Longwood To Finalize Ordinance

An ordinance amending city sign regulations tabled from the June 13 Longwood City Commission meeting will be back on the agenda for a final vote Monday at 7:30 p.m.

The commissioners met in a work session Wednesday afternoon to "work out the bugs" in the proposed ordinance. Revisions tentatively agreed upon by the commissioners would establish a policy of 60-day permits for temporary signs with 60 days wait before another permit could be applied for and would do away with the five-day grace period for removing a temporary sign and would double the $5 per month permit fee for such signs to cover administrative cost.

Also back for consideration will be the site plan for the Gallimore Homes, Inc. proposed development Meadow Ridge tabled July 20. The subdivision will be located on the east side of Range Line Road. Gallimore has been asked to three-lane the road in front of the project.

Jim Ryan will make a presentation for Hospital Affiliates International of Nashville, Tenn., on the health care and medical needs of Longwood.

HAI is one of two hospital management groups which have applied to the Health Systems Agency for certificates of need to build hospital facilities in Longwood. HAI wants permission to build a 150-200 bed facility that would cost $30 million and would employ some 425 employees when in full operation.

Hospital Management Associates of Ft. Myers has also applied to build in Longwood.

The Health Systems Agency of East Central Florida has determined Seminole County needs an additional 50 medical-surgical beds, 20 psychiatric beds, one pediatrics bed and one obstetrics bed as of this year. Florida Hospital-Altamonte has also applied for permission to add beds to expand services at its existing facility.

Ryan will be at city hall Wednesday at 3:30 and 7:30 p.m. to talk to the public as well as the Monday meeting.

Also on the agenda, City Administrator David Chacey will present a report on discussion with Winter Park Telephone Co. on ways to reduce phone costs to the city. — JANE CASSELBERRY.

Brantley Named To Special Committee

State Rep. Bobby Brantley, R-Longwood, has been named to the state Reapportionment Committee. He is one of seven Republicans and 17 Democrats named to the special committee by Florida House Speaker Ralph Haben.

The Reapportionment Committee is considered one of the most important legislative committees to be named this year. It will consider whether Seminole now has a large enough population to have two state representatives, whose districts will comprise only Seminole County. Currently the two representatives who reside here also represent parts of other counties. Another decision of the committee will be whether Seminole should have its own state senator. Brantley said he was glad he was chosen to serve on the committee, but he still believes that the best way to receive fair reapportionment would be for a non-partisan committee to study the issue.

Agent Orange Caused Ills Local Vets Say

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Agent Orange, the insidious defoliant used in the Vietnam War, may have found its way into the lives of some Seminole Countians.

Seminole County Veterans Service Officer Clinton Westbrook said about two dozen local veterans of that war have filed documents with his office over the past nine months-to-a-year, questioning whether they may have been affected by the defoliant.

Westbrook said because of the nationwide publicity given in recent months to the veterans claiming illness related to Agent Orange, Seminole County veterans, who were at various spots during the war where the defoliant was used, are concerned for their futures.

He said as former servicemen come to his office for assistance, he is helping them fill out the proper documents required by the Veterans Administration and sending them on to a veterans clinic in Orlando for physicals.

Among those filing documents are veterans, who are suffering with skin rashes, a symptom said to be related to exposure to the chemical. Some others, newly married, are concerned that they might transmit permanent genetic damage to their off-spring.

Westbrook said those affected fit into two categories: Soldiers who loaded aircraft with the defoliant, flew in the planes or handled the chemical; and those who were in the area sprayed. "Not all of Vietnam was sprayed," Westbrook said.

"The veterans making claims must be able to indicate they were serving at the time they were exposed and they would have had to be exposed to heavy doses.

Westbrook said Congress has mandated that the VA conduct a study on the cases of veterans who believe they are suffering from exposure to Agent Orange.

The local agent orange claims came to light after veterans in Seminole County expressed fears that the county's veterans' service office would be eliminated by county commissioners for budgetary reasons.

But they can rest easy on that score. County Commissioners have tentatively approved a $32,997 budget for the office for 1981-82. The office is located in Building 310 at the Sanford Airport.

Westbrook, who has held the position of Veterans' Service Officer for the past 14 years, requested a budget for the new year of $33,565. His budget like those of other county departments was cut slightly by commissioners during budget workshops in late June and early July.

County Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff said travel allowances were cut back in all county departments including Westbrook's. Commissioner Sandra Glenn said the travel lines in all county department budgets were cut by one-third over the allocations approved for the current fiscal year.

She said the state mandates the veterans service officer attend two conferences annually. But the commissioners would like the state to pay for programs it mandates, she added.

Westbrook, meanwhile, has assured veterans organizations that he will pay his own expenses for attending the conferences which assures the office will continue to be state certified.

Thomas Lewis, service officer for the Veterans of Foreign Wars and Military Order of the Purple Heart and a member of the American Legion and the Disabled American Veterans, said veterans in the area have been concerned that Westbrook's office might be eliminated.

Westbrook, who receives an annual salary of $18,912, said his office is the representative to the Veterans Administration in new claims, old claims, change of status, anything involving veterans' benefits. "We also coordinate with other agencies to help veterans with food stamps, supplementary income (SSI) and social security benefits," he said.

"We help with whatever problems a veteran might have that we can be of assistance with whether it be the need for a military identification card; VA medical assistance; insurance problems involving the policy holder or beneficiary; review of discharges or veterans' widows' benefits.

Westbrook said often a military veteran or dependent can be helped filling out documents and thus save themselves from having repeated communications with the Veterans Administration.

Westbrook retired after serving 28 years in the U.S. Navy in 1967, becoming veterans service officer for Seminole County soon after retirement. He is one of the few remaining survivors of the U.S.S. Arizona from Pearl Harbor. He was also aboard a ship that escorted Admiral Halsey's U.S.S. Missouri for the Japanese surrender ceremonies.

Lake Mary Pulls Plug On Sewer Needs Study

Figuring the sewerage of Lake Mary is several years in the future, the city council has voted to discontinue a $36,000 study designed to determine whether a sewer system is even needed.

A total of $20,000 had already been spent, $15,000 in federal funds and a $5,000 municipal match—when council members dropped the ax on the study which is nearly a year old.

A group of about two dozen citizens showed up at last week's council meeting to prod the council into killing the study, complaining that it was a waste of money and fearing it would be used to force sewers on citizens unwilling to pay for them and who are happy with the present sewage treatment method—septic tanks.

"I agree it may have been a waste of money," said City Manager Phil Kulbes, "but we weren't going to arbitrarily say, 'We're going to have sewers in this town' and then ram it through.

"The point of the study was to determine if the city's septic tanks are working, and if they are polluting local lakes and groundwater supplies," Kulbes said.

The sewer survey was launched with the knowledge that the Sanford sewage treatment plant is scheduled to be enlarged to accommodate the effluent from Lake Mary and some of the unincorporated area of the county.

"Initially, what we would like to do is run a main line from the proposed collection point on Airport Boulevard out to the industrial area on Hinehart and Lake Emma roads," Kulbes said. "We figure we could attract more industry to the city if we could provide the sewer service."

Installing such a line is expected to cost $1.5 million, with $775,000 of that being paid by the city and the remainder by the federal government.

"Then, if the study showed septic tanks weren't working in the residential areas, we could install feeder lines there. You're talking probably another $1.5 million to be paid on the same formula," he said. "We really don't know if the tanks are working because the study wasn't finished," Kulbes said. "But what we had indicated there was no ground-water or lake pollution. We had intended to send out a questionnaire polling residents on how their septic tanks are working.

"Enlargement of the Sanford plant is also held up in Washington. So, the information we collect now would be out of date by the time things get rolling."

Gun-Toting Bicycle Bandit Pedals Way To $100,000

LORAIN, Ohio (UPI) — An armed "bicycle bandit" who held up a downtown drive-in bank and pedaled away on a 10-speed bike escaped with possibly more than $100,000, police indicated.

Police declined to disclose the exact amount stolen by the bicycle-riding gunman, who was described in his mid-20s and about 5-feet-3 in height.

But Police Chief John Malinovsky called the holdup, which occurred Thursday at a branch office of the Lorain National Bank, the biggest ever in the city and County.

The amount of cash taken by the bandit "staggered the imagination," Malinovsky said.

Reagan Maintains Faith In Former Campaign Manager

Pressure Mounts For Casey To Resign As CIA Boss

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Assistant Senate Republican leader Ted Stevens says unless CIA Director William Casey resigns he could become a major embarrassment to the White House.

President Reagan, however, says he has seen no information to warrant Casey's resignation and that he maintains confidence in the 68-year-old CIA boss, his former campaign manager.

Regardless of Reagan's faith, pressure is mounting for Casey to step down because of a court ruling that he misled business investors a decade ago and the resignation this month of his embattled spy-master, Max Hugel.

Last week, the Senate Intelligence Committee's staff began a wide-ranging investigation of Casey. It is scheduled to present a report to the full panel Tuesday. After talking to members of the panel, Stevens said Friday that "on a bipartisan basis, it's a fairly firm recommendation" that Casey should resign.

Stevens and Sen. William Roth, R-Del., Friday joined earlier calls by the committee's chairman, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., for Casey to step down.

Stevens also warned that if the administration continues to back Casey, the embarrassment it would suffer "could be substantial." He said "additional matters" have come to light that bother committee members.

David Gergen, White House communications director, disagreed.

He said Reagan counsel, Fred Fielding, had been "months-ring" information submitted to the committee and found "there is nothing there" that would be detrimental to Casey.

Gergen told reporters Casey "is not resigning" and read a statement from the president that said:

"We are cooperating fully with the Senate committee and my staff is following the matter closely. As I said earlier today, I have not changed my mind about Bill Casey."

Casey told reporters, "I feel when all the facts are out it will be clear I am qualified and ready to lead the central intelligence community."

In a statement, Casey said Goldwater had called for his resignation because he had been "provided with inaccurate information." The CIA director said he was "cooperating in every way with the committee" and information it had requested would be delivered by Monday.

Roth, a member of the intelligence committee, said the post of CIA director is "next to the presidency itself, the most sensitive position in government."

Charging that Casey's "past associations have compromised his ability to effectively serve," Roth said, "The good of the nation requires that CIA Director William J. Casey resign immediately."

A corporation lawyer long active in Republican politics, Casey served during World War II as chief of secret intelligence in the Office of Strategic Services, which later became the CIA. He has held three high government posts previously and was manager of Reagan's presidential campaign.

WORLD IN BRIEF

PLO-Israeli Truce Shaky After Cease-Fire Violations

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The Palestine Liberation Organization and Israel agreed to a cease-fire in their 15-day border war but Palestinians soon after unleashed two separate barrages of rockets and artillery that violated the truce.

Israel, however, did not return the fire and the cease-fire held early today, although few residents of the region put much faith in it.

In Tel Aviv, the Israel military command accused the Palestinians of twice firing Katyush rockets and 130 mm artillery shells into the Israeli-backed Christian enclave in south Lebanon (Ma). Saad Haddad, injuring three people. Israeli officials said the cease-fire announced by U.S. special envoy Philip Habib covered the Haddad-controlled territory, but Washington issued a different version.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Dean Fischer said the agreement would not apply to clashes between the Palestinian and Christian militia forces inside Lebanon.

The conflicting accounts of who was included in the cease-fire increased the danger a misunderstanding could trigger a new round of combat. More than 500 people, most of them in Lebanon, have been killed in the 13 days of fighting and bombing that preceded the truce.

Irish Fear Violent Clashes

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) — The Irish army was put on alert and all police leave was canceled to deal with Saturday's planned demonstration in Dublin by Irish Republican activists in support of the eight hunger strikers in Maze Prison.

Government officials feared a repeat of last Saturday's violent clashes between protesters and police, in which more than 100 people, including 120 officers, were injured after an unsuccessful storming of the British Embassy by an estimated 17,000 demonstrators escalated into running battles with police.

In the Maze Prison H-block in Northern Ireland, Kieran Doherty, 23, and Kevin Lynch, 24, who have gone without food for 63 and 64 days respectively both were reported near death.

"The condition of both men is rapidly deteriorating," said a spokesman for the Republican Press Center.

Design Of Hyatt Skywalks Inadequate, Engineers Say

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — A lawyer says two engineers hired to investigate the fatal disaster at the Hyatt Regency Hotel believe the collapsed skywalks were destined to fail.

Lynn Johnson, a partner in a Kansas City law firm that has filed suit on behalf of the family of a victim, said two engineers hired by the firm believe the skywalks were time bombs just waiting to collapse.

The collapsing skywalks dumped tons of steel and concrete on close to 2,000 people attending a popular tea dance, killing 111 and injuring 186.

Although the engineers are reluctant to explain their findings until their investigation is complete, they believe the general structural design of the rods and beams used to support all three skywalks was inadequate.

Reagan Revises Tax Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In an effort to win the tax-cut battle when it comes up for a vote before the House, President Reagan has added about $65 billion in reductions to the bill he is pushing.

House Ways and Means Committee chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., said the Republicans "have again missed what working Americans are asking for. The real battle is not over oil or estate taxes or indexing. The real issue is how Congress treats the American family."

Democrats maintain their 21-month, 15 percent tax cut aimed at people in the $15,000 to $50,000 tax brackets will do more for the average American than the president's across-the-board proposal, which would give the biggest tax breaks to those who pay the most taxes — the wealthy.

Weighted With Concrete Blocks

Divers Recover Bodies From Sinkhole

By BRITT SMITH
Herald Staff Writer

The bodies of Altamonte Springs businessman John Eubanks and his Lake County ranch foreman Bobby Farmer — who authorities believe were gunned down Tuesday during an investigation of cattle rustling — were pulled Friday from the calliginous depths of a sinkhole located about 10 miles north of the murder scene.

The men, who had each been shot in the back, had reportedly been weighted down with concrete blocks.

Investigators were led to the 200-foot-deep sinkhole, known as Wall Sink, by Robert Craig, 23, of Sumterville, one of the two men accused of the murders, who has made a detailed confession. Robert Schmidt, 20, of Wildwood, has also been charged in the case.

The two were being held today in the Lake County jail on charges of murder, grand theft, and selling stolen property. Divers began a search of the sinkhole Thursday, but gave up because of limited visibility and fallen trees which clogged the chasm. A trio of different divers resumed the search Friday and found the corpses.

They also found a rusted-out Duesenberg automobile at the bottom of Wall Sink. The classic car was reportedly driven into the sinkhole in the 1920s by bandits who had just robbed a Sumter County business.

Lake County sheriff's deputies have said Eubanks and Farmer were killed near a palmetto thicket on property Eubanks was considering buying. The shootings occurred when Eubanks and Farmer confronted Schmidt and Craig with evidence suggesting they were involved in rustling Eubanks' cattle.

When Farmer, who had just taken over as Eubanks' ranch foreman, failed to return home Tuesday night, his father and brother began looking for him. They found tracks from his Jeep adjacent to Eubanks' property and the vehicle was later discovered at the Florida Citrus Tower in Clermont, 20 miles away.

The next day, investigators found a pool of blood near the Jeep tracks and Schmidt and Eubanks were questioned. They were arrested the following day.

Eubanks and his wife Phyllis moved to Altamonte Springs some six years ago from Macon, Ga. Their current residence is in Oakland Estates and they have two children, Amy 7, and Deedee, 4.

Eubanks was a member of several civic organizations, including the Florida Forestry Association, Florida Cattlemen's Association and the Florida Real Estate Board.

Mrs. Eubanks said tentative plans call for a memorial service at Killarney Baptist Church in Winter Park, with burial in a family plot in Macon, Ga.

The Royal Wedding Romance Of Prince And 'Girl Next Door'

"It is with the greatest pleasure that the queen and the duke of Edinburgh announce the betrothal of their beloved son, the prince of Wales, to the Lady Diana Spencer, daughter of the Earl Spencer and the honorable Mrs. Shand Kydd."

Britons could have been forgiven a small sigh of relief at that announcement — not only because the 32-year-old heir to their throne had at long last chosen a bride but because his choice seemed to be such a good one.

The Feb. 24 announcement marked the culmination of a courtship that had proceeded slowly and secretly for three years — only to become a topic of major national and international interest and speculation in its final months.

It is said that the prince is marrying "the girl next door" because Diana spent her childhood at Park House on the royal estate at Sandringham in eastern England.

The Windsors — especially Prince Andrew and Prince Edward — often swam in the Spencers' heated pool. Charles and Diana undoubtedly met when he was in his teens and she was only a child.

However, the first meeting that both of them remember occurred in November 1977 at a pheasant shoot on the grounds of her father's 1,500-acre estate at Althorp.

They were introduced by Diana's eldest sister, Lady Sarah Spencer, who had once been considered a potential wife for Charles — until she remarked in the presence of a reporter that she could not marry a man she did not love and that she did not love the prince.

Charles later remembered that he found Diana to be "a very amusing and jolly and attractive 16-year-old." Diana said that she found Charles "pretty amazing."

"He met Miss Right and she met Mr. Right," recalled Lady Sarah. "They just clicked. They have the same giggly sense of humor, and they both love ballet and opera and sport in all forms. It's perfect, and they are both over the moon about it."

The two met occasionally after their introduction, but their romance did not blossom until last summer at Balmoral, the royal estate in Scotland.

Diana had gone to Balmoral to help her sister Jane, wife of the queen's assistant private secretary, with her first child. During that visit and a later one to the queen mother's Scottish home, Diana took long walks on the moors with Charles and watched him shoot and fish.

"We began to realize then there was something to it," he said.

Their courtship continued during weekends spent at the country homes of Charles' closest friends. By fall, the press was beginning to suspect that the relationship was getting serious.

Diana impressed the royal family with her poise and good humor as reporters and photographers massed outside her London flat and the hindersgarten at which she taught. "I know it's just a job they have to do," she said, "but sometimes I do wish they wouldn't."

