Would you know what to do if you were bitten by a rattlesnake? You might need to know, since Florida is one of the three leading states for snake bites. And Central Florida has more snakes than coastal areas because many snakes are found near lakes, rivers and streams. In Sunday's Herald, Sanford Surgeon H. Garrett Dodson explains how to handle rattlesnake and other poisonous snake bites and how to avoid being bitten in the first place.

Williams Defends Proposal

Layer Disputes Teacher Plan

Seminole County School Board Member Roland Williams suggested at the board's regular meeting Wednesday the school district hire two new teachers to give art and music instruction at four or five of the county's smaller elementary schools.

The larger elementaries, he said, provide such specialized instruction.

The new teachers would cost the board about $38,000.

Superintendent of Schools William P. Layer advised earlier that such additions would affect the amount of dollars spent per child at those schools and would throw off "comparability" among schools.

He said comparability, of the same number of dollars spent per child in each school, is required to get federal funds because the government requires that all schools be treated equally, which precludes supplementing some over others.

But Williams said the comparability funding formula is too complex for Layer to say hiring the two teachers would throw comparability off.

The board tabled discussion of the claim made by Sanford architect Eoghan Kelley that the school district owes him an additional $55,000 for his work in the design of Rock Lake Middle School. School Board Attorney Ned Julian Jr. reported that he had not yet finished reviewing the documents in which Kelley states his claim.

In other action Wednesday, the board waived for the parents of six students its policy requiring requests for school transfers to be made before July 1 preceding the school year for which the transfer is to take effect.

The parents all said they had not heard of the July 1 deadline and the board indicated that the deadline should be waived if it is not published in each school's student handbook.

The board agreed to discuss the July 1 policy at its next meeting.

The board also approved job descriptions for three new positions, two to be totally funded by a federal grant.

The positions are for:

- A psychologist to provide diagnosis and therapy for selected students and consultative services to parents, counselors and teachers.
- A fleet safety and route manager to be responsible for routing and scheduling of buses for exceptional students.
- A psychologist for the emotionally handicapped to provide psychological and support services to teachers and parents.

A fourth position description for a person to write applications for exceptional student education federal grants, was not approved pending rewriting of the description of duties. —DIANE PETRYK

County Gives New Housing Deal To Feds

By DIANE PETRYK
Herald Staff Writer

In a rush to meet an already extended federal deadline, Seminole County Housing Authority Executive Director Tom Wilson left for Jacksonville this morning to hand-deliver to federal officials the county commission's newly amended "cooperation agreement," which he said he hopes will satisfy requirements for obtaining $4 million in federal funds for a housing project in the county.

The deadline for federally approved cooperation agreement between the housing authority and the county is Friday.

But U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development officials warned earlier that they didn't like the idea of tampering with their standard agreement. And even if Seminole County's changes should prove acceptable, there may not be enough time to get the necessary approvals, said HUD official Graham Thomas.

Hanging in the balance is the 74-unit housing development planned to be built somewhere in Seminole County. It would provide low-rent dwellings for economically qualified renters in the form of 24 small-family units and 54 large-family units.

But before doing out funds for such projects, federal officials want the local government to agree to cooperate with the housing authority in such matters as police and fire protection, road maintenance and sewer and water service.

The county has no objection to promising to provide police and fire protection for the development, but balked at promising special services not provided for private developers. A federal agreement required such special services and the county chose to delete them from the cooperation agreement.

Although a draft of the Seminole version of HUD's 40-year-old agreement was mailed to Thomas July 24, according to the county attorney's office, the county commission decided Tuesday to further amend it before signing the official copy.

The amendment cuts out more federal demands for county services to be provided to the proposed tax-exempt housing project.

The commissioners voted to replace promises that the county would provide road and sidewalk improvements for all streets bounding the project and water mains and storm and sanitary sewer mains leading to the project with the following statement:

"In respect to the construction of roads, sidewalks, drainage facilities, the providing of water and sewer facilities and other required public improvements, the county shall treat the local (housing) authority in the same manner as developers of privately owned sites are treated."

On July 22 HUD's Housing Division Director Donald Odenthal stated HUD would not accept the amended agreement. But HUD's Area Deputy Manager Jo Ann Stanton said July 25 that HUD would review the county's version as they review all cooperation agreements.

