Power Demand Normalizes; Growers Salvaging Begins

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

Florida power companies found it easier to deal with a low temperature of 31 degrees today after Monday's low of 20, but citrus processing plants geared for 24 hours production as growers worked frantically to salvage as much of their freeze-damaged crops as possible.

With record low temperatures power supplies were strained as Floridians taxed fuel supplies in an effort to keep warm.

"Everything is back to normal now, thank goodness," said John Higgins spokesman for Florida Power and Light. Sunday, FP&L faced a serious problem in north Seminole County when power to users in Osteen, Deltona and Lake Ashby was cut off for up to 10 hours because the demands of residents home for the holidays and trying to cope with the cold couldn't be met.

Customers of both FP&L and Florida Power, which serves south Seminole County, faced rotating blackouts Monday morning. The blackouts hit designated area for about 15 minutes at a time, in an effort to conserve energy and to protect against transformer blowouts. FP&L said that the demand for energy Monday was double what they ever expected to face.

"We made it through this morning's peak without any problems, but it was very tight," said David Williams spokesman for Florida Power, Corp. "The warmer temperature is a help and this afternoon a Crystal River coal plant that was out will be back on line."

Suppliers of fuel oil and kerosene for home heating scrambled to meet the demands of consumers during the cold snap. Beverly Srock of Srock's Oil, Sanford, said the effort to supply kerosene to their customers was hampered because the supplier in Taft was closed on Monday. She said her husband, Darrell, worked extended hours over the weekend and is trying to catch up with about 80 backlogged orders for kerosene today.

Citrus experts said it would be several weeks before they could estimate the damage, which depends on the results of emergency harvesting and processing.

They blamed a lack of warning from weather forecasters for their predicament. In the citrus growing areas of the two states, temperatures dropped into the 20s during the holiday weekend.

Earl Wells, a spokesman for Florida Citrus Mutual, said intense harvesting efforts began Monday and citrus factories would start round-the-clock processing operations today.

"Each one of these growers has a thermometer in each of their groves," Wells said. "If we have the level and duration of low temperatures that suggests severe damage, they'll get in there as quick as they can and get that fruit off the trees."

"The quicker you get it off the tree and into the processing plant, the more likely it will be usable," he said. "An orange being frozen solid doesn't mean that you've necessarily lost that orange, although you're bound to get less juice from it."

"The thing that shocks us is that all the professional long-range weather forecasts did not catch this cold wave coming in," said Jerry Chicone Jr., a prominent Orlando grower. "We had no knowledge of it until noon Saturday after we had sent our work crews home for Christmas."

"We could have picked, we could have irrigated, we could have done a lot of things," Chicone said.

Chicone said it looked like the damage was worse than in 1977, when estimates ranged up to $500 million.

Other officials, however, said losses would run into the millions but not the hundreds of millions.

Tragedy

Former Seminole County Woman, Child, 3, Dead In Bizarre Mishap

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

A faulty furnace has been blamed in the deaths of a former Altamonte Springs woman and her 3-year-old son found dead in a bedroom of their rural home in Brighton, Colo.

And her husband, also a former Altamonte Springs resident who was found near death and half-frozen in sub-zero temperatures in the same bedroom, remains in intensive care today suffering from carbon monoxide poisoning and frostbite. The bodies were not discovered for four days.

The woman was the daughter of a prominent Casselberry automobile dealer.

— Dead are: Kimberlee Dawn Potter, 28, of carbon monoxide poisoning.

— Her son, Jess, 3, of carbon monoxide poisoning.

— In intensive care is her husband, Thomas Potter, 29, suffering from frostbite and carbon monoxide poisoning.

Rescuers from the sheriff's department at first thought Thomas Potter also was dead when they first broke into the home and discovered the family. When they discovered he was still alive, they rushed him to a hospital in Greeley, Colo., by helicopter. His legs were frozen to the bone and had turned black, sheriff's deputies said.

Memorial services for Mrs. Potter, daughter of car dealer Bob Endicott and Mrs. Endicott, Altamonte Springs, and Jessie Stephen, grandson of the Endicotts and Mrs. Eva Potter, also of Altamonte Springs, will be held at 11 a.m. Wednesday at the Altamonte Springs chapel of Baldwin-Fairchild Funeral Home.

They will be entombed in the Highland Memory Gardens mausoleum at Forest City, next to Mrs. Potter's first son, who died from pneumonia in 1977 at the age of 2.

The tragedy occurred Dec. 17 when a pilot light in the heating system went out. The family was apparently asleep, and, since Thomas Potter worked two jobs at separate locations, fellow workers at each location thought he was working on the other job when he failed to show up after the weekend tragedy.

"The pilot light went out in their basement furnace," said Mrs. Endicott, "and the furnace had been turned on full blast because the temperature was 16 degrees below zero. There was an explosion on the natural gas company's lines and they said that might have blown out the pilot light. The safety valve should have worked, but apparently didn't. It is still under investigation.

"It apparently happened while they were asleep that Friday (Dec. 16) night or Saturday morning," said Mrs. Endicott. "I had just talked with them on the phone Friday night, so I was not concerned, but his mother began to worry when they did not answer their phone. She was supposed to fly out there on Tuesday for Christmas."

Seminole Escapee In Custody

The fugitive who escaped from a Seminole County sheriff's department airplane in October is in custody in California after he allegedly tried to run over police officers who were chasing him from the scene of a burglary.

Brea, Calif., police report that Warren Gregory Farrow, a Florida transient, was arrested at 5:30 a.m. Saturday. Farrow is wanted in Seminole County to face charges of sexual battery and burglary in a 1982 Altamonte Springs case — in addition to escape charges.

Farrow escaped from a sheriff's department plane that was taxiing to a stop at the Sanford airport on Oct. 6. He was being transported from a jail in Tilley, N.C., when he jumped through the rear door of the plane and fled from the deputy pilot and co-pilot.

Seminole County officers mounted a massive search for Farrow, 34, who had fled on foot. When he was captured in California he was reportedly driving a car that had been stolen in Jacksonville.

Farrow is being held in the Orange County California jail in lieu of $25,000 bond. Seminole County sheriff's Capt. Jay Leman said Seminole County has not set bond in Farrow's case. Leman said Seminole County wants Farrow back, but he also faces California charges of burglary, assault on a police officer with a deadly weapon, grand theft auto and receiving stolen property.

Farrow is also wanted in Alachua County Florida on charges of sexual battery and burglary. Leman said it will be up to the states to decide who gets Farrow first.

Freezing Finalists

It's cold out at the holdout, where Linda Bates, left, and Eric Needle have wrapped themselves in cocoons of blankets, sleeping bags and layers of clothes to continue their quest for prizes that they are shackled to at Willett Toyota on U.S. Highway 17-92 south of Sanford. Ms. Bates said, "No matter how cold it is here I know we're better off than the people up north." The pair say the cold won't freeze them out of the contest that they have been in since July.

Traffic Mishaps Kill 1; Injure 2

From Local and Wire Reports

A DeBary man was killed and two Sanford residents were injured in separate accidents during the Christmas weekend.

Jack Curtis Johnson, 39, of 141 Lucerne Drive, died after the car he was driving Saturday left the Interstate Highway 4, just west of Lake Helen, at 2:30 a.m. and ran into the back end of a legally parked semi tractor-trailer rig, according to a Florida Highway Patrol spokesman. Johnson was alone in the vehicle. The driver of the rig, Michael Eugen Strickland, of Tampa, was uninjured in the accident.

In Sanford, two residents were injured during a two-car accident that occurred Christmas morning on Airport Boulevard.

Injured in the 10:34 a.m. accident were William Daniel Bradham, 23, 411 Belle Ave., and Enoc Juan Hollemweguer, 36, of 319 Hidden Lake Drive.

According to the accident report, Hollemweguer was traveling west on Airport Boulevard when a 1969 Plymouth driven by Bradham, heading east on Airport Boulevard crossed into the oncoming lane, striking Hollemweguer's 1982 Honda. Bradham received glass in both eyes and possible fractures of his right wrist, arm and leg. Hollemweguer had a cut on his head and an injured back. They were taken to Central Florida Regional Hospital.

According to the report, Bradham was cited by the police for careless driving, driving under the influence and failure to carry a driver license.

Bradham's car sustained $900 damage while damage to Hollemweguer's Honda was set at $7,000.

Elsewhere, the Arctic weather that froze car engines and closed highways turned out to be "a blessing in disguise" for Christmas holiday weekend motorists, who died in numbers far below last year's levels, traffic safety officials said.

A United Press International count today showed there were at least 199 traffic fatalities during the Christmas weekend, which began at 6 p.m. Friday.

California reported the most deaths with 31. Texas followed with 28, and Florida had

17. Fourteen states did not report any traffic deaths.

The National Safety Council had predicted 300 to 400 people would die and another 14,000 to 19,000 would suffer disabling injuries before the holiday weekend ended at midnight Monday. Last year, there were 346 deaths and 16,100 serious injuries during the holiday weekend.

"Really, the cold weather is a blessing in disguise," said Indianapolis Sgt. Kevin Poe. "It's just been too cold for anybody to go anywhere. For the most part, people have decided to stay home and keep warm." Three people died in Indiana traffic accidents.

Those who tried to drive often found their cars would not start in the bitter cold. "So many of the cars don't start even with a jump because their gas lines are frozen or their batteries are frozen," said Chicago towing company operator June Daniels. "It's even been happening to guys in the business. ... It's been a mess."

Snow closed highways over the weekend for holiday travelers in New York, Illinois, Indiana and Iowa.

Animal Rights Vigilantes 'Rescue' Research Dogs TODAY

TORRANCE, Calif. (UPI) — A dozen dogs being used in cancer, heart and diabetes research were stolen by a clandestine animal rights group that insisted the Christmas Day theft was a mercy-inspired rescue of mistreated animals.

