

Grover Alexander Will Go Back To Phillies In Trade Deal With St. Louis Browns

By Davis J. Walsh

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Twilight in the hour of peace and great content and, in the twilight of his career, Grover Cleveland Alexander, with his face of mahogany and a heart of sturdy oak, is going home—not to die, we hope, but to live happily ever after.

All which is sentimentally and baseball has all the sentiment of the average fishmonger, a fact which it proceeded to endorse yesterday on a few hours after Alexander was traded back to the Phillies by the St. Louis Cardinals. The news was hardly rolled when the rival Philadelphia club announced that it had arranged a trade whereby another old favorite, Walter Schang, was to return to the home of his fathers.

Thus, the barrier in human souls went forward behind the scenes of baseball's annual meetings, a frank exposition of commercial rivalry that had been about its purpose intent but shrewdly hidden on its object. Those Philadelphia clubs are professional venturers, in spite of the fact that one is a world's champion and the other a second division outfit; so when one of them decided to take a fling of sentimentality—coupled with sound economic reasoning—the other was glad that it found it with a chance to play the game the same way.

However, I prefer to think of Alexander not as a mule, passive pawn that has been shunted about in a game in which he holds no cards, but as a man who accepts the bidding of fate gladly. An imposing figure of a man, this. All of 43 years of age, he had lived his second generation on the ball diamond of a nation while a parade of young and old has passed before his red old eye—onward in to the outer darkness of baseball's forgotten.

Yes, he has seen them come and go, this fellow, in his time to follow in me. Yet the mere fact that he was a figure in the deal served to give the Phillies the break in the transaction, in the opinion of those who patiently waited the joint meeting of the two majors today.

The deal sent Alexander and catcher Harry McCurdy to the Phillies, with outfielder Homer Peel and pitcher Bob McGraw going to the Cardinals. Oddly enough, McGraw was traded with the Cardinals, as was just as Alexander spent some of the greatest years of his life with the Phillies, between 1911 and 1917, while Schang never was so good again as he was in 1913, his first year with the Athletics.

Schang's transfer from the St. Louis Browns to the Athletics yesterday was made possible when Sam Hale, third baseman, was offered in exchange. Since the Browns simply can't start this year without an adequate third baseman, the Athletics already are set with Cochran, and Peifer, it was reasoned that the Browns finished a winner on the business.

They needed Hale more than the Athletics needed Schang, every body being in agreement on that point, with one exception. The latter happens to be Connie Mack. He had to have a third catcher and felt that he couldn't have gone far wrong in getting a man who might be the first catcher on several other clubs.

As for Alexander, the man whose private life is said to have been an antithesis to the exhortations and upholders, he will back the Phillies on the right side of the deal if he was more than half a dozen games and he ought to do that with his eyes shut. As a matter of fact, his eyes are supposed to be that way half of the time, anyhow.

They needed a catcher to replace Louisa, who was killed, some months ago. They got him in McCurdy. They needed a wise, old pitcher to win those ball games that the Phils seem to lose after starting the ninth inning five runs in front. I don't need to add that they got what they needed here, too.

BROADCASTING OF GRIDIRON GAMES IS IRKING ISSUE

Dixie Athletic Directors And Coaches Meet In Conference

ATLANTA, La., Dec. 12.—(INS)—Virtually all college athletic administration in the southern conference were abetted by a radio set here today as coaches, athletic directors and faculty representatives from the 23 conference schools gathered in an annual convocation.

What action will be taken to eliminate broadcasting of football games seemed doubtful due to the unwillingness of the conference to make a major issue of it, but it was generally predicted that the matter would be brought up before the 2nd session Saturday afternoon. Objection to broadcasting is raised on the ground that many games, particularly those of secondary importance, were deprived of patronage because fans preferred the glory of their favorite neighborhood to the convenience of radio.

At Columbia, S. C., where Bill Evans' timbre has been heard from the field, but the radio has been threatened attempts to stop broadcasting by securing leased wires and telegraphing minute reports to Charlotte, N. C., where they are put on the air. In this manner folks in Columbia were able to get a broadcast at first without paying in it more morale support to the Gamecocks.

Another example frequently mentioned in the lobby embraced the Georgia Georgia Tech game last week. It was estimated that at least 5,000 Atlanta residents had home, far away from the mud and water, and received full particulars of the encounter in a column.

Coaches and faculty members, also, are particularly high in their criticisms of the officiating on the whole this year, and a certain few officials in particular. Incidents involving practically every kind of a decision have been brought up in unofficial gatherings at least 5,000 Atlanta residents had home, far away from the mud and water, and received full particulars of the encounter in a column.

Among rounders suggested by prominent coaches are the formation of a more complete organization headed by a national referee, full-time umpires and head line-men and the assigning of the men to the position under which they have been classified, and more meetings and schooling of referees throughout the season.

Splitting up of the conference to form two or more bodies in order to enhance rivalry, further communication, and less opposition, is a matter on which there is considerable conversation but little real enthusiasm. Most of the coaches seem agreeable to the proposition, but few, if any, are willing to touch the subject on the floor of the meeting.

representatives in Congress are so intent upon drying up the big cities of the country.

