

Youngsters Tell How Much They Use Alcohol, Drugs

By LEE DANCY
 Herald Staff Writer

Out of 197 11th graders surveyed in Seminole County, 78.1 percent of them said they drink alcohol and 46.1 percent admitted they smoke marijuana.

The survey was conducted by the county schools' data processing department during the week of Feb. 2-6. A total of 1,918 copies were distributed to students, with 1,445 completed and returned.

School officials approved the survey of approximately 10 percent of the 8th through 12th graders in the county "to establish a data base regarding student usage of chemicals (drugs and alcohol)," according to the printed results.

Numerous questions were included in the poll. The largest number of respondents to the survey came from 8th graders. Of the 285 surveys distributed to 8th graders, 246 were returned representing an 86.3 percent response.

Tenth graders returned the fewest number of completed surveys. Of 283 forms distributed, 175 surveys were completed and returned to guidance counselors who administered the questionnaire representing a 61.8 percent response.

Beside gauging the degree of drug and alcohol use among students in Seminole County, the survey contained other questions about the origins of chemical use.

Among 8th through 8th graders, the primary source for the students' first experience with alcohol or drugs was a friend. More than 40 percent of the 8th, 7th and 8th graders polled said they first tried drugs or alcohol with friends.

The second most prevalent source for first-time experiences with drugs and/or alcohol among middle schoolers was parents. Of the 8th, 7th and 8th graders surveyed who admitted to using drugs or alcohol, 31.1 percent said their parents gave them their first chemical substance.

The majority of all students who admitted to using alcohol said their parents do not know they drink. More than 31 percent of students in grades 8th through 8th said their parents are unaware of their drinking.

Of 731 8th through 8th graders polled, 38.1 percent said they do not drink.

More than 38 percent of the high schoolers polled said their parents did not know they drink. Only 9.1 percent of students in grades 9 through 12 said they do not drink.

Most 6th through 8th graders said they received the most accurate information on drugs and alcohol from their parents. Approximately 30 percent of the middle schoolers said their most reliable source is their parents.

Nearly 35 percent of the high schoolers polled said a former drug user was their best source of information on the substance. Former drug users were chosen by the largest portion of high schoolers as information sources.

Police rated lowest as the most valuable information source on drugs. Approximately 4 percent of the middle schoolers and fewer than 2 percent of the high schoolers chose police personnel as their best information source.

Almost 3 percent of the 6th through 8th graders polled had been arrested for using drugs or alcohol. Of the high schoolers polled, 4.6 percent had been arrested for use of drugs or alcohol.

Students were asked if they had ever operated a motor vehicle under the influence of alcohol either occasionally or frequently.

The great majority of 6th through 8th graders are not old enough to qualify for a driver's license. Despite this fact, 3 percent of the middle schoolers polled said they drive a motor vehicle frequently under the influence of alcohol. Almost four percent of the middle schoolers said they drive occasionally under the influence.

Even more middle schoolers admitted to driving a motor vehicle under the influence of marijuana.

Of the middle schoolers polled, 7 percent said they drive frequently under the influence of marijuana. And 6.3 percent said they drive occasionally soon after smoking marijuana.

Approximately 4 percent of the high schoolers polled said they drive under the influence of alcohol frequently, and 2.5 percent said they drive frequently under the influence of marijuana.

Another 23.3 percent of high schoolers polled said they drive occasionally under the influence of alcohol, and 13.7 percent said they drive occasionally under the influence of marijuana.

Tom Roll, chemical abuse counselor for Seminole County schools, said misuse of drugs and alcohol is reaching epidemic proportions nationwide.

"We must intervene in these situations and direct the student to a quality counseling place," he said.

Western Bar May Be Built In Sanford

By DONNA ESTES
 Herald Staff Writer

Owing to the legal expertise of City Attorney William Colbert, the Sanford City Commission Friday afternoon voted 4-1 to settle a lawsuit filed against the city by a man denied permission to seek a state alcoholic beverage license.

After discussing the pros and cons of the issue for more than an hour, the decision was made when Colbert said Sanford had less than a 25 percent chance of winning the suit filed by restaurateur Duke Gustafson.