"There are more sophisticated ways for them to get that (research) information," Ingrid Newkirk of the Animal Liberation Front said Monday. "The question you have to ask is, 'Is it valid research?'"

"A lot of it is just publish or perish stuff. We are unaware of anything dynamic going on at (the UCLA Harbor Medical Center) in this area," Ms. Newkirk, whose group took 12 dogs involved in federally funded experiments from the medical center Sunday, said researchers who use animals are abusing and killing helpless beasts.

The ALF also said it took several brain-damaged laboratory rats from Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, where officials denied knowledge of the incident.

Ms. Newkirk said those who use animals are "just not qualified to do the kind of sophisticated research" that requires working without animals.

A spokesman for the Harbor Medical Center said the stolen animals had been well treated in the labora-

They said they want to end the suffering of billions of animals in institutions across the country.

ry and the experiments were yielding important information to ease the suffering of human cardiology, cancer and diabetes patients.

Dr. J. Michael Criley said "all the major breakthroughs" come from animal research and that the people who took the dogs were hurting the animals more than helping them. He said taking the dogs from the hospital was like taking a human patient out of a hospital recovery room.

Ms. Newkirk scoffed at the analogy. "If patients were kept in metal cages and only fed once a day and given heart stimulating drugs that speed up their heart rates every minute of the day, there might be an analogy," she said. "Those dogs committed no crimes and would be killed in that miserable little place."

In a statement Sunday night in Washington D.C., the animal rights activists said they want to "end the suffering of billions of animals in institutions across the country."

In Los Angeles, spokeswoman Holly Jensen said the group will take other actions "when the appropriate time comes" to aid the "millions still suffering."

"Animal liberation is truly human liberation," Ms. Jensen added. "When we respect the earth and all its inhabitants, we will shake free of many of the problems that now plague society."

The ALF gained attention last year when 700 supporters invaded the Huntington Research Center in England in an unsuccessful effort to free animals used in experiments.

"Tom was a construction foreman for two jobs and when he did not show up for work on Monday workers at each assumed he was at the other. But on Tuesday when he didn't come to work they became alarmed and called the sheriff's department," said Mrs. Endicott.

"When the deputies broke out the window of the one-story farmhouse to get in the gas rushed out and they broke other windows to clear the air inside before going in. They found little Jessie on the floor of his parents' bedroom and Kimberlee was across the end of the bed apparently trying to get to him. Tom apparently was trying to help Kimberlee as he was found across her legs, which were frozen to the bone. He had pulled up the blanket over his face and his legs were sticking out. They think this may have filtered the gas and saved his life. Also his head was near a window which may have been leaking in fresh air."

Their three dogs were found alive on the glassed-in back porch.

Mrs. Potter said she was notified of the tragic accident after her name was found in her son's wallet and she broke the bad news to the Endicotts, who went out to Colorado to make the necessary arrangements.

A funeral was held in Greeley, because they were active in their church there and had many friends.

"The doctors are amazed at Tom's progress," said Mrs. Endicott. "He was in a coma for several days and they thought if he came out of it there would be brain damage, but before we left he was talking quite well. He wanted to know about Kimberlee and Jessie and we had to tell him what happened. The doctors also expected to amputate his legs, but the color and feeling were coming back and they weren't sure whether or not it will be necessary."

Mrs. Endicott said her daughter, a 1972 Lyman graduate, did not attend college after graduation. "All she wanted was a home and family," she added.

"They worked hard in their garden to raise some of their food and she had canned all summer and the pantry was full. They were beginning to get on their feet," she said.

"You read about these things, but always think about them happening to someone else; you don't expect them to happen to you," she added.

Andropov Misses Another Key Soviet Affair

MOSCOW (UPI) — Ailing Soviet leader Yuri Andropov raised more questions about his health by missing a Communist Party Central Committee meeting, but the appointment of two allies to the ruling Politburo showed his hold on power.

Andropov, unseen in public for 131 days, had a speech read in his name at the key two-day meeting of the Central Committee that began Monday.

"I deeply regret that because of temporary causes I will not be able to attend the session," the 69-year-old president said without elaborating.

Although Soviet officials say Andropov has nothing more than a cold, unofficial sources have indicated that he is suffering from a serious kidney disorder and may have had surgery recently.

Andropov's absence from public view since Aug. 18 "probably means he is in pretty bad shape," an American diplomat said. The Soviet leader also missed the important annual military parade in Red Square Nov. 8.

Despite Andropov's failure to appear before the Central Committee, its election of Vitaly Vorotnikov, 57, to full voting membership in the Politburo, and Viktor Chebrikov, 60, head of the KGB spy agency, to non-voting Politburo status, showed he was still in charge.

Vorotnikov and Chebrikov are both proteges of the Soviet leader. The Politburo runs the country on a day-to-day basis in the name of the central committee.

Another Andropov man, the little-known Yevgeny Ligachev, 63, was given the important post of secretary of the Central Committee.

The 300-member committee also voted to elect Mikhail Solomentsev, 70, to voting status in the Politburo. He is not an Andropov protege but his elevation to the body has been seen as automatic since he became head of the party's disciplinary commission last June.

A West German diplomat said, "I am astonished that Solomentsev and Vorotnikov were promoted without Andropov being there."

Cold Kills 6 In Florida

By United Press International

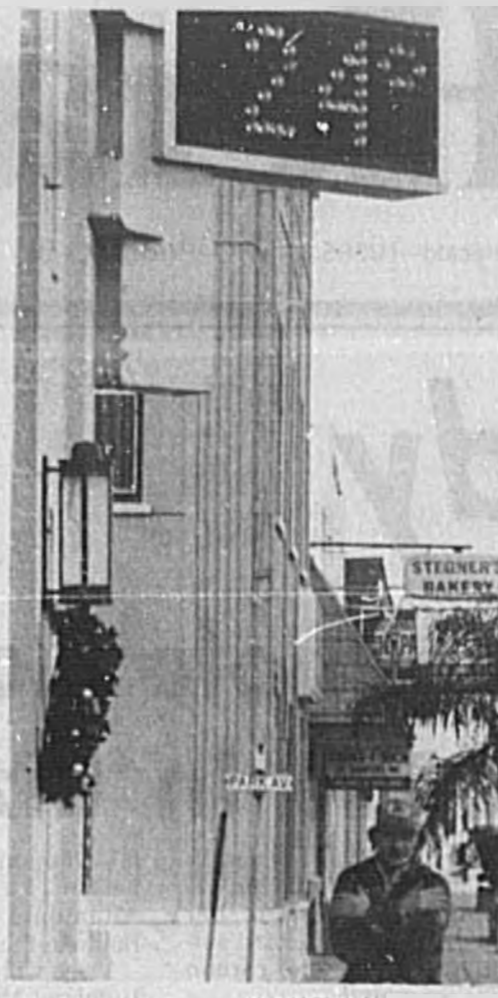

The bitter Christmas cold snap that killed at least six people in Florida and forced hundreds of thousands to go without electricity for brief periods let up today and forecasters promised temperatures in the 70s by Thursday.

Forecaster Ray Biedinger of the National Weather Service said temperatures around the state reached their lows around midnight and then a mild warming trend began.

The overnight low in Jacksonville was 24 degrees compared with 11 and 13 the previous two days and Orlando barely reached the freezing level with a reading of 31. Miami's low was 44 degrees — 11 degrees warmer than the low Monday morning.

"Late yesterday afternoon, the winds started blowing in from the ocean at about 1,000-3,000 feet from the east and northeast," Biedinger said. "It brought in warmer temperatures aloft and kept surface temperatures up. It was probably coldest at midnight and then maybe got a little warmer."

Dan Murphy, 23, in photo at left, came down from Pennsylvania to escape the cold, but from the sign and his shivers in downtown Sanford Monday indicate it followed him south.

Biedinger said high temperatures were expected to reach the 50s and 60s today and Wednesday and the 70s by Thursday.

The cold also caused millions of dollars in damage to the citrus crop Sunday and Monday but little further damage was reported today.

Growers began an all-out harvesting and processing effort to try to salvage as much of the freeze-damaged crop as possible.

The victims of the freeze included Miami men, Theodore Burrows, 61, and Charles Piersall, 53, were elderly who died of hypothermia.

Another man was found dead at 8 a.m. Monday on a downtown street next to his wheelchair and was counted among the victims of the cold snap. But medical examiners later determined he died of chronic alcoholism.

Two elderly men also died in Jacksonville of exposure, as did an unidentified 60-year-old man in Tampa.

Another weather-related death was that of Gussie Dunn, 79, who was killed in a Tampa house fire Sunday night that started when a gas heater malfunctioned, firefighters said.

Forecasters predicted another night of sub-freezing weather at least as far south as the central portion of the citrus belt in the Orlando area.

Utilities asked consumers to cut back on power use in the morning hours to prevent the record-high demand levels that caused power failures and brownouts early Monday.

Dave Woolverton of Florida Power & Light said the extra demand on power caused by the cold weather and the failure of a generator at Fort Myers, Fla., shortly after 8 a.m. Monday forced engineers to cut off about 200,000 customers for 20-minute periods between 8 a.m. and 10 p.m. Monday.

He said the biggest problem occurred when a frozen waterline shut down a generating plant near Bradenton. The plant was brought back on line within hours.

Florida Power Corp., which serves much of the state outside of FPL's territory, reported scattered brownouts and power failures in Pinellas and Hillsborough Counties because of the temperatures that dipped to 19 degrees.

Detroit? New York? No. It is downtown Sanford where the cars started slowly, people looked for driving gloves, and anti-freeze was king for the day as a northern chill threatened many a radiator during the holiday. This compact, probably iced for the first time in its Florida stay, made it out of the driveway if not with a few icicles to emphasize how cool the night was.

Locked Out Toddler Freezes To Death

GHENT, N.Y. (UPI) — Two-year-old Sunshine Perlmutter, toddling about in her pajamas, wandered out a door that locked behind her and froze to death in sub-zero temperatures, officials said.

