Friendly Welcome Extended Frank Mebane, Hotel Manager

Welcome home Frank Mebane! We're happy to see you in Sanford, and we're extending our best felicitations for a long—happy—and successful stay here with us. And certainly, along with those words, we're hoping that you will enjoy the biggest and best season the Mayfair Inn has ever had.

Frank Mebane is the new manager of the Mayfair Inn, and we want everybody in Sanford and Seminole County to know that he's here to put into operation the New York Giants' modern hotel for tourists and visitors, for another brilliant season.

The Mayfair Inn has caused the name of Sanford to go into many corners of the country where otherwise we would not have been known. And now, with young and vigorous leadership in the plush hotel, and with ideas that are fresh and receptive, many people are expected to flock here to take advantage of the many attractions provided that cannot be found in other parts of Florida, goldcoast or no goldcoast.

Here in Sanford we know that the New York Giants have made an excellent choice in a hotel manager to head their organization. From our past experience, when Frank Mebane comes to Sanford to help put the Mayfair Inn on the map, we know that he's going to do a bang-up job, not only in making the fine hotel a successful operation, but in making Sanford and Seminole County better known in other parts of the country where friends sometimes count.

The Mayfair Inn is an important asset for Sanford. The hundreds upon hundreds of visitors brought here to enjoy the warm winter months leave thousands upon thousands of dollars in the coffers of the local merchants. The spending by the hotel itself for the goods and materials for a big home to be operated is no little item in size and impact. The number of people employed on the staff who spend and live in Sanford is another big consideration.

So Frank Mebane will put into operation, the gears and machinery of the Mayfair Inn, which in turn will provide some of the big things that affect our economy.

So again, we extend a hearty welcome to Frank Mebane, and if they could be heard, we know that hundreds upon hundreds of Sanford and Seminole County citizens join with us in the kindly, friendly greeting!

This is Constitution Week. An important week for real, red-blooded Americans.

Seen in the "Kiwanis Bulletin": Primarily the appearance of Sen. Smathers in Sanford is designed to further his campaign for re-election to the U. S. Senate, however, the man unquestionably has a tight grasp on the trend of the world affairs and has rendered Florida an invaluable service in the Senate. The Jaycees are to be commended for their efforts to get Sen. Smathers to speak in Sanford and the various civic groups are indebted to them for their arrangements of this program. The people have a right to hear their Representatives in Congress—election year or not.

The Underprivileged Children's Committee of the Sanford Kiwanis Club is planning its annual Seminole High School Football Game. Funds derived from this source are spent entirely on the needs of underprivileged children. Help three ways: the Sanford Kiwanis Club, Seminole High School, and the children who need much attention.

Newly repainted safety zones, around Sanford schools, leave nothing to be guessed at when it comes to the traffic safety for our children. Watch for and obey all signs and directions when driving around schools.

A link is no stronger than the will of the man who made it. Many strong links make a strong chain. And many strong men make a strong city. Both are to be desired.

Proper Treatment Of Millionaires

NEW YORK (U.S.)—Practically everybody alive today sooner or later will meet a millionaire—and feel worried about it.

It was feared for a time that millionaires would die out in this civilization, that they would go the way of the dodo or the extinct passenger pigeon.

Happily, it hasn't worked out that way. The millionaire class has proved a hardy breed. If millionaires aren't quite multiplying like the rabbit, they are at least increasing faster than the whooping crane.

The average person, told he is going to meet a millionaire for the first time, finds his heart suddenly beating a bit faster.

"How shall I act?" he asks. "What shall I say to him?"

Happily, he thumbs through his wife's etiquette book. He finds no help there. Oddly, no etiquette writer ever thinks to include a chapter on "The care and Proper Treatment of Millionaires."

This is a strange oversight indeed. The etiquette writers should have the idea that you should treat a millionaire just as you would any other social equal. They are on the right track here, but they don't go far enough. Millionaires are even more equal than your other social equals.

