

Barbers May Eventually Get Peruvian Monk As Patron Saint

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Barbers of the world eventually may have as their patron saint a Peruvian monk who worked in a Lima barber shop more than 350 years ago. He is Blessed Martin de Porres, a Dominican, whose cause for canonization—highest honor of the Roman Catholic Church—was renewed in 1923, and now is slowly continuing. A movement to have him proclaimed the patron saint of barbers when and if he finally is canonized is now underway here. Bologna's archbishop, Giacomo Cardinal Lercaro, has urged the barbers of his archdiocese to adopt the 15th-century monk as their patron and invoke his protection over their business matters, their families and their spiritual welfare. Martin de Porres was beatified by Pope Gregory XVI at St. Peter's Basilica on Aug. 28, 1837. The cause for his canonization progressed slowly for almost 100 years, but renewed interest in it led to its reopening by Pope Pius XI on June 8, 1923. For the canonization of the venerated monk, miracles attributed to his intercession must be presented to and approved by the Vatican's Congregation of Rites. General belief here is that Blessed De Porres eventually will be elevated to sainthood. As a boy De Porres was an apprentice in a Lima barber shop and is said to have told his mother that he wanted to work "as a barber and teacher to help my brothers in Christ." After his apprenticeship he worked as a barber, but refused all pay for his services. He then entered a Dominican monastery, helping orphans, slaves and the oppressed. He died Nov. 3, 1626.

CLERGYMEN GATHER TO DEDICATE CHAPEL

BALTIMORE (AP)—High-ranking clergymen of the Roman Catholic Church gathered at historic St. Mary's Seminary here today to dedicate a new chapel, built on a foundation laid 13 years ago. Thirty bishops and more than 600 priests, many of them alumni of the seminary, were on hand for the ceremony at the one million dollar edifice. St. Mary's Seminary was the MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet calendar for 1955 gives the people everything from historic dates to lessons on the evils of capitalism and treating snakebite with vodka. And all this for 4 rubles (31 at the official rate). It comes in desk-pad form and also can be affixed to a wall holder. The calendar is painted by the State Publishing House of Political Literature and as its small pages, only a few inches square, you can read not only how a heroic Soviet milkmaid gets her cows to produce more, but a Russian view that New York City treats its poor badly. The little calendar is official instruction for old and young in the best Marx-Leninist vein. It also has true-life adventure stories and even chess and checkers tips. For all Soviet citizens—peasants or city dwellers who queue to buy milk—there may be inspiration in the account contributed on a calendar page by a champion milkmaid of the Moscow region. She says she increased production by improved feeding methods and "giving much attention to the upbringing of the young cows." Fathers and city dwellers get instructions on sowing vegetables and cross-planting potatoes. And for evening relaxation they get crossword puzzles. For Mama there are instructions on handling baby's laundry, cooking recipes and how to "curb children's caprices."

There are dozens of articles telling Russian children and adults how bad things are in the United States, and how much better they have it here in the Soviet Union. The recommended snakebite treatment says vodka is "even better" than boiling water for washing the wound. First institution founded in this country for training regular diocesan Catholic priests. It was started 163 years ago in a tavern. There are now 74 throughout the country.

Sixty Eight New Members Reported In Chamber Drive

Sixty eight new members were gained to date in the Chamber of Commerce membership drive by three of the 10 groups soliciting members, according to Forrest Breckenridge, Chamber manager. Approximately 80 percent of the prospective club membership has not been contacted or the reports have not yet been turned in to the office, Breckenridge said. "Due to the fact that the drive began at the end of the week, it is felt that the balance of the prospects will be contacted early this week and the campaign can be closed by Wednesday as originally planned," he said. The list of those who have pledged new memberships in the Chamber are: Homer Osborn, Ed Meisch, St. Johns Realty, Wight Grocery, Wayne Montgomery, Miss Dol Powell, C. E. Research Head Still Doubt's Smoking

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Dr. Clarence C. Little, chairman of the Tobacco Industry's Research Committee, says his group "must be shown" any possible relationship between cigarette smoking and lung cancer. Dr. Little told a meeting sponsored yesterday by trustees of the Jackson Memorial Laboratory, Bar Harbor, Me., that his group is "still from Missouri" on the alleged cigarette-cancer issue. He said the Tobacco Research Committee is doing perhaps the greatest thing that any industry has ever done about a health problem. It has not yet been proven, he said, that there is any association between excessive cigarette smoking and effect relationship," he said. "We want to do whatever we can to solve the problem." The Jackson Laboratory, which Dr. Little heads, raises mice for experimental purposes. "THE BODY" OBTAINS DIVORCE LAR VEGAS, Nov. Justice Officials Called To Explain Youngdahl Affair

