Two die, two missing after blast

ATHENS, Greece — Authorities said today that two workers perished and two others were missing and presumed dead by an explosion a day earlier that heavily damaged a Greek tanker undergoing repairs in the port of Piraeus.

Authorities reported another 15 workers were injured on the 81,000-ton Angel of Greatness by Tuesday's explosion, which is believed to have been caused by gases ignited by a welder's torch.

Soviet spacecraft lands safely

MOSCOW — A cool-headed Soviet cosmonaut who requested music and a nap before he and his Afghan comrade made a make-or-break attempt to guide their malfunctioning spacecraft back to Earth got a hero's welcome today after landing safely in Central Asia.

Veteran cosmonaut Vladimir Lyakhov and Abdul Aha Mohamand, the first Afghan in space, brought their Soyuz TM-5 capsule down 96 miles from the Soviet city of Dzheszkagan, ending a daylong drama in which they twice failed to break out of orbit.

Officials review Tutu sermon

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Police are reviewing a confiscated tape of Archbishop Desmond Tutu calling for an illegal election boycott as a possible prelude to legal action against the black church leader.

An Anglican Church spokesman said police took a search warrant Tuesday to Tutu's Cape Town home and seized a tape recording of a defiant sermon the cleric delivered on Sunday.

In his sermon, Tutu effectively challenged authorities to prosecute him for calling an illegal boycott of October local elections.

Warren, Davis winners

Two runoffs in commissioner races

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Pat Warren was elected the Seminole County District 1 commissioner Tuesday night, easily passing two Republican opponents in her first bid for elected office while District 3 incumbent Fred Streetman failed to gain a clear majority over two opponents, sending him into a runoff with Jeff Etchberger on October 4.

In the Republican District 5 primary, Dick Van Der Weide will face Jennifer Kelley in the runoff. The winner of that race will face Democrat Art Davis in the Nov. 8 general election. Davis won by a nearly 2-1 margin over Democratic opponent Amos Jones.

Warren, 55, of Altamonte Springs, said by avoiding most of the jobs sent her way by opponent Dave Knickerbocker, she prevailed.

"I maintained a very positive campaign," Warren said. "I think the voters received that well. My relationship with people in Seminole County has always been a good one. I think they recognize me as a positive person."

Knickerbocker had accused Warren of being a "clone" to her former boss, District 1 commissioner Barbara Christensen.

With all of the county's 95 precincts reporting, Warren received 57.9 percent of the vote to Knickerbocker's 31.1 percent. The third District 1 Republican candidate, Pat McEwan, received 10.8 percent of the vote.

Streetman received 47.5 percent of the District 3 Republican primary vote, with Etchberger getting 35.0 percent and Bob Webster 16.6 percent.

In District 5, Van Der Weide had an edge over Kelley, garnering 39.5 percent of the Republican vote to Kelley's 32.9 percent. Ned Johnson received 27.6 percent of the vote.

Davis received 64.4 percent of the District 5 Democrat vote to Jones' 35.6 percent.

Streetman, although falling short of the needed more than 50 percent vote, was comfortable with his lead.

"I've got a 10-point lead over the second place candidate so I feel quite confident," Streetman said. "I ran on my record and I think it was a good one."

But Etchberger may gain the support of Webster for the runoff, an anti-incumbent coalition that could pass the 50-percent mark if Etchberger can hold Webster's voters.

"There have been discussions," Etchberger said Tuesday night. "I think we both pulled the 'anti' vote."

Webster was undecided on where to cast his support next month.

"I'll have to evaluate and decide what the options are," said Webster, 63. "It's a very, very strong possibility (in throwing his support to Etchberger). I'm trying to think what the best option would be."

The winner of the District 3 runoff will face Democrat Warren Keimer in November.

Kelley was pleased to still be a contender and plans an aggressive campaign during the next four weeks.

"I'm going to hit the issues hard in the next four weeks," Kelley said. "I think my constant pressure on the budget has made some people aware. I think people are concerned with why they aren't getting better services."

Davis, though pleased to defeat Jones, said he was more pleased to learn Tuesday a permit had been denied to the city of Ocala for a wastewater discharge system that would eventually flow into the St. John's River. The system is similar to one proposed at the Seminole County Yankee Lake plant under construction.

"Elections are one thing, but the survival of a river is forever," Davis said.

Morse will take over for Berrien

By J. MARK BARFIELD

SANFORD — A scandal over the use of clerk's office credit cards for personal purposes is credited with the ouster of incumbent Clerk of Court David Berrien in Tuesday night's primary race.

Maryanne Morse, an active party member but a newcomer as a candidate, ousted Berrien handily in his first bid for re-election. It was Berrien's third bid for the office. Berrien, 50, failed in his first attempt in 1980, but was elected in 1984.

With all of the county's 95 precincts reporting, Morse garnered 54.6 percent of the vote to Berrien's 45.4 percent. Morse received 8,865 votes to Berrien's 7,358.

Morse said the credit card scandal played a role in her victory.

"I think a lot of it was the voters zering in on the credit card issue," said Morse, 44. "The issue of the credit card situation came out and I don't think the voters would stand for any kind of scandal or sign of wrongdoing."

Morse also credited her campaign workers in her victory.

Maryanne Morse

Berrien's political demise began two months ago with the revelation that he and two of his top assistants were using credit cards issued to the clerk's office by two banks using the clerk's office credit. Although the cards were used for some office expenses, more than $60,000 in personal purchases was charged on them. County commissioners have called for a state investigation and audit.

Berrien had an audit conducted himself, one which showed no public funds were used, but commissioners persisted in calling for their own audit. Berrien made the campaign workers in her victory.

Valdes sends Christensen out of picture

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Political newcomer Ray Valdes ended Barbara Christensen's 10-year career in elected office Tuesday night, edging her out of the race for Seminole County Tax Collector in November against Democrat Karen Richardson.

Squeaking by with 50.1 percent of the vote, Valdes, 51, avoided a runoff with Christensen, who had 36.7 percent of the vote. Any votes over 50 percent assured Valdes' victory Tuesday night. Don Myers, 63, received 13.2 percent of the vote.

Valdes received 8,421 votes to Christensen's 6,163 while Myers received 2,219 votes.

Valdes said he waged an all-out effort to win.

"We're very pleased we won it the first time out on Sept. 6," Valdes said. "That was the way we geared our campaign. We spent everything in the campaign budget, all but about $30."

Valdes is a key member of Seminole County's oldest Republican power group, which includes Lt. Gov. Bobby Brantley, Rep. Art Grindle (R-Altamonte Springs), and Seminole County Commissioners Fred Streetman and Bob Sturm.

Valdes is past chairman of the county Republican Party and has been active in the state party, serving on the state Republican Blue Ribbon Planning Committee from 1986 to 1988. He is the president of an Apopka foliage

Polk wins easily in sheriff's race

By SUSAN LODEN

SANFORD — Seminole County Sheriff John Polk, who switched political parties two years ago, proved the switch was not a deterring factor in his appeal to voters. Polk won the Republican nomination for sheriff Tuesday against one of his former deputies, 48-year-old Larry Conniff of Winter Springs.

Polk, 56, has been sheriff for 19 years and faced a primary challenger for the first time in 16 years.