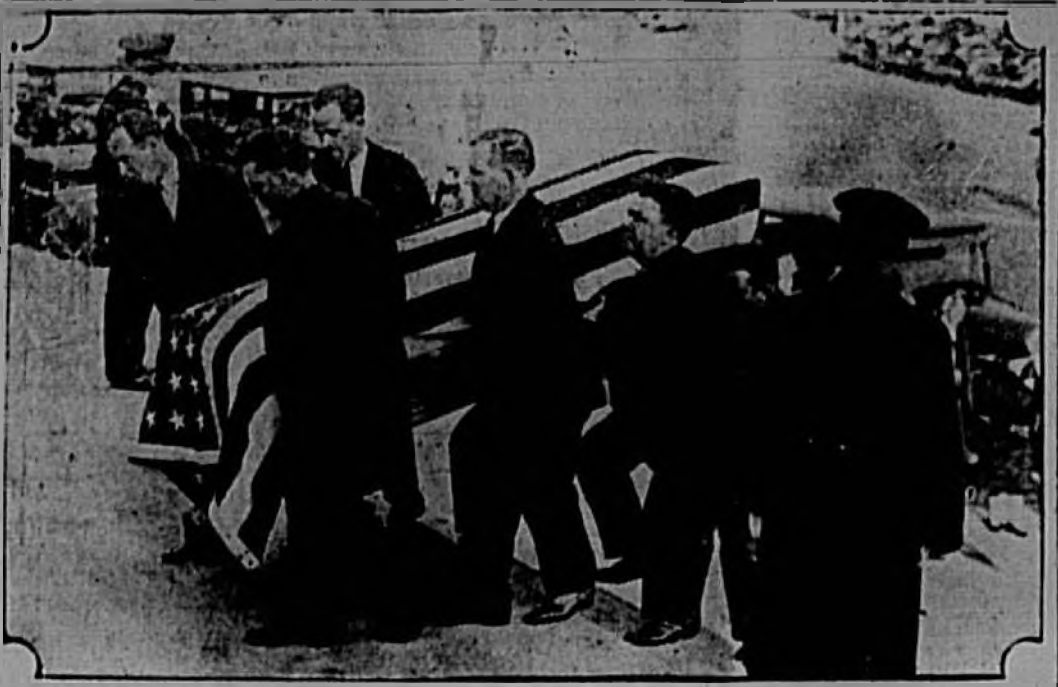

Two representatives of anti-liquor states, Rep. Homer Hoch (R) of Kansas, and Rep. Charles J. Abernathy (D) of North Carolina, replied to Schuler's broad accusations. Both Hoch and Abernathy claim they cannot be classed as fanatics on the subject, but assert prohibition has benefited their states.

"We have had constitutional prohibition in Kansas for 40 years and people who have seen it tried for a generation and it takes a generation to try such a law, are generally satisfied," said Hoch.

"The people of Kansas are so convinced prohibition has benefited the state that no candidate, Republican or Democrat, dares to stand upon any but a dry platform."

Rep. Abernathy said: "Of course the prohibition law is violated; but not more so in the dry states than any place else. I think it is fairly effective in my own state."

PAYING LAST RESPECTS

For the second time within a month members of the United States Senate met in the chamber at the Capitol to pay their last respects to a departed colleague, the late Francis E. Warren, the venerable eighty-five-year-old dean of the Upper House, who passed on recently.

Children Of Berlin Schools To Write And Produce Plays

BERLIN, Dec. 12.—A theatre "by the children, for the children, of the children" has been founded by a Communist Youth Organization taking similar Moscow institutions as a model.

Its aim is to perfect the proletarian education of children of the poor classes with a view to make them familiar with the communist ways of thinking—their "Walter Schang".

Children will be the authors of the plays, their stage managers, and the audience. Delegations from all Berlin elementary schools will meet to discuss the subject of the plays and recommend the productions. A questionnaire will be circulated during the performance in an attempt to note the reaction of the children's audience on the plays. The answers of the children will serve to improve the plays and productions.

They come and go always with a President Hoover's view, these men whose duty in time of war is to run the guns on the field and the bomb-droppers in the air.

The president cannot be consistent with his thoughts on world peace and his meditations on the success he hopes will be accomplished in London next January by the five-power conference on naval limitation when he constantly sees the military parading before him out on Pennsylvania avenue and West Executive Avenue.

To rid the White House vicinity of its many uniforms is perhaps one of the reasons that prompted Mr. Hoover to ask the War Department that it relinquish its space in the State Department. The department quickly acquiesced and a committee was appointed to study the question of erecting a building for the department's needs.

The quarters of the army, including the private office of its general, John J. Pershing, occupies about half the building. The Navy Department has a building of its own quite some distance from the executive mansion.

Secretary of State Stimson welcomed the president's action. His department has long been cramped for space with some of its branches functioning in office buildings. The German Claims Commission, the Mexican Claims Commission, the International

High Commission and the Mexican and Canadian Boundary Commission will be united with headquarters under one roof when the Army makes its retreat.

The State Department, once an "old man" will be eventually a building all to itself. It moved into its present quarters in 1873 after occupying the building which now houses the Washington Orphan Asylum. The department employs 700 clerks, stenographers and officers here and directs the work of 3,500 officials stationed in foreign countries.

Major Gen. B. Frank Cheatham, quartermaster general, Major Gen. Charles H. Bridges, adjutant general, and Brig. Gen. Ewing F. Booth, assistant chief of staff, comprise the committee designated to find a new and permanent "camping grounds" for the War Department.

Business Of India Models Banks After U.S. Reserve System

CALCUTTA, Dec. 12.—(INS)—With an eye to America's business methods, the bankers of India are today organizing a united banking and loan system modeled upon the Federal Reserve System of the United States.

India, despite its age among the nations, has never known a uniformity in its banking practices. The system in a lodge-pole, interest rates vary all over the country. Secret bonuses are in fashion among bankers. There are no legal requirements for loans or real estate. The guarantees are guarantors of loans are accepted or rejected according to the whim of the individual bank.

The suggestion for an Indian Federal Reserve system, to be a voluntary association among the Indian banks, but finally to be placed under government regulation, was made by President Raj Chandra Baid of the Marwar Chamber of Commerce at Bombay. He said:

"Instead of passing humiliating laws or vainly trying to suppress the bankers and loan agencies, it should be the policy of government and the public to appreciate, improve and purify the system of banking and make it more serviceable."

"I would suggest particularly to the bankers all over the land that they make a central bankers' association."

German Press Seeks Cabinet Resignation

BERLIN, Dec. 13.—(INS)—The moderate right press in Germany today voiced a demand that the cabinet of Chancellor Brüning-Mueller tender its resignation on the grounds that the government has been rendered bankrupt under its regime.

The press declared the nation has been placed by American bankers under the receivership of Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, who must guarantee the new loan Germany is seeking in the United States.

This demand followed Chancellor Brüning's appearance before the Reichstag, in which he revealed Germany faces a 1,700,000,000 mark deficit at the end of the year, and asked a vote of confidence on the Hülferding financial reform program.

Unsavoury Allegation Is Contained In Suit

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(INS)—Among the charges contained in Edward E. Kern's suit for $750,000 against Mrs. Col. Henry H. Rogers and her cousins, Count and Countess Zichy, it was learned today, is the allegation that the oil millionaire's bride is an illegitimate daughter of the late Emperor Franz Joseph of Austria.

Papers in Kern's suit, which charge that the defendants caused him to be discharged as Colonel Rogers' confidential secretary because of his knowledge of Mrs. Rogers' antecedents and her early life, were filed in the supreme court Wednesday.

More Testimony Is Given In Mill Trial

BURNSVILLE, N. C., Dec. 12.—(INS)—The jury in the trial of eight McDowell county deputies charged with the murder of six textile strikers at Marion, N. C., today listened to additional accounts of the massacre furnished by state witnesses.

So far the state's testimony has officers fired into a crowd of strikers in front of the Marion Manufacturing Company while they were fleeing from tear gas bombs which the deputies had hurled in their midst.