Prince Charles and Lady Diana relax at Balmoral, the queen's estate in Scotland. It was there that the couple's romance blossomed last summer.

Her mother did not respond so charitably. She fired off a letter to The Times of London protesting the harassment of her daughter.

It was not only Diana's dealings with the press that were scrutinized by the royal family. She also had to be found to be a virgin, to be free of the slightest taint of scandal and to be capable of performing royal duties and bearing royal heirs.

Charles proposed on the evening of Feb. 6 during a private dinner in his third-floor apartment at Buckingham Palace. He asked Diana to "think the whole thing over" during her forthcoming visit to Australia lest marriage to him prove "too awful" a prospect.

But, recalled Diana, "I never had any doubts about it." Charles even observed the formality of asking Diana's father for her hand. "I wonder what he would have said if I had said no," mused Earl Spencer afterward.

"Diana will certainly keep me young," remarked Charles when questioned about the 13-year difference in the couple's ages. "I was about that age when I started (performing official duties). It's obviously difficult to start with, but you just have to plunge in."

Added Diana, "With Prince Charles beside me, I'll be all right."

Diana is the first Englishwoman to marry the heir to the throne since Lady Anne Hyde wed the future James II in 1659. She will be known as the princess of Wales — and, when Charles becomes king, as the 48th queen of England.

Social Security: Congress To Try To Offset Cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democratic and Republican leaders have decided to try and help those needy Americans who would be hurt by the elimination of the minimum monthly Social Security benefit of $122.

House Budget Committee Chairman James Jones, D-Kia., said Friday a remedy has not yet been formally proposed, but one would be sought by the House and Senate this fall.

"We have reached an agreement that what we did (eliminating the minimum benefit) was an error," Jones told reporters. "There is bipartisan recognition something ought to be done."

The Reagan administration proposed elimination of the minimum benefit, saying the 3 million people who now receive it can be adequately covered by other federal programs.

But critics complain many of the recipients would fall through the federal safety net and need assistance.

Earlier this week, a House-Senate panel, despite some reservations, agreed to end the minimum monthly benefit as part of a massive budget-cutting bill.

Differences between House and Senate budget bills are being worked out by subpanels of a 280-member conference committee.

Jones also said negotiators so far have agreed on more than $30 billion in budget cuts. He said the bulk of work has been completed on the measure, designed to cut more than $37 billion from federal spending in fiscal 1982.

The issues still to be resolved include how to cut Medicaid and whether to merge dozens of health programs into block grants under state control. Differences remain in several programs, including food stamps, education, social service and postal.

A REAL EYEOPENER

What a way to start the day! That surely must have been what 47-year-old Stephen Bogden of Altamonte Springs said Friday morning when his car came crashing through his living room wall courtesy of a young out-of-control motorist.

A Florida Highway Patrol spokesman said the strange accident occurred about 7:10 a.m. when a 1971 Chevrolet driven by Walter Wingate, 22, of 1520 Oak Lane, Casselberry was headed west on Hattaway Drive Altamonte Springs, and went out of control on a curve in front of Bogden's home.

Wingate's car skidded 122 feet before sliding into Bogden's driveway, striking his parked 1980 Datsun and pushing it through his living room wall.

No one was hurt. Bogden's home, however, sustained an estimated $12,000 damage, his car $3,000 damage. The bill to fix Wingate's car should come to only $400.

PURSE SNATCHER CONVICTED

An 18-year-old Sanford man was convicted in Seminole Circuit Court Thursday of robbing an elderly woman on a downtown street earlier this year.

Willie Lee Tucker of 1702 Roosevelt Ave. was charged with robbery for his part in the theft of a purse belonging to 66-year-old Evelyn Bruhn of 824 Clayton Ave., Sanford.

Sentencing was deferred pending completion of an investigation into Tucker's background. He could receive up to 15 years in prison.

Tucker's conviction followed by one day the robbery conviction of his sister Novella Nora Tucker, 19, of the same address, for driving the getaway car used after the robbery of Mrs. Bruhn.

Selective Service Volunteers Sought

During the week of Aug. 5-to-12, Army and Air Force Reserve officers will set up an office in the Seminole County courthouse to interview persons who would like to serve on a Selective Service Board for Seminole County.

State director of the system, Willie E. Jenkins, said today the recruitment and training of volunteers for service on local boards is part of the revitalization of the Selective Service System mandated by Congress. The goal of the program is to establish a system that can be relied on to meet Department of Defense requirements for untrained manpower in case of a national emergency.

There are no plans to resume the drafting of young men, Jenkins said, adding the Selective Service System is following a mandate of the president and the congress to improve its readiness to respond to a national emergency.

Local board members are nominated by Gov. Bob Graham and appointed by the president. Citizens 18 to 60 who are not members of the armed forces or their retired and reserve components may be eligible for service. Additional information and applications are available from: the Staff Selective Service System, Florida State Headquarters, Carlton Building 5th Floor, Tallahassee 32301 or by calling 904-487-1009, Jenkins said.

The exact date and time of the interviews will be announced, Jenkins said.

A five-member board is to be appointed for Seminole County.

America's 10 Sexiest Men Selected By Playgirl

United Press International
Playgirl, the magazine that titillates female readers with photos of nude males, has picked "the 10 sexiest men in America" — on the basis of their "positive self image," mind you.

The choices are "based upon a variety of attributes, from money to power to physical appearance to talent," executive editor Dianne Grosskopf assures readers of the September issue.

The 10 — CBS anchorman Dan Rather, Dodgers' pitcher Fernando Valenzuela, ballet star Mikhail Baryshnikov, space shuttle astronaut Robert Crippen, actors James Garner and Clinton Spilbury, singers Rick Nelson and Luciano Pavarotti, dancer Gene Kelly and New York Yankees' owner George Steinbrenner — were not required to disrobe.

Lucky To Be In Love

That popular interpreter of quaint English ways, Alistair Cooke, figures Prince Charles and Lady Diana really are in love — and in luck.

Most marriages in most countries are still "arranged," Cooke reminds readers in this weekend's Parade magazine.

The British-born writer and TV commentator calls the Charles-Diana love match "a happy accident." After all, he observes, "For hundreds of years love has been the least essential of royal marriage," which he says usually amounted to "a treaty of alliance, political or military, or both, with a foreign power."

Fonda Defends Sister's Name

Actor Peter Fonda, who allegedly cut up a pro-nuclear sign that made a disparaging remark about his sister, Jane, has been ordered to appear in court on a charge of destroying private property.

L. Paul Kaiser of the Denver Police Department's security force at Stapleton International Airport said Fonda was walking through the terminal Friday when he saw a booth run by the Fusion Energy Foundation, a pro-nuclear group.

The booth displayed a sign reading: "Support nuclear, Feed Jane Fonda to the whales." Miss Fonda is an outspoken opponent of nuclear power.

"Mr. Fonda said he was upset because the family name was on the sign," Kaiser said. "He took a sharp object from his pocket, I assume it was a knife, and tried to cut the name 'Fonda' off the sign."

Kaiser said people in the booth called police and helped them locate Fonda, who was en route to Montana.

Steven Ford Is Anti-Nuke

Steven Ford has come out against a new Southern California nuclear power plant. The son of former President Gerald Ford said in Los Angeles Wednesday, "I feel a responsibility for the safety of my friends and neighbors to speak out" because the plant is vulnerable to earthquakes. Ford said he is joining the anti-nuclear-power Southern California Alliance for Survival because "operating a nuclear power plant like Diablo Canyon next to an active earthquake fault is dangerous."

American Citizen At 99

The Immigration and Naturalization Service said Gabriel Isahar Isaharov wasn't eligible to become a U.S. citizen because he doesn't speak, read or write English.

But New York District Judge Henry Bramwell decided otherwise Wednesday and the Russian-born Isaharov, who will be 100 Jan. 10, 1982, took the oath in a Brooklyn courtroom.

Isaharov, a widower, left Moscow for Israel in 1973. He came to the United States in 1975, he said, because of the glowing report he got from a friend who arrived in 1910. He said he hopes to remarry eventually, and to outlive his father who died at 118.

Sarah Costs $1,500

Carol Hinton wrote a poem called "Sarah" about her youngest child and sent it off to Warner Bros. Records, thinking it would make a nice song. In a lawsuit, Mrs. Hinton later claimed part of the poem turned up in a song called "Sara" by the rock group Fleetwood Mac that got to be No. 3 on the charts.

Stephanie "Stevie" Nicks, Fleetwood Mac's lead singer, said the similarity was just a quirk — "Kar-ma," she called it.

But the case has been settled out of court in Grand Rapids, Mich., for an undisclosed sum, said to be about $1,500 which Mrs. Hinton will share with her lawyers.

Jamaica Rebuilding Its Friendship With The U.S.

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Jamaica has embarked on a mission to rebuild the bridges of good relations with the United States that were destroyed during the eight-year reign of his predecessor, Prime Minister Edward Seaga said today.

"Over the last few years good relations had become very shaky," Seaga told a news conference during a two-day visit as part of a week-long promotion of Jamaica in Tampa.

"The last few years there was a definite cooling of those relations," Seaga said. "We have had to build back the bridges of good relations."

Seaga said he began to work to improve relations with this country immediately after his election in November and noted he was the first foreign chief of state to pay an official visit to President Reagan after his inauguration.

He said this was followed by visits of Jamaican officials to a number of large cities.

"We set out on a deliberate plan to rebuild the bridges by visiting the main centers of industry, commerce and finance," he said. "But for us to build efficient bridges we need to look below that top level and get to the growth centers."

"Tampa represents that level of growth centers," he said.

He said Jamaican officials will discuss with leaders in these interests the possibility of setting up off-shore operations in his country.

Mexico Has Muzzled Press

Whatever democratic pretenses Mexico's governing Revolutionary Institutional Party could claim vanished the other day when President Jose Lopez Portillo imposed a stern, sweeping censorship on the country.

The radical suppression of freedom of expression establishes a five-man Censor Commission which will decide when the press breaks the rules and what punishment to mete out to editors and publishers. Violations, Mexicans now know, will bring large fines, prison terms and suspension of publication.

As with so many other obnoxious laws in history, the Lopez Portillo edict is ostentatiously clothed in morality. It forbids the media from "writings, drawings, painting, impressions, advertisements, emblems (or) photographs... that directly or indirectly induce or foment vices."

Also outlawed is the publication of material that "damages a favorable attitude toward work and enthusiasm to study" and even stories that "systematically" use bad Spanish grammar. Moreover, there must be no more published accounts of villains eluding the law and still prospering. Finally, anything that "directly or indirectly degrades or rebuffs the Mexican people" is also banned.

Clearly, these prohibitions are so broad that any writer, editor, publisher or publication perceived to be unfriendly to the officials of Mexico could be found guilty of "degrading the Mexican people."

To be sure, for most of the 50 years of its one-party rule, the Revolutionary Institutional Party has exercised a subtle but effective control over Mexico's press by simply controlling the supply of newsprint. Not surprisingly Mexican politicians have manipulated a controlled press into a kept and corrupt one.

And where Mexican courage has defied control and corruption there has been violent retribution. A truly disturbing number of reporters in Mexico have been murdered or beaten after they dared to expose powerful personalities and interests.

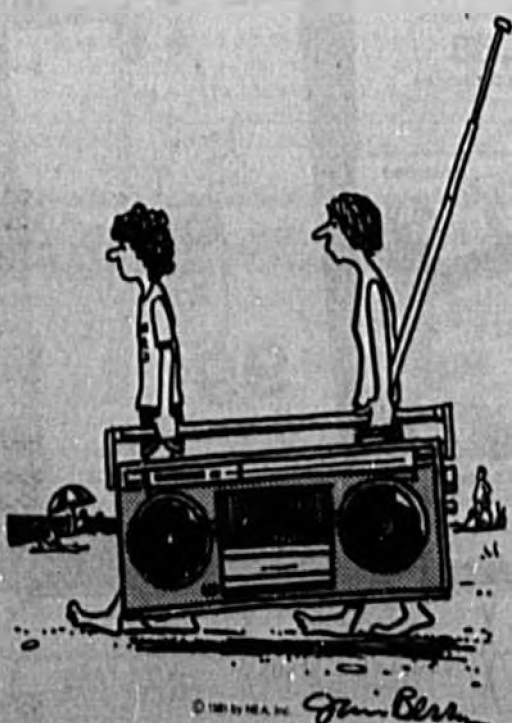

The administration of President Luis Echeverria, for example, did not hesitate in July, 1976, to engineer the overthrow of the editorial staff of Excelsior, one of Mexico's most distinguished newspapers, following its criticism of the Mexican government.

The long-range control exercised over the Mexican press is no longer subtle. The censorship so cavalierly imposed by Lopez Portillo is overt and potentially overwhelming. Those who love freedom in Mexico should raise a tumult against this outrage before the whole world. And the trustees of a free press in this country should be quick to join the outcry. For freemen everywhere are diminished by what Lopez Portillo has done and will do now that he holds in his hands more firmly the lash that tyrants always reach for first.

BERRY'S WORLD

By DORIS DIETRICH

The tragic collapse of skywalks at the Hyatt Regency Hotel last week in Kansas City caused eyes to widen and ears to perk up around the world.

The walks came tumbling down onto a crowded dance floor. There were a variety of theories among engineers and other experts in attempts to explain the tragedy.

According to an item written by Donna Estes and appearing in The Herald Tuesday, investigators had "considered that the jazz beat of the 1940s era band coupled with the tapping feet of persons on the walkways could have started in motion a rhythm that splintered the tons of concrete and steel, causing the crash"—in other words—harmonics.

And, now, a rain dance seems to be just what Central Florida has ordered. Sources say some 40 years ago a rain expert came to the Orlando area, prayed for rain—and sure enough, it came.

Hugh McKean, that genius of a gentleman who lives on Genius Drive in Winter Park, is notorious for ingenious gimmicks. Several years ago, some of us from Sanford were guests of Hugh and Jeanette at their home.

Preening, strutting peacocks, showing the latest colors, provided a picturesque setting to the large estate overflowing with gawking guests. Take the colorful birds, add an elephant and parachutists jumping into the nearby lake—and you have one of those host-with-the-most-parties.

Hugh, who is a former president and chancellor of Rollins College, now heads the Morse Foundation, sponsor of the rain dance to be held in Central Park, Winter Park, beginning at noon Monday.

Dancers from Southern Ballet Theatre will perform followed by everyone joining in for a community rain dance.

We just hope the harmonics don't cause another sinkhole in Winter Park—to say the least.

These instances bring to mind a lot of non-believers, who might just take a second look at the Christian Bible they believe in.

Remember the walls of Jericho tumbling down in the sixth chapter of Joshua? In the fifth chapter, a man holding a drawn sword gave Joshua directions for taking the city.

He commanded that the priests and soldiers should encompass the city once around for six days; on the seventh day, they were to march around the city seven times, the priests bearing the ark and seven trumpets of rams horns, the armed men marching before them.

Then, they were told to blow the trumpets, at which time the people were to shout loudly. Joshua insisted the people keep their mouths shut until he gave the word.

The people obeyed and the 20th verse of Joshua tells of the tumbling walls—and the people's march into the city.

The natural law of vibration—maybe combined with harmonics—can do strange things. I'm just glad I'm a believer who knows that anything is possible—under the sun—even rain.

Reagan Meets NAACP

Margaret Bush Wilson is an attractive lawyer from St. Louis.

She is also chairman of the board of directors of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. It was in that capacity that she introduced President Reagan to the late-June convention of the NAACP in Denver.

Mrs. Wilson thus became one of the several thousand toastmasters and toastmistresses, masters and mistresses of ceremonies, presidents of civic and social organizations and others who have introduced Ronald Reagan to an audience during his more than two decades on the aluminum-pea-and-glutinous-potato circuit.

Someone on Reagan's staff lost his invitation to last year's NAACP convention and thereby denied Mrs. Wilson the opportunity of giving a lengthy introduction to the Republican presidential candidate.

So, she decided that the president deserved more than the standard nine-word preface — "ladies and gentlemen, the president of the United States" — to his first speech before a black audience since his inauguration.

What Mrs. Wilson said instead must not have bothered the president; he embraced her like a sister before he left the platform to mild applause.

But it did upset editorial writers from the Atlanta Journal to the Washington Post who scolded Mrs. Wilson for violating some unknown protocol of presidential introductions.

They were upset, apparently, because Mrs. Wilson took pains to stress that the organization's invitation to the president in no way constituted an endorsement of his politics. "The NAACP," she said, "does not necessarily subscribe to the views which are about to be expressed."

In addition, some Reagan insiders complained that the NAACP was "hostile" to the president — presumably because the conventioners gave him what Time magazine called "tepid" applause.

That should not have surprised anyone who had seen a racial breakdown of last year's election returns or who knew the history of the NAACP.