A helpful thing to remember is that, while you are uneasy at the prospect of meeting the mil-

1. If you have an inside tip on a new stock or a horse race, pass it on to him at once. It will please him to know you are interested in seeing him get ahead.
2. Never ask him where is the safest place to keep money. He may be hiding his in the crotches of trees and become suspicious that you are trying to find out his secret.
3. If a millionaire tells you by hard work, don't laugh out loud—even though you know he inherited his own riches. Look impressed. He may be right. (If you don't think inheriting money is hard work, just sit down right now and try to inherit some yourself.)
4. It is unwise to ask him how many millions he really has. If he only has one, it will embarrass him. If he has more than one, he won't tell you anyway.
5. Should you number several millionaires among your acquaintances, avoid mentioning the fact. Every millionaire likes to feel he is the only millionaire in your life.
6. Many people in the presence of a millionaire feel an overwhelming urge to praise the income tax. Fight down this temptation—or you'll find yourself all alone talking to yourself.

OUTSIDE ROCKEFELLER CENTER, Maestro Arturo Toscanini's artistic sensibilities were offended by a very old organ grinder who was rendering a march from "Carmen" at a funeral pace.

"Faster, you fool, faster!" cried the Maestro in passing. Next day a new placard adorned the beggar's organ: "Pupil of Toscanini."

"How," inquired Rosenbaum's partner, "was that new hotel you stayed at down South this year? Should we try it?" "The food wasn't bad," admitted Rosenbaum. "But the music! One night a waiter dropped a tray of knives and glassware while the band was outside having a smoke, and seven couples got up and began to dance."

Millions of folks have had a merry time seeing the rather wonderful but weird events which will take place in the not-too-distant future. Along with junkies to the moon and space satellites, television, as well, will come in for some startling developments.

Doesn't TV from Europe? Well, according to the then-thinking crowd, it will be better than that in years to come. Don't switch to your favorite channel just yet, friends, but in another 20 or 30 years there will be TV relay stations set up on satellites orbiting around the earth. As a result we can transmit a TV program from any point in the world and have it up in the sky, from which will relay it to the ground.

Credit Restraints Boost Interest

NEW YORK (U.S.)—What effect have governmental credit restraints had on slowing the business boom?

Very little, so far.

The most tangible result of the money managers' moves to tighten credit has been to cause an increase in interest rates—and hence an increase in the cost of doing business—and to make the banks scurry around to find new money to lend to their many would-be borrowers.

The mild restraints may take visible form in the months ahead. They are chiefly aimed at acting as a governor to prevent the business boom from running away.

But so far there are few signs of slowing down—and many signs of more industrial and trade activity the rest of this year.

Unimpressed by warnings that only easy credit terms could keep auto sales booming, the auto industry says it plans to turn out 1956 models at the same fast clip it set when it introduced the 1955's. Car dealers are being warned to prepare for even keener competition next year.

The housing industry was thought by many to be a particular target of the credit-tightening program. And in July the starting of new homes faltered a little. But it snapped back in August and builders say the revival is lasting in September.

Appliances are another thing that many American families buy on time. But dealers report that the usual summer slump in sales was hard to find. They think it ancing of sales in the traditional big season from now till Christmas will put no brake on what they predict will be a record year.

Retail hopes, indeed, are running high for record Christmas trade in all lines.

Steel mills are operating only a little below capacity. There is no sign yet of any letdown in steel demand. This great indicator of the business boom still points to full steam ahead in nearby months.

The brakes may take hold later, but as of now business is still booming.

THE SINGLE-HOME epidemic of polio that struck 14 youngsters in one family has apparently run its course, according to physicians attending the children of farmer Keron Walsh in Durand, Ill. Looking out of the front window are three sisters who were stricken and one who did not contract the disease. Left to right are: Joan 13, Ann and Alice, twins, 15, and Susan, 11. Alice was not touched. Of the eight, the eldest child, David, 17, is in the most serious condition and has been placed in an iron lung. The baby of the family, Molly, 1, was suspected, but later declared out of danger.

Main Street U.S.A. is a big, wide, wonderful world of easy credit. It's a treasure lane where homes, automobiles, stoves, refrigerators, vacations, television sets, radios, phonographs, furniture, clothes and almost everything else can be bought on the cuff. "Buy now and pay later!" is Main Street's theme song.