Gustafson was denied city permission on the basis of an ordinance banning the issuance of alcoholic beverage licenses to establishments located within 500 feet of a similar business.

But a written report given to the commissioners showed that of the 44 liquor serving establishments within the city, 30 are within the banned distances.

With that fact in mind, Colbert said a court probably would say that the city had been arbitrary and not even-handed in its licensing procedure.

Mayor Lee P. Moore said the "nits of past commissions" (which had granted waivers of the 500 foot requirement) had caught up with current commissioners. Commissioner Milton Smith, an advocate of enforcing that city ordinance strictly, reversed his position after Colbert gave his opinion.

"I'm against this from the bottom of my heart. It is not morally right. But my decision is based on what the attorney said," Smith said, adding he didn't like having to change his position.

Commissioner Eddie Keith, meanwhile, stood alone in opposition, suggesting the action of his colleagues might be interpreted as being taken only to avoid a lawsuit.

Following Friday's action, commissioners said the next step will be to issue the requested permission to Gustafson for the Western style restaurant and lounge he is building on French Avenue near 13th Street.

At the same time, Moore said he is even more concerned about the commission's actions 10 days ago denying permission to Giorgio's Restaurant on 27th Street at Sanford Avenue because of the 500-foot requirement. Giorgio's restaurant once had a liquor license, stopped business for a time and an adjacent establishment got a license during the interim.

Commissioners indicated they also will reverse that decision and grant Giorgio permission to seek a state permit.

The commission also instructed Colbert and City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles to prepare a new ordinance setting criteria in granting future liquor permits. Colbert said the proposed ordinance probably will have separate categories such as restaurants, lounges and other types of establishments serving alcoholic beverages.

In other action, the commission voted 3-2 to grant developer Tom Rucker a 180-day extension to begin construction on condominiums on the 7.8 acres of property off U.S. Highway 17-92 on the lakefront he has purchased from the city for $130,000.

Jesse Graham, attorney for some of Rucker's business partners, asked for a guarantee from the commission that at the end of the six-month period subsequent extensions will be granted.

Rucker and the city previously had agreed that construction would begin within 30 days of the sale being finalized.

Graham said it could take months to complete soil engineering and architectural work involving hundreds of thousands of dollars and there is a real possibility this work could take longer than six months.

Farr, with a second from Keith, made a motion that died on a 3-2 vote granting the assurance. A second motion by Smith and Commissioner Ned Yancey and supported by Moore granted the six month extension only. Keith and Farr were opposed.

Moore assured Graham that the commission has been reasonable in granting extensions in the past. He added, however, the city's major interest is in seeing the property developed and placed on the tax rolls.

Commissioners also adopted a resolution, requested by Sanford Airport Authority Attorney Bill Hutchison, granting the authority permission to lease property at the airport. Permission has been informal in the past.

Hutchison said the document is necessary for the authority to float a bond issue to build a $1 million plant for Scotty's lumber and hardware at the airport.

Shoplifters They're Active At Yuletide

By TENI YARBOROUGH
 Herald Staff Writer

Business for area merchants has been picking up as residents begin the rush to get presents bought before Christmas. But as their profits increase, so does the "business" of "picking up!" — shoplifting.

Each year area businesses lose many thousands of dollars in merchandise because men, women, boys and girls alike steal their merchandise.

"They've (the shoplifters) have been very active," said Glenn McCall, manager of Touchton's Drugstore, on the corner of First Street and Magnolia Avenue in Sanford. "We've missed radios and razors and everything in between. They come in the store in groups and then go in different directions so you can't watch them. That's when they steal the stuff."

McCall said his store personnel are making "an extra effort this year to catch the thieves." He said he has people walking throughout the store to keep an eye on possible problems.

"We caught three or four (shoplifters) last month and we even had a guy go into our store window and pick up a radio," he said. "But someone saw him and so he put it down and ran."

Jim Tapscott, manager of McCrory's variety store, 105 E. First St., Sanford, said he too has been bothered by shoplifters.

"About 90 percent of the shoplifting that goes on is never discovered until we're counting our losses," he said. "Our losses run in the thousands. We had a case this weekend where a guy took several wristwatches and ran. We know he took at least seven."

