

Feds Benefit By Leesburg Errors To Win Game By 4-3; Cocoa Again Beats DeLand

By PETER SCHAAL. The Feds yesterday afternoon got back what they gave to the Leesburg Islanders about 10 days ago—a Central Florida Baseball League game which was played at Municipal Park before a large crowd of fans.

They were handed a 4 to 3 decision in which they failed to earn a run and were held helpless before the brilliant hurling of Jake Burch.

to be retired on a double play. Cobb was credited with a hit which bounced off Cobb's glove and the bases were filled. Abbott lined out to deep center.

Black Chinese Troops Ordered To Move Toward Tientsin Which Japs Occupy

PING, June 8.—(AP)—

The 32nd army, consisting of Chinese troops, today began moving toward Tientsin where Japanese relations apparently are approaching some sort of crisis.

The 2nd army, headed by General Chon, newly started garrison commander in the Tientsin area, will replace the 31st army of General Yu Chung, which evacuated the city and moved to Pingfang.

The Chinese government for the province, 50 miles south of Tientsin, reported to the Japanese government that the Japanese army had been ordered to move toward Tientsin to prepare for the Japanese relations.

The Japanese government is reported to be taking no action to quell the Japanese army.

Flood Menace On Wa In Mid-West

New Impetus Given To Plan To Boost Inheritance Taxes

WASHINGTON, June 8.—(AP)—

The President and Secretary Morgenthau, indirectly, gave new impetus yesterday to talk of a fresh distribution of wealth through stiff gift and inheritance taxes.

The series of developments pointed in that direction included the President's statement at a press conference he hoped to give the people "greater distribution, not only of wealth in the narrow terms but of wealth in the wider terms."

Secretary Morgenthau arranged to confer with Congressional tax writers shortly.

The President's statement rather indicated that the President would request new inheritance and increased gift taxes.

It was believed that a meeting of Federal and state representatives at a tax conference would be held in Washington, D. C. in the near future. It is believed that the conference would be held in the near future.

Roosevelt Asks For Control Of All Carriers

Roosevelt Hopes To Give People Great- er Share Of Wealth

WASHINGTON, June 8.—(AP)—

President Roosevelt asked Congress in a special message yesterday would give the Interstate Commerce Commission control of highway, rail, inland waterway and air transportation.

He called for the enactment of bills to:

- Help along railroad financing.
- Put inland waterway and coastal carriers under the Interstate Commerce Commission.
- Regulate highway motor carriers.
- Put inland waterway and coastal carriers under the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The President also requested that the Interstate Commerce Commission be given authority to regulate the business of motor carriers.

Forbes, Lehmann To Address Seminole High Graduates

Leaders Asked Continuance Of NRA Is Rumor

WASHINGTON, June 8.—(AP)—

Rev. Herman W. Fisher will preach the bi-annual service and Karl Lehmann will deliver the graduation address to the boys and girls members of the graduating class at Seminole High School in the school auditorium tomorrow and Monday night respectively.

Rev. Fisher, pastor of the First Christian Church, will preach his sermon shortly after exercises are opened promptly at 8:00 o'clock when the class marches into the auditorium.

The school orchestra will play Wagner's "March from Tammany" as a prelude, and the invocation will be made by Rev. J. E. East of the First Congregational Church.

Following the singing of a hymn by the audience, Dr. W. A. Cooper of the First Methodist Church will offer the benediction.

Roosevelt Convinced That Defeatist Attitude Would Have Been Wrong

Richberg As Of June 16 Situation In Muddle

WASHINGTON, June 8.—(AP)—

The House yesterday gave new impetus to the anti-trust laws to remove the President's powers to suspend the anti-trust laws in connection with voluntary covenants.

The action, ordered by a vote of 264 to 121, came a few hours after Roosevelt had asserted the anti-trust laws would be fully enforced and that all such voluntary business agreements must be in conformity with them.

The resulting situation precipitated some confusion and led to the capital gawking.

