The Sanford Herald Published every afternoon except Sunday at Sanford, Florida, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Sanford Must See That The Count is Correct

At the last session of the state legislature provision was made for taking the regular decennial census for Florida. The work will start in January and be completed as early as possible in the new year.

This means that unless there is local co-operation in the task of gathering the data for the census, Florida will again have an inaccurate census report to use in its advertising and its boosting.

Already there are some Florida towns asking questions about how the census-takers are to be chosen and are insisting that competent people be appointed who will work intelligently as well as rapidly.

Is Sanford one of those towns? Will Seminole county secure an accurate census in 1925? The matter is of enough importance to call for the immediate attention of the city commissioners.

Under the Florida provisions for taking the decennial census, the state appoints an enumerator for each county. The enumerator, in turn, appoints his helpers. It is obvious that the accuracy of the count will depend upon the ability of the person appointed by the state to secure helpers who know their section and who will make no blunders in the compilation of the census data.

It is also obvious that this work is something that calls for the close attention of one of Sanford's civic associations. The Junior Chamber of Commerce—or any other of the good organizations working for Sanford's progress—could find no better way to serve their city and county just now than to take up this census work and see it through until every man, woman and child in Seminole county is on the lists, and the numbers are properly tabulated and computed.

Sanford and Seminole county are to use the 1925 census figures for the next ten years. What will the numbers be?

To A Horse

We note with interest the closing lines of an editorial in the Miami Herald which read, "The horse just cannot keep up. It is clear that in order to be civilized, people must get around in a hurry, and the indications are that he will soon be as extinct in the city as the well-known dodo."

Then we see in the Jacksonville Journal that "New York City checks up and finds 65,000 horses still work in its streets. No danger of Dobbin becoming extinct by competition with the auto. More horses now than when horseless carriages were invented. There'll be still more when airplanes swarm by millions."

There is the basis of a good argument. Where is the horse going? And if so, why? Has the gasoline motor displaced him? Does his well-nigh human intelligence count for naught in the struggle against invention? Will the "survival of the fittest" mean the extinction of the horse?

In our own mind there is little doubt that the horse as a commercial factor is about as important as a peckax to a manufacturer. Horses are too easily injured when traffic jams on crowded streets. The hard pavement makes them lame and they get the colic without any excuse at all.

Trucks are twice as dependable and can haul twice as much. Wait until the present generation of horse flesh dies and the equine species as a day laborer will become a subject of history.

But don't get the idea that the era of the horse is past. Far from it. All the splendor of a glorious future is just beginning to dawn for him. With neck arched and stepping high he is at last coming into his own.

Like the "Office Boy to President," who retires at the age of fifty and spends the rest of his days playing golf, the horse, too, has served his time as the beast of burden for mankind, and is now about to be retired in luxury.

No more will you see poor Dobbin hitched to a rickety "one-hoss shay," standing in a cold, drizzly rain, vainly trying to avoid pneumonia. No more will he be called upon to haul foul-smelling wagons around to gather garbage from back porches.

Not he. Henceforth, attendants and grooms will polish his sleek coat to the highest degree of glossiness. His hoofs will be carefully manicured with all the delicacy of the most refined beauty specialists. His bed will be made for him by professors in the art and he will lie down to rest among downy comfortable and pleasing dreams.

He will be the pride of sportdom. He will be the idol of kings and queens and the highest social leaders. He will be the pampered pet of kid-gloved ladies. He will proudly strut his stuff in a thousand million-dollar horse shows. He will be babied with blue and red ribbons. He will be the thrill and pride of scores of loving eyes on many a polo field. He will call forth loud and lusty cheers from Churchill Downs to Saratoga.

For twenty centuries and more he has been a faithful servant to man. Let him now ride in the vale of contentment. Let him have his oats and lie down.

