Man - In - Space Support Mission Plane Crashes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Fourteen persons apparently were killed today when an American C130 transport crashed near Nairobi, Kenya, while flying a support mission for this country's man-in-space program, the Air Force announced.

The report said rescue attempts "indicate no survivors." Two helicopters were sent to the scene.

It was presumed that 10 of the persons aboard were passengers. The plane normally carries a crew of four. The Air Force said the plane crashed in mountains near Nairobi and burned on impact.

At Cape Canaveral, the Air Force said the plane was carrying men and equipment for an emergency recovery team for astronaut Scott Carpenter's space flight.

A spokesman for Patrick Air Force Base, headquarters of the missile range used in Carpenter's flight, said he did not know exactly how many persons were aboard the plane.

He did say that the plane was definitely carrying support personnel and equipment for the recovery team.

There are three main recovery areas, all in the Atlantic. But in case anything goes wrong and Carpenter comes down in some other place, the United States has spotted small teams of recovery specialists at various points around the globe.

Weathermen said winds of 25 to 30 miles per hour and waves seven to 10 feet high were churning the ocean between Bermuda and the Azores. That would be the area where Carpenter's Aurora-7 spacecraft would be expected to land if something went wrong just before he was about to enter orbit.

Officials said the situation—though similar to that before the Glenn flight—was a little less tense. There was no indication, however, that would let up in time for a shot Saturday.

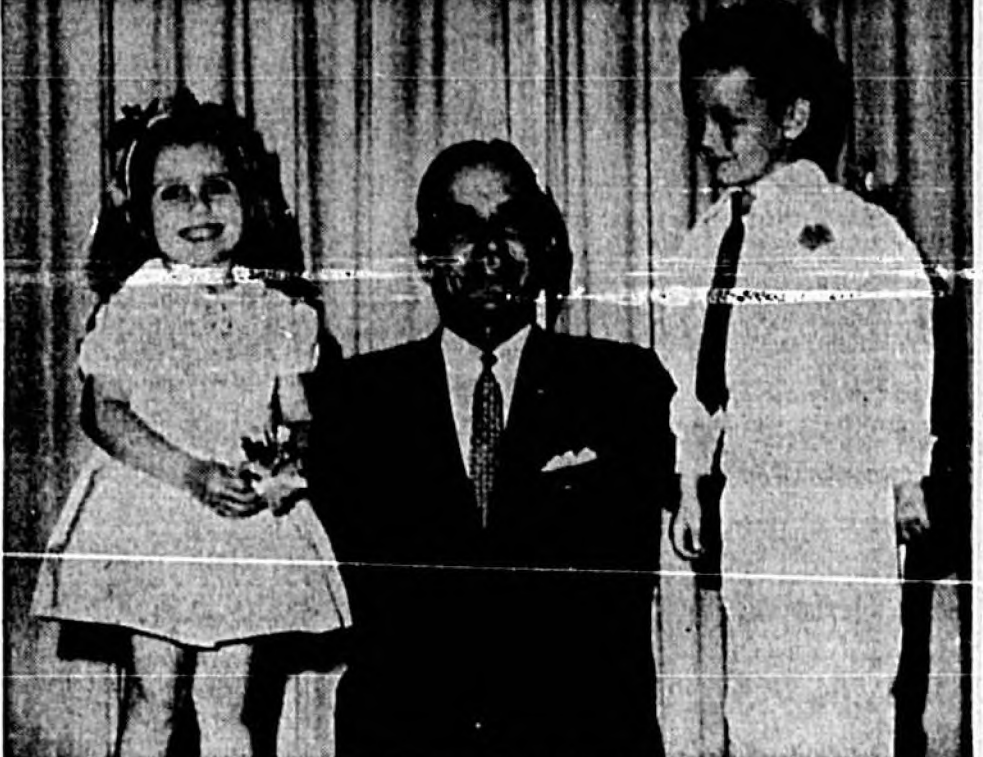

An official statement also said that "intermittent cloudiness in the launch area may be expected to cause temporary delays."

If the weather or a last minute technical snag does not stop him, Carpenter will be rocketed Saturday into the three-orbit path blazed by Glenn. He will perform a host of new experiments for American scientists who want to know more about the mysterious world of space.

Strike Command Boss Mum On Secret Order

TAMPA (UPI) — The commander of the new U. S. Strike Command said Wednesday his men were ready to launch a military operation late last year but it was cancelled at the last minute.

Gen. Paul D. Adams made the comment at a press briefing and elaborated on it later in an interview. He said the planned operation was still secret and he could reveal no details.

However, Adams said it would be a "high mobility operation." He said "We had everything organized and ready to go."

The plan, Adams said, was cancelled for reasons he could not divulge.

The Strike Command (USSTRICOM) with headquarters here at MacDill Air Force Base, was organized last fall with Army and Air Force units designed to move a military force on a moment's notice to deal with aggressors.

The command presently is standing by for possible movement of troops to Thailand.

Adams, in the post-briefing interview, said the operational plan that was scrapped late last year was the only instance in which USSTRICOM had actually set in motion a military operation.

