RUTH COLLAPSES FROM ILLNESS IN ASHEVILLE DEPOT

Bambino Unconscious Part of Day Following Breakdown; Huggins Declares Slugger May Not Be In First Game

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Apr. 8.— Babe Ruth, home run champion, will probably not begin the season with other members of the New York Yankees, his manager, Miller Huggins, said this afternoon fol-lowing a nervous collapse of the slugger at the Southern Railway station on his arrival here Tuesday morning.

Ruth is under the care of physicians who said that he had been unconscious part of the day. He was said to be suffering with the grippe following an attack of influenza earlier in the spring. Huggins ex-pressed the belief that the player would not be in condition to play for 10 days or more. "Ruth has been playing in these exhibition games simply on his nerve" Hug-gins said. He has not been physically able to participate."

Huggins was considering sending Ruth on to New York provid-ing the latter is found able to make the trip.

NEW YORK, Apr. 8.—The Evening World said Tuesday afternoon that Babe Ruth, professional baseballs premier slugger, collapsed in the railway station at Asheville, N. C., as the New York Yankees and the Brooklyn Robins reached that city for another game of their exhibition series.

The newspaper's, baseball correspondent traveling with the teams said that Ruth fainted and that he apparently was suffering from influenza. He has been ailing for the last few days of the strenuous barnstorming tour.

Ruth had complained of a headache and a fever as the players' special train left Nashville, Tena., the dispatch says. On the trip to Asheville he took some medicine given him by the Yankees' traindition and when he stepped from becker. the train he collapsed in the arms of John Levi, the Haskell Indian.

Chicago Team Will Probably Show Much Improvement Under Leadership of Collins; Many Changes AreWrought

CHICAGO, April 8-Amid all this tumult and shouting about the potential flag winners of 1925, it is not amiss to inject the quiz:

Leading Candidates. Big Falk and John Mostil are outfielding certainties. Both are splendid fielders-both can hit, a da snown in 1921, when Falk slugged for .352 and Mostil turned in .325. Harry Hooper was the other regular last year. Harry, like the darling in the famous song, is growing a bit old, and states threads are replacing many or Harry's earlier brunet tresses, But he is still an amazing fielder and his 326 mark of 1924 shows his eyes have not dimmed to any great extent.

Hooper looks good for another ear or two. But if he should skid, Collins will have Roy Elsc, a 306 hitter, and Maurice Archdeacon, ranked as the fastest runner in the basebail world, to fit into Harry's brogans.

Benind the plate the Sox do not seem extremely powerful-gazing at them from this ebbing winter angle. Ray Schalk, once the standard by which all other catchers were judged, is slipping. He isn't able to stand the gaff of contant work, as in other years. That teessitutes the development of a huscy youngster to carry the brunt of he backstopping burden.

Comiskey has three catchers on the roster, in addition to Schalk. They are Clyde Crouse, John Grafowski and George Bischool. Crouse and Grabowski were seasoned with the Sox of 1924-and gave much promise, One-or both-may lear into fame in 1925. If they fall, Bishchoff may do the trick, for he comes from the minors with a great reputation.

One Was Rich-One Was Poor, But

When the rich man had merchandise brought to his home he had to be there personally to receive it and pay for it on the spot. Though he had more money than he could use, credit men everywhere knew that he was "tricky," and not to be trusted. Though the poor man had only his daily wages from which to live, his record was clear. Opposite his name at the offices of the Retail Credit Men's Association was a little mark that stood for character-that meant: "Let him have what he wants, he will pay."

As between Money and Character, Character stands pre-eminently first. And Credit is but the result of Character.

Nothing pays bigger dividends than honesty. Pay your bills. Pay them promptly when due. It's never uphill to the man on the level.

Unification

Hon. Ed. Walthall, Care of Seminole Hadson-Essex Co., Sanford Fla.,

Unification is a big word, and it seems to be just as ugly as its big to some of our good Methodist brethern and sistern, because they shy at it every time they pass it in the St. Augustine Evening Record. Stripped down to the bone, uni-finish that they would be perfect; strangers to each other — but brought so close together that all those "firstlles," "secondlies," "thirdles," etc., wouldn't have so much room to spread out. In other words the sermons ought to be made more compact, much shorter. Of scurres that's just one man's

I therefore feel fully qualified to discuss unification from the standing of one on the outside looking in, even though I may see through it, even though I may see through it end is the difficulty that the Methodists are experiencing in getting together. When it comes to getting together, the Methodists are usually there in a bunch. Every time the church hell rings it seems to me that more Methodists can come together than any other denomination.

As i see it, one of the great obstacles that stands in the way of this big bunching up of all the Methodists is that some of them are color blind—so color blind. In fact, that they cannot tell the difference between black and white. I was talking to a prominent Methodist the other day and he made the statement that if they would apply this unification idea to the sermons the preachers preach, it would go over as easily and as smoothly as swallowing okra.

I asked him to explain, as I didn't quite get him. He said his idea was to have all the sermons unified, brought closer together, so that the start wouldn't be so far from the finish that they would be perfect strangers to each other—but brought solors together, that all that is the said his idea was to have all the sermons unified. cent a word daily, two cents a word Sundays.
