Bus stop death appeals heard

SANFORD - The Fifth District Court of Appeals will decide whether the charges against a man in a fatal Lake Mary bus stop accident are adequate.

A Seminole Circuit Court judge has dismissed some charges against James Allen Garner, 30, for the third time. Judge O.H. Eaton agreed with the defense argument that some of the charges filed against Garner were not specific enough to enable him to prepare a defense.

The state attorney had charged Garner with manslaughter, vehicular homocide and two counts of inflicting injury by culpable negligence. Only the vehicular homocide charge

A trailer which Garner was towing Oct. 9 broke free and struck some children waiting at their school bus stop. Jeremy Millhouse, 11, was killed and two other boys were seriously injured.

Jack Scalera, chief of operations in the state attorney's office, contends the information is adequate and will appeal Eaton's ruling. In April and July. Eaton also ruled the charges were not specific enough. Each time, reworded charges were refiled.

Sanford center expands before it's even built

By NICK PFEIFAUF Herald Staff Writer

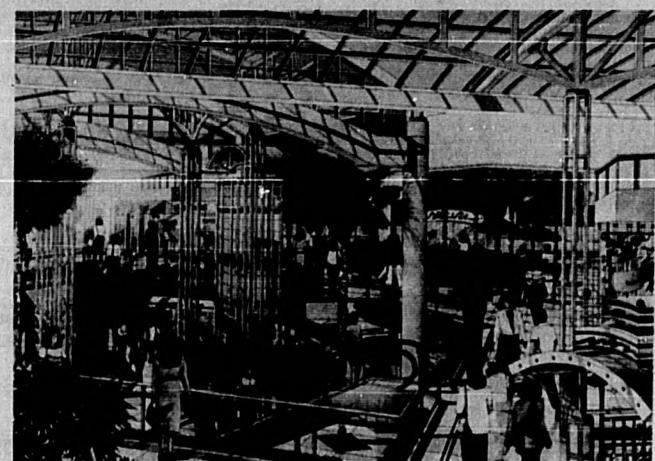

SANFORD - Even before construction starts. the Seminole Towne Center Mall has grown, making it perhaps the largest in the state upon completion, a spokesman for the builder said

The mall will be 235,000 square feet larger than originally proposed.

As a comparison, a spokesman for the Altamonte Mall indicated the leasable area of that facility is 1,084,693 square feet. Altamonte Mall is one of the ten largest malls in Florida.

Spokesman for developers Melvin Simon and Associates, Tom Schneider, predicted, "The expansion will make the Seminole Towne Center operate better than any other mall in the entire state, and it will probably be the largest as well." James Willard, an attorney representing the developers, made the announcement before the Sanford City Commission last night. "What we are now seeking." Willard said, "is

Freshwater site may be expanded

By J. MARK BARFIELD Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD - Members of the Geneva Freshwater Lens Task Force tentatively voted Monday to expand the size of the Geneva Bubble to 26 square miles and will recommend measures to protect it.

Task force members also approved recommendations to import treated wastewater to replenish the bubble and to recommend low-water-use construction standards in the area. The task force, created this year by the Legislature, must recommend by December whether additional regulations are needed to protect the Geneva Bubble, an isolated freshwater supply in northeast Seminole County. Tests have found that a drinkable well can be only 40 feet away from one contaminated with salt water.

In their initial session to consider recommendations, task force members agreed to set the area of Geneva that lies 20 feet above mean sea level or higher as the primary bubble recharge area. Hugh Mitchell-Tapping, director of water use regulation for the St. Johns River □See Bubble, Page 5A

Longwood employees get to keep their 'wheels'

By SANDRA ELLIOTT Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD - Some city employees almost lost their "wheels" Monday night, but thanks to a last minute vote, they will keep on rolling home ... at least for a little

Longwood City Commission members by a 4-to-1 vote, agreed that authorized city employees will continue to drive city vehicles home past midnight Friday. The new fiscal year begins Oct. 1 and Mayor Paul Lovestrand claimed since the commission did not reaffirm the take-home use of vehicles with the new budget, the practice would have to stop. The commission approved the 1993/94 budget earlier in the commission meeting.

The vehicles question was raised by city administrator James McFellin near the end of the three-hour commission meeting. McFellin asked the commission members to reaffirm the vehicle policy. Lovestrand retorted that it was too late, since according to a city ordinance, the take-home vehicle use is to be approved with the budget. Lovestrand is an opponent of allowing employees to take home city vehicles.

After voting to extend the session past the 10 p.m. cutoff time, a brief recess was called to research the question. The specific ordinance Lovestrand referred to could not be found.

McFellin said there are 20 vehicles on the take-home rotation, 10 police, two fire department. seven public works and one for the recreation director.

Floridian sets sailing record

LONDON - A retired airline pilot stepped ashore in Britain on Monday to reclaim the record for crossing the Atlantic in the smallest boat.

Hugo Vihlen, 61, of Homestead, Florida, left St. John's, Newfoundland, 104 days ago in a sailboat which measured just 5 feet 4 inches (1.6 meters) long.

"It is great to be back on dry land and I am not going to try anything like this again. In fact, I am flying back first class all the way." Vihlen said after landing at Falmouth where he was greeted by his wife, son and daughter-in-law.