He would not comment on the likelihood of USSTRICOM interference in the Thailand situation, but other officers doubted it would be called on for aid. They said there were probably enough U. S. military forces in the Pacific area to handle the problem without assistance from strategic reserve forces such as USSTRICOM.

However, Adams said the U. S. troops who entered Thailand operated on the same theory under which USSTRICOM was formed—"The policy of confrontation."

Battle Dress Marines Deployed In Thailand

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI)— Eighteen hundred U. S. Marines in full battle dress landed in Thailand with artillery and tanks today and were deployed swiftly to bases facing the Communist threatened border with Laos.

U. S. Air Force C130 transports began airlifting the troops to the interior shortly before noon in the most dramatic move against Communist aggression in the Far East since the Korean War.

Light jeeps and "mechanized mules" tractor-type vehicles for hauling equipment and supplies over rough terrain, went in the planes with them.

The Marines started arriving in the capital by air and sea shortly after dawn. With a minimum of delay they began moving out by air and motor convoys for eventual deployment near the northeastern border to deter pro-Communist rebels from driving across the Mekong river from Laos.

The Marines joined a 1,000 man U. S. Army battle group from the 27th Infantry which has been in Thailand since early May when it took part in exercises of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO).

Other American ground forces will follow until the total strength is up to 5,000. At least two squadrons of F100 Supersabre jet fighters also are being brought to Thailand along with C130 Hercules transports, tankers and RF101 reconnaissance planes.

New Outlet Set For Hwy. 17-92

The controversial Ballard Road barricade erected late last week at the order of County Commissioner Vernon Dunn, District 4, was removed late Tuesday afternoon and the 150 foot stretch of sandy right of way was covered with road clay.

The action now makes available another outlet to Highway 17-92 from Altamonte Springs by way of West Loren Court and South Street in Fern Park.

According to County Commission Chairman J. C. Hutchison, the erection of the barricade was not ordered by the commission nor was the removal and claying of the stretch.

When asked about the removal of the blockade this morning County Commissioner Vernon Dunn said, "Your paper has gone to Lawrence Swofford for every thing, and not come to me for a word. Now go to Lawrence Swofford about that. Good bye!"

According to J. C. Lavender, county road superintendent the order was given by Dunn to put up the barricade, and "when the road men had time, to remove it and clay the road. We got to the job early Tuesday afternoon or Wednesday afternoon, took the thing down and clayed the strip. It took about ten loads of clay to do the job."

A usually reliable source reported that Dunn displayed considerable hubris at the Commission meeting when informed the strip had been clayed and the barrier taken down.

Swofford called Hutchison Wednesday morning when he discovered the barricade was removed and asked about the possibility of county-city participation in completing the paving of Ballard Road.

At the suggestion of Hutchison the Altamonte Springs council, which met Wednesday night, ordered a letter written to the County Commission requesting the participation and asked for the county to continue maintenance on Hermit's Trail, which serves a large segment of the population north of Altamonte Springs in the county.

The Ballard Road right of way was donated several years ago to the county and the city for use as a public way to facilitate access to Highway 17-92. The 150 foot strip barricaded at Dunn's order had been acquired through court action for the right of way and had been dedicated to the public use.

The action of Dunn in erecting the blockade came as a surprise to everyone in the area, and was done, according to the district 4 commissioner to alleviate the dust problem caused by traffic over the section.

It was pointed out by the mayor that the peculiar shape of the lots on Robin Road precluded a front foot assessment because of the manifest unfairness of the distribution of land along the street. After a bit of mathematics Davis came up with a figure of $45 for each property owner to pay on the mayor's plan.

The final decision will not be made until Davis checks out the statutes covering assessments, although there were fears expressed by some members of the council that the action would set a dangerous precedent.

It was also decided to purchase an insurance policy covering the town's firemen in case of accident, injury or death in line of duty, and a policy covering the town's liability in the operation of the refurbished brush fire truck was also ordered.

The purchase of a garbage truck for the current fiscal year was vetoed by the board and it was decided to hire someone to cut down the dangerous trees in the town and the town trash truck will haul them away.

Considerable heat was generated during the discussion over discontinuing the answering service currently serving the town's fire calls. It was held that the service was unsatisfactory and that the siren was sounded at the "whim" of the answering service as "a harassment to this administration," according to Mayor Swofford.

In as much as Fire Chief Harry Brown had requested a fire phone for his home and one for Cordell's Garage it was decided to cancel out the answering service and have the telephones installed.

Altamonte Sets Public Hearing On Water

Questionnaires are ready for distribution this week to the residents of Altamonte Springs by the city council to gauge the feeling on the proposed new municipal water system which has been under discussion for some time by the council, it was announced Wednesday night.

A public hearing on the subject will be held next Wednesday night, May 24, at 8 p. m. at the community house to discuss the move. Applications for the new service will be available at the hearing for those desiring them.