"It's terrible," said Dollar General Stores manager Beale Zeigler. "We're the ripoff store of the city. We're just going to keep a sharper lookout this season for the shoplifters."

Ms. Zeigler said she has managed the store, located at 201 E. First St., Sanford, for six years.

"We catch boys and girls alike, and one good thing is that we don't have to wait for them to go outside the store any more," she said.

So, what can the merchants do to protect themselves and their profits against these "shoplifters?"

"Most merchants in the area don't hesitate to put up signs saying they'll prosecute shoplifters and almost all of them do prosecute," said John Spolski, Seminole County Sheriff's Department spokesman.

These local shoppers adhere to the sign hanging in McCrory's variety store in downtown Sanford: "Please Pay Here." However, according to area merchants, not all "shoppers" pay for their merchandise and end up "paying" later because area merchants say they will prosecute offenders.

"We're anticipating a lot more prosecutions which helps us do our job," he said. "When a merchant will prosecute, we can arrest and at least get the offender out of circulation for a while."

Sanford Police Chief Ben Butler said merchants are beginning to prosecute "now more than ever because they are realizing how much it's costing them not to prosecute."

Butler said he has assigned police officers to walk through the downtown stores and at Sanford Plaza to keep a closer eye out for shoplifters.

"It always picks up at Christmas, starting usually in November and

Blacks, Poor Advised To 'Get Reagan'

U.S. Rep. Julian C. Dixon, D-California, told Seminole County's blacks and poor Friday night that the best way to work out their frustrations is "to get that target."

"And the target is Ronald Reagan—the wrong man in the wrong place at the wrong time," he said in a speech at the 10th annual Friends of SEEDCO (Seminole Employment Economic Development Corp.) banquet held at the Sanford Civic Center.

Noting he served in the California legislature when Reagan was governor, Dixon said the "White House thinks those who should tighten their belts first are those whose stomachs are not full."

"Reagan's tax cuts benefit the wealthy... the administration's limits on the growth of money has made a shambles of the housing industry... the administration has no policy at all," he said.

"The truth is that with all the huffing and puffing on Pennsylvania Avenue, the administration has no policy except to reward the rich at the expense of the poor," Dixon said. To bolster his claim, he noted the demise of the Community Service Administration (CSA), a victim of a budgetary axe this year—along with all the remnants of the Great Society programs.

It was through the CSA that many federal grants were awarded to community development agencies such as SEEDCO and to community action agencies like Seminole Community Action.

Dixon urged the black, the poor and the working class to watch their elected representatives in Congress. "Members of Congress are worthy of your support only as long as they support you," he said.

Dixon mentioned the Administration's "trickle down" economic theory of helping the wealthy in the belief that the results of the wealth will eventually trickle down to the poor.

"We know what the trickle-down theory is," he said. "Republicans know that the trickle-down theory is not healthy for big or small business or the working people."

"Reagan's into volunteerism," Dixon said. "He perceives Americans need reduced service at the federal level and that volunteers will pick up the slack."

Dixon said experience has shown that "volunteerism" doesn't work. He said no one is stepping forward to do the job. Major corporations are not employing laid off CETA (Comprehensive Employment Training Act) workers nor

Power Outage

A power outage of undetermined origin shortly after 10 a.m. Saturday disrupted service to several downtown Sanford area businesses, including the Evening Herald.

Power was restored just before noon, but the delay caused an interruption in production and the pressrun at the Herald.

8 Seek 3 Lake Mary Council Seats

Lake Mary City Clerk Connie Major predicts 62 percent—about 600—of Lake Mary's 1,400 voters will turn out at the Betty Lindmeier and Virginia Nelson. The election canvassing board includes Mrs. Major, Mayor Walter Sorenson and Councilmen Ken King and Dick Fess.

Olvera, completing his first term in office, and his wife, Bonnie, and daughters, Shelly, 19, and Toby, 6, live at 188 Washington Ave. The Olveras also have a son, Victor, 27, of Lake Mary, and two grandchildren.

Residents of the city for 3½ years, they moved there from Detroit, Mich. Olvera is employed at Win-Tel Corp. and operates his own business, Tools of Hope. He attended the University of Washington, served six years in the U.S.