Vihlen sailed from St. John's on June 14 after the U.S. Coast Guard blocked an earlier attempt to leave from Cape Cod. Massachusetts. Coast Guard officials believed the boat. Father's Day, couldn't make the trip.

"They said my boat was unsafe and would not let me leave. I did sail out from Florida but they tracked me down 26 miles out and towed me back, so the only solution was to go up to Canada and leave from St John's in Newfoundland," Vihlen

For 25 years. Vihlen held the record for crossing the ocean in the smallest boat, crossing the Atlantic in a 6-foot (2-meter) boat. That record was broken in May by Tom McNally of Liverpool, England, who sailed from the Portuguese island of Madeira to San Juan, Puerto Rico, in a boat a half-inch (1.2 cm) larger than Father's Day.

The mall, to be constructed southeast of the S.R. 46 and I-4 interchange, within the Sanford city limits, will have six anchor stores. Five have already signed agreements, with the sixth presently under negotiation.

In addition, the mall plans approximately 130 specialty

'Several of our anchor stores are planning to have much larger facilities than originally planned," Willard explained, and we find we will be needing additional space throughout the entire mail."

The request presented to the commission last night was for a determination of whether or not the change in size was to be considered a "substantial deviation" from the original plans.

Willard explained that if the city determined it was not a substantial change, it could approve the additional size, and he would only have to clear it with the Department of Com-munity Affairs (DCA) in order to get final approval. "If you believe it is a substantial deviation," he said, "we will have to take this through a lengthy process with the Regional Planning Council and several other organizations before we can br-ing it back before you again." "If the city approves the measure, the DCA would have 45 days in which to file objections," he added.

One of the main differences between the developer and the DCA is traffic circulation. especially in Interstate 4. "We have conducted two traffic surveys," he said, "one as recently as last week, and we do not believe the larger mall will have that much more effect on the interstate."

Willard said Simon had already offered the Department of Transportation $500,000 to be used in improving the interstate in the area near S.R. 46.

The commission also heard an extensive report on the traffic studies from Steve Godfrey, a transportation engineer, who estimated the expanded mall would generate only an eight percent increase in traffic trips during peak hours, 4 to 6 p.m. "Mostly," he said, "the traffic at that time is people going home from work, and not necessarily driving to the mail."

DCA State Planner James Stansburg objected. "We have reviewed the proposed changes," he said. "and we believe the proposed modifica-

When asked what choices the city has, City Attorney Bill Colbert explained the commission could approve the request for expansion based on it not being a substantial deviation, and await the decision of the DRI: table the matter until a later time; or turn down the request and have it go back through the Regional Planning Council, Department of Trans-portation, and several other gov-ernmental bodies for reconsid-

Commissioner A.A. Mc-Clanahan summed up the matter. "This is the most expeditious route we can take to get this resoived. I think we should go along with the re-commended changes." he said. Although Commissioner Lon flowell was not at the meeting.

the mayor and three other commissioners voted unanimously in favor of accepting the expansion proposals as not being considered a substantial deviation from the original plans.

Report: County in a drought

Sanford's official rainfall 5 inches below normal

By J. MARK BARFIELD Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD - Seminole County has now joined much of central Florida in a drought, according to a monthly report bny the St. Johns River Water Management Sanford's official recorded rainfall for August was more than five inches below normal enough to drive averages into the deficit range for the past 12 months. Although Sanford rainfall has been below average for the past six months. higher-than-normal rainfall during the fall and winter months kept Sanford in soggy conditions.

The water district publishes a report each month on the 19county district's water supply. Sanford rainfall is recorded by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

Only 1.95 inches of rain was recorded in Sanford last month. 5.2 inches less than the 7.15-inch normal for the period 1961 to 1990. The deficit was enough to drive rainfall for the past 12 months three-tenths of an inch into the red.

Last month, Sanford rainfall for the previous 12 months was more than 13 inches above normal. Gail Gallagher, a district data technician, said the figure was high because Sanford had 15.3 inches of rain in August 1992, far above normal rainfall

Rolling sings love song Flying motivates to fiancee at sentencing students

By Ron Word Associated Press

OCALA — Danny Harold Rolling sang a love song to his flancee-biographer in court before a judge resentenced him to life in prison for a 1990 grocery store holdup.

Polling, awaiting a January trial on first-degree murder charges in the deaths of five Gainesville college students in August 1990, broke into the song for Sondra London when Marion County Circuit Judge Thomas Sawaya asked if he had anything to say.

"Tell me baby. What were the words, all my tears run together." he sang.

The judge again gave the Shreveport, La., drifter a life sentence for the Sept. 7, 1990, holdup of a Winn-Dixie store in Ocala. Rolling's sentence for use of a firearm, however, was cut in half to 15 years. He also was given a one-year term for possession of a firearm.

A state appeals court in July upheld Rolling's conviction, but the 5th District Courts of Appeals in Daytona Beach, tossed out Rolling's life sentence because he was not notified in advance he would be sentenced as a habitual offender.

But the judge re-imposed a life sentence after reviewing Rolling's felony record. The hearing was held for security reasons inside a tiny courtroom ringed by deputies in the Marion County Jail.

