Organizers of Seminole High School's Project Graduation will be having a planning session on Thursday, March 12, at 7 p.m. The program will be in the school's media center.

The parents of all members of the senior class are invited to attend the meeting. This is the first meeting for the annual celebration and is a good time to join the group.

Project Graduation is a drug and alcohol free celebration scheduled for the evening of graduation that is sponsored by the parents of the senior class and many area merchants.

School board meeting announced

SANFORD — The Seminole County School Board will meet at Lake Howell High School, 4200 Dike Road in Winter Park, for a full day of meetings tomorrow.

Because they have scheduled at Lake Howell a public hearing regarding the rezoning of students in the southeastern part of the county to fill Indian Trails Middle School, which is scheduled to open in the fall, the board decided to hold all their official functions at the school on Tuesday.

At 1:30 p.m., they will hold a closed door executive session to discuss contract proposals to be presented to the bus drivers union.

At 2 p.m. there will be expulsion hearings for students.

Following that, at 3:30 p.m. the regularly scheduled school board meeting will take place.

Tuesday's meetings will culminate with the public hearing that is the first step in the rezoning process.

Expressway open house planned

OVIDO — Information about the design and construction plans of Seminole County's expressway will be available at an open house Wednesday.

The expressway's public information office, located at 1401 W. Broadway, Oviedo, will be open to the public from 5 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Design, right-of-way and construction plans for the $200 million, 12-mile tollroad will be on display. The expressway extends from Aloma Avenue to U.S. Highway 17-92 at State Street in Sanford.

Representatives from Florida's Turnpike and construction engineers will be available to answer questions. For more information, call expressway public information officer Gayle Geddes, 365-0706.

'Super Tuesday's' future

Goard expects 39 percent of county's voters at polls

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Sandra Goard, Seminole County elections supervisor, expects 39 percent of the county's registered voters to participate in Tuesday's Presidential Preference Primary — if they can find the polling places.

But the future of "Super Tuesday" is in question as political leaders question its effectiveness of landing southern Democrats with a presidential nomination.

Goard said she predicts fewer voters will turn out Tuesday than the 42 percent participation in March 1988. Goard said she has received a slightly lower number of absentee ballots compared to the 1988 presidential primary.

"I hope I'm wrong, but then I hope we get 39 percent," said Goard.

A total of 100,835 of the county's 108,312 registered voters will be eligible to participate in the primaries Tuesday. There are no county, school or north county city issues to attract Independents and other party affiliates to the polls. Of the eligible voters, 59,427 residents registered as Republicans and 41,408 Democrats registered, about a 3-to-2 ratio.

If Goard's prediction holds true, about 39,325 people will participate in the election.

The election will also be the first that many voters will face changes in polling places. To accommodate the population growth during the past 10 years, several smaller precincts in Sanford and elsewhere were merged and six new precincts were added.

Goard mailed notices to every household affected by the changes to alert voters.

A complete list of polling places was published Sunday in the Sanford Herald.

Although past Super Tuesdays have failed push southern Democrats to advance the interests of southern Democrats, supporters think it will continue.

But some supporters of the concept, like think the idea will stick.

"This will be the year where the whole concept of Super Tuesday is validated," said Florida Lt. Gov. Buddy MacKay, who along with U.S. Sen. Bob Graham and other members of the Southern Legislative Conference came up with the idea following the 1984 nomination of Walter Mondale.

"We just kept having candidates imposed on us and we had no way to have enough leverage to affect the process," said MacKay. "It won't enable the South to dominate, but it will ensure that we're not non-players."

Four years ago, 14 Southern and border states took part in the Initial Super Tuesday. But that

Art Festival

Weekend show a 'very, very positive event'

By VICKI DeBORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — After a rather damp start, the St. John's River Fine Arts Festival blossomed into a delightful rainbow of colors and smiles.

Maritza Elias, who organized the event for the Sanford-Seminole Art Association, said she was pleased with the quality of the art work that was displayed at the show.

"I think we had some really fine art work," she said. "I was very pleased."

Elias said that everyone she talked to said that they had a very positive experience with the show.

She could not estimate the number of visitors who came to the show over the two-day period, but said that even with the Saturday morning rain storm, there was a steady flow of spectators through Ft. Mellon Park.

"The lower priced and craft items sold very well," she said.

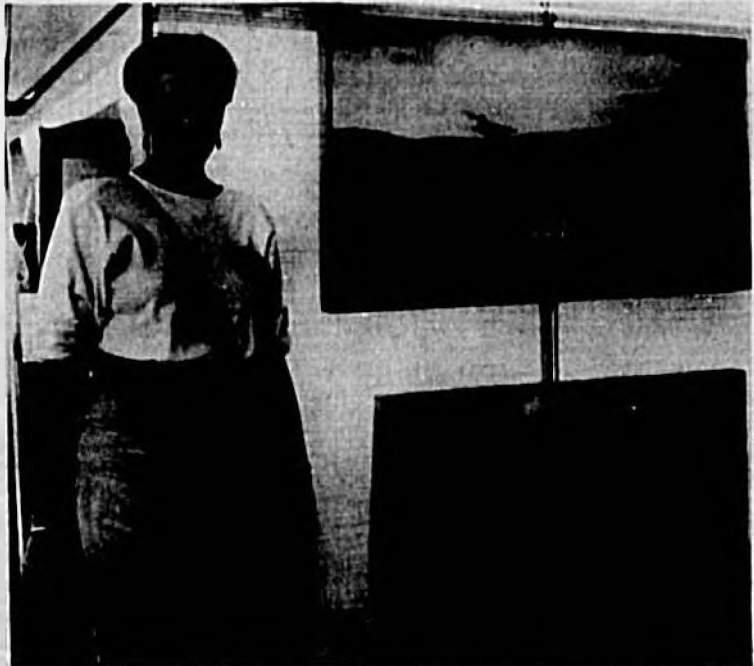

Don Nedobek, who is from Wisconsin, but spends his winters in Central Florida was trying to sell his watercolor paintings at the show.

"No one is buying," he said Sunday afternoon. "I've had lots of people coming and looking, but the economy's keeping their wallets shut tight."

Nedobek said he will be back next year despite slow sales.

"It's just the economy," he said. "I think this was a fantastic

Commission to re-consider roadway in Sterling Woods

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The preliminary plat for the Sterling Woods subdivision is back before the Sanford City Commission. The Commission tabled it two weeks ago following citizen objections.

The plat calls for Sterling Woods to be a 124 lot single-family housing area. It is located west of Highway 17-92, north of Lake Mary Boulevard, near Loch Lowe Prep School and the Hidden Lakes area.

When the matter was first brought before the commission at the Feb. 24 meeting, a dozen citizens of the adjacent Hidden Lakes area turned out to voice objections. They indicated they were not against the actual subdivision, but objected to the proposed entrance roadway.

The road would be a re-opening of Loch Lowe Drive to be used as an access road into Sterling Woods. According to Barbara Howell, of the Hidden Lakes Home Owners Association, "Traffic will destroy our neighborhood. There is too much already." She said she had found, "75 percent of the cars that drive through our area don't live there, and this would add many more."

According to Sanford City Planner Jay Marder, the consulting engineers for the development, Harding

Rental of park on hold

By NICK PFEIFAU

LAKE MARY — A proposal to establish a rental and reservation procedure for city property still remains to be approved. The Lake Mary City Commission postponed a decision during last week's meeting.

Although there was no vote against it, Mayor Randy Morris determined that it was the general consensus of the Commission to hold off on any decisions.

Parks and Recreation Director John Holland believes there is a need for a formal policy on facility rentals. "We'll be putting in about $100,000 in sound systems and lighting in Central Park soon," he said, "and once we finish that, we'll probably have many people seeking to book it."

