

FLORIDA IS AGAINST THE SPECIAL SESSION CALLED BY GOVERNOR CATTS

TAMPA TRIBUNE GETS EXPRESSION OF STATE

The following from the Tampa Tribune is an expression of the state of Florida regarding the special session and the legislature called by Governor Catts:

The people of Florida are opposed to the governor in the step he has taken to convene the state legislature in extraordinary session. The majority of the members of the legislature oppose the plan.

The newspapers of the state are almost a unit in opposition and outspoken rebuke.

The business men of the state almost without exception declare the governor absolutely unjustified in his contention that an extra session is necessary for the passage of certain legislation.

The Tribune yesterday sent the following telegram to members of the legislature, editors of newspapers in all parts of the state and to a few business men in various sections of the state:

Please wait Tribune our expression today your opinion of the necessity for an extra session of the legislature. Can the taxpayers stand this cost? Remember the legislature meets in regular session in April.

Thirty-one members of the legislature have replied directly of that they are in complete agreement with the Tribune's position and support its editorial program.

Seventeen newspapers made a statement to the member of the legislature of the call for an extra session and stand with the governor in holding that certain legislation is necessary in a hurry; four had no opinion to offer.

As the business and professional men who wired the Tribune every day have expressed their opinion on the call for an extra session, it is clear that there is a widespread opinion that the regular session of the legislature next April, and that an extra session would place an unjust and heavy burden upon the taxpayers and accomplish only a general stirring up of politics and discussion of business.

That there is deep resentment all over the state against the governor's call for an extra session is shown by the fact that in a twenty day session to begin next Monday is amply evidenced by some replies to the Tribune program, some of the newspaper men going as far as suggesting that impeachment proceedings ought to be instituted.

In a telegram to the Tribune last night the governor pleads that he is misunderstood by this newspaper that there are heavy bills to pay for upkeep of the state's charity institutions and no funds to meet them with; that there is danger of losing part of the Federal appropriation for good roads unless the state provides some money to round out its insufficient appropriation. He doesn't say any more about the necessity of bolstering up the "dry" law, which was the main reason given in his proclamation for calling the extra session. Evidently the statement in the Tribune by Hon. Don C. McMullen, recognized leader of the prohibitionists in Florida that the Reed amendment to the Webb-Kénon act, a Federal statute will protect Florida has settled that part of it. He makes no mention of having received the Tribune's telegram offering to finance the Marianna "reform" school until the regular session of the legislature can make appropriations. The governor's telegram follows:

Tallahassee, Fla., Nov. 20.
Hon. W. F. Stovall, Tampa, Fla.

Returning, I find your telegram. Regret a friend is making an unwarranted fight and making it appear the deficit at the reform school is my only reason for calling the extra session. You evidently haven't before you the fact which I seriously considered before calling the extra session, which will convene November 25, and don't realize Florida will lose the immediate use of large

WOODMEN'S CIRCLE WILL HAVE PUBLIC MEETING WEDNESDAY

The Woodmen's Circle of Sanford, one of the busiest bodies of workers in the city and one of the most patriotic will have a public flag presentation in the Masonic Hall next Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock.

The ladies of the Woodmen's Circle were the first to conceive the idea of presenting the city with a beautiful service flag commemorating the fact that our brave boys went forth to battle for liberty when their country called them.

The presentation will be a public affair and everyone is cordially invited to attend, especially the mothers and the relatives of the boys in the service.

The flag will be a beautiful memento in the year to come and will be placed in all the homes who have sons in the service. The presentation will be held in the Masonic Hall at 3 o'clock.

A suitable program of music and address will be given and the occasion should be one long to be remembered in the annals of the lodge.

All the members of the Woodmen's Circle are earnestly requested to be present on this occasion.

Will Be Conducted Here Next Week
Dr. Maria Marie Varney is to conduct a Welfare Institute on Nov. 27th, 28th and 29th and the people of Sanford are to be benefited by this course. The purpose of the course is to give the people of Sanford a better understanding of the principles of the welfare movement and to give them a practical knowledge of the same.

Her program will be a scientific combination of physical culture, mental culture, and moral culture. The course will be held at the Welfare Institute, 111 N. Washington street, from 9:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. daily. The subject matter will be of the most practical nature and will be of direct benefit to the students.

The program appears in today's issue in another column.

Mrs. Varney Gives Free Physical Culture
Each afternoon at 3 o'clock during Welfare Institute Mrs. Varney will give free physical culture lessons to women and girls. To have such an instructor is a rare privilege, even in expensive colleges.

Program for Welfare Institute
Wednesday, Nov. 27th, 3 p. m., Congregational church, Physical Training for women and girls; 7:30 p. m.—Lecture, The Silent Partner. A vocal solo will be rendered by Mrs. Takach.

Thursday, 3 p. m.—Physical Training, Lesson.
Thursday, 7:30 p. m.—The New Education. This lecture will be given in the park after a "Community Sing" with special reharmonized music. If weather is bad, in the Congregational church.

Friday—Congregational church, 3 p. m., Physical Training.
Friday, Congregational church, 7:30 p. m., sermon, "The Transfiguration."

Methodist Church
At the First Methodist church next Sunday the Sunday school meets at 9:30 a. m. Preaching at 11 a. m. and 7 p. m. Epworth League at 6 p. m.

