Artist brings touch of the exotic to his unique work

LAKE MARY - Rich Brunell has only been sculpting for four years. Oh, but what he has done in those four years. This self-taught artist's wood sculptures take shape strictly from his imagination.

Brunell and his wife, Patti, also an artist, surround themselves with exotic artifacts, antique furniture, and various oil paintings. Brunell's wooden wonders decorate the entire Lake Mary abode.

Brunell's handmade wooden frames wrap and compliment his wife's remarkable oil paintings. "We work well together," Patti said. And how.

Happily married for 25 years, the couple are dual muses citing each other as inspiration. Patti's paintings capture beauty in some of its many forms from her sensual nudes to her majestic animal depictions. Patti said her husband's frames enhance the pictures and makes her vision fully complete.

The Brunell home is a showcase of their work accompanied by the most impressive private collection of art.

Some everyday kids who make Optimists proud

By RUSS WHITE
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Afsoun Semsar, 18, says her given name - which is Iranian - means "unique and mysterious." In Afsoun's case, it also may stand for "radiant and responsible."

Wednesday, she and four classmates at Seminole High School were given Youth Appreciation Awards by the Optimist Club of Sanford, which has been honoring outstanding students for 26 years.

Afsoun, the Citizenship-Leadership award winner, thanked the Optimists and told them, "What we do is sort of an everyday thing. That you consider this to be special will make us strive to do even more."

It pleased Seminole County Chief Deputy Sheriff Steve Harriett that Afsoun was among those honored by the Optimists. Her family lives in the same neighborhood, and Harriett said he was aware of her accomplishments. "I know there's a lot of concern about juvenile crime," he said to the Optimists, "but I guarantee you there are many more good kids than there are bad kids in Seminole County."

Afsoun Semsar hopes to become an international business lawyer. She said she will go to Florida State University, with dual undergraduate majors in Political Science and International Relations.

She had a 3.5 grade average at Seminole High, was the president of the Senior Class, secretary of the Student Government, a tennis player, cheerleader and Miss Seminole High School.

Sean Whitman, who was also honored Wednesday, is going to go to either Oglethorpe University in Atlanta or to the University of Central Florida. He wants to major in Computer Engineering and he'd like to be a software engineer.

Ancient Tribal Rhythms festival: Native art right from the heart

By SHARI BRODIE
Herald Staff Writer

Most people don't understand, says Rex A. Begaye, that there is a difference between "Native art" and "Indian art."

"Native art comes from the heart," Begaye said in a recent telephone interview. Begaye is the featured artist at this weekend's "Ancient Tribal Rhythms" multicultural festival at L&L Acres Ranch.

Begaye, a full-blooded Dineh (Navaho), was born in Arizona, in the Grand Canyon area, lived in Cleveland for more than 20 years and now resides in Sarasota.

The self-taught artist made a living as a hairdresser/make-up artist in Ohio, but went back to doing the thing he had loved since childhood.

"I've always done art," he said, "but I never made it serious up until nine years ago." He referred to it as finding his "calling in life."

Begaye, who works in acrylics on canvas, boards, "or whatever I find," said that his paintings have a story. He said that he paints about the "things that were told to me when I was younger."

Native art is vibrant, according to Begaye. "We know how to catch the colors." Red is an important color in Native American life and is prominent in his artwork. He said that, as he travels around the country, he meets with the elders of different tribes. "I sit down with other people," to learn their ways, but never their ceremonies, because these are considered private. In each painting, Begaye said that he tries to portray the "middle ground harmony" between Mother Earth and Father Sky.

"My grandfather told me that when you do things in life you give back, to thank the great spirit," Begaye's

Music or noise?

Residents protest loud music at outdoor concerts

By MICK PFERPAPP
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Some citizens of Sanford say enough is enough. They want the city commission to reject all future requests for special event permits for outdoor parties featuring loud music.

According to some estimates, approximately 7,000 people attended the outdoor party on Saturday, April 19, at Tsunami Beach Club on S. Orlando Drive in Sanford. Hosted by radio station WJRR, seven bands entertained the crowd all day and into the night.

Discussion on the subject was first undertaken during Monday afternoon's city commission work session regarding a proposed anti-noise ordinance, said to be patterned after the City of Orlando. Commissioners were undecided whether to hire an outside noise evaluation firm, or purchase its own noise meters with which to monitor noise levels.

National Day of Prayer celebrated

By SUSAN WISSEMAN
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Clear skies and cool temperatures brought several participants to Ft. Mellon Park to be a part of the activities scheduled for National Day of Prayer today. Sanford's gathering was sponsored by Paul Benjamin of "Men in Action USA."

The theme of this year's observance is "In God We Trust." This 1997 focus encourages the nation to bring America back to its original roots. Although specific prayers are not being directed, all are being supported in whatever words of meditation and inspiration that can be offered to God in betterment of self, others, government and the world.

This lovely weather beginning only tipped off the various prayer times scheduled throughout the day not only locally but covering America.

National Day of Prayer was first established as an annual event by an act of Congress, signed into law by President Truman, and later amended and extended by President Reagan.

Efforts have been made throughout Seminole and Orange counties to unite citizens in prayer. An extremely large gathering was planned at 12 noon today on the plaza in front of the Orlando City Hall.

Bringing out the fine China at the zoo

By VICKI DeBORMIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

While the Imperial Tombs of China exhibition at the Orlando Museum of Art is bringing out media attention from across the world, a related exhibit at the Central Florida Zoo has a wilder appeal.

On Saturday, May 3, in coordination with the imperial tombs tour, the zoo will celebrate the first public viewing of the two endangered clouded leopards that were born March 21 at the zoo.

At that time, the two little creatures will be formally named. The names were submitted by the winner of a recent contest. Entries were received from around the country from as far away as California and New York. One entry came from Canada.

The pair are the only animals at the facility to have names because the zoo does not believe the wild animals should be given human monikers. The naming contest was done in honor of the special exhibition, however.

The names, which will not be known publicly until Saturday, are Chinese, zoo officials said.

On Saturday, the Tropical China exhibit will open in the zoo's herpetarium. The exhibit features four reptiles from China including a Chinese Alligator, which is known in China as "Yow-Lung," or dragon. There are only about 500 of the creatures left in the wild and they are only found in the People's Republic of China.

The exhibit also features simulated thunder and lightning.

Starting at 10 a.m. on Saturday, there will be a tour of the Asian animals in the zoo which will commence at the herpetarium. Beginning on May 10 the Asian animal tour will be offered every other Saturday through Sept. 27.

The names of the clouded leopards and that of the person who submitted the winning entry will be announced at 1 p.m. The leopards will then be on display in the zoo's education classroom until 3 p.m.

Weather permitting, and for a limited time, the cubs will be on exhibit on Saturdays and Sundays from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Clouded leopards are Asian cats whose range extends into China. These cats may attain a weight of 50 pounds and, in captivity, may live as long as 17 years. There are approximately 200 of the cats currently living in captivity worldwide.

Clouded leopards and Chinese Alligators are a part of the Species Survival Plan, a program of the American Zoo and Aquarium Association which coordinates captive breeding programs.