The money is in the form of a grant from the Seminole County Tourist Development Council.

Holland said, "The park area, including the amphitheater, would be ideal for weddings, band concerts, art shows, and many other outdoor events." He added, "We already have a 'Church in the Park' event booked for April of this year."

The presentation Thursday night was designed to establish fees for the use of the Central Park amphitheater and the two covered pavilions at Liberty Park. Holland recommended charging $25 for a half day, and $35 for a full day rental. The fees would be returned if no clean ups were needed and no facilities were damaged.

In calling for the postponement, Morris suggested more clarification on what type of fund raising events might and might not be permitted in such facilities as the CIA building or

Tax may affect Lewis' foe

TALLAHASSEE — State Rep. Jeff Huenink, who is leading an impeachment effort against state banking chief Gerald Lewis, realizes he may be learning an expensive lesson.

The night before the Clearwater Republican planned to file his impeachment resolution, a lobbyist friend of Lewis submitted a tax proposal that would cost Huenink's laundry-equipment business $500,000.

The tax on operators of coin washing machines was quietly added to a bill before a House panel. When news of the tax plan got around, some at the Capitol saw it as a not-so-subtle message.

That's the rumor, said Democratic Reps. Willie Logan and Mike Abrams, who introduced the proposal. Lobbyist Rick Staeer, who wrote the plan, agrees.

"This is not in any way, shape or form designed to affect Jeff," Staeer said. "It has nothing to do with Gerald Lewis."

Logan and Abrams, Miami area Democrats, said they hadn't discussed the plan with Lewis or Speaker T.K. Wetherell, D-Daytona Beach, who's lukewarm to the impeachment talk.

Man fatally shot

TAMPA — A man who looked out for his neighbor after the older man suffered a stroke was fatally shot by him in a gun battle, authorities said.

Augustine Pulintana was in front of his house Saturday fixing up an old car when Oscar Allaga came out of his house next door, stopped on the concrete porch and fired several times at Pulintana, police said. Then he calmly went back inside.

Pulintana, 49, bleeding from at least two bullet wounds in his shoulders, ducked inside his house, grabbed a revolver and marched over to Allaga's home, police said.

He pointed inside the front door and fired once, hitting Allaga squarely in the chest. Then he retreated to his porch.

But Allaga, critically wounded from the gunshot, still had ammunition and a grudge. He stepped outside to fire at least one more shot, police said.

Ex-husband charged in killing

LARGO — A Largo woman's ex-husband has been charged in a December home invasion in which her new spouse was stabbed to death, police said.

Luther Thornton Basee Jr., 32, was charged with first-degree murder Friday night in Boise, Idaho, where he lives, police said. He's accused of killing Keith Edward Yunk and severely wounding Yunk's wife, Anita, in a Dec. 15 home invasion.

Basee, a Boise firefighter, was being held without bail Saturday in the Ada County Jail in Boise, jail officials said.

Basee was arrested Friday night after he admitted the attack while being questioned by Largo police detectives and Boise officers, said Largo police Capt. John Walker.

Keith and Anita Yunk and three children from her marriage to Basee were asleep when a masked man entered their brown, single-story frame home during the predawn hours.

The intruder attacked the couple with a hatchet and knife, leaving Keith Yunk, 31, dead in the bedroom, Walker said. Anita Yunk ran screaming to a house two doors away to get help. The children weren't injured in the attack.

Walker said Basee killed out of "jealousy or a revenge-type motive."

Diplomat dies

PLANTATION — Lordo Lawrence, the top U.S. diplomat in two of the most tumultuous Caribbean nations in the 1980s, died at Plantation General Hospital. He was 68.

Lawrence was ambassador to Jamaica from 1978 to 1982 as President Michael Manley took his government on a leftist, pro-Cuba tilt and was charge d'affaires for the restoration of a freely elected government in Grenada after the U.S. invasion in 1983.

The Hamilton, Kan., native entered foreign service in 1964 and served in the Netherlands, Hong Kong, Israel, the Philippines and United Kingdom before his appointment in Jamaica by President Carter.

Lawrence, who retired in 1986, was the founding chairman of American Friends of Jamaica and led the group from 1982 to 1991.

Homeless men die in fire

WINTER HAVEN — Two homeless men died when a vacant house they were sleeping in burned down in a fire that has been ruled accidental, authorities said.

David Michael Greenier, 28, and a 58-year-old man whose name was not released died from carbon monoxide poisoning after breathing the thick smoke that filled the home Thursday night, an autopsy performed Friday revealed.

Both men were described as being homeless and had been using the vacant house as a place to sleep.

Witnesses said they heard one man screaming for help but were unable to rescue him because of the intense heat of the fire.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Florida: 43rd 'Most Livable State'

Associated Press

LAWRENCE, Kan. — A formula that weighs 43 factors, from crime and marriage rates to "deficient bridges," has revealed Utah as the nation's "Most Livable State," a Kansas publisher said. Florida ranked 43rd, up from 48th in 1991.

Utah edged out 1991 winner New Hampshire, which slipped to second place in the second annual rankings compiled by Morgan Quitno Corp., the company said Sunday. Minnesota, Nebraska and Kansas rounded out the top five.

Mississippi placed last in the company's "State Rankings 1992," replacing Louisiana, which moved up a spot. Florida didn't do much better, coming in 43rd out of the 50 states.

"Utah simply has what people and companies are looking for," said Scott Morgan, president of Morgan Quitno. "The state has healthy, highly educated citizens and relatively low taxes. The numbers say it is the best all-around — the most livable."

States showing the biggest improvement in the 1992 rankings include Oregon, which moved from 30th to 12th; Illinois, up from 44th to 32nd and New Jersey, up from 34th to 23rd, Morgan said.

Here are the current rankings for all 50 states, with the 1991 ranking in par a state in the union which doesn't have something going for it, some part of it in which its citizens take great pride," Morgan said. "However, this ranking reflects those factors which the average American considers important to his or her daily life."

The Census Bureau, federal Commerce Department and Centers for Disease Control are among the sources listed by the publisher for its data on graduation rates, suicide, taxes, crime and other factors.

"With so many special interest groups putting out state rankings in their narrow area of concern, people seem to enjoy our well-rounded rankings," Morgan said. "It's interesting to find out which state the numbers say is the best all-around — the most livable."

States showing the biggest improvement in the 1992 rankings include Oregon, which moved from 30th to 12th; Illinois, up from 44th to 32nd and New Jersey, up from 34th to 23rd, Morgan said.

Sweetener: No allergic reactions

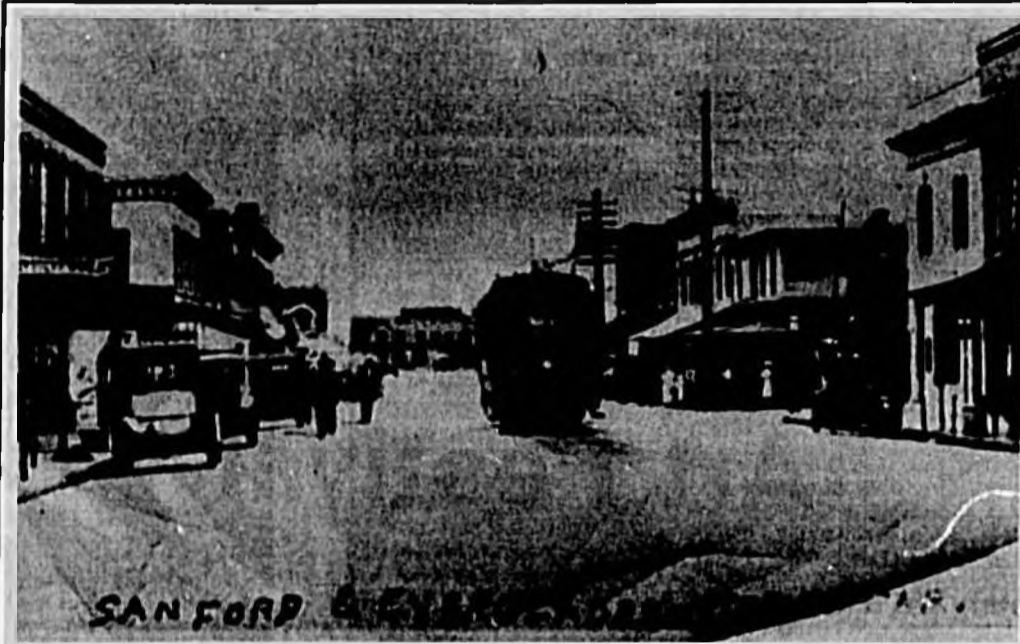

Associated Press

ORLANDO — The popular sweetener aspartame, known by the trade name NutraSweet, does not cause allergic reactions when consumed, according to a study released at an allergy conference.