To all these services the public is most cordially invited. A hearty welcome awaits the visitor or stranger who may be away from his home.

WAR RELIEF HERE AND IN EUROPE IS GREAT

With Pershing's Army in France, Nov. 22.—The American people contributed $170,500,000 to carry on the work of the Y. M. C. A., Knights of Columbus, Salvation Army, Y. W. C. A., Library Association and other organizations doing welfare work among our soldiers.

That's a lot of money. Is the work of these organizations worth the cost?

For sometime I've been studying very carefully their activities, in order to be able to give the folks back some real enlightenment, free from excessive praise or uncalculated "knocks."

I was prompted to do this by a number of letters I've received from men and women in America.

They're all doing a good work, and I'm glad that a public opinion is being formed that a knock is not a good thing to throw at any of them.

The Knights of Columbus, for example, are doing a good fellowship and the free distribution of cigarettes, and the Salvation Army is doing a great deal of good among the soldiers.

The K. O. C. secretary general is a business man who's had a lot of training and has a lot of sense and he has thought out a program that will do a great deal of good.

The Y. M. C. A. leaders discerned early in the game that the army doesn't want it and saved, but instead it gets plenty of notes and chocolate, and music, shoes and candy, and what's more, it's all done in a very efficient manner.

THE BOARD OF TRADE WILL HOLD MEETING NEXT TUESDAY NIGHT

ONE OF MOST IMPOR- TANT IN HISTORY OF ORGANIZATION

The members of the Sanford Board of Trade have awakened to the great opportunity that Florida and especially Sanford has in the reawakening of trade and travel and on Tuesday night there will be a rousing meeting in the court house at which many matters of prime importance will be taken up.

President Holly will resign at that time as he is leaving for France and his successor will have to be elected and there will be a great get together meeting in which the business interests of Sanford and of Seminole county should participate.

During the war period the Board of Trade was more or less dormant as the members and the body as a whole were engaged in war work and campaigns of various kinds and the work of the Board of Trade was not allowed to intrude. But now that the war is over there is work to do and the members of the Board of Trade are the ones to do it. All the business men who are interested in making Sanford and Seminole county the best in the state are invited to attend the meeting Tuesday night whether members or not and it will be the chance to get together and talk over the plans for the future. That we should get busy at this particular time is considered by everyone and Tuesday night should be a Red Letter night in our history.

A campaign for new members will also be arranged at the meeting and other matters of importance discussed. It is in the interest of all the merchants, farmers and growers of Seminole county, no matter what your business may be to attend this meeting at the Court House Tuesday night.

The meeting will be held at 8 o'clock in the Court House and will be held in the Court House. The meeting will be held in the Court House.

Wash the Woolen Socks
You Knit
With Grandma

GREAT, big, "busting", bubbling suds. Millions of 'em surging through the clothes and driving out every particle of dirt.

Just sprinkle Grandma in the tub by the spoonful—glorious, cleansing suds in a jiffy. No more back breaking over a rubbing board. No more wear and tear on the clothes—Grandma saves all that.

GRANDMA'S Powdered Soap

It makes no difference if the water is hard, soft, cold or hot—these wonderful, cleansing suds come just the same.

Do your next washing in half the time that it now takes with wasteful bar soap.

Ten Reasons Why You Should Use Grandma:

- Costs less than bar soap.
- Cheaper to use than bar soap.
- No rubbing away of bars.
- No bars to cut, shred or chip.
- No bars to waste lying in water.
- No waste—you measure out just what you need.
- No waiting for suds.
- Cleans everything—injures nothing, not even the most delicate chiffons.
- Cuts work in half by making rubbing unnecessary.
- Can be used in hot, cold, hard or soft water.

Literature Dept. Meeting Interesting
The first meeting of the Literature Department of the season was held at the club rooms on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock and those who attended pronounced it one of the best meetings in the life of the department.
Mrs. Phillips made some appropriate remarks of greeting, quoting from one of the officers of the federation who in speaking especially of the work of the Literature Department said that as literature or thought is a direct incentive to work, it is obviously necessary that we maintain this department during these strenuous times, for "as our soul saves our body from corruption so finding the soul of our work saves it from sordidness." This same authority asks the question, "What is the greatest state in the union?" and answers "The state of mind."

We all recognize this as truth, and consequently it is not advisable to spend a little time keeping this superlatively important state in a healthy, wholesome, enthusiastic attitude?
This expresses the composite mental state of the members of the department present on Wednesday afternoon after listening to Mrs. R. C. Maxwell's remarkably interesting paper on "Women and the War."

Tracing as she did the Red Cross activities from its inception to its organization as a society in Geneva, Switzerland by Florence Nightingale—that wonderful English woman whose heart from infancy went out to all injured things—through the crude conditions and the marvelous work of Dorothy Dix and Clara Barton during the Civil War, her hearers sat enthralled by the pathetic scenes pictured and the humanity and bravery of these women and their assistants; and felt keenly the greatness of the privilege of helping to carry forward their work, so nobly and self-sacrificingly begun—that of the "Greatest Mother in the World."

The program this season promises to be remarkably interesting, every paper and discussion assigned bearing on a live question of the day, the idea of the program committee in its preparation being not so much for pleasure the study this winter but for our information and inspiration.

