the United States said in an interview published Friday that U.S. policy toward Taiwan is a "dark cloud" that impedes further improvements in relations between Beijing and Washington.
 Chinese Ambassador Han Xu also complained about U.S. interference in China's "internal affairs" — a reference to criticism of Chinese human rights policies — and said Sino-U.S. economic ties were short of their potential.
 Han's remarks, made during an interview conducted in Washington with Chinese news service, radio and newspaper correspondents, were carried by the official Xinhua news agency. The agency did not say when the interview was conducted.
 The interview was given in advance of the 10th anniversary of the normalization of relations between China and the United States, which began Jan. 1, 1979.
 Han, one of China's foremost experts on America, said U.S.-China relations have seen "stable development." He said he was confident the relationship would improve further "because it not only enjoys a solid basis, but also has a broad prospect."
 But Han noted "there are still some negative factors" blocking further improvements in relations, and foremost among them was U.S. policy toward Taiwan.

IN BRIEF

HOCKEY

Nordiques knock off Canadiens

Considering all the thorns the Nordiques endure in the course of a season, Quebec Coach Ron Lapointe ought to savor the roses a little more.

"We're out of last place now, but we'll have to keep working to stay out," Lapointe said following his team's 5-3 victory over Montreal, ending the Canadiens' five-game winning streak. "It's not the first time we string a couple of good games together, then fall flat on our faces."

Lapointe could have focused on the play of Joe Sakic and Marc Fortier, who contributed three goals and three assists, respectively, or the fact his team moved into a third-place tie with Buffalo in the Adams Division by virtue of the victory over the division leaders, Sakic and Fortier certainly relished the triumph.

In other games, Boston nipped Philadelphia 2-1 in overtime, and Edmonton dumped St. Louis 4-2.

HORSE RACING

Lay Down wins handicap

NEW YORK — Ogen Mills Phipps' Lay Down, a 4-year-old gelding making the first stakes start of his career, Thursday captured the $65,800 Queens County Handicap by a head at Aqueduct Racetrack.

Under confident handling by Jean-Luc Samyn, Lay Down took command from the pace-setting Mister S.M. entering the homestretch, opened a three-length lead at the eighth pole and held off a late bid by Nostalgia's Star.

Lay Down covered the 1 3/16th miles over a fast track in 1:57 1/5, and paid $31.80, $12 and $4.80 as the fifth choice in a field of six.

Nostalgia's Star, ridden by Eddie Maple, paid $6.40 and $2.80, and Pleasant Virginian, who finished five lengths back, returned $2.00 to show.

BOWLING

Pedersen leads Bud Classic

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Randy Pedersen of Santa Maria, Calif., boosted his total to 4,011 pins Thursday to take a five-pin lead over Steve Lang in the third round of the Professional Bowlers Association $150,000 Budweiser Classic.

Lang, of Indianapolis, bidding for his first PBA victory, led the event for the first two rounds.

Former PBA Player of the Year Wayne Webb of Beaumont, Texas, was third a pin behind Lang, Webb, a 16-time champ, has two runner-up efforts this year, but has not won a tournament since 1985.

Ernie Schlegel of Vancouver, Wash., the PBA's president, vaulted from 15th place into fourth after scattering 4,004 pins. Ron Williams of Cahokia, Ill., whose best tour finish is second place, rounds out the top five with 4,001 total.

The top 24 from the original 160 bowlers advanced to match-play competition that was to begin Thursday night.

SOCCER

Soccer jamboree rescheduled

The boys soccer preseason jamboree that was to be held Tuesday night at Lake Mary High was postponed because of bad field conditions and will be rescheduled for Monday night according to Lake Mary coach Larry McCorkle.

"The playing field was very wet from a heavy downpour the night before, and all the coaches decided that it was in the best interest for all involved to reschedule the jamboree. We didn't want to take the chance of having a player getting hurt in a preseason game that doesn't count in the standings."

The jamboree will be rescheduled on Monday night at 5:30 p.m. with Lake Mary taking on Oviedo, one of four games that will be played during the jamboree, with each match being a 40-minute half.

College basketball gets into full swing

United Press International

Blame some of the holiday traveling snarls on college basketball.

The season gets in full swing this weekend, and most teams favor doing it on the road. They are crisscrossing the country, passing each other in airports, and taking up most of the aisle seats on any flight.

College basketball has never been as precise with its beginning as with its ending, so there doesn't seem to be an official start each season.

The Hall of Fame Tip-Off, won last Saturday by top-ranked Duke, has the name and 10 years of tradition in Springfield, Mass. But the four-year old Big Apple National Invitation Tournament played eight games the night before this year's Tip-Off.

The growing tradition for season openers is to hit the road, particularly for those places which take a while to reach. Games played outside the continental United States don't count against a team's NCAA limit of 27. Thus, coaches like the "free" competition as well as the experience of trips to Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

The Great Alaska Shootout, which starts its second decade Friday, has become a popular event despite the cold weather. This year's tournament has only one ranked team, No. 14 Florida, but an interesting field with defending national champion Kansas, which is on probation, and troubled Kentucky, which is being investigated by the NCAA.

In Friday's opening round, Kentucky plays Iowa, Florida meets California, Seton Hall takes on Utah, and Kansas plays host Alaska-Anchorage.

While seven teams go to Alaska each year, it seems about 70 play in Hawaii.

The Alaska Shootout has gotten competition the last couple years from a tournament in Lahaina, Maui. Though it doesn't draw many fans and just got TV coverage last season, the Maui Classic has an outstanding field with three Top 10 teams.

In Friday's opening round, No. 2 Michigan meets Vanderbilt, No. 6 Oklahoma takes on Ohio State, No. 7 Nevada-Las Vegas plays DePaul, and Memphis State goes against host Chaminade.

The University of Hawaii, host to the long-running Rainbow Classic after Christmas, also has gotten in the season-opening business. Montana State, Pepperdine and Texas complete the field of the Hawaii Tip-Off Tournament.

Other schools go to Hawaii for season openers against non-Division I teams. The trip has become a tradition at Georgetown, and this weekend the No. 4 Hoyas play their annual fodder Hawaii-Loa and Westmont.

Lefty Driesell's return to coaching will take place in Hawaii. Driesell will lead James Madison against Westmont and BYU-Hawaii.

Region titles on line tonight

Brantley hosts Lake City Columbia

By MARK BLYTHE
Herald sports writer

Lake Brantley will look to keep its powerful offense on the field and rely on its defense to contain the strong attack of Lake City Columbia tonight when the teams clash for the Region 5A-3 title.

