Takes Office For Another Four Years

Calvin Coolidge, for the past 19 months chief executive of the United States, filling the unexpired term of the late Warren G. Harding, today assumed the same duties for another term, in the simplest inaugural ceremonies held in generations. At the same time Charles G. Dawes took the oath as vice-president.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 4. — On the heels of the aircraft stir up precipitated by the House committee hearing its bill on Sunday, Mitchell, central figure in the controversy, will not be continued as assistant chief of the army air service when his present appointment expires Mar. 26. His name is not on the list now before Weeks who is considering the appointment to the position.

It was made known Tuesday that the nomination for the place would be sent by President Coolidge to the special session of the senate, which is called for noon Wednesday and that it would conform to any recommendations Secretary Weeks might make. Failure of General Mitchell to receive the appointment, which carries the rank of brigadier general will return him automatically to the rank of colonel.

The brief list now before Secretary Weeks includes eligible names recommended by Major General Patrick, Chief of the Army Air Service, Major General John L. Hines, Chief of Staff, and others whose advice Mr. Weeks has sought in his efforts to find a man whose qualifications for the assignment cannot be questioned.

The secretary, who discussed the appointment with President Coolidge today, will confer with the executive again before formally submitting his recommendation to the White House. The nomination is expected to reach the senate Thursday, where Senator Wadsworth, Republican, New York, chairman of the military committee to which it will be referred, is expected to seek early confirmation of the officer named.

Plan to Build Spur Track To

Desirable Warehouse Lots

Lease of a site on French Avenue for boat line terminal facilities by Tresher Brothers, Orlando freight bus line operators, and plans for the development of the project were announced Wednesday morning. The site, which contains more than 40 lots suitable for warehouse purposes, was secured on a 99 year lease basis from Victor and Hella Check at a consideration approximating $45,000.

It is the purpose of Tresher Brothers to build a spur track to connect with the present industrial spur on Commercial Street which will traverse the acquired tract ending at the point where the terminal has been submitted to the City Planning Commission and was approved as it is located in the zone set aside for industrial development.

A new organization, bearing the name of the St. John's Transportation Company, has been formed by Tresher Brothers to carry out the project. It is planned to begin work after improvements within 90 to 95 days.

After the erection of terminal warehouses, piers and other structures of the landing, there will remain approximately the same number of lots for warehouse purposes. The inauguration of the transportation company is expected to add materially to the value of these lots.

Seeks Government Economy
"We have been, and propose to be, more and more American," he declared. "If we have any heritage, it has been that. If we have any destiny, we have found it in that direction."

According with this purpose, he asserted, demands the conduct of government along certain definite lines.

These lines in the field of domestic affairs point, first, to the exercise of greater economy in government, and second, to reduction of taxation, he said, which he stressed. "The man and we, men of this country who toil are the ones who bear the cost of government. Every dollar that we carelessly waste means that their life will be so much the more meager. Every dollar that we prudently save means that their life will be so much more abundant."

Opposed to High Tax Rate
The practice of such economy, he declared, has brought the time when there can be further tax reduction and "when, unless we wish to hamper the people in their right to earn a living, we must have a tax rate to extremely high. Taxation because they produce little or no revenue, because they are bad for the country, and, finally, because they are wrong."

"The verdict of the country has been given on this question," he added, "that verdict stands. We shall do well to heed it."

Prefacing his discussion of America's relation to the world with the declaration that "our country represents nothing but peaceful intentions toward all the earth," Mr. Coolidge set forth ways and means of manifesting that spirit while at the same time maintaining a military force sufficient to insure the dignity and security of a great people.

Kiwanis Club Hears Noted Lecturer At Meeting Held Today

Dr. Herbert Youell, nationally known lecturer, was the principal speaker Wednesday afternoon at the regular weekly luncheon meeting of the Sanford Kiwanis club held in the Seminole Cafe. The meeting was marked by an attendance of 25.3 per cent and two new members, elected at a previous meeting, were presented to the club.

Dr. Youell took as the subject of his talk the "Pillars of Hercules." The speaker told how, in ancient times, the pillars were regarded as the end of the world, and how knowledge of the rest of the world came to them. He drew an analogy between the gradual increase of geographical knowledge then with the now increasing knowledge of the value of civic hospitality and the benefits which it brings.

An effort is under way to series of lectures in Sanford during the coming week.

E. J. Lane presided at the meeting. R. J. Holly, attending as a visitor, as did Mayor Walker, of Longwood, made a short address. Dr. T. J. Nixon, pastor of the First Methodist church, and C. W. Stouendentire, were introduced as new members.

Among the visitors at the meeting were Kiwanians Hatcher and Starr of Orlando; W. V. Terhune, Orlando; Mayor Walker, and J. A. Briantine, Longwood; and J. L. Wells, commercial agent of the Atlantic Coast Line railway at Sanford.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 4.—Clothed with a direct mandate from the people, Calvin Coolidge today dedicated himself and his administration to the lightening of the tax burden at home and to the promotion of peace through mutual understandings with the nations of the world.