The Flight of Imperialism

The "Lord's Anointed" has taken flight
To the highest mountains of mortal sight
Great news from over the wire
Wings falling to sprout at the imperial word
He borrowed these requisites given the bird
To escape, but the eagle flies higher.
So Kaiser Bill, your dream of world power
A nightmare to you must be from this hour.
You frantically ran away.
Uncle Sammy has taught you a thing or two
And all of your kind would do well to try
Your ludicrous flight from the fray.

Ring out, wild bells; to greet the day
When Imperialism has their way
And brotherhood now is a fact.
Let majestic Old Glory be wildly unfurled,
And the tidings be borne to the ends of the world
Autocracy can never come back morning with beautiful clear days. How glad and thankful we all are that peace has come at last. Now we can celebrate Thanksgiving Day with full hearts. Let us not get the big head by it but realize the responsibility it entails on us to walk humbly before our God, blessed be His holy name, who has seen fit to answer our prayers.

Rev. Edwards preached a powerful sermon Sunday on "The Enthusiasm of Christ."

Rev. Sessions, a young Methodist minister and a friend of Carl Pierson was present at both services and was asked and consented to preach for the next Sunday at 3:00.

We saw the first load of oranges go by for this season.

Mrs. Ballinger has been laid up by a spell of neuralgia.

Mrs. Buckins of Sanford spent Friday with her friend, Mrs. Hamer Lundquist.

Mrs. Roy Lee is spending this week with her mother and step-father Mr. and Mrs. Eberhart of Winter Park.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Lundquist visited their uncle, Charlie, near Lake Mary last Sunday.

Mr. Saxton and his wife were at the market on Sunday at the store and, being late, called him in to see the doctor Sunday, and their son, Norman again on Thursday.

from the ones they thought they could whip.

Mr. Will Robinson and family were pleasant callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Fortier last Sunday.

We will be glad to see the time come for our boys to be coming back home again. Don't let us know they want to come back and we all want them to come, but there is many a one that won't come back again.

But just the same we whipped them. That is something to brag on and I am glad they have to beg for food now.

The time will soon be here that we can say we are all happy again at home.

Be Thankful—Sing America

In other cities of these United States the mayor and other leading people have accepted the proposition to sing America at nine o'clock on Thanksgiving morning. This is in the nature of a thanksgiving prayer and should be sung with all feeling, so wherever one is at nine o'clock on Thanksgiving morning let him sing that grand old hymn, America.

First Meeting Music Department

The first meeting of the Music Department of the Woman's Club was held Tuesday afternoon at the club rooms. Aside from the regular business handled at this meeting a splendid program of song and music was rendered by Mrs. Julius Takacs accompanied by Mrs. Schelle Madsen. The meeting was well attended and the meeting was much appreciated.

The Music Department has prepared a number of excellent programs for the season and it is proposed to make the meetings of this department entertaining as well as instructive.

VACATION ON FARM

By MRS. NELLIE GORDON.

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

Murray Benton sat in the window of his club, gazing listlessly out at the hurrying crowds.

The frown on his face deepened as he mentally reviewed the terse advice the doctor, whom he had just visited, had given him.

"Murray, lad, you have too much money for your own benefit," he had said. "He was an old friend and was privileged to be frank. 'Get away from the 'bright lights' and your croonies and get into the country. Fresh air, regular hours and a bit of work," he added, with a sly twinkle, "are what you need. If you keep on at the rate you have been going I can't find a doctor for the consequences," he finished, relapsing again into seriousness.

"Bosh!" mused Murray. "Doc is a calamity howler. There's nothing wrong with me."

But even as he argued with himself, he realized that the doctor had told the truth. Being rejected from every branch of the war service at which he applied confirmed the doctor's verdict, as well as the feeling of lassitude which he tried to fight off.

His eye chanced to fall on a newspaper spread on the table near by, on which a large picture of Uncle Sam with arms outstretched pleaded, "Be a Patriot. Go to Work on a Farm."

The listless expression on Murray's face changed to one of interest, and he exclaimed, "Why not?" and rushed out of the room, much to the amazement of the other occupants.

At a desk in a tiny office in one of the downtown buildings sat a rather lunch and scanning a newspaper.

A frown marred her forehead as she scanned to be doing some mental figuring.

"I can't afford to vacation, and I'm so busy that I won't be able to stand the paper and

last time she noticed the outside of Uncle Sam pointed at her with a compelling gaze.

"Be a Patriot. Spend Your Vacation on a Farm."

"Doll"-ers and "Sense"

There may and may not be sentiment in business—that seems to be an open question. However, there is one phase of business, that affects men in every walk of life—that is the way they dress. Taste and good sense are not reflected in flashy clothes as a general thing—but on the other hand, they should be neat and of a style that will be appropriate for the man who wears them. Clothcraft Clothes appeal to men who are thoughtful of their dress—because the designing, fabrics and moderate prices are in keeping with good judgment.

RULES ON FED

Food Administration Makes New Rules

Official Order 10-19-18 and Official Order 10-15-18 are hereby revised.

1. United States Food Administration Regulation No. XXV, Subdivision 1, Rule 1. No retailer of any food, including poultry, rice, beans, or food products containing any of these items, shall deliver to any customer more than a quantity of any particular food sold.