May Day isn't always big trouble

Today is...
NICK PFEIFFAUF
Staff Writer

May day...May day...May day. I can say it now, but I always dreaded hearing it when I was in a navy squadron. It meant someone was in serious trouble.

But here we are in the fifth month of 1997, and at times it appears as though the year has just begun.

May has been declared many things by many organizations and persons. If you study the list, you'll find you can do just about anything this month, and be considered as a person who truly observes noteworthy events and activities.

Included in the list are such designations as: Asian Pacific Heritage Month, Better Sleep Month, Breathe Easy Month, Date your Mate Month, Family Support Month, Freedom Shrine Month, Hydrotherapy Month, Better Hearing Month, Better Speech Month, Mental Health Month, Older Americans Month (used to be Senior Citizens' Month), Personal History Awareness Month, Project Safe Baby Month, Revise your Work Schedule Month, Strike out Strokes Month/Stroke Awareness Month, and Women's Health Care Month.

With the word "National" designated, and eliminating the repetitious use of the word "Month", May is dedicated to: Allergy/Asthma Awareness, Arthritis, Barbeque, Bike, Egg, Good Car-Keeping, Hamburger, High Blood Pressure Education, Moving, Physical Fitness and Sports, Promote your Ideas, Salad, Salsa, Senior Travel, Trauma Awareness, and Tuberculosis Awareness.

For the week beginning today, it's Cartoon Art Appreciation Week and Pen-Friends Week.

And for the actual day, today is: May Day, Saint Tamenend's Day, New Homeowner's Day, Loyalty Day, Law Day, and the one event I look forward to very anxiously every year, Save the Rhino Day. I pledge to drive with added caution through the streets of Sanford today, to avoid accidentally colliding with any rhino.

Oh, here's another "day" observance. This is Martin Z. Mollusk Day. Observed in Ocean City, N.J. If Martin Z. Mollusk, a hermit crab, sees his shadow at 11 a.m. this morning, summer comes a week early. If he doesn't, summer begins on time. This year will be the 23rd annual observance of this galaxy-famous event.

In historical birthdays, World War II General Mark Clark was born on May 1, 1898, and singer Kate Smith, listed as one of America's most popular singers for several decades, was born May 1, 1909. In her lifetime, she recorded over 3,000 songs and was involved in over 15,000 radio broadcasts. Her most famous song was her rendition of God Bless America.

In today's birthdays, singer Judy Collins is 58; actor Glenn Ford is 81, and former Tonight Show host Jack Paar turns 79.

In conclusion, after today, you have only nine more shopping days until Mother's Day, so it's time to take some action. You know how mom gets when you forget.

SANFORD — The best way to learn something is by doing it.

And the best way to do something is to get it for free.

The Seminole County Public Schools, Seminole Community College and the automotive industry in Seminole County have formed a partnership during this current school year to develop a high school youth apprenticeship program in the school district's Automotive Technology programs.

Three schools in the county have specialized programs in the area of automotive technology. Such programs at Seminole, Lyman and Oviedo high schools help prepare students for the world of work.

The apprenticeship programs at those schools have been given a boost to their program from Don Mealey Cadillac-Oldsmobile in Sanford and the Oldsmobile Division of General Motors.

At the dealership last week, Bob Chick, the technical specialist for Oldsmobile, presented a pair of new 1996 Oldsmobile Cutlass Supremes and a 1996 Oldsmobile Ciera SL to the schools.

The apprenticeship program teaches the students the technological skills they need to

Fringe actor trades racquet for the stage

By KELLIE WERNER
Herald Staff Writer

Many Lake Mary High School graduates return to their stomping grounds for various reasons.

Few, however, return to take part in a major performing arts festival.

Shea Whigham returned to the Central Florida area last week to perform in the Fringe Festival, held in Orlando. He and his theatrical/production group, the Rorschach Group, which is based in New York, performed a short drama at the festival.

Acting was not what Whigham had intended to do after graduating from Lake Mary. He was awarded a tennis scholarship to a junior college in Texas, and although he wasn't quite sure what he wanted to major in, he enrolled in a prose class as an elective course.

He fell in love with the theater immediately, and applied to the State University of New York at Purchase in the hopes for studying theater and acting. Whigham had to give up tennis, because in order to study theater, you have to give it 100 percent.

Out of more than 1,000 applicants, Whigham was chosen for a class of 31 to enter the program. However, simply being accepted was not a guarantee that he would finish, as students were released from the program whenever they fell below the requirements.

"Basically, I vowed to my instructor that if he took a chance on me, I would finish."

Whigham explained, "It took a lot of hard work to complete the program, but I had a great time and met a lot of great people, many of whom I now work and keep in touch with."

One of the people from his class Whigham keeps in touch with is Brian Gaskill, who is not only his friend, but his business partner.

In 1994, Whigham and Gaskill entered into a joint venture to establish the Rorschach Group, a theatrical/production group dedicated to producing quality theater for all types of audiences.

Soon after the group's founding, Whigham, the producing director, and Gaskill, the artistic director, formed an artistic committee. The purpose of the committee is to vote on the group's visionary and artistic decisions and also to meet, discuss the ideas for the coming season, and help to carry them out.

One of the members of the committee is Doug Marlette, also a local luminary and graduate from Seminole High School. Marlette won a Pulitzer Prize in 1988 for the political cartoons that were published in the New York Times and was the only cartoonist to have received a Nieman Fellowship at Harvard University.

Between winning prestigious awards, Marlette plays a large role in the Rorschach Group's decision making and creative works.

"Doug has been extremely influential to me," Whigham said. "He is extremely helpful with fund-raising and recruiting people to attend the productions. He comes to all of the shows and I go to him with ideas and bounce things off of him."

Ideas have not been a shortcoming for this group. Already, they have earned acclaim for their productions of King Gordigan, I Am Yours, and Mouthbook, just to name a few. The highlight of Whigham's career, however, has been a newspaper article.

In February, the Rorschach Group received its first review by the New York Times, and it was a favorable one at that.

"That review is like gold to me," Whigham said. "To get a favorable review in the New York Times is what every actor/producer hopes for."

If the review is the highlight of his career, the expected birth of his first child is the highlight of his life.

Whigham married his college sweetheart, Christine, and now the two are awaiting their first addition to the family. Christine is an artist, and is very supportive of her husband's career. Whigham said that since there are so few surprises in life, he is trying to hold out and find out if the child will be a boy or a girl. But, he added, he's wearing down.

All too often, the success of an actor is measured by how many blockbuster films they star in or how many seasons their television show runs. Whigham has a slightly different view.

"Even though I am not a movie or television star, I consider myself to be a success," Whigham explained. "To be able to continually produce theater for three years is quite an accomplishment, and I am very lucky to have so many talented and helpful people working with me. I was inspired by Gary Sinsse, Al Pacino, and Ed Harris. You will find that the best actors always return to their roots...they always return to the theater."

Whigham gives most of the credit for his success to his family. His parents are his number one fans and his brother, Jake, who is on a tennis scholarship at the University of Florida, is his sounding board. And his wife is his best friend.

Success in a person's personal life is sometimes harder to come by than professional success. Whigham has managed to find both and intends to take advantage of his happiness as long as possible.

Sanford may gain shopping center

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Pending approval of site plans, Sanford can be in line for another shopping center. Actually, the center is in conjunction with the present Seminole Towne Center in west Sanford, and is to be developed by the Simon Property Group.