When Sawaya asked Rolling, dressed in a red prison suit, if he had anything to say before sentencing, he rose, turned to Ms. London and said. "Sondre, they might keep you from me, but they can't keep out the love and affection I have for you in my heart."

In resentencing Rolling to life in prison, the judge said he was using Rolling's robbery convictions in other states and a series of convictions in Hillsborough County for a series of robberies and burglaries.

This is the second resentencing Rolling has been through. The 11th U.S. Ctrcuit Court of Appeals overturned his life sentence for a Gainesville bank robbery which occurred Aug. 27, 1990, in the midst of the serial slayings of the five college students.

In that case, Rolling was resentenced to about 32 years in prison.

Rolling, charged with five counts of first-degree murder, three counts of sexual battery and three counts of armed burglary, is scheduled to go on trial in January.

NEW YORK - Michael Dowd went from accepting free pizza as a rookie cop to running an $8,000-a-week drug protection racket and aniffing lines of cocaine off the dashboard of his patrol car.

But no one would have known it from his 1987 job evaluation.

Dowd had "excellent street knowledge," was likely "to become a role model" for other officers and had "good career potential," his superiors concluded.

"I could do just about anything and get away with it," Dowd testified Monday at the opening of New York's biggest police corruption investigation since Frank Serpico blew the whistle on fellow officers two

The arrest of Dowd, 32, last year on a raft of federal corruption charges prompted the creation of a mayoral commission to investigate the nation's largest police department. The panel is known as the Mollen Commission, after its chairman, Milton Mollen, a former judge and deputy mayor. The panel met on Monday in the same vaulted hall where the Knapp Commission — formed to investigate Serpico's allegations — convened in 1971. The first witness, Mayor David Dinkins, noted that police corruption scandals have surfaced almost every 20 years this century. and he urged the panel to find a way to end the cycle. The five-man panel — which presented Dowd's job evaluation as evidence of the department's tendency to close its eyes to dirty cops — is expected to recommend a permanent monitoring body to weed out

The hearings were to continue today with the testimony of an internal affairs investigator who pursued Dowd's case.

Dowd, a 10-year police veteran, was fired after his arrest. In June he agreed to plead guilty to racketeering and drug charges in exchange for a sc. tence of about 121/2 years.

The officer testified Monday that his journey began at the police academy, where reirults were taught to "cover your ass" and adopt "an us-versus-them" attitude.

"Us is the police officers," he said, "Them is the public.

Hillary Clinton lobbies Congress today Health care package to be presented to several committees

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - Venturing where only two first ladies have gone before, Hillary Rodham Clinton is taking her case for system directly to key congressional committees

Even more than Eleanor Roosevelt and Rösslynn Carter. she is going to Capitol Hill not only as an advocate for her husband's policies, but as an architect.

Befitting what has been until now a rare occasion, five House and Senate committees clamored for the privilege of hearing first from Mrs. Clinton.

She opted to appear first before the House Ways and Means Committee and later to-day before the House Energy and Commerce Committee. Two more Senate stops and a third House panel are on tap Wednesday and Thursday.

Mrs. Clinton chaired the White House task force that devised President Clinton's health security plan. She has already met with lawmakers on several occasions to lay the groundwork.

"She spent most of the weekend preparing and I think she feels ready to go," said Lisa Caputo, the first lady's press secretary. "She is going in with a very open mind."

Even though there was a bit of history in the air. Mrs. Clinton was certain to face close questioning by Republicans who want to know more about a plan that would constrict medical spending while forcing employers to pay most of their workers' health premiums.

Only four of the 38 Ways and Means members — chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-III.: ranking Republican Bill Archer of Texas: Pete Stark, D-Calif., the chairman of the health subcommittee; and Bill Thomas, R-Calif., the subcommittee's top Republican - were to speak before Mrs. Clinton.

Ordinarily, all of the committee members have the prerogative to comment before a witness gets a turn at the microphone. "She'll be treated with respect," said Archer, "But we have a responsibility to probe because this is a massive restructuring of the best health care system in the world."

But "there are things we agree on," said Archer, who cited the reshaping America's health care need to change insurance laws to allow workers to stay covered when they change jobs and to buy insurance regardless of their medical history.

When Mrs. Clinton took on the health reform portiolio last Jan-uary, some lawmakers wondered aloud about the etiquette of challenging the president's wife on tough lasues.

But as she did back in Arkansas when she was pushing education reforms, Mrs. Clinton has impressed even ideological foes with her command of a complex subject and her willingness to answer tough criti-

Officials estimate slightly over 340 persons boarded the Rivership Grand Romance this past Sunday for a fund-raising cruise. Profits will be going to the Sanford Historic Downtown Waterfront Association, (SHDWA) and the St. Lucia Festival.

"Strict gun laws are about as effective as strict drug laws. The drugs flow and so does the supply of weapons. It pains me to say this, but the NRA seems to be right: the cities and states that have the toughest gun laws have the most murder and mayhem. Just as Junkies find drugs, criminals find weapons. And I haven't the faintest idea how to prevent it," end of quote.

And "that" is coming from a widely read vehmently anti-gun syndicated columnist. And do you know what? He's right!