These two purposes were outlined in high relief by Mr. Coolidge in his inaugural address, delivered from a simply decorated stand at the east entrance of the Capitol just after he had taken his second oath of office as President of the United States.

Dividing his attention almost equally between affairs at home and problems abroad, and between things accomplished and achievements hoped for, Mr. Coolidge spoke with assurance as to the future, declaring that because of action already taken, an era of prosperity lay ahead and a firmer courage and a higher hope inspired the heart of all humanity.

Event Is Free From Pomp That Marks Inaugurations Of the Preceding Year

Short Address Is Broadcasted
Takes Oath On Bible
From Which He Was Taught As A Youth

WASHINGTON, Mar. 4.—Calvin Coolidge came today to the beginning of a four-year term as President of the United States by a direct and overwhelming mandate of the people. With him came Charles G. Dawes to fill the office of Vice-President, left vacant 19 months ago when solemnly and sadly Coolidge first took the presidential oath at the family homestead in Vermont upon the death of Warren G. Harding.

Standing at the historic spot where a long line of predecessors had taken the sacred oath, Coolidge bent and kissed the bible in the hands of Chief Justice Taft and then delivered his inaugural address. Vice-President Dawes, a few minutes earlier had taken the oath and delivered his address in the senate chamber.

When the President spoke, the words of his address had the greatest audience ever addressed by one man in the history of time. Not only the thousands gathered before him on the capitol plaza, but the millions heard the address, music of the band and progress of the ceremony by a great radio hookup which covered stations all over the country.

Pennsylvania Avenue, the historic route of many pageants during war and peace, contained a smaller audience today than has at any other inaugural within memory of old time observers.

By his own direction, there was no extravagance of rejoicing and no glittering pageant to honor him. But when he pledged his faith as Chief Executive for another four years he had about him many quiet manifestations of the dignity and solemnity of the task that lies before him.

Shortly after noon in the presence of several thousands of his fellow citizens, he took the oath of office at the capitol where he was instructed at his grandfather's knee, declared his convictions in a brief inaugural address and then reviewed the inaugural parade shorn of its trimmings to square with his policy of national frugality.

One of the smallest inauguration crowds in a generation came to Washington for the ceremony, and except for the unwonted bustle about the house and senate chambers in preparation for the ending of the session, Tuesday saw few signs of the impending change in administration.

Only here and there were reviewing stands erected along Pennsylvania Avenue and the elaborate court of honor usually reared about the White House for past generations was omitted this year entirely. Instead, a small stand had been erected there for the president, and another to accommodate some 4,000 spectators. On the capitol plaza, facing the spot where the president took the oath of office, there was a stand to seat 12,000 more, but most of the residents of Washington and those who came from other cities had to find standing room on the sidewalks and pathways to see the passing by of the inaugural show.

Altogether, perhaps less than 10,000 persons were in the parade when it made its pilgrimage along the historic pathway from the Capitol past the White House. But they included the ranking officials of states of the union in New England, the South and the West, who came to Washington to attest once more the united purpose of the nation; and fighting men of the army and navy and marines, assembled for a proud demonstration of the nation's faith in its institutions and respect for its chief.

There was another feature of the ceremonies which evidenced American progress. For the first time the words of a president when he intoned the words of the constitutional oath and delivered his inaugural address was carried out by radio to millions in far distant corners of the country. To stand on the capitol steps, with which a nation-wide radio net was connected had been covered over so the broadcasting program could not be interrupted by mischievous weather.

Like Any Day

However, heavily the past sunrise had cast its shadow over the ceremonies, the weather was fair and sunny.

DAWES IS A NEW TYPE IN POLITICS DECLARE FRIENDS

Red Tape And Pink Tea Are Anathema To Soldier, Banker,
Author And Composer
Who Takes Vice-Presidency

WASHINGTON, Mar. 4.—Red tape, pink tea and every shade or form of red are anathema to Charles G. Dawes, banker, soldier, author, composer and reparations expert, who today prefixed his name with the title of Vice-President of the United States.

As an outspoken man of action, Dawes' friends described him as a new type of American leader in politics. His campaign for the Vice-Presidency was marked by attacks on "pussyfooters" and "political straddlers."

When Frank O. Lowden, Illinois' war governor, was being urged for the Republican Vice-Presidential nomination, and Dawes' friends wanted it for him, Dawes said: "Nominate Lowden." Lowden was nominated but refused to accept and the Cleveland convention then turned to Dawes.

The news reached him at Marietta, O., where he was attending his Alma Mater's commencement week, and he made this characteristically brief statement:

"I accept the nomination by the Republican party for the Vice-Presidency. I deeply appreciate the honor conferred upon me."

Dawes' last previous national service was as first director of the national budget to which he was appointed by President Harding. The President signed blank executive orders which Dawes effected only to fill out what makes effective, (Continued on page Six.)