Kansas Mine Area Quiet After Blast

Blanchard Tells Of Steps Leading To Search For Oil

WASHINGTON, June 8.—(AP)—

They strongly resented that the worst possible thing the White House could do, both from an economic and political standpoint, would be to assume a defeatist attitude. They urged to push and go forward without making some sort of stab at salvaging what would be saved of the Industrial Recovery Act, they argued, would be an admission to the country the "New Deal" is in perilous waters.

It may not mean anything, but on Capitol Hill the quiet departure of Mrs. John K. Ober wife and secretary of the Vice President, for her home in Lincoln, Pa., is significant.

The years the country and the gains of the recovery act and from Washington have been regarded as religious indications of how things stand legislatively. They have been among the first to quit the capital when Congress winds up the business of a session and the last to return for the new year.

Mrs. Ober's private secretary told friends who had her good wishes that she thought the present situation was through in a week or so weeks around speculation that adjustment may come much sooner than has been predicted.

There's a story being told around single claimants about Senator E. C. Richards' recent discovery of an oil field in the Indian Territory. The story is that he has spent time at his home in Lincoln, Pa., and he has been told that he has discovered an oil field in the Indian Territory.

Flora Held Facing 'Great Destiny' If Well Is Brought In

HAVANA, June 8.—(AP)—

After three days in the hands of kidnappers, Antonio San Miguel, 32-year-old railroad worker, was freed today and the Associated Press learned that a ransom of $25,000 had been paid.

Despite the secrecy that surrounded the case, it was learned that police had arrested two men who were linked with the kidnapping.

Four of San Miguel's captors, who were captured with him, also were liberated.

The financier was freed from a mill truck only three blocks from his home.

It was learned he was released on his personal promise to pay a sum of money later.

San Miguel and two servants were taken to the spot in a truck which then was abandoned.

A passing truck driver investigated the abandoned vehicle and found the man and his two servants. Several rifles and pistols were found in the trunk of the truck.

Middle America, Roasting In 1934, Now Feels Frosts

KANSAS CITY, June 8.—(AP)—

Middle America, largely roasting a year ago in a lightning drought, saw temperatures hit an abnormal low yesterday from Oklahoma to the Great Lakes—accompanying by rain, cooling breezes and in some places frost.

Water sloshed inland in the Midwest in June, 1934, by drought. Droughts blanketed the region in Mid-Western farmers grined in delight at bright prospects for crops.

Although floods caused more than $150,000,000 damage in Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska, the great drought was only a bitter memory.

A year ago, western farmers in Kansas City were worried in a debate over the propriety of sports betting for the year. Today they were more in order. The thermometer dipped to 66, a new low for the date. It rose to 68 a year ago.

Started slightly cooled and then a light frost at Lehigh, Neb. It accompanied a minimum of 41—a record for June. Early in a year ago the minimum was 48 or 49.

Not everywhere was the frost a joking matter.

A falling frost was reported at DeWitt, LaSalle, in Western Missouri. Elsewhere in the night the frost caused some damage to corn, soybeans and garden. Parts of Wisconsin and had light frost.

Increase Guard Near Embassy In Rome

ROME, June 8.—(AP)—

A greatly increased guard was set today at the Italian embassy yesterday in the "old" order it received the week, continued its better attack in England's opposition to Italy's African policy.

(In London, Capt. Anthony Allen, telling the press) said that the House of Commons, the Italian newspaper charges that Britain was sponsoring Ethiopian hostility against Italy were "mischievously absurd."

The British legislators cheered loudly at Clement Richard Allen, deputy leader of the opposition, declared Italy "ought to be held clearly that... the would not have the use of the sea coast" if she intended to use force against Ethiopia.

Wallace Says AAA To Protect Consumer

DETROIT, June 8.—(AP)—

Secretary Wallace's address last night before the general federation of women's clubs completed a program on which speakers attacked and defended the New Deal's accomplishments and its future.

"My industry will give up its tariff, agriculture will give up its production tax," Secretary Wallace said.

