The Bell Tolls For Them HONOLULU (UPI) - The bell from the sunken battleship Arizona has been rung for the first time since Dec. 7, 1941.

The bell-ringing occurred Friday in observance of National POW-MIA Recognition Day and, as part of the program, 19 Navy and Marine personnel reenlisted in a group ceremony aboard the Arizona Memorial straddling the submerged battleship at Pearl Harbor.

Collectively, the re-enlistees had logger 181 years of service and signed up for an additional & years. The one with the longest service record was Gunners' Mate Chief Thomas C. Brandt, Venice, Fla., who will complete 18 years when he starts a new

More Than 3,000 Killed In Yangtze River Flooding

PEKING (UPI) — The Yangtze River's worst flood of the century has killed more than 3,000 people and submerged hundreds of thousands of acres of farmland in Sichuan province in a powerful surge that will hit China's biggest dam today

Provincial officials in Chengdu, capital of China's most populous province of Sichuan, said more than 3,000 people were killed and between 40,000 and 50,000 people were injured in the flooding.

Central government officials downplayed the extent of the devastation and declined to give casualty figures. "It's not that serious," said a senior official at the state-run news agency, Xinhua. "The situation is improving."

The Sichuan Meteorological Bureau said more downpours were forecast for tonight through Monday, aggravating the disaster in nearly two-thirds of the province already devastated by torrential rains and

Iranian Rescue Debate Suit Is Dismissed

By BRITT SMITH Herald Staff Writer

A civil lawsuit which allegedly sprang from a discussion of the aborted Iranian rescue attempt over a year ago has been dismissed by Seminole Circuit Judge Kenneth Leffler.

Leffler dismissed the case Friday for a lack of sufficient evidence. However, he gave plaintiff Terry Randall Knight 30 days in which to refile his complaint.

The suit, seeking an unspecified amount of damages in excess of $5,000, was filed in mid-March and charged that Sambo's restaurant on U.S. Highway 17-92 in Casselberry maliciously prosecuted Knight for carrying on an essentially political conversation.

The suit claimed that on April 25, 1980, the day of the ill-fated Iranian rescue effort, the 33-year-old Knight and two friends entered Sambo's to eat and began discussing the rescue

Their confab got noisy and disruptive, according to the restaurant's 27-year-old manager Abbass Iranmanesh, an Iranian, who told them to quiet down. Knight claimed he and his friends were talking in normal tones. In any case, Iranmanesh called the police and the three were arrested. The case went to trial Oct. 9 and Knight was acquitted.

The suit contended that Sambo's pressed the charges knowing them to be groundless. As a result, Knight alleged he "suffered mental anguish, embarrassment, humiliation, deprivation of liberty, and disgrace, as well as injury to his

Knight contended he was arrested not for being loud and disorderly, but "for the express purpose of coercing me not to discuss the Iran hostage situation."

BLACKBURN IN COURT

Harlan "The Colonel" Blackburn, former Seminole County resident and one-time reputed kingpin of central Florida gambling and narcotics, was in Seminole Circuit Court Friday fighting an effort to put him back in jail for a 10-year-old

The case dates back to June 11, 1971 when Blackburn allegedly employed Sam Cagnina to kill Blackburn's former associate and gambling racketeer Clyde Lee who was wounded in a Longwood telephone booth near Interstate 4.

In 1973, Blackburn was convicted as an aider and abettor in the shooting and was given a prison term of six months to 10 years by now-retired Judge Volle Williams. Blackburn appealed the decision to the Fourth District Court of Appeals, asking for a new trial. The request was granted and the prosecution, in turn, appealed. While all this was going on, convicted criminal Louis Llerandi admitted to shooting Lee and said Blackburn had nothing to do with it. During this time, the appellate court, acting on a recent Florida Supreme Court decision, ruled that Blackburn's appeal for a new trial had been filed incorrectly and his attorneys should do it again.

They did so, but no decision has been made on whether to Assistant State Attorney Alan Robinson wants Blackbura jailed pending the outcome of the appellate court's decision. But Blackburn's lawyers claim he has served his jail time in the case and should remain free on bond.

Actually, Blackburn is being held by federal authorities for possible parole violation stemming from recent cocaine trafficking charges in Orange County.

Seminole Circuit Judge Joseph Davis Friday decided to wait until after Aug. 3 - when a decision is scheduled to be made on whether Blackburn did indeed violate his federal parole - to rule on Robinson's motion to incarcerate Blackburn.

MURDER CHARGE IN OHIO?

A 22-year-old man being held in the Seminole County Jail on an auto theft charge is scheduled to be returned to Hartford, Conn. within a week for questioning in connection with the June 29 death of a Connecticut college student.

Glenn DeMello, of Hartford, will face a murder charge when he steps off the plane in Hartford, according to State Attorney John Bailey.

DeMello is suspected of killing Paul Klein, 22, a Kent State University senior who was taking summer classes in accounting at the University of Connecticut at Storrs. Klein's body was found floating in the Connecticut River June 30.

DeMello was arrested by Winter Springs police Tuesday after he told a couple he had agreed to drive from Daytona Beach to Seminole County that he had killed a man in Hartford and dumped his body in a river.

The pair relayed DeMello's story to police who, after discovering the car he was driving had been stolen from Klein's mother, made the arrest.

Young People Learn How To Save Lives

Summer is for fun, but 20 young people, ages 10 to 16, spent three hours Tuesday at Seminole Memorial Hospital in Sanford in a most constructive way as 15 went home clutching certificates they were certified in one-person cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR).

The other five were enthusiastic and tried, but were just not strong enough to depress the chest of "Resuscitation Annie", the mannequin, from one-and-a-half inches to two to achieve the required 10 percent normal blood flow. Resuscitation is strenous exercise. The disappointed youngsters were told to go on a diet, not to lose weight, but gain and thus be in form to succeed next year.

Instructors, Ruth Cooper, RN, Kay Mercer, RN and Cathey Helms, all from the hospital staff, also had the students practice "conscious obstructed airways." The course taught the technique which provides basic life support to a person whose breathing and heart beat have stopped. Such a condition may result from drowning, choking, suffocation, smoke inhalation, poisoning, drug overdose, electrocution, trauma or heart attack.

The free course, sponsored by Seminole Memorial Hospital, is being offered to adults Thursday from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. in the hospital auditorium. To register call SMH's education office, 322-4511.

Friday predicted the Senate will not be able to complete action on the tax bill until "sometime next week." matter of record to establish the Democratic position in support of a targeted tar bill rather than one that had any chance of winning. "None of us have any delusions" about its chances, one of its co-spensors, Sen. Dule Bumpers, D-Ark., said prior to the vote.

The one-year targeted tax-cut proposal simed at people earning less than $50,000 a year would have increased the standard deduction, raised the earned income credit for the working poor and allowed a 10 percent deduction up to $4,000 against the so-called "marriage penalty" on two-earner couples. Bradley's targeting amendment resembles the Democratic alternative in the House, although the Ways and Means Committee version calls for a 21-month tax cut. Sen. Edward Kennedy, DMass., one of the amendment's co-sponsors, said under the admininistration's tax plan, Americans with incomes over $50,000 - representing a percent of the nation's taxpayers - would get 36 percent of the tax-cut relief.

He said the Bradley proposal would reduce tax relief to the wealthlest Americans and distribute it among the lower-and middle-income taxpayers.

An amendment by Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., The Democratic alternative was offered as a to lower the corporate income tax rates for small businesses earning less than $50,000 a year, passed, 92-0.

> Under the provision, corporate rates on businesses earning between $25,000 and $50,000 would drop from 20 percent to 19 percent next year and to 18 percent in 1963,

Sea World's Florida Festival Roof Ripped Apart By High Winds

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) - Sea World officials will try to rig a temporary cover and re-open the wind-damaged Florida Festival sometime next week, officials say.

High winds ripped a portion of the fibergiass canopy roof away Priday, exposing about 400 tourists to the elements. Eight people were sent to hospitals, but all the injuries appeared minor.

"It would appear we had a tornado come through," said Orange County District Fire Chief James Sims. Sims said the winds also uprooted some trees in the thems park near the whale tank and in the nearby Williamsburg subdivision. Several guests were treated for bruises and Sea World officials said an 84-year-old man was hospitalized with a possible heart at-

Sea World spokesman Sandra Garrett said it was about 2 p.m. when the nine-story Florida Festival canopy ripped loose from support cables and came tumbling down on hazaar booths inside the 60,000-equare fool

"Right now we're trying to assess the damage, which from walking around looks like the canopy and water damage to the

Another company spokesman, John Rutherford, said it appeared the canopy ripped free after the back door of the festival building blew out.

When the back door blew out we had a serious pressure problem," Rutherford said, "It became much easier for the wind to break through," Rutherford estimated the size of the gash in the Teflon-coated fiberglass roof at 60 by 100 feet. A witness said the collapse occurred during a raging thunderstorm and at first caused mass confusion inside. "Atout half of one of the big main tents ripped apart," said Jerry Berner of Orlando. "We were afraid one of the towers was going to fall, it was scary."

Berner said he didn't see a funnel cloud, but surmised a tornado could have lifted the

To Measure Pollution: Court

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) - The federal Environmental Protection Agency must reconsider its denial of relaxed air quality standards for Florida power plants, a federal appeals court has ruled.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said in an opinion released Friday the EPA used outdated standards to decide the Florida proposal would result in excessive levels of pollution.

The ruling results from an appeal by Florida Power & Light Co. which, along with other power companies, asked the state of Florida in 1979 to relax state restriction on the use of fuel with a high sulfur content. The request was based on a shortage of low-sulfur fuel.

The state approved the proposal and, in accordance with federal regulation, submitted a revised Clean Air implementation plan to the EPA.

EPA approved most of the plan except for the proposed emission limitations for FP&L's Turkey Point and Port Everglades plants. It said the proposal would exceed 1978 regulations for the prevention of significant deterioration of air quality. Those regulations used a baseline date of Aug. 7, 1977 to evaluate emissions limitations.

CIA Director To Be Probed

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A congressional inquiry has begun into the affairs of CIA Director William Casey, President Reagan's 1960 campaign chairman Reagan says he still completely trusts.

The Senate Intelligence Committee directed its staff Friday to look into the controversy surrounding Casey's past business dealings and his appointment of an aide who resigned under fire this week.

"We have decided, relative to Mr. Casey, to ask our legal staff to look into whatever matters might be hanging," said Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., the panel's chairman.

Chapin Violations Told

MINEOLA, N.Y. (UPI) - Singer-songwriter Harry Chapin's driver's license was revoked at the time he was killed while driving his car on the Long Island Expressway in Jericho, state Motor Vehicle Department records disclosed.

The revocation came on March 1 as a result of three speeding convictions that Chapin, 38, amassed in a previous 18-month period.

The department records revealed Friday show Chapin had been convicted at least 15 times since 1973 for speeding, improper passing, failure to signal and driving without a license, operating with a suspended license and driving an unregistered vehicle.

Attorney Hits Jackpot

STATELINE, Nev. (UPI) - An attorney from Delano, Calif., hit what is believed to be the largest jackpot in history early today when his $3 investment in a progressive slot-machine at Caesar's Tahoe returned him $992,012.15.

Jeff Randolph, 31, said, "I'm thinking of quitting my job and taking a cruise around the world. I knew I was going to win when I saw the number of the machine (6125)." He said they added up to some numbers he considers lucky.

Randolph, who is single, said he received seven marriage proposals after the three bars came up on the

Fruit Fly May Spread

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) - Experts fear the Mediterranean fruit fly may spread from residential areas into California's rich farmlands despite massive spraying and five Southern states decreed an expanded quarantine on all state fruit.

