The Aftermath

Seminole Storms Did In Excess Of $10 Million Damage

By JOE DeSANTIS Herald Staff Writer

County damage assessment teams huddled with Seminole County of Public Safety Director Gary Kaiser late Friday and placed a preliminary $10 million figure on damage caused by two violent storms that struck the area Thursday, Kaiser said initial findings, that included a helicopter tour of damaged areas, did not include estimates on personal property losses.

"We can't even begin to put a ball park figure on that," he County teams spent all day Friday on the job, then met to total their findings. "According to the County Agricultural Agent, crop damage will exceed $3.5 million," Kaiser said.

Assessment crews pegged the damage to businesses and other major buildings in the county at $5.5 million. "The Sanford Marina alone suffered losses of $400,000, and in all probability, the figure will exceed that," Kaiser said. Kalser said the assessment teams will pick up the ball again Monday and continue work on figuring out just how much monetary damage the storms caused.

"We discovered more than we anticipated," Kniser said. "As for the final dollar amounts, we really can't say." Kaiser indicated the teams found that most of the storm damage was caused in Sanford and areas west of the city. In addition "there's a great deal of flood damage in the eastern section of the county."

"The helicopter pilot that took me up said there was an accumulation of seven inches of rain in Just a couple of bours Imagine what the situation would have been if we had a

Kaiser has been an area resident for the past 22 years and said he couldn't recall a worse storm since Hurricane Donna in "The eye of that hurricane came right through Mt. Dora," he Assessment teams reported that neither Lake Mary, Casselberry nor Winter Springs reported any storm related injuries. The medical services coordinator reported only six injuries at Seminole Memorial Hospital (SMH). Three of those were minor walk-in cases for cuts and scrapes," Katser said.

One of the most seriously injured by the storm was 14-year old Peter Jackson, an Altamonte Springs youngster who suffered head cuts and a serious eye injury from hall stones. Ralph Kelly, a 58-year old DeBary patient, had to have three fingers amputated after his hand was crushed in a door while trying to get out of his wind-damaged room at SMH.

Kaiser said the county will immediately apply to Tallahassee for low-interest loans and funds to help cover overtime costs for county personnel called in because of the

"We still have a lot of people on overtime," he said. Kaiser indicated that between 35-40 people were involved on damage assessment crews, not counting additional mechanical and clerical support personnel. An additional 25 road workers were also on the job surveying the results of the

that hit the Sanford area. For Mrs. Dunivan, it's an experience she'll never forget.

The 46-year-old legal secretary, 2105 Hartwell Ave., was on her way home shortly after 3 p.m. from her employer Abbott Herring's law office. When her Volkswagen couldn't handle the heavy winds and rain, she parked it and hitched a ride with a passing motorist en route to her home.

When Mrs. Dunivan and the driver approached 20th Street, flood waters prevented the vehicle from going any further, so Mrs. Dunivan thanked the driver for the ride and got out to walk the last block home.

"I stepped up on what I thought was the grass because the water was too deep on the street and sidewalk," related the Sanford resident. Then the bottom fell out for the soon-to-be married again Sanford woman.

"I thought I was dead," recalled Waynette.

"I had my purse over one arm and was holding a carton of cigarettes in the other hand. I finally got my purse unbooked and tried to keep one of my arms above water, I kept thinking about a movie I'd seen about people sinking in quicksand," she said. "I kept thinking, please God, let someone see my arm. I went under two or three times."

Mrs. Dunivan was completely pulled under water several times before a passing motorist, Reed Eden, of Sanford, jumped out and attempted to pull her from the swirling waters.

"I went under again and I could hear him yell, "She's gone, I've lost her!" But Eden made one final grab into the water and managed to grasp Mrs. Dunivan by her hair. The Sanford excavator then managed to pull the woman to safety, but not before almost being sucked down the ditch himself.

"He almost got sucked in himself the last time he let go of my arm," recounted

"But I saw him Friday and he told me he was going to get me even if it meant being sucked down the ditch, too," she said.

"I don't even know his first name." she added. "He gave me his business card. All I know is that he's got to be the nicest man in the world."

Dunivan said she'd never had another day in her life as terrifying as Thursday. "It's crazy," she said. "Everything was going so well for me. I'm getting married again in June and all I could think about while I was being sucked down was, Why me? Why now? Things

Congressional Redistricting Still A Hassle

By DONNA ESTES Herald Staff Writer

The 1982 session of the Florida Legislature began early this year - Jan. 18. And the burning issue, the issue that was supposed to be handled quickly, was reapportionment.

But the lawmaking body adjourned Wednesday with that job only two-thirds complete. Redistricting of the state House and Senate had been accomplished, but the differences between the two bodies over congressional reapportionment were insurmountable. The majority of the House liked a plan that would have kept Seminole County intact in a district that also included part of Lake County, all of Marion and all of Alachua.

would have split Seminole between U.S. Reps. Bill Chappell, D-Ocala, and Bill McCollum, R-Altamonte Springs. One of the districts would have extended all the way to Jacksonville. In an uprising led by State Rep. Dick

Batchelor, D-Orlando, the House defeated the Senate-House compromise. What bothered Batchelor, an announced congressional candidate, was that Orange County was to be split into three separate districts, effectively diluting its strength. Both State Reps. Robert Hattaway, D-Altamente Springs, and Bobby Brantley, R-Longwood, voted against the com-

Hattaway objected because the plan split Seminole two ways and because it created a congressional district for State Sen. Sherrill N. "Pete" Skinner, D-Lake

Brantley agreed that the congressional plan, voted down by the House Wednesday, was the result of a "meeting between a few senators and a few House members" and was done for the purpose of creating a district for Skinner.

Huttaway said Gov. Bob Graham will be calling the Legislature into special session, probably in June, to again consider congressional reapportionment. "Perhaps then a committee can come back with an acceptable redraft instead of something done in a back room, without public hearing or public input,"

Hattaway said the plan on congressional districting which he endorsed - combining Seminole with part of Lake, all of Marion and all of Alachua -had public hearings and would have kept Seminole whole. "And that's important to Seminole County," he said.

In addition, Brantley said Graham had warned he would veto the proposed congressional plan promoting the Skinner district

Brantley said the pressure legislators have been working under has been unbelievable, especially during the 1312hour final day of the special session Wednesday. During the session, Sen. Jack Gordon of Miami had a heart attack, and a House member had an epileptic seizure on the floor Wednesday. "Both situations contributed to pressures on everyone from the process," Brantley

Graham appears willing to call another special session if incumbent House and Senate can come to some sort of consensus

The Longwood representative said

"But there's a gray area in the Constitution about this," he said, noting that the legality of such a session is in

"Since the special session on congressional reapportionment adjourned sine die (without a date and without coming to agreement) and since lawsuits have been filed in two federal courts, there may be a problem," Brantley said.

He explained that a strong argument could be made about whether it is still in the governor's power to call the Legislature back before the courts have taken any action on the lawsuits.

Hattaway predicted incumbent congressmen will now put the pressure on to a greater degree than seen so far. "The congressmen don't want judges drawing district lines for them," he said. Behind the scenes Monday night, he added, McCollum was negotiating in Tallahassee and agreeing to the Senate plan that gut Seminole in half, "He was willing to sacrifice the people on the east side of Seminole so a seat could be created for his reelection," Hattaway said.