Police believe the toddler wandered out of her home shortly after 1 a.m. Sunday, and the door locked behind her.

A trail of footprints in the snow showed the girl had walked to several locked windows and doors of her home in a futile effort to get back in, police said Monday.

The family had moved next door three days before the holiday, and the parents had stored their Christmas presents in their old house. Police found the girl's frozen body on the porch of the house where she used to live. The doors of the neighboring house, which was heated, also were locked, police said.

Investigator John Holt said the girl might have left the house because her mother went next door about 1 a.m. Christmas Day to get presents.

"The girl might have seen a light on at the other house and gone to be with her mother and then got locked out," Holt said. "We'll probably never know for sure."

"Everyone's walking around here (state police barracks) sullen. It was some Christmas," he said.

The temperature dipped to 10 degrees below zero during the night in Ghent, a rural town of 3,700 about 35 miles south of Albany.

Police took the body to Columbia Memorial Hospital in Hudson where a coroner called the death accidental.

Michelle Perlmutter said her daughter went to bed at about 9:30 p.m. Saturday. She checked on her daughter at 11:30 p.m. and found her asleep.

Mrs. Perlmutter discovered her daughter missing when she went to wake her at 8 a.m. Christmas morning and alerted police who found the girl frozen on the nearby porch.

The Perlmutters have three other children.

Lebanese Army Tightens Grip On Volatile Shiite Suburbs

By Daniela Iacono

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — The Lebanese army, backed by U.S.-made heavy M-48 tanks, tightened its grip today around Beirut's volatile southern suburbs where a truce halted the worst violence in the capital in four months.

State-run Beirut radio said at least 32 people were killed and 177 others wounded in three days of fighting between the Lebanese army and the suburb's Muslim Shiite militias over key territory before the truce went into effect late Monday.

A cease-fire committee meeting to strengthen the cease-fire, which survived the night without violations, was scheduled today but an anti-government boycott apparently delayed it.

The battles, the worst since a similar bout of Shiite-Lebanese army violence in August, died down after government troops consolidated their control over positions vacated by French peace-keeping forces on Christmas Eve.

It was the race for control of these vacated positions that triggered the fighting.

Witnesses reported dozens of U.S.-made M-48 tanks guarding the army's newly acquired positions and the stretch of highway between Beirut airport and the adjacent Shiite militia-controlled southern suburbs.

Fighting was reported today between Christian and Druze militiamen in the disputed Kharoub district, 19 miles south of Beirut, and Beirut radio said efforts were under way to check the violence and further consolidate the Beirut truce.

The rightist Voice of Lebanon radio station said a first attempt failed today when the committee's Druze and Shiite representatives boycotted the session. It said Lebanese army and rightist Christian militia members arrived at the designated site "but the other members did not show up."

The site is a deserted bank in a no-man's land between Beirut's southern Shiite suburbs and their adjacent Christian neighborhoods.

Group Demands Probe Into GM Cars' Defects

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A consumer group says a federal agency is doing nothing about alleged defects in the accelerators of as many as 19 million General Motors cars that can cause fatal accidents.

In a letter to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration to be delivered today, the Center for Auto Safety demands an immediate, public investigation of alleged acceleration problems in 1977-1982 middle- and full-size GM cars with automatic transmissions.

"For over five years the NHTSA has been sitting on a defect that may be in nearly 19 million General Motors cars equipped with automatic transmissions," said Dan Howell of the private consumer watchdog group.

Bob Boaz, a spokesman for the government agency, said there would be no comment until the letter was received and reviewed.

Clifford Merriatt, a GM spokesman in Detroit, said the automaker "does not recognize the acceleration problem as a defect. We believe it is mostly driver error."

NATION IN BRIEF

Reagan Takes The Blame In Bombing Of Marines

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan today took full blame for the security lapse that allowed the terrorist bombing of the Marine barracks in Beirut and said the U.S. military commanders in Lebanon should not be punished.

Reagan made the comments after reviewing a 166-page report, prepared by a special commission headed by retired Adm. Robert Long. Officials said the report on the Oct. 23 suicide attack that killed 241 U.S. servicemen will be made public Wednesday.

The president also reaffirmed his intention to keep the Marines in Lebanon "while there is hope for peace" in that beleaguered country.

"I soberly considered the commission's word about accountability and responsibility of the chain of command," the president said.

"I do not believe ... the local commanders on the ground — men who have already suffered enough — should be punished," Reagan said. "If there is to be blame it properly rests here in this office and with this president. And I accept the responsibility for the bad as well as the good."

Goodman Release Push

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Reagan administration insists it is pressing for the release of Navy Lt. Robert Goodman from his Syrian captors and does not appear to welcome presidential candidate Jesse Jackson's intervention in the case.

Jackson, one of eight major Democratic candidates, plans to leave for Syria Wednesday to discuss the fate of Goodman, a bombardier-navigator who was shot down Dec. 4 during a raid over Syrian-held territory in Lebanon. Syrian captors say Goodman, 27, of Virginia Beach, Va., is a prisoner of war.

Jackson said Monday night the White House "is embarrassed not because of anything I have said," but because he has shown the administration is not doing all it can to free Goodman.

Time Men Of The Year

NEW YORK (UPI) — President Reagan and Soviet leader Yuri Andropov have been named Time's Men of the Year — the first occasion two antagonists have shared the magazine's annual award.

The award, announced Monday, goes annually to the "newsmaker who, for better or worse, has dominated the events of the preceding 12 months."

Time said the deterioration of American-Soviet relations overshadowed all other stories in 1983, and cited the deployment of U.S. missiles in Europe, the downing of a Korean Air Lines jet by the Soviets and increasing tension in the Middle East as examples.

Time said the men are a study in contrasts, with Reagan, the former movie actor, "a genial performer before audiences of one sort or another," and Andropov, the former head of the Soviet secret police, "a fearless roller in the political establishment."

Pope John Paul II To Visit Agca In Prison

ROME (UPI) — Pope John Paul II saw his face-to-face jailhouse meeting today with his would-be Turkish assassin as part of a symbolic visit to prisons all over the world, the Vatican said.

The pope is scheduled to meet privately with Mehmet Ali Agca in a small room at Rome's top-security Rebibbia jail and to lead a service of prayers and Bible readings in the prison chapel for 700 inmates authorities consider less dangerous.

During a planning session with prison chaplains last week, John Paul said his speech at Rebibbia would not be directed just to those in the audience but to prisoners throughout the world.

200 Rebels Killed

United Press International
Salvadoran troops killed about 200 leftist guerrillas in the northeastern part of the country in a week of intense fighting for the rebel-controlled zone, civilian and military sources said.

Some 2,000 Salvadoran troops, in a continuing offensive in northeastern Morazan province, have recaptured nine towns from the rebels and taken over two rebel training camps, army sources said Monday.

The army said intelligence and civilian reports showed 200 rebels had been killed during the past week of fighting, although military officials do not make a distinction between civilians who sympathize with the guerrilla movement and armed combatants.

Soviets, Rebels Stalemate

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Soviet soldiers took control of the Afghan capital of Kabul four years ago today, but Moslem rebels are holding out against the 105,000 troops despite political divisions and lack of supplies.

One Western diplomatic report even goes as far as saying the guerrillas have made "moderate gains" against the Soviet invaders, although, it adds, the overall conflict remains a military stalemate.

"The fourth anniversary of the invasion of Afghanistan should make Russians realize that Soviet gunships and napalm bombs or the deadliest weapons including poisonous gases cannot subdue the Afghans," said one rebel leader, Burhanuddin Rabbani, whose headquarters are in the Pakistani frontier town of Peshawar.

Jury Selection Set In Burglary, Assault Trial

Jury Selection was expected to be completed this morning for the trial of a Sanford man charged with burglary and sexual battery.

Rodney Lewis Woods, 26, of 25 Castle Brewer Court, has been charged with the July 16 burglary and sexual battery of a resident in the home that was burglarized.

According to a police report, the woman awoke at 3:45 a.m. to find herself under assault. Police said the attacker entered the woman's apartment by removing a screen from a window.

Woods was arrested 11:20 a.m. July 18 after questioning. Prior to trial, Woods was being held in the Seminole County jail in lieu of $8,000 bond.

The trial, which starts today, will be before Seminole Circuit Court Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr.

reportedly hit another car in a parking lot. As witnesses of that accident followed the man his car allegedly ran a stop sign and struck another car, which had the right of way on Sandalwood Drive, at Hamlin Avenue, Fern Park.

The driver of the second car, who was not named in a Seminole County sheriff's report, received cuts on the chin and was treated and released from Florida Hospital-Altamonte. The woman reported to investigators that the driver of the car that hit her's stopped briefly and appeared to be hiding his face before he sped away from the scene.

Witnesses kept track of the suspect and Robert T. Schwing, 19, of 2216 Sandalwood Drive, was arrested at his home at 7:28 p.m. He is scheduled to appear in court on Jan. 13.

No More Pyramids For Presidents...

No wonder Stanford University in California is reluctant to permit the building of a Ronald Reagan presidential library on campus without full control over its operation.

As academic institutions, presidential libraries rank only a step ahead of such centers of scholarship as the Professional Football Hall of Fame at Canton, Ohio, and the Hollywood Wax Museum. They are primarily tourist attractions.

The number of researchers using the libraries to peruse presidential documents is only a fraction of 1 percent of the number of tourists visiting the libraries to see the sights.

The governors of Harvard University wisely declined the offer of the Kennedy family to locate the John F. Kennedy library on the Cambridge campus not far from the Harvard Yard. Instead, the Kennedy library has become one of Boston's leading tourist attractions at a University of Massachusetts campus site on Dorchester Bay.