"I feel good," was Polk's post-election comment. "I've always had both Republican and Democratic support and will have that support in the November election."

Polk will also have a challenger in the general election for the first time in 16 years. Sanford sewer plant worker Patrick Paul Wilson, 39, of Forest City, is the only Democrat to seek the post of sheriff this year.

Lake Mary gateway concept draws support

By CAROL RUMSEY
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — If Sanford and Seminole County are as receptive as Lake Mary city commissioners were Tuesday, the Lake Mary Boulevard model gateway concept will become reality.

For residents and passers-by this would mean a tree-canopied four- and six-lane Lake Mary Boulevard with all utility lines buried.

A 12-member committee headed by Lake Mary City Commissioner Randy Morris has been discussing ways to achieve uniformity of building setbacks, landscape, signage and parking regulations for the soon-to-be-widened boulevard since March. They want to preserve as much of Lake Mary's small-town flavor as possible, and create a coordinated appearance for development along the boulevard.

"Let's go first-class," Lake Mary Mayor Dick Fess told the audience, which included members of the city's planning and zoning board and the Seminole County Local Planning Agency.

According to Matt West, Lake Mary City Planner, the gateway concept would allow a separate set of regulations for the boulevard, known as overlay zoning. Currently, three jurisdictions — Sanford, Lake Mary and Seminole County — each with their own set of developmental regulations, govern the boulevard.

Morris said the city should have looked into these concerns three or four years ago. He added that if action isn't taken now, many of the issues tackled in the committee study will be economically impossible to do once the road widening project planned by the county

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Area code transition troubles about over

ORLANDO, Fla. — Transition troubles encountered four months ago when a fourth state area code was assigned to 1.7 million customers in east and central Florida are about over, telephone companies say.

The number of dialing errors "has dropped off to the point that there's no longer any point in monitoring it," said spokesman Brant Bittner at United Telephone.

Complaints to the Public Service Commission in Tallahassee have also stopped, said spokeswoman Bev DeMello.

But that wasn't the case early on, according to Southern Bell spokesman Larry Strickler. He said the telephone systems were at times severely congested due to hundreds of misdialed calls and second attempts.

An area of the state from west of Orlando north into Volusia County and down the East Coast to the Broward-Palm Beach County line was assigned area code 407 on April 16. The area had previously been part of the 305 code, now left to more heavily populated south Florida.

The change was first announced in August 1986 and well publicized for more than a year. But the phone companies still gave dialers a two-month grace period during which calls went through even with the old area code.

Since mid-June callers who have not discovered the change hear a recorded message alerting them to the new area code. The warning will disappear next June and be replaced by "We're sorry. Your call cannot go through as dialed."

Strickler said 12 percent to 15 percent of calls in July to directory assistance were related to area code misunderstanding. But by last month the errors had dropped to 6 percent.

"I think that because of the tremendous amount of publicity the changeover got, both printed and electronic, it hasn't been much of a problem at all," Strickler said.

Originally, all of Florida was under area code 305. Code 813 was assigned the Gulf Coast in 1953, and the 904 code for north Florida was born in 1965.

Janitor spends like jackpot winner

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — A high school janitor who claims he won Florida's $55.1 million lottery managed to buy two vans without showing a penny of North America's biggest jackpot, but officials say they want to see the lucky ticket before declaring the winner.

The winning ticket that Charles Hill claims to own reportedly is locked in the safe of Liberty County Sheriff Harrell Revell, who is vouching for the janitor's story.

Lottery officials acknowledged Tuesday that they believe the winner has come forward but refused to give the lucky player's name until the ticket is inspected and verified. They scheduled a news conference for today.

"I don't know where the person is from," Lottery Secretary Rebecca Paul said. "But someone has given us enough information ... to lead us to believe they are indeed the winners."

Hill, a school janitor in Liberty County, population 4,500, acted like the winner during the Labor Day weekend. He bought two Chevrolet vans without cash and used the sheriff to vouch for him. One cost $19,000 and the other $23,000.

Tommy Thomas of Panama City and Jim Robinson of Blountstown, two car dealers who each had vans delivered to Hill on Labor Day, said they were convinced he was the winner.

"If he's not, he sure has fooled a lot of people," Robinson said. "I believe he's on the up and up."

Even if Hill is not the winner, "the guy has been here all his life. He's not going anywhere," Robinson said.

Robinson's sales manager, Ferrell Cloud, delivered the van and said Hill acted "like he was in a daze. He said it was kind of like a dream."

Cloud said he saw a "kind of poor Xerox copy" of the ticket that clearly showed the six winning numbers, although some digits appeared to be smeared.

But both Cloud and Thomas said the sheriff vouched for the ticket's validity, telling them that the genuine article was locked in his office vault.

"The sheriff said it was (legitimate) and we take the sheriff's word for it," Thomas said. "The sheriff said it's legitimate, the man is legitimate."

Revell could not be reached to confirm that he vouched for Hill.

Paul said the department had received several dozen phone calls from people from as far away as Minnesota claiming to have won, but only a few gave their names and only one appeared to have the winning ticket.

"Anytime we have a large jackpot we receive hundreds of calls from people who say they have the winning ticket, or a sister has it or a cousin or whatever," Paul said.

Gov. Bob Martinez said the lottery crossed $1 billion in sales sometime Saturday, barely eight months after the games began with scratch-off instant tickets. The lottery has raised about $350 million for Florida's educational system.

Shuttle crew looks forward to countdown

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — A full-scale practice countdown aboard the shuttle Discovery this week marks the most realistic test yet for the ship's five-man crew with blastoff on the first post-Challenger flight on tap in about three weeks.

"We'll enjoy getting up into the orbiter," shuttle skipper Frederick Hauck told reporters Tuesday after stepping out of his T-38 jet. "I don't know about you, but we're really excited. We're going to have a good time."

Hauck and his four veteran crewmates — co-pilot Richard Covey, John "Mike" Lounge, George "Pinky" Nelson and David Hilmers — arrived at the Kennedy Space Center Tuesday afternoon to participate in the traditional "terminal countdown demonstration test," or TCDT, planned for Thursday.

"I tell you what, Pinky and I were talking on the way down how it's really hard to believe, at least by the calendar, that we could be less than three weeks from launch," Hauck said.

"But we are, we're ready, and we're sure enjoying being down here for the terminal countdown demonstration test. We call it the dry count."

Added Hilmers: "This dry count is the most realistic test we'll be doing before launch. We'll actually be going through all the same sort of procedures and the same timeline that we do for the real launch, so it's something that's really exciting to us and we're looking forward to it."

Hauck and Covey practiced landing procedures late Tuesday aboard a business jet modified to mimic shuttle flight behavior. Their crewmates practiced driving armored personnel carriers that could prove vital in the event of a pre-launch emergency that might require a quick exit from the launch pad.

The crew planned to visit Discovery's launch pad Wednesday afternoon to review emergency pre-launch escape procedures.

NASA hopes to launch Discovery in the last week of September, although an official launch date will not be set until a formal flight readiness review Sept. 13 and 14 at the Kennedy Space Center.

At least two issues remain to be resolved: a tiny hydrogen leak in a fuel line and the sluggish behavior of two of three gaseous oxygen valves that opened slower than planned. Both problems surfaced after Discovery's main engines were first fired Aug. 10.