Nevertheless, Thomas maintained there will not be sufficient time for bond attorneys, who will finance the housing project, to study the amended document.

Although earlier deadlines for allocating the housing funds were extended, Thomas said housing project funds earmarked to be for the Central Florida area must be assigned before September by requirement of the Office of Management and Budget in Washington.

"We just don't have time to fool around with it," said Thomas. "There may be some places where the agreement could be improved, but we use it all across the country and haven't had any problem with it."

"There are a lot of things in the agreement that are somewhat obsolete," he added. "But a crusade against it now will not get this project through."

Plane Holding 200 Crashes

NOUAKCHOTT, Mauritania (UPI) — A Romanian Taron Airlines jet with 200 Romanian fishermen aboard crashed in the Atlantic Ocean today off the coast of Mauritania, it was reported today.

Radio Mauritania said 160 passengers were missing and 40 have been rescued. Rescue boats were searching the waters for other survivors.

The Soviet-built Tupolev crashed at 5 a.m. (11 p.m. EDT Wednesday) near the Mauritanian port of Nouadhibou.

The flight, which left Bucharest, was carrying Romanian fishermen who were to replace a fishing crew in a Mauritanian port where Romania has fishing rights.

"The cause of the crash is unknown," a director at Mauritania Radio said. "The investigators are looking into the reasons as to why it fell into the sea. They are looking for bodies."

Allen Regains Power As Cubans Head For Shelter

MERIDA, Mexico (UPI) — Hurricane Allen, the mightiest western Caribbean storm on record, bore down on western Cuba and Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula today with pulverizing 170 mph winds, sending tens of thousands of people scurrying for shelter.

Allen's winds increased by 20 mph — from 150 to 170 mph — during the morning as it headed for the Gulf of Mexico and away from the Caribbean islands, where it left at least 51 dead, thousands homeless and damage in the millions of dollars. In addition to the death toll in the Caribbean, at least one person was killed and 13 were missing in the crash of a helicopter that had been removing oil moving about 15 mph on a course varying between west and west-northwest.

"The strengthening and minor wobbles could result in the center passing over either the extreme western tip of Cuba or the northeast tip of the Yucatan Peninsula," the National Hurricane Center in Miami said. "This should bring extreme winds to the western tip of Cuba within the next hour or two and the northeast Yucatan Peninsula by late morning."

Forecast Alvin Samet said Allen's winds easily could reach 200 mph.

"It's a category five hurricane (strongest possible rating) at the present time it is one of the strongest hurricanes we've ever had..." When the pressure drops, that means the hurricane is intensifying, and the pressure is dropping. We will see stronger winds with a drop like this."

"It's hard to say just how fast the winds will get," Samet said. "It is certainly true the gusts could reach 200 miles an hour. There is no doubt they'll get that high. But when any storm has the intensity of Allen... a few more miles an hour pushing it up to 200 miles an hour is not going to make that much difference."

"People inside the gulf, in the Mississippi and Texas, Louisiana areas should not begin serious preparation yet. I don't think anything should be done until the storm passes into the gulf because it still has to cross a land mass... which is going to slow it down. But by all means stay alert... Allen is dangerous," Samet said.

The popular Mexican resort island of Cozumel, Cancun and Isla Mujeres were fully exposed to the storm that devastated St. Lucia in the Windward Islands and battered the Dominican Republic, Haiti, Jamaica and the tiny Cayman Islands.

On Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula, government authorities activated disaster emergency plans, and PEMEX, the state-owned oil monopoly, evacuated 1,961 employees from oil rigs and stations in the Gulf.

Some 1,500 tourists, most of them Americans and Europeans, were evacuated from the posh Isla Mujeres resort island off the Yucatan Peninsula, local port authorities said. The tourists were taken to Puerto Juarez on the Yucatan's eastern coast.

The map shows Allen's progress the past three days. Today's 9 a.m. coordinates for the storm are latitude 20.8 north and longitude 85.0 west. It was moving about 15 mph on a course varying between west and west-northwest.

Tax Amendment Needed 3,500 More Signatures

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

The constitutional amendment on the Oct. 7 primary election ballot calling for an increase in homestead exemptions loomed larger today with the failure suffered by county property appraisers throughout the state Wednesday to have their proposed constitutional amendment placed on the November general election ballot.

The October referendum, called for under legislation passed during the 1980 session, calls for an increase in homestead exemptions from $4,000 to $15,000 this year; $20,000 in 1981 and $25,000 in 1982.