The Patriots, 6-4, clinched the title last week with a 21-0 victory over Lyman. Lake City, 8-2, and the state's ninth ranked 5A team, host to Suwannee 44-22.

"They (Lake City) have a very talented football team," Brantley coach Fred Almon said. "They're averaging 41 points on offense while just giving up nine points on defense. The only two teams they've lost to are ranked higher than them on the state poll."

Brantley will be entering its first playoff game in five years while Columbia has been in this spot two out of the last four seasons. The Patriots, though, boast a much bigger squad than Lake City and they will try to use their size to overpower their opponents' defense.

"We're going to try to control the football and wait for the big play," Almon said. "I don't think anyone can stop our offense, we've used it all season and no one has stopped it yet. We'll have to control the ball against them, a team that averages 41 points a game knows what to do with the ball."

Brantley will look for its triple threat attack of fullback Elroy Dantzier, running back Mike Dantzier and quarterback Clint Johnson to get on track early and eat up the clock with the wishbone offensive attack.

"The Patriots did a nice job of doing just that against Lyman, although, turnovers and penalties hurt their chances to break the game open."

"We can't make too many mistakes against Lake City," Almon said. "We've looked sharp in practice and I think we're ready to play a real good football game."

Brantley took a couple days to come down off its victory over Lyman and is now ready to play football. The Patriots had a rough middle season but came on strong to finish District 5A-4 play with only one loss and take the title outright.

"We were a little flat on Monday and Tuesday," Almon said. "But we kind of had the same spirit we had for Lyman on Wednesday and looked good again today. We know we deserve to be heard now and we want to go out and prove it to everyone."

Brantley's defense will have to come through with another solid performance for the team to be successful. The Patriots were near flawless in the last Friday's victory as Lyman never penetrated inside the 15-yard line.

"I think Lake City's offense is very

Mike Dantzier is one of the key weapons in the Lake Brantley wishbone attack. The Patriots host Lake City tonight in the region playoff.

Oviedo's Lions journey to Land O' Lakes

After a long absence, Oviedo's Lions return to the state football playoffs tonight as they travel to Land O' Lakes for the 4A-4 Region playoff.

And since it is their first playoff appearance in quite awhile, the Lions look to stay around as long as possible. Oviedo goes into tonight's matchup as slight favorites, despite playing on the road.

Land O' Lakes, 6-4, won the 4A-8 District title for the second year in a row. Coach John Benedetto, though, said the Gators were picked to finish no better than fifth in their district this season. "We played our best football in the important games," Benedetto said. "This may not be the strongest football team around, but our kids hustle from the start to the finish. It is a very determined team."

Oviedo, 8-2, got to the region playoffs after winning a three-way tiebreaker for the district crown on Monday. The Lions defeated Seminole, 7-6, on a touchdown run by Frank Diaz and the extra point by Eric Dullmeyer.

The Lions figure to go to their bread and butter, running Diaz, again in the region contest. Diaz ran 263 times during the regular season (26.3 carries per game) and picked up 1,162 yards while scoring 12 touchdowns.

The Lions' second-leading rusher is Preston Dames who picked up 369 yards while Chad Duncan gained 242. Quarterback Matt Blanton had a good year with 885 passing yards and six touchdowns.

Defensively, senior linebacker Willie Pauldo and senior defensive back Duncan are the

Evans goes to Martin County

By JIM RICKENBACKER
Herald correspondent

ORLANDO — By now the news that Orlando Evans starting quarterback Dale Brewer has mono and will miss tonight's Region 5A-3 contest has no doubt reached Stuart where the third-ranked Trojans travel to meet eighth-ranked Martin County.

Should the citizens of Stuart start celebrating with 1,482 yards and 17 touchdowns worth of record-breaking passing recuperating back in Orlando?

Evans Coach Bill Gierke said NO on the heels of Thursday's back-breaking, early-morning practice.

"I've got a bunch of kids who love to play this game," said Gierke, who'll start sophomore Quentin Smith at quarterback. "If they lose, they won't be saying it was Dale's fault. They're in the mood right now where they figure that if the other team doesn't score they'll win."

"And when you get to the state playoffs, it's the team with the best defense and the team that limits its mistakes that usually wins. Teams that try to outscore you usually don't win."

"True, our youngest players are on defense, but we've won all 10 games and the four sophomores who start on defense aren't sophomores any more (experience-wise)."

What Gierke has done since receiving the untimely news Wednesday morning is to work his Trojans longer and harder. He's stepped up contact and drilled into players' heads that they can win if they're more physical.

Offensively, he's simplified one of the state's most versatile attacks so that Smith can operate under less pressure and depend on the men up front to open holes for running backs Adolph Mizell (129 carries, 1,080 yards, 10 TDs) and Herb Harris (96-505-9).

And Gierke guarantees he'll find ways to utilize receivers Horace Copeland (29-730-10) and Warren Ware (21-351-5).

"We had to make things easier for Quentin, but thank God our offensive line played so well in the late part of the regular season," Gierke said. "We'll throw more basic short passes and depend on our backs to carry the load."

Running back Adolph Mizell will carry a heavy load for the Evans Trojans tonight as they go to Stuart Martin County.

Auburn-Bama duel today

United Press International

No. 7 Auburn and 15th-ranked Alabama fired their final salvos Thursday as they prepared for their rivalry Friday at Birmingham, Ala.

A Sugar Bowl bid is on the line for the War Eagles, who would tie Louisiana State for the Southeastern Conference title with a victory. Auburn likely would get the bowl invitation because of a higher ranking. An Alabama win sends LSU to the Sugar Bowl and Auburn to the Hall of Fame Bowl.

"I hear they have already made reservations for New Orleans," Alabama linebacker Willie Sheppard said. "They must be going to watch LSU play. I don't think they're going to get there."

Neither team has been shy with bulletin-board material this week.

Vikings rout Lions, 23-0

United Press International

PONTIAC, Mich. - A matchup between the NFL's best defense and its worst offense produced a predictable result.

Minnesota manhandled Detroit defensively, setting two club records and matching two others and Alfred Anderson highlighted a 20-point second quarter with two short touchdown runs Thursday to pace the Vikings to an easy 23-0 Thanksgiving Day victory.

Minnesota registered its first shutout since it blanked Detroit, 34-0, on Nov. 9, 1980. The Vikings improved it to 9-4, 1-2 games behind Chicago in the NFC Central.

Wayne Fontes' dropped to 1-1 as Detroit's interim coach while the Lions fell to 3-10 overall.

"I'm thankful for our wide receivers. They made some great catches," said Minnesota quarterback Wade Wilson, who completed 16 of 21 passes for 180 yards. "And I'm thankful for our defense."

