 —in the Commonwealth—
 —the land that no man
 hills.
 And there among the tumbled rocks
 Wander unheeded the flocks;
 The long slopes of the rose-red
 hills
 Naked with horses whose lean sides
 Have never felt a human knee
 And on the shores of the unlabied sea Flung the white smother of its tide.
 And there uncoil the sluggish snakes
 Along the brows of savage cliffs,
 As black and red as hippogriffs
 About whose claws the rent wave breaks
 And he who, lonely, sees these things
 May know his inner spirit stirred,
 For his heart moves like a bird
 Before it spreads its wings.

A number of cities on the West Coast have raised some seventeen thousand dollars to assist in a big advertising campaign. They are going after more tourists and they realize that it pays to advertise even when selling so intangible a something as climate.

Another thing: When the Los Angeles chief of police told Capone to leave, he probably figured he meant it, but when the Miami chief said, "Go," Capone undoubtedly thought about Ed Ballard's place and other gambling joints, and knew he was only kidding.

Bobby Jones came within two strokes of accomplishing what no one in the history of the world can boast. If he had just sunk a couple of putts he would have won the National Open championship, a feat which would have put him in a class by himself. But he is that already, so why should he worry.

Jim Reed still thinks he has a fighting chance. Cordell Hull hopes to be vice presidential nominee, if beaten for higher honors. Senator George has no intention of withdrawing in favor of Al Smith. Yet it looks as if the only man who could stop the New York governor is William Jennings Bryan and unfortunately in 1925 he took a nap one day too soon after eating.

Three young men set out from there, waiting for them, received word, instead, that they had been made this trip successfully, but every once in a while something happens to remind us that air-

This summary of sunshine and useful suggestions suggested on June 20 that sabre duels between editors would add considerable color and public interest to political campaigns. On June 22 a news item announced fencing classes, at the city hall, for men and women, commencing immediately. That is certainly prompt action. But we personally have just discovered a lame wrist and anyhow we are not, in the broader sense, an editor. Besides, at last reports we were fairly good with a rifle or a pistol, and why try to be a jack of all trades?

Business Picks Up

We have been considerably interested during the past week in watching the courageous fight of the Daily News to oust from his luxurious home on Palm Island, and the confines of Miami, that notorious Chicago gangster, "Scarface" Al Capone. The News, unmoved by the Chicagoan's reputation as a machine gunner and bomb thrower, has been hammering away in its three editions a day in an effort to impress upon the people of Miami the menace which the presence of this character creates.

The interest which we have in this contest, due to its remoteness and the limited range of automatics, is slight, but we do feel that every newspaperman in Florida and every other person who has been reading the Miami paper, is wondering why it was so easy for the Los Angeles police to get rid of Capone when he attempted to make his home there last winter, and why it should be necessary for the Miami authorities to cry, "We can do nothing about it. He is within his constitutional rights in making his home wherever he pleases as long as he does not violate any of our local statutes."

Up to the present time, so far as we have been able to discover, Capone has not violated any of our laws. He came to Miami, so he says, for the healthful effect of the climate, and so everybody else says, to escape the unhealthy conditions of Chicago. He has purchased a seventy thousand dollar home on the most exclusive Palm Island—and the purchase of a seventy thousand dollar home, these days, is not to be sneezed at by any member of the realty board. He made the eyes of clerks in Miami's largest department store bulge when he ordered no less than three thousand dollars worth of drapes; and when he went to a certain clothing store to make some rather extensive purchases, it was the merchants of the town who were sold on him.

But stories emanating from his old stamping ground in Chicago indicate that this man Capone bears a name to conjure with. He has been there some time, moving to the Windy City from New York where he was a well known figure in gang life. During this comparatively brief space of time he has built up what is probably the largest and most successful bootlegging industry in the world. The records show that he has never been convicted of any crime, but the reports are that his success lies largely in his ability to stifle competition by placing un- friendly racketeers "on the spot" or "taking them for a ride."