COOLIDGE SECOND PROMOTION FROM VICE-PRESIDENCY

Like Roosevelt, Was Elected
After Rising Because Of Death of Predecessor; Is Of Old New England Stock

WASHINGTON, Mar. 4.—Calvin Coolidge became the 30th President of the United States on Aug. 3, 1923, through the death of President Harding, and today became the second man in the history of the republic to be inaugurated chief executive in his own right after having been elevated directly from the vice-presidency to the nation's highest office. The other so honored was Theodore Roosevelt.

The chief executive of the nation for the next four years was born on Independence Day, 1872, on a farm that lies hedged in by the Green Mountains on the outskirts of the little village of Plymouth, Vermont. His ancestors settled in Massachusetts in 1630, John Coolidge, now in his 79th year, still lives on the farm, and it was in the farm-house that Calvin Coolidge took the oath of office upon the death of President Harding. His mother, Victoria Moor Coolidge, died when he was 13 years old.

Mr. Coolidge received his education in the common schools, at Black River Academy at Ludlow, Vt., 12 miles from Plymouth and still Plymouth's nearest railroad point, at St. Johnsberry Academy, and at Amherst College, from which he was graduated in 1895 after four years in which he attracted no more attention than any hard-working student, unless it was by his silence.

His college course finished, Mr. Coolidge returned to his father's farm for a summer's work and in the fall started to study law at Northampton, Mass., since then his home. He was admitted to the bar soon after he became 23 years of age. Two years later he was elected by his first office, city councilman of Northampton, and put his foot on the lowest rung of the ladder that he climbed upward through the offices of state representative, mayor of Northampton, state senator, president of the state senate, and lieutenant-governor to the governorship, and from there to the Vice-Presidency and finally to the Presidency.

Model Home To Be Finished Shortly; Goes On Exhibition

With all except minor details, the interior of the Model Home, a home now being erected by a number of business and professional men of Sanford in Pine Heights as a means of showing what is possible in comfort and convenience at a moderate cost, is completed and present plans call for a formal opening of the building on Mar. 9. There remains to be applied a coat of stucco on the exterior and painting on some of the outside woodwork.

The building is regarded as one of the most attractive in Sanford. When completed it will be finished in buff stucco which will furnish a pleasing contrast with the red roof. In appearance it is of modified Spanish type.

Every effort has been made to secure the greatest blend of comfort, convenience and beauty. The home is so arranged that every room has exposure in three directions. Every need of living was anticipated in the construction and in the arrangement of the rooms, the ventilation system and placement of conveniences. Bright and cheerful decorations, making use of contrasts, in the plan followed throughout the interior.

Furnishings have been purchased and installation is expected to begin immediately. After being opened the home will remain on display for 30 days after which it is planned to sell it.

Cleveland, O., Mar. 4.—Gutson Borglum, when told of the indictments returned against him today in Atlanta, declared "I will meet them on their own grounds," and added, "they made a court matter of this thing, now they will have to fight it out on their own terms."

County Commissioners Seeking New Site For Camp And Poor Farm

In response to complaints that the present location of the county home for the poor and the convalescent camp are "retarding development" a committee composed of Chairman John Meisen, Boston Steele and B. F. Wheeler, was appointed by the County Commissioners to search for a new location for the institutions. The action was taken at the regular meeting of the commission held at the court house Tuesday morning.

The home and camp are located on Mellenville Avenue about two miles from the center of the town. Near it is a number of subdivisions that are undergoing extensive developments at the present. Whether or not the home and camp will be moved is a matter of uncertainty, the course of action depending on the report of the committee which will be made at the next meeting of the commission.

asked by E. F. Cooper for a bill to be introduced at the next meeting of the legislature to provide for agricultural teachings in the schools of Seminole county. Under the plan outlined in the present bill, the act would authorize the county commission to levy a tax not to exceed one half a mill on each dollar of taxable property to acquire, develop and maintain a demonstration farm to teach modern methods in agriculture, live stock raising and other branches of farming. The request was tabled and will be brought out for consideration later.

A report made by Tax Collector J. D. Jinks placed the total collected during the month of February at $16,156.20. Of this amount $488 came from county license; $136 from poll taxes; while the amount from special school districts and school bonds placed at $4,118.65.

Administration Of Economy Promised By Calvin Coolidge

American adherence to the permanent Court of International Justice, declared that America has taken the lead in the movement for limitation of armaments, "that America must continue to favor continuation of the policy of participation in world congresses whenever conditions are such that there is even a promise of practical and favorable results to be secured," bespoke continuation of aid to mitigate human suffering and assist in the rehabilitation of distressed nations, and expressed sympathy with the movement to clarify international law and to bring about the outlawing of aggressive war.

Practical U. S. Foreign Policy
"We have made a great contribution to the settlement of contentions in both Europe and Asia," he said in concluding the discussion of foreign affairs. "But there is a very definite point beyond which we can not go. We can only help those who help themselves. Mindful of the limitations of the one great duty that stands out for us to use our enormous powers to trim the balance of the world."