ANATOLE FRANCE

When alive Anatole France was hailed as a master. Now that he is dead a tribute such as was paid to Voltaire and Hugo will probably be accorded him. To the French this patriarch of letters was their greatest modern interpreter. One of the sharpest of his contemporaries reported his work as "the ultimate flowering of the Latin genius." Though he interpreted the French for the French, there was such universality in his analysis, to his satire, to his humanity that his books became a part of the world's literature and he was awarded the Nobel prize.

It is said that in polishing his prose he resembled Roman. In rewriting upward of five times practically every thing he wrote his art was the result of tireless effort. He himself has said, "A simple style is like a white light; it is complex, but it does not seem so. In writing what appears a beautiful and pleasant simplicity is really the result of careful arrangement and strict economy in the use of parts of speech."

As Brisbane Sees It

Some Politics. Voting for Mellon. Silk Stockings for Voters. Champion Pig Litter. BY ARTHUR BRISBANE (Copyright 1924)

JOHN W. DAVIS believes that eight states will go to La Follette, and that he will get the South, of course, including the usual plurality in Tennessee.

All politicians, if they tell what they really think, say that Davis's remaining hope is to have the election thrown into the House. It may go there. La Follette's power and following are generally underestimated, in the East. Republican enthusiasts say that La Follette will carry only North Dakota and Wisconsin. Others admit that he has a fairly good chance in at least four other States.

Nine out of ten well informed politicians predict that Coolidge will be elected. And the bets of 5 to 1 that have been made on Coolidge indicate that there are FACTS back of the bets. Such odds are made, as a rule, only on reliable figures.

UNCLE JOE Cannon says the nation's horse sense will reelect Coolidge. Apart from his own satisfactory "early American" character, the name of Secretary Mellon should get more votes for Coolidge among "horse sense" people than any other. If Mr. Coolidge is elected, Mr. Mellon presumably will remain as Secretary of the Treasury, and continue paying off the United States debt, retiring bonds, reducing taxes.

MR. MELLON has given to the people the ability and earnest hard work of one of the ablest business men in the United States. The people, if they can, ought to retain his services at least until he has paid off a few more of the billions of debt that our Democratic friends, with the best of intentions probably, piled up so cheerfully in the war days.

MANY CITIZENS, in voting for Coolidge for President, will realize with satisfaction that they are also voting for Mr. Mellon for secretary of the Treasury.

THE "Full Dinner Pail" is old-fashioned and Steamship "Clerks," etc., say they don't care so much about white collars for themselves, but they must have silk stockings for their wives.

President F. R. Fitzgerald says that women feel inferior when not well dressed, and every working woman should have three pairs of silk stockings a year, so she should, and the railroads will probably advance it, rather than have a strike.

You can get very good silk stockings for $2 a pair, so that that would only amount to an increase of 50 cents a day in wages.

The interesting thing is that the workmen are now worrying about their wives' happiness, rather than about themselves. That's spiritual progress.

HALDANE, leader of British production of food, who predicts food production in a world not drugged of opiates, that in a few years sugar will be as cheap as sawdust. Don't be in too much of a hurry to sell your sugar stock, however.

NATHAN 8 old-fashioned methods are creditable. Pennsylvania State College announces the champion litter of fifteen pigs, 6 months old, weighing 3,461 pounds.

The mother of that little family is entitled to some kind of a monument. In six months she adds nearly two tons of pork to the world's food supply, and is doubtless busy with a brand new litter by this time. The name of the pig family, a "pure bred sow" is Petal and Girl. Humble and plain she is more important than the proud animal in the next paragraph.

EPINARD, great French race horse, has built his foot and pulled back to France to devote the remainder of his life to the responsibilities of fatherhood, the production of other race horses. His owner, Mr. Wertheimer, refused $300,000 for him after his injury. Horses have an advantage over men. When a race horse wins, he is worth much money, when he can race no more, it is taken for granted that his children will win races.