The proposal is scheduled for consideration at tonight's meeting of the Sanford Planning and Zoning Commission beginning at 7 p.m.

The facility, known as Towne Center Plaza at Seminole Towne Center, will be located at 251 Oregon Avenue, at the location of the former Holiday Inn off Interstate 4.

The three businesses indicated on the engineering plans include over 42,000 square feet for The Sports Authority, 20,000 square feet for Books A Million, and 23,000 square feet for Office Max.

The city's various department heads have recommended approval, most of them subject to the approval of final engineering plans.

Page Private School, at 100 Aero Lane, of W. SR-46, is also listed on the agenda for tonight's P&Z meeting. Page is requesting a site plan approval for classroom building additions.

The main request is for a new two-story classroom facility, southwest of the present structures.

The two other items on tonight's agenda include a request for a dimensional variance for Aiden Equipment, at 500 Aero Lane for a change in the front yard setback distance, and the final plat for Mayfair Club Phase 1.

Mayfair Club Phase I is a 48 lot single family residential subdivision to be located at 3001 Country Club Road. Maronda Homes is the listed property owner. Land is already cleared on the area to the south of the east side of the Mayfair Country Club golf course area.

The Planning and Zoning Commission meeting will be held in the city commission chambers of Sanford City Hall, 300 S. Park Avenue, beginning at 7 p.m.

Moss Park Festival is free, will spotlight wading birds

From Staff Reports

Wading birds will be the stars of the second annual Moss Park Wading Bird Festival to be held Saturday, May 10 from 8 a.m. until 1 p.m. at Moss Park in Orange County. The purpose of the free festival is to acquaint people of some of Florida's wading birds and give folks the opportunity to see a nesting colony in a way that will not disturb the birds and their chicks.

Wading birds are those beautiful and elegant long-legged birds that frequent shorelines and wetland areas. They walk with carefully measured steps or stand still as statues while they hunt for fish, snails and other staples of their diet. They come in a large variety of sizes, shapes and colors, and are important to the state both ecologically and esthetically.

"The Moss Park Wading Bird Festival was held for the first time last year and about 2,000 people attended. We were so pleased with the tremendous interest we decided to hold it again this year," said Julie Hoyts, a biologist for the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission (GFC), and event organizer.

Nesting colonies are areas where wading birds, congregated to build their nests and raise their young. The Lake Mary Jane colony, which is clearly visible from Moss Park, is one of Florida's top wading bird colonies. It was selected for the event because of its location, which enables Hoyts to give unobtrusive tours of the colony while providing information about protecting and respecting the birds.

One of the main objectives of the event is to educate boaters, and others who share the waters with the birds, on how to avoid disturbing them, especially during critical nesting and young rearing periods.

The highlight of the festival will be free pontoon boat tours of the colony. The tours will provide not only viewing and photographic opportunities, but they will help recreational boaters understand how much distance they should keep between themselves and nesting wading birds to avoid disturbing them.

"The whole point of this program is to educate people about protecting and respecting the needs of wading birds," said Hoyts. "Although we enjoy giving the tours, we hope folks will understand that if the birds become agitated, we'll have to stop."

In addition to the boat tours, there will be spotting scopes set up along the shore so visitors can view the nesting birds without ever leaving firm ground. Educational games and informal identification workshops will help people identify the different wading birds they may see at Lake Mary Jane, including a variety of herons and egrets, and cormorant wood storks.

"Moss Park is a beautiful piece of natural Florida that the whole family will enjoy. The fact that one of the most important wading bird nesting colonies in the state is located just a stone's throw away makes it that much more appealing to those who appreciate nature and are concerned about conservation," said Hoyts.

Festival goers should bring along binoculars, cameras, field guides, and friends and family. The festival and all associated activities are free, and the park entrance fee will be waived for those attending the event. Food, cold drinks, festival T-shirts and mugs will be available for purchase.

The Moss Park Wading Bird Festival is sponsored by the GFC, Orange County Parks and Recreation, and the Friends of Moss Park. To get there from Orlando, take the Bee Line to Narcoossee Road south to Moss Park Road. Turn left and follow Moss Park Road to the park.

For more information on the festival, call Moss Park at (407) 273-2327, or the GFC at (352) 732-1225.

Building up downtown

During an interview in preparation for Russ White's historical report on the Harriett family's involvement in law enforcement in Sanford, one fact was brought forward that may have been overlooked by some readers.

To quote the story, "On a Friday night, you couldn't find a place to park downtown. Everyone was out, safe and sound."

The safety came from the fact that, being a much smaller city than it is now, everyone knew every law enforcement officer. They patrolled the same beats at the same times on the same days. People felt not only safe, but secure in knowing they had a friend who would respond if any problem erupted.

This was a wonderful situation. But Sanford has grown considerably since the 1940s and 50s alluded to in the story. Not only do we have an insufficient number of officers to create specific beats for each of them, but there is no longer a need to concern ourselves with downtown on a Friday night.

Perhaps this needs some serious attention. Regarding the gathering of citizens in the downtown area on Friday nights, and often on Saturday nights as well, they did so because it was shopping time. People worked each day, and did their shopping on the weekends.

Downtown merchants remained open on Friday nights and Saturdays, and the people turned out. Most were pleased to share an evening with other Sanford residents. Naturally, even though they may not have intended to do so, they ended up shopping.

But look downtown now. Only a handful of businesses are open Friday night. Why shop downtown? We may as well go to the mall. The only drawback is that we won't run into our neighbors out there. People come to the mall to shop from a 20 to 50 mile radius, and we probably won't know more than one or two people.

Officials are always saying, "We want to build up the downtown area. We want to improve the local economy. We want to have all of our downtown establishments spruced up and looking as though shoppers were in a historical area."

We can say this all we want, but until there is more reason to be downtown, especially on Friday nights and Saturdays, nothing will happen. If businesses were open, people will come and the downtown economy will improve, possibly to a point where structural improvements can be afforded.

The city appears to be taking a good step forward in working on improving downtown lighting. The first project is expected to be undertaken in the Magnolia Square area. Additional lighting improvements are being given serious consideration.

Yes, Sanford was a much smaller town back then, but what was done can be recreated, and to the benefit of everyone. We believe it's something worth thinking about and discussing.

Clinton plays the family card

In recent decades the so-called "family issues" have seemed almost wholly owned by the Republican Party. While the Democrats prospected for votes among allegedly "victimized minorities," from blacks and homosexuals to pot-smokers and American Indians, the GOP has been happy to portray itself as the natural home of the American family and the defender of its interests: the sanctity of marriage, and opposition to all the newer "lifestyles" seeking to compete with it. The result, more often than not, has been Republican victories on Election Day.

The Democrats have had the very devil of a time countering this Republican strategy. On the last evening of the 1988 Democratic convention, after Michael Dukakis had accepted the party's presidential nomination, the children of virtually every major figure in the party, from Dukakis to Jesse Jackson, were paraded across the stage under the benevolent gaze of the television cameras -- the idea presumably being to try to convince America's voters that Democratic politicians have families too, and can be counted on to watch out for their interests.