Duke University, the University of Southern California and Whittier College, Richard M. Nixon's alma mater, were considered in locating the Nixon library, but the site of his Western White House in San Clemente was finally chosen. The Nixon library did achieve an academic connection. It will be associated with a new campus of Chapman College.

The University of Michigan accepted a Gerald R. Ford Library, but not the Gerald R. Ford Museum, which is sited in his hometown of Grand Rapids, Mich.

The 30 members of the Stanford board of trustees recently voted unanimously to accept the Reagan archives and museum on a 5- to 10-acre site on the university's 8,000-acre campus, but not a Reagan Center for Public Affairs administered by the Hoover Institution on War, Revolution and Peace. The White House has insisted that the library and the Reagan political institute be accepted as a package.

There is a John F. Kennedy public affairs study center on the Harvard campus, but it's wholly under the university's own administration. The Hoover Institution is a conservative research center which is independent of Stanford's academic control.

Getting the presidential papers used to be a bigger coup than it is now. After the Watergate scandal, the federal government asserted its claim to ownership of most of a president's papers, prepared by government employees at government expense, and no longer will presidents cart all of their papers off when they leave the White House, as every president since George Washington had done.

More important to most visitors than the documents are the personal mementos, the gifts from foreign governments, and all the other relics and paraphernalia of one man's presidency.

For the purposes of scholarship, it would have been better to house all the presidential papers in the Library of Congress, so the documents of all presidents would be available for study in Washington, D.C.

When Congress began the program of tax support for operating presidential libraries, in 1955, it was primarily to help run the Harry Truman library in Independence, Mo. The memorabilia of Herbert Hoover and Franklin D. Roosevelt had been housed in West Branch, Iowa, and Hyde Park, N.Y., in privately endowed museums which were self-supporting at that time. The first appropriation was $63,745, but since then seven presidential libraries have come on the receiving line for tax money, and the cost has run up to $14 million a year.

It's time to call a halt. Every Pharaoh wanted his pyramid, but after the Nixon, Carter and Reagan libraries are built, there will be 10, and that's enough. All future presidents, their families and friends should build and operate their own library-museums with private funds.

BERRY'S WORLD

AROUND THE CLOCK

By Diane Petryk

Microwave ovens, whatever their other virtues, work miracles with donuts. As a donut freak, I often let my eyes dominate common sense and buy too many at once. Two days later, when I'm ready to think about donuts again, they're shriveled and stale. In the years B.M. (before microwaves) they got thrown out.

But while a 10-second zap in a microwave can metamorphose a dried out French cruller back to its fresh-baked form, I won't have a microwave in the house. I always feel like making a mad dash for a lead-lined room when I turn one of the darn things on.

Now the federal Consumer Information Center is telling me, in a news release that crossed my desk, not to worry. They explain it all in a booklet entitled Microwave Oven Radiation. The title does little to inspire confidence, but it's free.

It says the Food and Drug Administration set safety standards for all microwave ovens in 1971. The standards limit the amount of microwave leakage over the lifetime of an oven to a level "far below that which would harm anyone."

Okay, but what of ovens purchased before 1971, or those that may malfunction after having been tested?

The booklet notes that you should take precautions if any part of the oven becomes defective — hinges, latch, door seal. It says contact the manufacturer, your state health department or nearest FDA office if you suspect something's wrong. They will test the oven or tell you where to go for testing.

Don't test it yourself, they say, because it has been found that many of the home testing devices sold are unreliable or inaccurate.

Microwaves are not very mysterious or complicated, they say. They are just electromagnetic energy. The energy particles travel through the air in waves just like radio waves. These waves are reflected by metal but pass through glass, paper and ceramic cookware. Inside the oven they are produced by a "magnetron." The waves bounce off the interior walls until they are absorbed by the food. Only the outer layers of the food actually absorb the microwaves and become heated. The inner layers are cooked by conduction of heat from the hot outer layers.

For this reason, the FDA says, special steps are needed when cooking thick foods, such as roasts. To ensure more even cooking of a roast, turn the meat a couple times while cooking, then let it sit covered with foil for a few minutes after removing it from the oven.

The FDA has always warned consumers about undercooked pork and it's particularly important to make sure, when using a microwave, that pork roasts reach a uniform internal temperature of 170°F. to rule out the dangers of trichinosis.

"If you follow the manufacturer's instructions ... you should be able to put away your worries and have extra time to sit down for a relaxing dinner," the agency says.

For more information, Microwave Oven Radiation can be obtained by writing to The Consumer Information Center, Dept. 594L, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

ROBERT WAGMAN Funds For Reagan Cleared

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Now that a federal court has cleared the way, conservative political action committees can spend millions of dollars on President Reagan's re-election.

Under federal election law, a person or group is limited to donating $1,000 directly to a candidate, but can make an unlimited amount of "independent expenditures" on behalf of that candidate. Independent expenditures don't involve consultation with the candidate or his campaign committee.

In 1980, the National Conservative Political Action Committee spent millions on "negative" campaigns against liberal incumbents in Congress, plus another few million for Reagan's election. NCPAC has announced that it will run far fewer anti-campaigns in the coming elections, but plans to spend as much as $5 million to re-elect Reagan.

Both the Democratic National Committee and the Federal Election Commission filed suit in federal court in Philadelphia, asking the court to rule that independent expenditures must be covered by the $1,000 limit.

However, the court refused, ruling that independent expenditures are protected by the First Amendment's free-speech guarantee. The DNC says it will appeal.

THE MEMBERS OF the Reagan-Bush brain trust are back in Washington after a series of meetings in California, where they agreed on the general outline for the president's re-election campaign.

The key factor, they agreed, is to make sure that Reagan stays in the headlines and on the nightly news during the Democratic primary season, when the Democrats will dominate the news. More important, Reagan must be made to look "presidential" while Walter Mondale and company race around the country looking "political."

The centerpiece of this effort will be Reagan's April trip to China. Top aides have been shuttling back and forth to China for months and plan to turn the trip into a television extravaganza. According to these plans, Reagan won't just visit Peking, but will spend a great deal of time doing such things as taking a cruise down the Yangtze River and visiting some of China's most remote and exotic places — places no Western leader has ever visited — which would guarantee major nightly news coverage.

This is why the White House went into a total panic when, after Congress passed a resolution of support for Taiwan, the Chinese said they might cancel the visit. Reagan sent word that he had opposed the resolution, then publicly disavowed it.

This, of course, is the same Ronald Reagan who, for the last 20 years, has been one of Taiwan's major U.S. supporters; his 1980 campaign platform even included re-establishing official relations with Taiwan.

JACK ANDERSON

Chemical Industry Drew Safety Policy

WASHINGTON — The chemical industry secretly drafted American foreign policy on safety requirements for chemicals sold in the Western world.

This startling conspiracy is disclosed in State Department and Environmental Protection Agency documents, which were intended for official eyes only. But my associate Jock Hatfield has seen some of the suppressed evidence.

The evidence has also been laid before the House science and technology subcommittee whose chairman, Rep. James Scheuer, D-N.Y., had planned to hold hearings last October. But he wasn't able to corral crucial State Department and industry witnesses.

They are understandably reluctant to answer the embarrassing questions they know Scheuer is waiting to ask. But he'll try again to hold hearings early next year.

Insiders tell me, meanwhile, that the chemical industry is "scared to death"

JEFFREY HART Political Demonstrations

During the past month, in England and Germany especially, but also throughout non-communist Europe, we have seen large demonstrations against our missile deployment.

As in the case of human chains stretching from one symbolic location to another, these protests are often very well organized, and, indeed, it is no mean feat to organize relatively peaceful demonstrations by hundreds of thousands of people, complete with placards, banners, and sometimes various expressive costumes.

Yet the fact of the matter is that such demonstrations tell us very little about the actual state of opinion in Europe, or, for that matter, in this country.

If the Thatcher government in London, or the Kohl government in Bonn tried to organize counter demonstrations in support of their policies, the turn-out would undoubtedly be dismal.

Yet both governments were elected by healthy margins over left-wing opposition, and polls indicate that their policies with regard to the missile deployment enjoy solid public support.

Attempts to organize conservative or centrist demonstration hardly ever amount to much unless the danger to the state is palpable, as when Charles De Gaulle called all of Paris into the streets to demonstrate on his behalf against a student-led insurrection.

Under all but the most extreme circumstances, the average middle-of-the-road or conservative citizen feels that there are better uses for time than marching around in the midst of a mob, and would feel ridiculous dressing up in a symbolic costume or even carrying a placard: "Hands Off Afghanistan."

The spectacular turnouts achieved by leftist demonstrations in Europe, and indeed by the anti-nuclear demonstration in New York last spring are not just a matter of superior organization, although the organizing skills involved are formidable.

The success has much to do with the characteristic psychology of the left. When Brezhnev visited Bonn in 1981, a serious effort was made to organize a protest demonstration against the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan. Even though public opinion polls showed that more West Germans disapproved of the invasion than disapproved of the missile deployment, the Afghanistan turnout was modest compared with the hundreds of thousands who marched during the same year to protest the missiles.

I can think of a few exceptions, such as the 1956 protest against the Soviet invasion of Hungary. I myself attended such a rally in a packed Madison Square Garden in New York, and there were similar demonstrations elsewhere, here and abroad. But, by and large, marches and demonstrations are tools of the left, and we are just going to have to live with that fact.

It also seems to me that the "demonstration mentality" tells us something important about the left, the mass demonstration being a clue to the way the left would organize society if it came to power.

The left characteristically governs autocratically, from the top down, and puts up with no resistance to its commands. But from time to time, in Red Square or Havana or Peking, it pushes a button and brings hundreds of thousands of people into the street as a sign of popular support for the regime. These masses of people are essentially passive, whether they stand and watch a parade of Soviet missile might or listen to a three-hour harangue by Fidel.