The board talked over a bill from the Orange Paving Co., Winter Park, and decided to pay three-fourths of the $8,796 statement and pay the rest pending acceptance and approval of the job done on Turnbull Ave. The bill included an additional $1,000 for sand sealing the new pavement, which was not included in the original bid.

The paving of Robin Road was brought up and it was decided to rescind the original call for bids on the project because the notice did not include sand sealing of the road. The town council, S. J. Davis, advised revising the resolution and re-advertising for bids.

In connection with the paving of Robin Road there was considerable discussion over the method of assessment to be used. It was proposed by Mayor Lawrence Swofford that the cost be prorated evenly for each freholder along the road rather than assessment on a front foot basis.

It was pointed out by the mayor that the peculiar shape of the lots on Robin Road precluded a front foot assessment because of the manifest unfairness of the distribution of land along the street. After a bit of mathematics Davis came up with a figure of $45 for each property owner to pay on the mayor's plan.

200 Children Poisoned In Duval School

JACKSONVILLE, (UPI) — Health authorities analyzed turkey salad today in an effort to determine what caused the apparent food poisoning of nearly 200 Negro school children and teachers.
The salad was served for lunch Tuesday at the Pine Forest elementary school. Before dawn Wednesday the first of a flood of sick calls from students and teachers began.
An estimated 164 students and 20 teachers stayed out of school Wednesday, but classes were continued for the balance of the school's 600 students.

There was a run on the Duval Medical Center and Brewster Hospital as the condition of many of the sick students grew worse. Drugs were rushed to the medical center from other hospitals and drug stores by police escort.

The outpatient clinic at the center was made into a ward and cots were set up to provide for the children. An observer said "everybody from x-ray technicians to laborers working at the hospital pitched in to help."

Dr. Fred Brown said at the medical center that the sickness was definitely "caused by some toxic substance being ingested."
Officials at Duval and Brewster reported a total of 179 cases treated by late Wednesday night and that at least 40 more cases were expected during the night and early morning.

Children who were treated and released during the day were being readmitted with temperatures of 105 and 106.
Two of the 135 children who were treated at Duval were reported in critical condition. Fifty-eight of the 135 were kept in the hospital—38 of them for "observation."
Forty-one children were treated at Brewster, according to doctors there, and 40 were admitted.

Moose Wives Select Name, Plan Events

Wives of Sanford Moose Lodge 1851 members and their guests met Monday night in the Lake Mary Hall to get acquainted and plan future events for their organization.
A selection of titles for the group was offered and put to a vote of those present. "The Futurettes" (based on the fact that the women hope soon to become eligible for affiliation with Women of the Moose) was chosen as the most appropriate title for the present time.

Plans were continued on a rummage sale to be held in June with the exact date to be announced. Moose members, as well as the ladies, will work on this project and the men will be asked to bring any donated items to the hall for tagging and pricing which will be done by the women.
At the request of the lodge for a committee to plan a dance for the near future, Mrs. Alice Clements, Mrs. Edna Meshotto, Mrs. Donna Poteat and Mrs. Bernice Sobuck were appointed to work on the project.
Plans also were discussed for a trip to Moosehaven "The Home of Contentment for the Aged," located at Green Cove Springs which members of both organizations hope to make by chartered bus early in July.
Filmstrips of the retirement home and of Moosehart, the orphanage supported by the order, will be shown at the next meeting of The Futurettes on May 28 when lodge members and guests of both groups will be invited to attend.

Glee Clubs Sing Concert At Pinecrest School

The fifth and sixth grade Glee Clubs of Pinecrest School presented a concert entitled "Music in the Air" at the PTA meeting Tuesday, before a completely filled auditorium.

Directed by Mrs. Escar Neider and Mrs. Theresa Bolic, the Glee Clubs dedicated the entire program to Mrs. Margaret Reynolds, principal, who is leaving to go to the Lake Mary School next year.

The last song, "May the Good Lord Bless and Keep You" was dedicated to the sixth graders, who will be graduating, by the two music teachers.

The program included America the Beautiful, The Green Cathedral, Were You There, Hark! the Vesper Hymn, Kentucky Babe, Yellow Bird, Dry Bones, and Round About.

A medley of songs of the South was sung for one number and when the Glee Club sang "Dixie," a few people in the packed auditorium got to their feet, and suddenly the whole audience rose. Seeing this Mrs. Neider turned around and with a wave of her hands invited them to join the singing which they did with great feeling.

The Bomber Stream competition pits four crews of each squadron against each other on bombing runs, with the winner of each squadron pitted against each squadron winners for the top team of all the squadrons which are on board the station at the time of the monthly contest.

The children remained on stage, seated, while the presentation of "This Is Your Life" tribute to Mrs. Reynolds took place.

Lake Monroe Jottings . . .