More recently, House minority leader Richard Gephardt has taken to expressing loud sympathy for "America's working families," an expression that seems to combine an implicit fondness for families with a coy suggestion that only those whose breadwinner belongs to the AFL-CIO really qualify as "working."

But it is President Clinton, and more particularly his political Rasputin Dick Morris,

"The Democrats have had the very devil of a time countering this strategy."

who hit on the idea that made it possible for the Democratic Party to stand forth, at last, as a defender of "family values."

Like most great ideas, this one was simple: Propose minor, even trivial, "reforms" that deal with the minutiae of daily living in American families. That was the idea behind the Family and Medical Leave Act of 1993, which allows employees to take up to 12 weeks of unpaid leave a year to care for a newborn or adopted child or to attend to their own serious health problems or to care for a seriously ill parent, child or spouse.

Never mind that most employers already give their workers reasonable time off for all these purposes. As with Christmas cards, it's the thought that counts (politically). Better yet, propose a long series of such "reforms" one at a time -- dribble them out every day or so, as Mr. Clinton did on the train that slowly bore him to Detroit for his renomination, thus compelling the media to give each one far more attention than it deserved. Thus we got the proposal for a 10 p.m. curfew on youngsters (leaving some of us to wonder whatever happened to midnight basketball) and the presidential endorsement of uniforms for schoolchildren, to keep the poor ones from being embarrassed by their clothes.

It was also in 1996 that Mr. Clinton called for expansion of the Family and Medical Leave Act to give employees an additional 24 hours of unpaid leave per year to attend parent-teacher conferences, take a child to the doctor or dentist, find child care, or help an elderly relative with medical appointments or other services.

There is not the slightest evidence that any of these steps addresses any pressing need in American society that is currently going unmet, but collectively they proclaim Mr. Clinton's compassionate concern for the American family -- and that, of course, is exactly what they are designed to do.

In addition, unlike the federal handouts the Democrats have long used to seduce voters, these goodies add not one nickel to the federal deficit. Consumer prices will ultimately have to rise to absorb their cost, but who's counting?

Precisely where in the Constitution the federal chief executive is empowered to concern himself with giving employees 24 hours of leave annually to attend parent-teacher conferences is a good question -- but hey, it proves he's warmhearted, doesn't it?

MBDA comes under review

WASHINGTON - Newly installed Commerce Secretary William M. Daley has ordered a "management review" of the Minority Business Development Agency, a Commerce Department outfit that has come under intense criticism for the expensive travels of its director, Joan Parrott-Fonseca, and several of her subordinates.

Commerce sources tell us the review was initiated in part because Daley learned last month that the MBDA is paying $50,000 a year for the services of an inexperienced, 25-year-old Harvard graduate student whose job is to develop an "international trade program" for the agency.

But MBDA spokeswoman Marta Cardona claims that the internal inquiry into the agency's affairs is nothing out of the ordinary. "It's not an investigation; it's a review," Cardona told our associates Aaron Karp and Kathryn Wallace. "It's part of an ongoing process that the secretary is doing."

Nevertheless, the "review" may be an unpleasant experience for Parrott-Fonseca, whose extensive globe-trotting went without rebuke from Daley's predecessors, Mickey Kantor and Ron Brown. As we've reported, Parrott-Fonseca has shown a fondness for travel on the government's dime. The MBDA director was on a road 212 days during an 18-month period beginning in 1995. Her travel schedule often put her in exotic locales, where she stayed in expensive resort hotels.

Twice in recent weeks, Parrott-Fonseca has ducked invitations to explain herself before lawmakers on Capitol Hill. In March, Parrott-Fonseca abruptly postponed an interagency budget hearing before the House Appropriations Committee, at which members of Congress were expected to air some tough criticism of her agency.

Last week, she again ducked out at the last minute when it came time to testify. The official explanation was illness, but sources inside the MBDA claim that one of her top aides, who appeared in her place, spent three days locked in his office last week preparing congressional testimony -- an indication that Parrott-Fonseca's illness may have been planned.

Our sources confide that Daley decided to act after reading our recent column detailing the story of Juan Verde, the 50-year-old year grad student who has also accompanied Parrott-Fonseca on several of her trips abroad.

Despite being registered as a full-time student at Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government, Verde spends a generous chunk of his time traveling the world as a Commerce Department bureaucrat. Verde's trips have taken him to China, Ecuador, Chile, the Dominican Republic and Costa Rica, and have cost taxpayers more than $18,000.

On April 10, less than two weeks after we reported on Verde's sweetheart deal, Daley fired off a memorandum to several top Commerce officials. "I would like you to conduct a management review of MBDA," the Commerce secretary wrote.

Story of the sixty-something mom

BOSTON--Arceli Keh wasn't doing this for the Guinness Book of Records. As the World's Oldest Mom said after her identity was uncovered, "I wasn't trying to make history. I just wanted a baby."

Nevertheless, when the post-menopausal, pre-Medicare birth announcement was first blasted across front pages all over the world, the California woman was regarded as a freak of nature. Or un-nature.

Strong men gasped at the vision of senior-set maternity. Strong women broke into a Lamaze pant at the idea of spending their golden years lactating.

But pretty soon, the story of this sixty-something mom was transformed into a case study of the double standard. From all parts of the country, a few men and a whole lot of women began to ask some variation of the same question: "Hey, if Tony Randall can be lauded and eulogized for having a baby at 77 what's wrong with Arceli Keh giving birth at 63?"

In short, and with apologies to Jonathan Swift, what's sauce for the gander has now become high-tech sauce for the goose. What's sauce for 77-year-old Tony Randall, 78-year-old Anthony Quinn, 65-year-old Yasser Arafat, 64-year-old Clint Eastwood and their younger mates is sauce for Arceli Keh and her 60-year-old husband. Gender quality through biotechnology!

Well, I bow to no one in my desire to merge the double standard. There is indeed a whole lot of sexism and age-ism in the notion that her wrinkles--but not his--disqualify her. Arceli got to be treated as a sexually viable woman the old-fashioned way: She lied about her age. I can even dredge up some good news about senior maternity. Medicare could pay the obstetrician. You could stay home and raise the tyke on Social Security and a pension. And to be fair, a whole lot of grandmas are acting moms.

But there is something wacky in this pseudo-equality. Pregnancy never was an equal opportunity employment. It's more--how shall I say this?--labor-intensive for women than men. We put in the sweat equity.

As for child-raising, since time immemorial, men have left their genes behind for women to raise even when they went off to war. Under my single standard, I would rally men who think of fatherhood as a commitment to raising a child, not producing an heir.

But the Kehs' experience is not quite the blow for equality that some believe. After all, to become pregnant after menopause, you still need a younger woman's egg. Arceli is the gestational mother, the birth mother, the nurturing mother, but not the genetic mother.

What we have here, Guinness notwithstanding, is a kind of do-it-yourself surrogacy. This wife went into a high-risk pregnancy--diabetes was one side effect--to carry the offspring of her husband's sperm and another woman's egg to fruition.

Is it too far-fetched to wonder what traditional cultural pressures about gender carried over into the late-life quest to bear a (his) child? And while we are asking questions, would the egg donor approve of an elder donee? Does it matter?