The appraisers began collecting signatures for the proposed amendment after Gov. Bob Graham announced he would enforce the constitutional requirement of 100 percent property evaluations for tax purposes.

The October referendum, called for under legislation passed during the 1980 session, calls for an increase in homestead exemptions from $4,000 to $15,000 this year; $20,000 in 1981 and $25,000 in 1982.

Locally, Seminole County Property Appraiser Terry Goembel's office is reappraising all properties within the county. Goembel has estimated the average increase in assessments will be 40 percent.

Lake County Property Appraiser Ed Havill, who led a committee called "Citizens Proposition for Tax Relief," whose membership was composed of 64 of the state's 67 property appraisers, said today he may file suit asking for re-evaluation of some 60,000 signatures rejected by various elections supervisors throughout Florida.

Havill said the possibility exists that a recheck of the rejected signatures may turn up the additional 3,500 needed. He said the committee's legal action will be paid for out of a $35,000 fund raised through private donations so far.

"The main reason we came up with the concept of their constitutional amendment," Havill said, "is because of the governor's order to go to 100 percent market value."

Saying property appraisers expect increased property taxes will be a result of the 100 percent property assessments, Havill said the public will see the wisdom of the appraisers' prediction when their tax bills come out later this year.

No Easy Solution

It won't be easy to restore full employment in America's basic industries — steel, automobile, and rubber. These industries are locked into labor relations that are as obsolete as many of the plants that have been shut down.

The major heavy industries suffer from common problems: lagging investment, over-regulation by the federal government, subsidized or directed foreign competition, high energy costs, and monopoly unionism.

The administration could remove some of the problems, notably excessive regulation. It could relax emission standards on power plants which, in turn, would mean greater availability of fuel, notably high sulphur coal available in abundance.

A tough-minded administration could insist that Japan limit its exports of automobiles to the United States. Arranging for more investment capital will require far-reaching change in the tax laws, especially provisions for more rapid tax write-offs on new plant and equipment.

The most vexing problem will be reform of labor relations. For a generation, many major companies have felt compelled to go along with almost anything proposed by the labor unions. As a result, major industries are overmanned, unable to introduce an adequate degree of automation, suffer from low productivity, and pay out too much in wages and benefits.

Wage settlements in the auto industry have been across the board, irrespective of the differing financial conditions at the various companies. Weak companies have been compelled to pay the same high wages as companies with rich treasuries.

Dr. Arnold R. Weber, provost and professor of economics at Carnegie-Mellon University, made this point in a guest column in The New York Times. He said: Adherence to comprehensive bargaining structures has meant the uniform application of costs to the lame and the swift alike. This pincer effect has hastened the shutdown of marginal steel mills and fabricating plants, provoked extensive surgery by the major rubber companies, and helped tighten the noose around Chrysler.

Realism dictates a profound change in labor relations. There is little hope of ending unemployment and re-industrializing America if the practice of industry-wide bargaining isn't ended. Industry-wide bargaining is an aspect of monopoly unionism.

Chrysler, for example, should be free to look for employees who will work for what Chrysler is able to offer, not at what the United Auto Workers says the company should pay. The UAW, of course, is opposed to free exercise of the right to work. It prefers that its members receive unemployment assistance than work in an auto plant at something above the minimum wage.

This outlook is derived from the union's view that the union, in effect, owns the jobs held by its members. Unions in America are determined to restrict the employer's right to hire, which is part of their right to assure survival.

This system must be transformed if we are to return to full employment and to prosperity for our manufacturing industries. As yet, the politicians are unwilling to acknowledge this truth. They fear to offend the unions. Their silence condemns thousands of Americans to unemployment.

Them That Has...

At first reading, the project is a mind-bogger. About the last thing Saudi Arabia would want is a new energy source. Yet it is giving serious thought to publishing development of solar power in order to earn its oil reserves, the world's largest.

It's spelled out in "Saudi Report," a newsletter produced in the United States (Houston, appropriately) but devoted to information about the kingdom and dissemination of Saudi political and economic views.

Briefly, the idea is to exploit climatic conditions — virtually cloudless skies and consistently high temperatures — that are ideal for converting the sun's light and heat into usable energy.