Hellcopters, in night forays, are spraying the pesticide malathion over backyards in the Santa Clara Valley, separated by a chain of mountains, from the rich farmlands of the Central Valley.

But some agricultural experts Friday expressed fears the chopper attack was too slow and the Medfly would not be stopped before it travels the 50 miles into

Danger If Delaying Arms Control Talks

Secretary of State Alexander Halg said recently it will be sometime next year before the Reagan administration makes up its mind about strategic arms control. He would not set any date for the resumption of strategic arms limitation talks with

It is unfortunate that the talks are being delayed so long. There is no more important subject on which to keep open the lines of communications between the two great superpowers whose weapons could destroy the world.

Of course, there are considerations of diplomacy and domestic politics that speak for delay.

The SALT II treaty, negotiated by President Carter, was never submitted to the U.S. Senate for ratification. After the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, it was obvious that it could not be ratified

The Republican platform rejected SALT II as fundamentally flawed" and declared thatnegotiations should not be resumed until the security of the United States is assured by the funding and deployment of strong military forces sufficient to deter conflict at any level or to prevail in battle should aggression occur.

President Reagan is obviously avoiding any major foreign policy initiatives during the crucial period in this first year of this term in order to concentrate public attention on his ecomonic program, which he correctly regards as his first priority.

But can SALT issues be placed on the back burner for a year or two? Our European allies do not think so, and they are restive at the lack of leadership.

The Russians are making propaganda out of the fact that they are willing to resume SALT negotiations but the United States, having backed out of the SALT II agreement, is now unwilling even to talk about the subject.

The Reagan administration's chief arms negotiator, Eugene Rostow, told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee the other day:

As of this moment, I don't know anybody in this government, with whom I've talked, who knows what it is we want to negotiate about."

In the Oct. 28 presidential debate, Ronald Reagan declared:

I would say to the Soviet Union, we will sit and negotiate with you as long as it takes, to have not only a legitimate arms limitation, but to have a reduction of these nuclear weapons to the point that neither one of us represents a threat to the

That pledge should be carried out, and soon.

Tank Needs Tinkering

It's beginning to look as if the Army's new XM-1 battle tank is a real clinker.

The huge war machine has failed tests for durability and reliability. It has lots of breakdowns and is next to impossible to fix under combat conditions.

The vehicle is heavy on gasoline, too. It is estimated it will get only 130 miles to a 500-gallon tankful in combat — creating a massive logistics

Earlier reports on the tank indicate it is prone to transmission troubles and tread wear. The XM-1s cost about $2 million each, twice as much as the Army's former main battle tank, the M-60.

The Army wants 7,058 of the new tanks at a total cost of $19 billion. It points out that XM-1 is twice as fast as the M-60, has a better aiming system for its 105mm cannon and carries vastly superior

Driving the M-60 is like moving a house," one tank commander said. The XM-1 is like driving a Cadillac."

"Frankly, comrade, I think your idea of sending Cuban troop. Into Poland is whacko."

Dream on . . .

Who hasn't been caught up in wonderment and curiosity from a dream?

We dreamers are constantly trying to analyze the meaning of a dream-and we usually associate positive and favorable omens with even our wildest nightmares.

Marcia Isabel Rodgers (featured in OUR-SELVES section today) has had 100 years of living. Odds are that Marcia remembers nearly every incident in her lifetime after babyhood. Talking with Marcia leaves the impression that she has lived in another life.

Marcia said she never dreamed until her sister died in Sanford several years ago. Her most recent dream was of a first cousin, who Marcia said, asked for her hand in marriage in the dream.

The 100-year-old dreamer, who never married, mentioned a cousin she admired because he didn't smoke tobacco nor drink.

She chuckled when she said she told him in the dream that she would marry him if he were not

Will the dream come true? We will have to depend on the heavenly angels to report this one. Take it from me-dreams are for real. My experiences are numerous. A couple of weeks or no ago, Mrs. Robert (Eilse) Cornell was searching for a photograph of her daughter, Joanne Cornell, which appeared in The Herald when Joanne was college homecoming queen. Elise had scanned microfilm of editions of The Herald at the Sanford Library until she located the date the photograph was published. It was May 25, 1978.

I took a good look at the zerox copy and informed Elise there was not much chance of locating the picture. We had a housecleaning in the newsroom in the spring, and I held little hope of recovering the photograph of the lovely young

But, I told Elise, I would look.

And I did. But the search was hopeless.

When I phoned Elize that the search was futile,

I am sure I felt as sad as she did.

But I had that old gut feeling that the photograph of the now Mrs. Jonathan D. Ohlman who is working on her doctorate degree in clinical psychology at the University of Kentucky, was near. I thought about that picture for days. Monday morning I called Elise Cornell again after I arrived at work, I inquired of her health. She said she was fine.

"You are going to feel much better when I tell you the news," I eagerly reported.

'What are you talking about?" she asked. "I found the picture," I beamed.

And then I told Elise that I had dreamed the photo was in a brown envelope in a cabinet near my desk mixed in with some wedding and engagement pictures. I went straight to the file

Needless, to say, I think she was thrilled beyond words.

Me?

I'm still shivering from the goose bumps.

JULIAN BOND It's An Unlikely Coalition

Should black state legislators - most of them Democrats - cooperate with Republicans in drawing new congressionaldistrict lines?

Why not? The objections come from the white Democrats who are bound to suffer in any joint venture of their party's most faithful constitutents and the members of the party of Ronald Reagan.

At issue are the 17 congressional seats currently occupied by blacks.

Black legislators typically represent the inner-city districts that have suffered major population losses since the 1970 census. Some of those districts have shrunk so much that they could be eliminated - that is, merged into neighboring districts - by the upcoming reapportionment. This could force black incumbents to face each other at the polls in Republicans are not usually in the business. of helping blacks - especially black Democrats - get elected to office. But facilitating the election of black Democrata currently seems to make some sense to GOP strategists.

The more black voters who are squeezed into predominantly black districts, the fewer black voters will be left to tip an adjoining. predominantly white district toward the Democratic candidate.

The Republicans would then be in a position to tell black voters that they had helped to elect a black to Congress - and to tell increasingly conservative white voters that they had helped to defeat one of those awful free-spending Democrats of the white liberal

If everything goes as the Republicans hope, they will pick up enough Democratic seats in 1982 to gain control of the House.

But the 17-member Congressional Black Caucus won't be reduced in size.

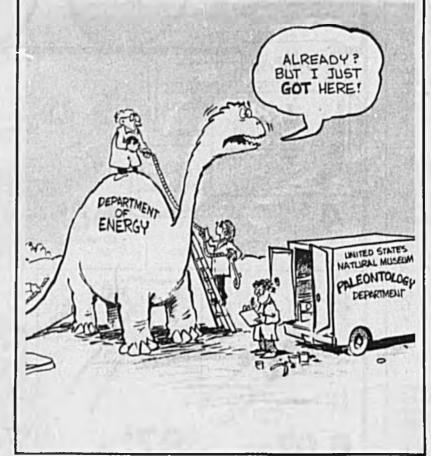

It may even grow if Texas Republicans have their way. That state's Republican governor, William Clements, has threatened to veto any reapportionment can that does not give Dallas a black congressional district.

That the Dallas representative would be a Democrat does not upset the Republicans, who know that the black district would be carved out of surrounding districts that are currently represented by white Democrats. In Michigan, the leaders of both parties have agreed to save Detroit's two black congressional seats even at the cost of another incumbent legislator, probably a

The Michigan Democrats are willing to sacrifice one of their own to keep the state's blacks happy and Democratic. The Republicans, of rourse, see a chance to eliminate black votes in neighboring districts and to provide for the election of one of their

The initial reaction to President Reagan's her, and the president has expressed upreme Court nomines was high dudgeon, satisfaction with her attitudes. She has the Supreme Court nominee was high dudgeon, Judge Sandra Day O'Connor of Arizona, it was charged, favors abortion. The Right-to-Life people, Jerry Falwell of Moral Majority, and other anti-abortion forces vowed a fight to the finish in the Senate, and Falwell predicted that "church people" would desert the president "in droves" - though he did not offer an opinion as to just where they would All this is excessive, and irritating.

In the first place it is based upon next to nothing in the way of evidence.

Back in 1973, when Mrs. O'Connor was an

Arizona state senator, she opposed attaching to a bill an amendment which called for an anti-abortion constitutional amendment.

Her reason for doing so, however, had nothing to do with the substance of the abortion issue. It happens that the Arizona State Constitution forbids attaching "nongermane" amendments to bills passing through the legislature. Senator O'Connor's opposition was thus firmly grounded in constitutional law.

Had she been sitting on the U.S. Supreme Court that same year, 1973, her demonstrated regard for constitutional propriety might well have caused her to vote against the legalization of abortion in Roe versus Wade, a decision which another prime Court candidate, Robert Bork, argues is actually un-

In terms of political tactics, if the right-tolife people persist in their opposition to this nomination, they will look isolated and silly. many of their allies splitting away to vote for the president's choice.

And, on the record, it looks like a good choice. Judge O'Connor is a conservative Republican from the Sun Belt. She grew up on a ranch. At Stanford law school, she was third in her class, and that must have been some class: Justice William Rehnquist was first. She was on the Stanford Law Review, and she won two elections to the Arizona State Senate, where ahe rose to the post of majority leader, the only woman in the country to hold such a position of leadership. She is now serving on the Arizona Court of Appeals, the second-highest court in the state.

Reagan's sure political instincts told him, obviously, that it was time to appoint a woman to the Court - which, as a historical institution, has had not only legal but political and symbolic functions. It was a good move, and meeting the moment, Justice Sandra O'Connor will march into history.

But don't worry, those of you who want to see Bob Bork on the Court, Reagan will be making at least two more nominations, and, by all indications, pretty soon.

On The Danger Of Choice

If they could have their way, most couples would have two children. A boy and a girl, please. And if they were granted a second wish, they would like the boy to be born first.

If you are a woman who agrees with that, you are an enemy to yourself. And an enemy to all women.

Because, my dear, the day is not too far off when you may have that choice. Scientists are making amazing breakthroughs in sex selection before conception. They have developed antibodies for women that will immunize them against male- or femaleproducing sperm (depending on their preference). And they have developed sexselection pills for men, too.

Do you know about the $30 do-it-yourself spit kit already on the market in Switzerland? The expectant mother, in her fourth to seventh month, soaks a small piece of filter paper with her saliva and mails it off to a lab. Within 10 days, she learns with 90 percent accuracy whether she's carrying a male or female child.

What if she finds out the baby is a girl and she really wants a boy? That late in her pregnancy she probably won't do anything about it, but the Chinese have developed a way to find out the sex of a fetus as early as 47 days after conception. Of 100 Chinese women participating in a preliminary experiment, 29 elected abortion. . . when they learned the fetus was female. Only one woman with a male fetus decided to abort. Spooky, isn't it? Well, that's China, you say, with its traditional preference for male children to carry on the family name. That couldn't happen here, you say. The heck it couldn't.

Three California college professors recently published a paper on a sexpreference survey of 710 undergraduates: 409 women and 301 men. The results revealed a 55 percent preference for male children, in general, and male first-born children in particular: 85 percent wanted a first-born boy, for example, while 73 percent wanted a second-born girl. As many women as men wanted a first-born male offspring.

There's a vast body of scientific knowledge that tells us first-borns get a lot of breaks. It has to do with all that parental attention and patience which gives a kid a head start in confidence, self-esteem, learning and excelling. The high number of first-borns among Rhodes scholars and between the covers of "Who's Who" have long been noted.