2. Under the above rule the Food Administration will consider margins of profit in excess of those indicated in the following schedule as unreasonable.

1st: Where one or more customers purchase in advance of delivery in full carloads, take delivery at car and pay cash, when retail dealer is required to meet sight draft, $1.50 per ton plus demurrage, if any.

2nd: Where one or more customers purchase in advance of delivery in full carloads, take delivery at car and pay for it on delivery, $1.50 per ton plus demurrage, if any.

b. Where one or more persons purchase in advance of delivery in full carloads, take delivery at car and pay for it on delivery, $1.50 per ton plus demurrage, if any.

c. Where buyer purchases and takes delivery at car and pays for it on delivery in ton lots or more, but less than carloads, $2.00 per ton.

d. Where buyer purchases and takes delivery at car and pays for it on delivery in lot less than one ton, $2.50 per ton.

e. Sale ex-warehouse in lots of one ton or more $1.00 per ton.

f. Sale ex-warehouse in lots of less than one ton, $5.00 per ton.

g. Sales delivered at the barn or storage house of the customer in lots of less than one ton in original packages, $6.50 per ton.

h. $1.00 may be added to the foregoing margins when sale is made on credit, provided the retailer has not himself purchased on credit.

One dollar shall be deducted from the margins prescribed in paragraphs e, f, and g, and paragraphs 3 and 6 if the customer pays cash and the retailer has bought on credit. Any feed sold in quantities less than the weight of the original package of the particular feed sold, whether of the first or second schedule, may be sold at a profit of 1 cent per pound.

PRISONERS STILL SUFFER

Germany Cannot Treat Them Right Even Now

London, Nov. 20. British wireless service. In any question of provisioning Germany the British government will be obliged to take into account the condition under which British prisoners in Germany are being released, unless the cruel treatment which such prisoners are receiving is discontinued, the German government was warned in a wireless message today. The message sent by the British government reads:

"Information reaches his majesty's government of a shocking lack of organization in the release of British prisoners in German territory and of their return march on foot, miserably clothed, without food or transport, and with no escort or guides to the allied lines, with the result of lamentable suffering and heavy mortality.

His majesty's government cannot tolerate continuation of this cruel treatment and must insist on adequate arrangements being made in all the above respects, but the German authorities with whom the responsibility lies. Otherwise we shall be compelled to take this into account in any question of restricting Germany or satisfying the requirements of the German people.

"His majesty's government is ready to lend all available assistance by forwarding food, clothing and transport to prisoners' camps where they are not of her own territory, and are addressing allied commanders in this sense.

"Please acknowledge receipt."

Since Sunday military or civil prisoners have been constantly brought to Paris by special railway trains. Now, however, arrived Sunday, 1,400 Monday, 100 Tuesday, 100 and many more today. Ten thousand are reported to be on the way. Among the military prisoners are French, British, Belgian, American and Italian.

Some of these men say they were only given their liberty after going through many formalities. Others were dismissed with the words: "Now you are free, you can go as you like and when you like." Many of these men are in extremely poor physical shape and in a state of extreme mental depression, witnesses being able to see at a glance that they suffered terribly from hunger.

Telegraph In Merger

Washington, Nov. 20. Consolidation of the services of the Western Union and the Postal Telegraph companies under government control was announced today by Postmaster General Barleson, effective Dec. 1 next. The following order was issued:

"In order that the telegraph facilities may be used to the fullest extent and the transmission of messages expedited the telegraph systems shall hereafter be operated as one and effective Dec. 1, 1918, all telegraph offices shall accept for transmission all classes of messages now accepted by any one of them at the prescribed tariff rates."

Increase Express Rates

Washington, Nov. 20. General increases in the express rates was announced by Administrator McAdoo. He said that the increases were due to higher wages and would become effective immediately. East of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio and Potomac rivers, the new rates of merchandise would be about sixteen or seventeen cents a hundred higher. The increases in food rates of seventy-five per cent as much for the remainder of the country; and increase in parcel post of ten or twelve cents.

Turkey for Soldiers

Washington, Nov. 20. Wounded American soldiers in and near Paris will be the guests of the Red Cross Thanksgiving day. A cable received here says the soldiers will partake of the oil roasted Thanksgiving dinner and will be the guests of the Red Cross at a theatrical performance in the afternoon.

Herb Folkel will attend the special session and represent the Times Union. They will not hold a session without it.

Sanford needs awakening and the meeting of the Board of Trade on Tuesday night should be attended by the men who expect to do something to awaken Sanford in the next few months.

The state at large does not take kindly to the special session of the legislature called by Governor Catts. The Tampa Tribune says it is the death blow to the governor. Not so, not so. He has had some time ago.

Every city in the United States is bustling on the war and preparing to make the most of the situation. Sanford is no exception.

There never was a time in the history of this section when so many of a general get together meeting for the purpose of discussing the war and its effect on the community.

It is a grand thing for a grand time as it is a grand meeting and for teaching lessons. You can't get it any other way.

The advertised store gives the people news in which they are interested. The advertised store is the one that is the most successful. It is the one that is the most successful.