Just what Capone wants in Miami, it is of course impossible for anyone, outside his inner circle of friends, to say with any degree of accuracy. It is perfectly possible that he has found in Miami's climate something he has missed in Chicago, and desiring like most of us, to prolong our allotted span as much as possible, he has decided to come South before rival bootleggers in Chicago pop him off. On the other hand it is equally reasonable that he will not want to loaf all the time he is in Miami, and we confidently expect that by the time the winter season is under way Capone will have a number of establishments where liquor is as good as any you can find at the court house, and where roulette is only one form of gambling enjoyed.

If this is the case we can see only two logical deductions. The first is that business must be picking up in Miami. We do not believe that one of Capone's sagacity and business acumen would deliberately pick out a city in which to operate that was broke. And, in a way, we believe Miami will take it as a decided compliment to their financial condition that Capone would see in their city a lucrative field in which to set up his business.

It further seems more than likely that those who are in the same line of business, Tony La Manchic who runs La Vida, Kingsley Fink who operates a joint on Flagler Street in the heart of the business district, and Ed Ballard who last winter and other winters, has operated the Palm Island Club, less than a stone's throw from Capone's new home, would be the most upset by this Chicago man's presence. They know that Capone is too smart to harm a law-abiding citizen—he would make the electric chair if he did—but they also know that competitors in an illegal business who threaten Capone's supremacy, haven't much recourse to law when the bullets begin to spatter.

Suggestions For Retailers

Within recent years retail business has undergone many changes. Efficient methods of business conduct have supplanted the slipshod ways of yesteryear. Management has become highly systematized to prevent losses that were formerly incurred through ignorance and carelessness. Work of the employees has been laid out more uniformly and more exacting standards of salesmanship have been put into practice.

Efficiency, service and honesty have been made the objectives of all progressive retail houses, whether they be owned by huge chain organizations or controlled by individuals. The store of today is vastly different from that of twenty years ago. Cleaner in appearance, offering better goods, prompter service and more accommodations, the retail house of today presents thousands of improvements over its predecessor.

With numerous changes taking place every day, retailers are constantly seeking more progressive methods. The Jewelers' Circular, a trade publication, in a recent issue offers an interesting list of rules for merchants. The Herald reproduces them here with the hope that local merchants may find some helpful suggestions in the conduct of their businesses. The list numbering fifteen, is as follows:

1. Keep your eyes on your business barometer—your stock records and accounting system.
2. Make your show window work hard for you.
3. Co-operate with the worthy national advertiser. Cash in on his advertising in your local territory.
4. Seek out attractive, new, quickly salable merchandise.
5. Buy wisely and adjust the volume of buying to the demand.
6. Put human interest in your advertising copy.
7. Advertise honestly, thoughtfully and frequently.
8. Keep informed on social, civil political, industrial and sporting events. Use them as selling occasions.
9. Study the merchandising and advertising methods of successful retailers in your own and in other lines.
10. Add side lines after careful study of their salability and adaption to your trade.
11. Have a business library on your desk. Successful retailing requires head work—theory plus practice.
12. Know your exact cost of doing business. Figure your profits preferably on your selling price.
13. Properly classify everything that comes into and everything that goes out of your store by an intelligent system of accounting.

BACK TO THE DAYS OF BECKER
 NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE

Not since the murder of Her- man Rosenthal by four gunmen who shot him in front of a hotel in West Forty-third Street has there been such a public killing as that of Edwin Jerge in Herald Square Sunday afternoon. The two crimes have much in common. Both were made possible by the use of automobiles to facilitate the escape of the slayer or slayers. Both were the result of disputes in the underworld and both had been obviously carefully planned beforehand. The murderers of Rosenthal were captured because the police were familiar with the underworld gangs which were then largely concerned with gambling. The perpetration of the Jerge murder is credited to a crowd of bootleggers and narcotic peddlers, who make far more profit from those industries than was ever made from gambling. Inspector Coughlin is quoted as informing the detective of the Police Department that they should have known all about the criminals in whose interest Jerge was killed. In that he is perfectly right. But Mr. Coughlin and Commissioner Warren should also have known about them. The Police Department has or ought to have wide opportunities to secure information of what is going on in the underworld.