I know that the biological clock is lamented as proof that life isn't fair, that men have more options than women. They can start later, or start over, with a second wife or a third trophy. Women have to figure it all out earlier.

But I have always thought of menopause as the built-in female advantage, because, guess what? There is a biological clock. It is ticking. It's the life cycle.

"Our age doesn't matter," Mrs. Keh told a British tabloid, The Express. "We feel young at heart and love our child." But age counts. It counts the years.

When Cynthia Keh leaves for college, Arceli will be hopefully--82. Yes, I know, when Julia Randall leaves for college, Tony will be--very, very hopefully--95. Young parents can also die or deteriorate. But we are talking odds.

There's no reason to cheer the biotechnology that allows the goose to do what nature neglected to prevent the gander from doing.

I don't see how we can legally ban elder women from getting eggs. But we can insist that human eggs be allocated as wisely by doctors and donors as livers or kidneys.

Not that long ago, women depended on Mother Nature to help make their decisions. Now we too have to depend on that much less reliable biological tool: the human brain.

vate collection of trinkets representing customs and societies worldwide. Patti claims they didn't scour the Earth for their Hawaiian tribal masks and ethnic statues, but instead find treasures mostly in flea markets and antique shops.

Brunell recently completed a totem pole for a doctor, who came up with her own design. Brunell took the design and fused together a statue authentic enough to be mistaken for a real Indian pole. The top of the pole is an eagle showing off its incredible wing span as it clutches on to its fish dinner. The eagle is followed by a pipe smoking mariner and he stands atop a dolphin.

The totem pole is an example of his abilities and surely the tip of his creative iceberg.

Brunell and his wife are distinctively witty and incredible charming. Patti continuously praises her husband which he simply shrugs off. He is a modest talent.

Brunell's and his wife's art has been displayed at the Winter Park Art Mall, and it may be there again. The director of the mall had planned a trip to the Brunell household on Wednesday.

Brunell keeps an Indian statue on his back porch. And how could one not notice the huge eye resembling a hieroglyphic hanging from the wall of the porch. Brunell said it is Egyptian and it is his signature. A similar symbol can be found on his wife's paintings. Brunell said it stood for Ray, the Egyptian sun god. How ironic that they would choose eye symbols. Their work and the artistic duo themselves are certainly eye opening.

Prayer

Many church pastors, sheriff's departments, police departments, city and county officials will be represented. Ladies groups, such as First Baptist Markham Woods women, will meet to pray over lists of state, local and government officials and missionaries they have been assigned to bring to God during their morning prayer breakfast.

"Prayer Points" have been established to accommodate those who are unable to participate in large public gatherings. Lunchrooms, city street corners, neighborhood homes, conference rooms, bus stops and churches will be stopping points for those wishing to engage in communion with God for one minute, one hour or more.

Requests are extended to all to remember the president, state and local officials and other in leadership positions. A group of state leaders will join together in the courtyard at the State Capitol at noon for their own observance of this day.

Judge what might be considered excessive noise, which might allow law enforcement to take action under such an ordinance.

The commissioners leaned toward purchasing noise-registering meters, but City Manager Bill Simmons was instructed to investigate the cost involved and how reliable they may be in checking the amount of noise based on the distance from which the readings are taken.

The proposal was not listed on the agenda for the regular commission meeting. Nonetheless, during citizen participation, a number of people came forward to voice their objections, and several petitions were turned over to city officials.

Not all of the complaints were specifically against the April 19th event. Others alluded to the weekend of April 4th, 5th and 6th.

While some objections regarded the noise from the bands, others focused on open air alcoholic beverage consumption and safety connected with possible drunk drivers.

The earliest complaint, received by the city on April 9, was written by a resident of S. Pine Ridge Circle. She included a petition signed by 11 residents of Pine Ridge Condo. It alludes to the early April event. In the cover letter, the woman suggested such activities be limited to the inside of a structure. "The volume level of this music was a disturbance of the peace," she wrote.

submitted on April 28 by Robin Ambrose, president of the Sandwood Villas Homeowners Association, at 700 E. Airport Blvd. "We are located approximately one-quarter mile from the Westend Galleria, location of the Tsunami Beach Club," Ambrose wrote. "Our residents strongly feel that they can no longer endure the extremely loud noise which occurs during one of these outdoor concerts that often take place on the weekends."

The letter requested the commission to bring these outdoor concerts to a complete halt.

One citizen told the commission he had contacted the city regarding the noise, but had not received any response. "I will bring a stop to this with the use of any legal remedies available," he said.

Mayor Larry Dale explained that at the present time, all of the special events had taken place and that there were no additional ones of this type which had been approved by the commission.

He continued, "I conducted a personal check of surrounding restaurants and contrary to what I was told before these events, I found that nearby businesses weren't as crowded as people would lead us to believe. While there was no parking available, there was no spill over from this concert that brought any prosperity into the area."

"I've talked to a number of people," said Commissioner Brady Lessard, "and tried to explain that you can't legislate against music or alcohol. But as I see it, this is a noise issue."

"I disagree," responded Dale. "It's the outside consumption of alcohol that I don't favor. We perhaps can regulate this by limiting where these events can be held."

"I assure you," Commissioner Velma Williams told the people gathered in the commission chambers, "that your sentiments will be given our utmost consideration."

like to play college basketball. Sean was one of the senior co-captains for Seminole High School's basketball team and also played on the volleyball and golf teams. He had a 3.74 GPA, ranking him 11th in a class of 356. He recently won the Terry Cordell Award at his school, given to the student who participates in two or more sports and maintains the best grade average. He is presently participating in an internship with the Seminole County School Board's Information Systems Department, where he is gaining valuable experience in the computer field.

Jeremy Kaplan, the valedictorian of his class and Scott Sturtz, the lead trumpet player in the jazz and show bands, were also honored by the Optimists on Wednesday for academics and music. Star athlete Aubrey Nelson was a winner, too, but was unable to attend because she was competing in tennis.

It was fitting, too, that the Optimists honored Sanford Middle School Principal Bill A. Moore as Educator of the Year recipient.

The young people and Mr. Moore left the luncheon with more than a trophy in their hands. They also take with them the hopes and the future of this community and the world. They are gifted and they are good. And we are glad to know them.

art is his way of giving back. Joining Begaye at "Ancient Tribal Rhythms" will be Hawk Henries, Phillip Miller and "Cecil Road."

Based in Titusville, "Cecil Road" is a soft rock instrumental band. "Cecil Road" is husband and wife, Jim and Liz Miller; Liz's brother, Mike Church; Jim's neighbor, Pat Manning; and Rich Morin.

Responsible for the majority of the band's compositions, Jim Miller played saxophone from "grade school to high school. He took up the guitar at 13, teaching himself how to play the chords and rhythms. He played clubs in the greater Cincinnati area "prior to being of a legal age."

Liz is the only band member with "formal" training. She played viola for the Chicago City-wide Orchestra, but now handles the keyboard and synthesizer for "Cecil Road."

Church plays bass and is credit for being the "reason this whole thing got started." Formerly involved in several bands, he "prodged" his brother-in-law for nearly a year before the band was finally organized.

Manning plays second guitar and only started playing after he heard Jim, Liz and Mike jamming at their home on Cecil Road (hence the name of the band).