The study was directed by Dr. Raif S. Geha, chief of the division of Immunology at Children's Hospital in Boston and professor of pediatrics at Harvard Medical School.

It was carried out at six medical centers in the United States and Canada after consumer complaints of hives and swelling that were thought to be associated with the sweetener.

"Because aspartame is never consumed in its pure form, but in combination with other ingredients, it was difficult to determine if reported allergic reactions were caused by aspartame or other products," Geha said.

Florida's stew

Diverse state tops Super Tuesday menu for Democrats

By DAN DEWELL
Associated Press Writer

HIALEAH — Florida, now topping the Super Tuesday menu for Democrats, offers a spicy stew of diverse voting groups for presidential candidates hoping to prove they have the ingredients of national appeal.

"It's like the song 'New York, New York,'" U.S. Sen. Bob Graham, a Democrat who's won three statewide campaigns, likes to say. "If you can make it here, you can make it anywhere."

In other words, the former governor explains, you can't win Florida by appealing to any one group. Or two or three.

Of the 11 states holding primaries and caucuses Tuesday, Florida has taken on the most importance for Democrats both because it offers 148 delegates, second only to Texas on Tuesday, and it gives Taongas, the former Massachusetts senator, a state where he can try to prevent a Southern sweep by Clinton, the Arkansas governor.

The state's swing vote area has become the "I-4 corridor," the fast-growing areas along the interstate from Daytona Beach through the Orlando area to Tampa, where Democrats who still hold a narrow statewide registration edge are worried about growing GOP strength among tight-budgeted, family-oriented transplants.

Another Florida adage: "Politics here are like the weather — if you don't like it, wait a little bit and it will change."

From the outskirts of Jacksonville, in the

It's like the song 'New York, New York.' If you can make it here, you can make it anywhere.

— U.S. Sen. Bob Graham

state's northeast corner, across to Pensacola at the Alabama border, runs the land of conservatives, self-proclaimed "crackers," many of them with military ties.

Exceptions: Jacksonville has more of an eastern urban flavor politically; Tallahassee, the capital and host of two college campuses; and Gainesville, home of the University of Florida, tend to be more liberal, which former GOP state chairman Tommy Thomas blames on the influence of "too many pipe-smoking professors."

From West Palm Beach down the overdeveloped "Gold Coast" to Miami Beach, the nation's third-largest gathering of Jewish voters among hundreds of thousands of Northeast-oriented senior citizens mix with urban blacks in Fort Lauderdale and Miami for fertile Democratic territory.

The politically active condo communities regularly turn out at 70 percent or more for primaries, giving them a strong say on nominees.

But in Miami and Hialeah, the largest grouping of Cuban-born people outside of Havana, conservative Republican Hispanics control. Another GOP stronghold is in the southwest Gulf Coast from Sarasota to Naples, land of white-belted retired Midwestern executives who play golf and throw money behind Republican politics.

A sampling from last week's campaign:

● Bill Clinton put on a white yarmulke and talked about Israel to an audience filled with people in Delray Beach who could remember how young John F. Kennedy looked in 1960, and the next morning walked through Miami's Liberty City, a neighborhood known for the nation's worst 1980s racial violence, as 20-year-old black men yelled for him to do something about jobs.

● A few miles west, Hialeah Mayor Julio Martinez spoke in Spanish and English to welcome President Bush Wednesday night to "the most Republican city in America."

● Just to the east, Jerry Brown was greeted Friday night by people dancing in the street and chanting in Creole when he visited Little Haiti with Jesse Jackson.

● And some 70 miles north, Paul Taongas visited Palm Beach, tale of the rich and famous, Friday night, then was cheered in Fort Lauderdale by fellow Greek-Americans at a Greek Orthodox Church.

Bush, who enjoyed his largest 1988 general election margin in Florida, where his son Jeb is state campaign chairman, is considered a lock to scoop up the 97 Republican delegates in the winner-take-all primary.

Women's Center to debut here

By KELLEY MITCHELL
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Women's Center at HCA Central Florida Regional Hospital will debut at an Open House on Saturday, March 14, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The new facility houses an obstetrics department featuring all private birthing rooms.

"All of our beautifully decorated birthing rooms are designed especially for the new mother and baby, as well as their family, with their comfort as the first priority," said Roy C. Vinson, administrator at CFRH.

The new center will offer all patients a completely private birthing experience. Eight birthing rooms, located on the first floor, will give a luxurious private surrounding for the mother-to-be. After recovery, mother and baby will move upstairs to their private patient room and new 23-bassinet nursery. The nursery is designed with a comfortable and cheerful baby viewing area for family and friends.

HCA Central Florida Regional Hospital has five board certified obstetricians on its medical staff who will be utilizing the new facility: Clyde Climer, M.D., David Mowere, M.D., Willie Newman, M.D., Stephen Phillips, M.D., and Juan Ravelo, M.D.

Amusing 'I've fallen' ad is not so funny for some elderly

Associated Press

TAMPA — The television commercial of an elderly lady injured on the floor, calling out, "I've fallen — and I can't get up," has provided much material for comedians and talk-show monologues.

But Mildred Wiley, 81, of Tampa didn't find it so funny.

Living alone with heart disease and occasional confusion because of a stroke, she could easily imagine herself in the same situation.

So when Wiley saw the ad, she called the toll-free number in the for Lifecall Systems Inc. of Camden, N.J. In December 1990, two salespeople persuaded her to pay $3,200 over four years, plus monitoring fees, for a system including a necklace transmitter that activates a console attached to her telephone.

It worked as advertised. But Wiley later found out she could have rented a similar system — not as sophisticated, but capable of doing the job — from a local hospital for $30 installation and $35 a month.

When she moved in with her daughter 10 months later and asked to be let out of the contract, the company asked for a $500 penalty. They're still negotiating.

Wiley says she was a victim of high-pressure sales tactics and overpricing.

She isn't alone. Complaints from elderly buyers about Lifecall and other companies and individuals selling emergency response devices have prompted some consumer protection officials to call the industry a new threat to the elderly consumer.

In the Tampa Bay area, a dozen or so individuals representing smaller companies or operating on their own are preying on easy marks among the elderly, said a Pinellas County fraud detective.

"I'm tearing my hair out" keeping track of the sellers and finding ways to prosecute, detective D.S. MacCallum told The Tampa Tribune for a story in today's editions.

He said the sellers sometimes tell elderly customers they represent Medicare or the customer's health insurance company. Some deceive the customers about the price of the devices and fees for monitoring them.

A Lifecall spokeswoman denied that her company uses high-pressure or exploitative sales tactics.