By JOE WALI.
WASHINGTON (AP)—Officials of the Justice Department were called before a Senate Judiciary subcommittee today to explain an effort to induce U. S. Dist. Judge Luther Youngdahl to withdraw from the Owen Latimore perjury case. Chairman Langer (R-ND) of the full Judiciary Committee, who heads the subcommittee, set up the hearing, the request of Sen. Hennings (D-Mo), a Subcommittee member, who said in a statement last night he wants the group to "get to the bottom" of the matter. Hennings first called for an investigation after Leo A. Rover, U. S. attorney for the District of Columbia, filed an affidavit accusing Youngdahl of a "personal bias and prejudice" in favor of Latimore. For Latimore's affairs specialist. Youngdahl rejected the affidavit as "scandalous" and rejected Rover's request that he disqualify himself from trial of the case. Youngdahl rejected the affidavit with the conclusion that the purpose of Rover's move was to discredit, in the public mind, the final action of our courts or to immutuate the courts themselves. Hennings said he knows of only one other occasion on which federal prosecutors asked a judge to disqualify himself. He said he was "amazed by such charges against a member of the federal judiciary of Judge Youngdahl's standing." Youngdahl, a Republican, was elected three times to the governorship of Minnesota. Latimore was first indicted in December 1952 after stormy hearings before the Senate Internal Security subcommittee. He was charged with seven perjury counts. He pleaded innocent to all of them, including the first count, which accused him of lying under oath when he said he had never been a sympathizer or promoter of Communist interests. Youngdahl, after hearing arguments, threw out this count as too vague and was upheld by the Circuit Court of Appeals. Youngdahl dismissed also four other counts, two of which were reinstated by the appeals court. The government then sought and obtained, last Oct. 7, a new two-count perjury indictment accusing Latimore of lying in denying that he had been a follower of the Communist line. Again he pleaded innocent and his attorneys have filed a motion to dismiss the indictment. This is due to be argued before Youngdahl.

Great Britain Is Exposed As Lawbreaker

LONDON (AP)—The British government, lately exposed as a persistent lawbreaker, intends rushing through legislation to put itself in the clear with millions of radio and TV fans. A test case in the courts revealed the Post Office has been collecting radio license fees for 26 years without apparent legal sanction. Those fees total close on 400 million pounds $1,112,000,000. Until retroactive legislation is passed, it seems the government has no right to the money. The trouble came to light when an engineering firm sued for return of fees it had paid for radio receivers and transmitters used in its trucks. The company won its case. The government attorneys admitted that, although fees were filed by 1928, no legal authority had ever been issued for collection. A new wireless telegraphy act came into force this year and the Post Office now has the official authority to collect fees. I pound $2.50 a year for radio and 3 pounds $7.50 for television. But additional legislation is needed to prevent persons claiming refunds of fees they paid before the new act started.

Local Edicts On Mixing Suggested

Suggestion Made On School Issue By Atty. General

WASHINGTON—The Justice Department says the controversial task of sending white and Negro children to the same public schools should be carried out in accordance with federal court direction and by a general Supreme Court order. Atty. Gen. Brownell proposed this to the Supreme Court yesterday. And in so doing, he seemed in agreement with President Truman's view that the federal government should be involved in the historic case on public school segregation. Brownell's brief was filed as part of the procedure to continue from the high tribunal's May 17 decision that public school segregation is unconstitutional. The court will hold a final vote at the time the court meets for the final argument on how best segregation should be carried out. The date for hearing these arguments has been put off at least until next year.

He tells Eisenhower told a news conference Tuesday that he understands the high court is trying to find some sort of decentralized process, and that he believes such will be given to the educational and practical problems involved.

Suga, states that federal district courts handle the job were referred in briefs filed Nov. 15 by Texas, Maryland, Virginia, Delaware, the School Board of Charleston, S. C., and attorneys for Negro parents who are principals in the suits.

Brownell emphasized the local control idea in a plea that the district courts be assigned the task, although his recommendations on other matters differed in some respects from the other briefs.

Directly involved in the case are South Carolina, Virginia, North Carolina, Kansas and the District of Columbia. Kansas and the District of Columbia already have told the court their public school integration programs are still under way, so a future order on how to carry out integration is expected to apply specifically only to the other states.