Mrs. H. L. Johnson Hello there. Another Thursday, another day. Not many more school days left and my how the children are putting in more time preparing for those end of the year exams. Glad to see that they are interested in studying for them. . . . Heard that Vic and Charlotte Hawkins went shrimping over at Bissett Bay the other day and came home with a plenty to eat. Don't you know that they had a lot of fun catching them or whatever it is they have to do to GET them. . . . I am going to get something right this time after the third attempt. It was Jim Giles' cousin Becky and Jim that won the honors at the recent 3-11 Show. . . . Talking about shows, there is one coming up shortly at the Monroe School that is being sponsored by the P.T.O. I understand that they are working on a very good program. Some excellent talent has been lined up for it too. . . . Sure sorry about the fire out at Herbert Behrens place. Was very pleased about the Lake Mary Volunteer Fire Dept. coming over here to put it out. Just think now that if any one else's place should happen to catch on fire and the fire department is not available, what ever would we do? That is something to seriously think about. How nice it would be for the people of Lake Monroe to get on the ball and get a fire department for us. There are plenty of strong able men to help it get started. So what do you say, lets get started some way. The ladies will be glad to do their part too. . . . The senior class of the high school enjoyed last Friday at Sanlando Springs. This was their annual picnic time. I know that Kathy Petty and Marie McIntosh had a swell time. Kathy and Marie both are wearing a certain kind of ring on a certain finger on a certain hand. I just wonder what it means? . . . Ruthie Bullard told me she got some nice things at her birthday party last week. I bet she did. . . . Hope that all of you mothers had an enjoyable time on Mother's day. That is the day for a lot of family reunions. Now, just think, next month we have to honor dear old Dad. . . . Now that graduation day is very near the girls are planning on that special dress for that special day. According to the conversations I have had with several of them they are going to be real sensible about the buying and making of their dresses. I think that is the thing to do. One of the seniors said she was going to work and would need it for work. That's the way I like to hear them talk. They are beginning to think of these hard times their parents have had. . . . The W. H. Almonds have had two of their daughters visiting them. . . . The Dorcas Circle of the Upsala Presbyterian Church will meet next Thursday night instead of the regular meeting night. This is just for this one time. . . . Home Demonstration ladies don't forget the dress revue coming up. May 31st is getting close. Have you made your outfit yet? Mine is almost finished. And another reminder. Short Course at Gainesville is July 9th through 13th. Hope you can go. It is very interesting and of course educational. . . . The children on my bus told me I hit the ceiling of the bus the other afternoon when I discovered the smoke coming from under the dashboard. They were calm and didn't get excited at all. And I am so sorry about Martha Cook hurting herself on the bus. I visited her and she will be okay and will probably be home by the time you read this. I had to kid her about not walking out the door right. If the others don't go out right they have to come back and walk out like they should. So Martha Jane hurry up and get well so you can do the same thing. . . . Sammye Lou Keel got husband Leon well and decided then it was time for her to catch something. She made it the flu. . . . Our thought this week is on Progress. Usually it requires you to take chances. For example, you can't steal home and keep your foot on third base. . . . Bye now.

According to the 1960 U.S. census, inmates of institutions totaled 1,897,106 persons.

GARY MASSEY, talented 14-year-old Bear Lake youngster, staged his own Magic Show for children of the area recently with Geraldine Brenner, right, as his capable assistant. # Crime And Country

Politicians, social scientists and others are giving a lot of thought to ways of preserving the best of rural America in an age increasingly dominated by an urbanized society.

There is a feeling among many political figures that the rural grip on many state legislatures is sure to be broken, even though the change probably will come far more slowly than suggested by the early reactions to the Supreme Court's Tennessee decision on this matter.

Some worried defenders of the "rural way" have since taken to romanticizing country and small town life as the principal repository of nearly everything good in this nation.

Critics already troubled by the rural hold on state government respond by seeking to "debunk" this picture of rural society. They argue it shows the same flaws, the same crime and corruption, the same limited clusters of power that are found in the cities.

Looking here at just one city-country comparison, the commission of crime, the rural areas seem not to be as bad as some of the debunkers have painted them.

Preliminary FBI figures for calendar 1961 show, to be sure, an overall increase of 2 per cent over 1960 in arrests for major crimes in rural sectors—against a 1 per cent rise for the moderate to large cities and the nation as a whole.

But the story looks different when hung in a broader frame.

The fuller 1960 totals disclose that varied crimes of assault and theft, expressed as a "rate per 100,000 inhabitants," are three times more frequent in the larger metropolitan areas (50,000 population and over) than in rural sections. Even those communities ranging in size from 2,500 to 50,000 people have a crime rate nearly twice the rural level.

Furthermore, though rural crime among persons under 18 rose 1 per cent in 1961, the juvenile rate in the cities bounded upward 3 per cent, continuing a troublesome trend.

None of this means that the country lads are "all good boys" or that dark country lanes are safe places. After all, in 1960 there were 18,000 auto thefts and as many cases of aggravated assault in rural territory.

It can be argued, too, that the better rural showing simply reflects the absence of the same temptations which nagate some city dwellers. Many rural youngsters—and adults—obviously commit crimes against both persons and property when they move to the city.

Nevertheless, FBI compilations make it clear that you cannot yet demonstrate, by hard statistics, that the country is as wicked as the city.