"I think the way our defense plays, our offense will score enough points to win games."

Minnesota did not allow Detroit a first down until Jeff Chadwick caught a 10-yard tipped pass with 1:04 left in the third quarter. The Lions had only 11 yards net offense in the first half.

The Vikings set club defensive records by allowing the Lions just three first downs in the game and 33 offensive plays. The 60 yards total offense Minnesota allowed equaled a club best accomplished twice in 1978. Two pass interceptions gave Minnesota 30 for the season, tying a club standard set in 1980.

United Press International

"They came out trying to run the ball," said Minnesota Coach Jerry Burns, a close friend of Fontes. "We stopped them early. We have a good defense, that's for sure. They wanted to run the ball because of our pass rush."

"It was a lousy performance," Fontes said. "I'm concerned because you've got to be able to move the football. Our quarterbacks are going to have to do better."

"I'm as low emotionally as I was high last week. But I said last week we just won one game. We just lost one game. We got beat by a very good football team."

Fontes' decision to start Chuck Long at quarterback didn't pan out, but switching to Rusty Hilger was only a marginal improvement.

Long failed to gain a first down in five three-play series, completing 2 of 6 passes for 5 yards. Hilger completed 4 of 14 for 43 yards.

"I've never had a half where I didn't get a first down," said Long, who had been out with a sprained knee. "We had a first down on our first possession, but then we got a penalty and it was tough from there on out. Of-ensively, we had a lot of mental breakdowns."

United Press International

The crowd of 46,379 gave the Lions a standing ovation when they finally made their initial first down. But even that was a bit of a botch since fullback James Jones, the intended receiver, tipped the ball along to Chadwick.

"I heard them standing and cheering," Fontes said. "I thought maybe the President had come in."

Minnesota wasn't tearing up the field in the scoreless first quarter, but it was wearing down the Detroit defense.

The Vikings had just started a 72-yard drive when the period ended. Anderson ended the drive with a 2-yard run into the end zone.

On the next play from scrimmage, Long was intercepted by cornerback Carl Lee, whose seven thefts lead the NFL. Chuck Nelson wound up kicking the first of his three field goals.

Nelson hit from 21 yards to make it 10-0, booted a 33-yarder on the last play of the first half to make it 20-0 and connected from 18 yards out when the Vikings opened the second half with a nine-minute drive.

Anderson plunged a yard for a score at the end of a 65-yard drive with 1:12 to play in the first half.

Anthony Carter had an excellent day for Minnesota with seven catches for 84 yards.

Oilers' rally stings Cowboys

United Press International

IRVING, Texas - The Houston Oilers found their Thanksgiving feast a little tougher to chew than expected Thursday.

Nevertheless, the Oilers cleaned their plate while forcing the Dallas Cowboys to go hungry for the ninth straight week.

Facing a team that is in its worst slump in a generation, the Oilers found themselves trailing going into the final period. Key plays by quarterback Warren Moon and the Oilers' special teams, however, rallied Houston to a 25-17 over the willing, but unable Cowboys.

"We're the hardest working football team in the league," Houston Coach Jerry Glanville said. "I think it was pretty obvious we did not have enough time to prepare for this game."

"We knew that we wouldn't be facing the same Dallas team that we had seen on film. They had a lot of pride and just wouldn't quit."

Moon hit Drew Hill with a 5-yard touchdown pass early in the fourth quarter that put the Oilers in front for good, but Houston did not wrap up the game until Al Smith jarred the ball loose from Dallas kicker returner Cornell Burbage at the Cowboys' 15 in the game's final three minutes.

That set up a 22-yard field goal by Tony Zendejas that gave the Oilers an unbeatable eight-point cushion.

"I'm really proud of this team," Cowboys Coach Tom Landry said. "One play in the fourth quarter was going to decide the game and they were the ones who made it."

"But we played hard against a very good football team. The only thing that makes you play as hard as we did today is character and this team has character."

Houston advanced to 9-4, moving to within a half game of AFC Central-leading Cincinnati pending the Bengals' meeting Sunday with Buffalo.

Dallas is 2-11. Its nine-game losing streak just one short of equalling a team record. The Cowboys also clinched last place in the NFC East, the first time Dallas has finished last in its division since its inaugural season of 1960.

The Moon-to-Hill touchdown pass came 3:07 into the final to put the Oilers in front 19-17. Tony Zendejas missed the extra-point attempt.

Following a Dallas punt, the Oilers drove to a 47-yard field goal by Zendejas for a five-point Houston lead.

The Cowboys still could have won the game with a touchdown, but on the kickoff following the field goal, Burbage fumbled the ball away at his own 15. That led to a game-clinching field goal of 22 yards by Zendejas with 2:08 remaining.

Dallas scored on a 1-yard run by Herschel Walker, a 29-yard field goal from Roger Ruzek and a 3-yard third-quarter run by quarterback Steve Pelluer.

Houston's first half points came on a 28-yard field goal from Zendejas and a 12-yard run by Mike Rozier, tying the score 10-10 at halftime. Zendejas added a third-quarter field goal of 49 yards.

Moon completed 15 of 29 passes for 226 yards and found himself having to act as a one-man inspiration - both verbally and physically.

"A lot of people came in here thinking this would be just like the preseason game (in which Houston beat the Cowboys, 54-10). But it just isn't," Moon said. "There is a lot more intensity in a regular season

United Press International

game and it was pretty clear to me we were lacking it. I tried to get everybody pumped up and I raised my voice and it is something I'm not accustomed to doing."

"When you are playing a team that is down and you give them life like we did, we could have been in for a long afternoon."

In the first half, facing a third-and-10, Moon scrambled under a heavy rush and just before stepping out of bounds found Abner Highsmith with a 26-yard pass. That led to Houston's first field goal.

On the Oilers' only touchdown drive of the first half, Moon threw a 22-yard pass to Hill on a third-and-20 situation a 19-yard pass from Moon to Leonard Harris on third down kept alive Houston's go-ahead touchdown drive in the fourth period.

Pelluer, meanwhile, had one of his best games of the season, throwing for 203 yards and operating an offense that looked sharp for three periods.

A 22-yard Pelluer-to-Michael Irvin pass led to Dallas' first touchdown - the 1-yard Walker run which ended the Cowboys' first possession of the day.

Alabama linebacker Derrick Thomas has vowed to sack Auburn quarterback Reggie Slack. Auburn fullback James Joseph has said Thomas will not be a factor.

"They don't respect us," Auburn guard Rodney Garner said. "It makes me mad. It ticks me off."