Over the years, research has indicated that second-borns are more often described as cheerful, easy-going, popular, practical and action-oriented. They also often display more nervous habits and are more likely to seek help and adult approval. Some studies have shown that intelligence declines with birth

So far it's been up to chance whether a male or female got that birth-order break. Now, with scientific sex preselection close at hand, somebody better start thinking about the social and moral implications

Many In The Military 'Fly' Without Planes

WASHINGTON-Members of Congress revealed last month that traces of narcotics were discovered in the bodies of some of the sailors killed in the landing accident aboard the aircraft carrier Nimits. The Navy claimed that drug abuse had nothing to do with the tragedy, however.

Alarmed by the possibility that our service personnel are functioning under the influence of drugs, congressional investigators traveled recently in Germany and Italy to look into the situation. The investigators' findings were not encouraging.

Marijuana smoking and hashish usage are common among 60 or 70 percent of American military personnel in Western Europe, an informed source told my associate Jack Mitchell. What makes this particularly disturbing is that the congressional investigators found that soldiers and sailors admitted getting high on drugs as readily while they were on duty as off-duty. Not only that, the congressional sleuths uncovered evidence that suggests widespread are of the U.S. mails to transport narcotics aboard ships at

The administration has now agreed to let military investigators help civilian authorities track down narrotics violators. It's not a bad idea: At least 130,000 members of the armed services are estimated to be hooked on either alcohol or illegal drugs, and almost one in five junior personnel have reported that they have been "high while working."

Despite the apparent possibility that many of our soldiers, satiors and Marines are zonked-out on duty, the Postal Service has ruled out the use of mail openings and drugsnilfing dogs on military packages unless postal inspectors are present-an obvious impossibility on the high seas.

The situation is so bad that military authorities fear foreign customs officials may start intercepting mall deliveries to U.S. service personnel in hopes of cutting off the smuggling of illicit drugs into their countries.

One congressional expert, while acknowledging that there is a "high recreational use of drugs, even on duty," insisted that "it's not a military full of POKING INTO GARBAGE: Mobsters have dominated the garbage-collection industry in the Northeast for years. Now there is evidence that they have moved into the toxicwaste disposal business.

Congressional and local investigators have been looking into allegations from an un derworld informant that Mob-affiliated elements have not only been operating illegal dump sites and fly-by-night trash-disposal companies, but have also kept their clout in the trash business after selling their companies to SCA Services Inc., the third largest waste disposal firm in the country.

The informant is Harold Kaufman, and he has told investigators that SCA has for a long time "been involved with organized crime in the garbage business and now they're moving into hazardous waste."

Former SCA President Thomas Viola assured investigators for Rep. Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn., that "to the best of my knowledge there is no one connected with the company in any way who has ties to organized

And in fact the FBI and congressional investigators have given Viola and his company s clean bill of health. But there are instance of companies tied to organized crime that have been bought by SCA, with their managers remaining on the payroll.

New Jersey State Police intelligence experts, for example, have identified at lacst three recent SCA employees as having "strong, deep-rooted connections to organized crime." Most disturbing is the case of Crescent Roselle, manager of Waste Disposal Inc., which was acquired by SCA in 1973. Police files show he had close ties to the Mob; he was murdered, gangland-style, last December 22.

In 1973 SCA also acquired the United Carting Co., whose owner, Ralph Mastrangelo, is currently employed on SCA's corporate development staff. According to police records, he and one August Vergalitto were involved in the extertion of a New Jersey contractor, Bergilitto is a known associate of Vito Genovese crime family members John DiGilio and of John Riggl, acting head of the Sam DeCavalcante family.

ployees, I would like to offer the following information in rebuttal.

The United States Postal Service sorts, moves, and delivers over 100 billion pieces of mail per year, more than all the rest of the world put together. The first class letter rate is still cheaper than any other country in the world, 673,067 persons are employed, handling 148,322 pieces of mail per employee, and this reflects a reduction of 90,000 employees in the work force against a 22 percent increase in volume of mail since 1970. That's people out of work!

Rabid Bear Is Alive

What goes on here? We have Earnest. Conine, Los Angeles Times, and Jeffery Hart writing of "The Death of Communism" as if it were an accomplished fact. The fact is, that, if the rabid rampaging Bear of Communism is at all sick economically, the Megabankers-Poland owes them $50 billion, which she can't pay. The International Monetary Fund and the World Bank, courtesy Mr. R. Strange McNamara, are giving the Bear massive transfusions of our good red corpuscles-money- to aid it to keep on living. Why?

The fact is that the experiment of Communism should have been dead and buried long ago if it had not been for men like Armand Hanumer and others of the like. Hammer, not only but has continued to give aid and comfort at every opportunity albeit to his financial advantage. Hammer's Occidental Petroleum is at present constructing a gas line in Siberia and Hooker Chemical Co. of Love Canal fame, an Occidental Subsidary, is raping the phosphate treasures of N. Florida to send to "The Bear" to aid their agriculture. Their agriculture, which under the aegis of communism has been a total fiasco ever since Stalin starved 3 million Kulads-Russian Farmers-to death, to collectivise the Russian farmers.

Hart says: "Marxism fails economically." Conine says: "There is very good reason to believe that communism is a fatally flawed

These arguments being so, why does the Congress permit the American taxpayer to be raped, through Public Law 95-221, which permits the Federal Reserve to "monetize" (print currency) using communist countries debts to the Megabankers the same as they do U.S. Bonds for security for the currency. Paper to secure paper, Ha! All for the resuscitation of the Bear. Talk about "snipe hunting".

It is time to write your senstors and congressmen and tell them to call a halt. to this rape of the American taxpayers' pocketbook, Congressman Ron Paul of Texas has a bill to do this in the hopper. All it needs is support.

Beginning Of End For Communism

President Ronald Reagan has reiterated that "the beginning of the end" is in sight for world communism. The President has likewise expressed his support for the aspirations of the Eastern European captive peoples to achieve the restoration of their independence and self-determination.

Since the great Russians constitute only a little more than 50 percent of the population of the Soviet Union and dominate their puppet countries of Eastern Europe, their privileged Colonial Empire is doomed to fall and disintegrate.

After almost all colonial peoples of Africa and Asia have obtained their independence, only those who are blind to reality fail to realize that the Empire of the Soviet Union is a prison of the people. The explosive forces of nationalism of the Ukrainians, Lithuanians, Latvians, Estonians, Poles, Hungarians, Czechs, East Germans, Georgians, Armenians, Tartars and various peoples of the yellow race is growing in Eastern Europe and in Soviet Asia.

The Russian failures in Alghanistan and Poland show us the weakness of the Great Russian Colonial Empire. Only obscurantists and enemies of human progress and dignity could dare to urge the once independent Eastern European countries to refrain from asking for restoration of their independence. Such persons in the West are out of the main stream of events and trends of this century and the spirit of our age and they are turning their backs on the demands of the 20th Century.

County Commission Meeting Room Was 'Polk Country'

State Rep. Robert Hattway called it the finest budget presentation he had ever witnessed; much more informative and better supported than those he saw presented by dozens of state departments in Tallahassee seeking tens of millions of

During the past five years the activity of the sheriff's communications has grown so rapidly, Spolski said the staff in the unit has not been increased.

After Spolski's part of the presentation, Polk took over and got so wound up during the presentation, he did Jall Administrator Steve Saunders' portion of the presentation for him.

Polk, remarking on state requirements for jails, said his department has been paying $600 per month for each of two COOKS.

'The new state regulations says you have to have a chief cook-or chef- who must have been through the School of Culinary Service." said Polk.

He also noted that the state regulations used to call for giving an inmate a physical examination within two weeks after his being detained in the jail. Now, he said, the inmate must be given a physical within 72 hours and often times the person bonds out right after he's had his physical.

The sheriff said the Seminole County Jail is currently holding 15 prisoners for federal authorities. He said while the "feds" wanted to pay $15 per day for this service, he held out for $25 per day and is getting it. Polk estimated the county will receive $80,000 in the next year for housing federal prisoners. #### On Extinction Path? Affirmative Action:

(Special to The Herald) In the presidential campaign of 1960, Ronald Reagan was the only candidate plainly opposed to the principle of Affirmative Action, the governmental program that requires that some races be preferred to others in hiring, promotion, and school admissions. Yet the Reagan administration has found it difficult to eliminate Affirmative Action, even though such a course of action would be popular and just, as well as altogether legal and effective of racial

For some years, the popularity of Affirmative Action was difficult to judge. Pollsters did not ask Americans about it, and Americans did not know what it was exactly. But now Affirmative Action is pervasive. Every large employer, almost every school district and college, and all levels of government have Affirmative Action programs. Moreover, the constitutionality, justice, and legality of AA have been widely discussed. Accordingly, public opinion is now measurably and unambiguously opposed to the principle of AA. That is, according to recent Gallup polls, a substantial majority of all Americans (86 percent) agrees that no person ought to be preferred because of race. Indeed, a large majority of non-whites (64 percent), who are supposed to be the beneficiaries of AA, are opposed.

The same polls, and others, show that large majorities of Americans of every shade agree that anyone who has been harmed by racial prejudice should be compensated to the extent of that harm by those who did the harm. Thus most Americans understand what the ad-to ignore: not all bigots are fair-akinned, and not all those with darker skins are victims of bigotry. But AA advantages some, and disadvantages others simply on the basis of skin-tone, because those who administer this program require no proof that those they benefit have been victims of bigotry, or that those disadvantaged are bigots.

What popular support AA does enjoy is probably due to the opinion that it is the law of the land. This belief is erroneous. Congress has never enacted a law requiring that the government designate certain races as "protected groups," in order that they be preferred in hiring, promotions, or school admissions. On the contrary, Congress has deliberately refused to enact such a law, in order to enact laws which say just the opposite! From a legal point of view, Affirmative Action exists because some bureaucrata have decreed it. Since AA is not law, but bureaucratic flat, the Supreme Court has had trouble judging it, even though the Court is reluctant to act in ways which might be thought harmful to the interests of racial minorities. Nevertheless, in every case involving AA ordered by an agent of a government, the Court has found it unconstitutional. Some believe that AA advances their private interests. But such evidence as does exist suggests that AA might actually have caused a decline in the rate of hiring of capable members of minority races: the employer knows he can get the government off his back by hiring up to his AA quota: so he does that, regards it as a cost of doing business, and returns to his old ways. In fact, only those who administer AA programs have an unambiguous private interest in the continuance of this racial policy. And the AA industry is probably fairly large. For example, in my university, more are employed administering AA than have been hired as a result of it.

Perhaps all this would be bearable, if AA did not threaten to undermine the very racial harmony it seeks to promote. But the disappointed job-seeker of one race blames AA and the other race for his failure to land a job-even when AA had nothing to do with his disappointment. The reasoning is the same whether he is white ("The quota for white males must have been filled") or non-white ("The quota for black males must have been filled").

But, if Affirmative Action is unpopular, unjust, of suspect legality, and ineffective, why has the new administration failed to put an end to It?

Some members of the administration might fear the accusation that they are "insensitive" to the needs of minorities. But this is a minor problem in public relations, for minorities do not need AA. The President need only articulate what most Americans already rightly believe, to put an end to the demogoguery of AA's partisans.

So the Administration's reluctance to act must proceed from another consideration.

Affirmative Action is now an institution in American society. A large number of Americans have devoted important parts of their lives to the public and private Affirmative Action industries. These people have believedin good faith and for over a decade—that they were laboring on the cutting edge of social progress, because the national government encouraged them to believe so. To dismiss them ingloriously would be harsh. Besides, massive reorganizations of governmental agencies and corporate personnel departments would be necessary, with all the diseconomies that involves.