Smoking in barbershops may be banned

Associated Press

ORLANDO — Florida may say no to smoking in barbershops in the wake of a ban in beauty parlors that's still being publicized.

The board that regulates Florida's 26,000 barbers is expected to discuss smoking when it meets in two weeks in Orlando.

"I guarantee I will bring it up if anybody else does," said Lionel Rodriguez, an Orlando barber who is vice chairman of the seven-member Florida Board of Barbers and a non-smoker.

Code enforcement back

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A city code enforcement citation ordinance is coming back for more discussion tonight. The matter was passed by a 3 to 2 vote on first reading during the Feb. 24 meeting.

Commissioners A.A. McClanahan and Whitey Eckstein had opposed the original ordinance claiming there was not enough information on how enforcement would be handled.

Some changes have been made in the draft of the amendment since the first reading. City Attorney William Colbert commented, "The changes had been suggested last month, but are not significant enough to alter the intent, so the ordinance can still be considered as up for its second reading."

If approved, the ordinance will increase the number of persons allowed to issue citations for violations against the various City codes.

The ordinance stipulates, "The City Commission is authorized to designate by resolution certain of its employees or agents as code enforcement officers." While there has been open discussion about including Sanford Police officers as code enforcement officers, there is no specific mention of uniformed police in the present wording of the ordinance.

Following last month's meeting, Sanford Police Chief Steve Harriett had indicated he was pleased with the ordinance. "It's going to give us a lot more latitude to handle nuisance calls," he commented.

"This doesn't mean we would have to respond to additional calls," Harriett added. "It merely means we will have additional citations that can be issued to help resolve problem situations."

McClanahan had questioned if it could lead to a massive attack against private citizens. City Manager Bill Simmons responded that citations would only be issued in response to complaints.

McClanahan however, remained in opposition, stating he believed the matter could lead to the issuance of code violations in an arbitrary manner. Commissioner Eckstein agreed, expressing concern over the possibility of getting into legal problems through arbitrary enforcement.

The matter is set for preliminary discussion during the workshop session of the Commission beginning at 5 p.m. this evening. It is also listed for second reading and public hearing, early in the regular City Commission meeting beginning at 7 p.m. in the commission chambers of the Sanford City Hall.

New service

The end of the Cold War ought to be a moment of national joy. For the first time in a half-century, America no longer faces a foreign challenge to the survival of its institutions or a major risk of military attack. Yet underneath runs a current of dread: As the military shrinks, what will happen to the 1 million men and women, civilian and uniformed, likely to be released by 1996?

Theory says that they will move to the civilian sector, where their proven skills are much in demand. But theory isn't much help to an individual serviceman facing the prospect of finding a new career in an uncertain economy. Getting skilled people from military pursuits into civilian jobs where their talents serve the nation's needs will not happen without planning by government.

Sen. Sam Nunn, chairman of the Armed Services Committee, has already started to point Congress in that direction. He's proposing new incentives and training programs to ease military personnel into productive civilian work.

To avoid a military top-heavy with senior and non-commissioned officers, Nunn suggests offering military personnel with 15 to 20 years of service voluntary early retirement. Such early retirees would be eligible for retired pay equal to 37.5 percent of base pay.

And to encourage retirees to go into public service careers, he would sweeten that pot, giving an extra year of service credit for each year of employment in such critical jobs as teaching or law enforcement. And for those active-duty service personnel who need extra training or education to prepare themselves, he proposes giving a year's leave for civilian education and training.

Almost one-third of U.S. military officers have advanced degrees, many in scientific or technical fields. Many have experience with sophisticated technology and most have a proven ability to organize, lead and train others. With thousands of those officers likely to leave the armed services in the next few years, the nation has a tremendous opportunity, particularly to move their talents into schools and colleges, where they could bolster math, science and vocational education.

What's needed to seize that opportunity are the incentives Nunn proposes as well as alternative state credentialing rules to make it possible for military retirees to move quickly into schools.

As Nunn points out, "these people are our real peace dividend" even more important than the military dollars we will save. But collecting that dividend and preventing individual calamities will require government planning and foresight, not just more laissez-faire confidence that everything will work out for the best.

Mixed feelings on Magic's plight

The ceremony to retire Magic Johnson's jersey at the Los Angeles Forum was powerfully moving. Coming so soon after his inspired play at the NBA All-Star game, it was especially difficult to see someone so brilliantly talented cut down by something as senseless as AIDS.

I've thought about Magic quite a bit since the announcement that he tested positive for HIV, the virus that causes AIDS. I've been trying to make sense of my roller-coaster feelings. How can you be so saddened and sympathetic about someone's misfortune one minute, and want to shake him till he needs DentiGrip another?

I haven't heard all Magic has to say on the subject of his infection, so I may have missed something truly riveting. But what I've heard has been more on the order of, "See, it can happen to me. It can happen to anybody," which I haven't found too reassuring from the man-who-would-be-role-model.

What I'd really like to hear from him, what I think might make a difference to everyone who looks up to Magic and might be at risk for AIDS, is for him to say, "Do you all realize how incredibly stupid I was? All those women, all those one-night (and one-afternoon) stands, years after the doctors told us that kind of behavior is a rocket trip to AIDS? What they ought to do with my jersey is put it on the cover of MAD magazine, with that silly-looking freckle-faced kid's head sticking out of it saying, 'What, me worry?'"

"And just think what I've probably done to other lives, the women I was with after I became infected. Not only do I throw my own career and maybe my life down a rat hole, I take them with me. I don't suppose they think there's much about me that's 'magic' anymore, and I doubt if any of you people out there screaming your heads off in the Forum would, either. If I'd done the same thing to you or your sister or your daughter or your mother. What on earth could I have been thinking?"

A few weeks ago I heard Larry King interview actor Dack Rambo, who has also recently tested positive for HIV. King at one point asked Rambo how many partners he'd had in the last few years and months and Rambo answered, "Just about anyone who didn't move faster than I did." He and King then shared "heh-heh-hehs."

King then asked Rambo if he'd considered changing his behavior after we learned how easily any of us could contract AIDS, even from a single unprotected sexual encounter. Rambo sighed as if realizing he'd forgotten to floss before bed and said that gosh, no, he hadn't. He said he'd been a "child of the '60s and '70s" and just wasn't motivated to change when unprotected sex started meaning much more than herpes.

King didn't challenge him, didn't ask him if he felt like a chump for what he's probably passed on to friends. In our struggle to ensure an atmosphere of compassion for AIDS victims, we shrink from hard questions lest the afflicted think we don't care and the politically correct think us to be homophobic.

AIDS is a sentence no one deserves, and maybe that's why we hesitate to bring up the question of responsibility. If we label a victim's behavior inconsiderate, selfish and saphed, we're afraid we're back to saying, "He got what he deserved." He didn't get what he deserved, but in cases of AIDS contracted after the risk was known, victims do reap the consequences.

I may have missed something truly riveting.

HODDING CARTER

Forget about dream candidates

According to the exit polls, the American people believe this is the election year from hell. They don't like the state of the nation and they don't like the character and programs of the candidates. Even larger numbers don't record an exit poll opinion because they aren't bothering to vote. All seem to yearn for something or someone indefinably better.

To put it bluntly, that attitude is self-indulgent, self-defeating and downright dumb. The candidates who have come forward in both parties may not include any towering giants, but few are midgets. Compared to past years, there is nothing uniquely mediocre about this year's contenders. Included are war heroes, Phi Beta Kappas, Rhodes Scholars, former governors, senators and congressmen, businessmen and even political journalists.

Most have been successful in their past ventures and repeated beneficiaries of the voters' trust in their home states. One, the incumbent president, won a landslide victory in his last outing. Even on his worst day, each of these men has something interesting to say about the current economic and political scene. Between them, their positions cover virtually the entire ideological range of current mainstream politics. You can have anything from a nativist right-wing America Firster to a union-label liberal Democrat.