Friday's game promises to be another low-scoring defensive struggle.

Auburn leads the nation in total defense, allowing only 213 yards and 6.9 points per game. Alabama is allowing only 15 points per game and is particularly strong against the run, giving up 83 yards per game.

At Los Angeles, No. 2 Southern Cal is trying to make it through the rest of the week without another problem heading into Saturday's showdown against top-ranked Notre Dame.

Quarterback Rodney Pette, who played in last week's victory over UCLA while recovering from the measles, has just recovered from a case of laryngitis that had threatened to force the Trojans to have the tailback call signals.

"We're very adjustable," Southern Cal Coach Larry Smith said. "Who knows, we may have to adjust to a one-legged tailback."

Aaron Emanuel, the team's most effective rusher, suffered a slight injury when someone ran over his toe with a skateboard. Of more concern to the Trojans is Emanuel's infected teeth, which are giving him headaches. However, he should play Saturday.

Notre Dame, which will meet West Virginia in the Fiesta Bowl, has won the last five meetings between the schools.

At Miami, No. 8 Arkansas is undefeated and a 17-point underdog to third-ranked Miami.

The Razorbacks, 10-0 and headed to the Cotton Bowl, were the recipients of a 51-7 drubbing by Miami last year, but Arkansas Coach Ken Hatfield believes the outcome could be much different this year.

"Our players do believe we can win," Hatfield said. "We haven't had to connive or do anything clever to convince them they can win."

Arkansas has made some changes from last year. The Razorbacks are throwing more and have switched to a four-defensive back formation on defense.

In 12 games last year, Arkansas passed for 940 yards and the Razorbacks have 1,510 yards passing this season. Quarterback Quinn Grovey leads the Arkansas "flexbone" attack.

Oklahoma State's Sanders Heisman Trophy favorite

United Press International

NEW YORK — Maybe Rodney Peete has won more and Troy Aikman thrown more but no one tells the story of 1988 Heisman Trophy race better than their fellow candidate and quarterback, Steve Walsh.

"I know Rodney Peete had a great year, Troy Aikman had a great year, and Sanders had an unbelievable year," Walsh said of Barry Sanders, the recently unheralded Oklahoma State tailback who has come to eclipse four quarterbacks in an impressive Heisman field.

The 53rd Heisman Trophy winner will be announced Dec. 3 at Manhattan's Downtown Athletic Club when Sanders will be in Tokyo, preparing for the Cowboys' regular-season finale against Texas Tech. Walsh will be playing for Miami against Brigham Young that day, but is not projected to finish in the top three.

"You have four major quarterbacks at a time when the NFL is dying for young quarterbacks," Heisman Trophy Committee Chairman Jack O'Keefe said of Southern Cal's Peete, UCLA's Aikman, Walsh and West Virginia's Major Harris.

"The year Gary Beban won, O.J. Simpson had a very, very strong year," O'Keefe said. "In 1985, when Bo Jackson won, Chuck Long was having a big year.

"But not since Marcus Allen in '81 ran against Herschel Walker — who won the following year — and third-place was Jim McMahon and fourth Dan Marino has the field been this strong."

Despite the strong field, Sanders has clearly emerged the front-runner in a year the Heisman was all but mailed to California in the preseason. Eighteen NCAA records and three 300-yard games ago (no one previously has rushed for 300 more than once in a season), Sanders was an unknown. The Heisman battle between seniors Peete and Aikman was expected to be a subplot to the annual Southern Cal-UCLA battle.

Peete's accomplishments brought Southern Cal a 10-0 record and No. 2 national ranking heading into the season finale against top-ranked Notre Dame. Aikman's performance, though impressive, was not enough to prevent UCLA from losing to USC and sliding out of the elite.

Walsh, a junior, emerged the highest-rated of the passing candidates and sophomore Harris jumped into longshot contention by helping West Virginia go 11-0.

"Definitely the front-runners were Rodney and Troy, and Barry and I came onto the scene as the season progressed," Walsh said.

Harris' chances are hurt by the fact that he's a sophomore. West Virginia's strong rushing attack takes away from his passing statistics and the Mountaineers' schedule is considered sub-par.

Peete's Trojans had a schedule rated toughest in the nation and he was not conceding the trophy on the eve of the biggest game of the year.

"I do feel like Barry Sanders had a great year — he's done some unbelievable things," he said. "But I do think it's not over yet. If I can play well against Notre Dame, anything can happen."

Syracuse, Missouri collide in NIT final

United Press International

NEW YORK — The tip-off to start Friday night's game between No. 8 Syracuse and No. 13 Missouri should resemble the starter's call at the Indianapolis 500: "Gentlemen, start your engines."

For the championship game of the Big Apple National Invitation Tournament will likely be decided by whose running game clicks best. Running is how the Orangemen and Tigers survived the first three rounds of this 16-team tournament, and that's sure to be how they attack each other.

"The game they play is basically uptempo," Syracuse forward Stephen Thompson said. "They like to do what we like to do."

Missouri and Syracuse displayed just how viciously they can motor Wednesday night against some pretty good competition. The Tigers ousted No. 3 North Carolina 91-81 in one semifinal. Then the Orangemen put together a half of textbook fast-break basketball to squash No. 17 Indiana 102-78.

What makes both finalist particularly effective on the break is that they have skilled ball-handlers besides their guards.

Forward Mike Sanbothe removes part of the dribbling responsibility from Missouri guards Byron Irvin and Lee Coward.

"Against our pressure, they just brought it up," North Carolina Coach Dean Smith said. "(Forward) Doug Smith has got excellent speed and Sanbothe gives them an extra ball-handler."

Syracuse, 3-0, possesses one of the nation's elite point guards in Sherman Douglas. Still, the Orange bowed against Indiana just how well Thompson and freshman forward Billy Owens can handle the ball on the wings, particularly on the break.

"We're not as quick as Syracuse, we'll never be as quick as Syracuse," said Indiana's Bob Knight, whose team yielded more points to the Orange than it has to any team in his 18 seasons at Indiana.

Will the Tigers be quick enough?

Missouri's Norm Stewart, who registered his 500th coaching victory against North Carolina, had said before Syracuse and Indiana played that he would rather face the Hoosiers in the final.