"The bottom line on politics is certainly compromise. What the Senate offered was not compromise, it demanded total surrender. The House has not surrendered to the Senate so far and it doesn't intend to," he said.

Final agreement between the Senate and House on reapportionment for both houses of the Legislature, after months of debate, also came Wednesday.

Hattaway said the House accepted the Senate plan and the Senate accepted the House plan. In addition, both bodies See STILL, Page 6A

Court's Child-Custody Ruling May Not Change Much

Herald Staff Writer

Saying that Florida's courts are progressive concerning juvenile law, area judges foresee little impact on the system in the wake of the U.S. Supreme Court's ruling on child-custody

In a 5-4 vote, the high court ruled a state cannot permanently take children away from natural parents unless it can prove by the stringent standard of "clear and convincing evidence" that the parents were unlit or neglectful.

According to Circuit Judge Dominick J. Salfi, the new law doesn't affect Florida's dependency cases because "this state's laws concerning junvenile custody cases are already Salfi said the ruling would primarily affect states he refers to as "backward states." He declined to elaborate on just

Florida law states that for the ties between parent and child to be severed there must be "both a showing of abuse, neglect or abandonment and a consideration of the best interest of the child. . . "The law further states that the "best interest of the child alone is not sufficient to waive parental consent, but abandonment plus the best-interest test is sufficient."

Juvenile court officials say the high court ruling and Florida's juvenile law are intended to place a greater burden on state agencies, which must prove a parent is unfit to care for his or her child or that the child is neglected or abused by the parent.

Because Florida's laws concerning juveniles are stiff, Salfi said he feels the high court's ruling will have, and has, no effect on this state or on how custody cases are handled by lawyers, the state or the courts.

will primarily affect children of the poor and minority families who have been taken out of their parents' custody and placed in foster homes.

The case that spawned the Supreme Court ruling posed such a situation Annie and John Santosky, a low-income couple from Accord, N.Y., were found guilty of permanently neglecting the eldest of their five children. The state courts ordered that the ties between the Santoskys and their children, Tina, 10, John, 8, and Jed, 7, be severed.

The recent Supreme Court ruling provides the Santoskys with a second chance to preserve their seven-member family. The three eldest children have spent most of their lives in foster homes.

Justice Harry Blackmun noted that parents have a "fundamental-liberty interest in the care, custody and management of their child (that) does not evaporate simply because they have not been model parents or have lost temporary custody of their child to the states."

A children's-rights lawyer, representing the American Civil Liberties Union, said she hopes states will be urged by the new ruling to "work more carefully with natural families before giving up on them."

Last year 247 dependency cases were heard before the Seminole County juvenile court. About 70 have been heard during the first three months of 1962, according to Susan Ford, in the office of the clerk of the court.

"Parents' rights are more important than the child's rights in this instance, and you have to go a long way to prove the parent shouldn't be a parent," says Gayle Hair , juvenile court

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Continue to focus your efforts on your newest, most promising project, Lady Luck will help you make fresh things prosper.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You should do well today in career, status or financial matters. Vigorously pursue any developments which can enhance the aforementioned

Problems Ahead For Poor Eater

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am worried about my 21-year-old daughter's future health. She is obese and seems to resist a proper diet. Instead she eats popeorn with butter and salt, Kool Aid with sugar, salted peanuts, pistachios, pretzels, ice cream with syrup on a regular basis. When she eats food it is starch - corn on the cob with lots of butter and salt, Kentucky Fried Chicken with more salt, pizza and macaroni and Velvesta cheese and salt and homemade chicken soup broth with homemade dumplings made with flour, eggs and milk. She drinks about a quart of milk a day and about six glasses of

You'll notice no fruits, vegetables or meat other than chicken. She takes vitamins daily and says she is in good health and is simply going to be a "big person." Is she headed for trouble or am I better advised to let it be?

DEAR READER - She is right about one thing - she in going to be a big person. A person could eat any one of those things once in a while but a steady diet of a lot of those items means a large calorie intake - which in turn means body fat storage.

She will get along all right in her younger years if she doesn't have to have surgery for some unexpected reason or develop high blood pressure. But as the years go by being overweight will contribute to arthritis; and as a group, obese people have high blood pressure and high cholesterol levels which lead to heart disease, strokes and the other complications of fatty-cholesterol deposits in

I am not sure what you can do that will help your daughter. A person does have to help herself and really want to do something about her or his lifestyle. If you could get her to study nutrition it might help her.

the arteries.

She might be able to switch to fortified skim milk and cut out the extra fat sources. She might even develop a taste for fruit and salads. Perhaps a desire to improve her physical appearance may motivate her.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet, that you may be able to persuade her to read. Others who want this diet can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR LP LAMB - Please tell me if there has been research concerning people. who had polio prior to vaccine days. There are many of us you know. I fear we are a forgotten group.

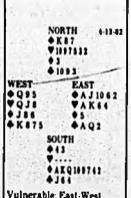

I had polio before school age and have since worn a long leg brace and now use one and sometimes two canes. Most mornings I can hardly get out of bed and by the time I've dressed I'm exhausted. I keep hoping something new has been discovered.

DEAR READER - Your letter should at least remind others about the complications of polio and why it is important to take the vaccine that is now available.

Once the damage has been done it has destroyed cells in the spinal cord. Those changes are permanent. There is research on ways to induce regeneration in the cord but nothing that would help at this point.

There have been lots of aids in terms of rehabilitation. That involves available devices to help locomotion and movement. And I'm sure you have already had physical therapy strengthen the good muscles to give you as much movement as possible. If not, maybe you could have a consultation with a nearby rehabilitation center.

Ruth Gordon Pens First Novel At 85

NEW YORK (NEA) - She may be 25 but Ruth Gordon can still act, write and gab with the best of them. And she absolutely refuses to slow ANNO.

The actress who made her stage debut in the 1915 Broadway production of "Peter Pan" that starred Maude Adams has just finished a Subaru commercial and a new Gary Coleman film, "Jimmy the Kid."

Meanwhile, the writer who has penned plays ("Over 21," 'Years Ago"), screenplays (co-author with husband Garson Kanin of two of the very best Tracy-Hepburn movies, "Adam's Rib" and "Pat and Mike"), and assorted colorful memoirs has just written her very first novel, "Shady Lady" (Artior House).

It's a bawdy little chocolate covered cherry of a book about a tall, gorgeous 1920's showgirl named Winona Lloyd, small-town gold digger who works her way up the Sugar Daddy ladder from Chicago to New York, where she lands in Florenz Ziegfeld's Follies and bed. She's a gal whose favorite color is red velvet.

"I'm in love with the '20s," exclaims Miss Gordon, who has a sharp wit, firm handshake and mischievous twinkle in her eye. "It was a dazzling period. You were rich, goodlooking and sexy or you stayed home."

It is an era the tiny, toughtalking Miss Gordon knows well. She was herself a Broadway star then. She has. in fact, taken the liberty of including herself as a minor character, along with other New York luminaries like Harpo Marx and Alexander Woolcott. "At first I thought about doing it as non-fiction, thought about writing about all of the fantastic people I knew. Then I said the hell with it - get my girl, make her a composite of a lot of those dazzlers, and then go ahead and write about all of the wicked goings on without worrying about using real names. "I knew several girls like Winona, " she recalls, "The showgirls didn't know how to sing or dance, you know. They were sex stars. They just came on to be beautiful. They didn't have to do a damned other thing. That was their career. And they were kept by rich, cute fellas. I don't think anyone is kept anymore. It used to be that being a sexy beauty was a full-time job. Today they all want to be netresses.