Navy used traditional methods when recruit drowned, lawyers say

PENSACOLA, Fla. — Lawyers for Navy swimming instructor Michael Combe told a court-martial judge that he followed traditional methods in training recruit Lee Mirecki and cannot be held responsible for the young sailor's panic-induced death.

The prosecution objected to this defense Tuesday on the opening day of Combe's court-martial, saying tradition is no justification for the methods used against Mirecki before his drowning March 2 at the Pensacola Naval Air Station's Rescue Swimmer School.

Cmdr. Newell Krogmann, serving as the court-martial's judge, said he would rule today whether Combe may use the defense.

Cmdr. Larry Wynne, in the prosecution's opening arguments, said Mirecki panicked, had a heart attack and drowned during a class because of "acts or omissions by Combe."

Wynne said Mirecki ran from the pool and clung to an equipment rack, but instructors other than Combe converged on him and forced him back in the water.

Combe, acting lead instructor at the time, then put Mirecki in a rear head hold and would not listen to the 19-year-old recruit from Appleton, Wis., when he told Combe to let go and asked him to stop, Wynne said.

"No rational man, hearing those things, would have forced that young man to continue training," he said.

Petty Officer 2nd Class Combe, 28, of Tempe, Ariz., is accused of involuntary manslaughter, battery and conspiracy to commit battery. If convicted on all counts, he faces more than three years' confinement and either a dishonorable or bad-conduct discharge. At least four members of the five-member jury must agree for conviction.

Defense lawyer William Willshire said Combe "did what he was instructed to do, what he was told to do. This is not Petty Officer Combe's fault, nor is it the fault of anyone at that pool."

He said if the methods were wrong, responsibility "falls on his superiors" and indicated he would present evidence that Mirecki actually was carrying Combe in a rescue hold when his heart "got the better of him."

Wynne said in Sept. 30, 1987, another student, Christopher Cocchiti, passed out while Combe held him in a rear head lock. "Anybody would have gotten the heads up from that, gentlemen," the prosecutor said.

Cocchiti, the prosecution's first witness, said he blacked out during the same "sharks and daisies" exercise, in which instructors pretend to be drowning and grab students in rear and front head holds. He said he was unable to get air when Combe grabbed him from behind.

"From the time I got grabbed by Petty Officer Combe, I can't remember breathing at all," he said.

Under cross-examination, Cocchiti said it was a standard hold and that Combe did nothing that other instructors did not do. He said it was not Combe's fault he was not able to get air before going under water.

Combe's lawyer said he expects to call Combe to the witness stand.

Prosecutors claim Combe conspired with four other instructors to force Mirecki to continue training. They allege Combe knew Mirecki was exhausted and feared the water but he dunked the recruit's head under water repeatedly, and is guilty of culpable negligence.

A month before Mirecki's death, the recruit suffered an incident of panic and fled from the pool. A psychologist later said Mirecki had a phobia, but that information allegedly never got to instructors at the swimmer school, Mirecki, not wanting to lose his air-crew status, went back into the class.

Besides Combe and the other four instructors, the Navy later charged five additional Navy personnel. One was the former head of the Naval Aviation Schools Command, who received a letter of reprimand for dereliction of duty.

Last week, the former officer in charge of the school, Lt. Thomas Torchia, 32, of Princeton, Ill., was acquitted of dereliction of duty charges after a jury of four officers deliberated 3 1/2 hours.

Soviet Mars probe having trouble communicating, officials say

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — One of two ambitious Soviet probes fired toward Mars in July as part of an unprecedented science assault on the red planet and its moons apparently is experiencing problems communicating with the ground, U.S. sources say.

"We've heard some rumors to that effect," Samuel Keller, deputy associate administrator of NASA's office of space science, said late Tuesday from his home near Washington. "We have heard some rumors, but I can't go much further than that right now."

The apparent trouble came to light Tuesday just before a Soyuz spacecraft carrying two cosmonauts finally made it back to Earth after two aborted re-entry tries earlier in the day.

The Phobos probes were launched July 7 and July 12 from the Baikonur Cosmodrome in Soviet Central Asia.

They are the most sophisticated Russian probes ever launched to Mars and they represent the beginning of a 10-year program to explore the red planet and its moons to gather data that ultimately could be used for a manned visit.

Both spacecraft are equipped with small landers, including one designed to hop about the surface of Phobos, one of two tiny moons orbiting Mars.

But one of the spacecraft apparently has developed communications trouble, although it was not immediately clear what impact the problem might have on the mission.

A U.S. source who spoke on condition of anonymity said "there is some kind of a problem" with one of the Phobos probes "and the Russians have told us that something has gone wrong. They're not communicating with it with it as cleanly as they were."

Keller said the Soviets had made "no request for help" via NASA's sophisticated space tracking system.

It was possible that on-board problems were preventing the spacecraft from locating Earth. Such trouble is not uncommon in satellites, in which case it is possible commands could be beamed to the errant craft to overcome the trouble.

The United States operates the world's most advanced deep space communications network.

Under an agreement worked out between NASA and the Soviet Union, the Deep Space Network will be used next year to help the Russians precisely track the two Phobos probes as they approach Mars.

By helping determine their precise trajectories, the spacecraft can be guided to within 150 feet or so of the surface of Phobos.

September also is "international solar month," and U.S. and Soviet scientists had planned to use the Phobos probes and NASA's Solar Maximum Mission satellite to study the sun in tandem.

"The Russians have told us something has gone wrong. They're not communicating with it as cleanly as they were."

Kramer won't run

By JANE CASSELBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — City Attorney Michael Kramer, who announced on Aug. 25 that he planned to run for the District 5 city commission seat now held by Mayor David Gunter, has officially withdrawn from the race and dropped his challenge of the city's residency requirement for candidates.

Kramer, 37, whose position of full-time in-house city attorney will be eliminated as of Oct. 1, said he would move to the district when his year's lease at 1677 Grange Circle expired on Aug. 31 in order to qualify.

City Clerk Don Terry said even if Kramer moved to the district he would not meet the six-month district residency requirement in the city's charter. Kramer questioned the legality of the requirement, claiming it conflicted with state law and case law dating back to 1887.

In his letter to Terry dated Sept. 2, Kramer stated, "After much careful deliberations on the issue of challenging the city charter's candidate residency requirement and after lengthy discussions with my legal colleagues and the Florida Bar Association, I have come to the conclusion that a courtroom challenge of the city charter by the city attorney might have the appearance of conflict."

"Because of the high ethical standards each attorney must embrace, and the high ethical standards that I personally uphold," he stated, "I must therefore drop my challenge of the candidate residency requirement and withdraw as a candidate for City Commissioner, District 5."

The qualifying period for the District 5 seat, and the District 3 seat held by Deputy Mayor Lynette Dennis, begins Friday and runs through Sept. 16. Both incumbents have announced they are running for re-election.

Gunter is so far opposed by structural engineer Gene Farach, 37, of 941 Waverly Dr., who has opened a campaign account with his wife as treasurer.

Carolyn Odum, 45, of 873 Land Ave., an administrative assistant for an insurance company, and former city commissioner Perry Faulkner have announced they are running for the District 3 seat.

The election will be held Nov. 8.