The fact that any criminal jump on the running board of an automobile, stalled in the heart of Manhattan Island in broad daylight, and pour five shots into a rival gangster is sufficient commentary on how the underworld regards the Police Department. Nothing that Whittemore and his followers ever attempted was bolder than this. Gangsters, because of the risks incident to their trade, keep carefully informed as to the efficiency of the police. They know what they can "get away with" and what is unsafe to attempt. Well may Commissioner Warren and Inspector Coughlin be perturbed about this Broadway murder. It was a brazen defiance of them and the men under them. And unless the murderer is caught and punished gangsters everywhere in the city will be emboldened to carry on their private feuds with the freedom of the old vendetta.

Public sentiment has been behind the Board of Estimate in increasing the police force on the theory that the public safety fully justified it. But even though the man killed Sunday was a gangster like his slayer murder is not to be tolerated. If this murderer escapes it would be a disgrace to Mayor Walker to give up his trip to Houston and remain on the job to find out what is the state of affairs in the Police Department.

THE HERALD IS FUSSY
 TAMPA TRIBUNE

The Miami Herald is showing signs of petulance. It calls on The Tribune to "quit electing Doyle Carlton." It was known that Carlton was elected the Thursday after election, says the Herald, "and everybody was satisfied." (We wonder!) "But The Tribune evidently hasn't heard the news. It still carries from one to two editorials almost daily, setting forth the fine characteristics of the candidate whom it supported and to whose nomination it contributed so much."

We object. The Tribune knew of the nomination of Carlton as soon after the election as it was possible for it to be known, and told the people about it. Besides, The Tribune told the people, including the Herald, of Carlton's nomination a week before the election, giving approximately the exact figures of his plurality—but, of course, the Herald wouldn't believe it.

We don't think the Herald has a right to complain if the comparatively few Carlton papers, overwhelmed as they were by the preponderance of "great dailies" of the state which were united for Huthaway find some pleasure in talking about his election. If the Herald's candidate had been successful, there wouldn't have been space on the Herald's editorial page for any other subject before Christmas.

If Hoover and Smith are nominated the dregs won't have much chance, with a flood candidate opposed to a wet.—Palm Beach Post.

Jannings Excels In 'The Last Command' At Milane Theater

Now we have the answer to an important question.

Critics hailed Emil Jannings' production "The Way of All Flesh" and "The Last Command" as the greatest characterizations in the history of the screen.

Many persons asked whether they would be surpassed.

Jannings has surpassed his greatest effort in his new Paramount starring picture "The Street of Sin" scheduled for its first showing at the Milane Theater today.

The star has chosen the colorful slums of London's Limehouse for the background of his latest characterization, that of a giant "bruiser" who rules the rabble of the gutters with his fists.

He has two leading women, one a saint and one a sinner. Fay Wray, who was chosen from among thousands of girls by Eric von Stroheim as his leading woman for "The Wedding March" appears opposite Jannings as the saint—a Salvation Army lass, Olga Baklanova, distinguished actress of the Moscow Art Theatre, whose vampirish fire and temperament delighted thousands when Morris Gest brought her to New York.

Is the sinner—a girl of the streets who loves Jannings.

Jannings goes almost all the way through the picture showing his strength as the scepter of his way over the raffians of Limehouse. His regeneration comes after a terrible ordeal that almost costs the life of Fay Wray.

Mauritz Stiller, who directed Pola Negri in her two recent successes "Hotel Imperial" and "The Woman on Trial," directed Jannings in the latter's powerful new characterization. The story was written by Josef von Sternberg and Benjamin Glazer.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond C. Phillips and small daughter, Emily, and L. R. Phillips will move on Tuesday to the Phillips residence of Park Avenue.