"They were all small-town girls, from Texas or Pennsylvania or Minnesota, Lillian Russell, a femme fatale of the first order, came from Council Bluffs, Iowa, None of them grew up having seen the Follies or the Scandals. And there was no TV then. But they made their way here. They had this crazy, instinctive love of luxury."

Mias Gordon was never exactly statuesque, but she admits there's some of her in Winona. "I grew up in Quincy, Maza, I got out of high school and I didn't know how to earn a living. I didn't want to be a secretary or a nurse or a nun or any of the other things girls did then. So I came to New York to be fast for a year I didn't even know what fast was. All I wanted was to meet tellas, be rich and sexy."

It didn't quite work out. "I ended up acting in Chekhov and Ibsen, though I did do some jolly things."

THE

Ruth Gordon has just written her first novel. "Shady Lady," about a showgirl in the '20s. "It was a dazzling period," she says. "You were rich, good-looking and sexy or you stayed home."

She was also quickly adopted by the smart crowd of celebrities, intellectuals and sophisticates. Her apartment is filled with autographed pictures of the likes of Gene Tunney, Thornton Wilder, Robert Sherwood. Her favorite seems to be a photo of her on the deck of the S.S. France with Woolcott, the legendary caustic critic. "He was my great confidente," she says. "I never stuck around that Algonquin Round Table bunch of his much. though. They were too slow. I was more interested in fellas and fun. You know, I never thought of myself as that pretty, but I look at these old pictures and I was something pretty dazzlingly fantastic. I went the whole actress

She was never actually a screen star, though, until she made "Inside Daisy Clover" in 1965, and topped that with "Rosemary's Baby," for which she won an Oscar in 1968. Since then she has worked steadily in films, most notably as Clint Eastwood's mother in the "Every Which Way" movies and in the cult classic "Harold and Maude." "I never met anybody who saw that movie only once," she says, "I know a guy who saw it 200 times."

She is presently working on her second novel and has no intention of slowing down "I don't believe in being idle. I have a helluva lot of ideas. What would I do with them if I didn't follow them up ?"

But she does follow a regimen to keep herself trim. "I walk two miles every day, I'm careful about my diet, don't amoke, I look after myself, treat myself like a treasure, I think I am a treasure."

Red Cross K.I.S.S.

The central Florida Chapter of the American Red Cross will launch a new service May 1 in conjunction with the new state law requiring children riding in motor vehicles to be restrained in federally approved car seats.

K.I.S.S. (Keep Infants Safely Seated) will provide the federally-approved seats on a loan basis. A small deposit will permit a family to borrow a seat from the time the infant is born until he or she reaches approximately 20 pounds. At that time, the family is asked to return the seat to the American Red Cross and the majority of their original deposit will be returned to them. A larger seat will also be made available for loan when the infant seat is returned.

Jenny Penny, chairman of the Red Cross KISS service, has reached an agreement with maternity wards in most area hospitals to assist expectant mothers in their efforts to obtain safety seats, permitting them to take their newborn infants home safely buckled up.

"I have been appulled for years," said Mrs. Penny, "at the number of small babies who are killed each year in car accidents. If the seats save even one small child's life, it will be worth far more than the effort we put into it."

The National Safety Council has stated that car accidents are the leading cause of death in children from birth to 6 years and car restraints may prevent 90 percent of these auto deaths and 80 percent of serious injury to children.

The K.I.S.S. service is slated to begin May I, two months before the new child restraint bill becomes law. Those interested in learning more about the service are encouraged to call the central Florida Chapter of the American Red Cross at 894-4141 or stop by the Chapter House at 5 North Bumby

IN BRIEF

Sanford Youth Baseball Reschedules Games Today

The Sanford Youth Baseball Association lost out to the rain Thursday and Friday, but five games are scheduled for today.

In the Sanford Little American League, Seminole Petroleum plays Adcock Roofing in the 5 p.m. game at Fort Mellon Park, while Krayola Kollege plays Jack Prosser Ford at the same time at Bay Avenue Field. Adcock Roofing (3-0) and Krayola Kollege (4-0) are both unbecten and are headed for a Wednesday night

In today's other Little American League game, Atlantic Bank battles Butch's Chevron at 7 p.m. at Fort Mellon Park.

Two games are on tap today in the Sanford Junior League. Moose plays Elks at 5 p.m., while Master's Cove Apartments battles Rotary at 7:15 p.m. Both games are at Chase Park.

Pee Wee Tryouts Tuesday

Try-outs for the Sanford Pee Wee League will be held Tuesday and Thursday at Chase Park on Celery Avenue in Sanford. The try-out sessions begin at 4:30 p.m. each day.

The league is for 8-and 9-year-olds. Any youngster who will be 8 before Aug. 1, 1962, and will not turn 10 before Aug. 1, 1962, is eligible to play in the league. Each of the six teams in the league will play a 10game season lasting five weeks. The season opens May

The player participation fee for the league is $5.00 and includes a cap which the player keeps and insurance. Any youngster who was on a team last year and is still eligible for the league does not need to attend the try-out sessions. There are still openings for several players in the Sanford Little National and Sanford Little American Leagues. The two leagues especially need 16-and 11year-olds.

Youngsters can sign up for the leagues at the Sanford Recreation Department office at Sanford City Hall. Prospective pee wee leaguers who have not pre-registered can sign up at the field. For additional information, contact the Sanford Recreation Department.

Speedway Postpones Program

New Smyrna Beach, Fla. — Heavy rains and severe weather warnings forced the New Smyrna Speedway race drivers to vote unanimously in favor of postponing Saturday's stock car racing program to this coming Saturday (April 17th).

The vote was definitely a smart move, as a few hours later, the entire infield area, including the pits, was under two feet of water.

The demolition derby along with the 20-car automobile jump by Kenny Powers of Laguna Beach, California, will also take place this Saturday. Veteran independent driver-owner Joe Middleton of

South Daytona leads the late model point standings, while Tommy Patterson of Scottsmoor, who hasn't missed a New Smyrna Speedway racing program in three years, fills the top spot in the thunder car

Dodge enthusiast Orie Smith of Orlando is the highpoint man in the stock class, with "Good Time" Charlie Tolson of Port Orange leading the season-long point chase for the four-cylinder division.

O-Twins Drop Twin Bill

Orlando Twins dropped their second and third games of the season Sunday, 7-1 and 7-6, to the Knoxville Blue Jays in Southern League play at Tinker

Tonight at 7:30, Orlando hosts the Charlotte Orioles for a single game. Tuesday at 7:30 the O-Twins will host their first "25 Cent Beer Nite," also against

In Sunday's second game, the Twins had a 4-3 lead going into the final inning, but Knoxville exploded for four runs, three on a bases-loaded three-bagger by Andre Wood.