The state probably will not conclude its case until next week. The eight defendants are being tried on a second degree murder charge, conviction of which means a prison sentence of from 2 to 30 years.

Girl Follows Orders And Shoots Neighbor

PRENTISS, Miss., Dec. 13.—(INS)—When Sally Stewart's father told her to permit no person to enter his home during his absence she followed instructions to the letter. As a result Zona Graves, a 16-year-old girl, lies in a hospital now at the point of death, wounded by a bullet from a shot gun fired by the Stewart girl, who is 14.

Sheriff Vernon Terrell said the Graves child went to the Stewart home to borrow some coffee when the shooting occurred. The Stewart girl said she had been told by her father to permit no one to enter the home. Stewart was in the county jail confined on another charge at the time of the shooting last night.

The Stewart girl is held in jail.

A ladies riding class for wives of members of the faculty and employees of the University of Florida has been inaugurated.

Tax Reduction Bill Called For Action

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(INS)—The administration tax reduction bill was called up in the Senate today for immediate enactment. The Senate laid aside the tariff bill temporarily to provide a $160,000,000 tax slash as a Christmas gift to the American people.

The tax bill was taken up by unanimous consent. Senator Smoot's motion, making the bill effective before it is passed, was adopted. The only important amendment pending was proposed by Senator Capper (R) of Mich., to extend the tax reduction to capital gains and losses. He suggested a 15 per cent tax from 12-1/2 to 19 per cent to be effective in 1931.

Planter In Louisiana Is Held For Peonage

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 13.—(INS)—As a result of a secret indictment, returned by a federal grand jury here Dec. 5, James Pigott, wealthy Louisiana planter, was under $1,000 bond today on charge of peonage.

Three negroes told the grand jury they escaped from Pigott's plantation where they were punished and whipped with chains and whips without pay. The trio said they escaped from the farm on two occasions, being recaptured and returned the first time. They did not reveal the alleged brutality on the farm until after their second escape.

GREAT FEDERAL HIGHWAY SYSTEM BEING SPONSORED

Express Road Hook-up Costing 5 Billions Proposed By Solon

By William B. Neal International News Service Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—The creation of a gigantic federal system of express highways, costing five billions of dollars and spanning the nation, has been proposed to Congress by Rep. William P. Holaday (R) of Illinois.

"The plan is no mere dream, Holiday declares. It merely represents the ultimate in the nation's remarkable development of motor transportation, he says. "The proposed system was devised by Arthur Hall, the father of Illinois great system of hard-surfaced highways," said Holiday.

"The federal aid highway system already has developed beyond all dreams. A coordination and extension of this system to a truly national, instead of state basis, is now necessary.

Plan Is Outlined "Many members of Congress who have examined the plan have expressed the conviction that either it or a similar plan must supplement the present system."

A large part of the 50,000 mile system proposed by Holiday is already paved through federal aid. His plan contemplates reimbursement to the state of money expended on the system, and its construction as a purely federal system without state aid.

Such a development, he declares, is especially necessary in providing the trans-continental highways necessary to more closely bind the great territory of the far west with the rest of the nation. Just as railroads united the country, so highways must bring the people and business of different sections into closer contact, he says.

"These roads are to range in width from 20 feet to 40 feet for city of over 200,000 population," explained Holiday. "Provided, also, that wherever practicable for at least ten miles out from the corporate limits of any city of over 100,000 population, the width of the roads shall be 60 feet. The system will afford direct communication between the national capital, the various state capitals and all the principal cities of the United States. Belt roads around large cities may be constructed to direct through traffic from the congested areas.

To Retain Huge Sum "The Secretary of Agriculture, War, Commerce and Postmaster General shall prepare plans and specifications for the construction of the post road. Such specifications shall call for hard-surfaced roads that will retain in good condition with low reasonable maintenance cost until after all of the lands owned for them shall have been returned.

Provision is made for the construction of airplane fields along side the roads, for the exchange of air mail, or for military, commercial or other national purposes. While five million dollars is a huge sum, Holiday pointed out that there is now being spent in the country the high federal, state and local government, more than a billion and a half dollars a year on highways.

Yuletide AND THE GARDEN LOVER

(By Marjorie Howe Dixon) It has been prophesied that living will change in the next ten years, and spread out more and more. As the congestion of the city troubles folk, they move to the suburbs, and those who can, are turning summer homes on estates into year-round dwellings. There are gardens and garden lovers in cities, to be sure, but there are still more of them in the suburban and rural communities.

At Christmas there is a fine opportunity to give to the garden lover. He hasn't forgotten his garden for all it is covered with snow. This eternal puzzling question of what to give a friend in on its way to solution when you know the friend is a confirmed gardener.

Fascinating Garden Things If your friend has a terrace which may be used as a dining place, you have there a fine start for gift ideas. Perhaps he has not yet bought a set of chairs and a table. Garden things are so fascinating. There are Colonial Indian back sets with rush seats, and drop-leaf tables to match. There are many varieties of iron chairs, some of simple lines, others with intricate cast iron patterns, and others with lacel cloth seats. And then there are wicker and wicker pieces.

If your friend has his dining set for the terrace, you still have your opportunity to give for the terrace. There are pretty cloths or the table, pottery to set it, and all the extras, the tea stands, coffee tables, vases and pots and pieces of wrought iron to add to the pleasure in the out-of-doors.

Suggest Bright Table Cloths Bright table cloths are recommended for the garden or terrace, and gas, peasant, and Italian. If a woman who enjoys making gifts may wish to do the cloth and napkins herself. Modernistic patterns of printed cotton are bound with a color in the design. A rich and really beautiful napkin to match would surely be appreciated as a Christmas gift. Colored Spanish flax, colored linen, and strips of French peasant materials are used.

Pottery of bright colors seems an absolutely fitting for garden use, that your friend is sure to be pleased with such a gift. There are French peasant pieces with little figures on them; there are modernistic German sets, and beautifully decorated Italian pottery for sets. More than one can contribute to the festivity of a garden entertaining.

The Top Tables Favored Among the little extra things for the terrace are small tables. One has an oval tray for a top and a pedestal stand. Another of iron has a removable tray and four legs. A wrought iron stand has pottery plates, for the three shelves. Small wood tables come in many sizes and designs. The top table, with wrought iron are very lovely for the garden meal.

There are other "extra" things the garden lover will appreciate. Perhaps he has a niche in the back wall. A terra cotta cupola or a green-brown terra cotta with a hand-some iron pot with a trailing ivy perch will be lovely. Then there are pottery fountains to fit to the table, and formal flower arrangements in pottery, set in the back of classic design.