The Soviets, indeed, have refined the art of the demonstration. At command, demonstrators in Moscow assemble before foreign embassies — never before Soviet official buildings as in the anti-American "peace" demonstrations that took place recently in conjunction with the demonstrations in the West. The Soviet demonstrators, however, differ from the Western ones. They display no emotion or political passion whatever. Perhaps political feeling even when directed against the United States is considered a risky matter by the Soviet authorities, as suggesting too much individuality and commitment. Robots and zombies are much to be preferred.

The demonstrations, however, got nowhere and proved nothing. The Soviets and their leftist allies got the placards and marches, and we got the Pershing and cruise missiles. Not a bad trade.

ROBERT WALTERS The Big Stain In Big D

WASHINGTON (NEA) — In the midst of primping and preening for a big date, the city of Dallas suddenly has discovered a messy stain on its best party outfit.

The big date is the Republican National Convention, which will be held in Dallas next summer. While any city would be self-conscious about hosting the event, it has special significance for Dallas.

For more than two decades, that city has been inordinately defensive about its involuntary role as the scene of President Kennedy's assassination.

The ignominy and shame which were the bitter residue of that event left Dallas "a closed community to outsiders, one intensely aware of its own image and resentful of much of the outside world," notes one insightful observer.

Now, however, the presidential nominating convention, which inevitably focuses national attention on its host city, has become a form of symbolic redemption for Dallas.

The city already has formed a Dallas Welcoming Committee for the GOP convention. It expects to raise almost $4 million and enlist the services of 20,000 volunteers to present itself in the best possible light to the thousands who will attend the convention and the millions who will view it on television.

The host committee has published a glossy, 67-page "Profile and Fact Book" which candidly acknowledges that "Dallas has had its share of problems and tragedies," but portrays the city today as proud, prosperous and progressive.

There's considerable justification for that assessment, but, just when the city was in the midst of rehabilitating its image, that messy stain appeared — in the form of a previously obscure criminal trial which now is well on its way to becoming a national cause celebre.

It's the case of Lenell Geter, a young engineer sentenced to life imprisonment after being successfully prosecuted by the office of Dallas County District Attorney Henry Wade on charges of robbing a fast-food outlet.

The Dallas newspapers and television stations — as well as every national news magazine, major newspaper and television network — all have carefully examined the case and concluded that there are serious questions about the quality of justice dispensed to Geter.

Indeed, the suggestion repeatedly has been made that Geter, who is black, was a victim of racism which manifested itself in the flimsy, circumstantial and manufactured evidence used against him.

Moreover, what is especially striking about the post-trial controversy is the pettiness, arrogance and intransigence of Dallas County law enforcement and criminal justice officials who apparently could not initially bring themselves to acknowledge that they might have wrongfully arrested, prosecuted and incarcerated Geter.

Blanchard now says he was confused when he wrote the memo and insists that the U.S. position at the Paris conference did not originate with the chemical industry. But another memo, written to EPA's then international activities director, Richard Funkhouser, admits that the government's position was rewritten from the industry's "suggested language," while "taking account of the above CMA suggestions."

Don King, director of the State Department's office of environmental affairs, has corroborated the two embarrassing memos. In fact, he said that the chemical industry not only drafted the policy proposals, but had veto power over the final text. He said industry representatives reviewed the State Department's final draft at a luncheon meeting and later gave it their seal of approval, "but if they had said no, it would have been no."

Grayson, Mull Top Offense

Two juniors — Lake Mary's Donald Grayson and Lake Brantley's Curt Mull — were voted Co-Offensive Players of the Year with 78 of a possible 80 votes.

Grayson, a wide receiver, was also called on to play some tight end when the Rams wanted to grind out the yardage. The 6-1, 200-pound all-around athlete led the county in receiving and also grabbed five touchdown passes as the Rams posted a 6-4 record.

Mull, a gigantic 6-5, 276-pound center, was an integral part of the Patriots' offensive line which dominated the line of scrimmage most of the year and allowed the Big Blue to post an 8-3 record.

James Named Top Defender

Lake Brantley senior Pat James earned the Defensive Player of the Year award by capturing 78 of a possible 80 votes.

During the Patriots' stellar 8-3 season, there wasn't too much this talented senior didn't do. At 6-4 and 215 pounds, James was a fierce hitter from his defensive end position and also a power blocker at tight end. James also had several key receptions during the season.

Lake Brantley coach David Tullis also singled out his talented senior as one of the Patriot leaders. Tullis said James' maturity and guidance went along way toward influencing his teammates in a positive manner.

Lake Brantley Lands 10 Selections

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

Lake Brantley High School turned its football program around in 1983 as a group of talented and experienced players led the Patriots to an impressive 8-3 record after a lackluster 2-8 record in 1982. That talent is well represented on the Evening Herald's 1983 All-County team.

Of the 26 players (offense, defense, kicking specialists) on the First Team, 10 are from coach David Tullis' Lake Brantley squad. Tullis, his coaching staff, and players developed a positive attitude and a team unity during spring practice of '82 which carried over to an impressive '83 campaign.

The closest school to Lake Brantley in number on selections on the First Team is Lake Howell with five. Seminole is next in line with four followed by Lake Mary with three and Oviedo and Lyman with two each.

The players with the most votes are the Evening Herald's Players Of The Year. On offense, Lake Mary wide receiver Donald Grayson and Lake Brantley center Curt Mull received 78 points each out of a possible 80 and are the co-Offensive Players Of The Year. Lake Brantley defensive end Pat James also received 78 out of a possible 80 points to become the Defensive Player Of The Year.

Here is a look at the 1983 All-County team:

OFFENSE

Quarterback — Lake Howell's Darin Slack moved into the starting role in 1983 after sharing the position with Troy Quackenbush in '82. The strong-armed senior stepped right in and established himself as an offensive team leader as he passed for two touchdowns and ran for one in the Silver Hawks season opener against Bishop Moore. Slack led Seminole County in passing in 1983, completing 64 of 150 passes for 1,202 yards and 11 touchdowns.

Running backs — The top vote-getter among running backs was also the leading ground gainer for the season, Lake Mary junior Charlie Lucarelli. Lucarelli came on strong in the end with a 150-yard performance to edge out Lake Howell senior Jay Robey by nine yards for the county rushing title. Lucarelli picked up 861 yards on 142 carries, an average of 6.0 yards per carry.

Robey was next in number of votes after Lucarelli. The Silver Hawk senior was well short of his yardage of 1982, over 1,000, but the Silver Hawks opposition was much tougher too. Robey fell short of the rushing title after Lake Howell closed the season against Apopka and Winter Park, two district champions. Robey, a First Team selection a year ago, ended up with 852 yards rushing on 152 carries, a 5.6 yards per carry average.

The third running back selected to the First Team is Lake Brantley's Greg Shatto. A transfer from Lake Mary, Shatto bolstered a strong Patriot backfield that included Allen Armstrong and Steve Emmons. All three gained more than 450 yards in 1983. Shatto was the Patriots' leading rusher and was fifth in the county.

Wide receivers — Lake Mary junior Donald Grayson was perhaps the most exciting offensive player of the 1983 season. He made some of the most spectacular catches and also caught them when they counted as he hauled in five touchdown passes, the most by a county receiver. Grayson wound up the season with 29 receptions for 480 yards, a 16.5 yards per catch average.

Oviedo's Howard Lingard got off to an exceptional start in '83 and ended up second in receptions behind Grayson. The Lions' senior standout, who also played defense in the latter part of the season, grabbed 23 passes for 427 yards, a 18.5 average, and scored one touchdown.

Tight end — Just the presence of William Wynn gave the Sanford Seminoles a lift. Wynn missed his junior season with an injury and the Tribe suffered through a 0-10 season. This year, Wynn was a two-way performer as Seminole compiled a 4-6 record. He was among the top 20 in the county in both pass receiving and tackles.

Guards — While Wynn helped bolster the Seminoles at tight end, offensive guard David Linton was the Tribe's best lineman and one of the best in the Five Star Conference as he was selected to the First Team. Linton, a senior, was the top vote-getter among the guards with 47.

Next in line after Linton was Lake Howell senior Jim Royal. Royal was counted on to be the leader on the line for the Hawks' after the graduation of standouts Dan Rae and Bill Norton and he turned in an outstanding season.

Tackles — Three Lake Brantley running backs gained more than 450 yards this season, and they couldn't have done it without the outstanding blocking ability of tackles Brian Hamman and Bill Neville. Hamman, a senior, and Neville, a junior, were the guiding forces in Brantley's super season which included a berth in the Elks Bowl.

Center — While Hamman and Neville got the job done after the ball was snapped, it was junior center Curt Mull who set the offense in motion. Mull anchored what was the best offensive line in Seminole County and he was the top vote-getting offensive player along with Lake Mary's Grayson.

Kicker — Lake Brantley's Chuck Stallings was the best all-around kicking specialist in the county in 1983. He did both the kicking and punting chores and did them well. Stallings hit a good percentage of field goals and extra points and he also kicked off well as his kick offs weren't returned on numerous occasions.

DEFENSE

Ends — Lake Brantley senior Pat James was an integral part of the best defense in the county. He was the top vote-getting defender and was the top vote-getting defensive end by 36 points. James ended the season with 71 tackles, 46 solo and 25 assists and he also had three quarterback sacks.

Junior defensive end Fred Brinson was Sanford Seminole's second-leading tackler and he was second in the county in quarterback sacks. Brinson revitalized a the "Swiss Cheese" defense of the 1982 season. He finished with 81 tackles, 46 solo and 35 assists, and came up with five sacks while playing 9 of 10 games.

Tackles — For the second year in a row, Lake Brantley's Dean Shirley has made the All-County team, and he still has another year to go. With most of the Patriots' defense composed of seniors, Shirley will be the leader next season after having an outstanding junior year.

Lyman's top defensive lineman in 1983 was senior Tyrone Simpson. Simpson was the Greyhounds' third-leading tackler with 74, 34 solo and 40 assists, and he also chipped in four quarterback sacks.