Women Bowlers Meet May 2

The Seminole County Women's Bowling Assn. will hold their annual meeting on May 2nd at 1 p.m. at Bowl America of Sanford

There will be elections of Officers, directors and National Delegates. There will also be by-law changes to be voted on and a special invitation is extended to our lower bowlers so we may vote on awards to be given for lower scores.

There will be a no Tap tournament after the meeting but bowlers must be at the meeting to bowl in the Tournament.

Penguins Stay Alive, 5-2

United Press International

Edward J. DeBartolo Sr. and Jerry Buss both learned what Yogi Berra knew a long time ago - it's never over 'til it's over.

DeBartolo, owner of the Pittsburgh Penguins, and Buss, owner of the Los Angeles Kings, gave up on their respective clubs last week and wound up missing some of the most exciting hockey of the season.

The Penguins, who once trailed by two games, squared their series against the New York Islanders with a 5-2 victory Sunday night and are acheduled to settle their series Tuesday night.

The Kings, five goals behind Edmonton in the third period Saturday night, won 6-5 in overtime and can complete a stunning upset of the Ollers tonight.

DeBartolo had ripped the Penguins after two lopsided losses at Long Island and offered a refund for Game 3 to any fan who wanted one. Not only did the Penguins win Game 3, but they used two goals by Andre St. Laurent to embarass the two-time Stanley Oun champions in Game 4.

"We really didn't think about that," said Pittsburgh goalie Michel Dion. "We wanted to do it for ourselves, and for our fans, and of course for our coach and our

In playoff games Sunday, Boston defeated Buffalo 5-2 the New York Rangers topped Philadephia 7-5, Montreal downed Quebec 8-2, Chicago ousted Minnesota 5-2 and St. Louis eliminated Winnipeg 3-2.

Gardner Grows Optimism In Minnesota Greenhouse

United Press International Maybe the Metrodome should have been named "The Greenhouse" because Minnesota Manager Billy Gardner is growing optimism

"The pitchers have hope now," Gardner said Sunday after Pete Redfern burled the Twins to a 3-1 victory over the California Angels. "They have the outlook of, 'Let's go out there and pitch because someone might hit one out for us."

In recent years, about the only thing that grew in the Twins' ballpark was tumbleweed - with the home team doing most of the

Now the Twins play in a new domed stadium with fences within reach of sluggers like Gary Gaetti and Kent Hrbek and suddenly the maligned pitching staff looks better, with Redfern in the lead.

"I just want to pitch every day like I did today," said Redfern. "I have to pace myself. I had real good stuff today and didn't get myself into situations where they could hurt

Randy Johnson hit his first major-league home run and doubled in another run to supply the offense. Redfern, 1-1, walked two, struck out four and was supported by three double

Brewers 14, Blue Jays 5

At Toronto, Ben Oglivie delivered a two-run single to highlight a seven-run first and belted a two-run homer in the ninth. Bob McClure picked up the victory with 3 2-3 innings of relief. Milwaukee tagged Jim Clancy for eight hits in the first inning and finished with 17. Red Sax 6. Orloles 0

At Cleveland, Len Barker tossed an eighthitter and Toby Harrah drove in four runs. Barker struck out three and walked one in boosting his career mark to 6-1 against his former teammates. The righthander had a shutout until the ninth when Jim Sundberg, who had three hits, hit a home run. Tigers 2. Royals 1

At Kansas City, Mo., Kirk Gibson doubled home one run in the fourth and scored the game-winner one batter later on a sacrifice fly by Larry Herndon to lift Detroit behind the combined four-hit pitching of Dave Rozema and Kevin Saucier. Vida Blue lost in his first AL appearance since September, 1977.

White Sox 7-2, Yankees 6-0 At New York, Tony Bernazard doubled in a sixth-inning run and Steve Kemp added an RBI single to help the White Sox complete a sweep. In the opener, Bill Almon tripled in the 12th and scored on a single by Ron LeFlore. The doubleheader marked the season-opener for both clubs, who had been plagued by poor weather.

Mariners 6-1, A's 3-3

At Oakland, Calif., Dwayne Murphy broke an 0-for 23 slump with an RBI double to key a two-run third that helped the A's gain a split. Rick Langford pitched Oakland's first complete game of the season. In the first game, At Baltimore, Carney Lansford drove in four Jim Essian hit a three-run double in the top of

Mahler Blanks Astros

No Peace Pipe For 5-0 Braves

United Press International

Under their new chief, Joe Torre, the Atlanta Braves no longer want to smoke the

When Torre managed the New York Mets he said the Braves always struck him as a bunch of losers who would invariably beat themselves in the late lonings. After taking over the job as Braves' manager this spring he vowed to change that attitude and instill a sense of pride.

Under Torre's constant prodding, the Braves responded with the best record during the exhibition season (18-7) and they've continued on the warpath into the regular

Behind the five-hit pitching of Rick Mahler Sunday, the Braves defeated the Houston Astros, $-0, and remained unbeaten in five games. It marks the best start in the history of the club since it moved to Atlanta and the best for the Braves since the 1957 Milwaukee team won its first five games en route to the world championship.

"It's hard to beat them when they've been doing everything right," said losing pitcher Nolan Ryan after watching his club get swept by the Braves. "I think everybody feels like they are a contender."

Mahler, notching his second straight shutout, ran his scoreless inning string to 23, dating back to his final appearance last season.

"I have never thrown two shutouts in one season in pro ball, let alone two in a row," Mahler said. "I think it's just been confidence more than anything else. I was getting the ball over and I wasn't afraid of the hitters. I was going right at them and pitching my own game.

Mahler got home run support from Dale Murphy, who has three in Atlanta's first five games, and Bob Horner, who broke a zero-tor-13 slump with a solo shot in the eighth inning for the Braves' final run.

Elsewhere in the NL, Philadelphia blanked Montreal 1-0, San Francisco defeated Cincinnati 6-1, St. Louis edged Pittsburgh 7-6 and New York nipped Chicago 54. San Diego at Los Angeles was rained out.

In American League action, Chicago swept a double-header from New York 7-6 in 12 innings and 2-0, Milwaukee crushed Toronto 14-5, Boston blanked Baltimore 6-0, Minnesota topped California 3-1, Cleveland whipped Texas 13-1, Detroit edged Kansas City 2-1 and Seattle and Oakland split a double-header with the Mariners winning 6-3 in 16 innings and the A's taking the second game 3-1.

National League

Phillies 1, Expos 0

At Philadelphia, Garry Maddox drove in Ivan DeJesus with an eighth-inning sacrifice fly to give the Phillies their first victory of the season, Maddox' long drive to center decided a pitching duel between winner Mike Krukow, who tossed a three-hitter, and loser Ray Burria. Krukow, acquired from the Chicago Cubs during the winter, held the Expos hitless through 5 1-3 innings.

Giants 6. Reds 1 At Cincinnati, the Giants benefited from eight walks and two wild pitches to defeat the Reds behind the combined seven-hit pitching of Al Holland and Gary Lavelle. Holland struck out two and walked three in seven innings before giving way to Lavelle. Two of the Reds' runs came on wild pitches by reliever Jim Kern.

Cardinals 7, Pirates 6

At St. Louis, Julio Gonzalez tripled home the tying run with two out in the ninth inning and scored the winning run on a single by Dane lorg to give the Cardinals their victory. With two out, pinch hitter Orlando Sanchez walked and Gonzalez followed with a triple off reliever Enrique Romo before lorg came through with his game-winning hit.