Dr. Crane's

Worry Clinic

Martha doesn't grow irate at me because I point out the sex deficiencies of modern wives, but asks for helpful advice. A lot of wives refuse to face reality and barrage their editors with letters demanding this column be dropped. Those letters are just further proof of their own arid reading of this feature!

CASE XI-422: Martha K., aged 37, is a typical housewife.

"Dr. Crane," she asked during a forum discussion at a University Women's Club meeting, "I agree with you about a wife's lack of ardor."

"And I am also guilty, I'm sure, of sins of omission. For my husband is much more interested in the physical side of marriage than I am, and this seems to be true of most marriages I know."

"But we wives have so many things on our minds, including the care of our children, that we just can't turn on a romantic or passionate mood at a moment's notice."

"So our husbands naturally grow irate and even tell us we are frigid, etc. What should we do to retain their love, despite our more limited hunger for what you call 'erotic calories'?"

Most divorces start in the bedroom. And usually because of a wife's sins of omission, for the typical American wife, if she has children and is harassed with many household duties, is much like Martha.

She is neither passionate, as per the male standard, nor even greatly interested in feigning ardor.

So she offends her mate on many occasions, for he senses her indifference. She's even a poor actress in their bedroom.

Then he may grow irate and call her frigid, or become jealous and accuse her of outside affairs.

Or he may often become a hypochondriac, secretly worrying lest he be deficient in his anatomy.

Other husbands may decide to run around and supplement their limited domestic affections with clandestine affairs.

Those immoral women who indulge in affairs, have learned the value of acting ardent and enthusiastic, if for no other reason than to keep the male patronage or gifts coming their way.

This is obviously frank advice for you good wives in America, but when you realize the divorce rate runs 25 per cent and another 25 per cent are unhappily married, though still living together because of religious scruples or devotion to the children, then you can appreciate the need for frank advice.

Don't grow irate at me or indulge in a vicious letter-writing campaign to your editor to cancel this column.

For it wasn't Dr. Crane but God Almighty who created men to have a much greater erotic hunger than their wives do.

All I have done is explain these medico-psychological facts so you good wives can insure your home against the 50-50 chance of unhappiness.

"The truth shall make you free," stated Jesus, and I'm telling you some truths that may make you angry but anger doesn't solve your dilemma.