Envisaged is the utilization of banks of collector panels to absorb heat from the sun and transfer it to water. Depending upon auxiliary equipment through which the water would be subsequently circulated, it could be used for either heating or cooling purposes.

In the latter case, heat from water at temperatures just short of boiling vaporizes a chemical solution (lithium bromide and water). The vapor passing through a set of coils causes condensation, producing cool air to be circulated by a fan system.

In skilled air conditioning, which is the primary use to which the Saudis would put waste power. Since the prevailing climate conditions are ideal for producing power, it's a matter of building such a system in a desert area where the sun's intensity is at its peak.

The Saudis, of course, have the wherewithal to generate electricity from oil if anyone does. But before dismissing the project as an exercise in redundancy, consider a couple of positive points.

Solar power is in its infancy. It holds great promise but initial progress will be slow. It would certainly make sense to concentrate efforts where natural conditions are most advantageous. Even more sense if done on a mutually beneficial cooperative basis.

The industrial nations, less favored climatically but possessing the essential technology, could supply the latter to their eventual benefit in making practical use of the Saudi developments.

And the Saudis oil conserved would not go to waste, according to the newsletter, by channeling into petrochemical uses, which a point frequently made by the late Shah of Iran.

Beginning back in the early '70s when OPEC was commencing its raids on the industrial world's treasuries, it was the Shah's position that encasing oil prices were much more than a means of enriching the producing countries. They were essential to compelling a more economic use of a finite resource, oil, the basis of a wide range of artificial materials essential to modern economies, is much too valuable to be squandered by being burned for fuel.

Abscam Tapes Reveal Feet Of Clay

WASHINGTON — Lately, Congress has become a baffling source of incredulity and dismay. There has been a succession of luring occurrences, which should confound any lingering childhood impressions of heroic figures in maroon tails.

Many a financial underdog on Capitol Hill has been commiserated in cold cash — that is, with envelopes or briefcases stuffed with greenbacks, a curious medium for honorable transactions. Members of Congress, supposing they had a Korean lobbyist or an Arab sheik on the hook, have been caught trading favors for cash like gilded bellows.

My associate Gerry Cain has reviewed hundreds of secret videotapes filmed by the FBI during its celebrated ABS-CAM "sting" investigation. A few of the startling episodes — with four-mouthed congressmen lifting down their hair and dignity, pleading to correct the democratic processes for cash on the hush-hush — have been presented in earlier columns.

The shabbiest performer of them all on the videotapes was rep. Richard Nixon, D-Pa., who is latterly affectionately as "Dick" to his constituents on the South Philadelphia waterfront. He not only accepted a $60,000 payoff but also offered to serve

ABC: The Motive Is Survival

WASHINGTON (NSA) — Officially it is called by the high-sounding name of "The Committee for an Open Convention." But it is becoming known more commonly as "Annoyous But Careful" — or, more simply, "ABC."

The attempt to open the selection of the Democratic presidential nominee did not originate in the back rooms of Sen. Edward Brooke's headquarters, in the White House claims. Rather, it is a spontaneous effort fueled by that most basic of political motives: survival.

There's a growing feeling on Capitol Hill that Jimmy Carter is a ticking bomb waiting to explode. The Democratic Party, this being so, has decided that the best way to deal with the situation is to force Carter to resign.

Shields, Quick Await Verdicts

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — A 12-member federal jury was unable to reach a verdict in 3 1/2 hours of deliberations Wednesday in the attempted extortion and conspiracy trial of former National Resources Director Harmon Shields and real estate speculator Jack Quick.

The three reels of tapes were recorded by Quick during his conversations with Shields as they allegedly fashioned a conspiracy to collect $233,000 in kickbacks on two state land deals in 1978.

The judge ruled that the tapes were evidence and, as such, could be heard again in the jury room.

Prosecutors said the kickbacks were to come from $1.1 million in commissions real estate broker H. Bruce McIVER expected to receive on the state's purchase of two large land tracts, the Seminole Ranch near Orlando and Big Tall Island near Jacksonville.

Shields, 58, and Quick, 42, were charged with one count of conspiracy and two counts of obstructing interstate commerce by attempting to intercept communications.

Before retiring, the jurors asked the judge if he would permit them to have cocktails at the couple's residence while vacationing in other countries.

'Supertermite' Insurance Companies Shy From Nasty Insect

By DAVID M. RAZLER Herald Staff Writer "Supertermite" may be coming to Florida but don't look to your insurance policy to defend you.