Only once in his address did Mr. Coolidge refer to the election which they brought him to the Presidency for a term in his own right, and that was after he had declared strongly in favor of strict party responsibility, adding that "common honesty and good faith with the people who support a party at the polls require that party, when it enters office, to assume the control of that portion of the government to which it has been elected."

"This administration has come into power with a very clear and definite mandate from the people," he said. "The people declared that they wanted their rights to have a political but a judicial determination, and their independence and freedom continued and supported by having the ownership and control of their property, not in the government, but in their hands."

Advocate of World Peace
Pursuing further his discussion of domestic affairs, he declared that "those who want their rights respected under the Constitution and the law ought to set the example themselves of observing the Constitution and the law," and that "no one can permit any inquisition either within or without the law, or apply any religious test to the holding of office."

"America," he concluded, "seeks no earthly empire built on blood and force. No ambition, no temptation, lures her to thought of foreign dominions. The legions which she sends forth are armed, not with the sword, but with the cross, the higher state of which she seeks in allegiance of all mankind is not of human but of divine origin. She cherishes no purpose save to merit the favor of Almighty God."

ulation may have rested on the shoulders of others, President Coolidge appeared last night to look forward to today as if it were almost any other day in the nineteen months since he took up the duties of the presidency.

Except for a few interruptions, he worked steadily in his office from early morning until late afternoon. He had the regular Tuesday meeting with his cabinet, the regular Tuesday conference with the newspaper correspondents and the regular afternoon walk. By previous appointment he went to the Mail to present a prize to the winner of a marathon race, and received a number of the visiting state dignitaries. Late in the day he greeted his father, who had come from Vermont for the ceremony, and last night he dropped in to witness a part of a theatrical performance given under local auspices.

An hour during Tuesday morning, however, was set aside by the president for a talk with General Dawes, who also made a round of other calls upon friends at the executive end of Pennsylvania Avenue. But the general gave a wide berth to the senate, where he is to preside after tomorrow.

of the University of Vermont and then a teacher in the Clark School for the Deaf at Northampton. Two sons were born, John, now 18 years of age and in his first year at Amherst, and Calvin, Jr., whose death last July at the age of 16 brought a sorrow that still hangs over the White House.

The wedding of Calvin Coolidge and Grace Goodhue led to Mr. Coolidge's only political defeat, before leaving Northampton for Burlington, where the wedding took place. Mr. Coolidge came out as a candidate for the school board. Thinking his prospects of election were more than good, he let the matter fade into the background. At the last moment a third candidate entered the lists, and after Mr. Coolidge's honeymoon it was too late for him to withdraw from a hopeless three-cornered contest. The Democrat was elected.

The Boston police strike which occurred while Mr. Coolidge was serving his second term as governor brought him before the country with his declaration: "There is no right to strike against the public safety by anybody, anywhere, any time." Some say this labor disturbance made Calvin Coolidge, his closest friends and admirers assert it merely revealed him.

At any rate, within ten months after the strike, when the Republican National Convention assembled in Chicago, he had the support of Massachusetts delegation for President and received scattering votes from other cities. When Warren G. Harding emerged as the Presidential nominee, it appeared

Hundreds of tickets for the exhibit of art pictures which opened Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the South Side Primary school have been sold, according to an announcement today by Mrs. Stella Arrington, principal. In commenting on the exhibition Mrs. Arrington said:

"The exhibition will continue for three days. The pictures, numbering 200 have been arranged on the walls in their chronological order, beginning with Egyptian art and coming down to modern American art."

"It is evident that the people have appreciated this excellent educational advantage, as more than a 1,000 tickets have been sold, and many more sales are quite likely to follow as the week progresses. The great majority of us will never have the opportunity to see the

TAKE 9,600 QUARTS

TAMPA, Mar. 4.—The federal prohibition forces here have in their possession 9,600 quarts of "rare and assorted" whiskies seized following capture of the power schooner, Bolivia, under command of Captain George Bucher, which was known in local shipping circles as "The Bolivia," a custom house official. The seizure liquors were valued at $50,000. The seizure was made by Revenue cutter 247, which was making its maiden trip, under command of Captain Chase.

STOP BOAT SERVICE

TAMPA, Mar. 4.—Sidney L. Eason, manager of the Wilson Line, operators of a boat line on Tampa Bay, announces that this service will be discontinued on April 1, because the volume of business does not justify continuing the local steamboat service. Steamships have been in daily over the 22 miles between here and St. Petersburg, carrying passengers and mail. Opening of the Gandy bridge will fall cutting the distance between the two cities about 20 miles is given as contributing cause for abolition of the service.