It's a street that encourages debt in a competitive fight for business. It's a place where the young couple like Jim and Helen Delaney are sipping up a $64.60 take-home wage each week, mixing the money with easy credit, and achieving at least temporarily a standard of living far beyond the dreams of people in any other land. It's a place where the Jim Delaneys and their neighbors no longer avoid debt as their elders once did. Instead, they are learning to live with debt as a normal way to achieve the sort of life they want. They don't want to wait for years to have the good things of life, as their mothers and fathers did. They want to enjoy them now... today.

Some are going over their heads in debt, tempted by the credit which looks so easy to meet. American collectors estimate that some six million families are delinquent in their payments on one or more things they have bought on time. But on the whole, Americans are paying their bills promptly. The percentage of delinquencies is so low that it's a small problem in this time of prosperity.

Occasionally Jim gets some overtime pay and that helps to give them a bit more elbow room. How do the Delaneys manage on these wages to buy a home, an automobile, and all the labor-saving devices and luxuries they have? "You have to be an angle shooter," Jim explained. "We watch the sales. We don't buy anything unless we get it at a good price. We buy one thing at a time and when we pay for it—then we buy something else."

The fast upsurge in consumer and mortgage credit has the Eisenhower administration worried. The big debt hanging over the Delaneys now is the $450 they borrowed from the bank to consolidate a few small bills and to buy the freezer. Jim never has trouble getting money from the bank because he has made three previous loans and always repaid them ahead of schedule. His credit rating is good at the department store too, because he has paid his bills promptly.

Here is how the Delaneys divide their $72.25 weekly wage: Rent, including taxes, interest on mortgage and social security taxes $7.65; food $20; milk $2.80; utilities and telephone $5; insurance $4.09; hospitalization $1.73; union dues 75 cents; payment on bank note $5.77. The total is $64.61, leaving $7.61 a week for clothing, automobile expenses, recreation, etc.

Apparently the people like a little inflation if it means good times, and if good times continue through 1956 the Republicans aren't likely to suffer from it at the polls. The trick is to keep the boom going but not let it get out of hand. Thus the administration is moving cautiously and taking no drastic actions while anxiously checking the nation's economic pulse.