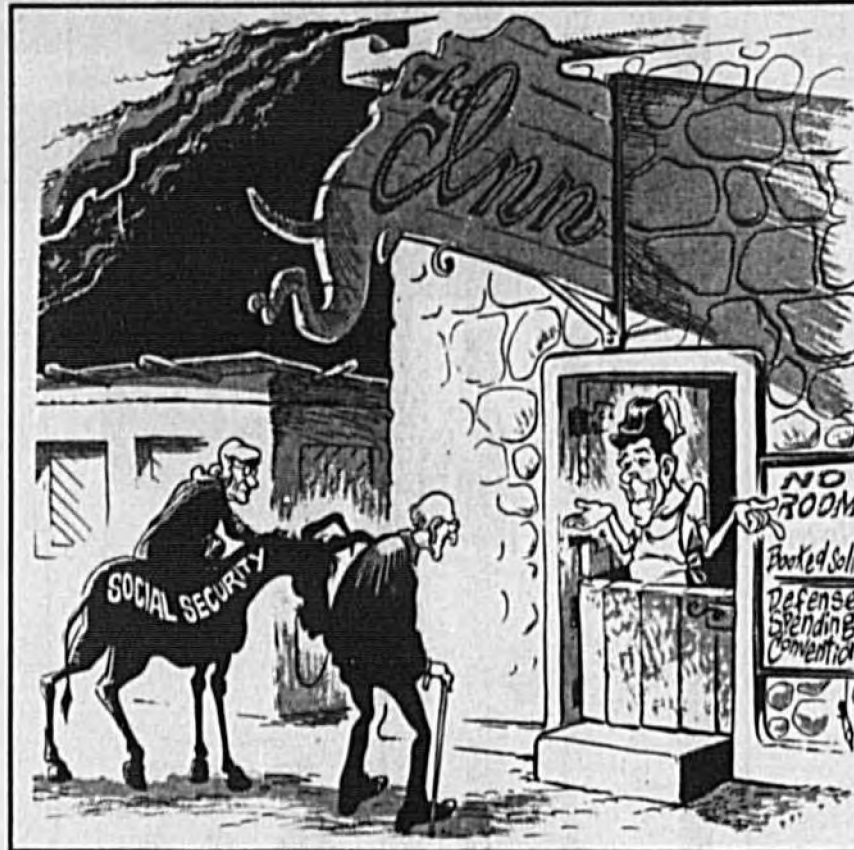

The NAACP is the nation's only national broad-based civil-rights organization. Its ranks include those blacks — and a few whites — who care enough about the black condition to pay an annual membership fee.

Its membership is hardly radical. It cuts through black America's class and caste system.

The NAACP has compiled a 72-year history of victories won through agitation, litigation and legislation. From its beginnings in 1909, the organization has represented a remarkable strain in black America: those willing to seek legal redress against an immoral system.

Despite difficult odds, NAACP members have resisted the human impulse to commit mayhem against their oppressors and the equally destructive impulse to commit carnage against themselves.

To imagine that an organization dedicated to the advancement of colored people would endorse a president whose program victimizes non-whites is to imagine American Indians celebrating an annual George Custer Day.

McEnroe's 4th Of July

Sometimes — though it seems crazy — you think that Ronald Reagan had something to do with it; and maybe he did, if only in the American spirit at Wimbledon. What a Fourth of July it was in the old capital city of the British Empire.

John McEnroe of Douglaston, Long Island, brought to an end the five-year Wimbledon reign of Bjorn Borg in four crisp sets. But Americans were scoring everywhere. Chris Evert returned to full focus after a couple of years of marriage and tennis doldrums and thrashed the new Czech star Hana Mandlikova. McEnroe and Peter Fleming took the men's doubles title from two other Americans, the great doubles team of Stan Smith and Bob Lutz. American Pam Shriver, surely a future champion, shared the women's double title with Martina Navratilova. Two Americans won the junior championship, Californian Marc Anger and Zina Garrison, a black girl from Houston.

It seemed entirely fitting when, after his match with Borg, McEnroe hurried to put on his red, white and blue U.S. Davis Cup Squad jacket. They should have played the Star Spangled Banner on the public address system.

As an old competitive tennis player myself, it was clear to me why McEnroe won. He almost invariably wins the point when he gets his first serve in. It is powerful, and either forces an error or else a short ball which McEnroe then follows to net.

In that match, McEnroe got a surprisingly high percentage of his first balls into the service box. The opposite was true of Borg, and it ruined him. He was missing the first serve regularly, sometimes every serve in a game, and his second serve was not of championship caliber. McEnroe was actually able to come to net almost at will on Borg's second serve.

McEnroe also conceals longer than any player now in tennis the direction in which he is going to hit the ball. He does this especially well on his backhand, often hitting it when the other player has committed himself. In my judgment, Borg is going to have his hands full with McEnroe from now on.

McEnroe's exhibitions of temper are deplorable, but at least to some degree understandable. He is a high-strung young man, and a perfectionist. He wants to play the perfect game, the perfect shot. He works hard to do so. Add to that the fact that the difference between players at that level comes down to a few points a set, and you can imagine the pressure. A bad call under those conditions seems to a player like an outrage against the universe, a piece of inexplicable evil. But McEnroe controlled his emotions in the final, and he was very gracious in his remarks after receiving the trophy.

McEnroe is a local New York boy, and you would think that he would be a popular hero when he plays in the American Championships at Flushing Meadows. That has not been the case in the past. New York, perhaps always somewhat blasé about celebrities, seems to ignore McEnroe's achievements.

If you ask me, he ought to have returned to a ticker-tape parade and been given the key to the city by Mayor Ed Koch.

Other players have been temperamental on the court. Big Bill Tilden, in my view the greatest of all time, was among the worst — complaining, sulking, throwing points and games. But he was also an artist, and everyone knew it.

All seems to be going well in the Reagan summer of 1981. The economic and tax reforms are sailing through Congress. Every poll shows that Regan, deservedly, has very high job-approval ratings in all the important categories. The Wimbledon result was fitting, symbolic.

Let's have a couple of renditions of the old George M. Cohan song about the Yankee Doodle Dandy, who was "born on the Fourth of July," and maybe a few of that hit song from the boom-days of the 1920s, "It Ain't Gonna Rain No More."

JACK ANDERSON

Spies: Part Of Radio Free Europe's Woes

WASHINGTON — On May 1, 1981, Bavarian state police showed up at the headquarters of Radio Free Europe-Radio Liberty in Munich and arrested a German employee on charges of spying for the Romanian intelligence service.

What was particularly shocking was that the suspected espionage agent, Klara Bailes, was the personal secretary of the central news division director of the U.S. government-owned radio stations. She had been working at RFE since 1963.

"We have been told by authorities," a radio official wrote to his superiors in Washington, "that she is accused of having provided reports on the radios to the Romanians for the past 20 years or so." The woman's husband was also arrested as a spy.

Meanwhile, Emil Geogescu, a supervising program editor, has complained that he was the target of physical attacks and death threats instigated by the Romanian secret police. Munich authorities are investigating his charges.

These episodes are only the most dramatic of the troubles recounted by RFE-RL officials in "strictly confidential" memos seen by my associate Indy Badhwar. They indicate that serious problems continue to plague the stations, which have the vital mission of broadcasting news and commentary to Eastern Europeans to counteract the Orwellian output of their communist governments' tightly controlled media.

I've already reported on problems ranging from suspected sabotage to administrative incompetence and embarrassing blunders, like broadcasting the wrong program to the wrong country at the wrong time — in the wrong language.

Here are some of the latest foulups: — The RFE-RL transmitter in Paris, Spain, is "inefficient and becoming difficult to maintain," said one memo. Insiders say the real problem is not technical but political — trying to persuade a reluctant Spanish government to sign a long-term agreement on use of its facilities.

— A plan to set up eight 250-kilowatt transmitters in either Pakistan or the Sinai to serve Central Asia has run into opposition from the Pakistani and Israeli governments.

— The transmitter complex in Gloria, Portugal — our biggest and most effective — is in drastic need of modernization. Eleven new 250-kilowatt transmitters and antennas are scheduled to be installed there, but three of the transmitters have been held up by Portuguese customs officials without explanation.

— Last summer, the antenna on a new 150-kilowatt medium-wave transmitter in Holzkirchen, Germany, fell down. It is RFE-RL's only medium-wave transmitter serving Poland after dark and Czechoslovakia during daylight hours.

The radio stations' difficulties couldn't come at a worse time. Broadcasts by Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty could be a crucial weapon in the Polish people's gallant struggle against the Soviet behemoth.

Rep. Jim Courter, R-N.J., a member of the Armed Services Committee, raised this point in a private note to President Reagan urging that the administration increase funding for the two radio stations. RFE-RL should be upgraded, he wrote, "because such broadcasting provides vital, truthful information to the captive populations of U.S.S.R. and East Europe about developments in their countries and the likelihood of a Soviet invasion, and circumstances surrounding an actual invasion."

Denied the broadcasts, the Poles will be hampered in their efforts to coordinate opposition, Courter wrote, and the Russians, "who rely for the success of their operations upon the suppression of the truth, will be able to act with greater impunity."

RUSTY BROWN

Hard Work In Paradise

HAWAII — "Sweet Lileia, heavenly flower" of the famous song is a different woman today. She can't sit around anymore under tropic skies to inspire song writers. She's off to work.

Nearly 60 percent of the women here are employed, the highest percentage of working women in any state.

Those lovely hula hands are doing more than saying "aloha" with the fingertips. They are making beds in hotels to support a $2.5 billion tourist industry or typing letters and running offices to keep 32,000 corporations going. And a few "Sweet Lileias" are finding that a woman's place is in the House... and the Senate.

One is State Senator Patricia Saiki, an ebullient, energetic woman whose office in Honolulu's new pavilion-style state capitol overlooks banyan trees and historic Iolani Palace, one-time home of island kings.

The slim, black-haired mother of five keeps a jar of jelly beans on her desk. Just in case a visitor doesn't know she's one of eight minority Republicans. She's also one of two women on the board of AMFAC, the Hawaiian-based firm dealing on the mainland in foods, specialty clothing stores and hotels. She's the sole woman on the board of Hawaii Air, now pioneering flown-by-computer planes.

I went to see Sen. Saiki during my visit here, to talk about Hawaii's working women.

The main reason so many have taken jobs is the most obvious: the sky-high cost of living.

"You gotta pay to live in paradise," says the legislator with a laugh.

A family of four, living on the Waikiki-Honolulu Island of Oahu, needs $23,000 a year to make it "moderately." An average single home on Oahu sells for $114,000.

"But women juggling jobs and family isn't new here," says the senator. "We have a long tradition of women working in the sugar cane fields and the pineapple canneries. My grandparents both worked on the sugar plantations."

"A lot of women work to send their kids to college. Asians see education as the key to upward mobility, and we have nearly a 40 percent Asian population here."

Going to work is a rub-off of the women's movement for some, she says. She knows doctor's wives, like herself, who were once content to be ladies of leisure. "Now they're taking out real estate licenses and thinking about careers."

A cultural boost to all this job-hunting is a unique Hawaiian tradition. It's called "Mama-San" — which means grandparents here are around to take care of grandchildren. And because these are islands, some 2,300 miles from the mainland, most grandparents don't move away.

"When I began teaching," says Sen. Saiki, "my mother-in-law moved in to take care of the children. That's typical."

She sees each generation of Hawaiian women feeling stronger about women's rights, and uses the example of her daughter and son-in-law, both in med school. "They do all their shopping and cleaning chores together. You know why? So one won't have any more time than the other to study."

Throughout her 14 years in the legislature, she has been a force for women's rights. She introduced and fought for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment here.

OPINION

Evening Herald, Sanford, FL Sunday, July 26, 1981—5A

OUR READERS WRITE

'Legal Assistance Should Be Provided To The Poor'

The Legal Services Corporation which exists at this moment is about as far away from the original concept of the program as it can possibly be.

Because of this, I have long felt that this corporation should either be drastically altered—or abolished completely in favor of alternative programs through local bar associations.

Just recently the House approved a bill reauthorizing Legal Services Corporation (LSC) for 1982 and 1983. I joined 244 of my colleagues in voting for passage of the legislation, because dramatic changes were made in this corporation during Judiciary Committee hearings and three days of emotional debate on the Floor of the House. If these changes remain intact during the legislative process—which involves resolving the differences between the House and Senate LSC bills—then I will support continued funding of Legal Services Corporation. If these changes are deleted or "gutted," however, I will vote to eliminate the program entirely.

My own amendments resulted in two of these changes—one of which I offered on the Floor, and one in committee.

The Floor amendment I offered will prohibit illegal aliens from receiving legal services. It also bars non-immigrant aliens who are here legally—but pay few taxes—from receiving such services. My amendment spells out exactly who is entitled to receive legal aid. Any other category than those listed are not eligible.

In doing this, millions of people will be effectively excluded, including "entrants"—which is the designation given to the Cubans and Haitians who poured into our country last year—as well as foreign visitors, tourists, students and temporary workers (known as H-2 workers).

An amendment I offered in Judiciary Committee eliminates another major problem with the existing LSC—control by social activists who are more interested in major social and legislative changes than solving the individual legal problems of the poor. As it stands now, many local offices are run by governing boards which have been selected by local agencies or organizations which have special welfare interests. This amendment requires all local LSC outlets to be non-profit organizations, with a majority of the governing board appointed by state, county or local bar associations whose memberships represent a majority of attorneys practicing in the particular area. This ensures a check on the activities of LSC lawyers by those who represent a cross-section of the local community, and should go a long way toward ending absurd lawsuits and social tinkering.

The House LSC bill also includes a number of other major changes in the program which were formulated to correct existing "abuses." One new provision prevents LSC lawyers from filing any class action suits against local, state or federal governments.

This was included to eliminate the LSC's current ability to sue the government—with the government's own money—for broad social causes, not individual claims, as was envisioned when LSC was created.

Another revision eliminates the lobbying of government officials and legislators by LSC lawyers, which like many other current LSC practices, abuses taxpayer dollars to be spent in behalf of certain groups of people and their causes—which are only remotely related to individual legal problems. At the same time, another provision tightens existing language against the use of LSC funds for political activities or the organization of picketing, boycotts or strikes.

Other provisions cut LSC funding in general to $241 million annually (compared to $321 million in fiscal 1981), prevent the handling of abortion cases unless the mother's life is endangered, prohibit the handling of cases promoting, defending or protecting homosexuality and prevent LSC lawyers from striking.

Legal assistance in civil matters should be provided to truly poor Americans. While I am unconvinced that local and state bar associations and local governments can't provide this aid, I am equally unconvinced that they will. Therefore, a new, reformed LSC must be created—or legal aid to the poor as it was originally envisioned may never come to pass.

Need Change

I represent a group of concerned parents and coaches of Little League ballplayers, who feel there is a desperate need for some rule changes in All Stars tournaments.

First, we would like to have the selection of the All Stars on their merits alone. Such as batting percentage, fielding percentage and pitching performance.

Second, we would like to see the free substitution rule in effect for next year.

Third, since these kids have worked hard to get here, and since they are All Stars, they should be allowed to play, otherwise there should be only eleven or twelve players on a team.

In other words, take the game away from the coaches and give it back to the players. We believe if these rules were in effect state wide there would be no advantage or disadvantage for any one since the best players from each area of the state would be represented. We would very much like to see politics taken out of Little League Baseball. We appreciate any help you can give us and are waiting your reply.

People Today Just Don't Have The Time To Care

This is addressed to the woman who was driving a large brown pick-up down 27th Street in Sanford on July 16 at 5 p.m.

Thanks to you my child will have nightmares for quite a while. You see, you were in such a hurry to get where you were going you ran over her kitten's head as she looked on in horror. Her screams could be heard a block away. You were in such a hurry, you couldn't even stop and apologize.

My daughter learned a hard lesson: People today, male or female, just don't have the time to care... about animals or a child's screams.

You'll excuse me if I don't thank you for teaching her that lesson.

U.N. Supports Terror?

Congress is presently considering a request to appropriate $600 million of hard earned U.S. taxpayer dollars for the American share (25 percent) of the United Nations this year. U.S. Taxpayers contribute 25 percent of the total U.N. budget each year.

The United Nations General Assembly allocates millions of dollars each year to support Soviet-sponsored terrorist organizations, including SWAPO (South West Africa People's Organization), which uses the money to purchase Soviet-bloc military equipment to be used in SWAPO's continuing terrorist campaign to take over Namibia.

Loss of Namibia to the Communist-bloc will adversely affect U.S. national security. Namibia has the largest uranium mine in the world, plus diamonds, copper, zinc and potentially more oil than the North Slope. Walvis Bay on Namibia's southwest coast is the only deep water port between Cape Town and Luanda, 1,500 miles to the north useable by Soviet nuclear submarines to bisect the oil lifeline from the Persian Gulf.

The United Nations was recently described in the Washington Post as an "...institutional outrage," a "...moral swamp that operates much of the time by the mob rule of the Third World in close alliance with the Communist-bloc".

We hope U.S. taxpayers will be protected against the misuse of their money by the U.N. to finance Soviet-sponsored terrorist attacks against friendly countries. The hard-earned money of taxpayers of the 4th and 5th congressional district of Florida should be protected against diversion by the United Nations to the support of the SWAPO terrorists.

Sincere Thanks

I am writing to express my sincere thanks and gratitude to all the co-workers at the Seminole County Jail who believed and trusted in me over the past weeks. I also would like to thank the road deputies who called or dropped by. And a special thanks to a certain investigator whom I've grown to highly respect.

I dropped the hearing because of financial and other reasons which I cannot explain at this time. It sure wasn't because I was guilty. So once again thanks to my friends and my family who stood behind me.

Citizens' Rights Committee Zeroes In On Officials

Tom Binford, businessman, real estate broker and former politician, and the group of which he is a member, the Citizens Rights Committee, plan to zero in on local officials in the coming months who are pushing for tax increases.

In a recent newsletter to constituents, State Rep. Bobby Brantley, R-Longwood, noted that he has received requests from local officials who want him to vote for increasing sales taxes with a local option. The local option would permit county commissions across the state to levy a sales tax for use in funding law enforcement and other local programs.

Binford said he plans to get the names of those officials from Brantley so the committee can make the public aware who those elected officials are who want to raise taxes.

Meanwhile, County Commissioner Robert "Bud" Feather, one of the county officials who worked long and hard to "hold the line on taxes" by the county, chastised school board members this past week to do the same.

Feather urged County School Superintendent Bob Hughes to stand by the pledge he made during his election campaign less than a year ago of holding the line.