Thus, the administration has been very gentle. In the appointment of William Bell to head the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, agreements with EEOC's policies and his commitment to the cause of racial equality were stressed, but his position on AA was downplayed. Similarly, Budget Director Stockman has treated AA as though it were just another set of business regulations. He seems to be of the opinion that there would be nothing wrong with AA, if it were cost-beneficial. In these ways, and some others, the administration has artfully contrived to avoid denouncing AA for what it is: an outright violation of the American principle that justice is color-blind, and, what is worse, a violation fostered by the government itself.

However much we might sympathize with the Administration's "go-alow" attitude in deregulating racial relations, it is impossible to sympathize with its failure to articulate principled opposition to Affirmative Action. There ought to be no doubts in the minds of Americans that AA is in the course of ultimate extinction.

Seniors Aren't Children

The child-labor laws were enacted in many states when we who are now seniors were in high school.

Those laws allowed you to leave school and go to work at age 14 if you had what were called "working papers." At 16 you didn't need the papers. That was during World War I. When I came back to high school for my junior year, more than half of the class of 1918 had disappeared. Many students I had known were students no longer. They had become workers. In those days only the well-to-do had small families of fewer than five children. And nearly every household had at least one live-in grandparent. Married women didn't go to work. They stayed at home and reared their brood. Poppa (we didn't call him "Dad") supported the family best as he could. He looked forward to the time when his children would grow up and bring home some money to help meet the bills. In those years it was easy for a 16-yearold to get a job. By today's standards, the machinery of production was unsophisticated. An able-bodied boy could run a machine or work on a factory assembly line putting screw No. 4 into hole No. 4. Similarly, an able-bodied girl could work the treadle on a sewing machine or wrap packages in a store.

Education was less important to the family then the few dollars a week that the children might bring in when they went to work. Many boys and girls applied for their working papers when they graduated from grade school. Some attended high school only until their 16th birthday.

This explains why so many people now 65 and older are considered undereducated by today's standards. But the picture has been changing.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported in May 1970 that six seniors out of 10 had not finished high school. But by 1978, more than eight seniors out of 18 -85.1 percent — had high school diplomas. And 13.4 percent had four years or more of college.

It's obvious that seniors are an increasingly well-educated folk. We should not be treated as children. Local, state and national offices on the aging must they set up programs for us.

Lou Cottin take this data into consideration when

Growing

Older

The days are gone when only young or middle-aged social workers could direct our senior centers. No longer can we be served adequately by people who do not know from living experience what we oldsters want and need.

We need to be consulted. Out own committees should help run our clubs and centers.

We need also to guide those employed by offices on the aging. We need to work as equals with the professionals who direct the programs in which we participate. Specifically, we need to ask the head of every office on the aging, "How many seniors do you have on your paid staff?"

The Older Americans Act recognizes the accumulated widom of our years. All programs under the act must have advisory boards, and more than 50 percent of the members of those boards must be older Americans.

Why, then, are we seniors not employed in similar percentages by our state and local offices on the aging?

Who knows more about the needs of the siderly than the elderly themselves?

'Super Termite' Spreads In South Florida

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

GAINESVILLE - The Formosan "super termite" - described as the world's most damaging - has been found in four new south Florida locations and University of Florida (UF) entomologists now fear the pest will spread throughout the state unless strong measures are taken to

"Ever since we first identified thepest in a Hallandale condominium in. This is the easiest way to spread the July, 1980, we have been watching surrounding areas for additional infestations. In the past month, we've found the termite in at least four other Hallandale condos, all within a mile of the original infestation," says Dr. Phil Koehler, associate professor with the UF's Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences (IFAS).

"Make no mistake about it, this pest is very destructive. It destroys Koehler is urging pest control native Florida subterranean termites, largely because of its high reproductive rate. A native subterranean termite colony usually has about 60,000 termites, but a Formosan colony has about 360,000.

"One of my main concerns is that when infested buildings are repaired, damaged wood is being hauled off to various disposal sites. pest from one place to another. Unless the movement of infested wood is stopped, we're looking at the rapid dispersal of this pest throughout the state," Kohler

Because the Formosan super termite is larger and more destructive than the three species of subterranean termites already common throughout Florida, recommended pesticide dosages to kill the pest.

"We have reports that a few pest control firms have mistakenly identified this pest as a dry-wood termite and merely furnigated the structure. In one case, the cost of furnigating one building exceeded $15,000. Like our native Florida subterranean termites, the Formosan subterranean termite nesta in the soil. Therefore, soil treatments are essential." Koehler

"Another problem we're having with the Formosan termite in south Florida is that it can build secondary nests up in the structure," he adds. "In one case, they chewed through the roof, allowing moisture to enter the nest. As a result, the entire structure had to be furnigated after the soil was treated."

determining if the Formosan termite is causing damage, IFAS can assist in the identification process. Since most homeowners cannot successfully control Formosan termites, Koehler recommends calling a reputable pest control

The super termite is very aggressive about finding points of entry, particularly through cracks and other areas where pesticide treatments have not been thorough. The pest will even attack living trees and creosoted power poles. Koehler says it will also penetrate mortar and plaster with the aid of an acid secretion from its frontal glands.

If wood does not contact soil directly, subterranean termites will build mud tunnels or tubes within cracks of foundations or over the outside of concrete or brick to reach

If a homeowner has difficulty in wood several feet above ground. Cracks in concrete foundations and open voids in concrete block foundations are also hidden avenues of entry, he explains.

The Formosan termite first gained a foothold in Hawaii around the turn of the century, and is now the most serious insect pest in that state. It was first identified on the U. S. mainland in Louisiana in 1965, and has now spread to Texas, Alabama, Florida and South Carolina, probably through shipping ports.

Flying termites come out of their nests to mate, Koehler said.

"If you find flying termites, it may not be a true indication of infestation, but it is a cause to look for termites in your house," Koehler said. The swarmers may have come from infested wood outside the house and simply have flown into the building, Koehler explained.

First Southern Introduces 'Rich Uncle' Mortgage Plan

novative mortgage financing program that has enjoyed tremendous success in other parts of the country will be making its Central Florida debut at Cypress Village, a planned golf course ownhome community in The Highlands in Winter Springs.

First Southern Group, a multi-faceted real estate terest requirements, real company which is overseeing the marketing and sales for Cypress Village, is introducing a variation of the "Rich Uncle" mortgage program, which is designed to bring first-time and moderate owns). income buyers back into the housing market.

According to First Southern Vice President Ronald Schwartz, the three-year shared equity or co-ownership program will be offered on Cypress Village's first phase of 22 townhome residences which overlook the Big Cypress Golf Course.

Price, on the contemporary-style two-bedrcom, two-and-one-half bath units which are highlighted by private wood decks and landscaped entry courtyards will range from the upper $60,000s to the low $70,000. Models are expected to be complete later this month.

Schwarts notes that Cypress Village's Rich Uncle Program will allow buyers

$70,000 residence with a minimal down payment.

Under the program, First Southern will match a townhome buyer with an unrelated "Rich Uncle" cobuyer who pays half of the down payment and, for three years, pays half of the monthly principal and inestate and taxes. In addition to making the other half of these payments, the occupant-owner pays the coowner a reasonable rent for half of the unit (the investor

Thus, a buyer can purchase a $70,000 townhome at Cypress Village with a "Rich Uncle" for a $3,500 down payment and monthly principal-interest payments of approximately $425, depending on the interest rate.

At the end of three years the program is consumated. The home is either sold, with the equity split, or the occupantowner purchases the coowner's interest for a "buyout" price based on an appraised fair market value.

"We are extremely confident the program will enjoy the same success and acceptance as it has in other parts of the country where it has been introduced," explains Schwartz. "The pur-

"We believe the Central Florida market is ready for a mortgage program of this sort, particularly with mortgage interest rates at their present levels and no relief in sight. Other developments in the area will soon follow suit with their won "Rich Uncle' programs," he

The program is as attractive to the non-occupying co-owner as it is to prospective townhome residents. Based on the fact that they receive a nominal amount of rent for their half of the units, the co-owner may be able to claim the purchase as rental property for income tax purposes, qualifying them for rental property tax deductions.

A significant feature of the program is that the co-owner is a co-signer of the mortgage. The lender adds the financial strength of the co-owner to that of the occupant-owner qualifying him for a loan.

Vacation Hideaway, Getaway Can Save You Tax Dollars

A vacation home, if it's a business, can bring you tax breaks, and the "home" doesn't have to be real estate, according to the Florida Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

You can rent out a boat, mobile home, or camper and still deduct rental-related expenses, such as mortgage interest and taxes and casualty losses. A vehicle may qualify for a 10 percent investment tax credit if it's treated as business property. If you and your friends buy any form of "vacation home" as a group, you can all share the benefits.

Whether you rent a house, mobile home or camper, or charter a boat, the deductions you may take depend upon the length of time you rent and how often you use the property yourself. As long as it's rented for fewer than 15 days, rental income need not be reported. Therefore, it is not taxable. This can be advantageious if your vacation home is located near an annual sporting event that attracts crowds of potential tenants. You can deduct your mortgage loan interest, real estate taxes and casualty losses, but no other expenses are deductible.

Your vacation retreat can be considered a business eligible for tax breaks if your personal use doesn't exceed two weeks or 10 percent of the total rental days, whichever is greater. (If the house, camper, boat or mobile home is rented 200 days a year, you can use it for 20 days.) You should also show a profit every two out of five years. Under these circurnstances, rental-related expenses in excess of rental or charter income are deductible on your federal income tax return. If you hire a local rental agent to find tenants and oversee your cottage, deduct the agent's commission.

Other deductible expenses include maintenance and repairs, utilities, and travel costs when you open and close the house or take the boat to a marina. You can also depreciate the property and take a deduction. These deductions are in addition to mortgage interest, property taxes and casualty losses. What if you use your "vacation home" more than two weeks or 10 percent of all the days it's, rented or chartered (whichever is greater)? Then, your business tax deductions can't be, greater than the total amount of the rent you receive. Rental-related expenses are allocated between business and personal use and you can deduct the business portion from rental income, say CPAs.

Here's how it works. You rent your house in Cape May, N.J., for two months at $2,000 a month and live in it for one month. Because the rental usage is two-thirds of the total use, you can deduct two-thirds of the $3,500 worth of interest and taxes, or $2,333, from the $4,000 rent you receive. Two-thirds of the operating expenses of $1,200, or $800, can also be deducted. Your rental income now stands as $867. Since the house is income-producing property, it can be depreciated. The amount of depreciation you can deduct is limited to the rental income, so $867 in depreciation is allowed, making your taxable rental income zero. The balance of $1.167 in interest and taxes can be deducted as additional deductions on your federal income tax return.

If you use your boat, camper or mobile home as a business asset, you can claim a 10 percent investment tax credit in addition to getting the tax breaks already mentioned. How much of the property's cost qualifies for the credit depends upon its useful life. If you bought a large sailboat for $60,000 and it has a useful life of seven years or more, you can claim the credit on the entire cost. This means your tax bill would be reduced by a credit of $6,000. If you and two friends co-own the boat you each claim a $2,000 credit. Two-thirds of the $12,000 cost of a camper with a useful life of six years qualifies for the investment tax credit, so you could claim 10 percent of $8,000 or an $800 legislation now being considered by Congress must be passed to assist the home building industry and strengthen the savings and loans, according to the president of one of the largest builder groups in Florida.