Mrs. Theo Vickery and Mrs. Jack Lee of Macon, Ga. are visiting here as the guests of their mother, Mrs. Lillian Vickery at her home on West Third Street.

Miss Margaret Zachary, Miss Frances Dutton, Miss Perrie Lee Bell and guest, Miss Ruth Campbell of Aberdeen; N. C., Miss Sara Warren Easterby, John Taylor of Salt Lake City, Utah, Ralph Woodruff, Frank Dutton Jr., John Ivey, Pete Sones, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. William Pitts III and Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Williams formed a congenial party at the Daytona Beach Sunday where they spent the evening.

RELATED DRIVE TO STOP SMITH Forges AHEAD

The ardent drive, the Wilson idolizers, the League of Nations Democrats, the Old McAdoo crowd all combined to bar him from a seat in the Democratic convention at San Francisco eight years ago.

Today in Houston Senator Reed is conferring with them and they are rallying behind him to "stop" Smith.

In a room which Roper and Reed had their early morning conference sat an official of the Anti-Saloon League. He created the Missouri Senator cordially as the party broke up. Only a year ago Senator Reed was anathema to the dregs. He excoriated the league on the floor of the Senate and he gave a merciless grilling to late Wayne B. Wheller when he was a witness Reed's committee in Washington. Reed, as the champion of the prohibitionists and the ardent drive, is the spectacle that is causing similar behind many hands in Houston.

"The allies" have only the faintest of hopes to "stop" Smith. Publicly, they are keeping up a bold front, but privately they concede the nomination to go by default, that is, abandoning the thus far futile efforts to get a fast ditch coalition and to concentrate instead on writing into the platform a bone dry plank so drastic that Smith might refuse to stand on it.

There are almost as many prohibition plans being carried out in Houston as there are delegates and visitors. They protrude from every pocket, and they range the way from the out-and-out wet to the drier-than-the-dry variety.

The Smith supporters profess not to be perturbed at all over the prospects of the platform fight on prohibition. Governor

Smith, his spokesman here say, would be entirely willing to stand in a plank similar to that adopted by the prohibitionists.

FRENCH WOMEN DON'T WANT TO GET FRANCHISE

Politics Hold Little Interest Although Ladies Admit They Are Superior When Social Problems Are Before House

French woman is her worst enemy in the struggle for the vote, is once more being proved by a questionnaire in "La Presse." The majority of the women who have given their opinion on the subject show plainly that the world of politics does not interest them.

"Down with Votes for Women," writes Madame Chlappe, wife of the well-known Perfect of Police. "I think Woman Suffrage would be the ruination of French family life."

"The wife who must work to keep the pot boiling is already sufficiently separated from her family by her daily occupations without having political meetings and societies to attend."

"And among the more intelligent classes, there are enough conjugal troubles, more or less serious, without adding those which could very easily arise from differences in political views."

"Certainly, women are more competent than men in solving certain social problems, such as the education of children, children's courts and prohibition, etc., but every woman can exert her influence in the most efficacious manner without going to the polls. Woman's place is in the home, as much today as in the time of our great grandmothers. I admit that an unmarried woman might occupy herself with such questions, but in this case she should never marry."

Madame Rachilde, celebrated French writer, does not want to vote because it would be "a big nuisance" and she prefers to spend her time doing other things. But she sees no inconvenience for others of her sex to go to the polls if they feel like it and wishes that a few smart women would clean up the House of Representatives and Senates France. She does not know much about feminism and acknowledges it.

In all, only some 300,000 French women are connected with organizations formed to fight for the vote or actively supporting the measure which is awaiting the approval of the Senate.

Color Does Not Give Age, Say Paris Designers

Designers in France Use All Colors in the Making of Their World-Famous Frocks. Is Edict To Fashion World

By ALICE LANGELIER International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS.—Color has no age-giving qualities, according Paris, latest edict to the world of fashion which has long believed that certain shades were considered old and others quite the contrary.

The important thing, it seems is how one applies color, its relation to one's coloring and its suitability to the time and place.