Colds

In the chest—
Apply Red Pepper at once.
Not a plaster, not mustard. Not any old-time method. The modern way is Red Pepper Rub.
Nothing else applies such concentrated, such penetrating heat. And heat that doesn't hurt. The old ways can't compare.
Rub it on the chest where congestion exists. A cold is congestion you know. At once you feel the tingling, penetrating heat. Circulation starts, congestion is relieved. And soon you will feel the cold loosen.
This is just the age-old method of dealing with a cold, perfected by modern science. Red Pepper, applied in this way does what old way could not do. Use it once and you will use it always. The difference will quickly show.
But have it ready—get it now. Every hour saved at the start of a cold may save many hours of trouble. Be ready to loosen it at once.
For pains of Rheumatism, Backaches, Lumbago, Sprains, Soreness, Neuritis, Congestion, Chest Colds.
At all drugists.
None genuine without the name Rowles.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY.

THE WAY TO PEACE.—Acquaint now thyself with him, and be at peace; thereby good shall come unto thee. Job 22:21.

MAKE WAY FOR THE HUSTLER BEHIND.

When you're sick and disgusted—your energy's rusted For want of some stick-to-it-til; And you quit earnest working to pass the time shirking And nursing a what's-the-use boil. Don't start in a growling, incessantly howling Your woes in the ears of mankind—Go off in some corner and be the chief mourner. Make way for the hustler behind!

When you have decided 'tis scantily divided—

The thing that we mortals call "Luck!" And you're through with the chafing, half-heartedly racing, Because you are lacking the pluck! Don't start in debating and blatantly stating, "The favored ones win—that I find!" For the crowd's in a hurry. Be gone with your worry—Make way for the hustler behind!

When, in truth, you're a quitter, a useless misfitter,

Not worthy of being called "Man!" A leech, and a faker, a discontented maker, Fit tool for the bolshevik clan. Why—there'd be something to "—if only you'd do it The world would be thankful, you'd find. Don't merely quit trying. Quit living for dying—Make way for the hustler behind!

—By Clarence Elmer.

Every real citizen of Sanford should own his own home.

General Mitchell is apparently trying for another altitude record.

There is so much building going on around Sanford that the hammering is deafening.

It is now President Coolidge, strange as that may seem, and Vice-President Dawes.

What chance has a man got? If he's economical, he's a tightwad and if he's generous, he's a spendthrift.

Judging from the number at the Country Club last Sunday, some folks have suddenly discovered that Sanford has a golf course.

The Daytona Journal gives this advice, "If you can't boost your town, move out of it." But remember that no other town wants you unless you can boost it.

Sanford has received more publicity during the recent real estate activity than at any other time in its existence. People throughout the state are beginning to look upon Sanford with wonder.

We used to get quite a thrill out of Spring because it meant Easter vacation and the turning point in a young man's fancy, but nowadays it frightens us to death because it means an income tax payment.

One hundred and fifty Yale seniors recently declared that they were working for part or all of their expenses while going through college. There is no excuse nowadays for anyone not having a college education if he wants it.

More space is given to John D. Rockefeller's golf game than to baby Jones' or Walter Haven's. John D. played chess he'd be a streamer, but if it weren't for oil, his game of golf would be around a hundred just like anybody else's.

Prosper With Sanford

Tomorrow the property of the Sanford Hotel Realty Company will be formerly placed on sale although many of the lots in this new business and residential district of Sanford have already been disposed of. At this time then it might be interesting to recapitulate a little in order to see the exact benefits derived by Sanford from the promotion of this project.

During the past week page advertisements and double page spreads have appeared in many papers throughout the state. Jacksonville, Tampa, Miami and other cities have told the story of Sanford's wonderful growth and development and of its most unique civic scheme of expansion. Thousands and thousands of people, coming from every state in the union, and controlling vast amounts of capital, have perhaps learned for the first time that there is a Sanford and that it is a wide awake and most progressive community.

The advantages accruing as these advertisements appeared day by day are hard to estimate in comprehensive language or figures. It is advertising which the Chamber of Commerce could not afford to buy. It is advertising which no other single corporation could have secured for this city. It was the incorporation only of so large a project as the Sanford Hotel Realty Company that permitted a sufficient margin of profit to allow such extensive advertising.

Already the results of this advertising campaign are making themselves felt as outside capital and inquiries of every sort come pouring into this city. Scarcely a real estate agent in Sanford is not deluged daily with almost questionnaires from outsiders who would be investors. The Chamber of Commerce and the newspaper offices have become near information bureaus. And it is said that approximately five hundred thousand dollars of outside capital have been invested in Sanford property during the past few days.

It would seem then not amiss for The Herald to suggest to its readers that they not sit idly by, watching the business men of Orlando, Tampa and St. Petersburg snap up all the choice "buys" in Sanford realty, but that they, who should be in on the ground floor in this civic development, also pick off select "nubs" here and there, where they know the demand for lots is sure to be in excess of the supply.

There are scarcely enough lots in all this eastern section to furnish all the would-be investors with a front foot, and much of this property is bound to be quickly resold. Every resale means higher values and increased profits for those who were shrewd enough to buy early.

Sanford is well on its way to becoming a big city and residents of Sanford now should be the ones to profit by it.

He Did His Stuff

Miami Life, a weekly publication in Miami, tells the story of Minus, a fine race horse stabled at Hinkelh. Minus was fast and running against a field it should readily beat. Easily the favorite, much of the crowd's money had been placed on Minus straight.