WHEN A MAN is successful in the race of life it is taken for granted that his children will be failures. The successful man leaves to his children what he earns and with that they ruin themselves. If it were possible for Epinard to have the money that he has won on the race track to his colts, they would cut themselves to death in a few years and wouldn't be worth ten cents apiece. The marvel is that ANY rich man's son ever works.

THE NUTTIEST SEASON OF THE YEAR

HIS WEALTH A CURSE

London's Duke of Westminster, who wears his name and after lunch races down getting fed up on that has no income that bothers him to spend. He owns a square mile of the most valuable property in the world, besides half of the highest stakes at Monte Carlo, but he doesn't get any kick out of it. He was at a party that much more of a curse than he is. And if he were to be brought to his bed by a man in a blue frock, at 10:30 he plays a game of tennis with a professional. He has a net worth of $20 million. Then he goes to the bank and plays a game of bridge with another professional. At the end of the day he gets angry over his own wealth and falls into the front garden.

THE PRINCE ON THE HUSTINGS?

The Prince of Wales, who is not a prince through the stock and bond market, has a net worth of $10 million. He is a fiver being a scoundrel in his own right. He is a scoundrel in his own right. He is a scoundrel in his own right. He is a scoundrel in his own right.

SENIOR EPWORTH LEAGUE TO GIVE THREE-ACT PLAY
 "Bashful Mr. Bobs" a three- act play, written by Walter Ben- Hoad, will be given by members of the Senior Epworth League of the local Methodist Church at the High School auditorium tonight at 8 to 9 o'clock.

A list of the characters in this play may be found in the 12th and 13th days' issues of The Herald in- cluding also the time and place of the various scenes.
 It is declared by those in a post- ture to know that this play is a force comedy, is one of Mr. Hoad's best and that everyone who sees it tonight will have every oppor- tunity for laughter.

Mr. Hoad, it is said, has written a number of comedies and two plays and in "Bashful Mr. Bobs" he is at his best. There is a lot of excitement with a supposed mis- der and the unraveling of the plot to be a very different character.
 The Sanford public is cordially invited to attend this play. Fur- ther information regarding it may be found in advertisements in the day's Herald.

The friends of Mrs. Hessie Brown will be glad to know that she is going to have a limited supply of her delicious cakes on sale at Gon- zalez Grocery Store Saturday. Those in the past who have been so fortunate as to have tasted some of Mrs. Brown's cakes will con- sider this a rare opportunity that should not be missed. The day is Saturday and the place is the Gon- zalez store.

Nellie Turner Circle Meets On Wednesday

Nellie Turner Circle met at the home of Mrs. Methvin on West First Street Wednesday afternoon with 17 members present. Consid- erable business was transacted.
 One interesting feature of the program was the dollar shower from which $15.00 was realized, the amount to be applied on the church debt.
 Arrangements were completed to send the box of clothing to the orphan girl the Circle is supporting, and a committee was appointed to arrange the details. There being no other business the meeting ad- journed for the social hour.
 The hostess served coffee and sandwiches which was enjoyed by all present.

LEGION AUXILIARY
 There will be a meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary Satur- day afternoon, Oct. 25, at 4 o'clock at the home of Mrs. L. P. Chittenden, 911 Elm Avenue. Officers for the coming year will be elected and other important business will be transacted.

The Sanford Shrine Club held a dance at the Casino last Thursday evening.

CARD OF THANKS
 I wish to thank all friends for their kindness to me, by their sym- pathy, and floral offerings in my recent bereavement in the loss of my beloved wife, who passed away Sunday.

SICKLY, PEEVISH CHILDREN.
 Children suffering from intesti- nal worms are cross, restless and unhealthy. There are other symp- toms, however. If the child is pale, has dark rings under the eyes, bad breath and takes no in- terest in play, it is almost a cer- tainty that worms are eating away its vitality. The surest remedy for worms is White's Cream Vermifuge. It is positive destruction to the worms but harmless to the child. Price 35c. Sold by Union Pharmacy.