Nose guard — Oviedo's defense was as inexperienced as any team around. The nucleus of the Lions' defense and the most experienced member was senior nose guard Kevin Yentz. Yentz was sixth in the county in tackles in 1983 with 94, 63 solo and 31 assists.

Linebackers — Lake Brantley's Donnie O'Brian repeats as First Team linebacker and was the top vote-getter at the position in 1983. O'Brian was the captain of the defense and was a big-play man for the Patriots. He was fourth in the county in tackles with 95, 64 solo and 31 assists.

Seminole did the right thing when it moved Ed Rinkavage to linebacker. Rinkavage had an exceptional senior season and he was the one that got the defense fired up when the going got tough. Rinkavage, a First Team Five Star Conference selection, was third in the county in tackles with 106, 71 solo and 35 assists.

Lake Mary's defensive leader the past two seasons has been linebacker Bill Caughell. After helping the Rams to a 6-4 record in their 4A Five Star Conference debut, Caughell will be back next season to help the Rams shoot for the conference title. In 1983, the Lake Mary junior led the county in tackles with 118, 82 solo and 36 assists.

Defensive backs — Lake Howell senior Bill Lang was as versatile a player as any in Seminole County in 1983. He ran back kicks and punts and even got in some time at running back. But, his main position was defensive back where he was selected to the All-County First Team for the second straight season. Lang was second on the team in tackles with 83, 56 solo and 27 assists.

Another versatile player in Seminole County in '83 was Lyman's Greg Pilot. Pilot guided the Lyman offense at quarterback and anchored the defense at his secondary position. The Greyhounds' senior standout ended the season with 65 tackles, 30 solo and 35 assists. Lang received one more vote than Pilot.

Lake Brantley's defensive secondary was led by junior Scott Salmon. Salmon led the team in interceptions with six, including some key thefts with games on the line. Salmon will team up with Shirley to lead the Patriots' defense next season.

The fourth All-County defensive back was playing that position full time for the first time in 1983. Lake Howell's Troy Quackenbush played quarterback as a junior in 1982, but, when Darin Slack won the job in '83, Quackenbush moved to the secondary where he had an exceptional season. The Silver Hawks senior was third on the team in tackles with 67, 40 solo and 27 assists.

Punter — Punting was not one of the better aspects of Seminole County football in 1983, but Lake Brantley's Chuck Stallings was the most consistent of them. Stallings, a senior, was selected First Team punter for the second straight season.

Griggley Whirls, Twirls Tornadoes Past Sanford

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

OCALA — If ever a player lived up to his team's nickname, it's Terry Griggley of the Clearwater Tornadoes.

The senior point guard whirled and twirled Sanford's Fighting Seminole guards dizzy Monday afternoon while leading Clearwater to an easy 62-49 victory in the opening round of the Kingdom of the Sun Holiday Classic.

Griggley, who will probably play football at Florida State or Alabama, scored 12 points, handed out four assists, grabbed five rebounds and snared three errant passes to befuddle the struggling Seminoles. He also zipped through Seminole's press as if it was nonexistent.

It was the second straight loss for Sanford, which dropped its record to 6-3. The 'Noles faced the loser of today's Stuart Martin County-Tampa Catholic game Wednesday at 10:30 a.m. Clearwater, 6-3, plays the winner of the aforementioned matchup at 9:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Seminole, as has been the pattern whether it wins or loses, once again shot poorly from the field. In the first half, the 'Noles hit just 7 of 26 shots for 26 percent. The second half wasn't much better as they converted 11 of 27 to finish with a dismal 18 of 53 for 33 percent.

"We're puzzling to me," said coach Chris Marlette. "Kenny Gordon didn't score and James Rouse only had four points. And, we got outrebounded (35-22) for the first time this year."

Seminole opened the game in a zone defense, which Clearwater ripped to shreds with some pinpoint passing by Griggley as the Tornadoes took a quick 8-2 lead.

The 'Noles went man-to-man near the end of the quarter and jumped back into the ballgame as Bruce Franklin fired in a jumper with 33 seconds left and James Rouse bombed away with three seconds to go to trim the lead to 14-10.

Senior Willie Mitchell, who was blanked in quarter one, muscled home a three-point play to pull Seminole within 18-15 early in the second quarter. Sanford, though, went cold for the next two minutes while Griggley fed Gary Mink twice for baskets, fished a three-point play on his own, then stripped the ball from Franklin and tallied a layup for a 27-15 advantage.

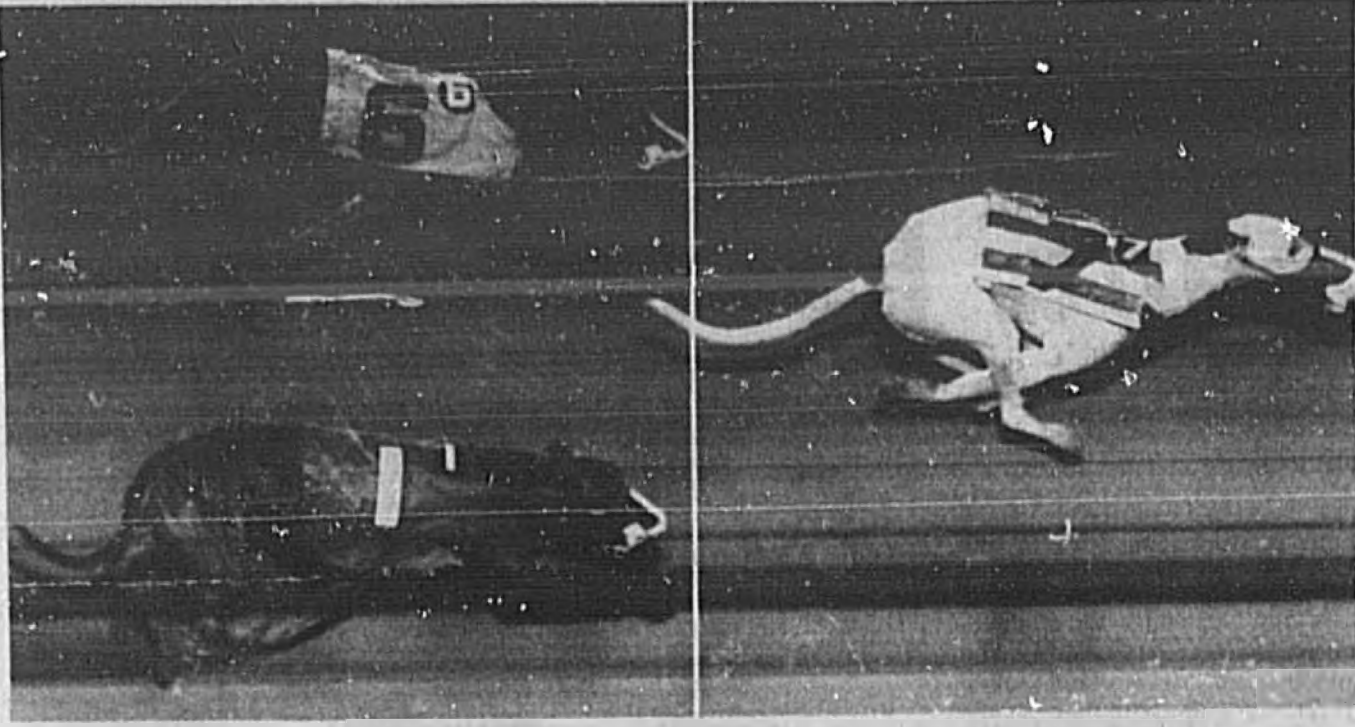

Mitchell, who led both teams with 21 points, tried to refurbish the Sanford attack in the closing two minutes. The 6-3 forward hit a long jumper and then two free throws to pull the 'Noles within 32-23 with 42 seconds to play.

In the closing 30 seconds, however, Mitchell threw up a brick and an airball which could have pulled the Seminoles closer. In the last three seconds, Sanford loused up a 3-on-1 break which could have cut the deficit to seven.

"We're just not playing with any intensity," said Marlette.

The intensity was lacking in the second half, too, as Clearwater pushed its lead to 11 on buckets by Paul Wiczorek before Mitchell went on another rampage with another three-point play, and two field goals to pull the 'Noles within 39-36 with 2:50 to play in the quarter.

"That Mitchell just scores anytime he wants to," said Clearwater coach Jack Wilson. "When they get it into him, you might well just sit down and watch him score and not foul him."

'Cold-Nose' Runnerup

The Sanford-Orlando Kennel Club had a "cold-nose" runnerup in the seventh race during Monday's opening night. Dinky Dog, owned by Hughes Kennels, just did nip Manatee Zoom for second place. More Regal, a product of the Danny Williams Kennel, paid $13 to win. Despite the cold temperatures, the SOKC crowd of 5,959 bet a record handle of $518,317. The old mark was $512,000 set on closing night last year. Fair Lassie, owned by the new Paulk-Delepine Kennel, won the 49th Inaugural. She was a 12-1 shot. The Pick 6 jackpot had one winner, which took home $3,000 for selecting all six races correctly.

Rams Strike Down Decaying Cowboys

IRVING, Texas (UPI) — Only time will bring the answers, but as the dark and chill combined to envelop Texas Stadium Monday night, the people who made up the smallest crowd in the history of the structure had to wonder if they were witness to the beginning of one era and the conclusion of another.

On an afternoon made for staying indoors by the fire, the Los Angeles Rams earned themselves a date with the team that stands in the way of any club possessing thoughts of the Super Bowl.

The Dallas Cowboys, meanwhile, fell to their lowest point since 1974 — the last year the team failed to make the NFL playoffs. And in the orgy of self-doubt that will follow, the off-season question will become: are the Cowboys capable of making the playoffs in 1984?