Unlike Florida's common termite, the recently imported insect is capable of protective coatings to reach its goal. Poisons are not so effective at stopping them, termite experts say.

Tallock said passage of a law would depend both on the severity of the termite infestation and risk studies by the insurance companies.

The discovery of the Coptotermes termite in Florida was announced last week by the University of Florida's Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences.

Altamonte Rallies For Rematch Against Belmont Heights

From The Sidelines By Joe DeSantis Herald Sports Editor

Some teams have a penchant for the spectacular. Often waiting for a seemingly hopeless situation to arise to prove its mettle. While Altamonte Springs' Triple-AAA squad certainly has shown guts and heart throughout tournament play over the past two weeks, it may have been looking ahead to one game too many Wednesday night at the State Triple-AAA tournament in Orange Park...

the one-two punch of Tony Johnson and Van Golmont for a deciding doubleheader against Belmont Heights, turned out exactly the kind of effort the Altamonte coaching staff was hoping for.

Altamonte's tournament games. "They're better than firecrackers at the plate," complimented Whittington. "And we want them to stay hot."

Now in her third year on the tour, Lopez' accomplishments include two selections as the LPGA Player of the Year, top single-season money-winner in tour history, and a champion in 19 tournaments for a total of $88,500 in career earnings.

HUD Housing Deal May Be Lost

By DIANE PETRYK
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County's idea of cooperating is not what the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) had in mind, so it looks like the county will not get the $4 million for a housing project that had been tentatively approved—at least not this year, said HUD official Graham Thomas today.

A cooperation agreement between local governments and local housing authorities is an HUD requirement for granting financing for public housing projects.

While the Seminole County Housing Authority had been approved to get $4 million allocated to central Florida to finance a 74-unit complex, the county commission balked at signing HUD's version of a cooperation agreement. HUD asked the county to promise to provide services such as road construction and maintenance and sewer and water line extensions for the project.

But the county said it was willing to provide only police and fire protection and other services only in the same manner as they are provided to private developers.

Seminole County Housing Authority Executive Director Tom Wilson handed the county's version to HUD officials in Jacksonville Thursday, but returned "convicted" they're going to disapprove it," he said this morning.

"The thing I submitted, as far as a cooperation agreement is concerned—it's nothing," Wilson said.

Thomas said this morning he does not believe the county's version will be acceptable, but he referred it to HUD's legal department, which will send it to the regional office in Atlanta to be reviewed.

But the deadline for having all documents in order was today.

"I suspect they won't be able to resolve it for this year," Thomas said.

Meanwhile, the Sanford City Commission expressed its willingness to allow the housing project to be built within the city rather than see the allocation lost to the area, according to City Manager Pete Knowles.

The city, which already has a 400-unit housing project, has a cooperation agreement on file with HUD which would only need to be renewed, Knowles said.

But Wilson said it wasn't as simple as just transferring it over to Sanford.

"If Seminole County doesn't get it, they'll send it out for competitive bids again. That way it could go to Orlando or Winter Park or somewhere else," he said.

Thomas said he might know by early next week what will become of the allocation of funds for Central Florida. Earlier he said the funds must be assigned before September by the requirement of the Office of Management and Budget in Washington.

Wilson expressed his bitterness this morning over the county's refusal to enter into HUD's cooperation agreement.

"The thing that really hurts me is that we have people in the county paying 80 to 85 percent of their income on housing," he said. "I got a letter from a lady the other day whose monthly income is $258. She pays $200 per month in rent, plus utilities."

The housing project, he explained, would have provided housing for the economically disadvantaged. No one would have been required to pay more than 25 percent of their income for rent.

"It really makes me bitter that we were about to get 14 units and we let them slip through our fingers," he said.

Wilson said there are 3,000 people on a waiting list for housing in the area. Of those, 2,300 are from Seminole County and 700 from Sanford.

While Seminole County Commissioners voted 3-1 to approve sending HUD a cooperation agreement as they amended it, Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff and Bob French voted against the agreement altogether.

French said he is totally against the idea of spending county taxpayers' dollars for a housing project.

"I'm not interested in doing business with them (the federal government) period," French said. "There's a surcharge on top of those federal dollars."

"Most people locally would be in favor of a housing project for the disadvantaged, but not in the point that we were about to do everything locally to pay for it."