Hughes recommended and the school board approved, however, a $2 per $1,000 assessed valuation increase in the tax rate.

Feather, a Republican served two terms on the school board before his election to the county commission last year. Hughes, a fellow Republican, began his first term in the non-partisan office of school superintendent in January.

The first board of directors meeting for the Seminole County Mental Health Center in its new fiscal year is scheduled for 7 p.m., Thursday.

The meeting is to be held at the center's office, Suite 377, Crane's Roost Office Park, Altamonte Springs.

The lobbyist for the League of Women Voters of Seminole County after spending nearly four months in Tallahassee during the legislative session had two "wise sayings" gleaned in the state capital to relate to the organization.

The sayings are: "Don't get caught between the dog and the hydrant," and "You can't make chicken soup off of chicken droppings."

Lake Mary city officials have been shooting for an Aug. 1 move into the new city hall quarters in the old former Chamber of Commerce building on Country Club Road. The ceiling in the old building and the walls have been painted a bone white. The wood on the walls has been stripped and will be sanded and re-varnished. The floor is also to be re-varnished.

Paddle fans have been installed and the building air-conditioned. A new council table has been built from old wood removed from the offices in the building.

Freebies Are Available

I recommend a valuable book titled "Yours for the Asking."

Each year government agencies and private organizations put out thousands of pamphlets, periodicals and reports.

These publications contain advice on how to save on utility bills, fight inflation, kick the cigarette habit, use cosmetics and hair dyes safely, keep your pet healthy and just about anything else you might want to know.

But how can we find out about these publications and where to obtain them?

Or, you might hear or read about new regulations coming from the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, the Environmental Protection Agency, the Federal Trade Commission or another of the many federal agencies.

But how can we contact these agencies and learn more about the services they provide?

"Yours for the Asking" has the answers to both questions.

The book focuses on six categories: food, housing, energy, money, health and general consumer information.

It lists more than 700 free items as well as toll-free hotlines, periodicals sold by subscription (free samples are often available) and other information.

The authors suggest that you enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope when requesting non-government publications. I could not possibly list everything contained in this informative book.

In the food category, for instance, there are pamphlets available on "Health and Diet Foods," "Calling a Halt to Salt," "Some Questions and Answers about Food Additives," "The Food Colors" and "Holiday Food Safety."

You can also find out how to get booklets on "How to Buy Food," "Unit Pricing," "Food Marketing Without Frills" and "Ten Ways to Save on Food."

Growing Older

You can even obtain a pocket-size price-comparison slide rule.

There is a special section of interest to the older citizen. The material available includes "Thinking About Retiring" and "Estimating Your Social Security Retirement Check."

There is general consumer information on "Sales Tactics," "Shopping for Advertised Specials," "Bait and Switch," "Complaint Referral Guide," "Tips on Refunds and Exchanges," "Warranties: There Ought to Be a Law ... There Is," "Tips on Guarantees and Warranties" and more.

You can also obtain free citizen-action materials. For instance, you can get a pamphlet on the Freedom of Information Act and how to use it.

The Public Citizen Tax Reform Research Group will send a sample copy of its monthly newspaper People and Taxes. The Public Citizen Health Research Group will provide a list of reports and publications.

For a copy of the book, send $5 to "Yours for the Asking," P.O. Box 19087, Washington, D.C. 20008.

The book is published by the non-profit Center for the Study of Responsive Law. Your $5 will help provide funds for the center's important work. Next year, the center will send a free update to everyone who buys the book.

Is Tax Reduction A Novel Experiment?

By L. P. ARNN
Special to the Herald

It has been said with increasing regularity that the President's plan to reduce the level of taxation in this country is a novel experiment, an experiment to be conducted by an amateur, if not a mad, scientist. It is even said that the experiment goes beyond the bounds of science, and ventures into the realm of witchcraft.

A recurring phrase is "voodoo economics," a phrase coined, in an unfortunate moment, by George Bush, who was then an opponent of Ronald Reagan in the race for the presidency, and who is now Vice-President of the United States. Mr. Bush is now a practitioner of the black magic he once denounced, and his conversion leads us to wonder whether the magic is really black, or even magic.

Are the regions of lesser taxation really part of the darker realm? Are the effects promised from a reduction in taxation really dependent upon strange incantations and sorcerous potions? These are the questions that the Congress must answer as it decides, in the next few weeks, whether and how it will relieve us of some of the burden we bear.

The present demand for a decrease in taxation is founded upon the extraordinary tax rates that afflict us. The strength of the demand is proportionate to the level of taxation, which is among the highest of the western world. Our tax system penalizes interest on saving and investment more heavily than it does salaries and wages, thereby encouraging us to spend our income as soon as we make it, and to save nothing for the future.

Our tax rates thwart industry; they obstruct the accumulation of capital; they impose extra burdens upon marriage. They are raised automatically each year by that awful force, inflation, which multiplies the number of dollars in our pockets, but diminishes the amount that we can buy.

Many Americans today find themselves in tax brackets they never dreamed they could enter, but they are no richer, and even poorer, than they were five, ten or fifteen years ago.

The President's plan to mitigate this situation does indeed have certain novel features, but we must separate them carefully from the fundamental principles upon which he relies. These principles go back to the earliest history of the United States.

"The power to tax" wrote John Marshall in 1819, "involves the power to destroy." This illustrates the gravity with which the founders of our nation regarded the question of taxation.

Our Constitution, like the English constitution in its later development, recognizes that there is a private sphere, within which individuals should be "free to live by no man's leave within the law." This private sphere is defined by certain rights that accrue to every man equally. These rights are summarized in the Declaration of Independence as the natural, unalienable rights to "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

These most fundamental rights are the foundation for the civil rights enumerated in the Bill of Rights of our Constitution. It was "to secure these rights" that the government of the United States was dedicated.

Any state—such as a communist state—that appropriates the whole wealth of a nation to itself, destroys the ground upon which liberty rests. No man can speak frankly and candidly upon politics, if his government is able to take away his living. No man can practice his religion unhindered, if the state is able to seize his home and deny him employment.

And as a communist or totally collectivist state squashes individual rights, it also stifles individual initiative. Few are moved to diligent effort, when diligence and laziness win the same reward. There is no motive for industry, there is no outlet for genius and innovation, if genius, industry and innovation are accorded no special scope, nor granted no special distinction.

There is of course no question that the government of the United States is seeking to appropriate the whole wealth of the nation. But excessive taxation, which appropriates too much of the nation's wealth, reproduces in a milder form some of the vices of communism. It is a drag upon and a distraction to production. Its effects accumulate year after year, until those who do not wish to work are confirmed in their indolence, and those who are inclined to work are exhausted by the burdens they have borne.

Franklin Roosevelt, who was neither a Republican, as President Reagan is, nor an enemy of big government, said in 1932: "Taxes are paid in the sweat of every man who labors. If those taxes are excessive, they are reflected in idle factories, in tax-sold farms, and in hordes of hungry people, tramping the streets and seeking jobs in vain."

The President's plan to cut taxes is, therefore, perfectly in keeping with the tradition of free government that he inherits. If there is black magic in his plan, it is to be found in his prediction of the future. It can not be proved with any mathematical formula, nor demonstrated with any economic graph—even the famous Laffer curve itself is insufficient—that prosperity will follow from a reduction of taxes.

The President argues, however, that there is in America a vast, untapped resource, a renewable, human resource of energy, skill and ingenuity. He argues that this resource has been cramped and constrained by excessive levels of taxation. He argues that if these excessive levies are removed, the natural enthusiasm of the people of this country will reappear, and production will burgeon and grow.

If he is right, then sooner or later his plan must succeed. If he is wrong, then it is questionable that any plan can succeed.

Mortgage Fund Over Mark

TALLAHASSEE — Florida Comptroller Gerald Lewis has announced that mortgage brokers and solicitors no longer must make a contribution to the Mortgage Broker Guaranty Fund in order to obtain a Florida license.

According to the Comptroller, no fees will be collected for licenses issued in 1981-82. He said a 1977 Florida law required licensees to contribute annually to the fund through the year until it reached $750,000. The fund went over the mark in early 1981 and now totals $801,508.29 including earned interest.

The Mortgage Broker Guaranty Fund was established to reimburse consumers who lose money by dealing with a licensed mortgage broker who is found guilty of violating the State's Mortgage Brokerage Act and who has no assets on which to levy. Since the fund was established in 1977, claims totaling $59,453.84 have been paid to consumers who otherwise would have lost money.

Applications for mortgage broker and solicitor licenses for 1981-82 were mailed July 15, and should be filed with the Comptroller's Office no later than August 15. Current licenses expire August 31.

Sabal Point Opens Showcase

Sabal Point has announced the Grand Opening of its permanent Showcase of Homes. This quiet cul-de-sac of eight custom-built homes is not a traditional "Model Center" from which to choose a floor plan. Each of these unique homes designed by leading area architects features inspired solutions to the challenges of today's lifestyles. There are vaulted ceilings, enclosed swimming pools, environmental rooms, atrioms, master bedroom suites with fireplaces and sybaritic baths that feature sunken tubs and open showers.

Participating builders are: H. L. Peatross & Hueber; T. E. C. Home Systems; Ron Meyer Construction; Delco-Redfield; Baywood Homes; Area Building Corp.; Cameo Construction and Michael D. Welsh.

Browser's Barn Added To Historic Longwood

By JANE CASSELBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

The latest addition to the Longwood Historical District is the "Browser's Barn" located on Jessup Avenue west of County Road 427. A new concept for this area, the 4,000-square foot red wooden structure is a dream come true for Betty Jo McLeod and Dorothy Pearson. The grand opening is set for Aug. 4-8.

Housed downstairs in the "barn" are "The Runcible Spoon" — a quaint tea room which serves morning and afternoon snacks as well as lunch, the Mare's Nest — for handcrafts shop and the "Potting Shed" featuring potted plants. They open off a brick-paved mallway that runs through the center of the building.

Upstairs is the Antique Attic, where eight area antique dealers display their stock. Included are Marge and Bob Beine of Sanford, Fred and Ruth Gaines, Sanford, Alicia Gundlach, Orlando, Ginny Hoskins, Altamonte Springs, Elayne Antia, Altamonte Springs, Lorena Hopkins, Longwood, Howard Collins of Longwood and Ms. McLeod.

Leading up to the attic are wooden steps, which were sawed from a white oak log in North Carolina and brought back in a station wagon by Ms. McLeod and Ms. Pearson. The wainscoting in the tea room was salvaged from an old house.

Ms. Pearson operates The Runcible Spoon, which derives its name from the children's poem, "The Owl and the Pussycat."

The Mare's Nest is owned by Wendell and Lois Glisson of Conway, who have converted their hobby into a business. They sell woodwork, soft sculptures, dolls, quilts and other items on consignment or on custom order.

The Potting Shed is owned by Delores Wicks of Longwood. In addition the Browser's Barn is designed to be a place for special showings by visiting artists, the first of whom will be well-known area artist Margaret Newman.

Ms. McLeod has been active with the Central Florida Society for Historic Preservation's efforts which began in 1969 to preserve the special character of the eight block area in the historic district. She first restored the so called Victorian House at 211 Warren Ave. Later she helped save from destruction the Inside-Outside House by buying a lot on Church Avenue so that the building could be moved to Longwood from Altamonte Springs.

Several years later she acquired the lots on Jessup behind the Inside-Outside House. She sketched out the design for the barn three years ago, but the time didn't seem right for building, she said.

Last summer she had her plan approved by the Longwood Historical Commission and the City Commission and the project was underway. The architect who put the finishing details to Ms. McLeod's dream was W.B. Harter. The builder was Ron Tompkins and Wel-Bro Construction did the finishing work.

"Many of the people who come in ask how we restored this building not realizing that we built it from the ground up," laughed Ms. McLeod. She credits the skill of the carpenters, Roger Peterson and Joe Wardrup, with the authentic detail.

Film Internship Program Funded For Third Year

TALLAHASSEE — A unique and highly successful internship program that provides on-the-job training in Florida's motion picture and television industry for Floridians has been funded for the third year in a row, Secretary of Commerce Sidney Levin announced today.

According to Levin, the program, which provides interns with 10-14 weeks of professional instruction in some facet of the state's film and videotape industry, is the only one of its kind in the nation.

"This year, several interns worked on the sets of major feature movies in South Florida while others gained experience working with local production companies, film labs, equipment rental houses, post production companies, cinematographers, directors, writers and producers throughout the state," he said.

A total of $96,000 has been allocated for the program during the 1981-82 fiscal year. The grant will pay instructional fees and supplies for approximately 60 interns this year.

The grant was approved by the Department of Commerce Division of Economic Development and will be released by the Florida Motion Picture and Television Office. The money was obtained through the Department of Education Division of Vocational Education.

"This program is an excellent example of inter-agency cooperation that benefits the State of Florida," said Levin. "The participants receive invaluable on-the-job experience while the film industry is infused with fresh, young talent."

The Commerce Secretary noted that Gov. Bob Graham has placed a top priority on development of the movie and television industry in Florida. He said through the combined efforts of the state, local film offices and the private sector, Florida has become the third largest film and tape production center

"We are doing everything possible to create a favorable environment to shoot a movie or TV commercial in Florida," Levin said. "The goal of the internship program is to strengthen the industry in Florida by increasing the size and technical capabilities of its manpower pool."

According to Levin, over the past two years, more than half of the 80 interns placed in the program have secured jobs within Florida's motion picture and television community. Others have returned to school or accepted film-related jobs out-of-state.

"Considering that the film and videotape industry is so complex and one of the hardest for young people to break into, the success of this program has been phenomenal," he said, adding that cooperation from the private sector made it possible.

The program was the brainchild of Toby Ross, a member of the Florida Motion Picture and Television Advisory Council, which is composed of state film and video professionals. The Council recommended the creation of the program, and the members have supported it by sponsoring interns.

Levin credited Dr. Donald Ungarait of the Florida State University School of Communications with getting the program off the ground. A member of the Council, Ungarait has administered the internship grants since the program began in 1979.

Dr. Ungarait enlisted the participation of 11 state universities and community colleges with film and video departments, and then solicited in-state firms and visiting production companies to train the interns.

While most of the interns placed in the program have been promising film students who were recommended to Dr. Ungarait by their respective schools, about 40 percent were not college-affiliated.

Historical Cemetery In Midst Of Development

ORMOND BEACH — It is easily one of Ormond Beach's last remaining links to yesterday, a tiny, densely wooded patch of land where a piece of Florida history remains preserved.

It is a historical cemetery that dates back to one of the area's earliest Tomoka settlements, and, ironically, is located in the heart of one of the area's newest residential settlements — Tymber Creek.

The graveyard, situated in the center of Tymber Creek's 223-acre residential development, is the oldest remaining burial ground in Volusia County, say historians, founded in the years just prior to the Civil War.

More than a dozen tombstones, some of them homemade with crude hand-carved inscriptions, stand among the dense foliage — alone, weather beaten and cracked from decades gone by. Nevertheless, they stand like proud sentinels, defying the passing of time, sharing their story of a Florida we'll never know.

Each tombstone reads like a faded chapter in an outdoor history book.

"Our Father, John A. Groover," reads one, "Born July 27th, 1828, Died Sept. 9, 1900." Nearby in almost the same shadow, another says simply, "Our Mother, The loving wife of John A. Groover." She died 10 days after her husband.

Another reads, "Mary Harper, born 1813, died Jan. 20, 1897. Thy Trail's Ended."

And another with a philosophical message, "Tom H. Newburn, born Feb. 23, 1808, died Aug. 30, 1921 — If I can have it said of me, when ended is my time of toil, that I have fought to helpful and have not labored just for spoil, I'll greet death's angel with a smile and take his hand and journey on, believing that I've been worthwhile and still shall live although I've gone."

Once there were at least 30 graves at the burial site, many of them early settlers from the Grover Creek settlement. The numbers, however, have dwindled over the years. Time, weather and vandalism have taken their collective toll.

"We've taken great care to ensure that the remaining tombstones are forever protected," explains Stan Shirah, president of J.K. Shirah & Sons Inc., developer of Tymber Creek. "The cemetery is now fenced off and designated by the state as an official historical monument."

Motorists Confused By Litres

A warning to motorists to calculate the price-per-gallon before buying gasoline from stations dispensing fuel by the litre was issued to Florida residents this week by Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Conner at the quarterly meeting of the Florida Metric Council in Orlando.

The warning was prompted by complaints to the Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services from motorists who felt they were charged too much for fuel.

Conner pointed out that it is not illegal to dispense fuel by the litre and that deregulation lifted any price ceilings imposed on service stations. He explained, however, that the Department of Agriculture has recommended to service station operators that they post the price-per-gallon even though fuel is dispensed in litres.

"There are 3.785 litres to a gallon," Conner said, "so a motorist can quickly calculate the price per gallon by multiplying the cost-per-litre by four."

"While this will not give him an exact figure," he said, "it is close enough and valid enough to help him determine whether the cost-per-gallon is excessive compared with local prices."

According to the Division of Standards, which regulates the accuracy of service station pumps and the quality of petroleum products, approximately 10,000 of the state's 70,000 motor fuel pumps are calibrated in litres.

"A vast majority of the stations dispensing fuel by the litre are cooperating with the Department of Agriculture in posting per-gallon prices and even distributing metric materials for consumers," Conner said. "The number of stations exploiting consumer ignorance about metrics is minimal but significant enough for us to take notice."

"The Florida Petroleum Marketers Assn. and regional offices of national petroleum companies have been most cooperative in establishing guidelines for their service stations operators," Conner said. "We would hope that voluntary compliance with these practices will continue and expand so that the state will not be placed in the position of requiring price-per-gallon posting."