Percussion is provided by Morin. Tired of the club scene, Morin had his drums in storage when he first met the group. On the other end of the spectrum, Hawk Henries, a member of the Chaubungunganaug Band of the Nipmuc Nation (Algonquin), gives birth to the instruments on which he plays. Born in Rhode Island and now residing on an island off the coast of Maine, with his wife and children, Henries is a flute maker and player.

Each of Henries' flute are created from a single piece of wood, with only the use of hand tools and fire. It is Henries' intention that "every flute be treated as unique individual, each with it's own personality."

When one handles a flute, and then when it is given voice, all of these qualities can be heard and felt.

Coming to L&L Acres Ranch in Lake Mary, Saturday and Sunday, May 3 and 4, "Ancient Tribal Rhythms" is a multi-cultural music and art festival, a unique opportunity to "interact and celebrate with our indigenous cultures."

Musicians, dancers, singers, crafts, demonstrators and food vendors have all been chosen to represent the cultures of Africa, Latin America, Australia, South American, Asia, the Caribbean and Native America. Admission is $7 for adults, $3 for children 7 and up, seniors and veterans. Children under 6 are free. Reentry is available to the festival that runs 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. both days.

Look out next year is theme for Seminole softball team

SANFORD - This year, the Seminole softball team has plenty of time to prepare for the prom. Next year, they won't be so lucky.

From night is next weekend and the Lady 'Noles guaranteed plenty of time to primp and preen before the event. Ending their season with a 5-3 loss to Merritt Island Tuesday night in the Class 5-A district in Osceola County.

Forget all that stuff about losing. This time next season, they'll look back on this and laugh.

It will be the laugh of a winner. Coach David Rogers has spent years trying to tap into the female softball talent at Seminole.

Sometimes, there would be more wins than in other seasons, but it always translated into a losing record and an early vacation for his girls.

Now, things are different. Something is shining brightly on Rogers and his team, namely, the new lights at the Seminole High softball field, an innovation that brings Seminole up to par with its district and conference opponents.

Not only that but, much more importantly, he finally has the talent to compete.

That was noticeable early in the season when Seminole jumped out to a strong, winning start to the season.

Things started to fade after the first month. The losses started to mount, but Rogers never gave up on his girls. The blowouts of last year became nail biters and he found a talent base made up entirely of underclassmen.

Instead of wondering how he will load his lineup next season, Rogers can be happy knowing he has players like Jennifer Wilson at shortstop, also able to pitch in a pinch if Maria Duval isn't mowing down batters.

Amanda Mustakis will bring back a large bat to third base and Jessie Butters will come back behind the plate in the cleanup spot.

Sherry Eiland, Amanda Coho and Kelly Langton are also back, along with the rest of the Seminole starters and a strong group of current junior varsity players.

Rogers said after the loss to Merritt Island that he was satisfied with the effort his players gave, even after the strong start.

He described the season as the turning point in Seminole softball.

Rogers is right. His team turned a corner, became competitive and announced that it is no longer a pushover in conference and district play.

He deserves to be happy after this season. It is only a sweet-tasting appetizer to the future.

Last-second shot: While the Seminole team seemed happy with the successes of 1997, there were a whole bunch of people at the Osceola County Softball Complex Tuesday night that didn't seem too pleased.

As the Seminole season faded away, with the exception of some very young, vocal and supportive fans in the stands, there were far too many people complaining and showing anger at the team.

As the game progressed, napkins and hats were flung to the ground as supposed supporters of the team whined that their kids should be able to do better.

Funny, the Lady 'Noles seemed to have it all in perspective, still having fun and smiling as the season was winding down.

In the stands, the scene was messy as profanities followed popouts as the so-called fans and supporters refused to recognize a job well-done.

Seminole might have lost but some of its fans were the biggest losers. No one applauded as the players walked off the field for the last time; no one offered encouragement.

The Lady 'Noles deserve better.

Denmon's blast puts Seminole in 5A-6 finale

Rob Denmon (dark uniform) hit a two-out, three-run home run in the bottom of the ninth inning to give Seminole a 5-2 victory over Satellite in the Class 5A-District 6 Tournament semifinals Wednesday afternoon.

KISSIMMEE - Last night, Seminole's Rob Denmon lived the dream of every little boy or girl who ever picked up a wiffle ball bat and imagined hitting a home run in the big game.

In real life, Denmon did what teammate sluggers like Tim Raines, Chris Lauwmsma and CS Williams couldn't. He stepped to the plate in extra innings at Osceola County Stadium, with the season on the line, and knocked a pitch over the left field wall to give the Seminoles a 5-2 win over Satellite to move the Tribe into the Class 5A-District 6 finals Friday night at 7 p.m. against top-seeded Merritt Island, a 6-4 winner over Kissimmee-Osceola.

To make it even more remarkable, Denmon, Seminole's number nine hitter, had struck out in his last five at bats and was replaced by a pinch hitter in the seventh inning.

"I was thinking it was a smart move," Denmon said of coach Mike Powers' decision to pinch hit in the seventh. "I'd have done that too, the way I was hitting."

Denmon got his chance with two outs in the ninth, after it looked like Seminole had squandered a big opportunity. Williams led off the inning with a single but was picked off first base.

Chas Lytle followed with another single and moved to second on a wild pitch. Bill Johnson grounded into a force play but Andrew Hall walked to set the stage for the unlikely hero.

"I've been struggling," Denmon said. "I haven't been able to pull the trigger but I knew he was going to throw the curve ball. He was throwing it all night and I just waited on it."

Lion, Patriot nines win

By Tony DeBorner

LAKE MARY - Both teams will tell you they're just happy to be here, but if truth be known, they're probably just as thrilled with whom they'll be playing.

On Wednesday night at Lake Mary High School's Ram Field, the Lake Brantley Patriots and Oviedo Lions posted wins in the semifinals of the 6A-District 4 baseball tournament to advance to Friday night's championship game at 8 p.m.

Lake Brantley rallied from a 2-0 deficit to eliminate the Lake Howell Silver Hawks, 6-3, before Ben Knapp tossed a four-hit shutout to lead Oviedo to a 2-0 decision over the host Lake Mary Rams.

Because both the district champ and runner-up advance to the same round of the state playoffs, Wednesday night's victories guarantee both the Patriots and Lions at least two more games apiece, removing the "win or the season's over" pressure from the contest.

So far this season, Lake Brantley and Oviedo have played three times, the Patriots winning two of the three. In each game, the winning team scored the winning run in its last at bat.

On March 7, Shaun Child and Jay Signorelli combined on a no-hitter as the Patriots rallied for three runs in the seventh to post a 4-2 win. In the finals of the Big Blue Bonanza on March 28, Oviedo scored three runs in the bottom of the sixth to win 3-1. And on April 4, Chris Harney's two-out home run in the seventh gave Lake Brantley a 3-2 decision.

"I wouldn't be surprised if we saw them again in the district finals," said Lake Brantley coach Mike Smith after the April 4 thriller. "These are two teams that will probably do a lot of traveling in the state tournament this spring."

To arrange their fourth meeting of the season, the Patriots and Lions had to get past the Silver Hawks and Rams, respectively.