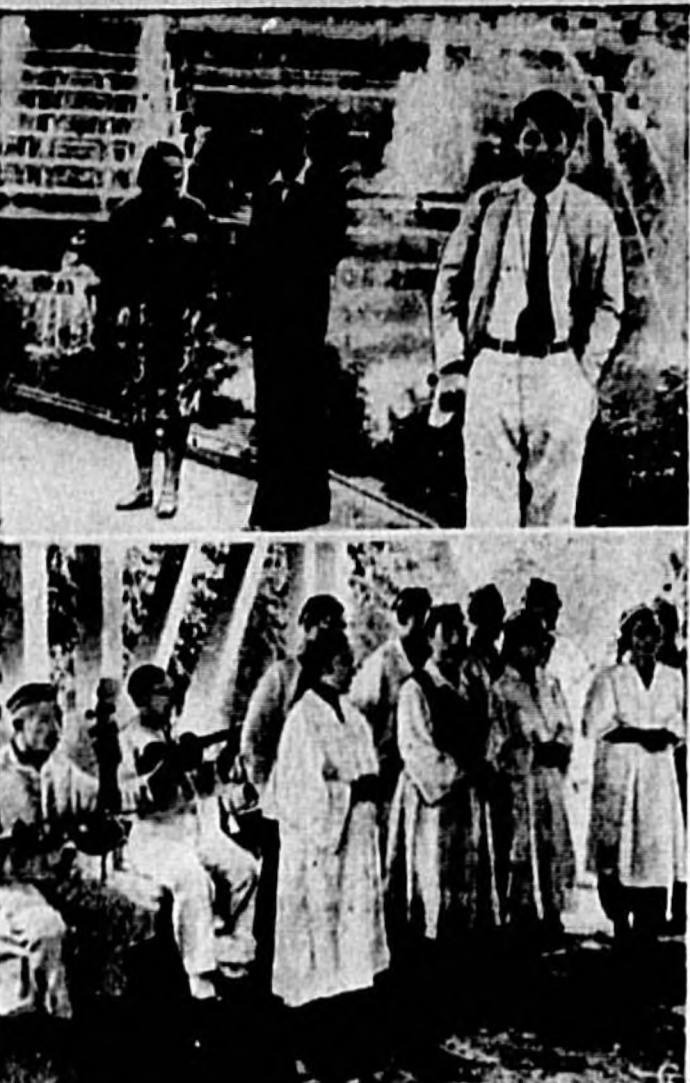

What does Jim think of the government's concern over too-easy credit and the tightening up of interest rates? "Nobody I know pays much attention to it," he said. "I don't believe they'll think much about it unless they can't get a loan—or their credit is cut off. If that happens, then they'll start thinking about it."

Jim and Helen Delaney, both 30, live with their two sons, 5-year-old Joey and 3-month-old David. They were married nine years ago soon after Jim was discharged from the Navy as a signalman, third class. He came home with $300 cash and a $150 diamond ring in his pocket—and enough bravado to convince Helen she should marry him. Jim earns $72.25 a week which is close to the average pay earned by American workers.

Each Friday night the Delaneys put the children into the car and they go to a nearby chain grocery. They pile a cart high with food and they figure it averages out to about $20 a week, not including milk. "We buy anything we think we will like," Helen says. The big debt hanging over the Delaneys now is the $450 they borrowed from the bank to consolidate a few small bills and to buy the freezer. Jim never has trouble getting money from the bank because he has made three previous loans and always repaid them ahead of schedule. His credit rating is good at the department store too, because he has paid his bills promptly.

THE DELANEY home is an estate single house which real estate people call a "Cape Cod type." Jim bought it last year, on a GI loan, paying $1,250 down and assuming a $10,000, 4 per cent, 25-year mortgage. He and Helen managed to save the down payment in the five years since they were man, plans, according to details revealed today, to work more closely with departments at the local Navy Base in working out problems that might arise from time to time. The Committee considered the encouragement of the organization of local Navy and other reserve units. Also the group agreed to encourage Navy representation at various civilian affairs. Another matter to come before the committee was the possibility of staging another Navy Appreciation Day in cooperation with the Sanford Merchants. Another group of three committees will meet tomorrow to lay plans for the coming year. The Beautification committee, with Mrs. M. L. Raborn Sr., as chairman, will meet at 10 a. m. The Roads Committee, with W. A. Patrick as chairman will meet at 2 p. m., and the Education Committee, chaired by R. T. Milwee, will meet at 4 p. m.

All plans made by committees meeting this week at 10, 2, and 4 each day, will be used as a pattern for creating the budget during the 1955-56 fiscal year. The budget approved by the Finance Committee will furnish the Membership Drive Committee the material for completing its plans for members.

Fringe Area

said, in that, he said, "They are signed under duress."
However, Knowles explained that the agreement was presented for either signature or refusal, at the wish of the property buyer. Heckling from the audience, throughout the discussion and explanation by the City Manager or by commissioners, was William A. Laffer Jr. Laffer, who objected during the explanation, "You don't have to pay any attention to that because most of these are Navy people and they can't vote here."
Knowles explained that the City of Sanford was created by a special act of the legislature, and regardless of petition, fringe areas must be admitted to the city only by referendum.

Commissioner Higgins in both told the group, "You cannot come in to the city except by referendum. I don't care whether a Senator said you could or not."
Speaking in explanation of the agreement, Commissioner Scott asked, "Is there any better way to find out how the people feel?"
City Manager Knowles was called on to read and explain the memorandum written to the City Commissioners, a copy of which was given to the fringe area committee to study. Knowles said, "You just don't go slapping in utilities overnight. One just doesn't put in two inch and four inch water pipe without planning."
"We're anxious to provide a city for industry and industry wants a labor supply," Knowles explained. "Industry looks at the population of the city and sees 12,000, they don't look at the number of residents outside the city."

Discussing the tax structure of the city, the city manager said, "The taxpayer doesn't pay 50 per cent of the bill. It's the businessman that shoulders the burden!"
"The industrial development of the city surrounds the railroad yards, warehouse facilities and availability to traffic outlets, and not in home areas such as we're proposing to annex," explained Knowles.