Many stations have converted their pumps to litres because current metering devices were unable to handle gallon prices over a dollar. The alternative to installing expensive new computers to handle higher gallon prices was to convert existing meters to calculate fuel sales on the basis of cost-per-litre.

Sanford On Hold; Ormond Squeezes Orange

Locals Still Need Three Wins

By BENTON WOOD
Herald Sports Writer

For the first time since the Junior League District tournament opened Tuesday at Chase Park, rain failed to appear on the scene.

Although Mother Nature has been unable to halt the proceedings this week, Father Time played his hand on Friday night as the Sanford all-stars were forced to wait and play Port Orange in the loser's bracket finals Saturday morning at 11.

Coach Alvis Whitted's crew was scheduled to face the Port Orange-Ormond Beach loser at 8 p.m. Friday. But Junior League rules state that a team cannot be forced to start a tournament game less than six hours after they had begun a previous game.

The winners bracket game was underway at 6 p.m. and only two hours would have elapsed for Sanford and Port Orange to start at 8. Port Orange dropped a 13-9 slugfest to Ormond Beach.

The Saturday morning victor faces Ormond Beach at 6 Saturday night at Chase Park. If Ormond loses, the championship will be decided at 2 p.m. Sunday.

Ormond Beach opened up an early 7-2 bulge over Port Orange S.P.O.R.T.S., but it needed a five-run sixth to remain the only unbeaten team in the tournament.

A four-run rally in the top of the sixth by Port Orange put Ormond's back to the wall. Trailing 9-8, lead-off hitter Mike Cawood singled to left-center opening Ormond's half of the sixth.

First-baseman Scott Penny reached base as the potential winning run by virtue of an infield hit before a Ray Irwin double to left-center cleared the bases for a 10-9 lead.

Cleanup hitter Charley Schultz got aboard on a fielder's choice when Port Orange tried unsuccessfully to head Irwin at third. A throwing error by S.P.O.R.T.S. reliever Todd Lingo, resulted in two more runs and a Kenny Connell single to right ended the Ormond Beach scoring.

Port Orange jumped to an early 2-0 lead with a pair of unearned runs in the top of the first.

Lingo, who was the losing pitcher in relief, led off with a single. Two outs later a walk and an error by Cawood at second gave S.P.O.R.T.S. a quick two-run lead.

However, Ormond pounced on Port Orange starting hurler Keith Courington for three runs in the bottom of the first and four more in the second.

A three-run homer over the left-field fence by Schultz accounted for Ormond's first inning runs.

Shortstop Mike Rinaldi led off the second with a single and Ormond pitcher Robbie Dunlop followed by getting hit by a Courington pitch. One out later Penny doubled, Irwin drew a base on balls and Schultz was hit to chase Courington.

A Mike Carr ground-out scored Penny with the third run of the frame and Penny raced home on a passed ball to give Ormond Beach its 7-2 advantage.

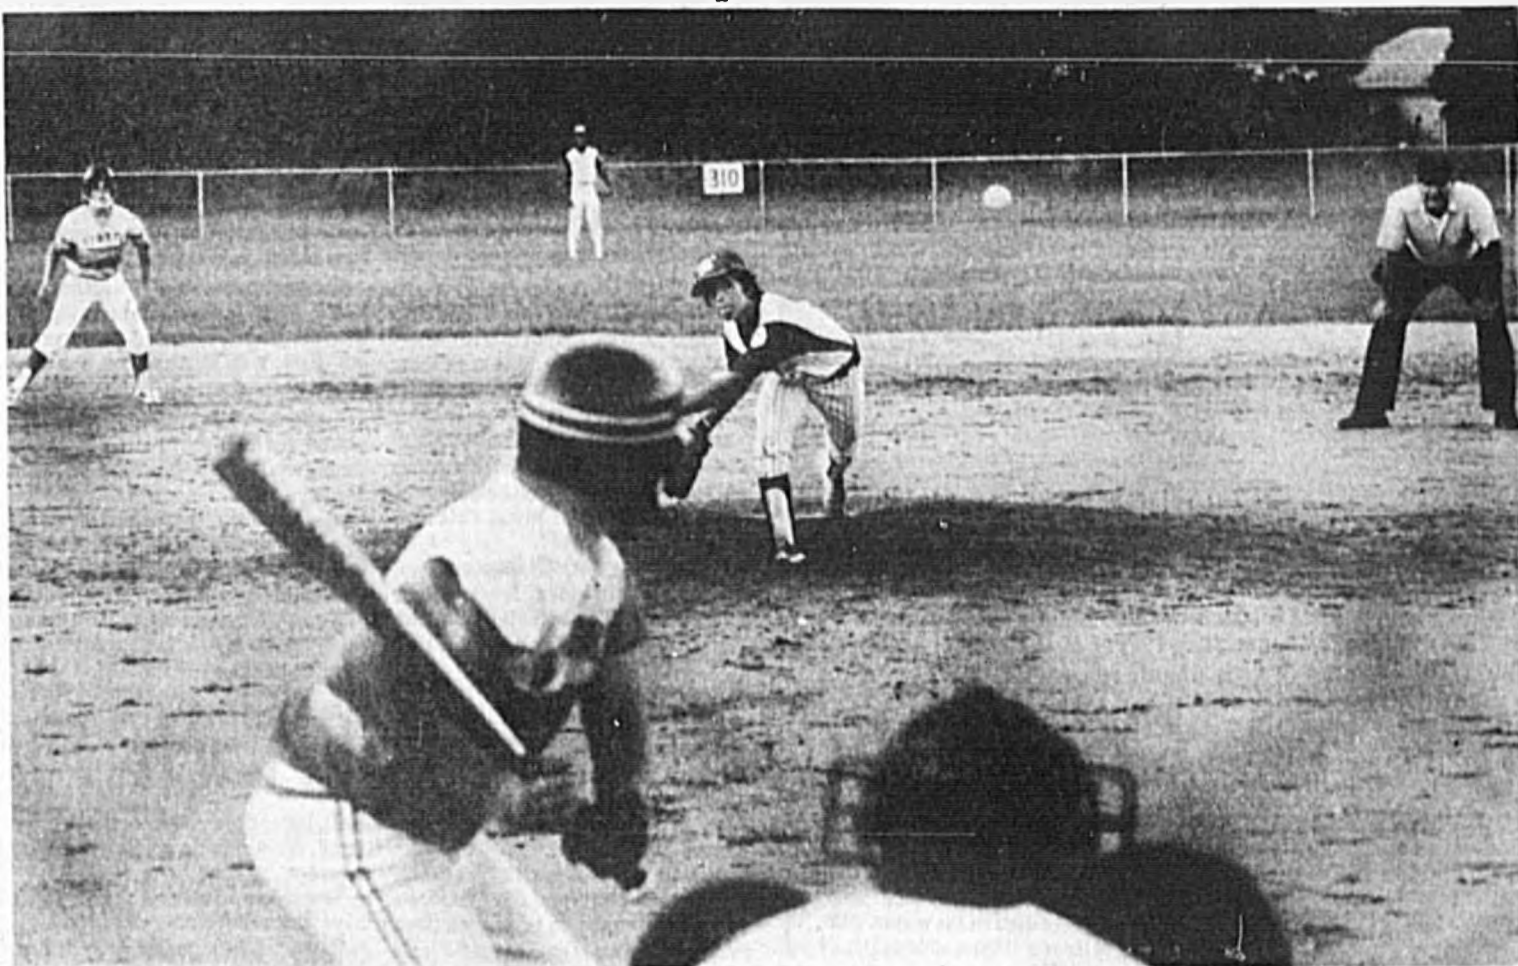

On the other side of the coin Ormond starter Dunlop didn't last much longer than Courington. Port Orange center-fielder Bobby Wiech tripled to start the third. One out later, Tom Abdo singled, stole second and third, and scored on a hit to left by Beckwith.

Consecutive errors closed Ormond's lead to 7-5 and finished Dunlop for the evening.

Ormond Beach gained a little breathing room with a run in the fourth on three straight singles by Irwin, Schultz and Mike Carr.

Port Orange reached reliever Carr for its four runs in the sixth on just two singles.

With the bases jammed and no one out, Carr got Lingo to hit a weak grounder to Penny at first. But his throw to the plate was too low for the catcher to handle and two runs scored. A line single to left by Wiech brought home the other

Ormond Beach pitcher Mike Carr sticks out his tongue as he releases a pitch to a Port Orange batter. Ormond held on to beat League District 4 Tournament action at Chase Park in Sanford. Umpire Willie Brown (far right) readies himself for the play. Ormond, 13-9 and remain undefeated in Junior Major

S.P.O.R.T.S. runs in the inning.

The 2-3-4-5 hitters in Ormond's lineup supplied 10 of their 14 team hits. Penny and Irwin had three hits apiece while Schultz and Carr each had two. Schultz drove in five runs while Irwin scored four times.

Wiech and Beckwith both had two hits for the losers.

The Sanford-Port Orange winner will be seeking revenge against Ormond Beach Saturday night. Sanford also lost to the defending District champs by a 6-4 count earlier in the week.

Whitworth, Lauer Four Strokes Ahead In U.S. Women's Open

LA GRANGE, Ill. (UPI) — Kathy Whitworth and Bonnie Lauer teed off today four strokes up on the field in the $150,000 U.S. Women's Open being played at the La Grange County Club.

Tied for third place in the race for the first-place prize of $22,000 were Marlene Floyd, Debbie Massey and Beth Daniel.

Another stroke back were hard-hitting JoAnne Carner and rookie Kyle O'Brien, while defending champion Amy Alcott is nine strokes off the pace.

The soft-spoken Whitworth, who has never won an Open title in 22 previous appearances, posted a 2-under-par 70 to tie Lauer at 139, five strokes under regulation.

The 139 total for 36 holes equaled a U.S. Women's Open mark set in 1970 by Donna Caponi and Carol Mann.

Lauer had entered the clubhouse after turning in a course record-tying 67, five strokes under par. The former Michigan State golfer carded eight birdies, including five on the front side, to go along with three bogeys.

But the 30-year-old Detroit native has only one tour victory to her credit — the 1977 Patty Berg Classic in Minneapolis.

For the 41-year-old Whitworth, however, hitting the record-tying 82 tournament win mark — a tour record currently held by Mickey Wright — would not be hard to live with.

"Being the first woman in history to pass the $1 million mark in earnings will not be hard to take, either," said Whitworth, who needs only $1,031 for that.

Lauer has won only $14,000 this year and currently ranks 63rd on the all-time money list.

But her second-round 67 "was easily the greatest 18 holes of golf I have ever put together," she said.

"Inconsistency has hurt my game more than anything else," Lauer said.

Three Press Levi For Lead

WILLIAMSBURG Va. (UPI) — No one was more surprised than Wayne Levi was to find himself one stroke in front after two rounds of the $300,000 PGA tournament at Kingsmill Golf Club, sponsored by Anheuser-Busch Inc.

Levi had an eagle putt spin out of the cup and lipped out three birdie putts Friday but still carded a 4-under-par 67 for a two-day total of 5-under 137 and a one-shot lead over Bob Murphy, Howard Twitty and Jim Booros.

Ben Crenshaw and John Mahaffey are at 139 and 33 players are within six shots of the lead with 36 holes left to play.

Levi, 28, from Little Falls, N.Y., whose best finish this year was a tie for 15th in the Hawaiian Open, is quick to admit he fully expects the worst to happen when he picks up a putter. He says his bad putting has contributed to other problems.

"I haven't made any putts and that's started me pressing to hit even better iron shots," he said. "Then I start pressing, trying to hit every shot perfectly and everything goes bad."

"Today, it's just nice to be back in respectability. It's been an awful year," added Levi, who has earned just $42,185.90 in official money.

Levi came close to one bogey Friday when he saved par with a 3-foot putt on the 18th hole, and, on the 418-yard eighth, he two-putted from 60 feet on a two-tiered green to avoid another.

"Hopefully, I can make some putts the next two days," said Levi. "Winning would cure a lot of money ills and put me in the Masters next year. I'd like to go back because I played well there last year. But I need several good putting rounds in a row to shake it."

Booros, 30, has won just $10,800 this year and needs to reach $12,000 by the end of the year to keep his tour privileges.

"I'd like to think I can get that this week after playing this well so far," said Booros. "My wife is back in Allentown watching the course and working as a dental technician. I think I might be able to talk her into coming here for the final two rounds, the way things have gone."

Kingsmill's 6,822 yards of narrow, undulating fairways and tiny greens have left the players talking to themselves. Many have been critical of the course conditions because of burned-out spots in fairways.

THREE FOR THIRD

K's Majorette (blanket No. 6) and runnerup Quantum Jump (No. 8) had it easy Friday night at Seminole Greyhound Park in Casselberry. Easy, that is, compared to the three-way battle for show. A rare dead heat developed in the fourth race when Buckeye Bruce (2), Consul General (3) and Do It Yourself (4) all reached the wire at the same time. Seminole's summer greyhound season runs through Sept. 1. See 9A for a related story on one of Super Seminole's most successful kennel owners, Jack Kahn and his trainers.

Maples Spaces Four Hits In 7-2 Win

Hard Day's Night For O-Twins

By JOE DeSANTIS
Herald Sports Writer
Better than 3,000 fans took advantage of the Day's Inn promotion night at Tinker Field Friday evening. But thanks to a top-notch mound effort by lanky Tim Maples, Charlotte's Orioles turned the encounter into a hard day's night for the Orlando Twins en route to a 7-1 Southern League victory.

After a shaky first-inning start, Maples regrouped to scatter four Twins' hits and virtually sailed to the complete game victory.

"I think I should have had a shoutout," smiled the right-hander after the victory. "The two guys I walked wound up scoring but my catcher came out and settled me down."

Orlando wasted little time in jumping on top with a go-ahead run in its half of the first inning.

Maples issued shortstop Manny Colletti a base on balls to start the game and then surrendered a single to left fielder Andre David, who managed two of Orlando's four hits on the night.

Third sacker Gary Gaetti popped out before right fielder Scott Uilger delivered an RBI single. But Charlotte shut the door quickly with a double play to close out the inning.

The Orioles knotted the score in the second frame when Tim Derryberry reached first on a walk, moved to third on Earl Neal's single and scored on a sacrifice fly by third baseman Mark Naehrin.

Maples then cruised through the next four innings in routine 1-2-3 fashion while his teammates helped mount a 6-1 lead.

Charlotte picked up single runs in the third and fourth innings before kayoting Orlando with a three-run fifth inning.

Catcher Willie Royster opened the third inning with a towering triple to left center and scored on Victor Rodriguez's slow rolling ground out to first.

The third nail in Orlando's coffin came in the fourth when Derryberry opened the inning with a four-bag shot over the left field wall to make the score 3-1 Charlotte.

Twins manager Tom Kelly stuck with starter and loser Ted Kromy into the fifth inning until his right-hander again ran in to rough waters.

Shortstop Rick Jones opened the stanza by reaching first on an error and advanced to third on Royster's single. Rodriguez chased Jones home with a sacrifice fly to right before hard-hitting center fielder Mike Young tagged Kromy for a double to score Royster.

Kelly went to Orlando's bullpen for southpaw Bob Mulligan who surrendered an RBI single to right fielder Drungo Hazewood before closing the door on Charlotte.

Charlotte struck for two insurance runs in the seventh inning on Young's second double of the night before Jose Reyes came out of the bullpen to silence Charlotte.

Orlando's only other scoring threats came in the sixth and ninth innings. But Maples and company combined to close the door on any Twin comeback hopes.

Designated hitter George Skeens opened Orlando's sixth with a single but was quickly erased by Charlotte's second double play of the night, wasting center fielder Andre David's follow up double.

Maples began to tire in the ninth, walking David and issuing a single to Gaetti before a fielder's choice, sacrifice fly and pop out sealed his third win against three losses since being promoted from the Miami Orioles of the Florida State League shortly before the Southern League all-star break.

That mid-season respite has spelled a major turn around for the Twins; first half division champs.

"It seems like everytime we get near .500 we go out and play bad, lose concentration or just relax," related Twins skipper Kelly.

"We get in the hole quick and it's tough to catch up. It's tough to score eight or nine runs a night. We were swinging better late in the game but when you're behind you can't do much on the bases. You can't hit and run and you can't steal."

Intense Competition, Upsets Mark First Festival Day

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI) — The National Sports Festival completed its first day Friday with intense competition resulting in at least one major upset, and promised even more today with the beginning of the track and field events. A highlight of the track competition today will be Harvey Glance's attempt to defend his 100-meter dash title. Glance said the NSF was an event he feels "an obligation for."

In Friday competition, Steve Lundquist, an NCAA champion and a world-class swimmer, finished only third in the 100-meter freestyle Friday, losing his heralded showdown with Bill Barrett of UCLA. Barrett, gaining a measure of revenge for a previous loss to Lundquist, swam the distance in a slow 1:05.54. "I used this race as a gauge as to where I am in the national championships," Barrett said.

Mary Wyle, a 16-year-old high school sophomore, highlighted the women's swimming competition by winning three golds for the West team. The 5-foot-7 whiz from Mercer Island (Wash.) High School, won the 200-meter freestyle and backstroke and was on the winning West 800-meter freestyle relay team. There were no American records in 11 swimming events. In figure skating, world champion Scott Hamilton put on a virtually flawless performance to maintain a commanding lead after the men's short program. The only blemish in his program was a double jump instead of a scheduled double triple jump, but it didn't count as an omission or error. "There are a couple of things I could have done differently, like that combination," said Hamilton, who had six firstplace mentions and one second for 8 ordinals. "Everything else went smoothly." The women's figure-skating compulsorys were staged earlier, with 17-year-old Rosalynn Summers, the world junior champion, gaining a slight advantage over Jacki Farrell of Janesville, Wis., after three compulsory figures. Kitty and Peter Carruthers, America's big hope for the 1984 Winter Olympics and the heirs apparent to Randy Gardner and Tai Babilonia, skated to a big lead after Friday night's short program in pairs figure skating. Beth Pope, a 15-year-old from Little Rock, Ark., won the overall competition in the team women's gymnastics event, collecting the highest score of the night — a 9.65 out of a possible 10 — for her sparkling floor exercise routine. Beth Heiden, a bronze medalist speed skater in the Winter Olympics and sister of American hero Eric, was involved in a crash with Sarah Docter during the women's 50-kilometer road bicycle race, won by Connie Carpenter of Madison, Wis., in 1 hour, 17 minutes, 7 seconds. Heiden recovered to finish sixth.