And yet, many of us seem to be spending a lot of time moaning and complaining about the quality of the competition. Where is Mario, Bill, Sam, Lloyd or Dick? — a question you've heard from this corner, too. Why does the alternative to Bush have to be Buchanan? Aren't Tsongas and Clinton partial men, each lacking strengths the other offers? Where is that ideal candidate, the complete embodiment of the people's aspirations?

In the same place the ideal candidate has always been, hovering in the mists of myth and faulty memory. On those rare occasions when the people professed overwhelming pleasure with the quality of their choice, as in the election of an Ulysses S. Grant or Calvin Coolidge, for instance, they have been proved overwhelmingly wrong. In most of those instances in which the eventual winner turned out to a great president, he did so despite earlier verdicts by his contemporaries that he was less than an exalted human being.

Franklin Roosevelt was a man of little substance, an amiable dilettante, snuffed that great political analyst, Walter Lippmann. Harry Truman was nothing but a political hack, a machine politician from Missouri, or so many New Deal activists believed as they desperately sought to persuade Dwight D. Eisenhower to run as a Democrat in 1948. Woodrow Wilson was elected to his first term only because Teddy Roosevelt split the Republican vote with his Bull Moose third party candidacy. Abraham Lincoln won fewer popular votes than the combined total of his opponents, and fewer, too, than the totally forgettable predecessor, James Buchanan, had won four years earlier.

From all of this, it is not necessary to believe that one of 1992's candidates will turn out to be a Lincoln, Wilson, Roosevelt or even a Truman. But it does suggest that easy dismissal is the wrong approach to the current field. Rather than turning away with a sniff of disdain, a better approach would be to examine carefully what each of the candidates has actually done and is actually suggesting about what he intends to do if elected or re-elected.

In President Bush's case, the record is there for everyone to see. The question, if you don't like that record, is whether he can or will change and whether he deserves a second chance even if he can. Since he has been around for a long time, it shouldn't be hard to make an informed judgment.

For the others, we, the voters, have to work harder to get the answers. But democracy is not a rose garden and no one ever said that informed citizenship would be easy. Even so, behind all the glib television punditry and horseface coverage, there is a wealth of information being churned out about all of the candidates.

Whatever you may think is important, the material is available. Just what is Bill Clinton's record as governor of Arkansas? Is Paul Tsongas more than a Johnny one-note? How unfair is the "Governor Moonbeam" tag hung on Jerry Brown, given his clear-headed demands for major political reform? Are there consistent themes available in Pat Buchanan's treasure house of old columns and commentaries to establish his intentions?

Turning away from the task in a mistaken search for the dream candidate who never was is the height of irresponsibility.

Each of these men has something interesting to say.

Kuwaitis buy Keating resort from taxpayers

SCOTTSDALE, Arizona — Charles Keating once envisioned his Phoenician Resort here as the "eighth wonder of the world." Today it stands as a marble shrine to the savings and loan collapse — a shrine now taken off the taxpayers' hands by the Kuwaiti government.

Some in the hotel industry suspect the Kuwaiti investors paid the U.S. government more than the hotel was worth in partial gratitude for the Persian Gulf War. If so, it would be one of the few things about the Phoenician that turned out to be a bargain.

Back in 1987, when Keating's savings and loan empire was in its full stride, Keating aggressively courted the Kuwaiti government to go into partnership with him on the Phoenician. He dreamed the hotel would be the first of many partnerships, with the Kuwaitis throwing in their oil money and him using federally insured deposits from his chain of savings and loans.

He dreamed the hotel would be the first of many partnerships.

Kuwaiti investors bought a 45 percent interest in the Phoenician in 1987. Then, in a midnight raid on the hotel in 1989 when the Keating empire was falling apart, the savings and loan bailout agency, the Resolution Trust Corp., seized the Phoenician. The taxpayers became the owners of Keating's 55 percent share, and insiders began calling the hotel "Club Fed."

The taxpayers' share was recently bought out by the Kuwait Investment Office for $111.5 million, and the RTC is thankful to be rid of it. There were some tense moments when the taxpayers still owned a share. During the first days of the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait in August 1990, some at the RTC wondered if Saddam Hussein would be their new partner.

In pre-war days, money was no object for the oil-rich Kuwaitis. It was also no object for Keating, who sunk $300 million into this Taj Mahal. Among the conditions the Kuwaitis stipulated, nearly three quarters of the way through construction, was that any resort in which they invested had to feature bidets in the bathrooms.

This posed an engineering nightmare — effectively adding a new toilet in each newly completed room. Core drilling had to be redone and many of the bathtubs no longer fit. Keating insisted that only a particular Italian design would suffice. When the parts arrived, they weren't compatible with the plumbing. All the pipes had to be rethreaded.

In the end, a compromise was struck between the deadline- and cost-conscious contractors and Keating and the Kuwaitis, who settled for a total of about 70 bidets in selected suites.

The Phoenician is a palace fit for two men who share similar tastes — Keating and the Emir of Kuwait. One former executive for Keating called the Phoenician construction phase, the "largest shopping spree in history." Keating and his family logged countless miles on the corporate jets to Europe. He painted the ceilings in 23-karat gold. He installed nearly $15 million worth of marble. He decorated the resort with an original art collection he valued at nearly $25 million. He airlifted hundreds of tropical plants from Florida to brighten the parched desert around the resort. When his $4 million golf course played "too slowly," he spent another $4 million reconfiguring it.

Keating purchased nine Steinway grand pianos, the largest order in the company's history. There were eight swimming pools, including one tiled in mother-of-pearl.

And everywhere there was marble — in the bookends by the elevator, in the guest bathrooms, on the walls. The staircase leading to one restaurant was encased in marble slabs weighing 400 pounds each.

Nobel winner Begin dead

By KARIN LAUB
Associated Press Writer

JERUSALEM, Israel — Menachem Begin, the fiery former prime minister who was wanted as a terrorist during Israel's fight for independence but years later won a Nobel prize for making peace with Egypt, died today. He was 78.

the burial was a simple ceremony without eulogies.

Begin's son, Benjamin, 48, recited the Jewish Kaddish prayer over his father's body, which was wrapped in a black-striped shawl.

With news of Begin's death before dawn today, a crowd gathered outside the Tel Aviv home of his daughter, Leah, where Begin lived. Flags were lowered to half-staff.

A giant in the Jewish nation's history, the emotional Polish Jew brought his country its only peace treaty with an Arab country.

Yet he also kept up the attack on Arab enemies, ordering the bombing of Iraq's nuclear reactor in 1981 and sending the army into Lebanon the following year to drive out the PLO.

In 1983, six years after leading the right-wing Likud bloc to power and one year after his wife's death, Begin resigned. He never explained his reasons to the public, and went into virtual seclusion.

An old friend, Yaakov Meridor, said today that Begin told him he resigned because "he couldn't stand the pace of losses" from Israel's daily casualties in Lebanon.

Begin died of heart failure at 3:30 a.m. at Tel Aviv's Ichilov Hospital. Begin's two daughters and son were at his bedside, Israel army radio said. Begin, who had a history of heart trouble, suffered a heart attack Tuesday and took a turn for the worse Friday.

Afternoon dailies ran pictures of Begin over the entire front page under the banner headline: "Menachem Begin Is No More."

process resulted in Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis winning the nomination, a development derailed by MacKay as an aberration.

"It was a different year entirely," said MacKay. "Reverend (Jesus) Jackson was involved and we simply had a different political dynamic than we have today."

Dukakis captured almost 41 percent of the vote in Florida's presidential primary four years ago, while Jackson won 20 percent.