Among the wrought iron things that have been developed for the garden lover are pieces, useful and decorative. If a garden revived ancient arts and developed new ones, some of them may be used in the sun room, or breakfast room, in the winter months, too.

One of these is a tile plaque of six panels that together form a design. The group of panels is surrounded by a graceful wrought iron frame that holds three flower pots.

Another design holds a single pot with a wrought iron panel for holding it on the wall. Some are many kinds—a developed by a combination of Delhi or Bombay and a local association, welded to it, every town and in every group of a page.

Wrought iron. Screens and doors of intricate design, showing landscapes or ships are wrought in delicate tracery. These are most effective unadorned against the light.

Appropriate Flower Stands Flower stands with three, five and six pots are appropriate gifts for the garden lover. Besides these there are the many varieties of formal decorative designs holding square dishes and lovely hand-blown Venetian glass bowls. Then there are amusing elephants and pelicans who support small fish bowls. Ferneries, too, may be found among the wrought iron pieces.

If one wished to make a gift of a sun dial to a garden lover, he would find it a most interesting study. There are so many kinds of them, simple ones for the top of pedestals, others designed to hang on the wall or chimney breast, and still others with bronze spirals to add joy to the fine art of sun-time telling.

Use of Life-Sized Animals Speaking of animals there are life-size creatures from Normandy that will thrill any garden-wise person ever to touch. These pieces of pottery are beautifully in detail and colored and full of vigorous action. Just imagine a solitary sunburn rabbit in a rock garden with her little one in white near by! Wouldn't you love to have a fine colored chateau bear on the ridge pole, in the very act of flinging his white tail to the skies? There is a white cat in a mossy sunning manner, while a black cat may climb a tree with a white-haired tortoise, and at the foot to see that she keeps on going up.

One cannot garden long without learning a broad toleration and sympathy. Flowers and trees, plants and herbs have such strong personalities. They must be treated as people, with many allowances for their peculiarities. There is only one way to enjoy them and that is to let them be themselves and let them grow their own way. The Christmas gift may be the humblest as it remind the recipient of the good laugh he had in the garden last summer.

Poem Suggests Gift Another gift may remind one of the breathless loveliness of a dewy morn, or the quiet miracle of an opening bud. The following poem by Margaret DeLond suggests this:

Where the primrose stands, that as the night begins to gather, and the dew is tall, Flings wide its tiny moths like twisted buds, That shine like yellow moons with pale, cold glow, And all the no-har heavy fragrance of dew, And gives large to any wind that blow.

Here in warm darkness of a night in June, child, on mine To watch the primrose blow, So gently they stand Hand clasped in hand, in breath low hush around, And saw her shyly dart her soft green bud, And lean on with a silken bow at a nod.

A silken strand remind us of all other gifts for the garden lover. She will need no many such gifts for the summer and the days of longed ease. Varieties of the genus glow give a name to every year. Some of these are "spots," some are propagated from slips of silk and other, are grown from the seed of industry. The bed thought of these perennial should be prepared in the usual manner that is that for begging the question?

Grundy Becomes Senator After Caustic Debate

(Continued From Page One) ary in which William S. Vare won a sensational nominal election in which he spent so much money that he was finally forced to quit.

The resolution, sponsored by Senator Nye (R), of N. D. will be rejected in the end, since a majority of the Senate has declared that it cannot be questioned. It will serve, however, as a full for Vare in the future over Grundy's appointment by the governor, which Grundy had argued for three hours in the Senate yesterday. The Senate was adjourned after the Senator's departure.

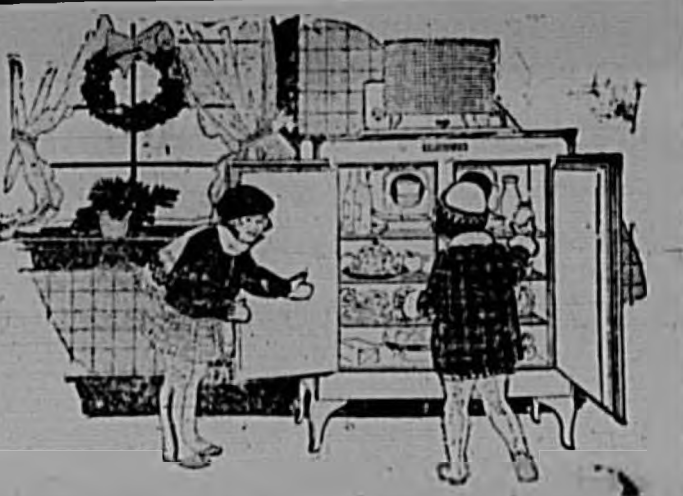

Grundy and Vare were both "aired and heated" verbally in that debate. Grundy was termed a "cock-and-bull" by Vare, and Vare was called a "chicken" by Grundy. Grundy's appointment was deemed an "outrage" by Vare, and Vare's election was called a "stunt" by Grundy. The debate was a "stunt" in the eyes of many, and a "stunt" in the eyes of many.

The episode applied to Grundy and Vare, who without precedent in the Senate's history, in the past, senatorial rule of Harry F. Sinclair, Albert B. Fall and Charles R. Drexler, with few exceptions, had been applied to all Grundy sat silent, gazed by the Senate's rule of the day, however, he will be able to stand on a pedestal with the rules, but the rules will give it to him, as they are in the Senate.

The episode of Grundy could do Grundy a great deal of good. Grundy's appointment was deemed an "outrage" by Vare, and Vare's election was called a "stunt" by Grundy. Grundy's appointment was deemed an "outrage" by Vare, and Vare's election was called a "stunt" by Grundy.

The episode will watch closely the battle in Pennsylvania between Vare and Grundy for the Republican renomination next May.

MACHINES SEEN AS DARK MENACE TO FUTURE MAN

Rabbi Paints Unhappy Picture Of Exils Of Mechanical Period

By Alfred T. Newberry International News Service Staff Correspondent

BALTIMORE, Dec. 12.—The industrialists and the builders and the agriculturists all trooped by turn into the White House and painted for President Hoover a rosy picture of the country's immediate future. They came with the recent trooping of sleek pre-

Here a long rabbi, obscure he beyond his congregation and his work on the committee of the Council of Federated Churches, has gone somewhat farther in his prophesy. His canvas, produced by a gallery of present day conditions, is not so promising to the ordinary individual.

This rabbi believes the mechanical age is threatening to strip man of his supremacy and already he has started to create an altogether new race—the race of robots. He is Rabbi Edward L. Israel of the Sinai Temple.