Another casualty in figure skating was 14-year-old Susan Nolt of Hershey, Pa., who suffered a basilar skull fracture after falling during a practice session at War Memorial Arena. Dr. Roy Bergman, chief physician for the U.S. Olympic Committee, said Nolt was in stable condition, alert and awake, at Crouse-Irving Hospital in Syracuse. In other Festival activity: —John Beckman of Beaverton, Ore., scored an upset victory in the men's 100-kilometer road bicycle race with a time of 2:19:31.

Orlando Chess Master Quinn Takes On 25 At Once In Mall

Orlando Chess Master David Quinn will conduct an exhibition Saturday, Aug. 8 from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m. in the lower main concourse of the Altamonte Mall. Quinn, who tied for second in the Jacksonville Open three weeks ago, will be playing 25 opponents simultaneously during the exhibition, which is free of charge. Quinn requests that opponents bring their own chess set and board to facilitate the exhibition.

Brooks Clings To 3-Shot Lead

TARPON SPRINGS, Fla. (UPI) — Mark Brooks of Fort Worth, Tex., clung to a three-stroke lead after three rounds of the Southern Amateur Golf tournament Friday despite a disastrous 3-over-par round that saw him bogey three of the last four holes. Brooks had a 74 on the slow greens at the Innisbrook Resort course to bring his three-round total to even par 213. Bill Holstead of Wichita Falls, Tex., was 2-over at 73 for a 216 total, good for second. Stewart Smith of Nashville, Tenn., had the best round of the day, a 67, boosting him into a tie for third with Bill Hadden of Hamden, Conn., at 217. Hadden had a 71.

Fan Fumes Into Celebrity Role

ELIZABETH, N.J. (UPI) — Richie Cunningham, an avid fan who is turning over the lengthy baseball strike, has become something of an overnight celebrity. The 23-year-old machine operator from Elizabeth has drawn attention in a host of recent television appearances and newspaper articles by promoting a petition designed to give baseball fans some clout in resolving the strike.

Knically Wins Bass Tourney

MORRISTOWN, Tenn. (UPI) — Jerry Knically, blanketed in the regulation fishing hours on Cherokee Lake Friday, caught a keeper bass in just seven minutes of overtime to beat Alex Fancher for first place in the $60,000 BASS Champs Invitational fishing tournament. In the Bass Anglers Sportsman Society's first sudden-death playoff in 98 tournaments since the pro fishing circuit began in 1967, Knically, 43, a wholesale florist from Morristown, boated a 14 1/4-inch largemouth that barely met the 14-inch minimum length requirement.

Buccaneer Lewis Retires

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Third-year defensive lineman Reggie Lewis has notified the Tampa Bay Buccaneers through his agent that he is retiring. Lewis, a third-round draft pick in 1979 out of North Texas State, was the only player who failed to report to the Buc's pre-season training camp as scheduled Friday. Lewis walked out of camp last year saying he was retiring, but returned after six days. He is the third defensive lineman lost to the team in two days.

Outdoors Hunting Applications For Permits Will Be Available On Monday

TALLAHASSEE — Monday, July 27 marks the day the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission will begin accepting applications for permits for three of its public hunting areas. Eddie White of the Commission's Division of Wildlife said applications for permits for the Upper and Lower Hillsborough wildlife management areas and the Toxohatchee State Environmental Preserve will be available July 27 at the Tallahassee office, the Orlando office and all regional offices of the Commission. "We are including permit applications for these three areas on one form," said White, who is in charge of the Commission's quota permit system. "Applications for permits for these areas must be received in the Tallahassee office no later than 5 p.m. August 28."

A random drawing will be conducted in early September to determine successful applicants for the three areas, he added. Resident hunters age 65 or over and those resident hunters certified totally and permanently disabled will need to apply for a quota permit to hunt Toxohatchee. However, no permit is required of them to hunt either the Upper or Lower Hillsborough wildlife management areas. Maps and regulations for the areas may be obtained from the same locations as the permit applications. For more information on the Toxohatchee Preserve, interested persons can contact the Ocala office of the Commission at 1-800-342-3620. Information on the two Hillsborough areas can be obtained by contacting the Lakeland office of the Commission at 1-800-282-8002.

Commission To Limit Steel Shot For Ducks

TALLAHASSEE—Duck hunters in Florida can probably expect a limited requirement for the use of steel shot when the 1981-82 waterfowl season begins, according to the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission. The five-member Commission, meeting July 10, indicated its intent to require steel shot in 12 gauge shotguns during the waterfowl season in certain areas of the state. "The reason the Commission cannot pass a formal ruling on the requirement is because Florida is awaiting the passage of federal guidelines covering seasons and steel shot zones," according to Dr. Allan Egbert, assistant director of the Division of Wildlife of the Commission. Egbert said the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is in the process of hearings on such matters which affect the Atlantic Flyway, of which Florida is the southern-most state. Egbert said the Commission is expected to establish final rules on waterfowl hunting after federal guidelines are finalized. The next Commission meeting is scheduled on September 4 in Palatka. The five-member Commission voted at their July 10 meeting their intent to require steel shot in 12 gauge shotguns in that portion of Broward County lying east of Interstate 95; Osceola, Broward and Dade counties; and Leon County (exclusive of Lake Talquin and Ochlockonee River).

Games Players Play

Having withstood the temptation as long as possible hoping for a settlement of the major league baseball strike, I now find myself compelled to comment on this atrocity.

I haven't said anything thus far, because, frankly the whole situation bores me. And, I'm sure it bores you too. I get tired of creating up the same old headlines that use the words, Strike, Negotiation, Miller, Owners Grebby, No Progress, Deadlock, Nothing and other insipid, say-nothing words.

Let's look at both sides, not so much the arguments, since they have been hashed over too many times. No arguments here, let's look at the components.

THE PLAYERS. Most baseball players on the whole are not very intelligent. They have spent most of their lives looking out classroom windows and playing games. Not games like Scrabble or Concentration which would help their feeble minds, but strenuous games like hangman and license plate alphabet since they travel so much.

As you can see these games might do great things for learning the alphabet, but if you don't know it by the time you are 20-to-30-years-old there's a good chance you are in trouble already.

The smartest players like recently retired Mike Marshall or Montreal's Bill "Spaceman" Lee are not asked to be negotiators because they are too radical. The owners are afraid of anybody that is a little off the wall or who is smarter than they are.

So, as you can see when Montreal's Steve Rogers or Philadelphia's Bob Boone settles into the table there is not much hope. The best thing the players ever did was stumble onto Marvin Miller.

Many an owner has tossed and turned seeing images of a white-haired and white-robed "water walker" dancing through their heads and pocket books. The players follow Marvin everywhere.

The owners, knowing this shoved Marvin out of the negotiating picture for a couple of days, inferring that it would hasten the settlement. That's what I get a kick out of. Some of these owners think it's still 1940 when the players wore the "slave" T-shirts and the owners wore the "master" T-shirts.

To take the players' brain trust out of the negotiations was ludicrous. The players are not smart enough to barter. Why do you think they have agents?

The problem with Miller is that he is too smart. The owners are not offering anything, just like always. Marvin tells them they are idiots in language they don't understand.

It used to be the players that were in over their heads when it came to dealing with owners, but now the owners are mismatched with the magnificent Miller mind.

THE OWNERS. There is a facet of the public that belongs to the ridiculous theory that says, "This is all George Steinbrenner's fault." Well, I'll tell you what. If George Steinbrenner never win and dined his first millionaire ball player, we'd still have this mess.

People are jealous of Steinbrenner because he has been successful at it, while others—Gene Autry, Brad Corbett (formerly Texas) and Ray Kroc—have failed miserably.

But Steinbrenner continues to take the heat, even though he is one of the few owners that genuinely wants to end the strike. Anyone that thought the owners would settle before collecting on their strike insurance or at least the greater part of it is crazy.

Once again, the components. Calvin Griffith gets a lot of respect because baseball is his only income. The last of the pioneers he is hailed as. That's all very nice, but that doesn't cut it.

It would be nice if real people made up baseball like the old days. But they don't anymore and a person can't be "just a baseball man" to survive. Plastic, Ted Turner types make up baseball now.

STEVE ROGERS
... no mental giant

I hear you. Well, Calvin's survived you say. Has he? Who's playing center field for the Twins? Mickey Hatcher, that's who. He's no Ken Landreux with the glove or bat. The only reason he's in center is to "try" and justify the ridiculous trade.

Remember Rod Carew, Dan Ford, Bert Blyleven and Larry Hise. Those guys are all surviving too in other uniforms and making more money. The Twins have little to show for their absence.

The only hope for this baseball strike is if the negotiators get tired of looking at each other and settle out of boredom. Which reminds me, I was reading an article on the strike the other day and, yawn, or where was I, ... XXXXXXXXXXXXXXX.

Can Baseball Be Saved?

NEW YORK (UPI) — Can the major league baseball season be saved?

The owners believe it can; the players aren't so sure.

With the strike entering its 44th day, negotiations are still stalemated and no new talks have been scheduled, although a spokesman for federal mediator Kenneth Moffett said the two sides might be called back to the bargaining table next Wednesday.

The 30-member Executive Board of the Players Association will meet in Chicago Monday to get an update from Executive Director Marvin Miller on the status of negotiations, and Moffett has said he does not intend to summon the parties back to the bargaining table until after that meeting.

The Players Association also is planning a series of regional meetings at which they will brief the players on the status of negotiations and that could put the bargaining talks back even further.

By the time the two sides get around to talking again, more than a quarter of the season will have been lost to the strike.

"I don't think there's going to be any baseball for a long while... perhaps into next season," said Miller after returning from Washington, site of the latest round of unsuccessful talks. "There's got to be a drastic change somewhere to change that."

Ken Forsch, a pitcher with the California Angels, said August would be the point of no return.

"If this thing goes into August, I see no chance for the season to resume," said Forsch. "And it could stretch into spring training or part of next season." Some of the owners, however, believe the season can be salvaged.

"If we can start playing again by Aug. 14 or 15, teams could play 100 games," said Kansas City Royals' President Joe Burke, a member of the nine-man Player Relations Committee which is responsible for negotiating the contract with the Players Association. "You could have a true champion. But if it gets into late August, when teams would play only 75 games, less than half the schedule, there wouldn't seem to be much chance of resuming."

"It (the strike) is very damaging to everyone: players, owners and baseball itself. I think the fans are tired reading about labor negotiations and grids. When we get back to playing baseball, the better off we'll be."

Eddie Einhorn, president of the Chicago White Sox, also believes the season can be saved.

"Both sides are very close, there is still a good chance for an agreement," said Einhorn, who was in LaGrange, Ill., attending the U.S. Women's Open golf tournament. "There should be a settlement. But then, there should have been a settlement before now."

"I've said we're nearing the point of no return but I don't think we've passed it. I still think we could settle by next week and get the season going."

Ray Grebey, chief negotiator for the owners, said Friday it is unfortunate negotiations have stalled "at this stage."

Is There No End In Sight To The K's Dog?

Modesty has to be ranked as one of Jack Kahn's virtues.

One of the giants of the greyhound racing industry and owner of some of the most competitive young pups racing around the country, Kahn may shock a few of his fans when he flatly states, "I don't know any more about greyhound racing now than I did 20 years ago when I started."

For a man who has produced some of the biggest names on lists of all sorts, that's quite a statement. Among Kahn's top dogs over the years have been K's Flak, K's Clown, K's Viking, K's Magellan, K's Galsby, K's Donna, K's Queen Bee, K's Moonglow, and Suma Cum Lauda.

The most notable was K's Flak—setting records at five different tracks in one year and also winning Biscayne's prestigious Irish-American.

Kahn was sitting in the clubhouse at Seminole Greyhound Park the other evening and reminiscing about his early days in the sport.

JACK KAHN
... modest man

"It was about 1960, and the late Joe Rosenberger and I bought some dogs," Kahn began. "They ran at Sarasota in the June Gillis Kennel."

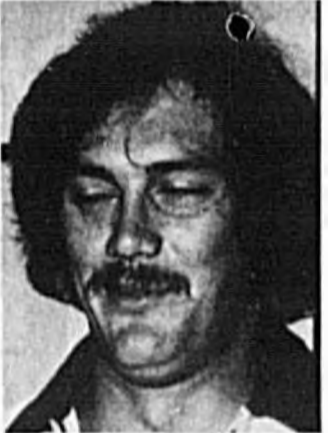

What I recall most about those early days was getting a purse which was zero one week. That meant none of our dogs finished fourth or better all week. "The turning point for me was when I got together with Ed Moses (noted breeder from Ocala) and we put together a blood line that produced everything you see today with a K prefix."

In fact, Kahn says he owes all the credit for his dogs' success to Moses for breeding, the importing of studs and offering the right advice.

... super trainer

The key names for the Kahn bloodline included Prince Tassin, Air Patrol, Sun Bow and Bill Moss. And more recently, Montague Memory. "I'm a great believer in the blood line," echoes Kahn.

Earlier in the season, it was greyhounds like K's Spirit and K's Memory which made fans sit up and take notice. In the last few weeks it has been K's Cardinal, K's Magic, K's Mole, K's Monaco and a dozen other promising young pups with the K's prefix.

"Every time I turn a page in the program galley proofs, I see another promising young K dog," says Seminole Hacing Secretary Mac O'Dowd. "It must be nice to have so many."

Kahn concedes it is nice, but he passes along much of the credit to his trainers. He singles out Pam Szylow for her judgement and concern with the Kahn Kennel in all respects. "Most litters will produce a few Grade A pups," Kahn adds. "With Pam's help, we have been successful in producing many litters in which all the dogs turned out to be Grade A. Now that has to be more than luck."

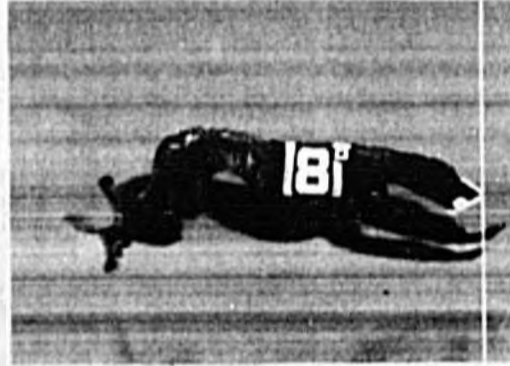

Kahn's trainer at Super Seminole is Jesse Wallace.

Raiders 'Court' Super Victory

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The World Champion Oakland Raiders may have scored the biggest victory in their history.

The Raiders, Super Bowl winners last January, were awarded a stunning decision Friday in their antitrust suit against the NFL with a judge's ruling the jurors must consider the league as a group of 28 separate competitors, not a single organization.

The ruling by U.S. District Judge Harry Pregerson was seen as a turning point in the marathon trial.

The Raiders and owner Al Davis want to move to the Los Angeles Coliseum, vacated two years ago by the Los Angeles Rams. The NFL blocked the move, citing a league rule which prohibits franchise shifts without approval from three fourths of the team owners.

Davis then sued the NFL, claiming the rule was a violation of federal antitrust laws. The Raiders' case was based almost entirely on convincing the judge and the jury the NFL is composed of 28 separate teams and is not a single organization with 28 partners.

"I feel better than I have in months," Raiders' attorney Joseph Alioto said after the ruling. "This is a shocking and stunning victory for us."

"For a year we've been telling the judge this partnership business the NFL is claiming is just a hoax. Finally, he believed us."

"This ruling clears the way for the jurors to examine the sole issue in this case — antitrust. There's no question it's the biggest turn in the trial and it went in our favor." Alioto said the ruling in the landmark trial would have a great effect on all professional sports.

"This will have great repercussions on all major sports," Alioto said.

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

Universal To Build Studio, Theme Park In South Orlando

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — In the not too distant future movie stars may be buying homes and shopping in stores in central Florida.

MCA Inc., the parent company of Universal Studios, announced Friday it will build a $170 million movie theme park and motion picture-television studio on a site in south Orlando.

The new complex, Universal City Florida, will be built on part of a 423-acre tract the company owns 10 miles north of Walt Disney World at the intersection of Interstate 4 and the Florida Turnpike and is slated to open in late 1984.

The project will employ 1,500 people. Jay Stein, an MCA vice-president, said the studio complex will include two sound stages for commercial movie production and could expand if industry demand warrants. He predicted it won't be long until the stars of Hollywood are coming east to appear in movies and television shows produced at the new studio.

"I personally think that when you put a bonafide studio with one of the major companies here, it's going to make filming in Florida more attractive for all the industry," he said.

The theme park will feature an entertainment center with demonstrations of underwater filming, costume design, stunts and other movie making techniques.

Space Shuttle Tests Postponed

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — The space shuttle Columbia will be almost ready for its first working voyage to orbit after 20 hours of tests next week, space agency officials say.

"We expect the Columbia will be about 70 percent ready for flight if the test goes well," shuttle test director Charles Henshel said Friday.

The flight-readiness tests, scheduled to begin Saturday, were postponed until Monday when technicians found wiring problems in the Columbia's new "blonic arm" designed to load and unload the shuttle's cargo hold in outer space.