However, the May 17 decision will have a far-reaching effect throughout the nation. It may lay the way for possible suit in any other state to bring about action in line with the Supreme Court order.

Hospital Is Dedicated At Cornerstone Laying

Francis Whitehair, Principal Speaker, Gives Resume Of Wishes Of Judge Fish

Local citizens and distinguished guests yesterday afternoon heard Francis P. Whitehair of DeLand formally dedicate the Seminole Memorial Hospital as the cornerstone of the building was laid.

Whitehair was introduced by State Sen. Douglas Stenstrom, who acted as master of ceremonies for the event. Speaking extemporaneously, and with obvious emotion, Whitehair reminded listeners of the will left by the late Judge Bert Fish, which after personal requests, left the bulk of his estate toward the establishment of hospitals, in Sanford, DeLand and New Smyrna from which, "no man would be denied admission because of race, color or creed."

"The hospital in DeLand is now in operation and the one in New Smyrna is nearing operation," Whitehair said, telling the listeners that the laying of this cornerstone marked another great forward step in the fulfillment of Judge Fish's dream.

Whitehair departed only once from the tenor of the occasion when he said, "With this hospital and a few more good roads, we of Volusia county and you of Seminole County will be on good terms again."

Cornerstones Laid Immediately after the principal address by Whitehair, who spoke as chairman of the Bert Fish testamentary trust, the actual cornerstones were laid. Participating were Whitehair, T. E. Tucker, chairman of the board of hospital trustees, Dr. J. C. Boyce, president of the Seminole County Medical Assn., Otis Fouraker, chairman of the board of County commissioners, and Randall Chase, chairman of the board of directors of the Fernald-Laughton Memorial Hospital.

The cornerstone was a simple, rectangular white stone bearing only the year, 1954. It contained a sealed copper box. Inside the box for posterity were a list of all physicians in Seminole County, a list of all hospital board trustees,

With the Pilgrim fathers set apart a day for thanksgiving after their first harvest in 1621, they were perpetuating a custom that dates back even beyond Christianity, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica. The ancient Greek philosophers, and the patriarchs of the Old Testament considered that "the most appropriate offering to God is that of a pure and penitent heart," but also felt that thanksgiving, or "gratitude in praise," was acceptable. The religious idea of thanksgiving is an outgrowth of the ritual of sacrifice. Among primitive cults sacrifices tend to be interpreted as gifts to a god because he is believed to take pleasure in eating. It is probable that among Christians, as among Jews, every meal, and especially every social meal, was regarded as being in some sense a thank-offering. Thanksgiving Day's traditional turkey played a part in Indian turkey offerings more than a thousand years ago. Certain American Indian tribes kept turkeys in captivity—not for food, but for their feathers, which were picked from the living bird and burned in prayer offerings to appease the gods. However, although they are native birds, present-day turkeys came to America only after a round trip to Europe. Spaniards sent some of the birds that the Central American Indians had domesticated to Spain in 1610, and a few years later turkeys reached England. Offspring of these turkeys were brought back to New England by the Pilgrims, forming the flocks whose descendants furnish our holiday birds today.

On Thanksgiving Day, '54, Americans Have Plenty For Which To Be Thankful

What does Thanksgiving, 1954, mean to us?

This year, we in the United States have much to be thankful for. Some of you may be skeptical, but think:

- (1) The shooting is over in Korea.
- (2) Our leaders are more optimistic about the possibilities of peace than they have been for quite awhile.
- (3) We are putting the skids under the Red scourge in this country.
- (4) We are still in prosperous times.
- (5) We continue to forge ahead in our standard of living faster than any other country in the world.

(6) People here are quite willing to help others.

(7) Our Four Freedoms are quite intact—Freedom of religion, Freedom of speech, Freedom of the Press and Right to petition.

Yes, indeed, we have plenty to be thankful for—more than anyone else in the world. Let us give thanks to Him who makes it all possible.

NARCOTICS LAWS S... LIBBY

At the end of October a Thai official, in Bangkok, Thailand, called on its neighbors to help halt poppy cultivation as an aid to the Thai Government program for the elimination of opium smoking there.

Last week in New York three youths were arrested on charges of being narcotic wholesalers for "one third of Harlem". It is estimated that the ring of three youths and their minor peddlers were realizing from $2,000 to $3,000 profit a day.

Both stories are symptomatic of a recent forceful international and national drive against the sale of narcotics.