Merchants pleased with flood work

By SANDRA BOUCHAHINE
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Merchants along First Street say they can't yet tell whether the city's solution to the ongoing flooding problem downtown is working. But they all say that the commissioners' responsiveness to the problem is commendable.

The city commissioners responded to merchants' pleas last month to do something about the flooding which has caused extensive damage to shops along First Street and in Rand Mall during heavy rains. A quick solution to the problem was immediately undertaken.

The project, which is on the verge of completion, involves removal of curbing and recontouring of the landscaping on the north side of First Street between Hampton Garden restaurant and Forever Fashion bridal shop. A swale was constructed to more effectively allow water to flow into catch basins along First Street and direct it north to Lake Monroe.

According to Bill Simmons, city director of engineering and planning, this is a quick and less expensive solution to a more elaborate pipe system which is planned sometime in the future.

Right now the sidewalk bricks are torn up on the Rand Mall so that concrete can be poured to create a slope to direct water flow, and which will also serve as a wheelchair ramp. Simmons said that the foundation is now in place and the bricks are ready to be replaced. The project's cost is estimated at between $3,000 and $5,000.

The flooding problem, which some merchants say has been around for 20 years, was aggravated by the curbing. "Some years ago, a curbing was put across Rand Mall," Simmons said. "It effectively acted like a dam. I realized when I did research that's what was happening."

He went to the drawing board and decided that the curbing must be removed and the area returned to its prior condition.

"We're still looking for a design to place in a larger pipeline," he said.

A 120-acre area is being drained through one 40-inch pipe and Simmons said city officials are looking for the best way to divert part of the water coming from the north and directing it to an existing pipe a few blocks to the west. For the time being, the city is providing a temporary safety valve on First Street.

"I've been pleased with the city's responsiveness," said James H. Young, city executive of Sanford at First Union National Bank of Florida on the corner of First Street and Park Avenue.

However, merchants say rains were not severe enough over the last several days to tell whether the city's project will help. Most of the shop owners seemed just as content that the improvements didn't have to be put to the test, and many of them were more prepared to lend off the water this time than they were last month when the rainfall incurred expensive damages.

Glenn McCall, owner of Touchton's Rexall Drug store, 121 E. First St., said he's had a flooding problem for 20 years.

"Everyone blames (the downtown) beautification. It's no worse than after the beautification. When you have a four- to five-inch rain, that's going to happen," he said.

McCall said the last time the area was hit by five inches of rain in a two-hour period, his store was flooded. But because the most recent rainfall has been gradual over a longer period of time, McCall said his store was not affected.

"The storm, very fortunate for downtown, was a lot of water over a long time so the drains were able to handle it, so, the bank wasn't hit this time," Young said. "The whole lobby was flooded last time."

He added that the bank has been hit by flooding four times over the last 60 days. Twice it happened while workers were in the bank so they were able to remove the water with a suctioning device as it hit.

Linda Sapp, owner of "Balloon Magic", 108 E. First St., whose store has been deluged with more than 130 gallons of water in previous rain storms, credits the city project with helping to diminish flood waters in her store.

Eric Strydhorst is owner of Hampton Gardens restaurant, 112 E. First St., adjacent to the alley where the improvements are in progress. The restaurant has also been hard hit by previous floodings.

"It looks like it (removal of curbing) helps a little bit. This week it rained real bad and I saw no flooding. But, they're (the city) are not finished with it (the project) yet," he said.

The merchant's all agree on one thing. They say the project, when complete, will help solve at least part of their flooding problem.

Intruder arrested at motel

SANFORD — A 22-year-old man who allegedly attacked an employee of the Cavalier Motor Inn, U.S. Highway 17-92, Sanford, after the employee found the man in a closed office, was arrested on counts of battery and burglary.

James Robert Johnson of 622 Saritha St., Sanford, was reportedly found in an upstairs office at the Inn about 12:40 a.m. today. When an Inn supervisor turned on a light in the office, Johnson turned on him and hit and bit him, police said. Other workers aided the supervisor in subduing the intruder and held him for police.

Sanford police report finding vending machine keys in Johnson's pocket. The keys had reportedly been stolen from the office he was captured in. Bond is $1,000.

Car accident victims identified

By WAYNE MIZE
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The three men, including one city resident, who were killed when the car they occupied crashed into a retention pond early Tuesday morning have been identified by police.

Dead are Julius Wilhelm, 30, 401 W. Seminole Blvd., Apt. 79; Leonard Dill Campbell, 36, and Albert Lloyd Sewell, 48, both of 34 Winding Ridge Road, Casselberry.

Sewell, who was revived on the scene by Sanford fire and rescue personnel, died Tuesday night at Central Florida Regional Hospital.

Police and rescue personnel responded to the crash at Sail Pointe Apartments, 401 W. Seminole Blvd., at 12:39 a.m. Tuesday.

Sewell and Campbell were extricated from the 1983 Pontiac Firebird, which was found upside down and submerged in four feet of water in the apartment's retention pond.

Sewell was revived by rescue personnel and immediately rushed to Central Florida Regional Hospital by Rural/Metro ambulance service.

Wilhelm was not found in the vehicle until more than two hours later when the vehicle was pulled from the pond.

The search for Wilhelm was hampered due to four feet of water and the vehicle being upside down, according to fire department reports.

According to Sanford Police Chief Steven Harriett, Campbell was believed to have been the driver of the car, which belonged to Wilhelm. Harriett said witnesses had seen the three earlier in the evening and saw Campbell driving.

Campbell and Sewell were both Jamaican, and Sewell had been in the United States only four days, Harriett said.

Harriett said the cause of the accident is still not known and he would not know if alcohol was involved in the accident until autopsies are performed.

"It is believed, however, that all three drowned rather than being fatally injured as a result of the accident," said Harriett.

At least 27 people were killed in automobile accidents in Florida during the Labor Day weekend, which began at 6 p.m. Friday and ended at midnight Monday. Of those accidents, 15 were alcohol-related and at least 13 involved crashes in which seat belts were not worn, according to the Florida Highway Patrol.

The three men will not be listed as Labor Day fatalities because the accident happened shortly after midnight.

Marijuana ruling controversial

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Reformers hailed a federal legal officer's recommendation that marijuana be classified as a less dangerous drug and made legally available for medical use, but the idea got a cool reception elsewhere.

In what drug reform advocates applauded as a landmark ruling, administrative law judge Francis Young with the Drug Enforcement Administration said Tuesday the evidence "clearly shows that marijuana has been accepted as capable of relieving the distress of great numbers of very ill people and doing so with safety."

Let debates begin soon

The importance of the presidential race pitting Vice President George Bush and Gov. Michael Dukakis cannot be overstated. Whichever is elected in November will probably serve as our nation's chief executive for eight years, barring a severe blunder. Yet the campaign to date has revealed little definitive about either to the average voter.

The two candidates are campaigning throughout the land delivering speeches daily in several locations. It is likely that much of substance is being said but heard only by those actually present at the rallies. The crowds for each speech are comprised primarily of two groups — supporters of the candidate and newscasters covering the election. A day filled with appearances will be reduced to 90 seconds on network television or a newspaper story of a few hundred words. These are daily highlights and, for the most part, reflect the newscaster's or network's definition of what is a highlight. Columns on editorial pages, and analysis pieces, fill in many gaps, but not all.