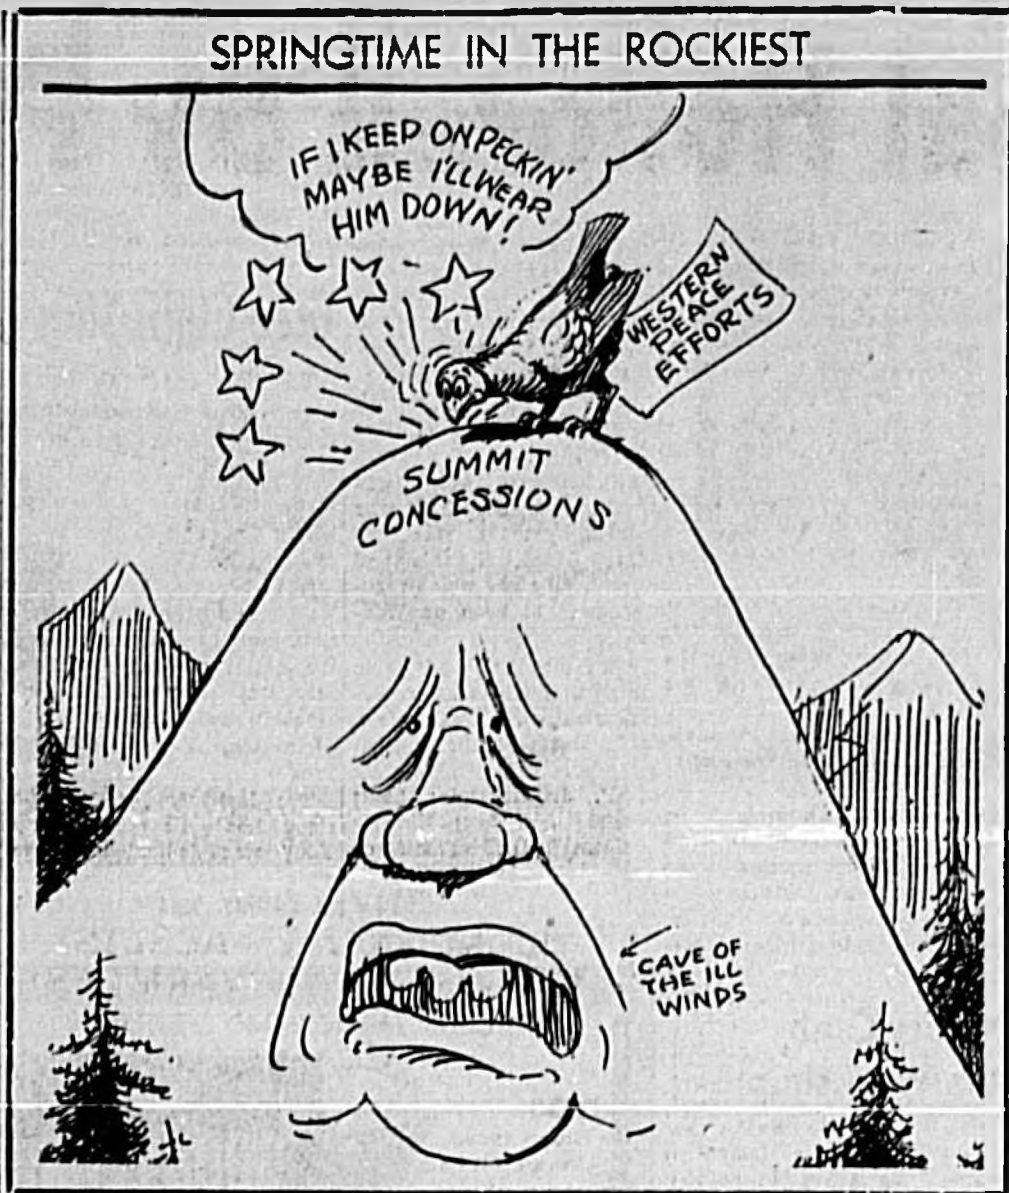

So feign ardor on those extra occasions, just to placate your husband's sex ego, even though you are not naturally hungry.

Also, try to have a minimum of one date per week, during which you revive your courtship emotions by going through the courtship motions.

On the other nights in the week, try to match your mate's interest. Imagine how it affronts his sex ego to have you snore, meanwhile!

You wives spend far too much time on kitchen recipes and not enough preparing the proper erotic bouillabaisse "dish" for your mate, so get help!

To help you excel Cleopatra, send for my booklet, "Sex Problems in Marriage," enclosing a stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents. (Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long four cent stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Two Posers For US In Laos

EDITOR'S NOTE: How deeply committed is the United States in Southeast Asia and how much farther can the present crisis involve Americans? In the following dispatch UPI's foreign news analyst examines causes and effects of the current situation and points up problems with which the United States now is faced.

With two-thirds of Laos firmly in the Communist grip, the two key questions face the United States in its announced determination to prevent the remainder of Southeast Asia going the same way.

Has the right-wing government of Prince Souvanna and strongman Gen. Phoumi Nosavan announced too late its readiness to join a neutralist regime for Laos?

How much farther is the United States, already deeply involved in South Viet Nam, willing to commit itself?

Any lingering doubt about the reliability of the royal Lao forces vanished last week when 5,000 troops fled in panic from their Nam Thab stronghold, with their officers in the vanguard of the flight and without even bothering to inform their American advisers of their plans.

Militarily, there also seemed no doubt that the Communist-led and equipped Pathet Lao forces could, under present circumstances, take over the whole of Laos if they wished.

For the United States, the question was both military and diplomatic.

It joined with Great Britain in demanding that Moscow prevail upon Pathet Lao forces to withdraw to the cease-fire line established in May 1961.

Q—Which is the largest of the two sides?
A—The world's biggest union is the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helpers of America.

Militarily, the United States reacted with a show of force which included the movement of a 1,000-man U. S. combat unit in Thailand near to the Mekong River border with Laos and the dispatch of a 7th Fleet carrier force with U. S. Marines aboard to the Gulf of Siam.

Tactically, it was a move reminiscent of U. S. strategy in defense of Formosa where, without actually declaring itself, the mere presence of the 7th Fleet has been credited with preventing a Red Chinese attack on the Nationalist offshore islands of Quemoy and the Matsu.

It obviously was hoped that similar moves might also instill caution into the Reds in Laos.

In Washington, officials refused to be drawn out on the possibility that U. S. troops might be dispatched to Laos itself.

Undersecretary of State George W. Ball declared that the United States still sought a coalition government for Laos and "we have not at all abandoned hope of achieving it."

There were, however, other straws, which also were available to the Communists, indicating that some military decisions already had been reached.

The most important of these emerged more than a year ago at a meeting of SEATO (Southeast Asia Treaty Organization) military advisers in Bangkok.

It was indicated then that the military commanders had agreed that the defense of Southeast Asia must be made at the Mekong River, a major stream which originates in the mountains of Tibet, forms Burma's border with Laos, most of Thailand's and finally empties through a vast delta in South Viet Nam into the South China Sea.

U. S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk assured Thailand leaders scarcely more than two months ago that the United States firmly would support its commitments to Thailand against both direct and indirect aggression and would do it either inside or outside of SEATO.

Hence, the dispatch of U. S. troops to the Mekong River line in Thailand may take on special significance, especially in light of the fact the Laotian army no longer can be counted as a military force.

This evidence, coupled with the United States' declared determination to remain in South Viet Nam until the Communist menace is defeated there, seems to indicate the defense line, running from the 17th Parallel in Viet Nam to the east to the Mekong River border in the west.

There were other conditions mitigating against the dispatch of U. S. forces into Laos itself.

One was the assurance of Red Chinese Foreign Minister Marshal Chen Yi that in the event of Western military intervention in Laos, Communist China "also will send troops," thus assuring another Korea.