Army during the Korean conflict and is a member of the city's Volunteer Fire Department.

If reelected, Olvera has pledged to continue to be available to his constituents and to work at the job as hard as he has in the past. "I believe we need a strong and fair council to deal with the growing pains we are going to experience in the near future," he said.

Mark, his wife, Delora, and daughters, Susan and Francina, live at 100 Linda Lane. Retired, Mark is a Florida native, born in New Smyrna Beach. The Marks also have a son, Gordon, who is a supervisor at Walt Disney World, and a daughter, Michele, of Odessa.

Mark attended Stetson University, DeLand; Massey Business College,

Jacksonville, and Daytona Beach Community College. He served two years in the U.S. Marine Corps during both World War II and the Korean conflict and was in the Marine Corps reserves and the National Guard for two years.

Mark said he would like "to see the city stop spending money. The city must reduce spending to stop runaway taxation of the property owners," he said, noting he voted against property-tax increases while he was on the council for a two-year term previously.

He said he continues to favor the four-laning of Lake Mary Boulevard and construction of a bicycle path along the highway. He said he would like to see the

Dr. Irrgang Rounds Up Children For Family Fun

By LEE DANCY
Herald Staff Writer

Sara Irrgang's fire engine red Volkswagen Beetle chugged up the steep driveway and halted abruptly.

Her two sons Erik, 12 and Chris, 11, tumbled out of the little car. For some reason her 3-year-old, Stacey, was unwilling to give up her position in the back seat.

After considerable coaxing on Sara's part, Stacey squeezed between the driver's seat and doorjam scuffling rapidly up to her mother. A pair of boxing gloves lay dormant in the footwells of the back seat.

"We went to the Italian restaurant for lunch," Sara said as she reached into the back seat to retrieve the doggie bag holding the garlic bread.

Once inside the house, Erik and Chris immediately went to their hamsters' cages. The two boys cuddled the furry rodents. Chris put his down the front of his shirt making a lump that moved about at will.

Stacey demanded every moment of her mother's attention, showering her with the endless barrage of questions characteristic of a 3 year old.

Its Saturday afternoon and Sara is on call. The moment she walked into her home the telephone was off the hook.

"Hello... This is Dr. Irrgang, I'm off my beeper now and you can reach me at home," she explained to her answering service.

Dr. Irrgang is a pathologist at Seminole Memorial Hospital. This Saturday afternoon she has devoted to her children could be interrupted at any moment by some emergency at the medical facility.

As a physician who specializes in the study of disease states, the possibility of being summoned to do an emergency autopsy or other related chore always exists on days like this one. She must remain close to a telephone the entire day.

That circumstance does not prohibit her from giving her children undivided attention, however.

"I've promised the kids we would go to the stables later," she said. "My husband is quite a horseman and it's rubbed off on the children."

Sara's husband, F.C. "Skip" Irrgang is a pilot for Braniff Airlines. She met Skip in the Navy.

"In 1965 I was doing one quarter of my active training at the school of Aviation Medicine in Pensacola," she said. "I met my husband there and we eloped."

Skip was a Navy pilot at the time and two years later received an honorable discharge from the Navy. Meanwhile, Sara was beginning another term of active duty. The two wound up living 350 miles apart. "I was in Corpus Christi doing general medical work and Skip was based in Dallas," she explained.

Sara's concentration was sharply clipped at the moment by the ringing sound of an ash tray sliding across the coffee table and plummeting onto the floor. The Walt Disney World souvenir didn't break and Sara bent down to pick it up.

After scolding Stacey for the attention getting maneuver she returned to the conversation.

It was 1967, Sara explained, and the Vietnam war was just beginning to build. Wounded soldiers poured into Corpus Christi's naval hospital and Sara was one of the few out-patient physicians working there at the time.

"I developed an ulcer on that job," she said. "The stresses were incredible and I was always getting tied up in the individual lives of the patients."

"In general practice of any sort they, (patients), call you up in the middle of the night often times," Sara said. "Any sort of general medicine is part psychological."

When Sara was released from the Navy she knew she wanted to specialize. General medicine was too demanding and unpredictable.