The only hope for voters to really determine the stands of the candidates on the several issues vexing our nation — deficits, trade imbalance, defense, human rights, and the environment — lie in the presidential debates. Unfortunately, these have fallen into the quagmire of politics.

The League of Women Voters has sponsored the presidential debates since 1976. This non-partisan group has had its amateurish moments in the process but has never favored either party, nor ever been accused of such. Last year the Republican and Democratic parties decided they wanted to run the debates themselves. They established the Commission on Presidential Debates, contending they could get a higher degree of cooperation from the candidates. They even called the commission bipartisan, which can be translated as two groups of partisans.

The net result today is a gigantic snafu which will probably deprive the American voter of the opportunity to hear the candidates in more than one debate. Political avarice on the part of the two parties has taken its toll. The first debate scheduled by the League would have been tomorrow night at Birmingham, and the first by the political parties' commission would have been Sept. 14 at Annapolis. Both are now "would have beens."

Spokesmen for Gov. Dukakis have stated that he is committed to one debate sponsored by the commission and will study other possibilities. He wants the one on foreign policy. Vice President Bush has made no commitments to either sponsor but has expressed a willingness to debate.

Whereas the debates have been valuable in the past, it is possible the election could hinge on such forums this fall. Events of such importance should not be entrusted to hired minions of the political parties, because their judgments are biased by their paychecks. The American people have learned to trust the League of Women Voters in the conduct of previous debates. It is hoped that the matter can be resolved quickly, in favor of the League's debate schedule, and that at least three confrontations, plus a vice presidential candidate's debate, can go on as scheduled. The American people deserve to hear the candidates through the sponsorship of an unbiased source.

FBI head is tough and fair

His steel-blue eyes radiate an uncompromising sternness as he rattles off details of the federal task force's war on drug trafficking. Those same eyes then twinkle as a photographer snaps his picture. "You can't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear," he says with a self-deprecating chuckle. Later, in a rare moment of contained passion, the former federal judge exalts the courts and expresses his faith in them as the final arbiter in the charges of racism against the FBI.

The three moods capsule the personality of William Steele Sessions, the Federal Bureau of Investigation's fourth director.

It has only been 10 months since he took charge, and he graciously credits his colleagues for "a great deal of energy and willingness" in getting his programs in place. But if, as Supreme Court Justice Joseph Story once observed, "the law is a jealous mistress," it's also a tough taskmaster.

In an exclusive interview in his office in the J. Edgar Hoover building, the ramrod tall, white-haired 58-year-old Texan ticked off the changes he has made during his first 10 months in office with a Spartan crispness. They include:

- Accelerating the FBI's war on drugs.
- Tightening the FBI's close working relationship with the Drug Enforcement Agency.

- Setting up a joint drug plan to attack drug trafficking and money laundering operations in six major cities.

- Working closer with foreign countries on counter-intelligence operations.

- Cracking down on "more and more government fraud and financial-institution fraud."

- Attacking the obscenity and pornography rackets.

- Setting up 13 initiatives to strengthen the FBI's equal employment opportunity efforts.

Those initiatives for increasing the recruitment and promotion of minorities already had been in place when 314 of the FBI's 437 Hispanic agents filed a lawsuit charging racial bias in assignments, and a black agent filed a lawsuit alleging racial harassment.

"I can make no comment on litigation," Sessions said. "But from the moment I stepped across the door, I began to do those things — no matter what the outcome of the lawsuit — to keep the fabric of the FBI intact. The FBI is not a racist organization. We are a law-abiding agency."

"Our hiring and promotional policies are sound. We want to recruit in such a fashion as to reflect the (country's) ethnic makeup." He paused. "It'll happen."

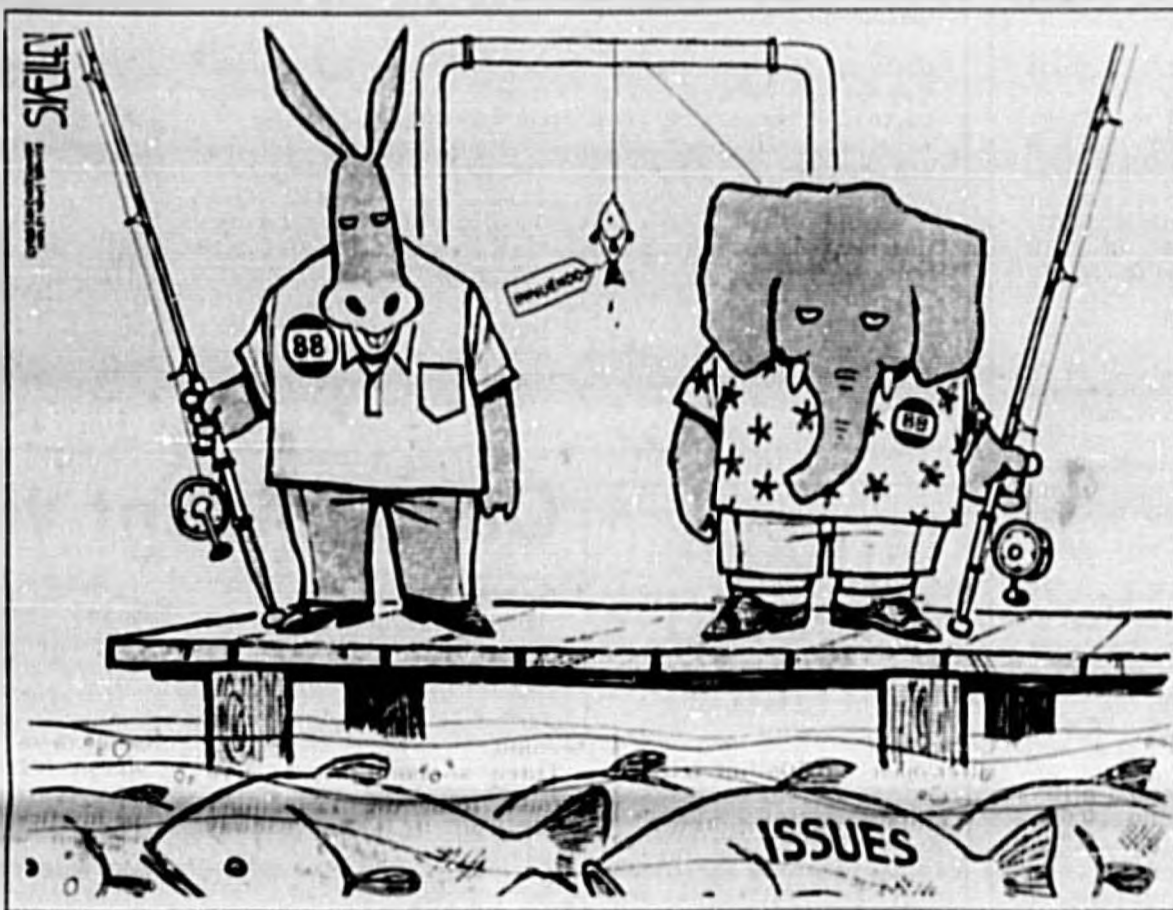

It has already started. Minorities (blacks, Hispanics, Asians and Indians) make up 10 percent of the bureau's 9,400 agents.