In Washington, there also was opposition.

As long ago as May of last year, Sen. J. W. Fulbright, declared he would oppose intervention in Laos because the Laotians were unwilling to shoot "even if you give them a gun." He said he would not oppose intervention in Thailand or South Viet Nam because those people were willing to defend themselves.

In Laos, Nikita Khrushchev holds the key.

In their Vienna meeting in June, 1961, President Kennedy and Khrushchev agreed to establish a "neutral and independent Laos" which would serve as a buffer zone between the Communist and Western powers.

He might move now to halt the southward spread of Red Chinese influence, or he might turn his back.

Whether neutral or Red, Laos loses none of its strategic importance.

Under Communist control it exposes both Burma and Thailand, strengthens the possibility of a Communist take-over of neutral Cambodia and provides another avenue for the flow of Communist arms into South Viet Nam.

Political Notebook

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—The biennial drive to get more voters registered for the November elections has been kicked off this year by AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education—COPE—under the direction of Roy Reuther, Walter's brother. This year 35 governors and 36 senators are to be chosen in addition to all the congressmen.

Registration and the numbers of voters in mid-term elections always fall off by 25 to 30 per cent from the totals in years when a president is elected, which are low in themselves. There was only a 65 per cent turnout in 1960 in comparison to the 75 to 90 per cent votes in Japan, Germany and other European democracies.

Over 63 million Americans went to the polls two years ago, but another 37 million, nearly 1 out of 3 potential voters, stayed away from the polls.

So the total vote this year may not be much over 50 million unless there is a lot of hustling by the two major party organizations, chambers of commerce, labor unions or other patriotic and public service groups.

AFL-CIO international unions have pledged three cents a member for their national registration drive. With 15 million members, that would be $450,000.

On top of this, 21 state and 33 big city labor organizations whose leaders have just ended a two-day organization meeting in Washington, have pledged $250,000 for local drives. It sounds like a lot of money till you start dividing it up among 50 states. The average is $14,000.

That means most of the work has to be done by volunteers who will wear out shoe leather on house-to-house canvassing. Most of the money goes for printing and mailing.

One of the big jobs is getting more women to register. That takes women volunteers. In all but a few states, registration must be done by the citizen himself or herself going or being taken to the city hall, court house or other designated place and signing the rolls.

Deadlines against which the registration drives must work vary from state to state. Only in Alaska can voters register at the time of voting. Last primary deadline is Colorado's Aug. 27. Last registration deadline for the November general election is Oct. 27 in Iowa and North Carolina. In the five poll tax states, registration lists are already closed, Virginia being the last on May 5.

Redistricting under the 1960 census will necessitate some re-registration. And the estimated 20 million Americans who have moved to different voting districts since last election will have to check their registration.

The COPE registration drive, says Roy Reuther, will naturally be concentrated where organized labor has its greatest strength. But the drive is being conducted as a nonpartisan affair. Both Republicans and Democrats will be aided. The big idea is just to get out the vote.

The bigger the vote, the better labor considers its interests will be served. There's a big apathy to overcome.

In the coming Congressional elections, labor leaders figure it will take an overturn of 15 to 20 seats now held by conservative representatives to get a more liberal majority.

But to do this there will have to be a reversal of the usual pattern in which the party in control of the White House has always—but once—lost congressional strength. This is the big test for this year's labor registration drive.

Veterans of all wars and their wives are invited to participate in this service.

Injury Claims Show Drop

TALLAHASSEE (UPI)—Progress made in the field of industrial safety resulted in savings of more than $1.5 million in Florida in the past year, Industrial Commission Chairman A. Worley Brown said today.

Brown said 4,000 fewer job injury claims were reported in 1961 as compared to the year before.

Safety regulations adopted since June, 1958, he said, resulted in saving of at least 56 lives.

Pinecrest Principal Honored By Parents, Students

By Dottie Higginbotham
A well-kept secret exploded into well-planned excitement at Pinecrest School Tuesday night, when Mrs. Margaret Reynolds, who has served as the popular principal since the school opened its doors in 1955, became the subject of a television type show entitled, "This Is Your Life At Pinecrest, Margaret Reynolds."

Mrs. Fred Ganas serving as mistress of ceremonies read off the cleverly written poems which introduced the outstanding people and events in the life of Mrs. Reynolds as principal of the school before a packed auditorium of parents and students.

"She's the one who's steered the lives, of all the little dolls and guys, since nineteen hundred and fifty-five, for their best interests she did strive," the first introduction began.

Mrs. Reynolds wearing a white orchid corsage had been escorted up to the stage by Mrs. Betty Glenn and Mrs. Marie Lewis, school secretaries, and seated in a gaily decorated rocking chair.

R. T. Milwee, superintendent of schools was the first person to come out on the stage, and he brought a large key with the words, "Now here is one that sees a job and gets it done. We'll give the key to this new school to Margaret Reynolds—she's no fool!" The music of "Schooldays" accompanied this presentation.