There is nothing in this country more stringently controlled, regulated, restricted, etc. than "drugs." And where has that got us? I'll tell you. Even grade school kids can latch onto a multitude of illegal "drugs" at the drop of a $10/$20 bill. Yes sir/mam. we've really come a long way with the heavy proliferation of "anti-drug" laws. The only thing that has changed over the past 24 years is that Congress has grown accustomed to deficit spending. That's why a balanced budget amendment is so desperately needed.

"It is a tool of fiscal discipline," says Simon, "that would make balanced budgets the general rule instead of the rare exception.

As it is, the federal debt will top $4.4 trillion this year. That works out to $46,660 for each and every American family. A look ahead at power sources

All sorts of new vehicles fueled by an array of gasoline alternatives are nudging onto America's highways.

Coast Air Quality Management District, the agency charged with coping with the 9 million cars in greater Los Angeles. Buses and fleet vans that run on natural gas are becoming common in large cities. Methanol derived from lowa's cornfleids is slicing its own thin wedge out of the fuel market. Even a few electric cars are humming along, and a lot more are likely to soon be on the way.

We're getting a glimpse at the beginning of the end of the gasoline-powered internal combustion engine. To be sure, petroleum is still king. Its downnance won't be surrendered quickly. But the shape of a future running on new power sources is taking focus.

There's plenty of reason to encourage the change. Energy security will never be possible as long as petroleum remains the base fuel running the economy. Discovery of new domestic oil reserves has peaked. The dollars we export to buy Mideast oil carry an added cost made explicit during Desert Storm.

Oil's environmental costs are high. Even as the government projects an 80 percent in-crease during the next four decades in vehicle miles traveled by family cars, our urban centers haven't yet adequately dealt with the car-exhaust pollution we have now. And a quarter of the sation's emissions of carbon dioxide, the predominant greenhouse gas.

Petroleum has powered much of the 20th century's machinery, but it isn't the clean, efficient fuel to move the next century forward.

Electric cars may play a substantial role in crossing the bridge to the post-petroleum era.

But the vehicle at the other end increasingly looks like something most people haven't even Welcome the hydro car.

Hydro is short for hydrogen. Its potential is what Robert H. Williams of Princeton University ty's Center for Energy and Environmental Studies has called a "quantum leap" beyond "the age of fire" into a fuel source converted directly to electricity without combustion. If this sounds dreamy, take note that today's leading developers of hydrogen-powered cars are rather hard-headed people at Mazda, BMW and Mercedes-Bens. The Canadians recently unvailed their first hydro-powered bus in

The irony -- too often true of new technologies -- is that hydrogen power is a U.S. innovation stemming from the space program. But U.S. industry paid it little attention, and "for the past dozen years the executive branch of the United States government has been indifferent, at best, to the development of environmental technologies, including ways to produce and use hydrogen," according to James M. Lents, executive officer of the South

All that's changing, too. Ford Motor Co. has hydrogen power "under active consideration," according to Bradford Bates, manager of alternative power source technology at Ford's research laboratory.

And the Clinton administration is backing several search approaches. including hydro, aimed at "removing the automobile from the list of national environmental problems while working to restore the technoof the nation's automobile producers," according to John H. Gibbons, the new director of the bustion, it produces electricity from chemical reactions using hydrogen. Existing technologies involve the use of one of three different sources of hydrogen.

Hydrogen stripped from natural gas is the most advanced technology to date. The process emits some air pollutants, although far less than gasoline combustion. Hydrogen can also be obtained from biomass, anything from organic urban waste to cornstalks. This method involves even fewer pollutants than method involves even fewer pollutants than the natural gas approach.

Finally, hydrogen can be broken off water molecules, for a fuel source that emits some water vapor but zero pollutants.
"There are no fundamental barriers" to making commercially viable hydro cars that perform as well as today's gasoline-powered models, according to Williams.

Another decade of development may be needed to prove that contention, but it's work that deserves strong public support.

Bicyclists take over streets in monthly ride

By ELIZABETH WEISE Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO - With the tintinnabulation of 600 bicycle bells, the liberation of Market

It's 5:30 p.m. on the final Friday of the month. In an act of urban anarchic creativity. San Francisco's beleaguered bicyclists take over the city's main downtown thoroughfare.

In just under a year, "Critical Mass" has become a full-fledged Event: Hundreds of cyclists who commute through the bicycle-unfriendly urban core take a monthly mass ride, banishing cars by sheer dint of numbers.

At 5:40 more and more cyclists are milling at Embarcadero Plaza Park at the base of Market Street. Some wear suits and ties, others neon biker gear. All bear the slightly wary look of people who must share the road with cars.

"No one respects bike space," says Deirdre
Crowley. 28, of San Francisco. "It's a war. Bicyclists are always the ones who get blamed. But it's the taxis who pull into bike lanes and stop dead. We end up playing tag with the buses because they drive in the bike lanes."

Like many of her compatriots, Crowley doesn't

A phalanx of police on motorcycles stand ready at the corner. One asks who's in charge and when

"No one's in charge," several cyclists call back. The Ride, as it is referred to, is an extremely nonhierarchical event.