They're Going Round Corner In Finer Cars

TALLAHASSEE, June 8.—(AP)—

South Motor Vehicle Commission records showed yesterday that Floridians are buying larger automobiles than they did last year.

As a result, owners are paying higher amounts for taxes.

Tax sale receipts up to June 1 were $4,531,352. The total for all of 1934 was $4,244,548. So far this year tax sales totaled $3,812,330, as compared with $3,708 for the full year of 1934.

The increase, in receipts, the commission said, was caused by the purchase of licenses for many heavier cars than last year.

Roosevelt Goes Home To Spend Week-End

HYDE PARK, June 8.—(AP)—

President Roosevelt arrived home today for a week-end visit before going to the military academy at West Point Wednesday to address the graduating class.

The President was accompanied from Washington by Harry Morgenthau, Secretary of the Treasury and his Delaware county neighbor.

The train will offer an opportunity for a discussion of the military situation, but there was not an military sign that this happened.

A Chance To Succeed

A few odd centuries ago a man became ruler of his country because his father was ruler of his country. A man was an artisan because his father was an artisan, or a sailor because his father was a sailor, or a serf because his father was a serf. There was no chance for a peasant to be anything but a peasant, or a member of the bourgeoisie to be anything but a member of the bourgeoisie. A nobleman was a nobleman because his father was a nobleman. That was the caste system.

And a few centuries before that a man was king, or the chief of his tribe, because he was the biggest and strongest man within a given territory. He carried the heaviest club and hit the hardest blows with it. If lesser lights were so foolish as to oppose his will, he would promptly smash their heads in. But weaker men gathered around him not only because they were afraid of him, but because he could protect them from other strong men, other kings, of whom they were more afraid. That was in the first law era.

Nowadays one has to be neither the son of a king, nor the strongest man in the tribe, to be a leader. We are not prepared to say that merit is the sole basis by which men rise to the top, nor do we believe that those who rule today are always the most capable men available. Sometimes we think that a Max Schemmeling might make a better king of Germany than an Adolf Hitler. But the fact remains that almost anyone can rise to the top if he has the ambition and takes advantage of his opportunities.

Hitler himself used to be a Viennese house painter before he enlisted in the army during the World War in which he served as a corporal. Muschul, too, started out in the ranks and had risen but to a colonelcy shortly before he led his Black Shirts on Rome. Stalin, now dictator of Russia and probably the most powerful ruler in the world, used to be a mountain brigand, who robbed travelers and devoted the proceeds of such activities to revolutionary movements against the czaristic regime.

In England, Ramsay MacDonald for the past six years has been the guiding light of the empire. MacDonald came from humble origin, was both a union man and a socialist. He rose to the top neither by revolutionary methods nor the stroke of fate. He was appointed by the king in a crucial hour of England's history because he more than any other man in England typified the social hopes and aspirations of the masses. His career is a perfect illustration of the opportunities the world affords for those who have the courage and the energy to take advantage of them.

And it is true that anything can happen in this modern era. The private of today may become the general of tomorrow. A country lawyer may occupy the nation's highest office, the switchman may become the railroad's president. The rewards for labor are here for those who want them. It is a question of having a purpose in life, of sticking to it, and of being willing to sacrifice one's entire energies unflinchingly and unselfishly to the best realization of that purpose.

SANFORD TWENTY YEARS AGO

WASHINGTON, June 8. President Wilson's note to Germany will be called in Ambassador Gerard today, according to word from the White House. The only reason for the delay, it was said, was the President's desire to make the phraseology of the note as explicit and unmistakable as to leave no room for doubt or further argument concerning the position of the United States government, that the right of visit and search must be exercised over German ships and crew of unarmored ships on which neutrals are voyaging transferring to a place of safety before any prize is destroyed by a belligerent warship.