Tax Incentive Advocated To Assist Home Buyers

Michael Ashington-Pickett, president of the Home Builders Association (HBA) of Mid-Florida, said legislation on the floor of the Senate and the House of Representatives is essential for the builder, the lender and the home buyer.

"The Resgan Administration seems to be committed to offering tax incentives to savers," Ashington-Pickett said. "We feel that the incentives should be targeted at mortgage' lending so that the additional savings will go toward home mortgages.

"Such legislation would assist the home buyer who has been locked out by current high interest rates, the lending institutions whose passbook savings accounts can't compete with money market funds, and the home building industry which is in its worst slump since World War II," he said.

The House Ways and Means Committee recently approved a tax exempt savings certificate to be issued only by mortgage-lending institutions that is linked to investment in residential mortgages.

The Senate Finance Committee approved a similar certificate but did not restrict it to mortgage lending institutions or to residential mortgages.

However, Senator Lloyd Bentsen (D-Texas) has said he plans to offer an amendment to target the Finance Committee's savings cer-

Bentsen and Rep. Bill Archer (R-Texas) have been Congressional leaders in the fight to assist the home building industry and the lending institutions.

"This type of legislation will make housing affordable to more American families and get the home building industry and the lending institutions back on their feet." Ashington-Pickett said. "Estimates are that if this legislation passes, housing production would increase by 10 percent the first year and 25 percent the second year,

The home building industry is the second largest in the nation, so that's a lot of jobs that would be created," he said.

The savings and loans, hard-hit by the shift to money market funds and away from passbook savings accounts, also would benefit by the more attractive savings plans. A publisher of a major trade magazine said recently as many as 175 savings and loans may be insolvent by year's end if assistance doesn't come quickly.

"The old long-term fixed rate mortgage that we had come to enjoy has now all but disappeared," Ashington-Pickett said. "So-called creative financing appeared on the scene and the combinations and formulas have changed almost week by to pay high interest rates for the construction loan, but also he is not able to tell his potential new home buyer what the final financial arrangements will be until such time as the purchaser is ready to close the contract."

Ashington-Pickett said it is important that the new savings incentive legislation be targeted for mortgage lending to maximize the benefits to home buyers.

"To pass this legislation it to important the public get in-volved and urge their Senators and Representatives to support the savings incentive bills," he said.

Noting that more and more the savings and loans in the families who are being forced out of the housing market are looking to Washington for solutions, Ashington-Pickett said if the housing crisis isn't "This also has made the life addressed soon it could be a

Major Leaguers Don't Compare With Little Guys

After observing two solid weeks of Little Major League baseball, I've come to the following conclusion. Let the pampered players and the undisciplined owners stay on strike.

There is a freshness to Little League baseball that can't be captured by the big boys. The players play with the abandon of Pete Rose and are not worried about looking pretty.

Oh sure, there are the one-handed catches and the abundance of batting gloves which the youngsters have copied from their major league heroes - but they have yet to copy the player's strike.

As one oldtimer put it in Clermont the other day, "At least I know when I come out to this field, there will be a game and players will play hard."

There are no malingerers in Little League baseball. It is not made up of people like the New York Meta' Ellis Valentine. The former Expo has been known to "take a powder" with an upset stomach. One rumor had the Montreal players organizing a "pool" with the money going to the winner picking the day Ellis went on the disabled list.

There wasn't any disabled list for Eddie Korgan, the Sanford Americans' top pitcher in Wednesday's 1-0 victory over Clermont. Korgan was nailed on the elbow by an aluminum bat in a dugout accident. Ed Korgan Jr. was worried whether the swelling would go down enough for the boy to pitch.

All young Korgan did was turn in the best pitched game of his brief career-a three-hit shutout-against the defending district champions and state runnersup.

Why can a young athlete overcome an injury that may keep "some" paid professionals sidelined? Determination. The game is still a game to a 12-year-old. But to people like Valentine and other hypochondriacs it is a job.

That's why a player like Pete Rose is as refreshing as a Little Leaguer. Pete Rose never grew up. He's still 12-yearold when it comes to playing baseball. It's not a job to him, it's a game. And maybe that's why he's seen playing in the World Series instead of home watching it on television like Ellis Valentine. Rose knows only one way to play baseball, with the vigor and helibent attitude of a pre-teenager. And when that adolesence leaves, so will

After all, the game was invented to be played by kids. And if more major league baseball players took that attitude, you wouldn't hear oldtimers grumbling, "It's just not the way it used

But, then, not many things are. Baseball, however, is still special despite all the idiots that now inhabit the game. It should stay a 12-year-old for as long as it's played.

If you don't think so, take a look at a Little League game sometime.

TOURNAMENT TALK: The Americans' solid battery of catcher Darris Littles and pitcher Eddie Korgan made their broadcasting debut during Thursday's first game at Clermont.

Clermont sportscaster Jim Sharpe of WWFL radio had Littles and Korgan mikeside between innings of the Clermont-Ocala Highlands game.

Veteran public address amouncer Adolphus Church said the two handled themselves real well on the show. "That Korgan's not afraid to speak up," said Church. Most of us already knew that Adolphus.

The city series is a tournament in the past for the Little Majors, but I can't help repeating this story, Gary Taylor, president of the Sanford Baseball Youth Sports Association, was auctioning a Tim Raines autographed baseball to raise some money to defray expenses.

Taylor also coached the Clem Leonard Shell Pee Wee team to the championship this year. One of Taylor's players came up to Gary and blankly asked, "Who's this Tim Raines guy, anyway?"

A red-faced Taylor immediately told the boy, "Don't you ever let him know you were on my team and asked that?" Sounds like a guy that reads that other newspaper in town to me, Gary.

In the sub-District tourney at Sanford, the Americans registered 87 runs in five outings. However, for the third consecutive night the Sanford offense was shut down as Clermont halted the Americans journey with a 5-1 victory Friday night.

All told, Sanford managed just nine hits and two runs in its three tournament outings. Righthander John Heinrich posted the deadend sign on Friday allowing just three singles while striking out nine.

Heinrich gave himself the only runs he would need with a two-run homer off starting hurler Steve Warren in the top of the first. Clermont's four hits in its initial at but would be more than the Americans final hit total.

Sanford right-fielder Reginald Bellamy slugged a two-out single to center in the bottom half of the first and Warren reached on an error to give the Americans their first scoring threat. But

Seminole Names Merthie To Coach Girls' Basketball

Ron Merthle, Lakeview's highly successful seventh grade basketball coach, has been named the girls' varsity basketball coach at Seminole High School according to Assistant Principal Wayne Epps.

"It still has to go through the red tape," said Epps Friday afternoon. "But we got our man."

"We're tickled to death to get Ron. We know he will do a good job and the kids are happy to have him too," said Epps. Merthie replaces Cheryl Klein, who left Seminole to take the assistant coaching position for the girls team at Stetson University. Merthie will continue to teach at Lakeview. No positions are openat Seminole.

Merthie, 31, compiled an impressive

Talks Kick In Fans' Teeth

days after he flew to New York to meet with the negotiators of the stalemated baseball strike, Labor Secretary Ray Donovan summoned them to his Washington office.

His message late Friday afternoon was much different than the one Wednesday.

"It was tougher," Donovan said of his sessions with Ray Grebey, the owners' representative, and Marvin Miller, the players' union negotiator.

While Grebey and Miller were flying back to New York, having arrived and left Washington unseen by reporters, Donovan announced the two agreed in

> Donovan was not specific about what was said, but a statement he issued before the meetings was blunt.

"Both players and owners will understand that a failure to resolve this strike will be a kick in the teeth to the American people," Donovan said. "Unless there is a change in attitude on both sides, I don't think we'll see any games. more baseball this year, and then the players and the owners are going to worry about - millions of very angry

"Both sides should think about that." After the session, however, Donovan was asked if he thought the season could be salvaged.

"In my personal opinion - yes," he replied.

Donovan's activity and strong words come as a welcome sight to weary baseball fans, who have followed the strike through 37 days. The dispute has forced the cancellation of more than 400

That's Pee Wee Reese all over. He's one of nature's gifts to the human race, that rare individual who's perfectly content with what he's got and not the least bit envious of anybody else.

Pee Wee was one of those kids who never even had a bicycle when he was growing up in his native Louisville. The gift he remembers best was the one given to him by his father, he thinks, when he was 12 or 13, It was an old pair of spikes - real baseball shoes. ## Gripe, Complain, But Fans Love Players Just The Same

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) - American sports have probably alienated some fans, but they'll fans may gripe and complain over high salaries and the demeanor of athletes, but two university sociologists say that when it comes down to it, they accept their heroes with open

Dr. Louis Kutcher and Dr. Gerard Brandmeyer, both avid sports fans and sociologists at the University of South Florida, disagree on some points but agree that nothing short of an economic depression will turn fans away from ballparks and stadiums.

"I think sports has such a grip on the American public that the only way you would change that would be to change a structural element that doesn't have anything to do with the sport itself," Brandmeyer said. "A mass depression or something that would cause a signed," change in life style."

And what will happen after the baseball strike?

"I imagine the parks are going to be full," Kutcher said. "But if the strike is not settled this year, I do think the public is going to review the place of sports, I don't think it's going to occupy as important a place in their

"Certainly baseball in terms of fan interest can endure the loss of this season," he said. "If anything, in some ways it stimulates interest because its a novelty."

Brandmeyer sees it a bit differently.

Kutcher said the high salaries of athletes still flock to the games.

"There is an alienation between the fans and the player now that didn't exist before," he said. "It's very difficult for a working class stiff to relate to a millionaire. They don't feel close to the players as they used to

"The fan takes the position he's obligated to be loyal to his team but the players are also obligated to be loyal to the same team and the fans," Kutcher said. "And, when something like Pete Rose picks up and goes elsewhere, that's an affront.

But despite that, Brandmeyer says they still show up for the games.

"In terms of the salary issue, look what has happened in cities where the superstars have creased. It doesn't affect their interest and from the interest of these organized sports teams, they could care less that the fans gripe so long as they show up and pay their bucks.

"I don't think there will be any long-term effect whatever," Brandmeyer said of the strike. "I don't think the behavior of the baseball players and owners will have any long term effect. The interest is there and surely, somehow, there will be baseball in the future."

Brandmeyer also said the owners should realize that their hold on the sport could be in jeopardy by a threat of formation of new

Florida Sues Feds Over Refugee Issue

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) - Florida has taken the federal government to court to force it to reduce by two thirds the swelling population of the Krome Avenue refugee camp in Miami, first U.S. home of the Caribbean "boat people" pouring in by the thousands.

Gov. Bob Graham filed suit in U.S. District Court in Miami late Friday, after two days of negotiations with federal officials, including Attorney General William French Smith, broke down - and after the federal government announced it planned to transfer less than 300 of the camp's 1,600 residents to other states.

"We had expected them to take some action like this, but it's just not enough," Jill Chamberlin, a spokeswoman for the governor, said after the Justice Department announcement that 286 of the refugees

Water Managers Appeal

ISLAMORADA. (UPI) - South Florida water managers have asked Gov. Bob Graham to declare the rapid shrinking of drought-struck Lake Okeechobee an emergency, so they can get state money to seed clouds in hopes of producing rain.

"We can no longer wait," officials of the South Florida Water Management District told Graham in a letter Friday, "We must act immediately if the cloud seeding program is to have a beneficial effect."

The 700-square mile lake, the main reservoir for almost half of the state's population, stands at an all-time low level, and district officials fear a water crisis this winter if it's not filled.