"Critical Mass is a monthly organized coincidence. We are all simply riding home ... together!" writes Chris Carlsson in "Broken Spoke: A Xerocratic Publication For the Love of Bicycles," distributed during the Ride.

"Critical Mass is a public act of self-acknowledgement by bicyclists who are at the cutting edge of challenging the transit priorities of this society," Carlsson says.

It's also a gas. For this brief ride there is no fear of being cut off, knocked down or smashed flat. For one hour, the city's bicyclists join together in the exhilaration of the freedom of the streets.

By 5:50 the crowd has grown to over 600. Isolated shouts of "Let's start," and "Ride," are heard. The ring of bicycle bells becomes a cacophony. Suddenly, the massed riders spill out into the street.

Once again. Critical Mass has been achieved.

Riders break into spontaneous whoops of joy as they pedal up the wide avenue toward Mission Dolores Park a mile to the southwest. Cyclists fill the two right-hand lanes of Market for three full city blocks. At each intersection two or three "corkers" block the cars that try to merge into the river of bikes.

Motorcycle police keep watch over cyclists and

During the June ride a motorist angry at the delay rammed his car into a "corker" who was holding a sign that read "Thank You for Waiting."

The woman was knocked to the ground and her bike crushed, according to San Francisco bicycle coordinator Dave Snyder.

A crowd of bikers surrounded his car and smashed out his windows with their bike locks. The woman who was knocked down was charged with malicious nuisance for being in the way. Snyder said.

At least 5,000 people a day commute by bike in San Francisco, said Snyder. Whether they work for law firms or messenger services, anyone who rides in San Francisco knows the easygoing City by the Bay is anything but when you're on a bicycle. "Once I was in Chinatown — it's the worst."

said 22-year-old Adam Powell, leaning over the handlebars of a 10-speed.

"This guy totally cut me off - first he pushed me into a wall and then he forced me into a parked van. A block later he caught up with me parked van. A block later he caught up with me and started yelling at me like I was the one who didn't have a right to be in the street,"

The famous hills don't help. And then there's a hazard unique to the city — the tracks of San Francisco's picturesque cable cars.

"I've seen a lot of people wreck on cable car tracks. It's so easy to get your tires caught in the grooves and then you're dead meat," says Crowley. She shakes her helmeted head. Crowley. She shakes her helmeted head.

The Critical Mass concept has pedalled off on its own. In Berkeley, an East Bay Critical Mass draws between 150-200 riders the second Friday

And in Manhattan, where police say over 300 bicyclists and pedestrians are killed a year, 150 cyclists ride from Washington Square to Central Park the fourth Thursday of every month.

Drivers should appreciate bicycles because they reduce traffic and make the city easier for everyone to live in, said Vince Mahoney, 32. He has commuted downtown to work by bike for over 12 years and does not own a car.

"A good day is when people treat you with respect." he says. "A bad day is when people treat you like you had no business on the road."

A Bad Day Fishin' Is Better Than A Good Day At Work!

The sign reads "Gone Fishin". After all these years you think I'd know better. It was a gorgeous day, business was slow, and just last week he told me about how he'd discovered the Osteen Bridge Fish Camp. He said it had been there for 25 years and on a whim he decided to stop in and see what it had to offer an old fishing buff. Sure, he was expecting the usual stuff, but he was also in for a few surprises.

He went to the fish camp located under the Osteen Bridge and found some of what he'd imagined. There were wild shiners, live bait, a full line of fishing tackle, and professional fishing help. He also noticed the usual food, beer, cold drinks, and ice that most of these places stock. Of course, they also had boat rentals.

From the start, he noticed that this place was somehow unique and just a little different from all the others. For instance, the professional fishing help you're offered by Eddie Bussard and Dell Abernethy, who have 13 years experience each on the St. Johns River. The Sanford native of 31 years was a professional fisherman for 10 years. fishing bassmasters tour trail for 4 years, and a fishing guide on the St. Johns River for 13 years.

Bussard, new manager, provides services as your bass guide or for information as to where the fish are biting.

At first glance, my friend thought that the food tems were the same as all the other places. When he looked a little closer, he noticed that the Osteen Bridge Fish Camp has a really good lunch menu that includes hot and cold sandwiches, as well as anacks. There's no shortage of beverages as they offer coffee, cold beer, wine, and soft

As for the boat rentals. I'd have to say that he was impressed to see 15 foot Johnson boats with 9.9 Mariner motors. Rent one of the boats and you'll notice that the fish camp is located away from the main traffic on the St. Johns River. Bring the family out for a day of fun and see Florida as it used to be, complete with gators, blue herons,

My fishing buddy was happy to find out that the Osteen Bridge Fish Camp has a bass fishing tournament the first Sunday of the month. They even have a riverfront trailer for rent by the day or week just in case you feel like getting away from

If you're looking for something fun to do. then go to the Osteen Bridge Fish Camp at 4255 Peninsula Pt. (Celery Ave. and SR 415) where you can fish or just enjoy yourself while you learn the history of the St. Johns River, if you can't find something, don't be shy, Just ask them and they'll get it for you is they can. If you have any questions just call 322-3825. You're probably asking yourself why I'm telling you this story rather than being out there fishing. Well, you see I left my keys in my buddy's office and the next thing I know he's gone fishin'. So now my keys are locked in there and I'm stuck out here and he's probably having the time of his life. I guess I'll just have to wait here until he comes back. I sure hope he doesn't rent that trailer and stay forever. No sense in you worrying about me. You go and have a great time and if you see a guy with brown hair in his middle 30's wearing an old fishing hat tell ham I need to get my keys out of his office. Thanks!