Women comprise about 8 percent. Has any woman been appointed as a special agent in charge?

Sessions smiled. "Not yet. But there will be." One statistic confirms his confidence in the inevitability of change.

"In my time, we'll lose 50 percent of the special agents through eligibility for retirement. That means from this time forward, I have an opportunity," to increase the number of minority agents.

Labor flexes its muscles

WASHINGTON—One of the unremarked success stories of this political year has been written by organized labor.

Whether the leaders of the AFL-CIO and its affiliated unions will achieve their ultimate objective of helping the Democrats regain the White House is uncertain. But Lane Kirkland and his labor allies have outlasted the "New Left" forces, which challenged them for influence within the Democratic Party for the better part of two decades. And they have put themselves in a stronger position than such heavily publicized rival forces on the right as Jerry Falwell and the Moral Majority or Pat Robertson and his "Invisible Army."

In a time of declining membership and presumably reduced political clout, organized labor has defended and perhaps enhanced its place as the premier lobbying-political force in Congress, with a score of notable legislative victories in the past two years. It comes into the autumn presidential campaign better financed, better organized and probably more unified than it has been in a quarter-century.

That this phenomenon has taken place almost without notice, except among the discerning politicians in both parties, says something about the preoccupation of political reporters with television theatrics, ad men and pollsters, the scandals du jour and whatever happens to be the chic constituency of the moment, be it baby boomers or Reagan Democrats.

But it also reflects the personal style of the quartet of quiet operatives at AFL-CIO headquarters, president Lane Kirkland, secretary-treasurer Tom Donahue, executive assistant Ken Young and political director John Perkins. Those men—with the presidents and political directors of the half-dozen most savvy and politically sophisticated international unions—are mainly responsible for this renaissance of labor's political power.

The development has not gone totally unnoticed. Ed Rollins, the manager of Ronald Reagan's 1984 campaign, tells anyone who will listen that he can list on the fingers of one hand the states where the Republican Party can field as good a political operation as can organized labor.

But if you told most people that labor had about one-fifth of the delegates at last month's Democratic National Convention in Atlanta, they would be astonished. The labor delegates were deliberately inconspicuous. But their presence and discipline were major reasons for the unity so much noted in commentaries on the convention.

And when the AFL-CIO general board met in Washington last week to give its expected endorsement to Michael S. Dukakis, the sentiment was both widespread and uncoerced.

Two years ago, many in labor's own leadership saw 1988 as a daunting, dangerous year for the movement. Unlike 1984, when 20 years of close association made it easy for labor to deliver an early endorsement to Walter F. Mondale, there was no Democratic candidate who commanded widespread support. With Jesse Jackson in the field, there was risk that many unions would split on racial lines, weakening an already weak position at the bargaining table.

Rather than force the issue by pressing for a synthetic consensus, Kirkland decided on a course of patience. "I wish I could say we were geniuses enough to devise or choose an alternative strategy," Kirkland's top lieutenant, Donahue, said last week. "But being forced to it, we made good use of the time."

The AFL-CIO gave extensive distribution to a videotape in which the candidates made their own pitches for unionists' support. By persuading all the Republican hopefuls to participate in the project, labor helped insulate itself against the charge of bias. And having won the nomination without a formal endorsement from labor, Dukakis so far has largely escaped the "special-interest candidate" label which so badly damaged Mondale in 1984.

Despite widespread skepticism, Kirkland and Co. were able to keep member unions from seeking special advantage by cutting their own early endorsement deals with this candidate or that. "We're so proud of ourselves," said Kirkland's spokesman, Rex Hardesty, "for staying out together, for not gutting each other as we did in the Carter-Kennedy fight of 1980."

Labor helped its members get elected as delegates on Jackson, Dukakis and other slates. But much of the money and manpower that were squandered bulldozing Mondale's way to nomination in 1984 have been held in reserve for the general election this year.

Spending questioned

WASHINGTON — The Humane Society of the United States solikens your donations with a tug on the heart strings — "the animals need us now" — and a promise that your money will be "put into action on the front line immediately."

But the non-profit charity, based in Washington, does not advertise everything that happens on the "front line." For example, the society bought its president a $310,000 home in Maryland last year. And the society's treasurer wrote himself $85,000 in checks last year as reimbursements for lease payments and improvements on ocean-front real estate in Maine.

Recent investigations reveal that the Humane Society's board of directors never authorized these and other dubious financial deals arranged by its officers — deals that could threaten the tax-exempt status of the society.

The situation has until now been kept from the public eye, but board members first learned about it late last year. In December, during a 10-hour session, the board formed an audit committee and ordered an independent investigation of the Humane Society's finances.

In April, the Washington law firm of Harmon and Weiss completed a critical "preliminary" report spotlighting the "self-dealing" transactions which benefitted Humane Society President John Hoyt and Vice President-Treasurer Paul Irwin. "Excessive compensation payments" for Hoyt and Irwin have endangered the Humane Society's tax exempt status, the report concluded.

The law firm found that on May 4, 1987, the Humane Society bought Hoyt's house in Germantown, Md., for $310,000. Hoyt had lived there since 1970 and still lives in the home, but now rent free. The Humane Society provides the house for its president in lieu of a portion of his compensation.

The value of that house is in dispute. The Humane Society, in its 1987 tax filings, listed the rental value at $600 a month. But the Harmon and Weiss report said the market value was between $2,500 and $3,000 a month.

In October 1987, the Humane Society gave Irwin, the treasurer, $85,000, allegedly to reimburse him for payments he had made on the lease of 11 acres of ocean-front land and restoration of a cabin on the land in Plattsburgh, Maine. A second investigation commissioned by the board reported that Irwin wrote himself the checks without first consulting with the society's lawyer or a majority of the board.

A three-person Deferred Compensation Committee approved the expenses for Hoyt and Irwin without asking the majority of the board, although the Humane Society bylaws require the board to set the president's compensation, according to the Harmon and Weiss report.

Hoyt and Irwin maintain the two purchases were for the good of the Humane Society. Hoyt's home allegedly was to be used by future presidents. The Humane Society originally was to have an interest in the ocean-front property, but the board has since decided to consider the $85,000 as a loan and Irwin must pay it back, a source in the Humane Society told our associate, Jim Lynch.

Valdes

Christensen served for two four-year terms in the county District 1 commission seat, beginning in 1980 and ending this year. She previously served one two-year term on the Casselberry city council.

Christensen waged a low-key campaign, steering clear of the Myers-Valdes battle. She chose instead to concentrate on her experience in accounting and public office and saying her political experience and expertise would enable her to light on the state level for taxpayers' rights.

Christensen is widely regarded as a leader of a Seminole County Republican power base, said to include Sheriff John Polk and commission candidates Jeff Eichelberger and Pat Warren. Warren was Christensen's administrative assistant for the past year and won election to the District 1 commission seat Tuesday. However, Warren publicly denies her "clone" tag.

Myers, while not as publicly visible as Christensen and Valdes, is a member of the county Republican executive committee and has been an active helper in several campaigns. Myers has taken frequent jobs at Valdes, including chiding him for his "coffee cup signals" at executive board meetings and questioning party financial accounts opened by Valdes.