Bee Gees Star Buys Mansion

MIAMI BEACH, (UPI) - For the second time, disco music star Barry Gibb of the Bee Gees has forked over more than $1 million for a home on Miami Beach. Gibb, whose $1,047,500 purchase of a 10-bedroom, 7bath mansion in 1979 was the highest price ever paid for a Dade County home at the time, has bought a second mansion for $1.4 million, a court-recorded deed

The second mansion, just down the street from the first, is a 45-year-old, 12-bedroom abode. It has no pool or tennis court but Gibb's manager, Dick Ashby, said the singer plans to spend $200,000 to add them.

The first house is now up for sale at $1.5 million.

Casselberry Police Vote For Union Representation

By SYBIL MITCHELL GANDY Herald Staff Writer

After four years of no union representation, the Casselberry police have voted in a new bargaining agent.

According to the Public Employees Relations Commission, 25 sworn officers and detectives this week voted that the Orange County Police Benevolent Association replace their non-functioning agent, the Fraternal Order of Police (FOP).

Alan McDonald, a member of the state's Department of Labor said 23 officers voted for the association and two wanted no union representation at all. No ballots were submitted for the FOP.

Orange County officials, who were notified of the election results Thursday, said meetings with police officers will start next week.

But McDonald said a 15-day walting period is necessary before official certification can be granted. Any protests from Casselberry officials or the FOP would be heard during this time, he said.

Eric Manuel, president of the association, said Casselberry police had repeatedly expressed a desire to be represented by an "active" union the force didn't even know they were about," he added.

"In 1977, the Greater Seminole Lodge No. 25 of the FOP signed a union contract with the officers that automatically renews itself annually," Manuel explained.

No meetings were ever held to address any problems or concerns of the force. Consequently, Manuel said, many of the officers had no idea they had a union agent.

The Seminole Lodge No. 25 is no longer in existence, he said. But the self-renewing contract was valid, nevertheless.

Orange County officials filed a petition asking to be certified as the bargaining agent for Casselberry police.

According to state law, an organization filing such a petition must prove that 30 percent of the unit to be represented will be supportive.

Manuel said 19 of the 25 officers signed the petition which was submitted to the commission May 15.

Casselberry Officer Louis S. Robles, a fiveyear veteran who endorsed the association, said police have no particular problem with

"We simply want to be represented by an "Although Casselberry police had an active union to safeguard our benefits," ongoing contract with the Florida State Lodge Robles said. "And any other privileges we Fraternal Order of Police, many members of have coming, we certainly want to know

By United Press International In a far-reaching piece of corporate imagemaking, Datsun is really being driven right

Datsun dealers in the United States aren't altogether happy that Datama eventually will become Nissans, although few expect the switch will hurt business.

100 Years Of Living

By DORIS DIETRICH OURSELVES Editor

Miss Isabel Marcia Rodgers claims she has poor eyesight. But she sprang from a large leatherette reciping chair and thumbed through a stack of mail on a nearby table until she came across the envelope she was looking for — without her glasses.

The envelope bore the return address in blue lettering -The While House.

The beautifully inscribed card wished Marcia a happy 100th birthday and was signed by President Ronald Reagan.

While Marcia talked in a soft, knowledgable manner, she clutched onto a cardboard hand fan that time has fuded. She occasionally smoothed out her crisp cotton snowflake print frock in tones of green, blue and brown that could have been 20—maybe 30 years old.

Born in Lovington, Nelson County, Va., on July 15, 1881, Marcia was the youngest in the family of four childrentwo sisters and a brother. Her parents were John Hoss Rodgers and Isabella V. Baker Rodgers.

The family lived on a farm and it was only natural that Marcia accepted all the farm animals as pets. Her favorite sport—horseback riding—led her to two back injuries which have bothered her since she was about 16. At 18, Marcia ventured out into the world as a school teacher. She earned $1 a day, or $20 a month. By 1908 she managed to save $81, which she felt was "gone for sure" when the village bank "went broke". But after 10 years, Marcia said the bank paid back $0 percent of the interest— "enough to buy a few 2 cents stamps," the charming centenarian laughed.

Marcia said she answered an ad in a Richmond, Va.

Marcia said she answered an ad in a Richmond, Va. newspaper for a mother's helper's job in Dallas, Texas for a railroad lawyer and his wife. She said she was in Texas for only 10 days due to a severe drought.

"The water had to be strained and boiled," Marcia commented in a soothing Virginia drawl. "I couldn't live without water."

Marcia talked about attending business college in Lynchburg in 1906 and 1907, her work with the Census Bureau in Washington, D.C. during 1910 to 1912 and later keeping books in Richmond during World War I.

Isabel Marcia Rodgers celebrated her 100th birthday on July 15. The youngest of four children. Miss Rodgers has remained a spinster. 'I have enjoyed reading more than anything in life," she said. 'I have read everything I could get my hands on."

Marcia said her back gave her so much trouble that she was not actively employed since 1918. She came to Geneva in December 1924 to visit an uncle, Henry Baker. His orange groves were being pilfered and Marcia said her uncle asked her to stay to "watch the groves."

Since that time she made her home in Geneva and Virgenia. Her sister, Miss Ada Rodgers, joined her in Geneva and the sisters lived together for 40 years until Ada died several years ago.

Since January, Marcia has been living in the Sanford home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter (Candyce) Parker who take care of her. Marcia's greatest enjoyment in life has come from reading, she said. She began reading Charles Dickens classics when she was about 12.

"I have enjoyed reading more than anything in life," she admits. "I have read everything I could get my hands on."

But today, Marcia's reading is limited due to her poor eyesight. She says she prefers shorter stories—

Marcia has tried to live by the Golden Rule and Proverbs 21:23 "Whoso keepeth his mouth and tongue, keepeth his soul from troubles."

Her shrewdness as a businesswoman goes back to the days she worked in Washington. She said she saved $1,000 and has lived on investments during the years.

"I never bought anything that I could possibly do without," Marcia remarked pleasantly. She mentioned that she and her sister would purchase remnants of fabrics for clothing and Marcia cut them out on her mother's grand plano in Virginia. "It was the right height for my back," she said. She did the machine sewing, and her sister did the handwork.

Marcia is proud of her "roots". She is of Scotch, Irish and English descent. Ancestors on her mother's side came to the United States from England in 1500, Marcia still belongs to the Presbyterian Church in Lovingston that she joined at age 15.

What makes Marcia Hodgers tick? Scratch good health. Although Marcia portrays the See 188 YEARS, Page 3B

Youth Explore Paradise For Wildlife

By SYBIL MITCHELL, GANDY
iterald Staff Writer

Hundreds and hundreds of wooded acres stretch endlessly long the Spring Hammock region.

along the Spring Hammock region.

Wildlife animal families remain unperturbed by human intrusion on their natural habitats.

Except for the ones near the Environmental Study Center at Soldiers' Creek Park. Why, the poor creatures can't do much of anything without Seminole County school children peering through bushes to observe their living habits.

And as if that isn't enough, 30 county students for six weeks each summer explore the park, learning what it means to live in the wild — which plants are edible and which are poisonous, what to do for wounds or hites — all aorts of interesting things.

These Youth Conservation Corp teens, ages 15-18, make every day a new experience in learning. They have built greenhouses, planted trees, learned to canoe and camp, and well, you just name it.

As a matter of fact, in the five years that teens in the Youth Conservation Corp have worked in Soldiers' Creek Park, the 266 acres have become a natural paradise for wildlife, says Pat Burkett, an environmental instructor with the program

Burkett, an environmental instructor with the program.

"With miles and miles of nature trails, catwalks and boardwalks, the Environmental Study Center creates an awareness and appreciation for their environment," Burkett said. "They get a chance to see what Florida was like before people moved in to build."

Aside from the study tower, the pavilions, and bridges, this area is left unmanicured. Seminole County schools use it during the regular year for environmental field trips while the YCC each summer spends hours on end building up the nature study program in the county schools.

According to YCC instructors, the center wasn't much to brag about that first summer in 1977. The structure in the park was an old building moved from Lawton Elementary School, constructed in 1926.

"But the kids built partitions in it and a deck on the front. And each year, they've added something new," Burkett said. "From the picnic tables and benches to the nature-study pavilion, the YCC has made Soldiers' Creek Park what it is today."

Conservation youth in summer have become a kind of landmark at Soldiers' Creek. And their annual Projects Day marked the program's traditional "nature-on-parade" show. Betty Palmer, director of the Seminole County YCC, was only one of many on hand for back-to-nature banquet on Projects Day.

YCC students Murray Anderson, Ron Bradley and Miguel Hernandez prepared the menu as their project. And headlining the first course were loads and loads of wild ground cherries and palmetto shoot sprouts.

Another YCC student, Kathy Burkett, researched food substances for the project. During the "touch-and-taste" presentation of the goodies Kathy explained what was being eaten and where it could be found.

Susan Neisweinder created exclusively original designs on a hand-carved wooden key chain she made for her project. Instructor Pat Burkett explained that the youngsters work in pairs on some projects, but each student must complete an individual project to pass the course.

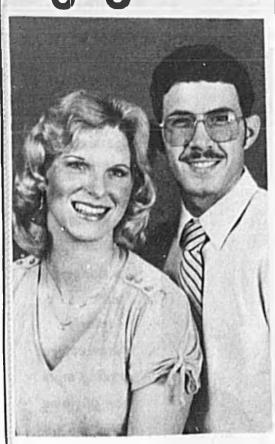

This year the program began June 15 and ends on July 24, And program participants are paid $3.35 for seven of the eight hours they come each day. A computer chose them at random from the hundreds of Seminole County applicants. The student get three hours credit for the program, Burkett said.

And they work hard!

This year, they built outdoor nature-study pavilions at Wekiva, Longwood, and Redbug Elementary Schools — not to mention a greenhouse at Oviedo High School.

Officials at the study park recently celebrated news that 1,500 acres will be added to the park within the next year.

'Outsized Caboose' Causing Man Despair

DEAR ABBY: I am a 21-year-old male who needs your help with an embarrassing problem. It's my behind. It is enormous! I'm 5-foot-8 and weigh 180.

I work out three times a week at a health club and am inpretty good shape except for the abovementioned. I've tried every conceivable exercise and diet I've come across, but can't seem to lose any of the flab back there.

It's just plain fat, Abby, and no amount of exercise can firm

Someone told me that it can be removed by surgery. Is that so? I don't care if the operation is painful and leaves a scar. Anything would be better than hauling around this outsized caboose all my life. I'm not exaggerating - I look practically deformed. It's so bad I hate to go to the beach.

If this kind of operation can be done, who would do it? A YARD OF LARD DEAR YARD: A plantic surgeon, (But try to find one who doesn't mind getting a little behind in his business.) DEAR ABBY: You have stated many times in your column that the unwed mother who gave up her child for adoption showed the ultimate in unselfishness. Well, it's time you heard from one of the "selflsh" mothers who kept her child over the objections of her parents and many well-meaning friends.

It took more than unselfishness for me to keep my baby. It took courage, determination, confidence and a lot of guts! I was 17 at the time and had to drop out of school in my senior year. I had my baby, went to work, borrowed money and paid it back. I finished my education and didn't go on welfare, either. I made a choice that was right for me and I never-regretted it.

Abby

I am now married to a fine man and we have two other children. I thank God that I kept my firstborn. I will never have to wonder how she is, what she looks like, what her interests are or how she will turn out.

'SELFISH" IN WISCONSIN

DEAR SELFISH: Your case is very rare, and I commend you. The most recent statistics show that last year in this country there were 1.1 million pregnancies among teen-agers, and that % percent of those girls kept their babies. About twothirds of this number will go on welfare, resulting in the cost of about $8.3 billion a year to taxpayers. (P.S. More than 90 percent of the teen aged boys who fathered these children took no responsibility for the baby or the teen-aged mother.)