Meta 5. Cuba 4

At Chicago, George Foster's first home run for New York ignited a four-run sixth inning that carried the Mets to victory. Foster blasted a 2-0 pitch off starter Dan Larson, 0-1, into the left-field bleachers to lead off the inning. The Mets then struck for five more hits in the inning with Mookie Wilson's infield single knocking in the go-ahead run. Keith Moreland and Jerry Morales homered for the

Stripper Surprises Shower Guests

DEAR ABBY: Recently my married daughter and several of her girlfriends gave a shower for a bride-to-be. As a surprise gift, one of the girls hired a male stripper to "crash" the party and put on a striptease dance.

None of the girls knew that a male stripper was going to barge in and go into his act. The bride's mother, a very dignified lady of 60, was terribly embarrassed, but she just sat there and made the best of it. (Afterward the girl who had hired the stripper apologized to the bride's mother.1

I am not a prode, but I couldn't sit there in the presence of my elderly mother and just "make the best of it." If a male stripper were to show up at my daughter's shower, would it be all right to get up and leave the room? Or do you think I'd be making a fool of myself?

WORRIED DEAR WORRIED: First,

the guests should be told in stripper-type-surprise is inappropriate. And, if someone has the gall to send one anyway, leave the room. (And take Granny with you.)

DEAR ABBY: I can't believe your answer to the woman with arthritis in her hands. She asked how to get out of shaking hands with everyone in the receiving line at her daughter's wedding, and you told her to tell everyone as he or she approached, "Sorry, I can't shake your hand; I have arthritis."

So if it's a large wedding, can you imagine saying, "Sorry, I can't shake your hand; I have arthritis," 150 times or more? Or should she hang a sign around her neck, advance that the male or have a public announcement made?

I have four daughters, and I also have painful arthritis in my hands. I, too, have wondered what I will do when they get married. I hope someone will write in with a better solution than the one you

So remote and unknown are the Falkland Islands, which 4,000 Argentine troops seized from a handful of British defenders recently, that London newspapers are publishing map-sketches to locate the current crisis for their readers.

As others throughout the world are discovering. the Falklands are barren outposts - a footnote of a vanished empire -lying about 300 miles off the base of the Western Hemisphere and just north of the Antarctic Circle. Less than 2,000 inhabitants, mostly shepherds, dwell among the barren, windswept islands, reminiscent of the nor-thernmost Scottish coast. The Falklanders have repeatedly served notice during the Intermittent negotiations between Argentina and Great Britain over disputed sovereignty that they are British subjects and insists on remaining so. As Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher told an angry House of Commons at its first Saturday session since the 1956 Suez Canal crisis, "The Falkland Islands remain British teritory. No aggression and no invasion can alter that simple fact." Not surprisingly Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington and two deputies resigned in the face of public uproar over the "humiliating affront."

Indeed, the Falklands have been under the British flag since 1833. In contrast with such long possession, the Argentine claim is based on legalistic succession rights from Spain at the time of Argentine independence. So it is that the British decided without hesitating that this humiliation is not to be tolerated; that Argentina is a foe which they can afford to rebuke; and that the circumstances are conducive, permitting full play of their naval prowess even though the Falklands are 8,000 miles distant. In short, if Britain is to defend its honor and restore a measure of self-esteem, this is as good a time and place as any to be expected without risk of a nuclear confrontation between the superpowers.

But the Thatcher government is motivated by far more than national pride. Recent discoveries suggest the Falkland waters may harbor an oil field as large as that in the North Sea, one capable of producing 2 million barrels daily. Moreover, the international practice of claiming 200-mile jurisdiction over fishing and mineral rights gives the scattered Falkland Islands, together with South Georgia 800 miles to the east, a zone the size of Italy.

Aside from this dazzling lure, Argentine President, Gen. Leopoldo Galtieri, and his governing junta in Buenos Aires embarked upon their invasion adventure because of a requirement to distract an increasingly restless populace from pressing domestic difficulties. Besides, as with most aggressors throughout history, they didn't anticipate the reality of retribution, certainly not from the United Nations and not likely from the distant and fatigued British.

And so neither Great Britain, with 40 warships speeding to the Falklands or Argentina, now desperately preparing for the onslaught, can back down. We are witness to a classical scenario of how wars have started since the dawn of history. With a sense of rellef over the conflict's isolation from global danger, the world will watch with fascination as Great Britain, "the good guy," calls out Argentina, "the black hat." To avoid heavy casualties almost certain from a frontal assault on the island, the British are exploiting their sea superiority with a naval blockade on Argentina. They may try to bring the Argentines to the negotiating table through a direct bombardment of appropriate targets on the mainland.

Suffice it to say we hope the British can restore the status quo ante bellum with a minimum of bloodshed because they are as morally right to resist aggression as the Argentines are wrong to commit it. There are only a scant handful of elected or appointed public officials left in Seminole County who were actively involved in local government in the late 190s.

The names of Senford City Manager W.E. "Peta" Knowles and Mayor Lee P. Moore and Casselberry City Clerk Mary Hawthorne and City Attorney Kenneth McIntosh come to mind as four of those very elite.

Perhaps they can remember, as newer officials and newer observers and residents of the county cannot, those days when city officials didn't communicate, let alone meet. And about the only thing city officials had in common was a common enemy — the county commission. City officials' distrust and animosity toward the county was universal among Seminole's cities.

But the idea of a forum for all to discuss common problems and to work out common solutions caught on. Ultimately Sanford, Oviedo and Lake Mary and even the Seminole County Commission were invited to join. The new name of the organization which had been known by the acronym "CALNO" — composed of the first initial of each member city — was changed to Council of Local Governments in Seminole County.

Officials have come and gone but the organization has remained. Yes, a lot of gabbing goes on at the meetings. And when the organization decides to act, its recommendations flow through the cities like greased

Those Dutch Journalists

I am sorry that anyone at all is being shot in El Salvador, but I do not regard those four Dutch journalists who died as any different in any way from the combatants on either side. They and many of the other journalists down there have been using the news media as a powerful weapon, mostly on the communist side.

What we know at this point is murky. The name of one of the four, Jacobus Koster, 46, had been in the pocket of a slain guerrilla. All four were therefore questioned by the police.

On the day they died, the four act out to film the war from the guerrilla side near the rural village of Santa Rita in Chalatenango province. They met their guerrilla contacts around 5 p.m. reportedly in a dry river bed. At the point, according to the El Salvadoran government, a fire-fight ensued between army and guerrilla forces and the four journalists were killed, also some guerrillas.

Maybe so. But there is a widespread and plausible suspicion that the guerrillas and the four journalists were ambushed and shot.

The Dutch government has protested loudly, there have been demonstrations in Holland and elsewhere, and assorted clergy and others have been saying the usual things.

Whatever the truth about exactly how they died, whether caught in a cross-fire or simply shot on the spot, the essential truth of the affair is obvious. We learn from the press that Koster and one of the others, Jan Kulper, 39, were famous in Holland for their !'deep emotional commitment to Latin American revolutionary movements." Koster had made a stridently pro-revolutionary movie called "Revolution or Death." There is little doubt what kind of coverage these journalists would produce as a result of their current expedition.