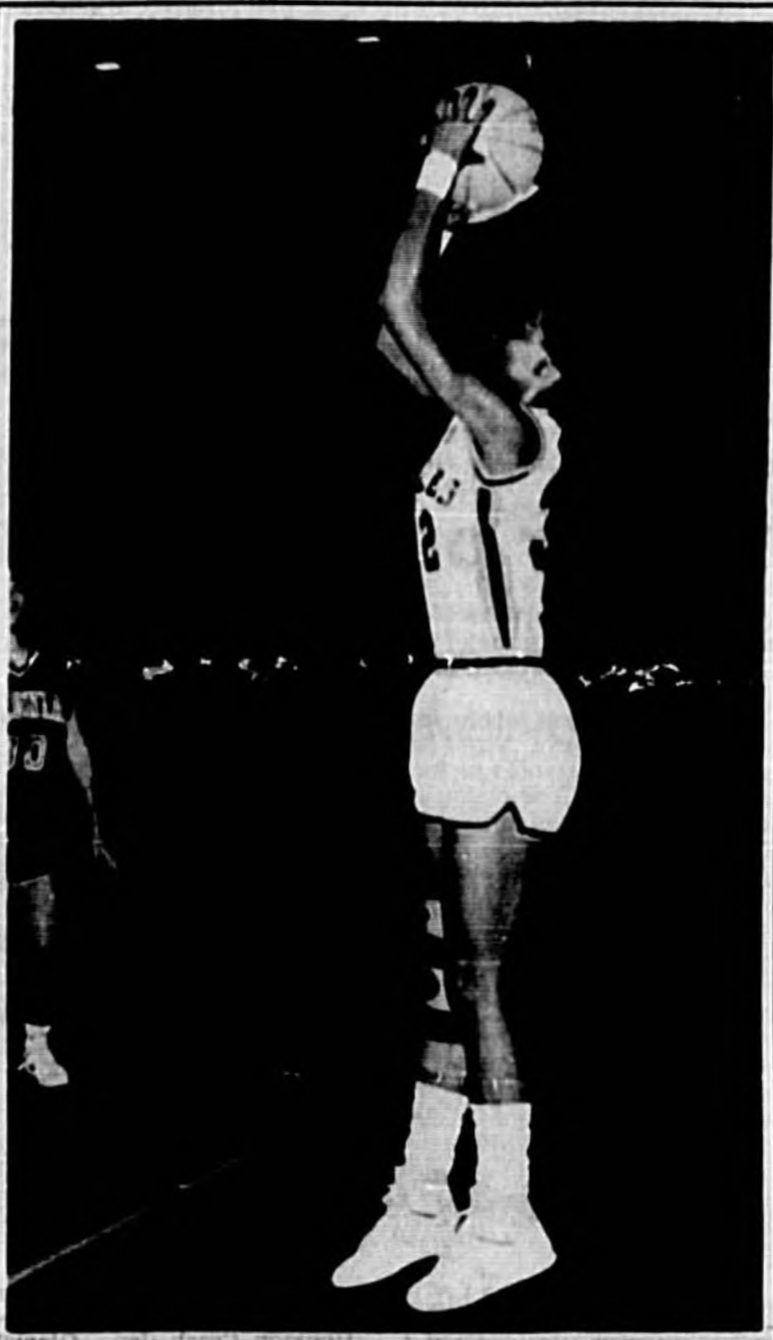

"We're not moving with the ball very good," Stewart said. "That kind of team (Indiana) would make us move."

Missouri, 3-0, defeated a North Carolina team missing its top scorer J.R. Reid, until at least late December with a stress fracture in his left foot. But Syracuse Coach Jim Boheim remembers what happened when his club, basically the same one this year as last, played North Carolina last season when the Tar Heels were without J.R. Reid.

"North Carolina beat us without J.R. Reid," Boheim said. "To be able to beat North Carolina like Missouri did is impressive. Last year they relied on (school career scoring champ Derrick) Chievous. This year they are going to others and that makes it tough to defend on many different things."

North Carolina and Indiana will open Friday's action in a battle for third place in the tournament.

"This (the tournament) is good for us," said Knight, who has no full-time starters back from last year. "Regardless of Friday's results these games will be good for us."

Cool Koscia

Seminole High's Koscia Kennon puts up a baseline jumper during action in the Rotary Thanksgiving Tournament on Wednesday. After dispatching Colonial, the Lady Seminoles go up against Lake Howell today (1:30 p.m.) in the semifinals of the tournament, held at UCF. The UCF women also open their season tonight at 8 vs. Baptist University.

Aggies outlast Longhorns, 28-24

United Press International

AUSTIN, Texas — Embattled Texas A&M Coach Jackie Sherrill credited his seniors Thursday night for a 28-24 victory over Texas, citing their ability to handle the distractions that have swirled around the probation-ridden Aggies.

"The seniors on this team have gone through so much this season with all of the adversity, and they have done nothing but fight back," Sherrill said. "They handled all the adversity and did it well. Because they didn't quit, they will benefit from this the rest of their lives."

After building a 28-0 first-half lead, the Aggies were forced to hold off a second-half Longhorn rally.

Darren Lewis rushed for a career-high 212 yards and one touchdown and linebacker John Roper returned a blocked field-goal attempt for another score in the Aggies' error-filled victory over their arch-rivals.

Texas' hopes for an upset died when Mark Murdock was sacked on fourth down at the Texas 19 with 40 seconds to play.

The Aggies are 7-4 overall and 6-1 in the SWC and will face Alabama in a Dec. 1 non-conference game.

The game marked the return to the sidelines of Sherrill after sitting out last week's game against Texas Christian because of allegations he made illegal payments to a former player.

Texas, which lost its fourth straight to A&M, finished the year 4-7 and 2-6. The record is the Longhorns' worst since they went 1-9 in 1956, the year before former Coach Darrell Royal's arrival.

Texas Coach David McWilliams said he was proud of his team for fighting back after falling behind by three touchdowns.

"It was all on guts and effort tonight," he said. "It's tough on the seniors leaving here without beating A&M, but the way they played tonight and fought back ... I think the underclassmen saw that pride."

The Aggies appeared to have control of the game after they raced to a 28-0 lead, but six turnovers and a string of penalties allowed Texas to mount a comeback.

A critical fumble eventually doomed the Longhorns. Trailing 28-24 and facing a third-and-2 at the Aggies 34 with 3:20 left in the game, Texas lost a fumble on a bad pitch by substitute quarterback Donovan Forbes.

A&M looked like a runaway winner in the first half.

After stalling on their first possession of the game, the Aggies took over on their own 23 and marched 77 yards for the game's first score. Lewis, who set a SWC season record for rushing attempts at 282, scored on a 15-yard run.

Lewis' 3-yard touchdown run on the Aggies' next possession was called back for holding, and quarterback Hucky Richardson lost a fumble at the Longhorns 7 and exited the game with a knee injury.