"Future city commissioners will not be bound by a contract with any group, or for the rehabilitation of any area because this is a policy—not a contract. It is for the welfare of the citizens," Knowles said.
Making a point in his explanation about the refuse collection fee, the City Manager said, "That came doggone hard to the commissioners. They had to do it for the benefit of Sanford."

Heckling the city manager were such exclamations during his explanation: "How much area do you have to take in in order to borrow more money?" "How much do you want to take in?" "Are you going to increase the population of the county by expanding the city limits?"—And so the city manager discussed a point in comparison and remarked that he had come from a community of 6,000, Laffer shouted, "Why don't you go back?"
Brown, chairman of the fringe area citizens committee told the group, after more than an hour of personality clashes, "I think we have accomplished what we came here for."

And to bring the meeting to a close, Commissioner Scott said, "When you ask Mr. Knowles a question, remember that he gets his instructions from the City Commission. We think he is a good man and we want to keep him here." And he added, "we meet on the second and fourth Monday nights and we'll be glad to have you meet with us for an answer to any of your questions or problems."

PAINTER HAS PROBLEM WITH 'PET' COW
CARTHAGE, Tenn. — A painter and writer who calls New York and Paris his homes got carried away at Sen. Albert Gore's first production sale of Black Angus cows and bought a heifer he has no place to put.
Ludwig Remelmann bought Miss Burgess of Marwood for $1,250 yesterday and then explained: "She had such a kind face I couldn't keep from buying her. I also liked the idea of keeping her for a pet, not raising her for slaughter."
Remelmann owns a dairy farm in Austria, but he never attended a beef cattle sale before. He plans to leave Miss Burgess at Gore's farm until he can wind up plans to buy a Virginia farm.

THIEF LEAVES WALLET IN OTHER PANTS
HONOLULU, HI. — Karun Asato looked in a window on his return home yesterday and spotted a man rifling a money jar. The thief dashed out the door shouting that children were ransacking the house.
Halfway down the block, the culprit dashed into another house.

SHARPSHOOTING YOUTH
JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — When 12-year-old Lafayette Ward stepped off the school bus at his house yesterday he saw a diamondback rattlesnake coiled about 20 feet from his 8-year-old brother Tommy. Cautioning Tommy to hold still, Lafayette ran into the house, brought back a shotgun and blasted the rattler. "I know how to handle

UPLAND, Calif. — Henry Calvin Yahn, 37, was in the habit of wearing a choir robe and carrying a Bible when he went to church. Yesterday he was arrested on suspicion of burglarizing four churches. Police accused him of taking more than $200, typewriters and movie projectors.

FINALLY GETS DIVORCE
LOS ANGELES, Calif. — After 41 years, Mrs. Emma Niccum knew that Elwood Niccum wasn't coming home.
So she divorced him yesterday. She said Niccum deserted her only three months after their wedding in 1914.

NO PROBLEM HERE
OSHAHA, Ill. — The new city directory has an omission. It doesn't list the address of Sheriff Pat Corrigan among the county officers. But Corrigan isn't worried. He said, "most of the people we do business with know where we are. The problem is in locating them."

Investigation Set On 'Bonanza' Case

WASHINGTON — The House Appropriations Committee launched an investigation today of what House Democratic Leader McCormack of Massachusetts called a $2,000,000 "bonanza contract" between the Air Force and private telephone companies.
The Air Force replied that the contract plans had been fully reported to congressional committees earlier this year, and that Congress has already appropriated "substantial" funds for sites and construction of facilities. It said cancellation of the contract now might make the government liable for a penalty which could reach 22 million dollars.

"The only way to attempt to cure these killers is by tightening up our traffic laws and stiffening our penalties for reckless driving."
Chief Williams emphasized the mutual responsibility of schools, public officials, and community leaders for investigating the safety resources of the community and for spearheading movements whose purpose is to cut down on traffic hazards to children in the community.
"A good community is judged by its accident record," he said. "Let us be sure that our community recognizes and meets its responsibility!"