DEAR ABBY: If after years of hard work, your husband finally had an opportunity to do what he has always wanted to do - run his own business and be his own boss - but it meant that you would have to leave your lifelong friends and part of your family, your lovely, comfortable home and move to another state where you knew no one and would have to practically start all over again, what would you do?

DEAR EDNA: Are you kidding? I would go with him and never look back. And I've done it three times - with no picture of health, she has had her share of physical problems beginning with the two back injuries. In 1954 she had major surgery due to a fibroid tumor. She has a kidney removed and has had eight strokes.

"I have had neuralgia all my life," she said. She claims her neuralgia and digestion improved after she started drinking ocean water.

Marcia said she never sleeps more than six hours nightly. She never naps and did all the work around the home with five extra lots she bought in Geneva.

As mentally alert as a person half her age, Marcia has the memory of an elephant. She accurately recalls dates and happenings from the time she was 3 to the present. On Wednesday Marcia's family honored her with a luncheon at the Geneva home of a cousin, Meade Baker, and his wife, Anne. During the late afternoon, Marcia received friends and family at a lea at the Baker home. For this occasion, Marcia wore a dress made by Candyce Parker. The shirt waist dress was fashioned from a thin polyester fabric featuring blue flowers printed on a white background. Dainty lace trimmed the elbow length sleeves. A corsage complemented the becoming dreas, Marcia's short gray hair was swept from her face in a stylish colffure. She was smiling. Hosts for the tea with the Bakers were two of Marcia's nieces and their husbands, Mr. and Mrs. Harry (Mae) Holman, Richmond, Va., and Mr. and Mrs. Richard (Florence) Silberstein, Boulder, Col.

One of the most frequent questions that Marcia has been asked during her lifetime is: "Why didn't you ever get married?"

A smile crossed Marcia's face as she carefully answered: "I never saw a man I thought I'd be interested in for 50 years," she said while smoothing out her print dress, "I couldn't find one I could love who didn't smoke or drink. I never liked tobacco smoke,"

What are Marcia's hopes and expectations as she crosses over the threshold of 100?

"Going to heaven just as soon as I can possibly get there," she said. "I've got so many more relatives there than here."

The corners of Marcia's mouth turned up into a beautiful, peaceful smile-that of contentment and happiness

The Go	od Old Days
	Ah, for the time when life was simple for a picnic and there would be no jet pla overhead. You didn't have to worry shortages and oil shortages and the ch war. You didn't have to worry.  Believe that?  If so, seek out an oldster and ask hir was, allowing a little bit for the conostalgia.

Ah, for the time when life was simple! You could go for a picnic and there would be no jet planes screaming overhead. You didn't have to worry about sugar shortages and oil shortages and the chance of global war. You didn't have to worry.

If so, seek out an oldster and ask him how it really was, allowing a little bit for the camouflage of nostalgia.

Chances are you'll find only one thing was really different. People did seem to have more faith in the old days. They seemed closer to the church. Maybe that's one reason why life was tranquil, more trouble free.

It could be worth investigating.

Blackwood Brothers To Give Free Concert At Civic Center

The Blackwood Brothers will be in concert at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Sanford Civic Center. This praise gathering originally scheduled for the Sanford Church of God has been moved to the civic center to better accommodate the public. There is no admission charge.

Kid's Krusade

There is to be a "Kid's Krusade" Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at the Trinity Assembly of God sanctuary at 7:30 p.m. led by child evangelist Karren Siddle. There will be songs, stories, puppet shows and prizes for everyone. The program is open to all Deltona area children. The church is located at 875 Elicam Bouleyard.

The Lonely Housewife

"What Wives Wish Their Husbands Knew About Women: The Lonely Housewife" will be the topic for this week's film in the Dr. James Dobson Focus on the Family film series to be shown this Sunday at 7 p.m. at Community United Methodist Church, Casselberry. The series is free to the

Service Set At Center

Youth of the Seminole Heights Baptist Church, Sanford, will participate in a service at 1:30 p.m., this Sunday, in the Lakeview Nursing Center. They will lead residents of the home in music and present a Bible study. This activity is one of those planned for the church's youth for this summer using the theme "God's Ministry for Me."

Mike Murray, the church's summer youth worker, will coordinate plans with Mr. and Mrs. J.T. Hardy Jr., who give direction to an on-going ministry in this nursing center. The church also ministers weekly in the Sanford Nursing and Convalescent Center, teaching the Bible to approximately 30 persons in each center weekly.

Missions A Two-Way Street

On Monday at 7:30 p.m., the Mina Rojas Circle of the Seminole Heights Baptist Church will meet in the home of Mrs. Forrest Foggin, 108 West 18th St. The program, led by Mrs. H.R. Billingsley, will be entitled "Baptists, Receiving and Sending Missionaries."

This circle, composed mostly of women who work out of the home during the day, is named in memory of the wife of Victor Rojas, missionary in Boquete, Republic of Panama, who has been a frequent visitor in Sanford during the past eight years. Chairman of this circle is Mrs. Jay T. Cosmato, wife of the church's pastor.

The Jacksons To Sing

"The Jacksons"-Sars, Lynn and Darlene-will perform at Grace United Methodist Church during the 11 a.m. Worship Service on August 2. The clear and unaffected style of these three sisters blends the influence of gospel, folk, hymn and contemporary music into a spiritual flavor.

Christmas In July

The Congregational Christian Church, 2401 S. Park Ave., will celebrate "Christmas in July" worship service this Sunday.

Members of the church will bring gifts to distribute to the patients of the Good Samaritan Home on Sunday afternoon. Associate Pastor Edmund L. Weber's sermon topic will be "Cradle to King."

Christian Women To Meet

The Altamonte-Maitland Christian Women's Club will hold its July luncheon Thursday at 11:30 a.m. at the Maitland Civic Center. Featured will be "Best of Backyard Barbecues" by Betty Boza, music by Janet Rucker of Winter Park and Dick Smith of DeLand will speak.

Revival Services Scheduled

Sessions for children two years through rising eighth graders will be from 9 a.m. to noon and for high school youth, 7-8:30 p.m. The theme will be "Jesus, Your Word Lives in Me." Children may register Sunday at

Bishop Announces Accord

Efforts to unite traditional Episcopalians seeking to maintain traditional Anglican customs and rites were advanced this week in an accord announced by the Right Rev. Walter H. Grendorf of Altamonte Springs, suffragan bishop of the Eastern Diocese of the American Episcopal

The accord, providing for intercommunion between the American Episcopal Church and the Anglican Episcopal Church, came from a meeting of bishops of the two churches in Washington, D.C. The Right Rev. Anthony F.M. Claver of Deerfield Beach, primus of the American Episcopal Church, and the Right Rev. Walter H. Adams, head of the Anglican Episcopal Church, view the accord as the first step towards uniting the two denominations. Bishop Grundorf said that talks are also being conducted with bishops of other Episcopal groups interested in retaining traditional canons and liturgy.

Earlier this year, he added, intercommunion was established between the American Episcopal Church and the Anglican Catholic Church of Canada.

In View Of Court Decision

Churches Urged To Prepare For Draft

UPI Religion Writer

In the wake of the Supreme Court's decision upholding a maleonly draft, religious leaders are urging the churches to prepare for the possibility of conscription with counseling on draft options for their

"In light of the Supreme Court's decision barring women from registration, we expect rapid congressional movement this summer toward bringing back the draft," said the Rev. Warren Hoover, executive director of the Interreligious Service Board for Concientious Objectors. Formed 40 years ago at the advent of U.S. participation in World War II, the Interreligious Service Board has primarily been an agency to aid objectors from the traditional peace churches in their relations with the Selective Service System.

But with the Vietnam War and the rise of morally based "selective conscientious objector" claims from young men in non-pacifist churches, the base of the organization was enlarged to include representatives from other churches as well.

Hoover, in urging the churches to be prepared for possible conscription, noted that the Selective Service System, which will oversee any draft, has moved from a single floor, downtown Washington office building to its own newly constructed five-story office building in the Georgetown section of the city. "We urge all possible efforts to be youth are informed of their options," Hoover said. "Right now there is an almost total lack of information on what the law does and does not allow concerning conscientious objection and on the processes of making and documenting a claim."

Interreligious Service Board officials and Selective Service officials have met in an effort to work out an understanding of how alternative service programs for religious and ethical conscientious objectors might operate.

Under the current registrationonly law, passed following the Soviet Union's invasion of Afghanistan, there are no provisions for conscientious objectors.

But it is still unclear as to how were paying for kosher food was excessive and bordered on profiteering.

We will learn the truth and take whatever actions necessary to bring the price of kosher meat and poultry down to a reasonable level," said Harold M. Jacobs, the new president of the international organization.

"If there is profiteering, we will stamp it out and if there is money to be made on kashruth supervision (the process of certification), then we will see that it is directed to the support of Jewish Under the strict dietary and education, where it belongs, and not in the pockets of entrepeneurs," Jacobs said.

> One of the major reasons for the new concern stems from the current vitality of the Orthodox movement within American Judaism.

According to some officials, many young Jewish couples who want to keep a kosher home are unable to do so because of the high cost.

The issue has sharply divided the Orthodox community.

According to a "white paper" circulated at the convention, the Issue "has been an area of contention within the community both because of the complexity of the kashruth (kosher) laws involved and the large amounts of money concerned Experts on both sides of the price issue say that the additional kosher production cost at the slaughterhouse level is between 10 and 15 cents a pound for meat and poultry

And both acknowledge that both the wholesale and retail level price is often anywhere between 50 percent and 100 percent higher than similar non-kosher items.

Rabbi Binyomin Walfish, executive vice president of the Rabbinial Council of America, told the Young in all aspects of the Israel convention the result is the market.

gouging, especially for Orthodox Jews living in small, isolated communities.

But a retail businessman specializing in hosher food, Sam Brach, strongly disagreed and claimed that the national kosher certification agencies went beyond the minimum standards of the dietary laws, setting such extreme requirements for certification that they created essentially a monopoly situation in which a few slaughterhouses are put in the position of controlling kosher meat and poultry products was a mere 5 percent and the high prices in his store reflected the premium he has been forced to pay on the wholesale level.

At the same time, Wallish also noted that unnecessarily strict interpretations of other Jewish laws were significant in driving up the price of religious articles used in Orthodox worship.

As an example, Walfish said some regulations regarding the manufacture of prayer shawls had driven some of their prices as high as $1,000.

Pulling Shades On Drinking Clergy

"Pull down the shades," Bob told his wife.

We were about to have a glass of wine at the parsonage, which was built close to the road in the little town of Dennis, on Cape Cod. Anyone passing by could easily see in the living room windows.

Bob wasn't a Methodist minister. He was a Congregationalist, but sometimes provincial New England Congregationalists could be funny about their minister drinking. No use taking a chance.

So Betty pulled down the shades and Bob brought out the

I am reading "SUNDAY: A Ministers Story," by Rev. John C. Harper, D.D., who was rector of St. John's Church in Washington, D.C., when his book was published in 1974. In the book the rector is always mixing up a bunch of martinis, going to cocktail parties or ''getting together for dinner and drinks, The rector admits he drinks too much, but you don't get the idea he is going to cut down tomorrow. There is an almost "studied worldliness" in the picture he draws of himself. I would take a guess that the average minister falls somewhere between these two stances when it comes to drinking. He doesn't hide the fact that he might take a drink, but he doesn't advertise it either.