The two candidates expected to fare better in border and Southern states — Missouri Rep. Dick Gephardt and Tennessee Sen. Al Gore — finished third and fourth in Florida. Gephardt had run out of money and Gore was unable to gain credibility as a national candidate after poor showings preceding Super Tuesday.

On the Republican side in 1988, George Bush won by almost a 3-1 margin over Kansas Sen. Bob Dole while evangelist Pat Robertson won 10.6 percent of the vote. Bush went on to capture 60 percent of the vote in the general election, defeating Dukakis in Florida by a margin of almost 1 million votes.

Although Florida is just one of six Southern states with elections Tuesday, national attention should be on the Sunshine State.

"It's the only state in the nation next week where any candidate could win," noted Jay Hakes, veteran aide and political adviser to Sen. Graham.

Although the process was designed to benefit a Southern governor such as Bill Clinton of Arkansas, it may end up that Florida will again advance the prospects of a northeastern candidate in Massachusetts' Paul Tsongas.

"I frankly think Tuesday will provide that kind of a debate and a sharpening of the debate between Governor Clinton and Senator Tsongas," said MacKay. When the likes of Graham, MacKay and former House Speaker Jon Mills of Gainesville were working with former Virginia Gov. Charles Robb and Texas state Sen. John Tranger in developing the Super Tuesday plan, the idea was to ensure a palatable candidate for the South.

If Clinton, with his massive Florida organization and deep pockets, doesn't win Tuesday, it could not only be bad news for his candidacy, but for the concept of Southern primaries.

But as Hakes noted, Florida doesn't necessarily need to be included because of the state's singular prominence.

"Florida is going to be a major factor anyway because money can be raised down here and we're a big state," he said. "Florida has been early and pivotal for a long time and the other Southern states have sort of come and joined with us, and we've been happy to share that date."

Information from Associated Press is contained in this report.

Locklin, A Associates, "have come up with a modification in their plans where the roadway is closed at the end, and does not allow traffic to go into the Hidden Lakes area." He added, "This is designed to resolve the traffic problem."

Two weeks ago, the move to table the matter was instigated by Commissioner A.A. McClanahan. He suggested the commission hold off on any decision regarding four waivers that had been requested, until an alternate access route could be determined.

The four waivers deal with wetland buffer requirements, wetland design and performance criteria, sidewalk requirements and the drainage requirements near the streets. None deal directly with the access road.

According to the agenda for tonight's City Commission meeting, the City Manager is recommending the Commission acknowledge the preliminary site plan. He is also suggesting they approve the four waivers

She also commended Claire O'Connor for her assistance in the clean up efforts after the show.

Community Center. Morris also called for a change in the proposed fee schedule. "I think we should have a reduced rate for people who actually live in the City of Lake Mary, and a higher rental fee for those who live outside," he suggested.

Holland explained that many park areas that can be leased in Central Florida have differing resident and non-resident rates, and saw no difficulty in coming up with the suggested change.

The only matter on which the Commission agreed Thursday night, was to require the City Commission's approval, rather than the City Manager, on the use of facilities where the selling of goods or services or the serving or selling of alcoholic beverages were included.

Bids being sought for basketball court

LAKE MARY — Who will build a new basketball court in downtown Lake Mary? "Bids are now being accepted," said Parks and Recreation Director John Holland.

There is already one basketball court located on the property, on Country Club Road, several blocks north of the City Hall, but Holland said, "We want to put in a second court."

The construction isn't a major project, will not require extremely heavy equipment or take a considerable length of time, Holland said. "We plan to open the bids we receive on March 18th." He may bring up a recommendation on the project the following night, during the next scheduled meeting of the Lake Mary City Commission.

Holland urged, "If anyone wants to find out more about the basketball court, where it is, or what we might need, I hope they give me a call so we can arrange to have some more bids."

Holland may be reached at the Lake Mary City Hall during regular operation hours, at 324-3053.

'I Have A Dream'

Mailhandling center holds first Black Heritage Celebration

Mid-Florida Mailhandling Center located on Rinehart Road in Lake Mary presented its First Black Heritage Celebration in honor of Black History Month recently.

The celebration was to show the achievements and contributions made through the U.S. Postal Service in areas of employment and presenting black history through stamps.

The guest speaker was Dr. Adrienne Perry, mayor of the City of Longwood. Dr. Perry stressed the importance of honoring blacks from the past and present and how their inventions and knowledge have played a tremendous impact on the lives of every race.

A presentation was given by Bette Phillips, an employee of Mid-Florida, on the Black Heritage stamp collection. The postal service has published a book in honor of black history entitled, "I Have A Dream." It includes all the stamps in the collection and biographies on each person.

The evening was filled with songs, dance and poetry from various artists.

Afro-American art and collectibles were on display. Armand Cole, an employee of Mid-Florida, displayed her personal collection which included an original slave bill of sale, old photos dating from the 1800s and various handmade instruments dating from the 1800s. Also on display were Afro-American memorabilia featuring 10 advertisement signs of black folklore art which was sponsored by the Afro-American History of Eatonville owners Dianne Jess and Wanda Dix.

One of the highlights of the evening was the Black Heritage feast of barbecued ribs, fried chicken, blackeyed peas, collard greens, cornbread, sweet potato pie and iced tea.

Sanford Church Softball League interrupted by rain

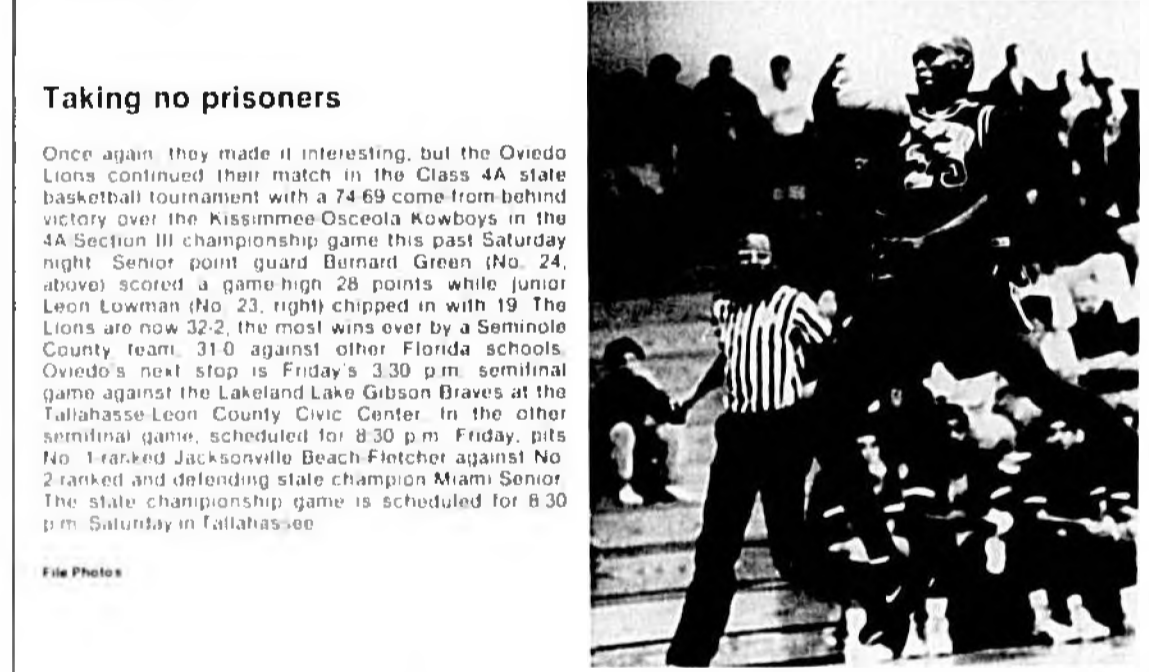

From Staff Reports SANFORD — Sanford First Nazarene and the Nativity "Disciples" of Longwood, along with Mother Nature, were the big winners in Sanford Church Softball League Spring Season action at Lee P. Moore Park Saturday. Actually, they were the only winners. Only two and a half of the nine scheduled games were played Saturday as late morning rains, coupled with Friday night's storm, turned the field into a quagmire and forced suspension of the rest of the schedule. First Nazarene took an early lead over Markham Woods Baptist and held on to win 12-9 and the "Disciples" used the same formula to edge the Sanford Christian Deacons 14-11. Sanford First Baptist was leading Holy Cross Lutheran of Lake Mary 4-0 with two out in the bottom of the fourth inning when the skies opened up to finish the day's play. First Nazarene leads the Fellowship Division (formerly the B Division) with a 2-0 record, while Sanford Christian "Red" is 1-0, Markham Woods 1-1 and Grace Christian, Markham Woods