But there was trouble at the tape. The horses crowded and Minus got away to a bad start. The crowd groaned. Minus was running badly. It lacked the usual rhythm in its stride, which now was short and peculiar and gave evidence of difficulty. Soon Minus was far behind.

The crowd boomed. It was a fake. But Minus continued with its nose stretched far out in front as if it were running the race of its life. The other horses thundered past the judge's stand while Minus struggled on. The crowds jeered. Another fake.

Splendid horse! Thoroughbred that it was, Minus fought its way to the judges' stand, then collapsed. A few minutes later a sympathetic veterinarian's pistol had put the horse out its misery. Kicked by another horse at the start, Minus had done its best through six furlongs with a broken leg.

And the crowd jeered and boomed. Was there a man in that crowd who would have done his duty so gallantly in such pain? Probably not. For there's a difference. The horse was a thoroughbred; while the crowd was—well, name them yourself. What kind of animal it is that jeers at another who is defeated, whether through broken leg or other misfortune?

"If I treat all men as gods," asks Emerson, "how to me can there be any such thing as a slave?"

NEWEST DEBT MOVE ST. PETERSBURG INDEPENDENT

Great Britain's debt note to France reiterating the principle that she wants only enough money from her European debtors to pay Uncle Sam will not help the continental settlement regarding this country. We are already classified as a Shylock in the European press, and England is artfully coloring this picture by its attitude on the debt question. It is simply this, that she is willing to cancel all war debts, but can't as long as she has to pay the United States. As she has already agreed to pay this country a stipulated sum each year for the next sixty years, France reads that for this period at least Great Britain will not expect her from payment. It is a thought that will not warm French and American relations. Le Figaro, the Paris newspaper, remarks: "We must not bind ourselves too easily. Now the word is with Washington."

England in her note makes it plain that any surplus arising from her share of the Dawes reparation payments will be devoted to diminish the burdens of her allies. In other words, she will cancel these debts as soon as she can get Uncle Sam paid off. That places the United States in an embarrassing position. Will this country adhere to the doctrine of the last red cent? That is unlikely. The United States is liberal in her settlement of the British debt, but didn't emphasize that phrase, possibly fearful of the rampaging of the Battalion of Death in the Senate. President Coolidge and Ambassador Daeschner agreed at their first meeting that France will meet her obligations. When the time comes to work out the details the United States should not hide her light under a bushel. If the terms are liberal, as they undoubtedly will be, Europe should be made aware of it. There is no advantage in having the name without the game.

Parla is harassed to answer the question, "Qu'est ce que le chic?" Or in plain English, "What is style?" We hang up a poster of our own: When is style not style, and why? To answer the first part of this riddle is easy: style is not style when it is twenty years old. A woman in the fury of 1905 is nothing more nor less than a frump. But why? Aye, there's the rub. Why is it that those long flopping picture-hats, those long dresses, those dashing pompadours, which enchanted us so then, should be so ridiculous now? To answer this is to get into a most elusive tangle of vanishing values. It means recapturing the whole mood and spirit of a bygone generation. All sorts of things seem related to the style of the 1905 era; romantic echoes of the Spanish-American War, with its gold-braided magnificence; romantic tales by Anthony Hope and George Barr McCutcheon, with their smiling muscled vaulting lightly over the parapet; romantic football heroes like Hogan and Shevlin and Doug Howard, far more heroic than the numerous forward-passers of today; romantic music, their shoulders puffed up to make them look athletic; above all, romantic, glamorous light opera, with waltz songs and statuesque queens the images and likenesses whereof were scattered over the land on the coupons of Sweet Capitol cigarettes. Romance—that was it. The mood of that day was romantic, and the mood was reflected in women's clothes.

But where is romance today? It is gone, or dead, as the big scene in "A Fool There Was." It is many a long year since a waltz song captured the sidewalks of New York. Our music is hectic, concentrated excitement. So are modern styles concentrated and brief. Yet this is the curious thing about le chic. With all their brevity, these ladies of today are just as alluring as the ladies of yesterday, taking them by and large; fashions come and fashions go, but le chic lives forever.

As Brisbane Sees It

Super Sunshine—One Baby. That Eastern Earthquake Ebert, Honor Him Get Your Monoplane. BY ARTHUR BRISBANE (Copyright, 1924)

YESTERDAY, in Southern California was one of the finest you ever saw, or imagined, in California, or anywhere. The long Santa Fe train, bringing "more converts" rolled noiselessly down the grade, from the high plateau on the West, into such beauty of sunshine, warmth and flowers, as made the whole thing seem unreal.

WHAT WAS the most interesting, pleasing thing you saw, in wonderful California, on the day of arrival?

It was not the golden orange groves, or the pleasant square miles of grape vines, pruned and ready for next Summer's production.

IT WAS NOT the mighty Pacific in which you could down, bury and lose the United States, with only one big wave to tell the story. And it was not the high range of mountains, with their snowy heads, looking down, so near, reminding the traveler that in some parts of the world, it really is cold Winter.