Using the combination of an opportunistic defense, the big-play threat of rookie star Eric Dickerson and the three touchdown strikes of quarterback Vince Ferragamo, the Rams downed the Cowboys Monday in the NFC wild card game, 24-17. Los Angeles claimed four turnovers in the second half, a turn of events that not only decided the contest but symbolized the Cowboys' recent collapse.

Los Angeles will face the defending Super Bowl champion Washington Redskins next Sunday in RFK Stadium, with the winner then moving on to the NFC title game.

"We can't call this our biggest win," said rookie Los Angeles coach John Robinson. "Let's wait until the season is over. We may have something left in us. But it was a great win for us."

"Our goal was to play every single play of this game and not let the ups and downs of the game get to us. And that's what we did."

For about two and a half quarters, the game was a tense struggle that had a chance to go either way. But the moment a punt by Los Angeles' John Mikko ricocheted off the hands of Dallas' Gary Allen into those of the Rams' Mike Wilcher, the contest headed steadily Los Angeles' way.

The Rams seized on that turnover, which came at the Dallas 16-yard line, to score on a 16-yard throw from Vince Ferragamo to Preston Dennard. That touchdown gave Los Angeles a 14-10 lead with 7:23 to go in the third quarter.

The next two times the Cowboys had the ball they turned it over and Los Angeles jumped on those miscues to score 10 more points and wrap up the game.

An interception by linebacker Jim Collins at midfield brought about an 8-yard scoring throw from Ferragamo to George Farmer on the opening play of the fourth quarter and a crushing 94-yard interception return by LeRoy Irvin set up a 20-yard field goal by Mike Lansford with 9:07 left in the game.

The only Los Angeles score not resulting from a turnover came on the Rams' opening possession of the game when they drove 85 yards and produced a TD on Ferragamo's 18-yard throw to David Hill.

Dallas overcame that early deficit with a 14-yard scoring throw from Danny White to Tony Hill with 17 seconds left in the first half and a 41-yard field goal by Rafael Septien.

Wait Ends For Merthie, Seminoles Covet Crown

Sanford Seminole girls basketball coach Ron Merthie's last words after winning third place in the UCF Sun Roast Tournament in November were, "I can't wait until the Lady Hawk."

During Merthie's wait the Lady Seminoles ran off seven straight wins, three of them against teams that are in the Lady Hawk which starts today at 2 p.m. at Lake Howell High School.

The Lady Seminoles, along with Five Star Conference foes Lake Howell and Lake Mary, are looking to end the Metro Conference's domination of the Lady Hawk which has spanned five years.

Looking at the draw of the tournament and the way the teams have performed thus far in the season, the Lady Seminoles have the best shot at the title. In fact, there is a good chance the Tribe will meet up with Orlando Edgewater in the title game. And, that's the way Merthie would like it to be.

Edgewater is the only team to beat the Lady Tribe, which comes in with a 8-1 record. It happened in the semifinals of the Sun Roast tourney in a game that Seminole outplayed Edgewater in three of the four quarters. Merthie would like another shot at the Lady Eagles, but, it won't be smooth sailing into the finals for Edgewater because it opens with Lake Mary's Lady Rams.

2 p.m. Lake Mary vs. Edgewater
Lake Mary has not played anywhere near as good as it can and has a 3-3 record to show for it. It's still early, though, and Lake Mary will definitely come around with 6-2 Glass Towers. Laura and Peggy, leading the way. And, when Michelle Swartz starts hitting from the outside again, the Lady Rams will be in business. Lake Mary will have established the tempo against Edgewater.

The Lady Eagles are quick and like to run whenever possible. Point guard Mary Joiner leads the fastbreak while forward Pam Payne is a deadly outside shooter. Inside strength comes from Tris Bell and Sharon Simmons who will be looked to to handle the Glass twins inside. Edgewater has the edge in speed, the two teams are about equal on the boards and Edgewater also has the edge in outside shooting. Lake Mary, though, has the edge in bench strength and, if the coaches have to go to the bench, the Lady Rams could come out on top.

Edgewater by six points.
4 p.m. West Orange vs. Evans
Evans has one of the most exciting opening games but the Lady Trojans, or Women of Troy, aren't as powerful as last year's team which went to the state playoffs. West Orange is no slouch, but the Lady Warriors still aren't the calibre of their Metro Conference foe in this game — Evans by 15.

6 p.m. Seminole vs. Merritt Island
If you go by past records, Seminole has

Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

the easiest opponent in the opening round. Merritt Island hasn't one a game in two years. But, I heard that Merritt Island has new life this season with four transfer students so Seminole had better not take this one for granted.

If Merritt Island's transfers are as good as rumor has told me, the Lady Seminoles will not breeze through its opening game. I have a sneaking suspicion that the transfers aren't as good as I've heard so I think the Lady Seminoles won't have much trouble disposing of Merritt Island — Seminole by 15.

8 p.m. Lake Howell vs. Winter Park
The host Lady Silver Hawks open with a tough opponent in Winter Park's Lady Wildcats. Winter Park made it to the finals of the UCF Sun Roast tournament and was knocked off by Edgewater after playing the Lady Eagles evenly for two and a half quarters.

Lake Howell will have its hands full, but the Lady Hawks have the advantage in speed, rebounding and bench strength. The backcourt pair of Tammy and Mary Johnson have been brilliant so far this season as the Lady Hawks have run up a 8-2 record, losing only to Titusville Astronaut and Sanford Seminole. Janene Brown, Lake Howell's 6-3 center, is improving with every game and, along with Tammy and Mary Johnson, is averaging in double figures in scoring.

Winter Park has a pretty good starting five, but that's all they have. The Lady Wildcats have no bench strength at all and the starters are counted on to play a lot of minutes. Center Tina Pinkney is Winter Park's scoring leader and was the Most Valuable Player in the Sun Roast tourney. Forward Nina Tobin provides additional strength inside and she is counted on to do some of the scoring and most of the rebounding. The guards, Harriet Battiste and Jeri Ferree are both good ballhandlers and outside shooters.

Look for Winter Park to stick close to the Lady Hawks in the beginning, but Lake Howell will wear the Lady Wildcats down in the end — Lake Howell by 12.

If the favorites win in the opening round, the semifinals will have Seminole going up against Lake Howell and Edgewater going up against Evans, so at least one Five Star team will be in the finals and, if Lake Mary starts playing the way it can, it could be an all Five Star final.

Chaminade Stuns Cardinals; Fresno State Upsets Cougars

By United Press International
Double trouble in Honolulu.

Ron Anderson scored 25 points and Bernard Thompson added 18 Monday night to lead unranked Fresno State to a 68-61 upset over No. 3 Houston in the championship game of the Chaminade Classic.

In the consolation game, Tony Randolph scored 22 points before being ejected and Richard Haenlisch and Pat Langlois picked up the scoring slack by combining for 27 points to spark Chaminade to an 83-72 upset over 14th-ranked Louisville.

Chaminade, an NAIA team which gained instant national fame last year by upsetting top-ranked and unbeaten Virginia, harassed the usually steady Cardinals into 17 turnovers.

"We didn't play real well, but I think you've got to give credit to Chaminade," said Louisville Coach Denny Crum. "They obviously wanted the game a lot more than we did. There's no question the mental preparation has a lot to do with all ballgames. But our team could have learned from last year's Virginia game that they are capable of beating anyone."

In the title game, the loss ended the Cougars' 10-game winning streak. They are now 10-2. Anderson pumped in 11 points and his Thompson added 10 in the first half to power Fresno State.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Paterno Waves Aloha To Seniors With Win

HONOLULU (UPI) — Trying to win the finale for the seniors might have been just the capper Joe Paterno needed to get his Penn State Nittany Lions in the Top 20.

Penn State edged Washington of the Pacific-10 Conference 13-10 Monday in the Aloha Bowl with freshman D.J. Dozier wrapping it up for the seniors with a 2-yard slice off right tackle for the winning score.

Until his TD, it was a difficult uphill battle for the Nittany Lions, who had difficulty making it into Washington territory.

Penn State took advantage of a poor Washington punt and a razzle-dazzle punt return to set up 10 fourth-quarter points which erased a 10-3 lead the Huskies had built up over the first two periods.

"We worked harder for this bowl game than any other bowl game we played," said Paterno. "I really wanted the kids to win for the seniors. I was yelling and jumping on the sidelines because they worked too hard to let it slip out of their hands."

"I was pleased for them that they ended up with a win."

The victory raised Penn State's record to 8-4-1, which just might mean a return to national ranking again.

Dempsey Replaces Dockery

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Coach Rex Dempsey must put a national championship behind him and start work today on forging a new football regime at Memphis State University, where tragedy struck the athletic department this month.

The former Southern Illinois-Carbondale coach accepted a five-year contract Monday, just two weeks after coach Rex Dockery, his offensive coordinator and a player were killed in an airplane crash.

Dempsey's Southern Salukis took the the NCAA Division I-AA national championship this season, winning 13 of 14 games in the process. His record through eight seasons in Carbondale was 54-37. A two-year stint at Youngstown State in Ohio added a 12-8 mark to his overall record.

Baseball Camp Begins

The Central Florida Baseball School Christmas Super Camp for players ages 8-16 is today through Friday at the Altamonte Springs Eastmonte complex.

Hours for both sessions will be 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Tuition for five full days at either session: $79 or $149 for full two weeks.

Guest instructor will be catcher Earl Battey, formerly of the Chicago White Sox and Minnesota Twins. For reservations call, 886-0079.

Miss Martindill Weds M.A. Vaughn In Texas

Beverly Jo Martindill of Abilene, Texas, and Michael Andrew Vaughn of Dallas, were married Dec. 17, at 11 a.m., at the Pioneer First Baptist Church, Abilene. The Rev. Jack Riddlehoover performed the candlelight and double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Charles and Betty Willis, 206 Mirror Drive, Sanford. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Vaughn, Abilene.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows a formal satin gown with Venetian lace lavishly embellishing the high neckline, sheer yoke and full sleeves. A crown of baby's breath held her floor-length veil of illusion and she carried a bouquet of white, burgundy and pink roses showered with streamers of ribbon and lace.