"Nothing comes easy in this district, not at this time of the season," said Smith, referring to the fact that Lake Howell, which hadn't won a district game all year, led 2-0 heading into the bottom of the fifth inning against his state-ranked Patriots.

"They're kid (Jeff Monaco) did a good job. But they had to use him last night (Tuesday) to close out the game over Lyman, so he was probably a little tired."

Oviedo, Lake Mary in 6A-4 softball final

LAKE MARY - Lake Mary's softball team has waited a year for a Class 6A-District 4 tournament rematch with Oviedo.

Last night, with a 5-0 win over Lyman, they secured that long awaited grudge match.

"Oviedo is a big rival of ours," winning Lake Mary pitcher Halle Sowards said. "Last year they were the home team in districts and they took our dug out and then beat us. We've been waiting a long time for this one."

The wait is over thanks to a tremendous second inning.

A triple by Jeannie Manz started the second and Carissa Sica followed suit two batters later. After

Ron's Tire wraps up LM title

From Staff Reports

LAKE MARY - It took 13 long weeks, but today Ron's Tire and Muffler Center is the champion of the City of Lake Mary Department of Parks & Recreation Men's Wednesday Polar Bear Slow Pitch Softball League.

Last night at the Lake Mary Sports Complex, Ron's Tire and Muffler Center used the hot bats of Tony Blalle, Tom Wilks and Robert Smith and a special defense to end Columbia Medical Center's eight-game winning streak and avenge its only loss of the season 8-4.

The other games ended in forfeits, with Celeste Industries and Nice-N-Easy getting the 7-0 victories.

The final standings were: Ron's Tire and Muffler Center (11-1), Columbia Medical Center (9-3), Nice-N-Easy (8-4), Celeste Industries and U.S. Postal Service (both 6-6), Home Depot (2-10) and Don Mealey's Seminole Ford (0-12).

Ron's Tire got on the board first in the top of the second inning as Blalle reached second on an error and came around to score on fly balls by Wilks and Robert Smith. Columbia tied the game in the bottom of the second inning as Danny Hewitt singled, moved to second on an error, advanced to third when Clyde Wood walked and scored on a sacrifice fly by Steve Tillman.

Ron's Tire regained the lead in the top of the third when Chris Bryson doubled and moved around on flies by Billy Gracey and Paul Rodriguez.

Columbia Medical Center then took its only lead of the night as, with one out, Steve Wagner and Mike Clark singled and Dave Johnson ripped an RBI double. Jay Snell then hit a sacrifice fly and Johnson scored when Danny Hewitt reached on an error.

Ron's Tire came back in the top of the fourth inning to take the lead for good as Wilks and Robert Smith singled with one out and, after the second out of the inning, both scored on singles by Brian Jones and Jerry Camus. Jones then scored on a bloop double by Trent Smith.

Ron's Tire tacked on a pair of insurance runs in the fifth inning on a two-out single by Blalle, a double high off the center field fence by Wilks and an RBI single by Manz crossed the plate, Megan Denfrich, Lindsey Manz, Sicá, and Jackie Crispell turned a 0-0 game into an impending contest.

Lyman appeared to be returning to the game in the fourth, after the first nine batters were sent packing quickly. Julie Katauskas opened with a base hit and although her next three teammates would make contact with the ball, they were unable to take their bases.

In the fifth and sixth innings, Greyhound batters advanced as far as second base thanks to another base hit by Katauskas, but were unable to convert.

Pitching won the game for Lake Mary and Sowards was again the key. In her ninth win of the season, Sowards struck out nine batters and gave up only two hits.

"The team came out in the second and hit the ball well," Lake Mary head coach Jeannie Fisher said. "However, if this had been a close game, our remaining innings would have killed us. Italic really did a good job tonight, though, and I was very pleased with her."

Although Sowards admitted that she played a good game, she was not completely happy with her performance.

"I was a little upset about giving up two runs," Sowards said. "If I get to pitch against Oviedo, I will want to really work on moving the ball around. I can always rely on my speed, but my ball movement will have to be really good."

The whole team will have to be really good, and they are. But so is Oviedo. The Lions earned their spot in the finals, and a trip to the regionals next week, with a 7-1 victory over Lake Howell.

Deacarc Schwartz led the fourth inning with a home run as Oviedo broke a 1-1 tie. Lion hurler Tonya Howard gave up only four hits and struck out three.

"We can not allow the game to turn into a head game," Fisher said of the final with Oviedo. "We should do all right. These girls know what they have to do to get the job done. If they come out here on Friday and do that, we have a shot."

This year Lake Mary is the home team in the tournament final, and they have a score to settle. Oviedo will not go down without a fight, and that's what the Lady Rams intend to give them.

fifth tied the game for the Patriots. In the bottom of the sixth, Chris Harney hit a one-out double. Brian Boeblich then singled home Matt Cunningham, pinch-running for Harney, for the go-ahead run.

Krot, Chad Hall, and Justin Smith each added an RBI single to give Lake Brantley a 6-2 edge. Neal Maybin's solo home run in the top of the seventh made the final 6-3.

Harney led the Patriots with two doubles and two runs scored. Krot doubled, singled, scored a run, and had three RBIs. Hall singled twice, scored once, and had an RBI.

For Lake Howell, Taylor had a double, single, and an RBI. Chris Case singled twice and had an RBI. Maybin had his solo home run.

Rob Sits (9-1) tossed a complete game, striking out nine, to earn the win for Lake Brantley (23-5). Reliever Ryan Smith (1-2) suffered the loss for Lake Howell (10-18).

Knapp (4-2) got off to a rough start against Lake Mary as he walked the first two hitters. But he quickly found the strike zone and allowed only four more base runners the rest of the night, a quartet of singles in four different innings.

Lawrence Pultz gave the Lions a 1-0 lead when he hit a two-out double and scored on Scott Ferrell's flare single in the second inning. Jeremy Frost gave Oviedo a little breathing room when he doubled to lead off the fourth, stole third, and trotted home on Jay McFarlane's deep sacrifice fly.

"We did what we needed to do to advance to the championship game," said Oviedo coach Kenne Brown. "There's no such thing as an easy game in this district. Each game is a battle. You can't look past the game at hand because if you do, there may not be a next game."

Frost doubled, singled, and scored a run. Pultz had a double and a run scored while McFarlane added a double and an RBI. Ferrell singled in a run. Knapp also hit a single.

For Lake Mary (14-13), Brad Klinger, Jimmy Smith, Matt Allegra, and Scott Hillnaki each hit a single.

Denmon said it was the first homer he had ever hit, including little league and even when he was a kid, playing in the yard and dreaming of a game-winning homer.

For Seminole, the win guaranteed a position in the Class 5-A regionals, regardless of Friday's outcome. Powers said Lytle will take the hill against Merritt Island. Last night, Seminole jumped out early and got a strong relief effort from Williams to keep the game, and the season, from getting away.

The Tribe jumped out early when Louwama knocked in Raines with an RBI single and Seminole made it 2-0 in the fourth after Williams tripled and Lytle singled him home.

Seminole starter Josh Blanton looked sharp early but started to struggle with a 2-1 lead.

Williams came in to pitch in the fifth and worked out of a jam but Blanton came in to start the sixth.

He didn't last long and, again, Williams was brought in. He ended up with three-and-a-third innings of one-hit ball, keeping things safe until Denmon decided to end it.