DON'T RIDICULE YOUR BOY

When your boy comes home to you with high flown ideas of what is going to do in the world do you listen with understanding interest.

of do you know your duty to time just when it seems that Sanford also needs reconstruction work and a general awakening.

Many a boy has gone to bed in tears because his father criticized or denounced his effort at playing the violin, made fun of a simple little composition or story which he wrote, discouraged his attempt to make some little metaphysical device, or threw a wet blanket on his dream, laughing at his prediction of what he would do in the future.

A man who has recently come into great prominence in his profession says that when, tremblingly, he told his father what he wanted to do, he was told that a padded cell was the only place for a boy with such crazy ideas, and that he was forced for years to do that which God had forbidden in every fibre of his being, and against which every drop of blood in him protested.

The father who has made up his mind that his son must continue his business and keep his estate intact is not in a position to decide on the boy's bent—his special aptitude. He is prejudiced at the very outset.

Everywhere we see the men and women of the world who are being forced to do that which God has forbidden in every fibre of his being, and against which every drop of blood in him protested.

EDITOR IS LEAVING

The editor of the Herald is leaving for overseas service in August, wanting to get in while the war was on. The many details incident to placing secretaries in the field and the necessity of the distribution of arranging for the prospects presented his going away with a heavy heart.

We hate to leave Sanford for a moment. We hate to leave Sanford for a moment. We hate to leave Sanford for a moment.

On account of the lack of help and the rush of business in the other departments, the Herald will be issued weekly beginning with next week and the weekly edition will be made larger and better than before under the able management of W. M. Haynes who asks and should receive the support of the community and we hope that the people will assist him in various ways to make the Herald what it has been and should continue to be.

The editor has made many sacrifices during the war and since war was declared has worked for the government in various ways to the detriment of his own business perhaps but always with the idea that country comes first in time of war.

We feel the responsibilities and acknowledge the duties and the dangers and face it with the idea that the Y. M. C. A. should receive our best efforts. If the final examinations are passed successfully, the editor will see his Christmas dinner in France, and until we see all of our friends again we take this opportunity of wishing them and all the best of luck and prosperity.

Community Sing Tonight

The community sing, organized and conducted by the Music Department of the Woman's Club held its first sing at the City rooms last Friday evening. This first attempt at community singing was declared to be a success and expressions from some of those present were very encouraging to the organizers. It was then decided to have the sing every Friday night and the truly community sing is invited and if you can sing let him sing if he can't, let him listen.

A fine program has been prepared for tonight and a good old fashioned time is expected. The time has been set for seven thirty.

M. E. District Conference

The fourth quarterly conference of the Methodist church was held on Tuesday night of this week at the church. This is one of the most important meetings of the church in view of the fact that reports of the year's work are read and discussed at this meeting each year and the work for the coming year is planned. Presiding Elder C. E. White was present and had charge of the meeting. Reports of the year's work were read and it was found that this has been a very satisfactory year so far as church and Sunday school are concerned.

The following were elected stewards for 1919: L. P. Hagan, R. M. Mason, O. J. Pope, Ed. Putnam, W. S. Thornton, Z. B. Ratliff, H. H. Peabody, J. E. Spurling, E. B. Adams, T. F. Adams, S. O. Shindler, W. P. Field and W. M. Haves.

ONE JUNE NIGHT

By LOUISE OLIVER.

Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

It was a high iron fence covered with honeysuckle—the one between the Harringtons and the Neals—and with every year's growth of the vine and every twig interlaced to thicken the density of the green wall, the barrier of hate between the two families had likewise grown in vast proportions.

The silver-haired fence itself commemorated the beginning of the feud, for, as is usually the case, it had started with a disagreement about the boundary line.

To arbitrate a quarrel is not to settle it. Neither side winning, there is no one to forgive. So the Harringtons and the Neals nursed their hate into the second generation, and still it grows.

Violet Harrington, the last and only one at home now, had always hated Dr. Willbur Neal bitterly. She hated him chiefly because he had always seemed politely and supremely indifferent to her. He was almost the only man in town who had not sooner or later lost his heart to her. Violet had always been the envy of every girl in Coburg, because she was the prettiest and most popular. Naturally accustomed to homage, she resented the fact that Will Neal paid so much attention to his books to the exclusion almost of everything else.

Now she was twenty-eight and he was thirty, and neither of them was married. Knowing that she could have anybody, she had taken nobody. Now she was alone in the great house.

It was June and a wonderful moonlight night. Violet sat out under the maple tree in the yard, near the fence, in a soft white dress, stroking Dick, her Persian cat, and whispering little secrets in his ear.

"It's a lovely night, Dickie. Do you smell the roses? Listen! That soft little murmur is the voices of the love-furies. Do you hear? They slide down on the moonbeams to the roses on June nights and plan when they shall ensnare next. Then they mix a sort of magic out of dew and fragrance, and fly with it to the chosen ones and smother them. After that it's all over, Dick. That love potion never fails."

"I suppose you're wondering, Dick, why they never chose me. I've often wondered too. I wonder why they never did. There are so many epithets and words of love that I've never loved any of them. I'm getting awfully old, Dick. Some day I'll be walking with a stick. Oh Dick, I wish I could love somebody. I don't want to be old and lonely and ugly."

Her head went down on the soft seat and a tear dripped.