He admits his prediction and warning is far from encouraging. It is evident it worries him and soon will worry the millions of workers in the country who may shudder at his declaration that man on a power and the ruler of all world endeavors will find himself strapped to a machine for the entire duration of his life.

The workers of today are slowly losing their creative power, he said. The average worker does a few simple operations to a machine that controls food, clothes, sports and entertainments cannot amuse him.

This was not a few years ago. Then the day of the average worker was filled with varied activities which interested him, utilized his brain power while his wife occupied with just as many varied tasks at home.

He did not hesitate to expand his fear. He says employees are more interested today in securing devices that save labor than they are in the welfare of their employees. He sees the danger of the machine era. If the uses for the device science and invention have developed are increased during the next generation as they have during the last, Israel says man will be a slave.

Man will be able to have the fruits of modern science and machinery, but he will be a slave to a machine-made machine. Wives of workers who work will find themselves in the same predicament as are their husbands. If they remain at home they will be confronted by the lone effort directed to spending the time.

Israel finds no fault with science or invention. It is the uses man has made of them. He explained the factories have increased production but has not lessened the working hours of employes or improved conditions of living. He asks: "What will be produced when the limit of mass production is reached and the power of creative human expression, by which man can retain his supremacy, is lost?"

Spaniards Are Fast Losing Interest In Their Bull Fights

MADRID, Dec. 13.—(INS)—The chances of being bored at a Spanish bull-fight are 1 to 1. Those who deplore this sport will take comfort from these latest statistics. During the past season 1,850 bulls were killed in Spanish arenas in the course of 918 bull fights by 64 professional matadors. No statistics are available to show how many thrills of sword or blood this carnage, but the figure may be played at about 10,000.

It only 225 cases were the valiant knights of the sword, awarded the galle car, the traditional method of honoring the approval of the spectators at the exceptional skill of the fighter. Sydney Franklin, of Brooklyn, was one of the 43 cases. The display was described as merely passable. In the remaining 1,555 cases the public was bored to titillation.

These facts, lately stated in the Spanish press, indicate a recognition that there is something wrong with a game which gives the public no more than a sporting chance of being entertained.

The interest which Spaniards are beginning to take in bull-fighting and more humane diversions, such as football, is gradually bringing many to a sense of fair play which is denied to the bulls and horses in the arena.

The horsemen of 1912 fight is likely to put an end to a blood-thirsty spectacle out of place in a civilized country, unless Sydney Franklin and a few other foreign adventurers are able to introduce a little originality into a dying past time.

CHARING the HEARTH FIRE

Suggestions for the Holiday Celebration

If one is a mother and has two daughters away at school and holidays are approaching, there is much planning to be done. Two girls home from school are delightful. And two more girls chums as house guests, and something is sure to be doing every moment. If the phone isn't ringing there is a special delivery boy at the front door, while a man in a white coat appears at the back door.

She studies her calendar for a moment. "The girls will get in Saturday evening. There will be church and dinner Sunday. Tea will be rather quiet. I know I will want to bring Jean, Annie, and Eleanor. Well, bring some new ones, too. Monday they will be busy with presents, and Tuesday they'll have their hands full trimming the tree and decorating the house. Thursday I do want to have the old ladies (them—not so old) and then there is the big party Friday."

"To go back to Tuesday—Christmas Eve. Shall we be alone or have the boys? There'll have to be a vote taken on that. Two dinners to deliver for sweet charity—the boys could help. All the smaller packages they could take, too."

So she paced and set down to write the girls. Annie, the older, was in her Junior year. Jean, Alling had come home with her last year for the holidays and had proved a perfect treasure. Trust Annie to find one such Eleanor, a freshman, was serious and studious. She had loosened up a bit in her last year in high, but she still had to be dragged away from a book and sent outdoors for some exercise. There was something about her which brought home with her.

Her mother wrote: "Remember that some girls will not enjoy our holidays. You will all help as usual. Some one who is homesome, if she be the sincere type, will be happy with us. I leave it to you."

Plans With Her Girls The girls arrived and mother gave them till Sunday to work off their excitement at getting home and eating for their friends. Then she asked them in a quiet twilight hour with only a candle and the hearth fire for light, to think ahead for the week and plan what they would like to do.

"Mother dear," pursued Annie, on her mother's chair arm, "I know you have an idea for two Christmas Eves per usual. Bits Christmas Eve at Church and a big feed. Thursday sleighing or skating. Friday, the grand party Saturday, tea, a bit and Monday much the same." She kissed her mother's chin.

"Fill you see what the weather is, the sleighing part will have to ride," said mother, quite unconscious of a pun. The girls exchanged glances. "I did want to give some little affair for Aunt Crosby and her beloved class of 1890."

Costly Ohio River Bridge Soon To Be Opened To Traffic

MADISON, Ind., Dec. 12.—(INS)—The opening of the new important bridge for Southern Indiana and Northern Kentucky for traffic and for the Ohio River here will be formally thrown open to traffic and dedicated. The bridge will connect with Milton, Ky.

More than 15,000 persons from nearly Indiana and Kentucky districts are expected to attend the dedication exercises here.

Governor Harry G. Lee, of Indiana and Mayor John Reginald H. Sullivan of Indianapolis, already have accepted invitations to attend. Governor Fleun D. Campbell, of Kentucky and the United States Senators of Indiana and Kentucky also are expected to be present.

One of the features of the dedication program will be a parade which will symbolize the closer relationship between Kentucky and Indiana. The following Indiana towns have been asked to send a float and a young lady to represent them in the parade: Columbus, North Vernon, Versailles, Vevey, Ogden, Scottsburg, Gillsonia, Milan, Shelbyville, Batesville, Rushville, Jeffersonville, New Albany, Hanover, Vernon, Edinburg, Franklin and Indianapolis. 1890." "Class Reunion Yearly Eleanor explained to Rosa, her guest, that Aunt Crosby had been able to get six of her class to gather for a reunion every year, by means of borrowing enough and going after them. "Let's plan their party for Thursday evening and have the boys go after them and we'll have a 1890 ball," said Jean unexpectedly.

"Why, Jean, that's an awful quaint and cunning idea," said mother. "What do you girls think?" "Perfectly great! Jean! To slandering for words! Have each of them bring their favorite photograph album!" the girls chimed in. "We'll get checker boards and purchases and Pinch decks, and Aurora and Old Maid—it will be so much fun!"

Rosa, a lovely Spanish girl, who had come from Mexico City to college, wore a little frown. "What is it?" asked Eleanor. "I do not know these games. I have had much trouble to learn bridge. Are these still more difficult?"