A&M scored on its next possession, after Rod Har's yard punt return set up the Aggies at the Texas 37. Following Lewis' 36-yard dash, Robert Wilson plunged over from the 1-yard line for the touchdown.

A&M opened a 21-0 lead early in the second quarter when Roper rambled 48 yards with a blocked field-goal attempt. The 52-yard try by Wayne Clements was blocked by linebacker Aaron Wallace.

Chris Osgood, subbing for the injured Richardson, directed the Aggies on a 64-yard scoring drive late in the second quarter to boost the Aggies lead to 28-0.

Texas began its comeback after Oscar Giles fell on an Osgood fumble at the Aggies 14. Two plays later, Murdock lobbed a 9-yard touchdown pass to Kerry Cash to cut the halftime lead to 28-7.

The Longhorns took advantage of another turnover midway the third quarter to score. Mark Berry's interception of Osgood's pass at the A&M 18 set up Murdock's 14-yard scoring pass to Stephen Clark.

With 8:21 left in the third quarter, Murdock connected with Tony Jones on a 76-yard touchdown bomb. The Longhorns, again capitalizing on Tex Mercer's interception of Osgood at the Aggies 29, drew closer on Wayne Clements' 39-yard field goal.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Ricky Jones threw for a touchdown on the last play of the first half and Anthony Lewis added a 13-yard scoring run in the fourth quarter Thursday to lead Alabama State to a 17-0 victory over Tuskegee.

Alabama State, 7-3, also scored on a 25-yard field goal by Reginald Adams in the first quarter in winning the 78th meeting of the rivalry. The two schools did not meet the previous two seasons because of a dispute over gate receipts.

It was the fourth straight loss in the series for Tuskegee, 3-6, which threatened only once — when it drove to the Alabama State 25 in the first quarter before missing a 42-yard field goal attempt.

Lady Sunshine tourney at Lake Mary

By MARK BLYTHE
Herald sports writer

The eighth annual Lady Sunshine Basketball Tournament will tip off today at Lake Mary High School with both high school and College teams featured in the event.

The action will begin with Miami Carroll City High taking on St. Petersburg Lakewood at 1:30 followed by Lake Mary and Greenville Mississippi at 3. Carroll City is ranked as one of the state's top programs while St. Pete Lakewood has perhaps the best player in the state in Nicole Tunali.

Greenville has an impressive squad this season, so Anna Van Landingham will have a tough assignment in her first game as the Lady Rams' head coach. Lake Mary has several returning standouts led by Tara Jackson, Anita Mitchell and Amy Kuvach while newcomers Heather Gleason and Lisa Johnson add strength to the team.

"Greenville looked awesome in practice yesterday," tournament director John Smith said. "Miami is strong as well as St. Pete and with the exception of Teri Whyte, Lake Mary returns everyone from last year's team."

The college tourney features two Florida schools as Florida State and the University of Miami will be on hand. Central Michigan and Miami will begin action at 6 today followed by FSU and Southwest Missouri at 8.

"We're hoping for an Florida final," Smith said. "FSU looked real good in practice and we're hoping Miami's first year coach Ferne Labatt can reach the finals. It would be nice for her to do well."

Labatt took over the the UM program after Kerry Patrick resigned last season to help with the promotion of foreign basketball teams visiting America.

"This is a chance for Central Florida to see big time women's basketball without having to travel very far," Smith said. "We have some very good teams participating and we welcome everyone."

Tickets will be available at the gate and admission is $3 for adults and $2 for players or students.

"Smith's a good athlete, has confidence he can play and has seen a lot of playing time on punt and kickoff returns and goal-line situations. It's important for him to gain confidence early and build on it.

"It's fun for our kids to go to a town that rallies around one team. It's a different reality."

What the Trojans face in Martin County (9-1) is a Tiger of a team that has taken home consecutive district titles with a very versatile offense and a cat-quick, experienced defense.

Quarterback Aaron Davis (1,222 yards, 18 TDs) and wide receiver Henry Haston (39-937-15) are headliners on an offense Gierke said runs just about anything that he's ever seen. Linebacker Jerome Harris and tackle Johnathan McMahon anchor the defense.

"We beat Winter Park, Merritt Island and Apopka on the road the last month of the regular season," Gierke said. "Being on the road isn't that much of a factor since we only had four home games this season.

Oviedo

leaders while Barry Coleman, Hector Diaz, Jon Black and John Knutson have also had tremendous seasons for Oviedo.

Dullmeyer has been a consistent kicker for the Lions as he has scored 22 points on 13 extra points and three field goals. Two of Dullmeyer's field goals were game-winners.

One advantage that Oviedo may have over the Gators is that the Lions play several Class 5A teams, while Land O' Lakes restricts its schedule to Class 4A (and 3A) only. Oviedo owns five victories over Class 5A foes including Lake Mary, Lyman, Lake Brantley, DeLand and Dr. Phillips.

The winner of tonight's Region 4 playoff will advance to the Section 2 playoff on Friday, Dec. 2 against the winner of the Daytona Beach Seabreeze-Titusville game. Oviedo will be the host on Dec. 2 if it is victorious tonight.

Trojans look to vault past Irish

United Press International

LOS ANGELES — The quarterback who had the measles is getting over laryngitis. The tailback is fine after a skateboard accident but still bothered by infected teeth. It's been a strange couple of weeks at Southern Cal.

So what else can happen to USC? How about a national championship?

All is in line for the Trojans to finish No. 1 for the first time since 1978. After beating UCLA last week, second-ranked USC can vault past Notre Dame Saturday with a victory over the Fighting Irish at the Coliseum (3:30 p.m. EST).

The Trojans, who would need to beat both the Irish and Michigan in the Rose Bowl to guarantee themselves the national title, are 10-0, just like Notre Dame. It marks the first time in the 60-game rivalry that the teams will meet with both owning unblemished records.

Brantley

comparable to Lyman's," Almon said. "They have a running back who runs a lot like (Cedric) Bouey and they have a talented quarterback who can throw the ball real well. He doesn't have the foot speed of Jerry but he's still very talented. If they can score 22 points against Suwannee they have to be tough."

Lake Brantley, though, has proven to be very tough also and should turn in one of its best performances of the season. The Patriots are up for their first playoff appearance in class 5A and want to prove they belong with the state's elite.

"We realize now, that we're as good as anyone," Almon said. "At this level any team can beat the other and we are definitely ready to play."

Dieters keeping their ho-ho-ho

Weight loss program utilizes the holidays

SANFORD — Though visions of sugar plums dance in their heads, employees and visitors at Central Florida Regional Hospital are singing "I'll Be Slim for Christmas" to themselves.