Deed Is To Child, Not Real Estate

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)—No. 28463 In a title to real estate book in the county clerk's office is a deed—but not to real estate. It is a deed to a child. Sale price: $1. The title number and the names have been changed, but here is the language of a deed filed in one county under an ancient law which, although infrequently used, is still valid in South Carolina. "Whereas, my wife, Mary Drake, has recently died leaving the following children: Bill, age 5; Joe, age 4; and Mae, age 2; and "Whereas, I have no home in which to take care of said children and nobody to assist in caring for them, and "Whereas, Dena Gray, has kindly taken said children and is tenderly nurturing and caring for them and "Whereas, I desire that a home be provided for my said children, and "Whereas, Dena Gray, has expressed a desire to provide a home for them during their minority, "Now, know all men, that I, Bill Drake, father of the Bill, Joe and Mae Drake, in consideration of the promise and covenant on the part of Dena Gray—in properly care for and provide a home for my said infant children... during their minority, and in further consideration of the sum of one ($1.00) dollar to me paid by the said Dena Gray, do grant, bargain, sell, release and give unto the said Dena Gray, the custody and tuition of my infant children... far and during the time as each of my said children remains under the age of 21 years. "(Signed) X (Bill Drake, his mark)." The law permitting such transactions dates back to 1660, when it was drafted in England. It was incorporated into South Carolina's colonial laws in 1748 and much of the original language remains in the state Constitution today. Use of the law was not uncommon until only four years ago. In 1934, for example, a welfare department survey showed there were 125 such cases. Welfare workers believe the circumstances most often involved were those in which Bill Drake found himself: One or the other parent left with small children and not enough income to provide a home.

Childless couples sometimes used the deed method rather than formally adopt a youngster. It was simpler and cheaper, with the average cost of getting the deed written and recorded ranging from $5 to $10. Disparity in public school facilities was another reason for deeding away a child. Suppose a family lived in a suburban area with inferior schools. Crowded city schools won't accept out-of-towners. Parents have gotten around this situation by deeding children to city residents, usually relatives. City schools then have to accept the children. Much of this has been changed, however, by a 1931 legislative act requiring that state circuit judges review and approve all child deeds. This puts the mechanics of the transaction into the same category as adoption, insofar as concerns cost, complications and time required. Welfare officials believe the practice has since been all but abandoned, even though the statute remains on the books. The deed gives custody, rather than ownership, and expires when the child reaches 21. It carries no right of inheritance from the foster parents nor does it curtail the child's right of inheritance from the natural parents. The foster parents are charged with clothing, feeding and educating the child whose custody they have bought. Their treatment of the child is always subject to court review.

It was while he was at the university that Brucker enlisted in the National Guard—just in time to be mustered into federal service. He went off to the Mexican border in 1916 with the 33rd Michigan. "It was then that I learned a lot about the Army and soldiers," Brucker said. "I was in the infantry. I made corporal and then sergeant. I was elected president of the sergeants' club." When the regiment returned from the border, the United States had entered World War I. Then in exactly the time required to become a 90-day wonder, Brucker was a second lieutenant and on Sept. 13, 1917, he shipped out to France. Assigned to the 42nd "Rainbow" Division, he went through the Chateau-Thierry and Meuse-Argonne campaigns. By the time the fighting had ended he had a Silver Star for valor and a Purple Heart for wounds. While he is reluctant to talk about the awards, other sources say he got the Silver Star for rescuing a soldier under heavy fire. He came out of the war a first lieutenant and acting company commander. On Aug. 10, 1923, Brucker was married to Clara Hessel, daughter of a Saginaw minister and his sweetheart of eight years. He was then acting prosecutor for Saginaw County, an appointive job, and this, combined with his law practice, gave him an income of about $3,000 a year. Brucker moved up to county prosecutor and then went to Lansing as an assistant attorney general. In 1928 he was elected attorney general. In 1930 he became, at 34, the second youngest governor in Michigan's history. Here in Washington, the Bruckers live in the old but exclusive and expensive Westchester Arms. They have a one bedroom apartment, where Mrs. Brucker does her own housekeeping. Time is a major problem for the new secretary. He works six days a week and reads almost nothing but newspapers, omitting the columnists. He said he long ago concluded that if he read the columnists, especially their criticism, "It would get the best of a fellow and he would get to be thin-skinned and break out in political hives." Does he have a philosophy for operation of the Army? "Not yet," says Brucker. He hasn't had time to formulate one. He's still too busy learning the mechanics of the job.