"I had always liked microscope work and had kept mine from medical school," she said. "I was looking around for residencies and chose pathology."

The children are starting to do some serious fidgeting now. Erik and Chris's hamsters have long since been returned to their cages. Chris is giving Stacey a "pony ride" which tends to make Sara nervous.

Jaunting around the house letting his little sister ride on his back is obviously a signal from Chris to his mother—it's time to go to the stables.

Skip is spending his two days off hunting deer with a cap and ball rifle. Learning to use the black powder weapon is a hobby competing with equestrian interests in the Irrgang household. This weekend the family is divided, however, and Sara loads the children into the Beetle, bound for the stables.

Other interests capturing Sara's time include active participation in the United Way of Seminole County Inc., and Sanford Christian Academy School Board where Erik and Chris attend, and president of the Seminole County Mutual Concert Association.

One of her primary capacities, however, is chauffeur. Driving the children to two different Boy Scout troops, karate lessons and the stables demands a considerable amount of Sara's time.

The Beetle plows down the sandy road leading to the stables. Now it is Sara's responsibility to remove the family's two Arabian horses and "Shorty" the pony from their stalls.

Sara helps Erik and Chris groom and saddle the three horses while Stacey weaves in between the three of them. Her questions never cease.

Once Shorty is saddled, Chris leads the pony around with Stacey mounted. The blond youngster screams at her highest pitch whenever she thinks her brother isn't holding onto the pony tightly enough.

The two Arabians are mounted now and Chris and Erik are ready to ride. Now Sara can spend an hour or two exclusively with her daughter.

Visiting Teacher Looks At 'Trouble' With Maturity

By KATHY CRANDALL

Special to the Herald

"What you want to do or be in life depends on the sacrifices you want to make, your desire. 'I can't' is a defeatist attitude. The essence of success is a certain amount of paying dues," says Robert B. Thomas Jr., of Sanford.

Thomas, 56-year-old visiting teacher of Seminole County says he feels a person should work his way up — not have everything handed to him on a silver platter.

Thomas should know. He was born in Sanford during the Depression. Because his parents were so poor, he didn't start school until he was 10 years old. Being bright and quick to learn, he was moved up a grade. But, when he reached second grade, Thomas had an experience which has left a mark on him throughout his life. His teacher didn't like him.

There wasn't a thing he could do to please her, Thomas says. When he smiled, she frowned. One day he said he went to class and on the blackboard read: "Most Untidy Student — Robert Thomas."

'Now, years later, former delinquents still come back and tell Thomas how much good he did for them by setting them straight and giving them a hard time. And it all paid off.'

For the rest of his second grade year Thomas said he didn't go back to school. As a child, his feelings were hurt very easily, he recalled.

He finally went back to school the next year and got as far as the sixth grade. He then got drafted.

When Robert Thomas entered the U.S. Army he was known by his fellow soldiers as a "hygiene fanatic." The second grade teacher still wasn't forgotten.

When discharged as a private first class in January 1946, Thomas decided to finish high school.

He went to Crooms Academy (the present Crooms High School) and started in seventh grade at age 21. Thomas wanted it this way. He was offered a diploma equivalency test, but turned it down.

He says he felt he needed the experience in order to make a name for himself in college. He worked hard at everything he did, he said, and had the determination to hang in there when it looked like there wasn't much to hang on to. He finally graduated from high school in June 1951 at the age of 27.

Thomas married after graduating and thanks to the G.I. Bill he said he was able to enroll in Florida A & M University.

After graduating from college in 1959 with a degree in Health and Physical Education, he entered the field of being truant officer. Choosing this major was a means of survival when actually his great interest was journalism, he said.

Becoming a truant officer wasn't really what Thomas had hoped for, but now, after 22 years in the same field, he has found self accomplishment among the students he has helped.

His help and guidance is not appreciated at the given time, he says. It's not until the student reaches maturity, and feels the world on his own, that he appreciates what Robert Thomas did for him.

Now, years later, Thomas says, former delinquents still come back and tell him how much good he did for them by setting them straight and giving them a hard time. And it all paid off.

Thomas' work procedure has changed over the past 20 years. He was a truant officer — roaming the city, watching "his" kids, as well as a "visiting teacher." He is based at Hopper Elementary School, Sanford, where he receives referrals from schools assigned to him.