Second to come on was Lunchroom Supervisor Mrs. Lucille Feiler all done up in the bandages and ointments that she had to wear for weeks when she was seriously burned soon after the cafeteria was opened. Mrs. Feiler staggered out to the tune of "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody."

Out came Floyd Richards, a former Pinecrest teacher, now principal of Lake Mary School, carrying a cardboard box full of supplies with the words, "Your only files were a cardboard box, and not steel cabinets with keys and locks."

It was pointed out that Mrs. Reynolds will now be working for Mr. Richards, and the accompanying music was "The Old Gray Mare Ain't What She Used To Be."

To a recorded tape of roaring jets, Navy flier, Lcdr. Drew Chevalier, former P-TA president came in wearing full flight gear and carrying the sign, "May We Fly Over Your School?"

The next man to come in was preceded by these words, "He was broad at the shoulders and narrow at the hip,

"And nobody at Pinecrest gave any lip... to Big John!" Former assistant principal John Angel, now principal of Longwood who will be principal of South Seminole Junior High next year, then came in carrying a paddle with the inscription, "Board of Education," and of course, the music for this entrance was "Big John."

To the tune of "A Good Man Is Hard To Find," and the words "Six Foot Two, Eyes Of Blue," and "This Was A Year Of Double Sessions, Only Four Hours To Teach Those Lessons" former teacher Freeman Baggett, now principal of Westside Grammar School came in bearing a clock with four hands.

To the tune of "Where, Oh Where Has My Little Dog

Gone?" present assistant principal Louis Kosky entered, wheeling a whole wagon load of dogs. He will take over as principal of Longwood Elementary school next year.

New principal Harold Heck- enback then entered along with Bill Gramkow and Carl Remusat, wheeling a stretcher. They lifted the protesting Mrs. Reynolds up on it, covered her with a sheet, put a lily in her hands and wheeled her off the stage.

Later she was brought back on and seated in her rocking chair while Mrs. Gordon Stanley, P-TA president presented her with a gift of two pieces of luggage as a gift of the school.

"Instigators" of the show, writers of poems and songs, and costume designers included Mrs. Fred Ganas, Mrs. Carl Schilke, Mrs. Gordon Stanley, Mrs. Bill Gramkow, Mrs. R. B. Forbes and Mrs. Ooma Lee McArdle.

New Fire Ant Control In Use

Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman announced recently that the Federal Pest Control Review Board has put its approval on department plans for the 1962 Federal-State program to eradicate the imported fire ant.

The action was taken after a review of program procedures, including measures to avoid hazard in treated areas to human health, domestic animals, crops or fish and wildlife.

The new bait used to lure the little bugs to their death is composed of corn cob grits served up with soybean oil and a newly developed and extremely potent chemical, which is used at the rate of only one seventh of an ounce to an acre in the mixture.

Highly specific in its applications, the new chemical attacks only the domestic and imported fire ants, which have been ravaging crops and grasses in the Southeast for a number of years.

Hamiltons To Open Business In Spite Of Hospital Stay

By Jane Casselberry
The Robert Hamilton family of Casselberry remains cheerful and undaunted by the many weeks spent in the hospital recovering from injuries received in an automobile accident early last month.

All members of the family are at home again where the more seriously injured mother is now able to use a walker, however the young daughter remains in a cast from the chest down.

The accident occurred one Sunday afternoon on Hwy. 17-92 near Maitland just when the Hamiltons had arrived in Casselberry full of plans to open their own restaurant business here. Immediate work was scheduled to begin on renovation of the attractive two-story home at the corner of Concord Dr. on the highway which they had purchased for the business when they found themselves and their three children in the hospital for a prolonged stay. The Hamiltons have expressed their gratitude to the townspeople for the many kindnesses extended them during their convalescence and are extremely busy with plans now as they continue to try to meet the June 15 opening date of their business to be known as "The Hamilton House."

The restaurant, in charming early American decor, will accommodate 100 diners in a gracious atmosphere when completed and will serve dinners and private luncheon parties. Another attraction is that it will remain open all day on Sundays.

Hamilton, who has had 16 years of experience in the restaurant business, formerly has managed Morrison's Imperial Houses in Winter Park, Daytona and St. Petersburg. He opened the Town House at the Langford Hotel in Winter Park and prior to coming here, he managed the new Golden Triangle Restaurant at the International Inn in Tampa.

Circle Assists Nursery Project

Mrs. Maurice Corbett was hostess to the Ethel Root Circle of the Congregational Christian Church when it met in Fellowship Hall for the first meeting of the summer schedule.

Miss Ruby Booth led the devotions and the sunshine chairman reported on the progress of members who were ill. Rev. Joseph Stock spoke on behalf of the Pilgrim Fellowship, explaining the summer conference to the group.

Following the talk the ladies agreed to contribute to this scholarship fund so more young people could attend conference this summer.

Miss Cindy Stock, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Stock, was surprised with a gift of a pink and gold locket from the circle. She was celebrating her first birthday.

The nursery committee reported that the walls were fresh painted and a new carpet had been laid on the floor. A new larger crib will soon replace the one now being used. Mrs. Helen Remuset,