Engineers at the Kennedy Space Center planned to spend the weekend attempting to correct the wiring problem.

The Columbia is scheduled to blast off in September on its second orbital voyage.

Economists See Better 1981

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Despite the relatively poor showing of the state's economy in the first quarter of this year, a University of Florida economist predicted Friday that 1981 would be a better year for Florida than 1980.

"Although the first quarter of 1981 was not as good as 1980 ended, I think, on the whole, that 1981 will be better than 1980 was for Florida," said Dr. John Kraft, director of UF's bureau of business and economic research.

There is little of an encouraging nature in the first quarter statistics, however.

Employment in Florida increased by only 4.2 percent. It was growing at a rate of 7.4 percent at the end of 1980. Unemployment, on the other hand, hit 6 percent for the first three months of 1981.

"Housing starts have been severely hurt in Florida over the first half of this year," he said. "They finished quite strongly in the fourth quarter of 1980 at roughly 196,000 units annually. Right now they're at about 156,000."

Tourism, which has been off "tremendously," also is affecting Florida's economic well-being, the UF economist said.

Single-Member Districts Urged

MIAMI (UPI) — Gov. Bob Graham today urged the Legislature to adopt single-member legislative districts in next year's reapportionment.

"The facts are behind us and, more importantly, so are the people," Graham declared in a speech prepared for a breakfast meeting of the Dade County Committee for Fair Representation.

The event kicked off a fund-raising drive for the single-member district campaign.

"For years the clear, obvious and fundamental need for equal representation for all our people through single-member districts has been thwarted," the governor said. "As we approach the 1982 reapportionment process, Florida's growing diversity makes adherence to the democratic principle of redistricting more important."

Efforts to have the Legislature approve single-member districts have repeatedly failed and many districts continue to have more than one senator or representative elected from them.

Critics argue that the multi-member districts dilute the vote of political, ethnic and racial minorities.

Condo Architect Accused

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Cocoa Beach architect William Juhn has 20 days to decide whether to contest state charges he was "negligent" in his work on the Harbour Cay condominium in Cocoa Beach, which collapsed last March killing 11 people and injuring 23 others.

Not Entrapment, Judge Says

Abscam Convictions Upheld

NEW YORK (UPI) — Federal officials said they were pleased by a federal judge's decision supporting the undercover techniques used in the Abscam political corruption investigation and said they planned to use Abscam-type techniques in future probes.

U.S. Rep. Richard Kelly, who represented Florida's 5th congressional district, which includes Seminole County, for three consecutive terms from 1974 to 1980, was one of seven congressmen, a senator, and others charged with wrongdoing in the Abscam investigations.

His involvement is said to have been instrumental in his defeat for re-election last year. Kelly, the only Republican official involved in Abscam, lost his bid for the GOP nomination for the office in September, 1980. Bill McCollum was the ultimate victor.

Although Kelly was subsequently convicted, he has not as yet been sentenced.

In his ruling Friday, Judge George Pratt of U.S. District Court in Brooklyn also upheld the convictions of seven Abscam defendants, including four former congressmen.

"We're delighted with the opinion," smiling chief Abscam prosecutor Thomas Puccio said of the 136-page decision.

"Far more threatening to our national survival than any foreign enemy is corruption and rot at the center of our government," he said.

"This cynicism and hypocrisy displayed by corrupt officials pretending to serve the public good, but in fact furthering their own private gain, probably posed a greater danger to this country than all of the drug traffickers combined," he added.

Pratt ordered the seven, who face maximum jail terms of five to 15 years as well as heavy fines, to appear for sentencing Aug. 13.

His lengthy ruling is the first decision in the Abscam appeals process, which is expected to reach the U.S. Supreme Court.

The defendants, who were convicted in three separate trials, included former Reps. Michael Myers, D-Pa., John Murphy, D-N.Y., Frank Thompson, D-N.J., and Raymond Lederer, D-Pa.

Also convicted were New Jersey State Sen. Angelo Errichetti, a Democrat and former mayor of Camden; Philadelphia

City Councilman Louis Johanson, and Howard Criden, his former law partner.

In the two-year investigation, the FBI used operatives who posed as representatives of a phony Arab sheik, seeking to buy political favors in the United States.

The FBI also made extensive use of surreptitious audio and video tapes and several of the defendants were videotaped taking bribes of up to $50,000.

The seven defendants claimed their indictments should be thrown out because the extensive undercover methods used in the probe amounted to prosecutorial misconduct and entrapment.

Puccio said he expected the Abscam undercover methods would be used in future cases as a result of Pratt's decision.

"The government's need to unmask such conduct more than justified the investigative techniques employed in these cases," the judge said. "Without question, these convictions were reliable and no constitutional right of any defendant has been infringed."

When A Little Dutch Girl Met A Sanford Girl, It Was...

Friendship At First Sight

By DORIS DIETRICH and SYBIL MITCHELL GANDY

While millions of jubilantly reveling Americans "painted the town red" all over the country on July 4, 18-year-old Sandra L. Orwig of Sanford watched street-corner artists paint dazzling scenes of daily life in Paris.

And as if that wasn't enough, the Seminole Community College nursing student drove through the countryside of Groningen, Holland, browsed through the shops in Amsterdam, and turned down an offer to dance with the National Ballet Company of Holland.

And just think—it all started with a harmless little visit from an 18-year-old Dutch girl who couldn't wait to see Florida, Sandra explained.

Renee' vanDijk, who came to Sanford in early February, met Sandra almost as soon as she arrived. They were introduced by Jackie Caolo, Renee's local hostess and Sandra's former swim teacher.

Renee's visit to Sanford came in a round-about way. Mrs. Caolo's daughter, Susan, met a handsome Dutchman, Marco Boot, in New Orleans. Romance followed. Marco, who was learning American packaging in New Orleans, had to return to Holland due to the expiration of his visa.

But Marco's father suggested Susan come to Holland for a visit. Susan did and worked there until wedding bells rang for the couple in May.

Now Renee' enters the picture. She was the girlfriend of Marco's best friend. Renee' wanted to come to Florida and Susan suggested she call her Mom, Jackie.

Good old Mom. Sure, Renee' would be welcome in the Caolo home.

So when Renee' arrived from Holland at the Caolo home, Mrs. Caolo introduced her to Sandra Orwig, a former swimming student.

And the two hit it off like they had always known each other! Both are serious students of ballet, both enjoy the creative arts, and well—they both do just about everything else 18-year-old girls do.

Despite the barriers of language and culture, a universal message of friendship was conveyed, says Sandra.

"Actually, communicating with Renee' wasn't hard at all," Sandra remembers. "You see, when the children go to school in Holland, they learn French, Dutch, German and English."

During Renee's three-month stay, Sandra took her to all the wonders in Central Florida that magically attract millions each year.

From Sea World to Busch Gardens to Disney World and just about every place in between, the girls vacationed and shopped and—you guessed it—took ballet lessons together at the Sanford School of Dance Arts.

And before they knew it, their three-month adventure was drawing to a close.

But before the visit ended, Renee's parents (her father is a dentist in Holland) and her mother, also came to Central Florida for a visit. They, too fell in love with the Sanford area.

"Renee' just said, 'Why don't you come back home with me,'" Sandra recalls. "I told her I couldn't because I was still in school. So we decided to plan a trip as soon as I could leave."

With the help of local travel agents, the girls finalized plans for the journey before Renee' took off for home on May 4.

Sandra took off in mid-June on a nine and one-half-hour flight, to Brussels, Belgium where time moved six hours ahead and a whole new world of "French" greeted her as she stepped off the plane.

"Renee' and her mother were waiting for me when I arrived, but it took me about half an hour to find out where I was supposed to meet them because I don't read or speak French," Sandra said, laughingly.

Renee's home in Groningen, Holland from Brussels was a five and one-half-hour drive through scenically lush green countryside with "lots and lots of cows," Sandra says.

But from June 18 to June 29, it rained every single day in Renee's hometown. And as if that isn't enough to make a native Floridian homesick, the temperature range was 35 to 40 degrees.

Boy, was Sandra glad when she and Renee' drove to Amsterdam on a four-day visit. Unlike Groningen, Holland, Amsterdam is a tourist trap. And a very welcome flavor of the U. S. abounds.

Chinese restaurants and pizza parlors were everywhere—except, said Sandra, they only use "real Italian people" to make their pizzas.

"We went to the shops and museums while we stayed in Amsterdam. Renee's uncle was on vacation so we stayed at his house," Sandra said.

Except for the rolling estates throughout the Dutch countryside, Sandra said, the houses are long and narrow—a bit quaint—not unlike our townhouses. Many are built three stories high.

And although she left Amsterdam on the eve of Independence Day, no festive preparation or bursting fireworks sought to ignite a celebrant spirit. After all, the Dutch don't celebrate our "4th."

And then, like in a dream, Sandra was strolling down the streets of Paris, rich in the arts and history. Of course, she saw the Eiffel Tower and Notre Dame.

But guess what American hallmark has invaded French culture? McDonald's hamburgers!

Paris was, of course, the most impressive place of all, Sandra says. It seems European custom would have it that hotel guests get breakfast brought to them each morning as part of the room charge.

And since the American dollar is relatively high when compared to other currency, everything was cheap, Sandra said. A room in a nice hotel costs $15!

Renee' and Sandra walked miles and miles of downtown Paris streets where musicians and artists will play you a tune or paint you a picture for a few coins in their cup.

And as if that wasn't a dream-come-true, managers of the National Ballet Company of Holland saw Sandra in a dance class with Renee'—just working out to keep in shape while she was away from home.

"I ended up dancing for them an hour and a half," Sandra, a former company dancer with Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole, recalls with pleasure.

"Manager of the dance company asked me to join the group, but I told him I had to return to school. He said he would send additional information to me in August about the touring ballet company."

So besides a best friend on the other side of the world and a wealth of fond memories, Sandra brought back a chance to one day become a professional ballerina.

But right now, she says, nursing at SCC is her number one priority. Maybe she'll be a dancing nurse. Only time will tell, I guess.

Oh... our story doesn't end here, it just pauses...

This oversize wooden clog was not made for dancing. It is an outside planter from Holland which Sandra Orwig brought from Holland for her grandmother.

Artist Bernard Passman, of Hollywood, Fla., gives a final polishing to the hand-crafted black coral and silver tableware which will be presented to the royal couple.

Tableware Fit For Royalty

Florida Sculptor Commissioned To Design Wedding Gift

MIAMI — A Florida sculptor has completed work on a commission by a British Crown Colony to design a gift of black coral and sterling silver tableware as a wedding gift for Prince Charles and Lady Diana. The gift will be presented in London prior to the July 29 royal wedding.

The sculptured forks, knives and spoons — service for eight — was designed by Bernard Passman of Hollywood, Fla., on a commission from the Governor of the Cayman Islands, Gov. Thomas Russell.

The gift — valued at $40,000 — is actually worth many times that amount, according to Passman, who hand-sculpted each of the 97-pieces in the set out of black coral. Each fork, knife and spoon plus serving piece is individual, depending upon the shape of the valuable black coral. Within each black coral sculptured handle is a sterling silver crest of the Cayman Islands.

Passman, who already has achieved an international reputation for his art forms incorporating sculptured black coral with diamonds and gold, was honored with a certificate from Secretary of State George Firestone, who called the selection of a Florida artist to design the royal gift a "cultural achievement".

The silverware was flown last week to the Cayman Islands where it is on display at the Government House in the capital, Georgetown. The gift will be delivered to London in a specially-designed mahogany case this week.

"Some people may dwell on the fact that each place setting is valued at upwards of $5,000," Passman said. "But actually the value is much greater, as this is one of a kind. It is truly unique — befitting royalty in every regard."

This is not the first time that Passman has been commissioned for a major sculpture. He is believed to be the only sculptor using exclusively the black coral found off several Caribbean islands, most notably, the Caymans. The black coral is known in the islands as "King's Coral." Passman has for the past six years sculpted jewelry and other art forms using the black coral with diamonds and gold.

Passman and his wife, Betty, have two galleries in the Cayman Islands and a retail gallery called Sculptures and Jewels in Hallandale, Florida. All of the galleries feature jewelry and art pieces sculpted from the black coral found in the Cayman Islands.

Passman has been commissioned for a number of notable art works in recent years, including a black coral statue of Charles Chaplin, a black coral and gold necklace for Miss Teenage America, the 21-foot presidential tree which was commissioned by the City of Miami Beach for showing at the 1968 and 1972 Democratic and Republican conventions, and has sculpted a number of the Miami Dolphins including Larry Conka and Coach Don Schula.

Old Nudie Is Not That Gorgeous

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I recently moved to the suburbs. Our home is set back away from the road, but our neighbors can see our property from both sides and across the road.

My husband has always slept in the nude, but now he's started to get the morning paper in the same state! He says nobody will see him, but I'm afraid somebody might and he'll be arrested for indecent exposure. It's as though he is playing some sort of game of chance and gets a kick out of the risk he's taking, although he insists that the thought has never entered his mind. I have trouble looking our neighbors in the face, wondering if they have seen my husband picking up our morning paper.

I might add that he is not all that gorgeous. He's 53 years old and 40 pounds overweight. I think you owe me a solution, Abby, because he says he can't wait to see what Abby has to say.

NUDIE'S WIFE

a large amount of money on our own, he came up short and asked his well-to-do mother if we could use her money as collateral on a low-interest loan. She refused, and my husband and his mother haven't spoken since.

In the meantime, I became pregnant soon after we moved into our home. I had the baby recently and she died shortly after birth. My husband is extremely upset because his mother never acknowledged our baby's death.

I think my husband should call his mother and get his feelings off his chest. By the way, my husband's sister sided with his mother, and we have not heard from her either.

USE NO NAMES

DEAR WIFE: Next time Old Nudie goes out to fetch the morning paper, lock the door behind him. The result could be funnier than an old Laurel and Hardy flick. It could also cure him.

DEAR ABBY: My husband had a disagreement with his mother a year ago when we were building our first home. Even though we had saved up

DEAR ABBY: I am a 75-year-old widow. I live with a bachelor who is also in his 70s. This is not a romantic arrangement. It's an economic one. We both live on Social Security and this arrangement is good for both of us.

Now for the problem: We would like to take a conducted bus tour together. Since we must consider the economics of such a trip, and double occupancy in hotels is so much cheaper than two singles, is there any way we can do this? We do not want to break any laws or be embarrassed in any way.

How would we register at the hotel? As most hotels have two beds in each room, I can't see where this would be any problem. What should we ask for? How much should we tell? Or do we have to explain our relationship?

PERPLEXED

DEAR PERPLEXED: Register under your own names and request accommodations for two—with separate beds. You need not explain the relationship at most hotels today. You could easily be brother and sister.

DEAR ABBY: In response to ASHAMED IN SAN ANTONIO: I have a wonderful mother, alive and well, thank God. She is 72.

Mama gave me and my three brothers so much love over the years that I have plenty to go around!

Abby, please send me the name and address of the poor lady who was so ashamed of being forgotten on Mother's Day that she sent herself flowers, and I promise you she will never have to send herself flowers on her day again.

Bowes Appointed Manager Orlando Opera Company

One of Sanford's most outstanding sons in drama and theatre is on his way back to the area from the Michigan Opera Company in Detroit.

Roll out the red carpet for Dwight Bowes. He has been appointed general manager of the Orlando Opera Company according to president Jean Newsom who said, "We searched long and hard for the individual we felt could expand the Orlando Opera Company and continue the success we have experienced the past year. And Mr. Bowes, with his background and experience in all facets of opera production, suited our needs perfectly."

Dwight will begin his duties in Orlando Aug. 1. He has an extensive background, both in production and acting, since he got a taste of the theatre in Nellie Coleman's Latin class at Seminole High School where he was graduated in 1969.

Dwight said several years ago that Nellie was his "main inspiration" for pursuing a theatrical career.

And Nellie Coleman holds Dwight in her highest esteem. "I think this is one of the most fortunate things to happen to the community. He is a very talented young man. He has so much to give. He is a very very special person to me — exceptional in every field. He is very special — a special individual."

Betsy Bowes, Dwight's sister of Sanford, seems too thrilled for words that her big brother is returning to the area. "I think it's great he's coming home," she said.

She added that in a recent telephone call from Detroit Dwight said "he's real happy about it."

And Dwight's grandmother, Mrs. Sara Thurmond, Sanford, shares the excitement of the homecoming. "Now I will have somebody to cook for," she said. "He likes country cooking — cornbread and turnip greens."

Dwight's first production will be a mini performance of "Madame Butterfly" on Aug. 22 at the Orient Express, Orlando.

"Welcome home, Dwight" will surely reflect the sentiments of the community.

Mrs. Tom (Elsie) Mero and Mrs. William (Doris) Brunley were hostesses at the traditional bridesmaids luncheon Friday in the Mero home at the Oaks honoring Marjorie Mae Mercer and her bridal attendants.

A pink color scheme was carried out. The table was set on an exquisite cutwork cloth which was centered with an arrangement of eucalyptus and pink rosebuds in a silver filigree basket.

The hostess gift to the bride-elect was her Bride's Book. Marjorie also presented her attendants with gifts.

The bride-to-be is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John (Juanny) Mercer. The bridegroom, Ensign Robert Michael Patchett, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert (Marge) Patchett, Longwood.

Both mothers attended the luncheon. Others included Sara Mercer, sister of the bride, maid of honor; Jeannie Patchett and Anne Patchett, sisters of the bridegroom, Longwood; bridesmaid and junior bridesmaid; Lisa Barker, bridesmaid; and Mrs. Mike (Barbara) Mercer, sister-in-law of the bride, Houston, Texas.