The largest source of the poppy which produces opium, from which heroin is also derived, is the Far East and the Mediterranean area. Marijuana comes from the Indian hemp plant—an inoffensive looking weed, which can be grown unnoticed in any state in the Union. The tremendous profit motive encourages get-rich-quick opportunists to trade in these illicit drugs.

One of the largest groups which fall prey to these dope pushers are the young people from all economic strata who are experimenting with the dangers and excitements of life. It may be an acceptance of a dare, or a futile and childish attempt by a boy to prove he is a man, but the result is a tragic, bitter addiction. Crimes committed in the wake range from shoplifting to murder. Narcotics are always expensive and to obtain money for them an addict will risk his life or take another's.

There are both federal and state laws covering narcotics. Some states levy more strenuous penalties than others. Officers of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics rightfully assert that this nation cannot be effectively rid of the narcotic menace until all states pass equally severe legislation.

EPHORIC... ARCTIC

Russia is the only important power with a long Arctic border. Canada has one, too, but she has far less about it. This deficiency has made good eventually, and the possibility of charting the shore lines of the Arctic is being undertaken. The existing charts are many of them 100 years old, and obviously could be improved. It is hoped to discover also whether, as is thought probable, the Arctic waters are getting warmer.

In years to come the world's Arctic resources will be utilized far more than they ever have been before. Just because they are in a cold region will not forever discourage explorers and industrialists.

Ike Has Cause To Be Thankful

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower can be thankful for several things today. He's well, his family is well, there's no shooting war anywhere, and America is generally prosperous. He's probably also thankful for a quiet day.

He can use a quiet day. In ordinary peacetime, autumn would be a slack season here. With Congress in session since summer, the President could get a breather before forestry to deal with the legislators again when they return in January.

But this is neither an ordinary peacetime nor an ordinary autumn. If war comes again, this will have been only a period of armed truce. A lot of this autumn was used in getting ready for war if it comes.

And Congress wasn't really gone at all. While the House finished and went home in August, the Senate, after a brief vacation, came back for the session in September. A debate which may last till Christmas.

And just to complicate things and make life more strenuous for the man in the White House, this autumn also was election time. In addition to his hard campaigning, Eisenhower's Republicans lost control of the next Congress to the Democrats.

That alone required some readjustments in Eisenhower's thinking and his plans for 1955 since now he not only will have to try to keep his own Republicans in line but get the Democrats to see things his way, too.

Even with Congress not in session, Eisenhower, like the President before him, had to use some of this autumn preparing his State of the Union Message, his budget estimates and his legislative program for Congress' return in January.

Helping him on all that, of course, are his staff, his Cabinet, and the whole machinery of the executive branch of the government. But the President has to make the final decisions since the final responsibility will be his.

But over all his problems at home hung the cloud of the cold war. Eisenhower had no rest from that.

All through October Secretary of State Dulles had to work with the American allies in Western Europe to find a way, which they did, for rearming West Germany and bringing it into the defenses against Russia.

In the Pacific there were more Southeast Asia defense treaty problems and trouble. Dulles, at all ways of course after consultation with Eisenhower, arranged a while the Chinese Communists were making threatening signs toward Formosa.

The administration still hasn't said what this country will do if the Red Chinese try to grab those islands off the China coast— islands which Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalists have been holding as outposts for the defense of Formosa.

In the meantime Eisenhower had to make decisions on the relations between Washington and the Kremlin when the Russians shot down an American plane. His decision was to keep on talking with the Russians, remonstrating, but avoiding war.

Then just this week the Chinese Communists announced the sentencing of 13 captured Americans.

Folks Have Thanksgiving Alone

NEW YORK (AP)—The elderly man and his wife entered the restaurant, sat down at a table for two, and ordered the Thanksgiving Day special dinner, price $4 including choice of dessert.

"Not very many people here," said his wife.

"Ummmm," replied her husband, knowing in advance the way the conversation might turn. He looked at her worriedly as she ate her appetizer in silence.

"It feels a little strange eating a Thanksgiving dinner in a restaurant," she said.

"Yes, we've never done that before."

"Oh, yes we did—the first year we were married. Don't you remember? I can remember every thing about it. We ate at that little place around the corner from our apartment. The dinner was $1.25 each, the turkey was underdone, and you spilled some gravy on your new suit and got very angry."

He marveled again, as he had so many times during their marriage, at the terrible remoteness of her memory—the thousands of little details about their life together she held imprinted indelibly in her mind, and would never let go.