A special weight control program at the hospital offers tips and meals so that weight is not another hassle during the hurried holidays.

From 1-1:45 p.m. and 5-6:30 p.m., the hospital program—primarily for CPRH employees and visitors—consists of low-calorie entrees presented two or three times a week, along with tips emphasizing the three major components of any successful weight management plan—portion control, behavior modification and exercise.

"With effort on your part, a light Christmas won't be just a dream," said Cami Proenza, CPRH dietary department manager. "Over the next six weeks we will offer ways to weave these important concepts into familiar holiday situations such as cooking and entertaining, attending holiday parties, shopping, and managing time and stress."

Each week will have a theme appropriately tailored to the holiday season. During the week of "All I Want for Christmas is to See My Feet," the program will stress the fact that three healthy, sensible meals per day are the backbone of any good diet. Skipping meals only makes one hungry, leading to overeating or devouring the wrong type of food, Proenza said.

Maintaining a healthy diet should allow one to plan a small splurge, such as eggnog or a slice of cake or pie, Proenza said. "You can enjoy it without guilt when you have followed a sensible diet during the week. The best Christmas gift you can give yourself is a slimmer and healthier you," she said.

Choices, planned ahead of time, are touted in the week themed "I'm Dreaming of a Light Christmas." For instance, one should decide what his/her consumption limit is before going to a tempting party. Instead of alcoholic beverages, Proenza recommends dieters sipping low-calorie options, such as diet soda, club soda, coffee or vegetable juice.

Another tip is to calculate how many calorie will fit into one's diet, then select only one's favorite treats. Proenza encourages eating a light meal before a party to lessen the temptation to taste the rich items. Wait until later in the party to approach the snack table, she said, then leave it to avoid nibbling.

The week of "Raspberry Dressing" lists several good ideas for the cook while preparing and cleaning up after holiday meals and parties:

• Avoid cooking to taste by following recipes or having someone else cook.

• Chew sugarless gum while cooking and brush your teeth before tidying up the kitchen.

• Reduce the oil and fat in food preparation and still get an excellent dish with fewer calories.

• Cook your favorites right after you've eaten a fulfilling, healthy meal.

• Put on some sing-along music and sing loudly while cooking or cleaning up. Singing and eating are hard to do simultaneously.

The theme of "Santa's Day Off" deals with time and stress management—avoiding overeating when fatigue takes its toll and stress looms to dissolve willpower.

Winter prime time to plant trees, shrubs

With winter fast approaching, it soon will be time for major tree and shrub planting and transplanting.

There are several advantages in planting during November and the winter, instead of waiting until spring. The plants are not actively growing during this time and are less apt to be injured by shock from planting. Also, the weather and moisture during the winter season is very conducive to good plant adjustment as well as good working weather for the gardener.

Winter planting of trees and shrubs allows the plants to become well established prior to spring growth and bloom and prior to summer heat. Research shows that roots of plants continue to grow and develop during mild winter days, even though foliage does not.

You also will find that your nurseryman has a good stock of plants during the fall and winter, and he can give you more time and attention during this season, whereas he cannot during the rush of spring.

The success of your landscape will depend greatly on your ability to select plants that will fit your particular landscape need and situation.

GARDENING

Trees are always a must in most landscape whether their purpose is for shade, windbreaks, food, setting of atmosphere, to add color and beauty with bloom and foliage, or to add aesthetic and real estate value to the property.

The ideal landscape tree does not exist. Trees that have desirable features also have those that are undesirable. A tree may have beautiful flowers in the spring, followed by unattractive fruit or seed pods in the fall. If a tree is a fast grower, it also may be brittle and short-lived.

All trees have advantages and disadvantages, thus your selection must be carefully considered. Points for consideration in choosing the proper tree should include the following:

1. Be sure the tree you choose will fit your landscape need (e.g., fast growing for quick shade, broad and spreading for shade, dense for a windbreak or for screening or attractive bloom for an accent.)

2. Know the tree you select and its growth requirements. Know the tree's ultimate size and plant accordingly. Does the tree require special soil? Does the tree have serious insect and disease susceptibility and will it require routine maintenance?

3. Be sure the tree is tolerant of your local weather conditions. Will it tolerate Florida's summer heat, or is it too tender for Central Florida's winters?

4. Do you want an evergreen or deciduous tree? Deciduous shade trees are recommended for allowing the desirable sun when void of leaves in the winter, whereas an evergreen tree may be desirable for screening.

5. Consider overhead lines, underground waterlines, septic tanks, etc., as well as walks, drives and paved surfaces that may be damaged by tree roots.

6. Know the tolerance of the tree to salt spray. The southern magnolia, cajeput tree and the live oak are a few among the group of trees tolerant of salt spray.

7. Lastly, obtain a quality tree from a reliable nurseryman, and plant it in a carefully prepared spot, following good horticultural practices as to proper soil, location, exposure, watering and spraying, so that your investment in the tree is not lost through carelessness and lack of planning.

For more information on planting and care of trees and shrubs, a program will be held at the Seminole County Agricultural Extension Auditorium on Wednesday, Nov. 30, at 7 p.m. Mike Martin, urban forester, will speak on planting trees and will speak of care and maintenance.

The program is free and open to the public. Call 323-2500, ext. 181, for more information.

Fruit juice, medicine may not mix very well

DEAR DR. GOTT: Recently, articles have appeared advising senior citizens against taking combinations of fruit, particularly orange juice, plus various calcium supplements and vitamins, with blood-pressure medications. Should calcium and vitamins be taken later in the day?

Dr. Medicine. Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to: P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have overactive saliva glands, which cause very annoying, thick, sticky, large amounts of saliva. Ear, nose and throat specialists haven't been able to pinpoint a cure. I'm on antidepressants and have diverticulosis.

DEAR READER: Overproduction of saliva is a common consequence of foreign material in the mouth; this material can range from chewing gum to dentures. In addition, some particularly tense and nervous persons may have an idiosyncratic reaction. Rather than experiencing the usual dry mouth, they produce excess saliva. Some medicines, including antidepressants, inhibit formation of saliva. I doubt that diverticulosis, a common and harmless bowel condition, is contributing to your problem. I suggest that you see a dentist since the ENT specialists haven't been able to diagnose your problem. Dentists are often very skilled at diagnosing conditions affecting the mouth.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 51, still menstruating and have osteopenia. My doctors give me Premarin and Provera. Will the artificial hormones cause problems, since I am still producing my own?