Parched and Checkers Shouts of laughter greeted her Eleanor gave her a little hug. "Why no," she said, "they are as easy as easy as pie. And besides you can have one of the old boys teach you parched and checkers. They would be so pleased. They'd win, of course—but then it's their party." Rosa un-derstood.

"You folks have you big plans the next night at the county fair, so we must not put too many parties together," said mother. Lightly Annie chuckled. "Why honey-bunch," she said "they'll think it's over so exciting to stay up till ten o'clock and the boys can take them home then and be back home themselves by eleven. So we better start early, about seven. We'll get a list of names from Aunt Crosby and begin telephoning in the morning."

Apparel was the one who loved to plan and mother knew she would have seventeen new ideas to add by morning.

Arrange for Christmas Eve "Let's take a minute to think of Christmas Eve," said mother. "There'll be the tree for all of us, of course, do you girls want to have the boys then?"

Both listened with much interest. It was her first Christmas at a home in "the States" and everything felt a lovely clamor. How very fortunate she was to be able to visit in such a home.

At last the family had a moment to think of her own mother and brothers, or feel homesick. "If we have the boys, of course, we can't have the real presents," said Eleanor. "We'll have to get some funny things, and jokes, and so on. Of course, old Fritz would be pretty homesick if they were only Dad here. He's always

Distant Relative Of Byrd Takes Own Life

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(INS)—Mrs. Carolyn Van Antwerp Byrd, 45, said to be a distant relative of Command Richard E. Byrd, Arctic flyer, was dead today, having committed suicide by firing a bullet through her head. She died in her bed at her home in the town of St. Albans, N. H., near her son, Harry B. Byrd, Jr., real estate operator and former naval officer, in the basement of their home last night.

On a bureau was a note reading: "My dear son, I am in great pain and can endure it no longer. Forgive your mother." In a letter, Harry B. Byrd, Sr., the husband and father, had committed suicide some years ago. He had been troubled with a local financial institution.

The University of Florida Corn mops may be converted into a cafeteria next year. Elimination of the "rush and grab" method and ability to serve hot food, as pointed out as real features of the proposed cafeteria.

here at Christmas," she explained to Rosa, "because he's so far from home." Annie moved and Jean seconded the idea of having the boys. "Why, two of them at staying at the hotel (that is, every moment they have to be away from us), and think how dull Christmas Eve would be." "For them or for us?" asked Jean with a twinkle in her eye.

Recalls Entertainment of 1890 "I keep thinking of the 1890 ball," said Annie, ignoring her mother's name of that particular entertainment that consisted in looking at a double photograph on a do-funny that you held up to your eyes to peer through. "Stereoscopic," suggested mother.

"No, stereoscopic," said Eleanor the precise. "Oh, where can we get one of those? How perfectly thrilling it must have been to have lived then, and feel so shocked about ladies in bloomers on lakes. We must beg them to tell us about it, Mother!"

"Then there's New Year's Eve plan," said mother. "You have your choice of the dance or the party. 'Watch Night' service at grandfather's. Of course, you fast back the next day. What do you want to do?"

New Year's Watch Night Rosa's velvet eyes glistened. "That sounds so pretty," she said. "Watch Night? I expect you'll watch the New Year come in." "And grandfather says a prayer for us all, and we sing a pretty carol, and we end with our 'back pay' meeting." Eleanor forthwith announced her decision of going to Grandfather's on New Year's Eve.

"Jean has such a case on grandfather that I shall have to go as her chaperone," Annie smiled sideways at her friend. "Let's all go to bed right now! And say fifteen separate prayers for snow all day Monday and Tuesday. Then we will have a beautiful white Christmas for Rosa and a sleighing party later and skiing and other excitements. I just bet Rosa never made a snow man, did you, Jean?"

Never have I seen snow says on the mountain tops," said Rosa. "Picture—snow over every thing I have seen. But they used to play snow, too, for it's only my deep desire to see it snow fall."

Snowfall later in season "In the good old days, there was always a heavy snow at Thanksgiving," mother said. "But this year it is awfully late. But it ought to be here when you do come, Rosa," said Eleanor. "Good night, dear, and pleasant dreams for a Merry Christmas," said mother as each girl kissed her and started for the stairs.

SEA WATER SENT FROM KEY WEST TO CITY IN NORTH

Queer Shipment Will Fill Fish Tanks In Chicago Aquariums

KEY WEST, Dec. 11.—The first consignment of a million gallons of sea water left the city recently in ten tank cars for the John G. Shedd Aquarium in Chicago via the Florida East Coast Railway and the Senoale Route of the Illinois Central System. This shipment says the Florida State Chamber of Commerce is one of the most unique freight movements on record, as well as being one of the most difficult to handle.

"Twenty tank cars will be used for transporting the water from the Florida Keys to the reservoirs of the aquarium," according to the State Chamber of Commerce. "where it is to be used in connection with the establishment of exhibits of fish taken from tropical and subtropical waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. Sea water from Key West is being used as it has been found to be the best providing the organic matter necessary for the natural habitat of the tropical fish to permit them to live in health."

"One hundred and fifty carloads of the water will be necessary and it will take approximately three weeks to complete the shipment. The cars being used have been given a special tariff for treatment and insulated in the same manner as a thermos bottle to prevent change in temperature and atmospheric structure of the water enroute."

The Shedd Aquarium, a gift to the city of Chicago by the late John G. Shedd, according to Walter H. Child, director, will be the first of its kind to collect and exhibit a large quantity of representative fishes from both the Atlantic and Pacific oceans as well as the lakes and streams of all parts of the continent and of South America. The fishes will be collected by a team of men and will be transported to the aquarium in a Pullman car especially designed for the purpose. The traveling aquarium is supplied with tanks and receptacles for the living fish and with handling apparatus.

Discovery Of Old Cave In Colorado May Lead To Gold

ANTONITO, Colo., Dec. 12.—(INS)—Discovery of an entrance to a cave and tunnel which there is a possibility of finding a tremendous fortune of gold and treasure being by Spanish or French explorers in this vicinity may solve a two-century old mystery and end a fifty-year search.

Levent relates that the explorers buried the treasure in a cave in the vicinity and then were exterminated by Indians. The cave entrance was discovered by a sheepherder who he suddenly slipped thru the earth of a hillside and disappeared. An examination disclosed an old tunnel which led to a cave room about fifteen feet square. Evidence of habitation were there in the way of charred embers and a tunnel of traces blocked off with stones.

Large Hats Forbidden In Chicago Theaters

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—(INS)—If Mildred insists upon wearing Winter bonnets that cover nearly every hair showing glory, she will have to take her hat off in the movies.