The waiter brought the plates of turkey then, and the husband watched as his wife, lost in reverie, toyed at it with her fork.

"Try the turkey, dear. It's really pretty good," he said, and then as he saw the look on her face, he added hastily, "—that is, considering it was cooked in a restaurant."

But she only pecked at it absent-mindedly.

"I should think, after all these years of cooking Thanksgiving dinners, you'd be glad of a chance to escape all that bother," he upbraided her gently. "Anyway, we can't expect the children to come home every year. They've got their own family responsibilities."

"It's just that I feel lost without them," she said. "But of course it wouldn't have made sense for us to travel such a long distance just to spend a weekend with either Jim or Sis."

Then both fell silent, unwilling to admit even to each other the injury they felt that neither of their children, Jim or Sis, had written to ask them to come.

The waiter came to take the

Veterans Corner

Here are authoritative answers from the Veterans Administration to four questions of interest to former servicemen and their families:

Q: I am planning to apply for disability compensation. Since I have just had a physical examination at a recognized private hospital, would it be necessary for me to be examined again by the VA?

A: No, it would not be necessary for you to be examined by VA, so long as your hospital examination so that VA can properly evaluate the condition. Further, your examination must have been certified by the hospital's chief medical officer or his physician-designate.

Q: I am in the organized reserves, and I have been called to active training duty for two weeks.

A: No. Training duty may not count in determining entitlement to Korean GI Bill training. Only active-duty—as opposed to training duty—may be considered in computing entitlement.

Q: I lost my GI insurance policy. Will my beneficiaries still be able to get the proceeds of the policy?

A: Yes. The policy itself, which has been issued to you, is for informational purposes only. It is not necessary to produce the policy as evidence that the insurance is in effect; proceeds will be paid anyhow, so long as VA records show your policy was in force.

Q: I am attending a trade school. I have been told that I will be allowed 30 days of absence a year. Is this total prorated on a monthly basis, or are any number of absences during a single month permitted?

A: The absences are not prorated on a monthly basis. You are permitted to take your allowable absences at any time during your school year, according to your own needs.

FLORIDA CALLED GATEWAY FOR RED PROPAGANDA

WEST PALM BEACH (AP)—Florida is a gateway for communist propaganda flowing between North and South America. Ellis Rubin, an assistant state attorney general, said here yesterday in a talk at a Junior Chamber of Commerce meeting.

He said details of communist activity in the state probably will come out of a House Un-American Activities Committee hearing starting Monday at Miami.

Red Chinese Radio Continues Propaganda

LONDON — Peiping radio said today the 13 Americans sentenced to prison terms as spies were given a public trial "at which they admitted having received specialist training in espionage and guerrilla warfare."

The Red Chinese radio was keeping up its drumfire of propaganda in the case of the 11 airmen and two civilians whose sentences by a military court to terms ranging from four years to life was disclosed by the Peiping regime on Tuesday.

All were captured during the Korean War. Both the American and British governments have denounced the charges as false and a violation of the Geneva convention on prisoners of war. The United States is trying to arrange a public trial "at which they admitted having received specialist training in espionage and guerrilla warfare."

The Peiping radio said Col. John Knox, commandant of a 129 shot down Jan. 12, 1953, over North Korea, confessed in court he was engaged in intelligence work. He was sentenced to 10 years.

"Ames," Colonel of the U. S. Army, Air Supply and Communications Wing, stated in court that his wing had not been committed in the Korean theater and was at the time of the capture of the "amateur spies" in a training camp. It gave no explanation of the long delay between the capture of the men and their trial. The trial date was not specified, apparently it was only recently held.

Peiping radio said the men were sentenced on Tuesday. The radio gave this question and answer exchange which allegedly passed between the tribunal's chief judge: "Did you not name him and John Thomas Downey, 34, of New Britain, Conn. Downey, a civilian employee of the U. S. Army, was sentenced to life."

The judge asked Downey his profession before his "arrest." "I was in the Central Intelligence Agency of the United States," was the reply.

Chief judge: "What training did you undergo?" Downey: "I received espionage training, consisting of guerrilla warfare, weapons, small unit tactics, intelligence gathering, radio operating, parachute jumping, unarmored combat, map reading, etc."

Chief judge: "What organization gave you such training?" Downey: "The Central Intelligence Agency."

The broadcast said Downey admitted under the judge's questioning that he helped in the training as spies of nine Chinese sentenced with the Americans.

Four of the Chinese were sentenced to death, four were sentenced to life and one for 15 years.