Miss America acknowledges using Hairstylist

By The Associated Press

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. - The beauty was hers, but the hair beneath the crown of Miss America Kimberly Aiken was coiffed by other hands.

Miss Aiken admitted Monday that she hired a stylist to do her hair for the Sept. 18 pageant. despite new rules intended to make contestants do their own hair and makeup.

But she said she didn't violate the letter of the policy, which only banned hairdressers from going backstage, or its spirit, because of her natural look: a bun.

And the pageant president, Leonard Horn, did not take issue with what she did.

"I know that the pageant was saying they wanted a fresher look." Aiken said. "Now, if that hairdresser had made my hair big and poofy and something I did not want'

Anyway, she said, "I don't think my hair is what made me win Miss America."

The new rule, announced in July, was part of a pageant effort to make contestants "relevant role models" and to eliminate the "Stepford Wives" uniformity of the contestants.

Aiken said about half the contestants had hairdressers come to their hotel rooms and do their hair. Aiken's professional hairdo came to light when the stylist, Jim Leone, came forward.

Horn, who was in London, said through a spokeswoman that he believed banning hairdressers from the pageant curtailed their effectiveness. He said contestants had to arrive 12 hours before the pageant and remain there throughout the day.

"We felt if they — a state pageant or a contestant — wanted to go through the expense of bringing a hairdresser with them, it was inappropriate for us to ban them from the rooms," Horn said.

Some social security offices may close

By JENNIFER DIXON Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Clinton administration is considering closing some of the Social Security Administration's 1,300 field offices, a cost-cutting move likely to stir opposition from lawmakers and advocates for the elderly.

The administration's desire to merge field offices first surfaced in the notes of a Sept. 8-9 meeting of Social Security managers and the agency's acting commissioner, Lawrence Thompson.

According to the 12-page document obtained by The Associated Press, Health and Human Services Secretary Donna E. Shalaja favors consolidation of field offices and believes the department "can handle the politicians" when Although spokesmen for the Department of Health and Human Services say Shalala would never claim to be able to "handle" lawmakers. they say she would consider closing field offices.

'Anything we can do to improve service to the public, while saving taxpayer dollars, we will do and we will do it in consultation with members of Congress," said HHS spokesman Victor Zonana.

Some 26 million Americans visited Social Security's field offices last year, according to an agency estimate prepared for the House Ways and Means Committee. The offices handle applications for benefits and Social Security numbers, help recipients who have lost their checks or have questions about their benefits, and issue emergency checks.

Any changes to Social Security instantly become political volatile in Washington, and the mere mention of closing field offices stirs rabid opposition among advocates for the elderly and

The September meeting notes were written by a Social Security manager in attendance, but Zonana said they are not an official record of the

"The secretary would never have that kind of attitude toward members of Congress. And those were not her words." Zonana said.

Congressional staffers said Monday they were taking word of possible closures seriously. Aldes to two key Democratic lawmakers were rejuctant to discuss the proposal on the record, but called it foolbardy and said it showed a lack of sensitivity to the elderly and dinabled.

Advocates for the elderly say they are concerned about the impact of closing field offices on frail and disabled ill Americans.

Roberta Havel, executive director of the Save our Security Coalition, said closings could force the elderly and disabled to drive longer distances

She said she worries whether there will be enough staff to help the mentally and physically impaired with their disability applications and if field offices will be located in safe neighborhoods accessible to public transportation.

Shirley Sears Chater, President Clinton's choice to run the Social Security Administration, is likely be questioned about the issue at her DEI-143 confirmation hearing Wednesday before the Senate Finance Committee.

Social Security touches the lives of nearly every American - the 134 million workers who pay into the system and the 42 million survivors. rettrees and disabled workers who will collect $303 billion in benefits this year.

The Supplemental Security Income program will pay another $24 billion to 5 million people. Although most checks are mailed each month without fail, the agency faces growing financial and administrative troubles, from rising backlogs of claims for disability benefits to frequent busy signals on its telephone lines.

The agency's work force was cut by 21 percent during the 1980s and the 1,300 field offices are still feeling the effects today, according to a March 23 report by the Democratic staff of the Ways and Means Committee.

The report found that field offices are increasingly required to turn away people who arrive without an appointment.

Rams butt opponents

Lake Mary boys collar Greyhounds

From Staff Reports

LONGWOOD - The Lake Mary boy's volleyball team survived a roller coaster ride at Lyman High School Monday night.

The Rams cruised to an easy 15-4 win in the first game, then fell to the Greyhounds 13-15 in the middle game, to force a winner-take-all third and final game.