Colors, this season, are subtle, forming combinations of such kind that they lose that sense of boldness which makes them dangerous to most women, and the paler shades are jazzed up by brilliant touches which make them very attractive to the unfortunate anemic ones.

Lenief, for instance, makes pale gray brilliant and bringing to every woman, thus becoming the "fantastic dove tone" as a possible color for every one. He also unites such strikingly opposed tones as beige and black in costumes that are ravishing for every complexion.

Yvonne Davidson, French wife of the American sculptor "Jo", is the innovator of the multiple color harmony in one frock which she introduced first by making three or four frocks in one, each of a diaphanous material in as many different tones.

The rarest of pastel tones are used by Bone Sœurs to make frocks of the bouffant type, combined with the artistry of Fragonard.

Lucien Lelong is using shades that are distinctly subdued; this season, as well as a great deal of black and white. He shows a special liking for the gamut of clear bronze for afternoon ensembles. They range from delicate gray shades to deep beige, always with a hint of bronze which makes a delightful contrast to blue-green for evening.

Harvard Has Gorilla

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 11.—(INS)—Harvard now has an exhibition one of the finest specimens of African mountain gorilla, on exhibition in this country. The animal was shot and killed while sunning itself on a tree stump in its native habitat by Harold J. Coolidge, '27.

In tracking the gorilla, Coolidge was accompanied by one white hunter and a band of African pygmies, who acted as guides and trackers.

New Chairmen in Committees of Next Congress

By Cole E. Morgan International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 25.—When Congress comes back next December there will be somewhat of a new crew on the job to initiate major legislation in the House. They will be old legislative hands, thoroughly familiar with the tasks they will tackle, but new nevertheless in the positions they will occupy.

Due to vacancies created during the session just closed by death and resignation, four major House committees will get down to work in December with chairmen other than those who headed these committees when the present Congress was organized last December.

The resignation of Representative William R. Green of Iowa from the House following his appointment as United States Customs Court, advanced Representative Willis C. Hawley, of Oregon, to the chairmanship of the important Ways and Means Committee which will shape any tax and revenue legislation the short session may attempt.

Head of Appropriations

The recent death of Representative Martin B. Madden, of Illinois, veteran chairman of the Appropriations Committee, advances Representative Daniel R. Anthony, Jr., of Kansas, to that post. Anthony who has been in the Southwest for his health virtually throughout the session just closed, returned to Washington with the announcement he would be in physical condition to take up the arduous duties of the appropriations chairman next December. It had been understood that Anthony would forgo the post in which event it would have gone to Representative Will R. Wood, of Indiana. The major task of the session will be to pass the departmental and other supply bills that the Appropriations Committee brings in.

The death of Representative Thomas S. Butler, of Pennsylvania, head of the Naval Affairs Committee, advances Representative Fred A. Britten, of Illinois, to that chairmanship. With the administration's naval construction program hanging over from the present session and other important naval measures in the mass of unpassed bills Britain has a big job laid out for him.

The fourth committee chairmanship vacancy was created with the resignation of Representative Nicholas J. Sinnott, of Oregon, to accept appointment as Judge of the United States Court of Claims. Sinnott has been chairman of the Public Lands Committee and also a member of the Irrigation and Reclamation, Patents and Pensions Committees.

On Public Lands

Under the seniority rule Representative Addison T. Smith, of Idaho, would advance to the Public Land chairmanship, but he is already chairman of the Irrigation and Reclamation Committee. It is known that Smith would prefer the Public Lands chairmanship. The Irrigation Committee however, has the Boulder Dam legislation in hand. It is understood that pressure has been brought to bear to keep Smith in the Irrigation post until the Boulder Dam question is finally disposed of.

As a result of this situation Representative Don B. Colton, of Utah, is slated to become the new Public Lands chairman, he being next in seniority to Smith. But should events shape up to place Smith at the head of the Public Lands, Utah would benefit by a chairmanship, since Representative Elmer O. Leatherwood, of Utah, now ranks as second to Smith and would become his successor as Irrigation chairman.

