TODAY'S BIBLE VERSE

Only in lands that try to obey God is this true. Keeping courts honest and just is a function of God fearing people. It is a high duty. Every transaction and discipline received a just recompense of reward.—Heb. 2:2.

Well, this is sales tax day in Florida. No occasion for celebration or rejoicing, as the cost of living for the average man goes up 3 percent, and the merchants begin working for the State as a gigantic tax collection agency. Well, if we ask ourselves every time we pay that tax, what we get for it, and whether it's worth it, may be some good eventually will come out of it, after all.

Senator Pepper, who has probably received more newspaper support during his political career than anyone else in Florida, but who seems to think that because it is a good idea to borrow money to relieve unemployment during a depression, it is a good idea to keep on borrowing money forever. All the Young Democrats in Orlando that the newspapers of this country belong to a "privileged class." Perhaps, but if they are privileged now, they were privileged, too, when they helped elect him to office.

The moon's shine bootlegging business is picking up in Miami, according to Treasury department agents. So many neat little half-cent packages of "white lightning" are being sold for 75 cents to $1.50 in some districts, without benefit of taxation, that an estimated 20,000 gallons are being disposed of there every month. Meanwhile, tax revenues from legal liquor is said to be falling off. Gluttonous legislators are hard to convince there you can kill the goose that lays the golden eggs.

Did you see where that Ku Klux Klansman we were telling you about the other day who was being tried for beating up an old woman in Alabama was acquitted by a "jury of his peers"? And yet there are those who, though knowing perfectly well that you can't enforce the laws you already have in the statute books, would clutter them up with other laws even more unenforceable. We're afraid we'll have to look somewhere beyond the courts and law enforcement agencies to get complete justice, decency and tolerance.

A little military college out in Natchez, Mississippi, where the South is so Deep they're afraid to dig wells for fear of running smack into China, has turned down $50,000,000—that's right fifty million dollars—from a Texas oil man who is "hipped on the subject of "white supremacy". We don't know how many other organizations would have turned that offer down in one day and time when the Alabamian Dollar is the only God people recognize, and we know Jefferson Military College has used the money. All we can credit to it, and to National and Mississippi that it could have been bought.

The first break has come in the strike as Bethlehem Steel to go along with the CIO's demand for specially company-financed pensions added to their Security pensions to provide with no less than $100 a pension when they are 65. This is being created, one of the striking workers who has broken & may, if he is draw $50 of $60 a month from the government's old age pension; the other, the strike of the labor movement, the steel and the coal miners, who may get to be 65, will have to work from the government's work as so to give them as much as the steel and coal miners.

The People's Right

Presumably the crisis in coal and steel supply has been allowed to develop as an alternative to any interference with the rights of labor and management to suspend operations while they settle their disputes. It is stoutly maintained that there is a fundamental right to strike which must not be taken away from labor; this is the right of labor to refuse to work under conditions imposed by an employer. If this right is fundamental, then there is a corresponding right of the employer to shut down his plant; it is his right to refuse to operate under conditions imposed by labor. One right is as defensible as the other. Both of these rights are in fact exercised in the United States today.

There is a third right which must be considered. It is the right of the people to demand adequate production of goods. The people have a right to insist that the employers and workers of any industry either maintain production adequate to meet the normal demands on that industry, or step out of the picture and let others take over. Both labor's right to strike and the employer's right to shut down, as they have developed in industry today, are rights to interrupt production while maintaining the monopoly of production. How can these two rights be reconciled with the third right of the people, the right to an adequate supply of goods?

The question of adjusting these three rights to each other must be faced. Taken alone these are rights of special groups, and special group rights are defensible only when they can be integrated into the whole pattern of national welfare.

Live And Learn

Death often lurks in the innocent-looking flesh of what is presumed to be an edible mushroom. The fact is commonly known, and yet instances of poisoning and death from eating the wrong kinds are all too common.