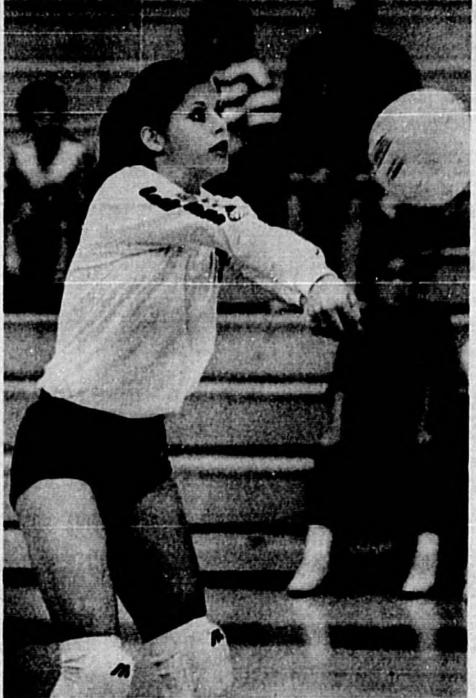

Lake Mary got itself back together in the third game, cruising to a 15-5 triumph to raise its record over the .500 mark at 5-4

"We spread it around (playing time) tonight," said Lake Mary head coach Bill Whalen. "We had eight different people contribute kills, we played a lot of different people and we got to work on some things that we have not worked on before. We're working to get better each match and we have lately.

"Hopefully we can keep improving and build some momentum going into the big matches next week. We're not taking anybody lightly, but you have to think about the big games next week with Lake Howell and Dr. Phillips back-to-

Setter Will Lipscomb had a big night for the Rams, coming up with nine kills, three blocks and 12 assists. Also playing well were lan Saunders (eight kills, four blocks). Dan Parsons the kills and one block in his first start in a while) and David Scisciani (four kills, one

'Chris Lewis played well for us in the abscense of injured Brad Lewis," said Lyman head coach Norm Ready, who saw his club fall Bee Boys, Page 2B

Lake Mary's Traci Citarella was one of the many players who contributed to the Rams' 15-8, 15- non-conference victory over Oak Ridge Monday night in Orlando. The win avenged an early season loss to the Pioneers.

Teamwork keys Rams girls to win

From Staff Reports

ORLANDO - It has been said that the best officiated game is one in which no one can remember the officials even being on the field or court.

Most coaches would also say that the best played game is one in which you can't put a finger on who was the star.

That was the case at Orlando's Oak Ridge High School Monday night, as the Lake Mary Rams girl's volleyball team avenged an early season loss by whipping the homestanding Pioneers in two straight games, 15-12 and 15-8.

"It sure was nice to avenge one of our losses," said Lake Mary head coach Cindy Henry. "Different people had their moments tonight, but no one really stood out. All of the players did their jobs tonight. It was a real six person oriented win.

"I like it when no one person really stands out, because that means the whole team was contributing and I think that is what sports is all about. Teamwork."

Despite the excellent work by all who played, Henry did have individual praise for a few of her charges.

"Jennifer Greissing had a couple of kills that were absolutely beautiful and Joyia Capo and Diane Duber did a super job of blocking at the net," said Henry, "Nikki Preece also had a very good defensive game. She just keeps going along and doing a good job.

"I did have one concern though. We had a good lead in the first game. and then we let them back in the Bee Girls, Page 1B

SANFORD - I guess you're not supposed to take a week off.

After losing to Gainesville-Eastside three weeks ago. Seminole High School was still receiving 17 votes in the Florida Sports Writers Association state football poll, which was good enough for 12th place, if the poll went that high.

But after beating Oviedo their point total fell to just three votes.

Now, after being off last week, the Tribe only received one vote from the pollsters. Go figure.

Seminole is still the only county squad receiving votes in the poll.

The county will be busy this week with all six teams seeing action.

to 2-7 on the season. "We had to force him to play middle blocker and he came up with six blocks. "Lake Mary did an excellent job of passing the ball. I felt that was the key to their win."

The Lake Mary boys will return to action Wednesday. The Rams will travel to Seminole for in SAC matchup starting with junior varsity action at 6 p.m.

Lyman will travel to Lake Brantley for another SAC contest with the same starting time.

TRIBE COMES UP JUST

OVIEDO - Oh for the want of a block. The Seminole boy's volleyball team played one of its best all-around games of the year, but could not get an important block when it needed one as the Tribe fell to homestanding Oviedo in three games, 7-15, 15-7 and 10-15.

The junior varsity also played well but lost in two games, 13-15, 12-15, to fall to 2-3 on the scason.

"We had them right where we wanted them and we were right on them," said Seminole head coach Beth Corso. "But we could not buy a block in the third game to push us over. Our serving and setting was good, a block would have really turned the game around. All we needed was two more blocks and the game would have been ours.

"I'm so impressed with the way they (her team) improve each time out. They are picking the game up so fast. I just hope they keep it up."

The Tribe had a big night statistically coming up with 77 statistically, coming up with 77 digs, 42 good sets, 11 assists, 22 dinks and 10 put aways, 15 kills and 23 other good spikes.

But the diffence was blocking. where Seminole only came up with eight. The team averages between 15 and 17 and Corso felt if the team had reached that many they would have won the contest.

Individual leaders for Seminole were, Jason Wildermuth (five aces, 12 other good serves. only one missed, nine kills, two spikes, 10 dinks), Danny Watson (28 digs). Nathan Morgan (23 digs, four blocks) and David Campbell (one ace, seven good serves).