When there is a problem with a student, — from skipping school or causing trouble, Thomas receives a referral slip and talks to the teacher, parents and the student until the problem is solved.

Because of his work, Robert Thomas has gained a respected name for himself both by his colleagues and his family.

He has been married for 30 years. His wife, Doris, is on her 33rd year as a Seminole County teacher. His son, Daryl, works for Florida Extrusion, Sanford.

Thomas says he is very close to his family and also to the children he works with now and those to whom he has already shown the way.

Maturity is the main factor, Thomas says. He feels school is essential. Yet, he says, it can only be what you make it. If you don't have the common sense and maturity to work for what you get, then you don't have anything, Thomas says.

Robert B. Thomas Jr. helps keep students in line.

Open House For Bridal Pair

Anne and Dick Aiken entertained at their Elliott Avenue home at open house honoring Marguerite Cornell and David Terwilleger who will be married Dec. 27 at the First Presbyterian Church, Sanford.

About 200 guests were invited to attend the bridal event during the appointed hours, 7 to 9 p.m.

Anne and Dick greeted the guests on the large porch of the home. Dick's bright red Santa jacket added a festive touch of the season to the warm gathering.

The home was alive with the sound of music. The Aiken offspring and their friends played the piano and sang during the evening.

The beautifully appointed refreshment table featured a variety of refreshments, prepared by the hostess.

Pouring the coffee from silver service were Helen Tucker and Mrs. David Aiken, Robin Cornell and Carol Freeman poured the punch.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mrs. Elise Cornell and the late Robert L. Cornell Jr. The bridegroom-to-be is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. (Nancy) Terwilleger Jr., of all Sanford. The mothers assisted in pouring. Among the special guests attending were

Gen. and Mrs. Joseph C. Hutchison, maternal grandparents of the bride-elect, and Mrs. R.L. Cornell Sr., her paternal grandmother.

The home was filled with not only friends of the couple's families, but with many college students who were home for the Thanksgiving weekend, Anne said.

It was a full, warm house.

The Rev. and Mrs. Brette (Jean) Sanford were back in town this week. Brette, former associate pastor of the First United Methodist Church, is now pastor of the First Methodist Church, Hobe Sound.

The Sanfords are expecting a visit from the stork in February.

The Friendly Circle hosted a baby shower honoring Jean Thursday night in the church parlor. Hostesses were Jenny Wallace and Sherry Younger.

Jean sat in a pink and blue decorated rocking chair to open her many gifts which included a toy chest hand made by Kip Younger.

Refreshments were served with Terrie Adkins making the special decorated cake.

Jean Leonard celebrated her birthday on Nov. 29, but she isn't saying which one. A happy belated birthday to vivacious Jean.

Dr. and Mrs. Frank (Jean) Clontz and Dr. and Mrs. Roger (Gail) Stewart are back from a holiday at Grand Cayman Islands.

Jean, Gail and Gail Bell were chairman of the Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole Holiday Fashion and Lingerie Gala and Brunch at Sweetwater Country Club on Dec. 5.

Patsy Hutchison says the Bicentennial Wagon Train Reunion will be held in Polk City the weekend of Jan. 31, 1982.

Anyone interested should contact Patsy, 322-1986, or write P.O. Box 226, Lake Monroe.

Patsy made the haul to Valley Forge, Pa., in 1976, and again last year. She seems gung-ho over keeping history in the making.

Loris Boutwell has been collecting canceled postage stamps for many years. Loris says enough of the stamps can greatly benefit worthwhile causes. One of the recipients of the stamps, locally, is the Methodist Children's Home, Enterprise.

Please allow about 1/4 inch of margin when removing stamps from letters or packages, and mail to Loris, 204 E. 24th St., Sanford, 32771.

Elizabeth and Frank Mebane, chairmen, will lead Champagne Ball revelers into "Christmas by Candlelight" on Dec. 5 at the Sanford Civic Center, beginning at 7 p.m.

The Vaughn Monroe Orchestra will provide the music for dancing.

This is the 17th Annual Champagne Ball under the aegis of Seminole Mutual Concert Association. A good attendance is expected with a "return to elegance" projected by Frank.