An unfortunate experience with the little plants usually begins with a country outing, but the other day a mother and child in New York City nearly died from eating poisonous mushrooms they had gathered in a city park. They had relied on the popular but wrong notion that if a silver coin and bit of garlic placed in the frying pan with the mushrooms do not become discolored, the plants are safe to eat. Health officials say this idea is rank superstition.

Botanists say, as a matter of fact, that there is no safe and faultless way to distinguish between an edible and a poisonous mushroom except by learning to recognize each individually. The only advice which can be given to those without that knowledge of mushrooms is that they stick to plants obtained from reliable dealers or get identification from a competent botanist before eating any gathered in the meadows. Death from mushroom poisoning is no more pleasant than any other kind.

Coffee

It is time somebody told Americans for sure whether or not there is a prospect for a reduced supply of coffee. Scarcely a day goes by without someone making a public statement either that coffee is about to become a luxury or that there is positively no danger of any shortage.

This sort of thing is unnerveing. Coffee is the mainstay in which the citizen depends to keep him awake through an overlong evening at the card table and to get him going again the next morning when the alarm clock bids him be off to work. It lends warmth to his lunch of sandwiches and provides an excuse for getting out of the office for a few minutes in mid-morning and mid-afternoon. In short, coffee is important in American life.

Let's face the question fearlessly. Do we, or do we not, have enough coffee for a second cup this winter?

Sanford Forum

October 26, 1949 Sanford, Florida

By R. L. Dean Editor, The Sanford Herald Sanford, Florida

I am ashamed. No statements should be as crude and dogmatic as mine of Monday.

I was wrong. But two men, who have risen to two of the most honorable posts in this city have set me right.

I should have seen it all along. For Russia will either join the world federation or she will not. (1) If she does not, the collective security of the other nations will afford binding protection against her, and it is possible that she can be forced into membership by an economic freeze, or a sincere fear of the collected might of the rest of the world. (2) If she does join, a complete world federation will have been constructed, which makes for peace. She would not as a member have any more control into the of the U. S. than she does at present with her means of intervention. A senator from Florida cannot modify the industry of Maine. Under a world constitution, the Russian delegation could do no more than demand that the U. S. is not able to engage in world war (which is right), that would be her only constitutional action as a member. There is a chance that she could become not just a "member", but the absolute controlling force of the world government. But this chance is very, very, very small (I see that now). That was what stumped me up before and well worth trying because without world government another war is almost inevitable, and scientists predict that it will end our civilization and wipe out a large part of humanity.

I should have seen it before, without world government: DEATH. With world government: PEACE and one chance in thousands that the people of the world will allow Russia to gain control, and even then our chance in thousands that they would be able to do anything if they did gain control.

A chance worth taking indeed!

But in thinking about this thing, I have felt that the most important and fundamental issue has not even been touched. ARE NOT THE DIFFERENTS, IN CUSTOMS, BELIEFS, IDEOLOGYS, LANGUAGES, RACES, WAYS OF LIFE, ETC. TO FEDERATE INTO A WHOLE UNION? If this is true in the affirmative, and I feel sure that it is, then world government is still not practical, and its proponents are wasting their time, and are being very silly, very impractical. Has this an answer? The Lord knows I hope so, but I doubt if it does have a good answer. But then I have been dumb before, and I am ashamed of it now.

Yours with hopefulness, Aaron Harte

Editor, The Sanford Herald Sanford, Florida Dear Sir, With the numerous revivals in progress in and around Sanford, many souls are being saved, but with the amount of liquor stores open for business, we feel certain that they have more deligent followers than the churches. I want that the preachers, especially who read this, will make a greater effort to suppress, in their congregations, the use of alcoholic drinks. A number of you ministers have among your members those whom you know that are regular drinkers. It is high time that judgment begin at the house of God. As ministers let us all do our utmost to get the liquor stores out of Seminole County.