THE MOST pleasing sight in California was a young couple on the station platform, at San Bernardino.

The young man, tall and nervous, was on the platform of his Pullman car twenty minutes before the station came in sight. No one ever left a burning house more eagerly than he left that train.

The young woman, waiting, was dressed in her best. Pink, silk stockings, new dress and hat, and such a smile of welcome for that fortunate young traveler.

HER FIRST words, before he reached her, were: "I knew you couldn't wait to see her, so I brought her down."

And, sure enough, "her" was there, in her mother's arms, a little baby, about six weeks old, with a fine sunbonnet scalloped around the edges white kid shoes, a fancy dress and a faraway look.

CALIFORNIA is interested in the earthquake "back East" that shook New York, reaching up and down the Atlantic coast and as far west as Michigan. This time the slip of the earth's crust is in the Atlantic instead of the Pacific.

DESPITE CONSTANT Eastern exaggeration of Western earthquakes, native sons out here don't laugh when they meet. They just say "Too bad," and look as serious as they possibly can.

THE DEATH of President Ebert will establish a more firmly the German republic. Germans know now that an earnest, intelligent workman, with his fellow workers back of him, can manage the nation.

They know that a sabre waving all highest, in partnership with God, is not necessary to national business.

THANKS TO Ebert, to the highly intelligent and scientifically trained German specialists and the millions of German workers educated for 40 years in the Social Democratic party, the Germans have the power of self-government. Their administration has stood firm ever since the war under most horribly trying conditions. That is the greatest possible tribute to the self-governing power of the Germans. And Ebert will be honored in history as the loyal servant of German democracy.

YOUNG MEN with courage and ambition TURN YOUR MINDS TOWARD FLYING. Ex-service men that flew in the war, cheer up.

Henry Ford and his son are building all-metal monoplane, and small dirigibles, with all-metal gas containers.

That means opportunity. BE AMONG the first to get one of the monoplane that will "fly" 140 miles an hour, and carry a useful load of 2,000 pounds.

Such a machine, once he knows how to run it, should enable a young man, of the right kind, to earn $100 a day. And that sum, $600 a week, would be a "useful load" to carry home each Saturday.

For information, write to Henry Ford, or better still, to Edsel Ford, Dearborn, Michigan.

SECRETARY WEEKS tells the Congressional committee that he holds no grudge against Brigadier-General Mitchell, for telling the truth, and that he has no thought of disciplining General Mitchell. That is welcome. The people would like to think that the truth is not kept from them by official threats.

MR. WEEKS says: "The question of the reappointment of General Mitchell as Assistant Chief of the Air Service is entirely in the hands of the President."

If that is so, the people may be sure that General Mitchell will NOT be demoted, or humiliated. The President, like the people, is glad to know the truth. No act of his, and no FAILURE on his part to act, will cause General Mitchell to lose rank. Of that you may be sure.

Legion Auxiliary Is Visited By District Committee Official

At the meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary held at the Legion home and presided over by Mrs. Roy Chittenden, the organization had the pleasure of meeting Mrs. Davenport, district committeewoman. Mrs. Davenport began her remarks by offering her sympathy for us in the loss of Mrs. Lossing.

She then complimented the chapter on its nice meeting place, saying that many auxiliaries which she has visited were not nearly so fortunate. In regard to working details for the year, Mrs. Davenport touched on the following: Child Welfare, initiation ceremonies, poppy sales, service records and their observance at St. Augustine. Mrs. Davenport invited the members to visit at the legion home at Jacksonville.

Mrs. C. H. Smith read a tribute which she wrote for the auxiliary in memory of Mrs. A. J. Lossing, a valued member who recently passed away. The tribute was adopted upon a motion by Mrs. F. E. Roumillat and seconded by Mrs. Benson.

T. E. L. Class Holds Regular Meeting

The T. E. L. Class of the First Baptist church held its regular business meeting Monday afternoon 3:30 o'clock in the ladies' class room.

Mrs. Barney Beck, the president was in charge of the meeting. Among other things it was decided to renovate the class room but each member is expected to do something so the burden will not fall on the shoulders of a few.

It was also decided to have a social hour each month with the business meeting and all whose birthdays come in that month will be the hostesses.

A TRIBUTE TO THE MEMORY OF MRS. A. J. LOSSING FROM THE AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY—WRITTEN BY MRS. C. H. SMITH.

Just beyond the hills of time is a land where mortals rest and loved ones await reunions. To that land our thoughts turn as our eyes behold the vacant chair in our midst and in the throng of that blissful land we recognize a familiar face, our dear Mrs. Lossing.

As a band of mothers, wives and sisters who suffered and sacrificed together through the World Crisis for liberty, justice and freedom, we desire to pay tribute to her whom we all love and honor. We knew her first as an Auxiliary member, the night of the organization of our Unit, when she our only "Gold Star" mother was made our first president. Her devotion to the new organization was ever eminent in her eagerness to support and help the Legion boys. Her faithfulness too was shown while acting as Chairman of the Hospital Committee, in which capacity she served later.