Larry Strickler, manager of Southern Bell, Sanford, will be guest speaker at Pankhurst Tuesday, at noon, at Seminole Community College.

Mac Frampton to appear in concert.

Sellout Concert Season Opens Monday

The 1981-82 season of Seminole Mutual Concert Association will open the season Monday with the appearance of Mac Frampton at 8 p.m., at Lake Mary High School.

For the first time in more than 12 years, the memberships have been sold out, according to Mrs. Frederic Gaines, membership chairman.

"The concert association has a complete sellout," Mrs. Gaines said.

There will be no tickets sold at the door. Admission is through membership in SMCA.

Mac Frampton, son of a South Carolina Presbyterian minister, began playing the piano at the age of three, studied at the Cincinnati Conservatory, and in 1969 received the Bronze Medal at the Van Cliburn International Piano Competition.

Frampton is currently one of the hottest performers on the international concert circuit. When he starts playing, you know you're hearing an unusual talent. It's musical soul, musical charisma, musical dynamite; the crux of the matter is this — Mac Frampton is a great artist. As an artist his aims are to excite the ear and eye, engage the mind, and encourage the imagination to linger on the event. A Mac Frampton concert is an event you will remember. His unique brand of musical showmanship reaches beyond classic, pop, and rock to include an astonishing variety of tastes, moods, and styles.

Frampton's show features his dazzling keyboard acrobatics, the phenomena of his popularity. He captures the audience and holds it spellbound through a sequence of current hit songs, great Broadway music, popular movie themes, ragtime, light rock, and an occasional piece from the classics. "The show is designed to appeal to the broadest range possible."

Stepmother Is Filled To Gills With HIS Kids

DEAR ABBY: My husband has five children from a previous marriage. Some of them are married with children of their own, and some live with their mother. I am responsible for buying, wrapping and sending all the gifts for their birthdays, Christmas, etc. (He pays for them, and I must say he is not cheap.)

The problem: I am filled to the gills with his ungrateful children, who never bother calling him to say "Thank you," "Kiss my foot," or anything else. For all we know, the gifts weren't even received. I know he's hurt, but he insists on sending them presents year after year for every occasion.

Should I continue to buy for my husband's children, should I tell him to do it, or should I buy them all book on manners?

TIRED OF IT

DEAR TIRED: I agree, your husband is foolish to continue sending gifts to ingrates, and I don't blame you for balking. But look at it this way — you are doing it for him, not them.

DEAR ABBY: I am a middle-aged woman engaged to be married in three months. My fiancé has been a widower for 10 years.

I am going to move into his house after we're married, but there is something I haven't discussed with him and it's bothering me.

I do not want to sleep in the same bed that he occupied with his wife for 20 years, but I don't know how to bring the subject up, Abby.

Am I being unreasonable? If you agree with me, how do I approach him?

NO OLD MEMORIES, THANK YOU

Dear Abby

DEAR N.O.M.: Unreasonable? No way! Come right out and tell him you want a new bedroom set. And if it would be easier to clip this column and slip it into his shirt pocket — be my guest.

DEAR ABBY: How do I handle a habitual eavesdropper who sits at the desk next to me in an office where we are both employed?

Whenever she sees me talking on the telephone, or if someone comes to my desk to talk to me, Ms. Eavesdropper turns her typewriter off and listens to what I'm saying.

Eavesdropping is one thing, but she even joins in on the conversation and asks questions about whatever it is we're discussing.

I don't want to start a fight because I have to see her every day, but I would like to put an end to this. Any suggestions?

IRRITATED AND FRUSTRATED

DEAR IRRITATED: Anything less than a direct confrontation would be ineffective in dealing with one so obviously insensitive. Simply tell Ms. Eavesdropper that it's not nice to shut off her typewriter and listen in on other people's conversations.

If you tell her in a friendly, helpful way, you'll probably get results. If you keep your frustration bottled up and your irritation builds, you'll probably get ulcers.