The Florida Legislature adjourned at noon last Friday after a sixty days' session that was said to be one of the best in the history of Florida. Hope of the general bill that was passed are as follows: creating a state highway commission; to aid counties in building good road buildings; establishing

OUR PUBLIC SCHOOLS
By MRS. FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT

Equal educational opportunities for every child in the United States! That was the ideal when we set up our public school system. But today, while that may be an ideal, the facts are very much at variance with it. Children do not have an equal opportunity to get an education, not even a seat in a classroom.

A year ago I listened to three young American-born women read aloud from a daily newspaper. All of them had children of their own, and eight months before, none of them had been able to read. They were able to read that daily paper only because for eight months they had been in a federal prison for women for having violated the laws of our land. Fresh-born American citizens had to go to prison to learn to read. They had offended against laws of the country which they probably did not understand, since they were not even able to read them.

Where is our boasted equality of opportunity for education? A picture of a small school in one of our poorest states, but in a remote district, will give you another illustration. One frosty autumn day I followed some rather scantily clad children to the door of their school-house. Day after day on the roads I had been passing a number of them—they, articulate children, hardly able to express what they wanted as they passed. Now school was open and they were trudging back to it.

Two teachers, young and bright, stood in the doorway to welcome them, but they told me a most discouraging tale. There was no money in their homes to buy these children any books and supplies. While modern methods of teaching depend less than formerly upon books, still some books are necessary and so, with no possibilities, within reasonable walking distance, a library should always be in the school. This school had few text books and fewer reading books. It was a disgraceful situation. Let us turn for a minute to another part of our country. Here the teacher told her best, but for $100 a year you did not obtain the

History Held Written When Court Ruled

Decision Seen Likely To Have Important Effect On 1936 Political Campaigns

WASHINGTON, June 8.—When development tell the complete story, it may appear that political history of the highest order was written in the Supreme Court on that celebrated afternoon of Monday, May 27.

Of course, it is not unusual for acts signed by a President to be rejected by the highest court. That happens often, and usually no political consequences follow. In this instance, however, the specific points of disagreement are politically interesting. It happens that much of the current criticism of the Administration is based on three charges: "Regimentation" of private business, invasion of private property rights, and a tendency toward high-handedness and dictation.

The court discussed all of these points. It held MRA would be beyond constitutional warrant in regulating private business; that the farm mortgage act passed by Administration left winners and losers; that the National Industrial Conference Act was a federal trade commission overstepped Presidential authority.

That excerpts from those opinions of the court will be quoted many times in the 1936 campaign is doubted by no one, who understands the materials campaign are made of.

For the points involved have been looked upon by many as basic to the "New Deal." The principles of MRA in particular have been espoused by Administration spokesmen with a fervor reminiscent of the patriotic appeals of wartime.

Reduced in this manner to its simplest form, the litigation offers a most enticing bait for political speculation. It should be remembered that the highest court does not concern itself with the question whether the provisions of the Constitution are desirable. It merely interprets those provisions as it finds them. Granting that the nine justices were correct in the interpretation delivered on May 27, the question at issue becomes: should the constitution be changed?

No one denies that reverence for the Constitution has suffered greatly among various classes of voters, in recent years, a test of sentiment on that subject, during a Presidential campaign, would not be an impossibility.

Whether it means anything or not, it is to be noted that some Administration men, seeing no other course left, already are talking about amendments. It is yet to be developed whether Mr. Roosevelt himself will come to the point where he will advocate such a course in 1936.

Nine Ton Balloon Soon To Start On Hop 14 Miles Up

Next Journey Of Big Ball Projected To Be Successful One

WASHINGTON, June 8.—Nine tons of balloons, gondola, scientific instruments and men soon will part in an intended trip of 14 miles or more into the stratosphere.

Profiting by the mistakes of last year's disastrous flight, this year's journey of the "Explorer II" of the National Geographic Society and Army air corps is scheduled to be "bigger and better" than any which have preceded it since the first high altitude ascension was made in England in 1875 to a distance of seven miles.