Nowadays, even a Methodist parson may feel it is all right to have a social drink now and then.

Up until 10 or 12 years ago, a cleryman being ordained in the Methodist Church was asked point-blank by his bishop whether he would promise to abstain from alcohol and tobacco. Presumably he could have answered no, but nobody ever did.

Today the question is put more ambiguously. Nowadays there is nothing wrong with a Methodist minister accepting a glass of punch at a wedding reception without first asking, "Is it spiked?" When British Methodists approved elbow-bending among their members several years ago, the unhappy British Ternperance Society blamed the change on the younger Methodist clergy "who themselves are drinkers." So, as drinking becomes an ever bigger problem in society. the churches continue to back even further away from taking a tough stand on the issue. They may get worked up over abortion, but they gloss over the fact that 30,000 traffic deaths a year are attributable to drinking drivers.

Lutherans may divide over the historicity of Jonah and the whale but they stand united in their devotion to drinking. One study at Rutgers University showed that 85 percent of adult Lutherans drink. Yet Lutherans of a couple of generations ago put Prohibition in the same category as social dancing: Both were evils.

Prohibition, of course, may not be the answer. Most people would say that Prohibition was a failure when it was tried between 1920 and 1933. If it failed, one of the reasons was that Prohibition laws were hard to enforce.

It was illegal, for instance, to sell fermented alcohol. But nothing was said about selling grape juice that might ferment after it stayed in the cellar awhile.

This is where "wine bricks" entered the picture. Wine bricks were a grape concentrate in solid form, about the size of a pound of butter. They came in several flavors - sherry, muscatel, claret and others. The secret was to let the bricks dissolve in a gallon of water, add sugar and shake the mixture every day. In three weeks you had wine with a 15 percent alcoholic content. But to put these directions on the package would be illegal under the provisions of the Volstead Law.

So the makers of the wine bricks printed a list of instructions which said: "Do NOT dissolve this brick in a gallon of water, add sugar and shake daily for three weeks. To do so would give you wine with 15 percent alcoholic content."

Salute To Unsung Heroes

Sanford is very fortunate to have a goodly number of honest and sincere individuals who make our city a better place in which to live. The following is a list of a few of our many "unsung heroes" who have contributed a great deal of time and effort to make our city what it is today. Obeying the Biblical injunction of giving honor to whom honor is due, I would like to pay tribute to these individuals.

award of appreciation on behalf of the Singing

Kings of Joy, Brown was the highest donor at the Gospel singing group's recent anniversary.

EDDIE - Living proof that a person can be active in politics and yet maintain a good Christian witness. Eddie is vitally interested in law and order and spends many hours in voluntary police work.

PREDDIE — One of Sanford's leading business men. The posters in the windows of his establishment are indicative of his love for Christ and his fellow man - an outstanding leader in fraternal circles.

BOB - His greatest asset is humility. Following in the foolsteps of his father, he is a "chip off the old block." An active Rotarian. At a meeting of the officers of his church, on one occasion stated that we had been preaching about faith long enough, we should try to live by it.

THELMA - Confronted with the task of filling the shoes of one of the greatest people who ever lived in Sanford, she is proving to be a champion for the poor and aged of our city. RUSSELL - A sincere indidual who treats his patients with a great deal of compassion and empathy. When you leave his office you come away with the impression that he is genuinely concerned for you as an individual. By FRED L. NEAL Pastor Congregational Christian Church

ROBERT - Loved by his clients. Certainly our Lord was not referring to him when he said "Woe be unto you lawyers". He is an outstanding Christian layman,

BILL AND BOB - Vitually interested in the safety of Sanford citizens - lovers of motorcycles. If one of them gave you a ticket and you thought it was unfair, just think about the many times you perhaps violated a traffic law and were not caught.

JIM AND BONNER - Combined they act as a moral conscience of our community. You may not always agree with them and (for good reason) but one is forced to admit in view of their numerous letters to the editor that they believe in an informed citizenry.

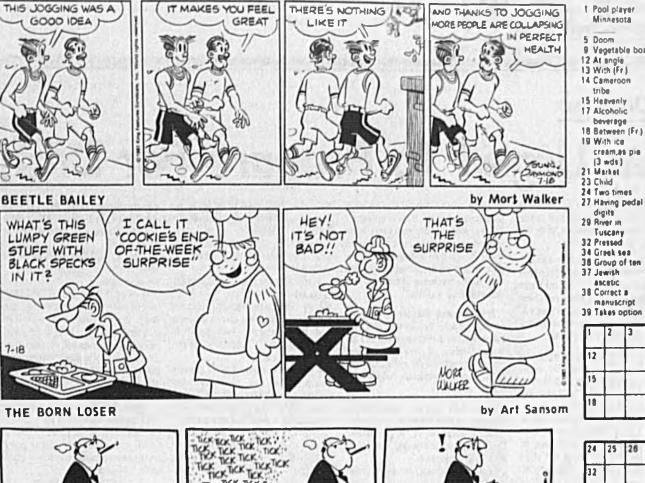

ALAN - Gives an honest day's work for an honest day's pay. Active in church and civic affairs. Dedicated to his family. You won't find his name in the phone book. His name is anonymous. We are fortunate we have a lot of

P.S. Please do not call me or write me about the faults of the above individuals. I make no claim of perfection for any of them and they would be embarrased if i did.

Here is a hand from "International Popular Bridge" that shows how to bring home an almost impossible contract. Like many play problems you really shouldn't be where the composer puts you.

If North had simply doubled four spades he could set declarer five tricks with the unusual lead of ace and another club and might even get that same result with a diamond lead. But he did bid five diamonds over West's four spades.

West led the ace of spades and continued the suit. East ruffed and led back a heart. See if you can figure out how South scores the rest of the tricks. If you can't work it out, don't be upset. Very few people can. Now here is the play. Win in dummy. Lead a diamond to your ace to learn the bad news Then play a club to dummy's ace. Ruff a club. Lead a heart to dummy's queen and a diamond to your eight spot. Now cash your ace of hearts to discard a club from queen of clubs. You lead your queen of diamonds. West has to discard if he throws a club, overtake in dummy and ruif one of his clubs. Dummy is now good.

Disaster

"I was right under it when it fell," said Sandy Goodrick, a Kansas City resident who had attended previous Friday night dances and suffered only multiple cuts and bruises. "We just walked in when this horrible explosion occurred and everything just fell down.

"After it, there were guts and blood all over the floor."

The Hyatt Tea Dance, a feature in the hotel on Friday nights, had grown in popularity since the building was opened. The lobby was jammed with dancers and onlookers as the might's festivities began to peak about 7 p.m. CDT.

Scores of people, wanting a better look at the dancing, stood on the walkways which stretch along the side of the hotel's atrium on the second, third and fourth floors.

The walkways were one of the most striking architectural features of the hotel which cost $50 million to build and which helped boost Kansas City into the top 10 convention centers in the nation.

Suddenly, the walkway on the third floor began to sag in the middle and then cracked apart, sending steel girders, concrete and an estimated 50 people cascading down to the firstfloor walkway. Unable to stand the sudden burden, the firstfloor catwaik - where another 100 people were standing - collapsed as well and the immense pile of debris slammed into the lobby and onto dance floor, striking people standing by a bar

"We were just down here for the dance a couple of weeks ago and it was just lovely," Ms. Goodrick said. "Now it's just a tragedy. There was a man walking out with a woman in his arms and her leg was gone. Later he said

Rescue operations were quick to begin. Two large cranes were brought to the scene in an attempt to lift the steel beams and the concrete surrounding them. Special care had to be taken, however, to prevent a slip that could snuff out the lives of those still alive under the dividuals trapped beneath steel and concrete slabs cried out for deliverance but firefighters were helpless as the victims fell silent succumbing to the mercy of unconsciousness or to death.

'Get Me Out Of Here, I Beg You'

"Get me out of here, I beg you," one trapped person screamed.

The pleas struck deep to lirelighters accustomed to saving lives, but rescuers could do little. Teams were working as fast as possible in painstaking attempts to attach huge crane books to massive chunks of debris so that bodies beneath could be freed.

"They're just having a real tough time working in such a confined area," Police Sgt. Jim Treece said, explaining why it took more than six hours to free the first live victims from the wreckage.

"They can't just take bulldozers in there. They've got to go through windows with those huge cranes and they are terribly afraid any wrong movement is going to result in more debris falling on victims."

As he spoke, three crane operators maneuvered their machines into position by going through large plate glass windows that decorate the facade of the plush, 40-story Hyatt Regency hotel, opened a little more than a year ago. By early today, nine living disaster victims had been freed from the rubble and taken to area homitals.

Hours earlier, two skywalks - one on the second story and one on the third - folded at the center and crashed to the lobby below, where an estimate of 2,000 Friday night dancers swayed to the Big Band music of Steve Miller's Orchestra. The revelers were attending the Hyatt's weekly Tea Dance.

Dozens of hotel guests were standing elbow

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) - Mangled in- to elbow on the walkways watching the dancing below them when the disaster struck. Most fell to the floor as the collapsed skywalks trapped scores more below.

Authorities say dozens were killed and scores injured. One young firefighter who asked not to be identified took a five-minute break hours after the tragedy hit and tearfully described the rescue attempt.

"There are people in there chopped right in two. I could count close to 100 people lying around, some beyond help. They look like limp dolls. Some were begging me to get them out.

"This is the worst thing I've ever seen. With so many people in there and the electricity off, it must be 120 degrees inside."

A Red Cross worker at the scene, Randy Alexander, 17, Kansas City, relierated the firefighter's description of the scene.

"People were screaming, 'Get me out, oh please get me out," said Alexander, who last night served his first stint as a Red Cross volunteer. "Some of the people were in pools of blood six inches deep. "There's a thick layer of cement and corrugated metal inside. It's difficult to cut through that without injuring those people."

John Ecklund, an emergency room technician at University Health Sciences Hospital, estimated that 800 to 1,000 medical personnel were either at the disaster scene or at area hospitals.

"There are heads cut off, arms cut off, hands, legs, everything," Ecklund said, describing the emergency room at the hospital. "It's a real mess."

Officials at St. Mary's Hospital notified authorities the medical center could not handle any more critically injured people.

There Were Other Tragedies

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) - Summer has been a season of death and disaster in Kansas City in three of the last five years.

Three major summer disasters - a flood in 1977, a heat wave in 1979 and the collapse of two crowded walkways into an even more crowded lobby at the Hyatt Regency Hotel

During the summer of 1979 record temthe likely cause in 135 deaths in the an estimated $78 million in damages.

metropolitan area. Most of the victims were inner-city residents without air conditioning, according to Jackson County Medical Examiner Bonita J. Peterson.

The initial disaster of the cycle, the 1977 flood, was triggered by a storm that pelted Kansas City with 16 inches of rain during the evening and early morning hours of Sept. 12-13. The resulting flood waters surged into the peratures that hovered near the 100-degree city's posh Country Club Plaza area with mark for almost seven weeks were listed as crests of 20 feet, killing 25 people and causing

Although the 1981 hurricane season did not open officially until June 1, the year's first Atlantic tropical storm is already history. Arlene, christened May 7, dissipated it's destructive energy in the Caribbean before developing hurricane force. Hurricanes can blow up anytime during the year from spring on, but fall is the high season. The Gulf and South Atlantic coasts are the most hurricane-prone areas of the United States, but big storms have ranged devastatingly along the entire Eastern seaboard. A list of names, alternating masculine and feminine, is compiled annually by the U. S. Weather Bureau to identify storms with hurricane potential. Map shows some of the most devastating storms of recent years.