CANDY CALENDARS FOR SHUT-INS

Joan Cameron, left, president of the Cake Arts Society, Sanford, shows Nina Crouse one of the 70 candy calendars the society is donating to shut-ins on the Meals-On-Wheels Program, coordinated by Mrs. Crouse. The Cake Arts Society sponsored a Cake Show in September with the proceeds benefiting elderly shut-ins during the year. The idea of the calendar is a piece of candy is removed daily and by Christmas, the attached gift is all that's left.

SUSAN SULLIVAN

Student Wins Local Century III Award

Susan Sullivan, a senior at Lyman High School, has been named the top Century III Leader in a competition there, according to Carlton Henley, principal.

Susan is now eligible to compete with other local winners from around the state for one of two $1,500 scholarships and an all-expense-paid trip to the national Century III Leaders Conference, slated for March 5-8, 1982.

State winners will compete for the national winner's prize of an additional $10,000 scholarship. In order to be considered for the Century III Leaders program, Susan was judged on the basis of leadership skills, school and community involvement and a current events examination. She also wrote a short essay concerning "Voter Apathy."

Susan is president of the Student Council at Lyman High, Board member of Civettes, Teen Board member at Jordan Marsh, PTSA Student Advisor, Delegate to Girl's State, and a member of St. Mary Magdalen's Youth Group. Her hobbies include racket ball, tennis, and girl's soccer.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Sullivan Jr., 177 Post and Rail Road, Longwood.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Bridge hand analysis. NORTH: 13-4-4-1. WEST: K 10 9 3, A 9 7 3, J 10 8 6, 4 3. EAST: J 7 5, 8 6 5 2, Q 8 5 3, 8 7. SOUTH: A Q 8 4 2, 7, A 2, K J 5 4 2. Vulnerable: Both. Dealer: South.

The really interesting feature of the bidding is that after Jacoby bid four diamonds to show first-round diamond control, Passell committed the hand to a slam and even suggested seven by showing second-round diamond control. Then, when Jacoby showed first-round heart control, Passell jumped right to seven clubs. There were problems in the play. The hand was complicated because South's heart control was a void, not the ace. But with spades breaking 4-3 and trumps 2-1 there was no need to establish dummy's hearts. The hand was beautifully bid and would probably have been worth 13 IMPs to the Passell-Jacoby team. But at the other table, John Lowenthal and Philip Martin of New York were playing a complicated relay system with an opening two notrump to show a sound hand with six spades and at least four clubs. After that fortuitous start Martin was able to find out what John held and bid seven clubs with absolute certainty that trumps were solid and there were no first-round losers. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag. Here is a hand from the finals of the Grand National that shows bidding at its best. Jim Jacoby was South and Mike Passell was North.

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Sunday, December 6, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY December 6, 1981. A host of new acquaintances will make your social life exciting in the year ahead. You will also loom higher in stature in the eyes of your cohorts.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Things which come under your personal control today should turn out to be very fortunate for you, as well as for all others involved. Be a leader. Your Astro-Graph gives you predictions of what's in store for you in the four seasons following your birth date as well as where your luck and opportunities will lie. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You could be pleasantly surprised today when you learn that someone you thought was not overly fond of you is, in reality, deeply concerned about your needs.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You need people around you today — in fact, lots of them. If you're not invited to a gathering, get on the phone and generate one yourself.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today you're capable of doing and saying all the right things to all the right people to put your relationships on firm bases. Let your thoughts be known.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Seek activities today which reinforce your faith and philosophical beliefs. The lessons you learn will be complete accord with the terms.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Shy away from people today who are unable to handle their own responsibilities and who could try to tag you as the scapegoat. You have duties of your own to take care of.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be optimistic today, but also be sure your hopes are based upon realistic evaluations. Merely being wishful won't bring things into being.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be extremely conscious today of how you conduct yourself socially. All eyes will be on you. If the impression you make is unfavorable, it will be hard to erase.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) This is not the day to try to bluff your way through situations by pretending you're knowledgeable about something when you're not.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be very careful in joint ventures today or the greater burden and responsibility could fall on you, rather than being divided equally as it should be.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Both you and your mate should strive to be prudent today in matters affecting your budget. Unless both are in accord, neither should assume new obligations.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 23) You function best today if you are able to operate independently. Partners or associates may lack your vision and could hold you back.