Suddenly there was a chirping and fluttering in the vines, and Dick immediately jumped down to investigate. A dazzling light streamed out of its nest and set twinkling in the leaves.

Violet jumped out of the swing and hurried after him. But by the time she reached the vine-covered fence the cat had worked his stony way into its very heart. Stopping, she reached into the black shadows for her pet. But he was gone.

When she tried to straighten she found she could not. Her hair—a wonderful copper, the chief charm of her beauty, was caught firmly by the dark, twisted branches. She took out the pins and tried to work it free, but it was useless. She found she could sit comfortably enough, but that was no help to matters. She couldn't stay there all night, too far from the street to be heard, and no one near but the hated house of her neighbor.

Suddenly she heard a voice. It was masculine and quite near. She peered through the fence, and in the moonlight saw a young man much like her own, and in it a man smoking a cigarette. Between puffs he was talking to a white building on the opposite side. The man was Willbur Neal and he was in uniform.

She started. She had not heard he had joined the army.

"Rags, it's a lousy night, isn't it?" said Doctor Neal. "I wonder if they have nights like this in France? But of course they have, only I suppose I'll be too busy to notice them."

"It's funny, isn't it, Rags, how we waste time and waste it, and suddenly realize what things mean to us when they're about gone? For instance, there is a girl I like very much—very much indeed. And she hates me, and she thinks I hate her; and because I didn't know how to overcome her dislike I just let it go. And now it's too late to do anything about it. Too bad, isn't it? And if nothing happens to me in this war, and I come back, I'll grow into a cranky old man without friends. Isn't it silly? I've watched her grow up, and she's a fine, useful woman, as well as beautiful. And I've lost her because I haven't any courage. But I've courage tonight, I believe, Rags. I wonder what she'd say if I went over there? It's only next door, Rags."

But Rags had heard something. A white shadow had flashed out of the hedge, then in again. It was too much for canine endurance.

"Come here, Rags. Don't you hurt that cat. It's hers. Rags, come here!" But Rags was barking at something more substantial than a shadow, and refusing to move, his master followed.

So Doctor Neal found Violet Harrington a prisoner, and had to go around to her side to release her. Two hours later, when he had taken a reluctant leave, Violet buried her head wearily in Dick's soft coat. "It must have been the love-furies, Dick," she whispered. "I'm going to marry him."

CAUCUS IN JACKSONVILLE

State Senators Will Discuss The Special Session

Jacksonville, Nov. 20. With a goodly number of senators planning to caucus in Jacksonville Friday for the purpose of organizing an extra session as soon as possible, preparations are being made here for the coming of the caucus on Monday.

The caucus will be held in the grand ball room of the Hotel Ponce de Leon, in order to personally see that legislative halls and committee rooms are put in order, while State Printer Appleyard has wired for additional compositors, and is otherwise busy preparing the way for the launching of the great event.

Members of the senate will arrive in Jacksonville on Monday morning, and the special session will have been notified to be present. The means that a new speaker of the house and president of the senate will be chosen and official Tallahassee is of the opinion that the organization of each house perfected for the extra session will hold for the regular term in April.

James E. Calkins of Fernandina has sufficient pledges to be elected to the senate presidency without opposition, but the fight for the speakership will be spirited. George H. Wilder, Amos Lewis, John W. Watson, M. L. Dawson, R. A. Green of Branford, A. H. Williams of Leon, aspire to that honor. Some of the members have begun to arrive and there is little doubt here but what the special session will be held until the matters that will be mentioned in the governor's message are disposed of.

THE RIVALS

By AGNES G. BROGAN.

(Copyright, 1918, Western Newspaper Union.)

It seemed to David that he had always loved Shirley Dare. And Shirley, realizing that evident fact from the time of her school days, had been an imperious and capricious sweetheart.

Not that the girl deceived David by pretending affection toward him. She had merely accepted his devotion as one bestowing a favor.

The country town had been unusually quiet that summer. David's presence on the shadowy porch was welcomed, as loneliness welcomes companionship. Most of Fairlands' young men had gone to war, while young women of Shirley's acquaintance sought diversion in vacations elsewhere.

"If you would not be so agreeable and kind," she told him complexly, "I believe I might care for you—really."

David smiled; to be either disagreeable or unkind to Shirley would be an impossibility. So he decided to sacrifice a few of these idyllic days in absenting himself from her presence, in the hope that "absence might make Shirley's heart fonder."

When separation became unbearable, and he began the homeward trip, it was in a strange spirit of apprehension. Anxiously his eyes gazed ahead to the little porch; then he understood.

Shirley was there in her white dress, and beside her a tall young man. "Where had the fellow come from?" David savagely wondered, as he walked up the path, and all at once his newly bought suit seemed common and his own bulk clumsy in comparison with the stranger's faultlessly clad figure.

"Why, how do you do?" said Shirley. There was new formality in the extension of her hand.

"Very well," answered David, and stepped into Shirley's parlor, and closed the door.

"Mr. Webster is an attorney here on business," she explained, explained. "He has been finding Fairlands dull; we must try to remove that impression."

Shirley had been giving her pretense. David instantly decided to remove the impression. She and the lawyer attorney appeared to be on the friendly terms.