French also said that, while the housing authority promises to make payments to the county in lieu of taxes for services provided for the tax-exempt housing project, in reality there is little likelihood of ever seeing those payments.

"There's no way to force them to pay," he said. "Orlando, which has a 30-unit housing project, has received payments in lieu of taxes only twice in the last 10 years," he said.

"The state and federal governments have managed somehow to get back to this county," French added. "I'll never vote in favor of anything like this. The federal government spends more in one second than the average man makes in his lifetime and everyone they give you a dollar they want three back."

Commissioner Sandra Glenn, however, said the housing authority has instituted stricter measures for collecting rent due it, and that payments in lieu of taxes will become more frequent for Orlando and for any proposed project.

She said she voted for amending the cooperation agreement because it asked the county to install roads and pipe lines at their expense. But she said she is in favor of the housing project.

"They (the county) don't sign one document binding them to do anything with HUD," Wilson said. "For some reason the commissioners couldn't get it through their heads that it wasn't an agreement between them and HUD. It was an agreement between them and the Seminole County Housing Authority."

And the housing authority, Wilson said, "is like an army of government anyway."

Industrial Park Named In Honor Of Krider

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

The industrial park at Airport Boulevard and Jewett Lane in Sanford was formally named the "John Krider Industrial Park" in honor of the business and civic leader during special ceremonies at the park.

The event, planned by the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce and other business and civic leaders for several weeks, was kept a secret from Krider until he arrived for this morning's ceremony.

Krider, 73, a native of North Wales, Pa., and later resident of Georgia, has been a force for progress in Sanford and Seminole County since becoming a resident many years ago.

He first visited Sanford as a pitcher with the Brooklyn Dodgers farm system and with the Philadelphia Phillies farm system. As a member of those teams he played against the Sanford baseball team, then a Class D team in the Florida State Baseball League.

Krider served as executive manager of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce and the organization which preceded it—the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce—for 18 years from 1954 to 1972 when he retired.

During the same time period, he served two terms as a Sanford city commissioner from 1947-1950 and from 1953 to 1956. In 1956, he was elected to the District 1 seat on the Seminole Board of County Commissioners.

John Krider expresses his appreciation for the honor after a sign is unveiled during special ceremonies this morning naming the industrial park at Airport Boulevard and Jewett Lane in Sanford as the "John Krider Industrial Park."

Speakers, including Mayor Lee P. Moore, Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce

President Janice Springfield and Executive Manager Jack Horner and others were among those who lauded Krider for being instrumental in encouraging new industries and businesses to locate in Sanford to provide more jobs and a better economic tax base for city and county government.

2 Offices Will Be Open Saturday Last Day To Register For Primaries

A steady stream of prospective voters were coming into Seminole Supervisor of Elections Camilla Bruce's office at the old jail building behind the courthouse today to qualify to vote in the Sept. 8 and Oct. 7 primaries elections.

At the same time, prospective voters walked in lines at Mrs. Bruce's Interstate Mail office to have their names included on the official lists.

Voter registration for the two primaries will close Saturday. Both elections offices will be open all day Saturday for last-minute registrants. The old jail office will be open from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. while the Interstate Mail office will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Those who wish to vote in the general election Nov. 4, have until Oct. 4, to register. Mrs. Bruce's two offices will be open on the five Saturdays before the general election beginning Sept. 6 for the convenience of those who cannot register during the week. Registration can also be accomplished for the general election at the Winter Springs, Altamonte Springs, Oviedo, Longwood, Casselberry and Lake Mary city halls.

Sandy Goad, office manager at the elections office, said the elections staff during July registered a record number of new voters—more than 1,500.

Total number of qualified voters in Seminole County as of July 31 was 63,368. Breakdown, according to political party, is: 33,384 Democrats; 15,672 Republicans; 2,638 independents; and 91 American Independents.

Mrs. Goad said the elections office has received more than 700 requests for absentee ballots for the September primary from around the world, including Australia, Vietnam, New Zealand and Japan. A good portion of the requests for absentee ballots, she said, is from servicemen.

A record number of persons, again mostly servicemen, have registered to vote in the primary by mail, she said.

The ballot to be used in Seminole County in the September primary was returned to the elections office Thursday following approval by the state.