Should Colton become the Public Lands chairman he would be called upon to relinquish the chairmanship of Elections Committee No. 1. That would advance Representative Joseph L. Beedy, of Maine, to the Elections post.

Swicide Pact Made By 75 Girls Fails

KIEV, Ukraine, (INS) June 25.—A suicide plot involving 75 former homeless beggar girls between the ages of 10 and 16 was frustrated in the government orphanage near here two hours before its attempted execution.

One little wail of 13 got cold feet, crawled out of bed at 10 o'clock and told one of the attendants that at midnight half of the girls in the dormitory were going to drink poison and the other half were either going to hang themselves with bedsheets or hurl themselves out of the windows.

Tired of the dreary life in confinement, disgusted with ragged clothes and foul food, the girl said, her sisters had taken a pledge at a meeting to end the misery in a manner so startling that the government would be forced to provide recent conditions for thousands of other homeless. The girl failing to convince the Economy in food is one of the most efficient ways to conserve the pennies. Among the foods which can be bought at moderate prices, if chosen with a due regard to local markets, are both salads and desserts.

Low Priced but Popular

For a family of five, two adults and three children, it is estimated that the following dishes can be made at costs ranging from sixteen to twenty-six cents. Of course these prices will vary according to localities, but whether you live in a high or a low priced territory, these will still be economical foods. And what is more, they will be popular with your family.

Pineapple Whip: Beat three egg whites until stiff and gradually add one-half cup sugar. Fold in one cup crushed pineapple. Bake in a shallow dish and bake in a slow oven twenty-five to thirty minutes or until puffed and slightly browned. Serve either hot or cold. About sixteen cents.

Carrot Salad: Grate two raw carrots, or run them through the food chopper. Add one cup crushed Hawaiian pineapple, and one-half cup roasted peanuts. Moisten with mayonnaise and serve on lettuce leaves. Twenty-six cents.

Shamrock Salad: Cut the stem end off two small green peppers and remove seeds. Cut the peppers into fifteen rings and place three rings in the form of a shamrock on lettuce arranged on individual plates. Heap the centers of the rings with well drained crushed Hawaiian pineapple, and in the middle, where rings come together, put a spoonful of mayonnaise. Garnish with paprika. Twenty-six cents.

Save Your Pennies

Save your pennies, count with care. Soon you'll be a millionaire.

THIS modern version of Benjamin Franklin's admonitions is one that the housewife of today heeds. For he knows that pennies, which spend the household's money, must also save it. She is the savior of the family (if not the savior as her forebears thought).

Economy in food is one of the most efficient ways to conserve the pennies. Among the foods which can be bought at moderate prices, if chosen with a due regard to local markets, are both salads and desserts.

Low Priced but Popular

For a family of five, two adults and three children, it is estimated that the following dishes can be made at costs ranging from sixteen to twenty-six cents. Of course these prices will vary according to localities, but whether you live in a high or a low priced territory, these will still be economical foods. And what is more, they will be popular with your family.

Pineapple Whip: Beat three egg whites until stiff and gradually add one-half cup sugar. Fold in one cup crushed pineapple. Bake in a shallow dish and bake in a slow oven twenty-five to thirty minutes or until puffed and slightly browned. Serve either hot or cold. About sixteen cents.

Carrot Salad: Grate two raw carrots, or run them through the food chopper. Add one cup crushed Hawaiian pineapple, and one-half cup roasted peanuts. Moisten with mayonnaise and serve on lettuce leaves. Twenty-six cents.

Shamrock Salad: Cut the stem end off two small green peppers and remove seeds. Cut the peppers into fifteen rings and place three rings in the form of a shamrock on lettuce arranged on individual plates. Heap the centers of the rings with well drained crushed Hawaiian pineapple, and in the middle, where rings come together, put a spoonful of mayonnaise. Garnish with paprika. Twenty-six cents.