As weeks passed he and the three were a happy family, and four strengthily happy as David's heart, though it might be a faithless one.

ments—when Shirley's eyes seemed to seek his with a new tender question. Again, she would turn vaguely troubled, to that other manly, admiring face. She was weighing herself, David knew, trying to find the answer to the problem of her heart. He decided to go back to the city, to search the record of this stranger, who had come with triumphant self-confidence among them. And the man proved to be all that he had represented, and more. For John Webster had laid no claim to the wealth that was his, or to the enviable name of his family. So there in the city David fought a great fight, and the unselfish love of his lifetime triumphed. If Shirley were even now hesitating between the two men in her heart, he, David would go away forever.

When he returned again to Fairlands a new light shone in his eyes, and Shirley could not know that it was all that he had represented, and more. For John Webster had laid no claim to the wealth that was his, or to the enviable name of his family. THE world is crying for food.

Never since the Dark Ages has there been such an international food shortage.

It is the duty of every man, woman and child in America to work and plan constantly to increase the output of food.

The world simply must have more bread, meat, vegetables and fruits, or millions of men, women, and little children must die of starvation.

Food production will be stimulated greatly by a study of the large exhibits of farm products at the Florida State Fair, at Jacksonville, Nov. 27th to Dec. 6th, and Farmers' National Congress, Dec. 3rd to 5th. Excursion Rates on All Lines.

Has Almost Constant Rainfall.

Curiously enough it is in India that we find the wettest town in the whole world, according to a British agricultural expert in India. The town, where there is an almost constant rain fall, is called Cherrapunji. In August, its average rainfall is 200 inches or 50 feet of rain, which is nearly a foot a week.

Every day it rains, and it rains every day.

EXTRA SESSION OF THE LEGISLATURE STARTS NOV. 25TH

Governor Catts on November 15th issued an executive order calling the legislature of Florida into an extraordinary session on November 25

At this special session legislation will be considered relative to a bone dry law, tax on automobiles, labor for farms and other things. Special attention will be given to measures that will encourage returned soldiers to settle in this state.

The Florida Times-Union is making special arrangements to cover the news of this special session of the legislature. Trained correspondents will furnish the Times-Union with detailed reports of each session. The news coming direct to the Times-Union office by wire where special operators will be on duty to receive the news.

News dealers and news boys are not allowed the return privilege, therefore they order only the number of papers for which they have regular purchasers. It is therefore not safe for anyone to depend upon buying a paper from the news boy at 5 cents. Then too it is cheaper for you to place an order with the Times-Union agent, asking him to deliver the paper to your address at twenty cents per week, or you may place an order with the Times-Union direct and have the paper delivered to you by mail at the rate of $9 per year.

AN ENGAGEMENT

By MILDRED L. DAVIDSON

"Where shall I go tonight?" Barbara asked her mother.

"I don't see that you have to go anywhere," her mother replied. "Why don't you stay at home and be nice to me for one night?"

"I just cannot bear that fellow, and will be late to come when I have told you that I would never marry him as long as I can understand."

Matters went on for a considerable length of time, until one Sunday Frank did not come to call. Barbara was surprised to find herself at the front window looking for Frank. She tried to tell herself that she was merely cross because she had stayed home to entertain him and he had not come, but that explanation did not seem to satisfy her.

The next morning came a note from Frank saying that he had been very busy the night before and begged Barbara to excuse him for not calling. He asked if he might come over the next night to say good-by as he was going away on a trip.

Thursday night came, and with it came Frank. Barbara went to the door to let him in; but the Frank who stood at the door was not the Frank she had known. He was dressed in the uniform of a soldier. Barbara gasped and said nothing. Frank explained that he had enlisted and was to be sent the next day to Texas to train.

As Barbara stood listening to him, she knew that she must tell him the truth before he went. "Frank," she said, "when I became engaged to you, I did it just for fun."

"For fun?" Frank cried in amazement and despair, his mind already picturing the days and nights of loneliness with no letters from Barbara to cheer him up.

"Yes, for fun," said Barbara. "You know I love excitement, and I thought that it would be sport." And Barbara dropped her veil. "I have changed my mind; I was only going to be engaged for a few weeks, but—"

On Thursday morning Frank left for Texas, but the girl who kissed him good-by at the station wore not only a diamond, but a plain gold band on her third finger.

Crops—Labor Transportation

"I don't know just what crops I will plant, nor how many acres I'll put in, or how I'll be need for labor; but I do know I'll surely plant something and I don't intend to get left on fertilizer!"

This man, a prominent East Coast Vegetable grower, had just finished a thorough study of the present situation. He had talked with railroad officials; had visited the Government Labor Bureau. He had gone over the fertilizer outlook with us. He then ordered a good general vegetable fertilizer, one containing potash, enough for the majority of his acreage. And he specified early shipment.

This man acted on sound business principle. You too, will surely plant something. Cover most at least of your requirements now—get a good general vegetable formula. It's always useful. Armour Fertilizers can be stored indefinitely without harm.

The Director of Railroads urges early shipment and heavy loading of cars. Club together and make up orders for 33, 44 or 55-ton cars. Early shipment and full car loading is best for you, for the railroads, and for us a wise move.