Sanford First Nazarene 511 220 1-12 14; Markham Woods Baptist 040 031 1-9 14; Sanford Chris "Deacons" 102 161 1-11 19; Nativity "Disciples" 503 032 4-14 18

Presbyterian and the Nativity "Crusaders" are all 0-1. The Nativity "Disciples" lead the Fin Division (formerly the C Division) at 2-0 and are followed by First Baptist Geneva 11-01, Sanford Christian "Deacons" 11-11 and Sanford First Baptist, Holy Cross Lutheran and Grace United Methodist fall 0-11. In the competitive Division (formerly A), which did not play Saturday, Church of God of Prophecy, All Souls Catholic and Central Baptist are all 1-0, while First United Methodist, Church of God and St. Stephen Catholic of Winter Springs are all 0-1. Next week in the morning session, First United Methodist play All Souls at 8:30 a.m., St. Stephen takes on Church of God at 9:30 a.m., Central Baptist faces Church of God of Prophecy at 10:30 a.m. and Grace Christian challenges

Markham Woods Presbyterian at 11:30 a.m. In the afternoon games, Markham Woods Baptist and Sanford Christian "Red" square off at 12:30 p.m., Nazarene welcomes the Nativity "Crusaders" at 1:30 p.m., Geneva and Holy Cross battle at 2:30 p.m. and Sanford Christian "Blue" and Grace United Methodist close the day at 3:30 p.m. The Nativity "Disciples" and Sanford Baptist game will be played later in the season. Nazarene scored five runs in the top of the first inning, with Tom Clark's two run double being the big blow, and Markham Woods Baptist never got closer than three runs the rest of the day. Doing the damage for First Nazarene were Phillip Sutherland (triple, double, two singles, two runs scored, two RBI), Clark (two doubles, single, two runs scored, four RBI) and Wayne Gager and Shane Gager (one double, two singles and one run scored each). Also, David Willink (double, two runs scored, RBI), Ron Cardell (single, four runs scored), Norman Callahan, Caren Gager and Shaun Fogle (one single each) and Todd Morgan (RBI). DOUBLE TAKES

Taking no prisoners

Once again, they made it interesting, but the Oviedo Lions continued their match in the Class 4A state basketball tournament with a 74-69 come from behind victory over the Kissimmee Osceola Kowboys in the 4A Section III championship game this past Saturday night. Senior point guard Bernard Green (No. 24, above) scored a game-high 28 points while junior Leon Lowman (No. 23, right) chipped in with 19. The Lions are now 32-2, the most wins ever by a Seminole County team, 31-0 against other Florida schools. Oviedo's next stop is Friday's 3:30 p.m. semifinal game against the Lakeland Lake Gibson Braves at the Tallahassee-Leon County Civic Center. In the other semifinal game, scheduled for 8:30 p.m. Friday, pits No. 1-ranked Jacksonville Beach-Fletcher against No. 2-ranked and defending state champion Miami Senior. The state championship game is scheduled for 8:30 p.m. Saturday in Tallahassee.

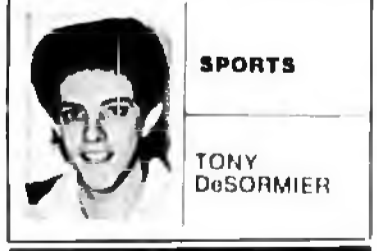

Green leads Lions into semifinals

From Staff Reports KISSIMMEE — Bernard Green won the battle of the point guards as he and his Oviedo High School teammates became the first Seminole County boys basketball team to advance to the state tournament in 12 years with a 74-69 victory over Kissimmee-Osceola in the Class 4A Section III championship game Saturday night. Green scored 23 of his game-high 28 points in the second half as the Lions overcame a 29-26 halftime disadvantage to claim the victory. The 28 points were five points better than the 23 scored by Kowboys point guard Mike Frenseley Jr., which just happened to be the difference in the final score. "They played very well," said Oviedo assistant coach Ken King of the Kowboys. "Their record (20-12) is a little misleading because they had a losing record early in the season. But they have been playing very well since the Great Florida Shootout at Christmas." The victory moves Oviedo in to the state semifinals against Lakeland-Lake Gibson High School Friday at the Tallahassee-Leon County Civic Center starting at 3:30 p.m. Lake Gibson won the Section II title with a 78-65 triumph over St. Petersburg Dixie Hollins. The other 4A semifinal game will have three-time defending state champion Miami Senior playing the top-ranked team in the state this week. See Oviedo, Page 2B

FHSAA gives administrators power to call games

This could get interesting. In its September, 1991, bulletin, the Florida High School Activities Association made the following statement concerning interrupted or suspended outdoor athletic contests: If a severe thunderstorm or electrical storm occurs in the area prior to the start of any outdoor contest or during the contest, the officials shall immediately contact the principal of each school involved to determine if the contest should be played as scheduled, delayed, suspended or postponed. If the principal of either or both of the schools involved requests that the contest be interrupted or postponed, the officials shall immediately honor such request. If the principal of only one of the competing schools is available, his request shall be honored. "National Federation and/or FHSAA policies regarding suspended games shall apply. The safety and welfare of all concerned is of paramount importance. In no case shall an official deny such a request or imply that the contest will be forfeited."

SPORTS TONY DeSORMIER

This has already come into play once this school year. DeLand and refusing to play Seminole in football on Sept. 20 because of "threatening" weather. While it was a major inconvenience it was the only game involving a Seminole County team to be played that night. Lyman and Oviedo played around a pair of delays it really didn't have a tangible impact on the season. But on Friday afternoon just how potentially potent this ruling can be surfaced in Seminole's varsity baseball game with Oviedo. The game was in the top of the sixth inning Oviedo batting with Seminole holding a 1-0 lead Oviedo had the potential tying run at second when that now-legendary break storm started to lace into Seminole County. That's when the officials were informed that the field was to be cleared immediately. Since the sixth inning wasn't over, the game reverted back to the last complete inning. And the FHSAA considers any regular season contest that gets through five innings as a complete game. Don't get the wrong idea, the decision to stop the game wasn't made at the baseball field, but a quarter mile away at Thomas E. Whigham Stadium where Seminole was hosting the Seminole Relays track meet without consideration about the score or the timing. The track meet was stopped at the same time. You can see how authority like this could easily be abused. In the past school officials could keep a game from being started, but once it began only the game officials could decide whether or not to stop a game. This ruling couldn't be a factor in postseason when the FHSAA mandates all games be played to their completion unless stopped by the 10-run mercy rule. However, say the same situation occurred in a regular season game that could have an impact on the all-important seedings of the district tournament. Fortunately, the consensus is that no one within the county would do that to anyone else. It does remind me of the story concerning Bill Veeck when he was operating a minor league team in Milwaukee. His team was in position to win the league championship but had the shimmie of leads over the second place team. The two teams were scheduled to play a season-ending doubleheader at Milwaukee's Borchert Field. Losing both games would drop Veeck's team into second. Veeck's team lost the first game and fell behind in the second. But before the contest had gone far enough to be considered a complete game, the lights at Borchert Field went out and couldn't be restarted. Called before Commissioner Judge Kearsaw Mountain Lands Veeck explained that it had been "an act of God." Surviving Veeck, Lands replied, "There will be no more acts of God."