Mrs. Glenn (Ann) Welborn of Sanford, attended her sister as matron of honor. She wore a burgundy-colored waltz-length dress and carried a single long-stemmed rose with streamers of ribbon and lace.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Keith (Nancy) Kuefer, Sugarland, Texas, and Miss Robin Ribble, Hattisburg, Miss. Their gowns were identical to the honor attendant's. One carried a long-stemmed pink rose and the other carried a long-stemmed burgundy rose.

Allen Horne of Abilene served the bridegroom as best man. Ushers were Ken Ingram of Fort Worth, and Keith Kuefer of Sugarland. Groomsmen were Joey Graves of Haskell, Texas, and Bill Wakefield of Albany, Texas.

The reception was held in the church fellowship hall. Assisting were Kay Coffman, Ellen Porter, Vickie Martin, Sue Lomax, Jana Stuard, Angia Fairbetter and Nancy Phillips.

Kids Who Snitch A Smoke Are Cheating Themselves

DEAR ABBY: My 16-year-old son has just informed me that the enclosed article from our local newspaper had been read by his teacher in class today, and as a result of the discussion that followed, six boys and girls had decided to quit smoking. (All six had been sneaking cigarettes and snirking about it.)

Occasionally you print an article that you think deserves wider readership. I hope this is one.

N.J.R., PELL CITY, ALA.

DEAR N.J.R.: It's dynamite, so here is my slightly edited version of the article skillfully written by Marie West Cromer for the Daily Home in Talladega, Ala.

"This column is for all junior high and high school students out there who have begun snitching, sneaking and smoking."

"Another Great American Smokeout campaign has come and gone, taking with it the resolve and best intentions of millions of nicotine-addicted Americans."

"My father was a Camel man years before filters, low tar and mild cigarettes hit the market. I'm talking two or three packs a day."

"He was lucky. He lost only part of one lung, after which he quit smoking. Now he is in his healthy 70s."

"My father-in-law wasn't so lucky. Oh, he had changed over to a pipe and had eventually quit altogether several years before his retirement. Two years ago we visited him in an intensive care room at a hospital in Florida. He was suffering from emphysema."

"While I was a senior in high school, a carload of my girlfriends picked me up once or twice a week and we drove to a nearby lake where we did away with a pack of Dad's Camels. I provided snitched cigarettes. They brought mouthwash, peppermints and breath fresheners. It worked! We really put one over on our parents!"

Dear Abby

Learn by doing in 4-H

"Just one problem. Some quit smoking, some did not. I was one of the ones who continued to smoke when I left for college."

"But I knew I could quit any time I wanted to. Let me tell you about the times I've quit:

"Once, when I decided it wasn't 'cool' to hold a baby while puffing on a cigarette."

"Another time when I'd burned a hole in a new dress which had taken most of my paycheck to pay for."

"And of course the trip to the intensive care ward. Now don't get me wrong, it wasn't the sight of my father-in-law under an oxygen tent that did it. It was the sight of an elderly lady walking up and down the halls of the hospital with a portable oxygen tank on her back — chain-smoking!"

"I quit again when a friend beat the socks off me in a tennis match. I quit again after I had several bouts with upper respiratory problems."

"So, kids, while you snitch, sneak, smoke and smirk about how you're putting it over on parents and teachers, take it from me — you are the losers!"

(Problems? What's bugging you? Unload on Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

David Orseck shows antique stripped by Strip Ease

With Strip-Ease Getting Back To Basics Is Easy

The Strip-Ease process removes years of built up layers of paint and varnish as well as grease and grime from your valuable furniture as well as other wood articles, metal, plastics or glass.

Without a lot of "elbow grease" and time invested on your part, the furniture is ready for refinishing.

Strip-Ease, located at 3416 Orlando Ave. (Highway 17-92), Sanford, now has refinishing available as well for those who do not want the mess or bother of doing the refinishing themselves.

Now associated with Strip-Ease owner Dave Orseck, is Jim Talmadge, a 25-year resident of Sanford, who is a clock repairman and artisan when it comes to woodworking and refinishing.

Letting Strip-Ease do the job of preparing furniture and other items for refinishing means you have more time for doing things you enjoy. There's no more sanding and scraping. No more bad odors and toxic fumes.

Strip-Ease utilizes an innovative process to remove accumulated layers of paint and varnish which may be hiding the beauty of your old furniture.

Chemicals used by Strip-Ease are non-toxic, non-hazardous, and non-flammable, as well as bio-degradable.

According to Dave, most processes use an acidic solution in high concentration. Strip-Ease is alkaline with a low concentrate. "By using a spray process, rather than an immersion process, we are able to get into every niche and cranny with the jet spray, including intricate carvings," he said. Strip-Ease does the job quickly and inexpensively without damage to the piece. Normally they can deliver the stripped down item within two days.

Strip-Ease can do anything from a small wooden bowl, picture frame, or gunstock to a door, bed, or bar.

In addition to wood they also strip metal items such as wrought iron patio furniture and iron beds.

David will be glad to give you a free estimate. Pick-up and delivery is available for furniture without charge, on request.

Strip-Ease is open Monday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. For further information, call 321-2055.

Bankruptcy Specter Haunting The Unions

By Graeme Browning
UPI Business Writer
CHICAGO (UPI) — Unions and employers face an unwanted guest these days at the bargaining table — and nobody is quite sure just who invited him.

It is the specter of a company bankruptcy, and the possibility that a court eventually may void the parties' contract.

For unions, who often regard their contract as sacrosanct, the possibility is horrifying. But it has happened to thousands of workers recently.

In April, Wilson Foods, a midwestern meatpacker, filed for reorganization under Chapter 11 of the bankruptcy law and promptly threw out its agreement with the unions.

On Sept. 24, Continental Airlines did the same thing. Citing losses of $471 million in four years, the airline went into Chapter 11, voided its labor contract and cut its work force from 12,000 to 4,200.

Wilson said it took the drastic move because losses from uncompetitive labor costs would wipe it out before it could get back on its feet. A Continental spokesman said if the company had been forced to meet its payroll on Sept. 30 it would have run out of cash.

Still, the effect has been devastating to union members. Now, says a union attorney, "Everybody thinks labor unions are fair game."

Companies fear that the unfavorable light into which they will be cast if they seek a court's protection from mounting debts will prevent them from getting help when they need it most.

In the words of a company lawyer: "When companies wait too long, there's little to resuscitate."

The problem is the law does not say clearly which side is right.

In 1978 Congress streamlined the bankruptcy code to encourage financially distressed companies to reorganize rather than liquidate. The new provisions gave management the power to make business decisions previously made only by a judge.

Decisions are easier in matters such as the sale of unproductive divisions. But when it comes to labor contracts, the law goes in two different directions.

On one hand, federal labor law prohibits either employers or unions from changing the terms of a labor contract without coming back to the bargaining table.

On the other hand, federal bankruptcy law says a company in reorganization may reject — in essence, change — any "executory contract" as long as it has the court's permission.

In legal terminology, "executory contract" means an agreement where both sides have on-going obligations. Most labor contracts fit that definition.

In December, 1980, a small building supply firm named Bildisco got a bankruptcy court's permission to void its contract with the Teamsters Union. The union fought back, and on Oct. 11 of this year, the Supreme Court heard arguments in the case.

A decision is not expected until next spring. Opinion is divided on the effect of the case. Some observers think whatever the court has to say about Bildisco's actions will govern future company bankruptcies.

Man Decapitates Son

RANDALLSTOWN, Md. (UPI) — A suburban Baltimore man who decapitated his 14-month-old son "for the sins of the world" underwent psychiatric tests at a county detention center.

"He was holding it like a sack of potatoes," one police officer said. "It was difficult at first to tell if it was a child or a doll."

Woman's Dropped Uterus Is Normal

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am 40 and had four pregnancies in my 20s. My gynecologist told me my uterus was more than halfway down and that my bladder needed to be put back where it belonged.

My family doctor, who is a surgeon, said he had never lost a patient by removing healthy tissue and didn't want to start with me. He said every thing was low, but it was normal.

My real problem is pain, particularly at the end of intercourse. Sometimes I can't sleep that night and am in agony the next day.

My doctor explained that it is my age and that my ovaries are not producing enough hormones. He prefers to wait until after menopause to put me on hormones. He gave me Motrin and it helps, but I hate taking drugs.

Can you give me some advice before my husband of 25 years begins to look for a new bed partner? DEAR READER — If you want a second opinion, perhaps you should see another gynecologist, since what you have is a gynecological problem. The condition is fairly common, particularly in women who have had multiple pregnancies.

Letter 14-12. Hysterectomy, Cystocele and Rectocele. It will diagram for you the basic problem of loss of support in these areas.

DEAR DR. LAMB — During a recent examination the doctor told me I had left bundle branch block. I take hydrochlorothiazide with orange juice and try to eat a banana daily to compensate for potassium loss.

My blood pressure is controlled at 120 over 80. I'm 64, weigh 196 pounds and am 6 foot 2. What is left bundle branch block? Is this a heart disease? Will it require open heart surgery? Should I be taking some other medicine? I am concerned about taking a diuretic.

DEAR READER — Left bundle branch block merely means that the normal conduction to the left side of your heart is slowed. This can be caused by an inflammation and scarring of the specialized heart fibers to the left side of the heart or by other disorders, including damage from coronary artery disease.

I have seen it in young healthy individuals and I have seen it in the presence of severe heart disease, so you have to assess its significance on the rest of the medical findings. At your age, you can be certain you have some changes in the arteries to your heart. And taking moderate amounts of a diuretic, such as you are taking, is a good way to control blood pressure. It should not be a problem for you.