"He came through," Powers said. "We just told him he has to start swinging the bat."

That's what Denmon did, and that's why Seminole lives to play tomorrow night.

Controlling the cost of fitness kind of monthly payment, at least go out once a week or so. This is said not to be sarcastic, but to help you gain a better appreciation for the money you spend. There is nothing more demoralizing than writing that check off, at the same time, you are out of shape and getting no exercise.

I am all for people being in good physical condition, and I know that exercise is good for your health. However, if you are considering joining a health club, you may want to consider re-thinking your plans. Getting into the routine of going to a gym takes real commitment, and if you are not ready to make it, perhaps you can save yourself some money and work out at home.

For under $20, you can walk into any book store and purchase a guide on working out at home, and the equipment you need usually can be bought for about the same cost as a monthly payment at that club you have been eyeing. A combination of sit-ups, push-ups, light weights and aerobic dancing will work just as well for free at home as it will at the health club. You will look and feel better, and you will have one less monthly payment.

If you should decide to join a club, do not be controlled by slick advertising. I can promise you that, if you are like most people, simply joining the fancy health club will not automatically give you rock hard abs like the models in their ads have. Realize that slimming down and feeling better is a more reasonable goal that also will result in improved quality of life and better health as you grow older. That can be accomplished anywhere, without joining the most expensive club in town.

Shop around and visit a few different places. They will be happy to let you look around the facilities, locker rooms and showers. Most important, compare prices. You will probably find one or two places that have the same equipment for a much lower price than the rest.

Also, many clubs are offering month-to-month memberships because they know people are a little wary of signing long-term contracts. This type of arrangement may be a little more expensive on a per-month basis, but it will give you the opportunity to see how committed you are to an exercise program. After a few months, if you feel confident that you will stick with it, then look into a longer membership.

Debt created by easy credit harder to pay

DEAR ABBY: I am a mortgage broker, and it is my job to review people's credit history. I am disturbed by the number of people who are mired in credit card debt. I just talked to a couple with four children who had more than $100,000 in credit card debt with an annual salary of $75,000.

This is an extreme case. However, it is not uncommon for people to be caught up in the vicious cycle of paying for things on credit and being able to afford only the minimum monthly payments of these cards. I feel the credit card companies are to blame for all their gimmicks of "preapproved" junk mail, and the consumer is to blame for not being able to throw this mail away instead of signing up. Credit cards encourage people to live beyond their means, creating financial stress in families.

If people are in that situation, I encourage them to call the credit card company to close their account and cut up their cards, except one with a low interest rate or one that is due monthly. If there isn't enough cash to pay for it — don't buy it!

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Use the card for emergencies only. Even though they may have to do without the new outfit or the larger television set, consumers will be happier without the stress that credit card debt can cause. Are there support groups available for "credit junkies"?

FREE AND CLEAR IN FLORIDA

DEAR FREE AND CLEAR: I don't know about support groups for credit junkies, but consumer credit counseling services are available in most major metropolitan areas. To locate one, look in the Yellow Pages.

According to the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts, in 1986 a record 1.1 million individuals filed bankruptcy — up 37 percent from the previous year.

Your "credit card cut-up" is a step in the right direction, but major creditors also want to toughen the nation's bankruptcy code to make it more difficult to simply erase debts without further payment.

DEAR ABBY: "Loving Daughter" in Lakeland, Fla., wrote that her father had a college ring he never removed, but at his death she took the ring off to keep in his memory. She asked, "Did we do the right thing?" Your reply, "Yes, without a doubt."

You were wrong. My late wife never wanted her wedding ring removed. When she underwent serious surgery, she said, "Don't let them take the ring off." As death neared, she was concerned that the funeral directors might do so.

When the time came to close the coffin, I leaned down for one last kiss, placed my hand over her cold one, touched the ring and said, "You got your wish. That ring never left your finger since I put it on, years ago."

The body disintegrates after death, but gold is eternal. As long as our civilization survives, in that grave will be a circle of gold, memorializing a love that once existed.

"Loving Daughter's" father must have had a similar bond to his college. The ring should have remained with him throughout eternity.

ALONE WITH MEMORIES

DEAR ALONE: Please accept my sympathy on the loss of your beloved wife. You were honoring your wife's wishes by seeing that she was buried with her ring. "Loving Daughter," however, had never heard her father express such a sentiment. For her to have buried the ring, rather than keeping it to cherish, would have benefited no one.

DEAR ABBY: Here's one for which I would appreciate a solution. The guys at the office didn't have an answer.

I was at a very crowded shopping mall and needed to use the rest room as I was leaving. The men's room and the ladies' room were side by side. The ladies' room had a line outside it, while the men's room had no waiting line.

As I approached the men's room, the women started to grumble loudly about having to wait and split up into lines outside both rest rooms. This effectively restricted my access to the men's room, so I departed the mall and drove to the nearest gas station to use the rest room there.

What should a male's proper course of action be in a situation like this?

LEGS CROSSED IN NEWARK

DEAR LEGS CROSSED: I think your course of action was intelligent. But on my way out, I would have reported it to mall security.

DEAR ABBY: Why would a bright, pretty 23-year-old allow herself to be emotionally abused by her husband?

Birthdays, anniversaries, Christmas, St. Valentine's Day, etc. come and go without so much as a card or any kind of acknowledgment. They have had many fights over this — and my daughter has told him how hurt she is. He is always "sorry" and has some kind of excuse, but this happens over and over again.

It hurts me to see how upset she gets, but as a parent, what should I do?

UPSET MOTHER DOWN SOUTH

DEAR MOTHER: Do not offer any "solutions" or advice. It's nice to be remembered on special occasions, but how does he treat your daughter every other day in the year?

DEAR ABBY: I've never written before, but I'm sure you'll receive a lot of mail about the letter you printed from "Young Mother in Pennsylvania." She wrote, "I know Claire better than anyone else, so shouldn't I know the best way to be a parent to her?" Your answer was, "Yes, stick to your convictions."

I believe you overlooked a few things when you gave that answer. First of all, she's married at 19, they're living with her parents until they can get on their feet, and they have a 9-month-old child. It appears they entered the marriage without considering the costs of living together as a married couple, and to complicate matters, they had a child within the first year. (I'm not even considering the possibility of conception before marriage.)

However you look at it, this constitutes lack of wisdom.

She also said that although both of their parents "did a good job in raising them," now she suddenly feels she knows more than they do because she "knows her child." Abby, loving her child and being with her doesn't equate with wisdom in raising a child.

The problem appears to lie in her statement, "... what seems like advice to them sounds like criticism to me." Her viewpoint needs a little re-adjustment!

Granted, not all of their suggestions may be the best, but that doesn't mean she should throw the combined total of 40 years' experience out the window. She should sit through it and apply what appears reasonable. She should also be grateful for their advice and realize that they want what's best for both her and the grandchild because they love them. Viewing it from that perspective will help her gain wisdom and cope with the situation until they can move out on their own.

SECOND OPINION FROM MINNESOTA

DEAR SECOND OPINION: You're right on all counts. I received considerable criticism for taking the side of the 19-year-old mother who wanted to tune out her parents' and in-laws' advice on child-rearing.