I repeat, as of a former letter, it is a shame that the aged &c. must depend upon the revenue from this ever damning evil for a meager living. Help by abstaining from its use and keeping your churches clean. Yours in Christ's service, Rev. B. W. Miller, Miller Farms

1949 Profits Of 314 Companies

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(AP)—The following table compiled by the Associated Press shows third quarter 1949 profits of 314 companies in 34 groups as compared with profits in the second quarter of this year and the third quarter of 1948. Percentage changes show whether profits advanced (A) or declined (D) in the third quarter from the previous quarter and a year ago.

Table with columns: Group, 3D Qtr. 1949, 2D Qtr. 1949, 3D Qtr. 1948, Percentage Change from 3D Qtr. 1949, 2D Qtr. 1949, 3D Qtr. 1948. Groups include Steel, Utilities, Chemicals, Auto Parts, Air Transport, Coal, Brewers and Distillers, Drugs, cosmetics and soap, Metal fabricators, Miscellaneous, R. R. equipment, Office equipment, Printing and Publishing, Containers, Automobiles and Trucks, Poly and paper products, Building products, Metal mining, Food products, Hating & confection, Radio-television electrical products, Textiles, Tobacco, Machinery, TOTAL.

Farmers Profits To Drop Slightly In Coming Year

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(AP)—The farmer probably will lose three more cents of the consumer's food dollar in 1950, the Agriculture Department said today.

Taking an average share of 49 cents this year, the food producer may have to be content with an average of 46 cents next year. During the war, the farmer's share got as high as 64 cents. In the thirties it dropped to less than 40 cents.

The prospective drop in the farm share will reflect a sharper decline in agricultural prices than in retail prices. In other words, processing and marketing charges will tend to remain near this year's level.

The department said labor costs in the food industry are expected to average higher next year. So are transportation charges.

Other food industry expenses, such as rents, containers, and the like, are expected, on the average, to decline slightly from this year's level.

It appears, the department said, that business conditions will be generally favorable for agencies marketing farm products, although recent trends show much variation by type of establishment.

Entry of new business into the field of farm marketing has declined considerably since the 1946 postwar peak. The frequency of business failures is also rising rapidly, but is still low in relation to prewar.

The department said partial reports indicate that food industry profits are averaging moderately higher than a year ago.

Dr. J. Hillis Miller Is State Chairman Of March Of Dimes

NEW YORK, N. Y., Nov. 1.—(Special)—Dr. J. Hillis Miller, president of the University of Florida, has been appointed Florida State Chairman of the 1950 March of Dimes, Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis announced today.

As chairman, Dr. Miller will be in over-all charge of planning and organizing the annual fund-raising appeal, and will coordinate activities of all city and county campaign directors in the state.

The March of Dimes is conducted each January by the National Foundation and its 2,600 county chapters to finance the nationwide fight against polio in the fields of patient care, scientific research and professional education. The 1950 appeal will be held January 1951.

Dr. Miller, a nationally prominent educator, has been president of the University of Florida since 1947. Born in Front Royal, Virginia, he received his A. B. degree at the University of Richmond, his A. M. at the University of Virginia and his Ph. D. at Columbia University.

He began his career in 1925 as a psychology instructor at William and Mary College. He has been dean of students and assistant professor of psychology at Bucknell University, president of Keweenaw College and has lectured and

Hunsinger And Kynes Picked For Blue-Gray

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 1.—(AP)—Florida halfback Charlie and center Jimmy Kynes today accepted bids to play in the annual Blue-Gray football game here Dec. 31.

They join Travis Tidwell, Auburn's ace passer and runner, on the southern squad. Tidwell's acceptance was announced by Blue-Gray headquarters over the week-end.

Hunsinger is rated as one of the nation's top ground gainers. He scored two touchdowns over Furman.

Kynes, a standout center for two seasons, is being loaned for All-Conference honors.

Caught for New York State from Columbia, Associate Commissioner of Education in 1946, Dr. Miller was also a member of the Cabinet, New York State Department of Education. He is co-author of several books on education and has written numerous articles for national publications.
