Chicago Mayor Endorses Kennedy For President

CHICAGO (UPI) — Jane Byrne, mayor of the nation's could to help Carter's campaign in Illinois before deciding to back his challenger. Her official endorsement speech was scheduled today.

The endorsement, along with announced support from Cook County Democratic Chairman George W. Dunne, gives Sen. Edward Kennedy a strong step toward winning the mid-March Illinois primary — earliest in the Midwest. Mrs. Byrne said she kept an open mind about an endorsement until after Carter appeared at her Oct. 15, $100a-plate fund-raiser. But, she said, a lack of enthusiasm for Carter at that affair indicated the president would not be able to provide the spark her organization needs to mount an enthusiastic campaign.

smallest increase of the decade, the Joint Center for Political Studies said today.

The increase, recorded between July 1978 and July 1979, included the election of 23 officials in the U.S. Virgin Islands, which had previously been excluded from the survey. Not counting the Virgin Islands, the gain would have been $1 — or only 1.9 percent.

The survey showed that there are 4,807 black elected officials in 43 states, the District of Columbia and the Virgin Islands. Louisiana leads all states with 334 blacks holding elected office. Mississippi is second with 227 and Illinois third with 276. Idaho, Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota, Utah, Vermont and Wyoming have no blacks in public office.

The Dove Flies From Hawks' Nest

The loss of Moshe Dayan as Israeli foreign minister brings into clearer focus what he calls "the key question." That is the relationship between the Jewish people and the Arab people in Dayan's resignation from the government of Prime Minister Menachem Begin removes from the Israeli cabinet its strongest voice for concessions to the Arab Palestinians. That's bad. Israeli hardliners who demand that Israel retain firm control of the Arab territories conquered by Israel in the 1967 war are afraid of a peace that would require them to make substantial concessions to the Arabs. But permanent peace can never come without such concessions.

There is a strong commitment to justice for the Arab Palestinians among the Israeli people and it may be that some future government will be formed that will be able to make concessions. If the Dayan resignation strengthens the moderate "doves" in Israel's internal debate, it will be a good

Of course, concessions are a dangerous thing, because one concession can lead to another and who knows where the process will stop? But a rigid refusal is dangerous, too.

The Jewish commitment to social justice is a national commitment of the people and the government of Israel. That was demonstrated by the decision of the Israeli Supreme Court holding invalid the claim that the government's seizure of privately owned Arab land for the Elon Moreh Jewish settlement on the West Bank was essential for Israel's national security. The Jewish court gave the Jewish settlers 30 days to get out Dayan himself was born in Israel, learned Arabic as a child, is friendly and sympathetic with many Arabs and believes Jews and Arabs can learn to live together in peace and harmony in the Holy Land. Although his black eye-patch made him a symbol of Israel's military success, the former general and former Israeli defense secretary is no hawk. That is why he had to resign from Begin's hardline cabinet.

We hope Dayan's resgnation and his recent illness do not mean an end to his influence on the future course of Israeli policy.

has become a ceiling which is penetrated with Libya and Iran recently announced increases above the OPEC price level. Oil sells for far more than the OPEC price on the spot market. All the oil-importing countries deplore these price increases. So do the Saudis among the oil producing countries.

But the price pop-offs are the result of economic pressure. They will continue, regardless of OPEC policies, for the duration of the world's energy

Mays Takes Gamble

NEW YORK (UPI) - Willie Mays' wife, Mae, probably knows him better than anybody else alive. She knows what's bothering even before he says it.

She isn't sure, she says, but she thinks she spotted the suspicion of a tear in his eye immediately after they left the commissioner's office Monday morning and were waiting for the elevator to take them down to the street. "Well, that's it." Willie Mays said to his wife, who saw obvious sense of relief in him now that his meeting with Bowie Kuhn was over. "I made my decision and he made his. I tried to give him any way out, but ..."

Mays didn't finish the sentence. There wasn't any need to do so. His wife understood completely because she had been in the onehour long meeting along with their attorney, Steve Lindeman. Kuhn also had two people in with him, Sandy Hadden, baseball's general counsel, and Bob Wirz, his director of information. Mays calmly set forth all the points he felt were pertinent. Yes, he was about to sign a $1 million contract with the Bally Park Place casino and hotel in Atlantic City, N.J., and, yes, the casino was a place where people would come to bet, but the job he was passages from it to Kuhn, seeking to support Mays' claim.
Willie went on to make still another point. He was working for four different companies now, besides the New York Mets, and Mays came up with some alternative suggestions. What about a job for him in the commissioner's office? Kuhn couldn't think of any possible position that might pay Mays what Bally was paying him.

After some more back-and-forth conversation, the meeting ended with Mays and Kuhn shaking hands cordially and the end of his career. Shula said he would be out for two to four weeks.