The gas capacity of the new balloon is 3,700,000 cubic feet instead of the 2,000,000 cubic feet of the 1934 bag, the gondola is 78 cubic feet larger, safety of accidents has been reduced by the use of stronger balloon cloth and non-explosive helium gas instead of hydrogen, and new and improved instruments will be carried to gather more accurate data over a wider range than was possible heretofore.

Among the devices scheduled to be carried are two recorders and two counters in record case and two cameras to check the altitudes reached; two spectrophotographs to analyze the light of the sky, sun and earth; one device for measuring the electrical conductivity of the air; 10 cameras to photograph earth, sky and readings of instrument dial; a radio receiving set, sending sky and the readings of instrument space trap and holder, electrical thermometer, three light meters, compasses, air specimen flasks and balloon thermometer.

In addition the gondola is equipped with an electrical fan by which fresh air is circulated and air chambers to insure breathing in the hermetically sealed metal sphere. Storage batteries, and 20,000 pounds of lead shot ballast. Most of the instruments will operate automatically, leaving the two members of the crew, Capt. Albert W. Stevens and Lt. Harold G. Gatty.

and Capt. Orvil A. Anderson, to concentrate on the field duties of navigation, photography and scientific observation of the flight. The flight is scheduled to take place as soon as weather is favorable, from the receiving base, rocky natural landscape, near City, S. D. The crash of the balloon, making of the wreckage of the flight.

The maximum altitude reached last year was 55,000 feet. The maximum altitude reached last year was 55,000 feet. The maximum altitude reached last year was 55,000 feet.

Proceeding the business meeting a buffet supper was served in the banquet room which was decorated for the occasion with floral baskets of gladioli in various colors. Mrs. Fred Rabbit, worthy matron, had charge of the meeting. Entertainment was furnished by B. C. Moore, who rendered two vocal solos.

Sundown Stories

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"Oh dear, oh dear, what have I done?" quavered Mrs. Quacker miserably.

The sight of Mrs. Quacker in the salad was a most absurd one. She no longer had any dignity or grandeur. She looked meek, she was ashamed, and she was a very humble duck.

Mrs. Quacker, as such a good housewife, and plenty of extra salad. The bit into which Mrs. Quacker had fallen was as much for "show" purposes as anything else.

But now she was really pleased by this one. At least it was Mrs. Quacker who would really and truly have to apologize to her. Not only that Mrs. Quacker would be ashamed of this for days and weeks to come. Mrs. Quacker had been awkward and that she never wanted to be.

She was receiving attention of a kind she did not like. The little ducks were giggling, holding their wings before their backs to try to hide the amusement they felt, and the older ducks were looking surprised and all admiring the way Mrs. Quacker was behaving.

Mrs. Quacker was grateful to Mrs. Quacker. I have plenty more to do. I hope your feathers haven't been hurt in any way. Good pond water will quickly take out all the stains, I know.

Junior Class Fetes Seniors At Mayfair

Following a tradition of many years, the Junior Class of Mayfair High School entertained with a banquet Thursday evening at the Mayfair in honor of the graduating class of the school with about 200 persons in attendance.

Guests included members of the Junior and Senior Classes, the faculty, the school board, and Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Stimpfhar and Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Roumiffar who have assisted the Junior Class with many of its activities this year.

The long banquet table was decorated in a purple and white color scheme, the Senior Class colors, and developed the idea of the "Little School House" which was the theme of the Senior annual, the Salmagundi. Purple and white gladioli centered the tables, piano chords represented miniature books, and the programs were miniature diplomas tied with purple ribbons.

The entire program was presented as follows: Invocation—Barby Honsholder; Greeting—Miss Elizabeth Brennan, president of the Junior Class.

Reply—William Spitz, president of the Senior Class; Song—Joanna Astorillo; Song, "Memories" dedicated to the Senior Class.

Between courses piano numbers were rendered by Miss Lenora Whidden and Miss Mildred Hodges. Special request solos were presented by Miss Marion Hayes, Miss Evelyn Schick, and Sam Dighton, Jr.

Because aphid bugs hatched too late, thorny strawberry crop is expected to be good this year.