Brucker Says He Has No Inking Why He Was Chosen Army Chief

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Wilbur Marion Brucker says he doesn't have the foggiest notion why President Eisenhower named him secretary of the Army. One well informed guess is that he knew the right people—or the right people knew him. This guess, right out of the Republican National Committee, goes this way: A Michigan man, Postmaster Gen. Arthur E. Summerfield, suggested to another Michigan man, Secretary of Defense Charles Wilson, that Brucker, still another Michigan man, would be good at the job. Wilson passed the suggestion on to the President. Until he was elevated by Eisenhower to succeed Robert T. Stevens, Brucker had been operating quietly for more than a year as general counsel to the Department of Defense. For 22 years he had been a Detroit lawyer. His chief claim to fame was that he was the last surviving Republican who had held office as governor when Herbert Hoover was president. In those 22 years he amassed, if not a fortune, then considerable wealth. He became a shareholder in the American Legion, the Masons and Knights Templar. Brucker, now 61, is five feet 10 inches and 182 pounds of affability. He is a church-going (Presbyterian), nonsmoking, nondrinking disciple of Herbert Hoover. He and Hoover are great personal friends and see eye to eye on the theory that government should stay out of competition with private enterprise. For the last 24 years in and out of politics, Brucker has been a trend-bucker. He was born June 23, 1864, the third and youngest son of Ferdinand Brucker, a lawyer and Democratic congressman. He was a when his father was defeated for reelection and S when his father died. "We were in pretty bad shape," he recalls. "My father had been ill for six years and that sapped all the family fortune. We were left the home free and clear, but it was tough. An aunt, who taught school, came to live with us and that helped out." Brucker pulled mustard weeds out of corn fields at a penny a row to help out further. Except for time in school, he has worked nearly all his life. He worked his way through the University of Michigan at assorted jobs and in summers worked in a lumber yard at Saginaw, starting at 50 cents a day.

Time Out To Feed Baby

By MILDRED H. BURNETT, M.D. It's no mind reader, but I bet I know what a lot of you mothers think about as you take time out from your housework to feed your baby his bottle of milk. You glance around the room and say to yourself: "Oh, I could get so much more done if I didn't have to stop to feed him." Think part of pile up when there's a baby in the house, don't they? Well, don't worry about them while you're feeding your baby. Let me also caution you not to do what some busy mothers do. Don't put your baby down to eat his bottle on the table or beside him. He'll get used to that and when you try to put him to bed or to eat his bottle in a different position, than he can drink milk, no more. But when you have to get the bottle up, he is too used to feeding himself. There are several reasons why it is best for you to feed him. Why Change Cots? A bottle might spill, and if it does, your baby will be in a bit of an awkward position. If you feed him in a cot, you can see him and he can see you. You can also see if he is getting the milk he needs. If you feed him in a cot, you can see if he is getting the milk he needs. If you feed him in a cot, you can see if he is getting the milk he needs.