The Democratic ballot will read as follows:

U.S. Senator—John Brindley Coffey, Bill Gunter, Buddy MacKay, James L. Miller, Richard A. Pettigrew and Richard Stone.

U.S. Representative, 5th Congressional District—David Best and Dick Fischer.

Clerk of the Circuit Court.—Arthur H. Beckwith Jr. and Gene Duffy

County Commission, District 3—Norman Floyd Sr. and Gerald Kirman.

The Republican ballot will read as follows:

U.S. Senate—Ander Crenshaw, Lewis Dinkins, Lou Frey, Paula Hawkins, Ellis Rubin and John T. Ware.

U.S. Representative, 5th Congressional District—Vince Fechter Jr., Richard Kelly and Bill McCollum.

County Commission, District 3—Robert G. "Bud" Feather and Tom Kanelis.

The nonpartisan ballot will have a contest for Circuit Judge, 18th Judicial Circuit, Group 1—Gil Goshorn and Perry West. The judicial race also will be included on both the Democrat and Republican ballots. — DONNA ESTES.

Texas, Mexico Bracing For Allen

BROWNSVILLE, TEXAS (UPI)—The Gulf coasts of Texas and northeastern Mexico were under a hurricane watch today with mighty Hurricane Allen just 400 miles away and bearing down with 130 mph winds.

The storm was moving toward the west-northwest at 18 mph, and forecasters said the track would bring "hurricane conditions to some of the watch area within 36 hours. Hurricane warnings... likely will be issued for portions of the watch area later today."

The killer storm that left at least 62 dead in its sweep across the Caribbean, lost some punch over the jungles of Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula during the night. But forecasters in Miami warned the storm's history has been to strengthen rapidly once it hits open water.

Thirteen of the deaths occurred in the crash of a helicopter that was evacuating oil workers from a rig off the Louisiana coast. Four bodies have been found and officials said the other nine were presumed dead.

Hundreds of thousands of coastal residents were boarding up homes with plywood, gassing up their vehicles and

"Allen continues to be an extremely dangerous hurricane and may strengthen again as the center moves farther over open water today," the National Hurricane Center said.

Hurricane force winds extended outward 75 miles to the north and 50 miles to the south of the center. Gale force winds extended outward 200 miles to the north and 100 miles to the south. Tides were expected to run 1 to 2 feet above normal along much of the Texas coast today.

Small craft from the mouth of the Mississippi River westward to the Mexican Gulf coast, including the Yucatan Peninsula, and around extreme western Cuba were warned to stay in port.

"Right now the best guess is he'll land between Brownsville and Corpus Christi," said hurricane forecaster Bob Case in Miami. But Case said if Allen slows and curves "that would expose the central and upper Texas coast."

Hotels and motels inland from the Texas coast reported they were being deluged for reservations from coastal residents getting ready to flee the popular resort islands and developments.

Meteorologist Walter Henry of Texas A&M University said the number of people living along the Texas coast has increased dramatically in the last 10 years, but the number of evacuation preparing to flee the storm's onslaught. Sales of emergency supplies such as canned goods, flashlights, batteries, candles and bottled drinking water were reported brisk.

At 9 a.m. EDT, Allen was located near Latitude 23.5 north, Longitude 90.8 west or about 400 miles east-southeast of Brownsville. The central pressure was 981 millibars, or 29.39 inches of mercury. Highest sustained winds were 130 mph.

roads from inland causeways and coastal towns and cities has remained the same.

Both U.S. and Mexican authorities, trying to convince Gulf Coast residents from Mexico to Alabama of Allen's ferocity, prepared for the worst.

American officials expressed concern about the storm's history. It was a powerful and unusual type and non-believers might try to ride out the storm, which could mean drastically higher casualty tolls if the hurricane strikes with the intensity expected.

Early evacuations were encouraged in many low-lying coastal areas in hopes of avoiding jammed escape routes as Allen actually comes within striking distance.

In Matamoros, Mexico, just across the border from Brownsville, Texas, members of the army prepared emergency refugee centers in areas close to the coast. Mexican weather official Jorge Luis Meyer said.

Meyer said he anticipated Allen's unleashing of winds over 200 mph on the area as early as mid-afternoon.

Before striking the northern coast of the Yucatan, Allen became the second strongest hurricane ever recorded with winds of up to 185 mph. Only the 1935 Labor Day storm that killed 400 people in the Florida Keys was stronger.