A television camera or a movie camera is as much a weapon in the El Salvadoran struggle as an M-16 or a Kallahnikov automatic rifle. Everyone agrees, for example, that the government needs U.S. military aid in order to survive, much less prevail — and that aid depends upon U.S. Congressional and public opinion. Thus, as it was during the Vietnam War, opinion represents a major area of combat.

And of course again like the Vietnam War, the one in El Salvador has an international dimension. These were Dutch journalists but they made a specialty of Latin American revolutions, which they deeply supported.

Recently, New York Times executive editor A.M. Rosenthal visited El Salvador for a first-hand look. As reported in Time, Rosenthal said that he had never seen a situation "where journalism was more a part of the process." Everyone knows, on both sides, that a TV sequence may well be worth a thousand bullets.

As a journalist myself, I certainly sympathize with honest professionals who are trying to get the accurate story. But that description does not fit the four Dutchmen.

On that basis, if it is understandable why a patriotic Salvadoran soldier, risking his life to save his country from a totalitarian nightmare, would have shot the Dutch journalists atone dead in that river bed.

Nuclear Survival Policy

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The later stages of the Carter administration were characterized by rapid policy shifts on a variety of issues. Now the Reagan administration is exhibiting a growing propensity for the same kind of behavior.

The latest shift was quick enough to have been amusing had it not been for the gravity of the subject matter: this nation's ability to survive a nuclear exchange with the Soviet Union. Various administration officials have suggested over the past six months that proper planning could make a nuclear exchange "survivable."

For instance, T.K. Jones, the deputy under secretary of defense, told the Los Angeles Times in January that after a nuclear exchange "everyone is going to make it if there are enough shovels to go around."

The idea was for people to construct simple fallout shelters by digging holes in the ground and covering them with doors or similar items and then with 3 feet of dirt. The dirt was to stop the radiation from penetrating the shelters.

Many in the Defense Department have been much enamored of the Soviet program of civil defense. "If we used the Russian methods for protecting both the people and the industrial means of production, recovery time could be two to four years," said Jones in that same interview.

He meant that adequate preparedness

He meant that adequate preparedness would enable our gross national product — and, by implication, our standard of living — to return to the current level within four years after a major nuclear exchange.

Then the Federal Emergency Management Agency, the government agency responsible for civil defense, chimed in with a prediction that "the United States could survive a nuclear attack and could go on to recovery within a relatively few years."

That statement became policy in late March when the agency announced a seven-year $4.2 billion program to prepare for the "relocation" of two-thirds of the U.S. population in the event of a nuclear attack. The purpose, of course, was to enable this country to survive such a strike.

Currently we are spending less than $200 million a year on civil defense.

Agency spokesman James Holton explained that plans would be made for relocating the residents of 380 "high-risk" areas to "host" areas away from prospective blast centers.

Among the high-risk centers are a number of strategic military sites and almost every metropolitan area of more than 50,000 people. Holton explained that the host centers would not stock foodstuffs — as did the fall-out shelters of the 1950s and 1960s — but rather that "we might ask people to take food with them."

Key to the plan is the assumption that the Soviets will provide us with at least a week's warning of an impending nuclear attack. That would give Mr. Average American enough time to load the wife and kids into the station wagon, drive to the supermarket for six months' or a year's worth of food, and proceed on to the designated host area.

This plan has met with understandable skepticism on Capitol Hill. The administration has not yet explained whether it thinks that the Soviets would fail to notice that two-thirds of our population was on the move and wait the necessary week before launching their first strike.

The central isrue is not whether billions should be spent on a massive new civil-defense plan but whether the Reagan administration really believes that a nuclear war is survivable.

Many — including members of the growing peace movement in Europe — fear that such a belief might make this country more willing to risk a nuclear exchange. These concerns have put the administration in a difficult position with the European allies as well as with much of the Congress.

It was in this context that the Senste armscontrol subcommittee summoned Jones, Holton and Assistant Secretary of Defense Richard Perie to Capitol Hill on March 31.

The three radically changed their position during a three-hour hearing that could best be described as acrimonious.

ANTHONY HARRIGAN

Leveling Welfare Notions

Prof. James Tobin of Yale University, the liberal economist who won a Nobel prize in economics this year, is a committed social and economic leveler.

In a recent statement, he commented that "Here, as in other democracles, governments have sought to arrest the momentum of inequality by free public education, social insurance, 'war on poverty' measures and progressive taxation. The U.S. budget and tax legislation of 1981 is an historic reversal of direction. The message is clear enough: inequality of opportunity is no longer a concern of the federal government."

That's good political rehetoric for defenders of the liberal status quo. It bears scant relation to the truth, however.

The Reagan administration has hardly touched the enormous edifice of the welfare state. True, it has made a valiant effort to dismantle it to some degree, but the welfare legislation is set in concrete in the form of entitlements. It is a difficult legislative task to reduce benefits for those who believe they have a right to be supported by the government.

But let's consider Prof. Tobin's basic point, namely that it is the duty of democratic governments to arrest inequality. There was a time, in Edwardian England, for example, that economic inequality was a serious problem. But that's not the problem today and has not been for many years. In our time, the problem is that government is a destroyer of opportunity. In America successive, liberal administrations denied energetic, productive citizens the fruits of their labor. These administrations sought to redistribute wealth from those who created it to those who wanted to share in it without making contributions to society.

The mandate of the Reagan victory was to stop the process of redistribution. That can be described as "an historic reversal of direction." But the message delivered by the voters was not for inequality but for op-

A country that doesn't give free rein to opportunity through enterprise becomes like the Soviet Union or Poland, a aluggish, stagnant society. People who aren't permitted to enjoy the fruits of their labors are unwilling to work hard and create the wealth a nation needs.

Prof. Tobin is not the first liberal theoretician to believe that government's proper role is that of a leveling influence. Such theoreticians produced the New Deal, Fair Deal, the Great Society and the measures of the Carter administration. Such theoreticians also gave us our deteriorated industries, sick cities and less than fully energized work force. A leveling government created the colossal burden of government that accounts for the massive deficits the country faces. They were so bent on fighting poverty through welfare that deprived productive citizens of the savings required for investment in new enterprises.

It is a great mistake to believe that a democratic society has to be a society of total equality. If the indolent are rewarded and the energetic are penalised, a society won't long remain free. In this situation, the energetic are subjected to a kind of involuntary servitude.

They Would Gladly Leave Home Island

WASHINGTON — I am often asked about the plight of the gentle people of East Timor, who were overwhelmed in a sudden, savage attack more than six years ago by their neighbor — and our ally — Indonesia. Despite an almost total blackout of news, it was estimated that perhaps a third of the 600,000 East Timorese had died in either the brutal invasion or in the slower but equally brutal starvation engineered by their conquerors.

As I reported more than two years ago, the United States played a shameful role in the agony of East Timor. The Indonesian troops who invaded the tiny country before dawn on Dec. 7, 1975, were equipped with American arms.

Then-President Gerald Ford had given tacit approval to the Indonesian aggression not 24 hours before, persuaded by his latter-day Metternich, Henry Kissinger, that the United States must keep oil-rich, anti-communist Indonesia as an ally in Southeast Asia at all costs. The cost was great, and it was the poor people of East Timor who paid the price for Kissinger's global strategy considerations. The current situation in East Timor is shoulded in mystery mainly because the shrouded in mystery, mainly because the indonesians will not permit journalists to roam the area. However, my sources tell me that little has changed over the past six years. Though lacking the insensate francy of the initial slaughter, the indonesian repression continues.