DEAR READER: Although you are still menstruating, I am sure that your level of natural hormones is below normal. The doctors are simply replacing your hormones with a synthetic variety. At your age, the combination of your hormones plus the drugstore hormones should produce no problems whatsoever. Remember that as long as you take hormones in a regular cycle, you will have menstrual periods. In addition, remember to follow your doctor's advice with respect to how often you need checkups.

With synthetic hormones replacing your own, the natural tendency of the bones to lose calcium will be slowed. You can aid this process by eating a balanced diet and exercising regularly.

your objectives are clearly defined today, your chances for achieving them will be better than usual. The key to today's success is being single-minded.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In order to perform at your best today, you need stimulating and risky involvements. Your judgment in challenging ventures should be quite good.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A matter that has been hanging fire can be finalized to your satisfaction today if you're prepared to dedicate energies and efforts to doing it.

LINNA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Although you could do well operating on your own today, you are likely to be even more effective in situations involving partners. Be a team player.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You have the faculty for bringing things to a successful conclusion today that should please you and win the admiration of others, especially if you're materially motivated.

Holiday mail call takes good cheer overseas

DEAR READERS: Can you believe it's time for Operation Dear Abby IV? Once again, we will join forces with the America Remembers campaign, whose national chairman is still Donald P. Grimes.

ADVICE
ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Last year, Operation Dear Abby III sent an estimated 3 million pieces of mail to our servicemen and women stationed in Korea, Japan, the Philippines, Iceland and Europe, as well as those serving in the Mediterranean and Indian Oceans. Tons of letters and packages were dropped from helicopters to aircraft carriers to cheer those who had been deployed for weeks—some for months.

Schoolteachers in the United States and Canada made class projects of writing to our servicemen and women who would be away from their families during the holidays. Women and men who love to bake sent cookies, brownies and fruitcakes. The elderly residents of the Jewish Center for the Aged in St. Louis baked 21 dozen kosher cookies, under strict rabbinical supervision. (They received letters of gratitude from Marines and sailors in Okinawa who enjoyed "the sweet touch of home.")

Dieters

One should accept the fact that there is too much to do during the holidays. Proenza said, and plan ahead. Delegating duties and chores to family members can help relieve some pressure and free some time for Christmas shopping. By mail ordering gifts, time may be saved in traffic and shopping.

Exercise, the companion to dieting, is addressed during "Dashing Through the Snow" week. Mail walking is highly recommending, being more brisk and constant than regular walking but not as joint-jarring as running.

THAT WORRIED LOOK

With these young pups, that worried look isn't real. You might call it a physiological illusion. The whole problem is that their heads haven't grown enough to fill out the wrinkles in their brows.
But, with people a worried look is usually real. It reflects the deep concerns that trouble our world and lives.
Yet, worry isn't going to improve the world. Its only real value is that it encourages us to seek solutions where they can be found. The best thing to replace worry with is FAITH.

Churches revisit South Africa issue

United Press International

Once more, U.S. churches are trying to put in place a unified strategy that will change U.S. policy toward South Africa and put increased pressure on that nation to end its practice of apartheid.

After a high-level meeting of church officials late last month, United Methodist Bishop Melvin Talbert of San Francisco has been named to head a new committee to coordinate those efforts.

The new effort was prompted by increased violence in South Africa, including the firebombing of the headquarters of the Southern African Council of Churches and the arson fire at the offices of the Southern Africa Catholic Bishops Conference.

Also contributing to the new effort was the failure of the U.S. Congress to pass new sanctions legislation during its last session.

But the new effort comes at a time when interest in the issue appears at an all-time low and, while nearly everyone opposes apartheid, few know quite what to do about it.

"The future is in our hands together," Talbert told the top church officials forming the new crisis committee. "I hope the end result will be a broad-based concern for South Africa and a commitment of our churches to respond in a unified way."

Work of the new committee will be concentrated in the National Council of Churches' Africa office and the World Council of Churches' U.S. offices.

Topping the agenda, for which the leaders hope to build a grass-roots movement, will be a renewed drive to isolate South Africa economically, particularly through boycotts, corporate campaigns and pressure on the Congress to enact the comprehensive sanctions legislation.

Leaders said they also want to put emphasis on local religious constituencies.

Idioms conceal Jesus' meaning

After George Lamsa came to the United States during the first world war, he became something of a baseball fan. One day in the 1920s he was listening to a game on the radio. He heard the announcer say that Babe Ruth had "died on third."

Lamsa was sorry to hear that because the Babe had been one of his heroes. Two innings later he was to get an even greater shock. Ruth, dead on third in the fifth inning, managed to come to life and hit a home run in the seventh!

It was not the only time Lamsa was confused by an American idiom. Once a lady invited him to her home for a party.

"We're going to have a shower for Mary So-and-so," she said.

In the Middle East, where Lamsa is from, brides are bathed before the nuptials. Lamsa was surprised to hear the Americans had the same custom. He accepted the invitation but, once at the party, he wondered what had happened to change the

GEORGE PLAGENZ

One way the scholars say they know this is from tracing the words of Jesus in the Bible to their Aramaic source. Aramaic is a Semitic dialect spoken by Jesus and other Jews in Palestine in the first century. The Jesus Seminar contends translators got some of the Aramaic idioms wrong.

Lamsa knew how that could happen.

Son of Middle Eastern nomads, Lamsa, who grew up speaking Aramaic, discovered that our Bible translations had misinterpreted many Aramaic idioms.

When, for example, a man who had been asked to follow Jesus said, "Let me first bury my father," he meant, "Let me take care of my father until he dies," or, in effect, "When my father is dead and I have no more family obligations, then I'll follow you."

Our translations make it sound as if Jesus didn't want the man to take the time to bury his dead father.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Here was one of those sad bridge hands in which so much of the high-card strength was seemingly wasted. Against four hearts, West led the 10 of clubs to dummy's jack and East's ace. East then switched to the jack of diamonds. Declarer put up the king; West took the ace and queen and returned a second club. Although declarer could shed two spades on the high clubs, eventually he had to lay down the spade ace in the far-fetched hope that the king would drop singleton. No such luck.

in the play? If you recall, this week's theme is keeping the dangerous hand off lead. How could that be done?

It's fair to assume that West would not underlead an ace against a suit contract, so East is marked with the club ace. What happens if declarer simply plays low from dummy at the first trick? Sure, West will win the trick, but the diamond king is safe from attack, and declarer can ruff out East's club ace to establish two clubs for two diamond discards. And what if East is brilliant enough to figure all this out and wins the club ace anyway at trick one to lead the diamond jack? Declarer may lose two diamonds and a club, but now his three small spades can go away on the K-Q-J of clubs.