It seems fitting that here we mention her wonderful christian grace and courage. On a special occasion—that of November 11, 1921, when in her yard the Auxiliary members were finishing the float for the Armistice Day parade, the decoration of which represented "Flanders Field" composed and silently she worked until the last letter was on which completed the words "On Flanders Field the Poppies Grow—Last We Forget" and then later as she rode in the parade the lone "Gold Star" Mother in that car which was appropriately decorated for the gold star members, she was claim yet one could see in her face that her heart was feeling fresh the wound that had been made during those awful days when the battle raged on the French front bringing to her the sorrowful outcome.

Her last act of devotion to the Auxiliary, was the presentation of a beautiful Unit banner in memory of her son Arthur D. Lossing who gave his life for his country on the French front Aug. 8, 1918. Later his body was brought to Washington—the following year—and buried in Arlington National Cemetery.

When we think of the life of Mrs. Lossing we are reminded of the violet hid beneath the snow, one lifts the white cover to find such beauty and fragrance which lights the soul. Such was the life of her who has gone. To know her was to love her and to feel an inspiration from the genuine sweetness of her character. We miss her, but our loss is her gain and it is the Will of our Heavenly Father. Thus we bow in humble submission knowing that when our work on earth is finished we shall meet again.

Your committee recommends that a copy of this tribute be stored on the minutes of the Auxiliary, a copy be sent to her family and a copy sent to each of the newspapers for publication. Mrs. C. H. Smith, Chairman, Mrs. W. Theodore Langley, Mrs. Ernest Krupp, Committee.

 system as a precautionary measure. The device subjects the water to treatment by chlorine gas, which has been found to be the best means of killing such bacteria that is found in water.

The device regulates the flow of the gas into the mains regardless of pressure, temperature and other conditions. In discussing the device, Jesse Hamilton, city food inspector and bacteriologist stated that, as the water comes from the wells, it was one of the purest supplies in the state. The chlorinator was installed purely as a precautionary measure which would insure the town against any water-born disease.

Gas Plant Work Progresses
 In commenting upon the municipal gas plant, Mr. Williams declared that work is progressing satisfactorily in the erection of a new gas container. The old container is being used until the new one is completed.

The city manager pointed to lapses of service by the gas department and declared that these were unavoidable due to changes being made in the system. He asked that the users of gas in the city be patient with these lapses and promised steadily improved service with the installation of the new equipment until the city has one of the best plants in the state.

With the completion of the new container, it is planned to continue to use the old one which will be thoroughly renovated.

DAWES IS A NEW TYPE IN POLITICS FRIENDS DECLARE

 and his budget making reduced expenditures $250,000,000.

As a lieutenant colonel of railway engineers Dawes went to France and rose to be a brigadier general in charge of purchases for the American expeditionary forces.

Mr. Dawes' most signal service, which made his name known internationally, took place in 1924 when he headed the reparations experts committee chosen to bring order out of chaos in the reparations impasse. In the Dawes plan he and his associates substituted business control for political and military dictation.

Among his forebears was William Dawes who rode with Paul Revere the night before Lexington and Concord. The new Vice-President is the son of General Rufus R. Dawes and was born Aug. 27, 1865, at Marietta, O. In the Civil War his father raised a company at Madison, Wis., and rose rapidly in the famous "Iron Brigade."

Charles G. Dawes was graduated from Marietta College and the Cincinnati Law School, and put out his shingle in Lincoln, Nebr., in 1886. There he became acquainted with John J. Pershing, William Jennings Bryan, and the latter's brother, Charles W. Bryan, who was Dawes' Democratic opponent for the Vice-Presidency last November.

In Lincoln he became a public utility counselor, afterward removing his offices to Chicago and his home to Evanston, Ill., when he became president of the Northwestern Gas Light and Coke Company, which was later acquired by the People's Gas Light and Coke Company.

In 1912 Dawes' only son, Rufus Fearing Dawes, a Princeton student, was drowned at Lake Geneva, Wis., and a tribute written by the father was read at the funeral and afterwards reprinted in hundreds of thousands of copies by the Young Men's Christian Association. A daughter, Carolyn, lives in Chicago.

In 1896 Dawes attracted the attention of Mark Hanna, and became manager of the Illinois campaign for McKinley, who appointed him comptroller of the currency. Afterward he returned to Chicago and founded the Central Trust Company of Illinois, of which he has been chairman of the board for several years.

Dawes is a devotee of music and literature. Several years ago he composed his "Melody in A Major" which critics found meritorious.

How to Solve Puzzle.

The best way to solve this crossword puzzle is to run over the list of horizontal and vertical synonyms in search of evident or "easy" words. If horizontal, the word you are looking for must extend crosswise from the number to the first shaded stop on the right; if vertical, it must extend downward from the number to the first shaded stop below. When finished, the words should read equally well crosswise and downward.