First Assistant Corporation Counsel James W. Brice, declared the movie houses at the city hall any person who has been viewed of the prancing chorus girl off by oversized and bulky hats of him can have the offending woman arrested and also the agreement of the theatre.

The ordinance is as follows: "No person shall wear any hat or bonnet within any theatre during any part of any performance provided that the prohibition does not include ball gowns, opera gowns, or other small and closely fitting head-dresses."

The penalty is $5 to $25 fine for the offence, or $25 fine for the manager of the theatre permitting the hats to be worn.

The governor of Pennsylvania has appointed Joseph R. Grady to take Van's place in the Senate. We hardly know who is worse: Van, who spent nearly a million dollars running for office, or Grady who is president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association and a super-lobbyist.

What The Bridge Figures Show

If all the various entrances into Florida are proving as popular with northern visitors as is the route through Jacksonville, Florida will have a banner tourist crop this season. During the month of November, 7,668 foreign automobiles, carrying 19,173 persons, moved south over the St. Johns River at the Gateway city. And this number was only slightly in excess of the October total.

When one stops to consider that automobiles may also enter the state by way of Valdosta and Lake City, or through West Florida via Mobile and Pensacola, or perhaps by a dozen other routes, it can be seen that the cars passing through Jacksonville by no means give any adequate idea of the total number entering Florida. It should also be remembered that thousands of visitors come by train, by boat, and nowadays by airplanes.

It is encouraging to recall these facts when contemplating the season upon which we are just entering. The belief held by some that the Wall Street crash might seriously affect the Florida season should be dispelled. Indications at present are that we will have a better season than ever before. According to the Duval county commissioners, the tourists entering via the St. Johns River bridge were from the following states:

Table with columns: From, Cars, Passengers. Lists states from Alabama to Hawaii with corresponding car and passenger counts. Total: 7,668 cars, 19,173 passengers.

Trade With South America

Pointing out that the United States is already carrying on two billion dollars worth of trade annually with the countries of South America, Clayton Sedgwick Cooper, editor and lecturer of note, recently told the members of the Miami Exchange Club that the people of the United States, particularly the people of Florida, should cultivate a better knowledge and understanding of the Latin American nations.

In our schools we find the students studying American history, English history, European history, Roman and Greek history, but very, very rarely anything of the history of Brazil, Argentina or Chili. We asked someone once if he had ever studied any South American history, and he immediately replied, "I didn't know they had any." Of course they have. The history of South American countries is as rich in tales of heroism, statesmanship, and romance, as our own.

"We should understand a country with which we carry on a $2,000,000,000 trade annually," said Mr. Cooper. "We should understand the characteristics and mode of life of our nearest neighbors, from whom we have much to learn. We have been woefully deficient as North Americans in our lack of knowledge and sympathetic attitude toward the Latin people south of us. Their point of view is different but it is not necessarily wrong. Difference does not mean inferiority. Our standards of life are not absolute ones. Other nations have their own by which they lived successfully and satisfactorily."

"The war and the airplane have broken down territorial and geographical boundaries, now the enterprise of understanding the people themselves has begun. The Germans have been ahead of all other nations in their ability to study and adapt themselves to Latin American trade and customs. If the war had not occurred, the Germans would have controlled South American trade today."

By all means, let's cultivate South Americans and their countries. Let's get us a book and an atlas so that we will know enough not to tell a Venezuelan that his country must be in Asia because we never heard of it. By establishing the most friendly relations with South American countries, can we best build up our trade with them, and trade with South America is getting to be a matter of vital importance.

The airplane has practically eliminated the Caribbean Sea and has made Florida a stepping stone to South America.

ONE CARLOAD CONTAINING 20,000 pounds of mullet, was shipped from Apalachicola Monday night by Rice Brothers Packing Plant. The fish were caught by Beadnell and Parker, and brought to the packing house Sunday. Several large catches of fish have been brought to Apalachicola for shipment, all of which have been of excellent size, and many containing roe. Mullet roe are quite popular with the Northern trade, and this delicacy always brings a good price.—Apalachicola Times.

MARTIN'S MISTAKE

TAMPA TIMES

Before saying what is here going to be said it may be well enough to recall an important fact: the fact that the background may not be obscured. The Times did not support John W. Martin when he was a candidate for the democratic nomination for the governorship of Florida. Impressed that he had made a good, constructive governor, it did support his last year's race for re-nomination for a United States senatorship on his record as governor and because it thought he could render this state peculiarly valuable service in Washington. Under these circumstances it cannot be said that anything The Times may say of Governor Martin has any well or ill camouflaged political sentiment.

So much by way of preface to the declaration that in calling upon the senate committee investigating lobbying to make a special investigation of the $2,050.75 payment made to J. A. Arnold, manager of the Southern Tariff association, by the state of Florida the former governor has made a mistake.

Governor Martin is entirely wrong in his assertion that an outrage has been perpetrated on the people of this state in this matter. It follows that the people do not feel outraged about it, as Governor Martin has declared.

What happened is well known. During his term as governor, and acting upon a resolution of the legislature, Governor Martin appointed a delegation of Floridians to go to Washington and appear before the proper congressional committees in opposition to the federal inheritance tax, which it was then and is now thought was levied as it is for the purpose of levying or forcing Florida to pay such a tax. That was in 1927. This delegation performed its mission, receiving high praise from the press and people of the state upon the manner in which it did so. The legislature this year, 1929, passed a resolution authorizing the payment of the expense incurred by the delegation out of the state treasury. Under that authority the proper voucher was signed by Governor Carlton. This money went to Arnold, who, it seems, originally paid the expenses of the Florida delegation referred to.

It is true that Florida has gotten nothing for this money except some unpleasant publicity and a claim that the whole business came about because of Florida opposition to the federal inheritance tax statute. It might have been better had this state never raised its voice against the tax, but to our understanding at this stage of the game is more futile than attempting to recover spilled milk. Therefore, we feel safe in saying, no person in Florida who would not love to do just what John W. Martin did in the premises while governor, or just what Doyle E. Carlton did, done in connection with it as governor, under circumstances identical with those under which each of them acted.

It would appear that if there is any blame to attach in the matter it would be to the legistures of 1927 and 1929, under the provisions of which the two delegations proceeded as they did. The Times is even disposed not to be sure either of those legislatures in the matter since it is quite plain that each of them was opposed that it was done in haste and that it was done in haste.

It is regrettable that Governor Carlton and Governor Governor Martin saw fit to enter what could be any best be considered criticism of the action of either about this matter. There was no need for that, and unfortunately that Governor Martin has made the appeal by his name to Washington. In doing so he did not render Florida any good service. The Times is surprised at his having taken that course.