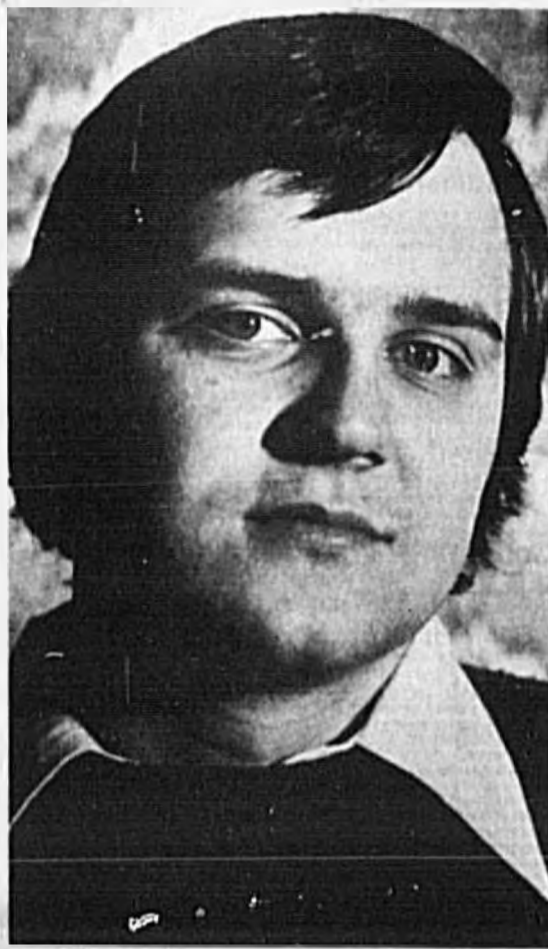

Gwenne and Vince Butler are back at their Lake Mary home after an exciting vacation.

The couple traveled to Phoenix, Ariz. to accompany her cousin, Lucille Florimont, back to Sanford. Lucille, who sold her home in Phoenix, is getting comfortably settled in her new home at Mayfair Villas.

While out west, the three ventured on to Hawaii — a birthday gift to Gwenne from Lucille.

"We had Diamond Head at our fingertips," Gwenne said in describing the location of their hotel. They saw all the attractions and Gwenne added, "We had a delightful time and ate in all the elegant places."

En route back to Lake Mary, the trio visited the French Quarter in New Orleans. Welcome to Sanford, Lucille.

Army Victory Dinner

Fellowship, Fun, Fanfare Featured

The Victory Dinner of the Salvation Army's capital funds campaign will be held at the Civic Center, Tuesday, at 7:30 p.m.

Featured entertainment will be performed by Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole following the bountiful buffet dinner.

Attention of the community is being directed to the fact that the Salvation Army corps has been ready always to assist when help is needed by individuals or by organizations.

Now, it is hoped by members of the Advisory Committee that as the corps asks for help in this financial situation, the citizens and business firms of Seminole county will reciprocate, according to George Touby.

Donations of $25 are recognized by a ticket to the Victory Dinner and its entertainment, and members of the Advisory Committee have been given a quota of tickets. The first of this group to report the sale of their allotment were Life Members

Charlotte and Ralph Austin Smith.

It is hoped, said Capt. Carl Phillips, that the gymnasium can be completed with a portion of the funds subscribed at this time. This is a "community center", he added, "that is used by various groups, the most prominent of which probably is the gymnastic team."

"Long on Fellowship, short on speeches" was the keynote of the victory celebration, according to Clyde Long, chairman of the Advisory Committee.

He indicated that a "slave market" might give those attending the dinner an opportunity to bid for the "slave work" of members of the Advisory Committee who would deliver specified "labor" for the successful bidder.

Tickets are available from committee members, the Salvation Army Citadel on 24th Street, or at the Chamber of Commerce office.

'Struttin' Street Stuff' On Tour

For the third year, "Struttin' Street Stuff," the CETA-sponsored musical-theater Youth Arts Training class of the Council of Arts and Sciences, will present a summer show.

From Aug. 3 through Aug. 15, the troupe will take its show "On tour: An American Musical Theater Experience" to 10 different locations throughout the community.

The show, is a musical montage based on the musical-theater classics "George M," "Oklahoma," "Company," and "The Wiz." The result is, in effect, a short tour through the history of American musical theater.

The cast of 29 students includes many of the performers seen in last summer's show, "Steppin' Out," the show of the previous summer. "Rainbow of Rags."

"On Tour" will open Aug. 3 at Valencia Community College East Campus, 701

North Econ Trail, in the Rotunda at 11 a.m.

Other dates and location are Aug. 4 at Valencia Community College West Campus; Aug. 5 at Kinnet Orlando; Aug. 7 at Columbia Elementary School in Bithlo, East Orange County; Aug. 10 at the Apopka City Gym, adjacent to Apopka City Hall; Aug. 11 at the Mead Gardens Pavilion in Winter Park; and Aug. 15 at Carr Performing Arts Center.

Bonanza... Mrs. Jones dropped the phone and fainted. She had just won first prize for naming a new detergent. Dame Fortune had smiled her way... and smiled sweetly.

Yes, money is nice to have. It can make realities out of dreams and kings out of paupers. To some, it's a new car, a fur coat or perhaps the freedom to travel. Others see it as an education, security or the birth of a new business.

But what about the lack of money? Earning and holding on to enough of it is often a problem. Money problems can dissolve marriages, wreck promising careers and keep millions unhappy.

As money comes and goes in our lives, a vital truth remains constant. There is something greater than all the riches of this world, the love of an understanding God.

Renew your life with true and changeless riches. Worship this week.

New Concepts Of Ministry Debated

By DAVID F. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer

At its recent General Synod, the United Church of Christ began debate on a proposal that would have radically altered the understanding of the ministry in the 1.8-million-member church by allowing members of the laity to preside at Holy Communion.

Although the proposal was deferred for further study and no action taken on the issue, neither the theology that gave rise to the proposition nor the sociology which makes it so compelling for some are going to go away.

The theology involves the development of a much broader understanding of the concept of the landscape — a concept that does not limit ministry to the ordained.

"Ministry really belongs to the whole church," says the Rev. Reuben Sheares, director of the United Church of Christ's Office for Church Life and Leadership. "You don't use the word ministry to apply to just those ordained because everyone has a ministry."

With the increasing influence of the laity in all churches, such an understanding of ministry meets little objection.

But the proposal before the United Church of Christ sought to institutionalize such an understanding in specific ways by setting up three categories of officially recognized ministers: ordained, commissioned Ordination, which in the UCC requires theological study and training at an approved seminary, would remain much the same.

Commissioned ministers are those members of the laity involved in traditional full time church work such as teaching and mission work, but who are not ordained and are not allowed to officiate at Holy Communion.

It is the third category, that of licensed ministers, that involves a radical departure from the church's present order.

Under the new category, certain members of the laity, in special circumstances, would be licensed by an association — a local group of churches — at the request of a local community or parish and be allowed to administer the sacraments and rites of the church for the local congregation.

Such a concept draws on the earliest history of the Christian church, where the power of calling and ordaining ministers was vested in the local grass roots congregations and communities.

In the current situation, such licensing has become a compelling issue as more and more small churches, either in dying urban neighborhoods or in rural areas, experience great difficulty in attracting and paying for a minister.

Under the new proposal, a congregation would be able to single out one of its own members, who, after examination by the Association, would be able empowered to preach, administer the sacraments and perform other pastoral tasks. The proposal has drawn some criticism by those who think it would "diminish the clergy and water down the church's history of strong belief in an educated clergy," according to Sheares.

Some women seminarians have also expressed the fear that it may lead to increased job difficulties for them, arguing that local congregations may opt to seek licensing for an unordained male of their church if confronted with the possibility of calling an ordained woman.

Although the General Synod deferred substantive action on the proposal, the issue is before the denomination — one of the bellwether churches of liberal Protestantism — and is likely to find support in other groups facing difficulties in their supply of clergy.

Area Writer Has New Book Published

Broadman Press has just published, "I Have a Question, God," a children's book for boys and girls who are adopted, written by Jeannette W. Ward of 1760 Thunderbird Trail, Maitland. The $4.95 hardback which features a four-color illustrated jacket and eight two-color illustrations, is an enjoyable and informative story.

"I Have a Question, God," was reviewed by Orange County School Psychologist, Denton M. Kurtz, as "a very sensitive children's story that shows insight into a chosen child's feelings and her wonderings about being adopted. It is a story that can be helpful to both girls and boys and their adoptive parents. The story will allow an opening of feelings and discovery so necessary in positive emotional growth."

This children's book which addresses concerns and feelings the adopted child may have about adoption, their identities, and birth parents can be purchased at most religious bookstores, ordered through any bookstore, or by direct mail from Nashville Mail Order Center, P. O. Box 24420, Nashville, Tenn. 37202.

According to the director of a North Carolina adoption agency, who is also an adoptive father, this children's book deals "very honestly with feelings that are universal among many adopted children."

In the story, Sandi and Rusty were adopted but lived very normal lives with their adoptive parents. Most of Sandi's feelings are the same as often experienced by any pre-adolescent age girl...friendships, fear of moving to a new town, school teachers, and sibling rivalry. It is only her "wondering days" that set Sandi apart from other children her age. It was these days that she asked questions.

As an adoptive parent, Jeannette has insight into concerns and special feelings of adopted children and their parents. A homemaker and freelance writer, she has been published in trade, juvenile, and service magazines. She has written greeting card ideas, curriculum material for use in churches as well as assignments for an Orlando based management assessment center. A professional member of Associated Business Writers of America and The National Writers Club, she attended Rollins College and resides in Maitland with her husband Bill, an aerospace engineer at Kennedy Space Center, and their two daughters, Wendi and Traci.

Monk At Hebrew U. Post

Jerusalem — Father Marcel Dubois never dreamed that he would become one of the academic leaders at the world's largest Jewish university when he came to live in Israel 18 years ago. Things just worked out that way.

Today the 60-year-old Dominican monk is the new chairman of Hebrew University's Department of Philosophy, the first non-Jew ever to head an Israeli university department.

Father Dubois resides at Maison Isale ("Isiah House"), a small Dominican monastery some 500 meters from the Old City walls. It is surrounded by olive trees, and the whitewashed corridor leading to his second-floor study is decorated with pictures of saints and Holy Land sites.

Inside his study, he sits at a desk piled high with books in French, Hebrew, English and Latin. There is a white cassock hanging from a peg on one wall, a crucifix on another. Dressed in modern slacks and a short-sleeved jersey, Father Dubois talks of his "faith in God's love for the Jews" and his commitment to his life in Jerusalem exploring the many facets of that relationship.

"I came to Israel to pursue my study of Jewish philosophy, to play my role in helping to correct 2000 years of Christian damage to the Jewish people," he says.

"My field of specialization led me to give an occasional lecture at the university, however, and in the course of time I was appointed a senior lecturer in the Philosophy Department.

"It was nevertheless surprising when I was offered the chairmanship of the department this spring — a pleasant surprise," he confides.

'Work-Related' Infidelity Or Sin?

Judge Leo LaPorte says he didn't mean what a lot of people thought he meant: that it's all right for a man to cheat on his wife when he is out of town on business.

The Michigan judge was ruling on a workmen's compensation claim involving a 37-year-old American engineer. The engineer was married and working in England with a subsidiary of the Michigan firm that employed him. The man died of carbon monoxide poisoning. The fumes that killed him came from a faulty space heater in the flat of a woman with whom he was having sex.

Whether or not the man's family was eligible for workmen's compensation depended on whether or not the accident was "work-related." Judge LaPorte ruled it was.

"Man is by nature a social creature," said the magistrate in his decision. "It is not reasonable to expect that an employee who is on assignment to a distant land will simply stare at the walls of his hotel room after work."

Well, every wife with a traveling husband who read that began to worry — and to hope her husband wouldn't read it. Even husbands who had been faithful up to now who might read it could conceivably decide there was no reason why they should continue to lead a celibate life on the road. After all, hadn't the judge said so?

The women I know were so upset that I decided to call Judge LaPorte. When I got him on the phone he seemed surprised that anyone had put a moral connotation on his decision. All he was trying to say, said the judge, is that you can't expect a man to sit alone in his hotel room when he is far away from home.

"He'll take a walk or go to a restaurant or a movie or someplace," said the judge, and if it is his company that has sent him far from the warm, familiar precincts of home, any accident that occurs while he is engaged in these extracurricular activities must, in the judge's opinion, be considered work-related.

Judge LaPorte insisted he was not in any way condoning extra-marital conduct.

This kept me from asking my next question — whether, in the judge's view, man "the social creature" was excused from being true to his marital vows when, far from home and lonesome, he found these vows competing with his virility. I was also going to ask him how far from home a man would have to be — or how long a time he would have to be away — for this "infidel clause" of his to apply. But the judge's disclaimer made those questions out of bounds as far as he was concerned.

Saints And Sinners

While Judge LaPorte had squirmed out from under the ire of the wives who read his opinion (though some still won't buy his explanation of it), the question of vows vs. virility remains.

Our society generally has become remarkably indulgent about the "social creature" away from home. The rules that ordinarily govern the married man (or woman) seem not to apply when he or she is off home turf.

This might be considered coming to realistic terms with the non-monogamous nature of the social creature. Or it may be simply that we have forgotten there is such a thing as sin.

If that sounds moralistic, so be it. There is at least one illustrious psychiatrist — Dr. Robert Coles of Harvard University — who has come to the conclusion that psychiatry must consider man as a moral being as well as a social creature. One of his students has commented, "There is a tendency to get tired of Prof. Coles' moralizing, but nobody else around here moralizes enough."

Moralizing does not necessarily mean the imposition of rules, but it implies that some choices are right and some are wrong.

A psychologist recently told a stress clinic in Cleveland that the disappearance of rules in our society is one of the major causes of stress. When people are given unlimited options, he said, they became so uncertain as to what to do that they feel stress.

Judge LaPorte might be off the hook, but our present-day morality isn't.

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Sunday, July 26, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY
July 26, 1981

You could establish in the year ahead some new and important relationships with people who can cut pesky red tape for you. These contacts may be found in the ranks of clubs or social groups to which you belong.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your bright, cheery presence will have a pleasant effect on your friends today. Even one who is glum won't be able to stay sour-faced long. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph that begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your companions and associates aren't apt to be as strongly motivated and ambitious as you are today. That's why you'll be an achiever and they won't.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Because you are so cognizant of treating other fairly today, arrangements you work out with your peers will have an excellent chance for success.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Changes may throw others a bit off-kilter today, but they tend to work to your advantage. When compelled to switch directions, you'll find a luckier course.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll be happiest today if you can find a cheerful charm to pal around with or, better yet, participate in an activity with a group you enjoy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're lucky today taking care of matters relating to your business or career as early as possible. After that's accomplished, you'll have ample time to lounge in the hammock.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Put as much space as possible today between yourself and material matters. Spend all the time you can doing that which you thoroughly enjoy.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A wise man once said, "Everything comes to him who waits." Be patient today if you're involved in something important. Happy endings are in sight.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're likely to be a trifle restless today, so you'd better plan an active agenda. Spacing your time to visit several friends will soothe your antsy spirit.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Even though this isn't considered a normal business day, you could be quite lucky in your commercial dealings. A good time to bargain-hunt.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Select fun activities today where you can exercise your talents as a social director. You'll know how to plan things so that everyone has a good time.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) Something out of the ordinary might develop today that could prove advantageous for you and family members as well. Money may be involved.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Soniat

This safety play is an old favorite with bridge writers. Reese and Dormer do not provide bidding, but it is quite likely that North and South would get to seven diamonds at the table. After all, seven diamonds makes easily if clubs break 4-2 or 3-3, which is a trifle better than an 85 percent chance. However, South finds himself in just six diamonds and it is up to him to take the best chance to make it. He takes his ace of hearts and enters dummy with the ace of spades in order to lead the first club from dummy. Both opponents follow and now South is ready for the safety play. He leads a low club from his hand. East wins the trick and can return a trump, but it does him no good. South can still ruff his last two small clubs in dummy, draw trumps and make the slam. Had South banded down the ace and king of clubs, West would have ruffed and led his last trump. South would have been left with three losing clubs and only two trumps in dummy. Reese and Dormer overlooked the fact that if West opens a trump there is no way for South to make the slam. Because when East got in with his club he would get to lead a second trump. For Monday, July 27, 1981

July 27, 1981

Friendships with two persons with whom you are reasonably "tight" now will greatly strengthen over the coming months. You could even have difficulty deciding which one is your best friend.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be very careful today about repeating hearsay information or gossip. You could unintentionally give credence to something completely false. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Set worthy goals today, but don't demand of yourself things which exceed your capabilities and talents. Operate within your proven abilities.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Do things today in accord with your high standards, even if others operate on different wavelengths. Make them come up to your level.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In material ways you tend to be more fortunate for others today than you are for yourself. Don't despair. They'll later balance-out accounts.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) In partnership arrangements or situations requiring team effort, don't let your pride get in your way if your cohort does things better than you do.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Fulfilling your ambitious aims is admirable, but try to consider others today as well as yourself. Help them where you can. Think "we," not just "me."

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Whatever you undertake today, you're likely to do it well and efficiently. Someone lacking your talents, however, could be a trifle jealous and fail to give you credit.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't be overly concerned about your image with outsiders today. The important thing is to operate so as to give those who count the right opinion of you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Unfortunately, not everyone you'll deal with today is apt to be as frank and open with you as you are with them. Weigh what is told to you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't rely too heavily upon verbal commitments today in commercial or money matters. For safety's sake, have all the terms spelled out on paper.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You could be even more popular than usual with the opposite sex today, but take care you don't thoughtlessly hurt the feelings of a sensitive admirer.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) You have what it takes to operate successfully today, but self-doubts could severely dampen your optimism. Dwell on positives, not negatives.