Valdes didn't respond to those attacks. "I feel my background, both education and business-wise, was the strongest for the position and I have no doubt that was a deciding factor with the voters," he said.

Sheriff

record, but added that Tuesday's result shows voters already approve of his existing record.

The incumbent sheriff is seeking a sixth four-year term and won by a margin of 10,528 votes (63.3 percent) to Conniff's 6,093 (36.7 percent). Polk switched parties two years ago because he said he couldn't support the Democratic candidate for governor. Many of Polk's Democratic supporters switched parties this year when they realized he would face Conniff in the Republican Primary.

The challenger in Tuesday's primary was a deputy for four years before resigning in July to run against Polk. He has a master's degree in public administration from Central Michigan University. He has operated his own insurance agency, but said he has no practical experience managing a large staff or budget. He never achieved rank as a police officer during his 16-year career, which began in his native Michigan.

Conniff, who congratulated Polk at Polk's Sanford campaign headquarters Tuesday night, said, "I support John Polk. I am a Republican. I'm tired, I've been operating on four hours of sleep a night."

He said he expects to continue his insurance business, but he added, "My first love is law enforcement."

Conniff, without being specific, said the media made it clear that he does not, in the opinion of some, have the administrative experience to be sheriff. "I know I'm qualified," he said, but added unless he finds a way to get that experience, he doesn't now plan to run again. He said since he is over the age of 46, he is too old to be rehired as a Seminole County sheriff's deputy, and said the topic hasn't come up.

"We ran a good campaign," Conniff said of himself and Polk. "I'm not displeased (with the number of votes he received). I would have liked to have seen more come out and vote."

Conniff planned to reorganize the sheriff's department, shifting more manpower to patrol and place more emphasis on drug enforcement.

Target to buy Southeast stores

United Press International

MINNEAPOLIS — The Target discount store group said Wednesday it has agreed to buy 31 Gold Circle and Richway stores in the Southeast for an undisclosed price.

The deal, which needs regulatory approval, comprises nearly half of the 76 Gold Circle and Richway stores that were part of the Federated department store chain that was bought by the Campeau Corp. of Toronto.

Campeau has agreed to sell all of its Gold Circle and Richway stores for about $325 million to Kinco Development Corp., a privately held owner and manager of shopping centers in New York.

Kinco, in turn, is selling the 31 stores to Target and is leasing 35 stores to Hills department stores of Canton, Mass. Kinco is looking for buyers for the remaining 10 stores.

Target Chairman Robert Ulrich said the new stores will give the Minneapolis company, a division of Dayton Hudson Corp., a quick entry into Southeast markets.

"These are markets we've carefully researched," Ulrich said. "The properties fit very nicely into our planned expansion and offer several good locations we otherwise would not be able to obtain."

three illegally converted public credit to their private use.

Morse avoided making public bars against Berrien for the credit card scandal, instead citing her political and professional background. She served as secretary of the state Republican Party from 1980 to 1988 and was elected national committee member in 1988. She also has 14 years of experience as a law office manager and as a comptroller for an oil exploration company.

Morse has no Democratic opposition in the general election and will take office in January.

Gateway

is underway. West said without uniform regulations the boulevard widening will result in a wide swatch with sod medians and retention ponds, surrounded by chain-link fences. He cited Orange County's University Boulevard as an example of what he doesn't want the boulevard to become.

Three subcommittees were formed from the 12 member study team to review roadway improvements, design standards and committee goals. They are proposing that all parking lots and frontage roads be screened from pedestrian and motorist view, that the corridor width be 250 feet on either side of the Lake Mary Boulevard right of way, and that building setbacks should be a uniform 60 feet from the right of way.

Rhodora Bohall, landscape architect with Cantin Associates of Orlando, explained to commissioners her plans to tie the boulevard together with a street tree program using live oaks and crepe myrtles. Originally a wide green belt was proposed, but Bohall is suggesting putting trees and landscaping closer to the boulevard to screen commercial development from passersby and give a canopy effect to the roadway.

If approved, each side of the boulevard would have a double row of live oaks with a sidewalk through the middle. Pedestrians walking down the sidewalk would be separated from the boulevard by one row of trees, and the roadway would achieve some shade on sunny days. Trees would be approximately 12 feet in height at planting.

The smaller crepe myrtles, Bohall said, would be used at intersections to add visual interest and alert drivers that they were approaching an intersection. Also, smaller canopy trees would be planted in the median at set distances. She compared the plan to Fort Myers' McGregor Boulevard, which has royal palms lining the roadway, only this is a far greater stretch of roadway and a double row of trees is being proposed. "It's great that they're doing it," she said. "I can't think of any other municipality that has done this."

If approved, the main gateway entrance is to be flanked by two large ponds with shooting fountains, a five-acre park, amphitheatre, and red brick Lake Mary entrance sign. The city will use the park as a focal point for its new city hall complex and a walking park for residents, similar to Orlando's Lake Eola, but on a much smaller scale.

DEATHS

Veteran missionary to Haiti Carol Ruth Schoolcraft, 47, of 631 Riverview Ave., Sanford, died today in Leesburg after a long bout with cancer. She had been staying at the home of a missionary nurse friend, Rhonda Walters, in Leesburg since July 11 when she left the hospital.

"She was a real sweet person and never complained," Walters said. "It's hard to understand her illness, but through it she has touched many lives and lead many back to the Lord. There was no question about her testimony."

Born Nov. 26, 1940 in Gravette, Ark., she moved to Sanford from Fort Scott, Kans. in 1968. She joined her mother, Polly, and father, the late Rev. D.B. Schoolcraft, independent self-supporting missionaries with Haiti Missions Inc. in 1960 in the work they had begun two years earlier in the village of La Victoire in a remote interior region 100 miles from Port-au-Prince. To travel the rough terrain she went by truck, mule, a Honda 200 motorcycle and foot.

They have made Sanford their homeside base since 1960. Her father died on the field in 1970 at the age of 77. Miss Schoolcraft helped start 10 schools, including three secondary schools, sewing schools, four churches and a dozen preaching stations. In addition, she helped the Haitians improve their crops and income by starting agricultural co-ops and projects.

When she came home two years ago on furlough, for the first time in her ministry she was forced to ask others for help — not for herself, but for emergency relief for the people in her village because of drought and crop failure. That summer, she and her mother traveled 7,523 miles sharing about the need in Haiti.

At that time she shared her philosophy: "Distribution to those in need is one way to help, but ordinarily I feel an even better way and one that will help the Haitian maintain his self-respect as well as better his community and country is to provide emergency relief employment to see them through this crisis. Asking for assistance is foreign to my nature. We take nothing from the funds, we are self-supporting and 100 percent of any money donated goes to help the people."

She was a member of the Church of God of Holiness, Sanford.

Survivors in addition to her mother of Sanford, include three sisters, Mildred B. Ryle, Denver, Colo., Noama Helen Hall, Nashville, and Betty Young, Altamonte Springs; one brother, E. Blaine Schoolcraft, Waverly, Kans.

Funeral services will be Saturday in Fort Scott, Kans. and burial will be in Agricola, Kans., near the old family homestead. Gramkow Funeral Home Sanford, is in charge of local arrangements.