AL JOLSON

There is very little equipment in the language to say anything about Jolson. If you say he is a master entertainer it suggests, somehow, a man pulling a rabbit out of a tall hat, or extracting providentially broken eggs from his socks. If you say he can sing, it is inferentially a comparison with other singers, and it is said that he can dance it is in the assumption that others can too.

Jolson has nothing to do with these others. He is solitary upon the heights of an art he has made peculiarly his own as Chaplin, upon his, or Chaitapin, or Reginald Meller.

What The Bridge Figures Show

If all the various entrances into Florida are proving as popular with northern visitors as is the route through Jacksonville, Florida will have a banner tourist crop this season. During the month of November, 7,668 foreign automobiles, carrying 19,173 persons, moved south over the St. Johns River at the Gateway city. And this number was only slightly in excess of the October total.

When one stops to consider that automobiles may also enter the state by way of Valdosta and Lake City, or through West Florida via Mobile and Pensacola, or perhaps by a dozen other routes, it can be seen that the cars passing through Jacksonville by no means give any adequate idea of the total number entering Florida. It should also be remembered that thousands of visitors come by train, by boat, and nowadays by airplanes.

It is encouraging to recall these facts when contemplating the season upon which we are just entering. The belief held by some that the Wall Street crash might seriously affect the Florida season should be dispelled. Indications at present are that we will have a better season than ever before. According to the Duval county commissioners, the tourists entering via the St. Johns River bridge were from the following states:

Trade With South America

Pointing out that the United States is already carrying on two billion dollars worth of trade annually with the countries of South America, Clayton Sedgwick Cooper, editor and lecturer of note, recently told the members of the Miami Exchange Club that the people of the United States, particularly the people of Florida, should cultivate a better knowledge and understanding of the Latin American nationals.

In our schools we find the students studying American history, English history, European history, Roman and Greek history, but very rarely anything of the history of Brazil, Argentina or Chili. We asked someone once if he had ever studied any South American history, and he immediately replied, "I didn't know they had any." Of course, they have. The history of South American countries is as rich in tales of heroism, statesmanship, and romance, as our own.

"We should understand a country with which we carry on a $2,000,000,000 trade annually," said Mr. Cooper. "We should understand the characteristics and mode of life of our nearest neighbors, from whom we have much to learn."

"We have been woefully deficient as North Americans in our lack of knowledge and sympathetic attitude toward the Latin people south of us. Their point of view is different but it is not necessarily wrong. Difference does not mean inferiority. Our standards of life are not absolute ones. Other nations have their own by which they lived successfully and satisfactorily."

"The war and the airplane have broken down territorial and geographical boundaries, now the enterprise of understanding the people themselves has begun. The German have been ahead of all other nations in their ability to study and adapt themselves to Latin American trade and customs. If the war had not occurred, the Germans would have controlled South American trade today."

By all means, let's cultivate South Americans and their countries. Let's get us a book and an atlas so that we will know enough not to tell a Venezuelan that his country must be in Asia because we never heard of it. By establishing the most friendly relations with South American countries we can best build up our trade with them, and trade with South America is getting to be a matter of vital importance.

The airplane has practically eliminated the Caribbean Sea and has made Florida a stepping stone to South America.

ONE CARLOAD CONTAINING 20,000 pounds of mullet, was shipped from Apalachicola Monday night by Rice Brothers Packing Plant. The fish were caught by Headnell and Parker, and brought to the packing house Sunday. Several large catches of fish have been brought to Apalachicola for shipment, all of which have been of excellent size, and many containing roe. Mullet roe are quite popular with the Northern trade, and this delicacy always brings a good price.—Apalachicola Times.

MARTIN'S MISTAKE

TAMPA TIMES

Before saying what is here going to be, and it may be well enough to recall an unimportant episode in political history, to the end that the background may not be obscured. The Times did not support John W. Martin when he was a candidate for the governorship of Florida. Impressed that he had made a good, constructive governor, it did support his last year's race for re-election for a United States senatorship—on his record as governor and because it thought he could render this state peculiarly valuable service in Washington. Under these circumstances, it cannot be said that anything The Times may say of Governor Martin has any well or ill ramollaged political content.

So much by way of preface to the declaration that in calling upon the senate committee investigating lobbying to make a special investigation of the $2,650.75 payment made to J. A. Arnold, manager of the Southern Tariff association, by the state of Florida the former governor has made a mistake.

Governor Martin is entirely wrong in his assertion that an outrage has been perpetrated on the people of this state in this matter. It follows that the people do not feel outraged about it, as Governor Martin has declared.

What happened is well known. During his term as governor, and acting upon a resolution of the legislature, Governor Martin appointed a delegation of Floridians to go to Washington and appear before the proper congressional committee in opposition to the federal inheritance tax which was then and is now thought to have been the purpose of lobbying or forcing Florida to inaugurate such a tax. That was in 1927. This delegation performed its mission, receiving high praise from the press and people of the state upon the manner in which it did so. The legislature, this year—1929—passed a resolution authorizing the payment of the expense incurred by this delegation out of the state treasury. Under that authority the prime mover was signed by Governor Arnold, who, it seems, originally paid the expenses of the Florida delegation referred to.

It is true that Florida has not yet received this money except some unpleasant details and also that the whole business, and about it because of Florida opposition to the federal inheritance tax statute. It might have been better had this state never incurred with Arnold at all, but to consider that at the stage of the game is more futile than attempting to recover spilled milk. The fact we feel safe in saying, no person in Florida who would not do just what John W. Martin did in the premises while governor or just what Doyle E. Crum has done in connection with it is a governor, and these under which each of them acted.

It would appear that if there is any blame to attach to the matter it would be to the legislature of 1927 and 1929, whose resolution of which the two payments proceeded as they did. The Times is even disposed not to be sure either of these legislatures in the matter, since it is not plain that each of them was so pressed that it was doing a proper thing for Florida.

It is regrettable that Governor Martin and former Governor Arnold could be any twist be considered criticism of the administration of either about this matter. There was no need for that. It is to be understood that Governor Martin has made the appeal to the Senate in Washington. In doing so he did not render Florida any good service. The Times is surprised at his having taken that course.

The President Acts For Florida

The President has taken a step in his emergency program which will be a great relief to Florida. He has authorized the expenditure of $15,251,000 to carry on the work of the Department of Agriculture in subsidizing the fruit industry in this state. The amount which is authorized to be expended by December 1st and the President has authorized additional funds are made available immediately, thereby relieving the situation which would have been a serious one.