Barbara was a little doubtful as to the success of this plan, but as she really did not care at all for Frank, she had no thought for the harm she would do him, and so consented to the plan.

For several weeks Barbara stayed at home on Sunday nights and entertained Frank quite nicely. Of course, treatment of that kind soon led Frank to ask Barbara to reconsider her answer, and when he asked her again, she very shyly said "Yes."

As the weeks went by Barbara found it harder and harder to make up her mind to tell Frank that it was all a joke. Not that she intended to tell him the plan, but she would just say that she had made a mistake, but the longer it was put off the harder it became.

of your natural interpretation. Years ago, when a schoolgirl, I studied music in Germany, and in the glow of youthful romance I married there a fellow pupil. Handsome and of engaging manner was Peter Friedmann. After marriage the husband became a cruel master. Mine was a BRUTE BREAKING—a young girl separated by her own rash act from the companionship of the family who would have sheltered her.

I left Peter Friedmann, hoping to hide from his persistent pursuit, in my own country. Then the war broke out. For a few years at least I would be at peace. In the quiet spot where you found me. Even here his letters sought me out.

Marriage with me must always be a lie, though its bonds become unbearable. So good-by, John Hazelton. The shadow in my eyes does come from an unhappy past. But here among the foothills I shall have peace, and—the memory of white roses.

In contrition,

MARION FRIEDMANN.

Dear Mister Hazelton:

When you was here you said you would like to come back some time when convenient. Would like to say you can come when you want.

MRS. LINDA HASPINS.

P. S.—Forgot to tell you that Mrs. Friedmann's husband was killed in Germany the other day. It's too bad, but better, men has died.

L. HASPINS.

My Dear Mrs. Haspins:

I find that I will be able to spend some time at your home after next month. Would like to occupy again the little room over the porch. Will you ask Marion to care for, until I come, the rose trellis below the window.

JOHN HAZLETON.

LETTERS

By MILDRED WHITE.

Dear Little White Rose:

I can see your dark eyes widen in surprise at this mode of address, when you glance at my signature. But I am far away and dare leave your indignation.

This is the name I gave you in my heart, looking down the schoolyard margin from the window of my country-stopping place. Beneath the window, you were picking white roses from a trellis, and your upturned face was as sweet and fair as they. When we met at breakfast and our hostess introduced your name in introduction, it seemed to me less a reality than the one I had given you. Mrs. Friedmann, she said with pointed formality, "meet Mr. Hazelton," and involuntarily you smiled, smiled and changed from gloomy foreboding to joyful anticipation, my necessary stay in the loneliness of the foothills. Mine was a big engineering job, and past experience had taught me to expect little in the way of country hospitality.

To find you in all your loveliness, hidden in these remote sequestered corners, indeed. To be allowed to work you industriously as you bent over your book and sewing would be pleasure enough, so much your smile had done for me. "Who?" I asked myself over and over again, "were you here?" Your simplest frock bore the flushed mark of a great city, your conversation, of which at first you were ungenerous, betrayed study, years perhaps of travel abroad. Of yourself you gave no information, and our usually generous hostess, no doubt also had been trained to secrecy. So my interest, with my admiration, grew.

When at evening I would slip away to my room for pre-occupied labor, it was to hear you play in the twilight, upon the old piano in the "parlor" below. And what music your fingers brought forth from the yellowed keys! Often in listening I forgot your enchanting self; far away your music carried me into a land of dreams. I knew from the first that I loved you! Yet your reserve held me ever aloof. Desperately I guarded against betrayal, lest you should withdraw from me your sweet companionship.

The sadness of your eyes haunted and tortured me, too, with fancies of an unhappy past. My associates spoke of you as "The Mysterious Lady," and I wondered.

Then came the night before my departure, my heart ached with loneliness at the thought of being away from your presence. And as we sat there on the little porch, our hostess rocking comfortably near by, the very air seemed pregnant with my love, and it seemed that you must know; as I gazed into your shadowy corner I felt all at once that your heart was reaching out—calling to me also—and so it is that I write this letter.

Formally we bade good-by, our hands barely touching. Now, across the miles I send my plea, I love you; I want you for my wife, White Rose; may I come to you?

Yours,

JOHN HAZLETON.

Dear Mr. Hazelton:

My eyes did not widen in surprise as I read your letter, but often they were filled with tears because of my own remorse. To you I feel is due an explanation of my stay in the house of the foothills, to you alone. I make confession and apology. Will you believe that in the joy of our friendliness I intended no deceit? I foresaw no future sorrow; yet it has come to us both.

When our hostess called me "Miss Friedmann" in introduction she used the common phrasing of the community. Only at the last I became aware

A Mistake.

An impatient inspector who was visiting a provincial school was much surprised by the noise of the scholars in the next room. At length, through the door and burst upon the class seeing one boy taller than the others talking a great deal, he caught him by the collar, hustled him to the next room, and placed him in a chair, saying "Now sit there and be quiet!"

Ten minutes later a small head appeared round the door and a knock hit the visitor's side.

"Please, sir, you've got our teacher!"

Through Anyhow.

Five o'clock I hear your sister gave up manufacturing to be a carpenter engaged in your work.

The Kid: Yes, but she was so slow they fired her.

Five o'clock—You don't know?

The Kid: She thought she had her old job and tried to resume every day.