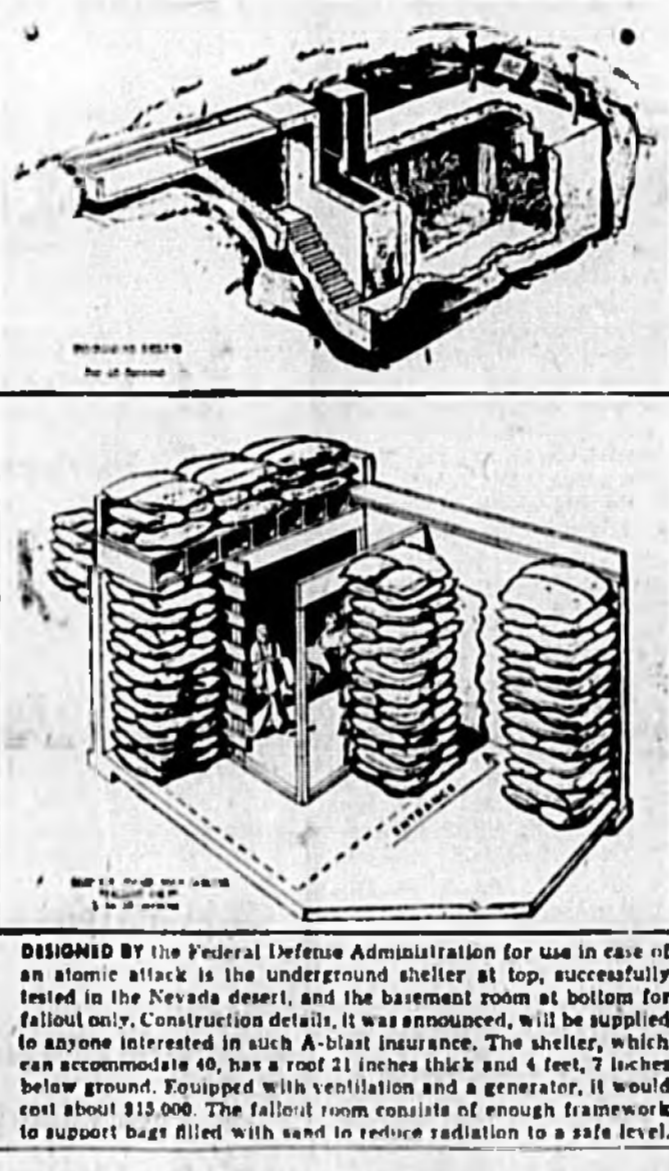

Blind Couple Raise Daughter In Tedious Way

DAYTON, Ohio. (AP)—Gene and Mary Louise Erwin watch their only child with their hearts. Both blind, the Erwins are devoted to raising four-month-old Ruthie, the blue-eyed daughter they've never seen. It's a complicated and leader business, shared by mother and father. Gene mixes the formula, using an ordinary measuring cup with slightly raised numerals. Mrs. Erwin, with more than the usual pride and work in being a mother, washes the baby's clothes three or four times. She can't see the results and she wants to make sure the clothes are clean. "We wanted a baby for three years, and prayed for her," Mrs. Erwin said. In the Erwin household, everything must be neat and in place, so eager hands can find the baby oil, the diapers, the nipples and the baby food when needed. Mrs. Erwin admitted that spoon-feeding Ruthie is difficult. She guides the spoon with a finger until she finds Ruthie's mouth. "We usually get more in her than on her," Mrs. Erwin said. But she feels sure feeding will be easier once everybody gets more practice. Bath time and play time are favorites for Ruthie. The Erwins use baby oil instead of powder, to avoid getting the powder in the baby's eyes. They take her face with napkins, water, to guard against stabs that could sting the eyes. When Ruthie begins to crawl, Mrs. Erwin plans to equip her with little bells so they'll know where she is. Once Ruthie begins walking is another problem, one the Erwins feel sure they can work out. The signal for play time is the tap of Erwin's cane when he comes home from work at his cigar stand in the Montgomery County court-house. How does a blind couple play with their baby, what games do they choose? Right now, the three members of the Erwin family all happily play peek-a-boo.

LAWRENCE E. BUOL, 34, of Stockton, Calif., clings to his wife, Sue, in Hong Kong after five and a half years of imprisonment by the Chinese Communists. The former civilian fier, 30 pounds lighter, said he was not treated badly. His first question was, "Who won the last five or six Royal games?" Mrs. Buol had been waiting at the border since his release was announced. (International Radioteletype)

DESIGN FOR LIVING IN A-ATTACK

DESIGNED BY THE FEDERAL DEFENSE ADMINISTRATION FOR USE IN CASE OF AN ATOMIC ATTACK is the underground shelter at top, successfully tested in the Nevada desert, and the basement room at bottom for fallout only. Construction details, it was announced, will be supplied to anyone interested in such A-blast insurance. The shelter, which can accommodate 40, has a roof 21 inches thick and 4 feet, 7 inches below ground. Equipped with ventilation and a generator, it would cost about $15,000. The fallout room consists of enough framework to support bags filled with sand to reduce radiation to a safe level.