Eight months ago, sources told my associate Jack Mitchell, Indonesian soldiers conducted a vicious "pacification" operation on the former Portuguese colony. The sweep was described as a "cyclone" by the Catholic bishop of Dili, the capital city, and he charged that "innocent children of two or three and pregnant women" were butchered by the report on human rights mentions "allegations of killings" and "detentions" of natives. But the diplomats tidily classify the charges as "difficult to confirm," taking refuge in the fact that Indonesia "has been more restrictive in granting access to East Timor by outside observers during the past year than in 1860."

Amnesty International is not so squeamish. The respected human rights watchdog group bluntly reports that East Timorese listed as having disappeared were "in fact killed shortly after being taken into custody of indonesian troops." At least 2,000 individuals have been detained without trial, and only recently have the Indonesians allowed visitors into the prisons in what they regard as simply another province of Indonesia.

The East Timorese are still regarded as Portuguese citizens, but the government in Lisbon has been powerless to do more than arrange for a couple of dozen refugees to escape the prison that their homeland has become. Given the chance, most East Timorese would give everything they own to leave their island.

The Ford administration's disgraceful collaboration in the Indonesian rape of East Timor was continued by Jimmy Carter. Despite his plous protestations of concern for human rights, he too chose to look the other way rather than risk offending our Indonesian ally.

President Resgan has an opportunity to reverse this hands-off policy. A new ambassador of Jakarta has yet to be named, and several key foreign service experts on Southeast Ada and due to be applied.

Southeast Asia are due to be replaced.

What the president needs to decide is whether Indonesia's oil and anti-communism are worth more than the lives of the East Timorese and the further tarnishing of America's once-proud reputation as the protector of the weak and defenseless.

Yanks Uninspired In Season Opener

NEW YORK (UPI) - Pick whichever word you like. Flat, drab, dull or uninspired, and any one you apply to the New York Yankees is appropriate to describe the way they opened their season with the Chicago White Sox. It wasn't so much that they lost a doubleheader. They've done that before. It was how they did it that caused a lot of people to defect from the ballpark so early. To put it in its simplest form, the defending American League champs were wretched. They played as if they were under anesthetic, ab sorbing a 7-6 beating in Sunday's 12 inning opener at Yankee Stadium that was immediately followed by a 3-0 whitewashing administered by left-hander Britt Burns and rookle right-hander

Salome Barojas in the nightcap. "We were outplayed," said Lou Piniella, trying to minimize the two opening day losses to the White Sox. "They got a good ball club." Not really that good. The White Sox may turn out to be, but they're not there yet by any means. They missed a few signs and gummed up a couple of plays but still were able to sweep both ends of the doubleheader. Maybe the best commentary on the Yankees was evidenced by how few of the original 31,008 fans who passed up the Easter Day Parade to come out to see their twice-delayed season opener were still left in the stands at the end.

The White Sox certainly had no kicks coming. They came back from a 4-1 deficit to beat Goose Gossage in the opener when Bill Alason tripled over Dave Winfield's head in the 12th and rode home on Ron LeFlore's single. Then they got to Tommy John for their two runs in the sixth inning of the nightcap on Almon's single, Tony Bernazard's double and Steve Kemp's single.

Every time White Sox manager Tony LaRussa went to his bullpen, he looked like a genius. Watching the White Sox from his press level seat unstairs behind home plate, General Manager Roland Hemond couldn't conceal his delight over Almon, who had such a fine year last year when no one thought he could after the White Sox originally had him ticketed for one of their minor league chubs. "You remember?" Hemond said to the man, sitting alongside him, Eddie Einhorn.

"I remember, all right," smiled Einhorn, who formally bought the White Sox with Jerry Reinadorf on Feb. 4, 1981.

"He," said Hemond to a writer, pointing down on the field toward Almon, leading off first, "was our first sequisition under Jerry and Eddie's ownership. We got him the day before Jerry and Eddle actually took over the chub, on Feb. 3. i told Bill Veeck I wanted to take a shot on Almon and he said I should call Jerry to see if it was OK. I called Jerry and he said 'whatever you think."

Hernord signed Almon to 2 Triple A contract but invited him to the White Sox training camp

Stadler Staggers To Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) - It doesn't bother Stadler that he blew a six-shot lead before winning the Masters golf championship in a

"I'll take them," said the chunky, 28-year-old Californian, "anyway I can get them."

Stadier was so far ahead of the rest of the field at one point Sunday, he let his mind drift while savoring in advance the glory of winning the Masters.

But while he was bogeying four of the final seven holes for a 73, Masters newcomer Dan Pohl was enroute to a second straight 67 to wind up tied with Stadler at 4-under-par 284 at the end of

"I never even thought about a playoff at the time," said Pohl. "I played the 18th thinking I was three strokes behind and playing for

Stadler was in the same frame of mind at that

"First time I saw Pohl on the board was when he was 4-under," said Stadler, "I was 7-under at that time and my only thought was maybe I'd better get another birdle to be safe."

A three-putt green at No. 14 cut Stadler's lead to two. It dropped to one when he hit what appeared to be a great bunker shot at 16 only to have the ball keep rolling on the green. Stadler was on the par four 18th in 2, 35 feet from the cup and needing a par to win. "I was guarding against going by the hole and to the left," said Stadler. "I thought it would be up there two or three feet." Instead, it was eight and when Stadler missed that one it was back to No. 10 for the sudden-death playoff with Pohl. "I wasn't down, although I was a little displeased with myself after 18," said Stadler. "I never thought about losing, no negative thoughts at all. I knew one of us was going to win it and I figured it might as well be me."

The playoff lasted only one hole. Stadler put his approach shot on the green while Pohl was on the fringe. Pohl putted to six feet, then Stadler putted to two feet, parred out and then walked over to the side to wait for Pohl to putt. started going left," said Stadler. "I thought, 'Oh my God, he missed it.' It took me about eight' great feeling. I'm not sure if it's sunk in yet."

Winning the Masters was worth a tournamentrecord $61,000 to Stadler and vaulted him to the top of this year's money list at $211,557 - making this the third straight year he has gone over the $200,000 mark.

"I really don't have an answer for what else the Masters means," said Stadler. "I haven't had time to think about it."

Pohl, 27, said he was pleased to have finished second, especially since the $39,000 consolation prize was seven times as much as he had won previously this year.

"I don't feel like I lost," he said. "I felt like I was a winner today. It was my first playoff, my first Masters. Unless you have been in that position, you don't know how to react. You can second guesa yourself all day long, but once it's over, it's over."

Stadler and Pohl finished regulation play one shot ahead of former U.S. Open champion Jerry Pate, who missed a 30-foot birdie putt on the final bole that would have made it a three-way playoff, "It looked like he made a good putt, but it and 1980 Masters champion Seve Ballesteros of seconds to realise what happened. It's obviously a tournament favorite Tom Kite were two more shots back at 1-under 287 as only six golfers in the original field of 76 were able to break par for 72 holes over the Augusta National course with its exceptionally fast greens.