Geranium versatile, popular

GARDENING
BETTE CANNAVINO

People watching is a favorite pastime of many who frequent crowded areas such as airports or even grocery stores. I enjoy watching people shopping in nurseries and garden centers making their individual selections of plant material and wondering how they will be displaying their choices in their home gardens. This spring I have noticed that one of the most popular flowering plants being purchased is the geranium. It can be found adorning the most elegant of estate homes and also the smallest of apartment balconies making it a versatile plant for today's gardeners.

Geraniums grow best in full sun, however, they will tolerate partial shade but usually become leggy and produce less flowers. They can be planted as soon as the danger of frost is past and this month would be an excellent time to add them to your garden. The plant usually grows best with night temperatures of 60 to 65 degrees F. and day temperatures of 70 to 85 degrees F. Our hot Florida summers tend to retard their growth and flowering. During this time if your geraniums are grown in containers you might want to consider moving the plants to a partially shaded location in your garden until the temperatures have cooled in order to extend the life of your plant. Geraniums will grow as a perennial in areas where frost is seldom experienced and in some protected areas in central Florida. IFAS discourages carrying geraniums through the winter, however, in my opinion, I have seen some plants do very well for at least one full year during a mild winter season. In many northern states the practice of carrying a geranium through the winter is known as overwintering. I have seen geraniums which were stored in a cool, dry basement grow well in the spring, however, with our humidity overwintering in the garage or indoors does not provide the same lasting results to the plants. Geraniums are usually inexpensive to purchase and it is often best to buy new plantings each season.

Geraniums grow best in soils that provide good drainage and aeration and have good moisture and nutrient retention capacities. Our sandy Florida soils should be amended with organic matter such as leaf mold, peat moss or compost. In areas where the soil is very poor, it is easier and less expensive to transplant small plants into inexpensive plastic 2 to 4 gallon pots filled with good organic soil and place the pots into the flower beds in the garden. Sink the pots into the soil until the top surface of the pots is at soil level, then cover the area with a mulching material such as grass clippings, pine needles, cypress bark or pine bark chips.

Garden collars, especially in new flower beds are frequently infertile. Flower beds should be fertilized prior to planting or at planting time with complete soluble or partially soluble fertilizers. Use a complete fertilizer such as 8-8-6 or similar analysis fertilizer at the rate of 2 pounds per 100 square feet. The fertilizer can be incorporated when preparing the beds or it can be broadcast on top of the soil. Fertilizers should be applied early in the growing season and repeated on a monthly basis. In recent years controlled release fertilizers have become available to the home gardener. These fertilizers release their nutrients at a slow rate, thereby reducing the frequency of application resulting in less work for you. This type of fertilizer can be worked into the soil at planting time and later used as a surface application on established plantings.

It is important to remember that water geraniums during dry periods to prevent wilting, which will cause eventual yellowing and the dropping of leaves. A good way to know if your plant needs water is to pick up a handful of soil and press it in the palm of your hand. If it crumbles, the plants should be watered. Soil should be kept moist but not too wet. Keeping the soil wet encourages snail and slug populations that chew the foliage and also invites root rotting organisms. It is also important to remember to avoid overhead irrigation, as the wet flowers deteriorate very rapidly.

Today, commercial producers and public institutions are actively breeding better geranium cultivars that have compact growth, and increased branching and flowering as well as more resistance to disease and insects.

If you would like more information about growing geraniums contact a Master Gardener, 323-2500, ext. 5550. During the next several weeks other Seminole County Master Gardeners will be volunteering their time writing about their favorite gardening topics. Your comments and suggestions on future articles are welcome. You can contact me through the Sanford Herald, 300 N. French Ave., Sanford, FL 32771. Bette Cannavino, Seminole County Master Gardener.

Gifts are recipient's even after divorce

DEAR ABBY: You said, "Once a gift is given, it belongs to the recipient." I disagree.

Eighteen years ago, our oldest son married a girl we liked very much — and I still do. I'll call her Sue. Six years ago, I gave Sue an 18-karat wristwatch. It was appraised at $3,000. The following Christmas, I bought a fine antique necklace at an auction. It came from the estate of one of our finest families. I gave it to Sue for her 40th birthday.

Two weeks later, my son informed me that he and Sue were getting a divorce, and that he had already moved out! This came as a blow, as I had no idea they had a troubled marriage. Abby, Sue must have known when I gave her that necklace that she was getting a divorce — yet she accepted the necklace and said nothing.

ADVICE

The divorce was "messy." I defended Sue and incurred the wrath of our son. I tried in the ensuing years to visit her (an hour's drive), but she found excuses and continued to avoid me. I should mention that Sue and our son had children — my only grandchildren — whom I adore, and we all get together at family affairs and are most cordial. However, I have never seen Sue wear the watch or necklace I gave her.

A few months ago, I asked Sue to please return the watch and necklace because I wanted them to remain in the family as heirlooms. She flatly refused. I know that I would have returned them had I been in her circumstances. Please tell me, was I wrong to ask Sue to return those items? And was she right to refuse?

NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: I think you were wrong to have asked Sue to return the gifts you had given her. Whether she chose to return them or keep them was entirely her prerogative.

DEAR ABIGAIL VAN BUREN:

Please give me your advice:

My job is gone, my shoes are worn, I live on beans and rice.

The government won't help me; my state is going broke;

My boy has been arrested (they caught him sniffing coke).

My wife has up and left me; my son resides in jail.

The bank in which I own some stock will be the next to fail.

My pants are getting shabby, and bagging at the knees;

I can't afford a bar of soap to wash my BVDs.

My daughter says she's pregnant, but doesn't know the guy;

My cotton's full of weevils, and my cow is going dry.

My hens have all stopped laying — I can't afford their mash —

My checks are quickly bouncing, and the stores insist on cash.

I've lost my only savings, on horses at the track; the Klan is out to get me, because my friends are black.

I asked the priest to help me, while making my confession;

He blamed it on the Protestants for causing this recession.

And so I turn to you, my friend, before I go to ruin;

My only source of good advice is Abigail Van Buren!

GEORGE DAWSON

DEAR GEORGE: Please do not appeal to me.

To heal our sick economy,

It's plain to see we've lost our pants;

Now give the other guys a chance.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol YOUR BIRTHDAY March 10, 1992

Considerable emphasis might be placed on your partnerships in the year ahead...

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're likely to be in an expansive mood today...

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Try not to exaggerate the good deed you do for another today...

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In order to keep your budget on track today, self-discipline will be required...

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If your priorities are not in order today, there's a chance you'll waste a lot of time and effort on matters that have no real significance...

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't take anything for granted today, especially verbal guarantees...

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) The need for instant gratification could contribute to your financial undoing today...

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Occasionally, we are able to bluff our way through sticky situations with a little bravado...

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be positive regarding the outcome of events today, but also be realistic. If you aren't, you could be just another wishful thinker instead of a bona fide optimist.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't look for rewards you aren't entitled to in a joint endeavor today...

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Someone you place considerable confidence in but who has let you down previously might do so again today...

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Usually, you're realistic and pragmatic, but today you might see things as you would like them to be...

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your luck has its limitations today, so be careful as to how far you push it...