Seminole (0-7 overall, 0-4 in the SAC) will host Lake Mary on Wednesday at Bill Fleming Me-morial Gymnasium with the junior varsity game starting at 6 p.m. and the varsity set for 7 p.m. "Thursday we play DeLand to start the second half of the season," said Corso, "I'm really looking forward go taking the team through the second round games. I think we are going to surprise some teams and pull out a couple of these three set something that has been happening lately and that really bothers me."

The Rams junior varsity also had a successful evening, pulling out a 14-16, 15-12. 15-8 victory. Lake Mary, now 9-4 on the season, will host a very tough Lyman Greyhound squad to-night in an SAC battle. Junior varsity action gets underway at 6 p.m., with the varsity set to take the floor at 7 p.m.

SEMINOLE PALLS AT BISH-OP MOORE

ORLANDO - The Seminole High School girl's volleyball team continues to suffer growing pains as the varsity and junior varsity both struggled at Bishop Moore Monday afternoon.

Both teams got better as the matches wore on, but neither team was able to pull out a win. The jv's fell, 5-15 and 10-15, while the varsity dropped a 4-15, 10-15 decision.

"The new offense is working well," said Tribe head coach Beth Corso. "But it has been a slow adjustment. We're trying to get the lineup to gel, but we're still not passing the ball to the front row very well, we're making headway, but we're still not there yet."

Katherine Foy (one ace, six good hits). Jill Jasewic (three good hits). Tanya Schlegel (five spikes) and freshman Aubrey Nelson (six aces, one other good serve, two good hits) led the Seminole attack.

"Aubrey's serving got us going in the second game," said Corso. "It was just her second game since we moved her to the middle and she did a super job. But we just could not buy a block in the second game so we could take control."

Last Friday's resu

the season with the loss, will host Oviedo in an SAC contest today at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium, with junior varsity action kicking off the festivities at 6 p.m.

Corso also announced that last week's postponed game at Lake Brantley will be played on Octo-ber 19th, varsity only, starting at 4:30 p.m.

Ways to cope with phantom pain

31-year-old wife had her leg and hip amputated because of bone cancer at the age of 12. For the last 19 years she has suffered from phantom limb pain. The severity has varied, but has been constant. While her surgeon says that phantom pain is all in her head, we disagree. By pushing on pressure points in her stump, pain-management clinicians have been able to decrease and increase pain. Obviously, the nerve still exists.

DEAR READER: Phantom pain is not completely understood. It appears to be due to a misperception by the brain that a limb is still present, after it has been removed. Apparently, the nerves that were cut during surgery continue to supply signals and stimulate pain centers in the central nervous system.

Your wife's situation is somewhat unusual in that you can alter the threshold of pain by pressing on her stump -- even 19 years after the operation. This suggests to me that the nerves are, indeed, still functioning and the problem is not "all in her

Her pattern also indicates that she might be helped by transcutaneous electrical nerve stimulation. Small electrodes are placed on the skin of the stump. through which your wife can deliver - at will - tiny electrical charges. These impulses from a battery pack over-ride or interfere with the sensation of phantom pain, thereby relieving symptoms.

In addition, acupuncture has been used for this purpose. Ask her doctor about this. Perhaps one or both of these techniques will make her life more manage-

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've heard that betamethasone is good for growing hair. I'm 72 and my hair is thinning at an alarming

DEAR READER: I don't believe that this medication, a cortisone steroid, will have any effect on your balding. The drug is used primarily to reduce inflammation; as you know, most hair less is hereditary.

However, you might be helped by Rogaine, a prescription cream applied to the scalp. Ask a dermatologist about this.

People like to compare the greats of any game, but that is meaningless. Who was the better tennis player. Margaret Court or Martina Navratilova? Each, at her peak, was the best. They played well enough to beat their toughest opponents. But maybe they could have played even better if necessary. And if they had been playing against each other, who is to say who would have won?

In bridge, you are working to make your opponents results worse. But, as it is a partnership game, you should also be striving to help your partner play better. Today's deal is easy for someone who has his partner's best interests at heart. Yet it is hard for the rote player. Against three spades, West leads the diamond 10. How, should East plan the defense?

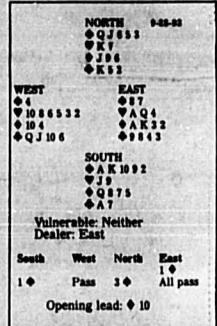

East won the first trick with the diamond king. He cashed the diamond ace. Then he led the diamond three, which West ruffed. Back came the club queen. Gratefully declarer won. drew trumps and claimed, one of dummy's hearts being discarded on the diamond queen.

"I led my higher diamond spot," wailed East. "Why didn't you return a heart?"

"To me," replied West, "it looked as though South was hiding the diamond two. You had an easy way to ask me to return a heart.

"How was that? Drop the diamond three on the floor and then, as I pick it up, say 'High diamond coming. partner"?"

"Very funny, but no. Just win trick one with the diamond ace, an unnecessarily high card. When you continue with the king and three, I will know you want a heart switch."