The weather didn't help either. The first round was played in steady rain with 36 players having to finish it the following morning and second round play was hindered by wind.

Five-time champion Jack Nicklaus, who finished back in the pack at 292 after closing with a 75, had predicted at midweek that even par would have a chance to win.

Stadler joins Watson as the only two-time winners on the PGA Tour so far this year, having also won the Tucson Open the first week of the tour. It also was the seventh time this year he has been in the top 10 - finishing second in the Crosby, tying for fourth at Bay Hill and tying for fifth in the Doral Open. "I've been playing well all year," said Stadier, who has now won more than $817,000 in just six years, "I should have won three other tournaments this year. I gave it away at Bay Hill and Doral but I really don't feel that bad about the Crosby since (winner) Jim Simons had a 32 over the last nine there."

Pohl Says Near Miss Is Boost, Not Letdown

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) - For Dan Pohl, his nor r miss in his first Masters is more a boost than

The 27-year-old, even-tempered runnerup from Mt. Pleasant, Mich., began the golf tournament with little faith in his game, no illusions about winning and not much more than $6,000 in PGA prize money this year.

Add to that his problems from a nagging shoulder injury suffered in the Quad Cities Open two years ago and his unfamiliarity with Augusta National's tortuous course and it's easy to see why Pohl figured his chances were slim at best.

But, as stocky Craig Stadler fell spart in agonizing bits and pieces on the back nine, Pohl was cast suddenly into a playoff role he never imagined possible. Stadler's three-putt bogey on No. 18 threw the pair into a tie at 4-under-par 204, setting up a dramatic sudden-death match starting on the per-4, 485-yard 19th. Stadler two-putted for a par and slipped into the winner's traditional green jacket shortly after Pohl's 7-iron second shot hit the back fringe, his first putt came up short and his $-foot, "fairly easy" par puti slipped past the cup.

"I came here with no confidence," said Pohl, undisputably the PGA tour's longest hitter at Ifeet-11 and 175 pounds - mustache and all. "I hate to lose the way I did, but I don't think I lost. I feel like a winner today. I'm just glad to have put on a good show."

Pohl called his play this year "shaky at best," but said his move from relative obscurity to a his attitude and pocketbook. He took home 230,000

"This really is a boost for my morale. Even to finish second is a great feeling — I didn't think I'd be there at the first of the week," he said.

"I think my Mom's having a coronary," Pohl quipped. "And every time I made a putt I could hear my brother over everybody, so I'm glad I kept the family excited."

Pohl, whose two eagles and two birdles over a four-hole span set a tournament record en route to his 5-under 87 Saturday, said he had no perticular "game plan" going into Sunday's final round, when he also shot 67.

He called his birdie 2 at the treacherous 12th on the "Amen Corner" the turning point of his round Sunday, but "even at that point Craig was matching everybody birdie for birdie. You felt like he was going to run away with it."

Pohl admitted he fett jittery when the playoff began, and said nerves definitely affected his finish.

"It was my first time in that position and my first time in the Masters, so I'd be a fool to say I wasn't a little nervous walking down the 18th fairway," said Pohl, whose best finish before Sunday was 3rd in the PGA tournament of 1961, a year he won $64,363 in prize money.

"I think I played too passively on the second shot and on that first putt," he observed. "I let him off with a relatively easy playoff win, I

Coast Guard Hunts Rocers

EAN FRANCISCO (UPI) - Two yachts with four people aboard were missing today from a weekend race disrupted by a spring storm packing $6-mph winds and $5-foot swells. The squall also was blamed for a collision that killed two men in a sailboat.

The Coast Guard dispatched four boats, 12 planes and a helicopter to the Pacific off the Golden Gate Bridge to look for the missing craft, but was forced to call off their search Sunday night because of darkness and heavy man.

Boy, 16, Accused Of Murder

YALE, Mich. (UPI) - Police say first-degree murder charges will be filed against a 18-year-old boy who operated a small business with one of five family members slain in Michigan's third mass killing in less then two months.

A funeral for the victims, Elizabeth Giuliani, $6, and her four adopted children, Eric, 19; Kathleen, 18; Cynthia, 13; and Dean, 9, was to be held today in this small eastern Michigan community, which had not had a killing for almost 50 years.

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT: Tornadoes and rain wracked dozens of homes and caused 80-foot wide sinkholes in Florida and 25foot seas splintered boats in California's wettest spring in nearly a century. Two men in a sailboat were killed and four people were missing today off San Francisco. Winter refused to release its grip from the lower Great Lakes to the Appalachians where cold temperatures and light snows forced residents to hide their Easter finery under heavy coats Sunday. Up to 4 inches of rain poured on the western mountain slopes of northern and central California, renewing the threat of heavy flooding due to snowmell from a near-record snowpack in the Sierra Nevada range. Record snow up to 40 feet deep was reported in the mountains. The National Weather Service said the 1961-82 rainy season in central California is the wettest in nearly a century. San Francisco has had over 26 inches.

estimate of how much damage was suffered by county He indicated most of the damge was caused by flooding after more than 2,000 window panes at various schools were blown out by blath winds. Carlton said the hardest hit areas were Senford, Geneva and Midway. Pine Crest Elementary School suffered 800 broken panes while Crooms High School, Sanford Middle School and Southside Elementary School had more than 180 panes each blown out.

Pine Crest Principal Carem Gager said winds Thursday afternoon blew window panes out like they were paner and threw shattered glass throughout the classrooms. Gager said it was fortunate there was no school on Thursday, due to the Easter break. He said several students and school personnel probably would have been injured by flying glass had school been in session.

He estimated it would cost about $8 each to repair the broken panes, placing a $6,400 damage estimate on his school alone, not including cleanup costs.

Israel Braces For Strike After Arab Mosque Attack

JERUSALEM (UPI) - Israel braced today for a weeklong Arab strike and protest in the occupied territories for the rifle assault of an American-born Israeli soldier on Islam's sacred Dome of the Rock mosque. Two Arabs were killed and 19 others wounded.

The attack touches off the worst rioting since Israel annexed east Jerusalem in 1967. More than 100 people were injured, including 12 American, German and Norwegian tourists in Jerusalem for Easter Sunday observances, an Israeli news agency said.

U.S. ambassador Samuel Lewis, who met with Begin for three hours Sunday, said he was "very reassured" the fragile cease-fire may be maintained. He said Begin assured him the Israeli Cabinet made no plans for an assault in a six-hour meeting Sunday.

Trooper Fired For Quota Shortfall?

LEESBURG (UPI) - P.M. Taylor, a li-year veteran of the Florida Highway Patrol, says he was fired from the force because he didn't write enough speeding tickets.

Taylor, 47, said Florida Highway Patrol troopers nowadays are more interested in writing speeders' tickets than safety. Sgt. N.H. Duttenhaver, his supervisor, denied the petrol has a ticket quota and said Taylor was evaluated on the same standards used to judge other officers. "It used to be that you weren't going to get a borderline ticket from the highway patrol," said Taykur. "Now you could. They don't consider how you treat people, your knowledge of your job, how you conduct yourself and so on."

Taylor, who was dismissed Friday, said troopers in the Leesburg station wrote between 25 and 80 tickets last month.

Taylor was suspended once this year for substandard quality of work, which he also attributed to his lack of ticket writing.