Mayor sees homeless firsthand

SAN DIEGO — Mayor Maureen O'Connor ordered more police patrols and a clean-up campaign on city streets after spending 48 hours living among homeless people while disguised as a vagrant.

O'Connor revealed Tuesday that she got a firsthand look at San Diego's mounting homeless problem by sleeping in park alleys and panhandling for two days during the Labor Day weekend.

The mayor left home Friday dressed in old clothes and carrying a bedroll, and was accompanied by two reporters and shadowed by two police guards, all dressed as indigents.

"There's no memo that could describe what I saw out there," O'Connor said in a telephone interview. "I saw poor people paying cash for heroin and homeless people who wouldn't go into shelters because they don't trust the system."

As a result of her experience on the streets, believed to be the first time a big-city mayor has gone undercover as a homeless person, O'Connor said she will immediately recommend more police patrols to combat drug traffic and a clean-up campaign in the "absolutely dirty" downtown areas.

Swimsuits to stay in beauty pageant

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — Like a swallow to Capistrano, the controversy over the Miss America Pageant's swimsuit competition returns faithfully every year.

This year is no different. Swimsuits have been a hot topic of discussion during the week leading up to tonight's first round of preliminary competition and Saturday's nationally televised pageant finals.

The pageant's new chairman, Leonard Horn, started the ball rolling last month, saying he would prefer to ditch the portion of the competition in which the 51 Miss America hopefuls take the traditional teeter down a runway in high heels and a bathing suit.

"It's very difficult to rationalize putting a young college woman today in a scholarship program (into) a swimsuit and high-heel shoes," Horn said.

But Horn adds that, until the pageant finds a viable alternative that will not result in a loss of sponsors or television viewers, bare thighs will remain a part of Miss America.

Service cuts announced in Yonkers

YONKERS, N.Y. — Signs of progress evaporated in a desegregation stalemate between a federal court and a defiant City Council, leaving both sides "considerably far apart," Mayor Nicholas Wasicako said.

At the same time, Westchester County District Attorney Carl Vergari said Tuesday he could not constitutionally prosecute the four council members for defying a federal court order to build a low-income housing project in a middle-class neighborhood.

The city resumed paying fines ordered by the court, delivering $192,000 to a federal court in Manhattan Tuesday.

From United Press International reports

Sniper wounds 14, kills N.Y. family

United Press International

NEW YORK — A sniper upset over financial and family problems shot and wounded 14 police officers and killed his two children during a nine-hour siege at a Manhattan housing project, authorities said.

Police ended the standoff Tuesday by bursting into the sniper's apartment and shooting him twice in the chest, and discovered the bodies of his son and daughter, both dead of shotgun wounds to the head.

Eleven officers were injured in the raid on the man's apartment, but none was hurt seriously.

The standoff at the housing project began when the gunman wounded three officers responding to reports of shots being fired toward the nearby FDR Drive about 6 a.m.

The gunman, Cho Mum Chu, 45, had been upset over "financial and family problems," said Sgt. Raymond O'Donnell, a police spokesman.

Neighbors described the gunman as "really sick" and one woman said he had chased her husband with a 3-foot samurai sword.

During the standoff, Cho blasted away at police through the apartment door and fired inside the apartment several times. His final barrage of two shots came about 2:35 p.m., O'Donnell said.

One blast struck a shield police had set up to protect the hostage negotiating team, including a Chinese-speaking detective, and a second ricocheted against a wall, sending pellets and fragments tearing into 11 officers.

Detective James Coleman, a police spokesman, said that after the last two shots were fired by Cho, police "shot him in the chest" with 1-ounce slugs fired from a 12-gauge shotgun.

Cho's children, Helen, 8, and Warren, 9, were found dead in the apartment of gunshot wounds to the head. The two were partially covered with blankets and pillows in a hall near the kitchen. A captain, four lieutenants, one detective and five police officers suffered wounds to the neck, face and arms, all believed to be minor, said a Bellevue Hospital spokesman.

At the start of the standoff, Cho struck three officers responding to reports of gunfire, O'Donnell said. None was seriously injured.

Scores of flak-jacketed policemen and police sharpshooters surrounded the building while a police helicopter hovered overhead.

Authorities closed the heavily traveled FDR Drive along the East River in both directions from Houston Street to the Brooklyn Bridge, creating a massive rush-hour traffic jam.

Vicky Bello, who said Cho lived below her in apartment 18K until he moved to the 11th floor last month, said Cho had harassed her for years, eventually causing her to take him to housing court.

"He was just sick, sick, sick," said Bello. "He would bang on his ceiling at all hours of the day and night. One time my ex-husband went downstairs and asked him to stop the banging and he chased him all the way across the 18th floor with a samurai sword about 3 feet long."

Teachers strike in six states, disrupt classes

UPI

More than 7,900 teachers and other school workers in six states refused to go to class today to protest wage and working conditions, disrupting the start of school for more than 126,000 students.

In Massachusetts, where more than 1,400 teachers in two school districts are on strike, a spokesman for a teachers union said teachers in seven other districts are unhappy with contract negotiations and may walk off the job next week.

Pennsylvania led the way with 2,762 teachers on strike in 10 districts affecting 42,983 students, followed closely by Michigan with 2,491 striking teachers involving 44,893 students.

About 1,000 teachers in Lowell, Mass., voted to strike beginning today, and another 401 in Peabody voted to strike Thursday.

School officials in Lowell said classes would be held for the 13,000 students with substitute teachers and administrators.

In Peabody, Schools Superintendent James Buckley said the teachers union rejected a 17.1 percent increase in salary and fringe benefits over three years. Buckley said school will start on schedule Thursday with administrators and substitute teachers filling in. About 5,700 students attend school in Peabody.

Steven Wollmer, a spokesman for the 66,000-member Massachusetts Teachers Association, said contract disputes had been reduced from 51 communities in the state last week to 37 Tuesday, not including Lowell and Peabody.

Wollmer said all 37 were willing to begin teaching classes without settled contracts, but seven of those communities were at risk of "running out of patience" and possibly striking next week.

Teachers in eight Michigan districts joined those in two other districts on the picket lines Tuesday.

Debate shaping up over Solidarity's role

WARSAW, Poland — A possible dispute has emerged over the role Solidarity would play if it were legalized again with the government ruling out the possibility of the banned union co-existing with official unions in Polish plants.

Many Solidarity leaders flatly oppose the principle of only one union per plant for fear that Solidarity would be co-opted by the government if it won a union election and ended up the workers' sole representative.

The official trade union federation, OPZZ, added to the difficulties Tuesday by calling for only one union per plant — and in no case Solidarity.

Another resolution approved by the approximately 245-member council called on Parliament to issue a no-confidence vote over the government's economic policies, which have led to two waves of strikes this year, or else it would take "appropriate action."

The federation did not specify what the action would be, but in earlier debate the council rejected a proposal that called for "protest action, including a general strike," if the government does not step down.

The federation scheduled a news conference today to explain its actions.

Burma general strike deadline today

RANGOON, Burma — The embattled government faced an opposition ultimatum to resign tonight or face a general strike amid reports of increasing lawlessness and dwindling support for the authoritarian regime.

A wide range of student and opposition groups set an 8 p.m. (9:30 a.m. EDT) deadline for the 26-year-old military-dominated regime to resign and allow an interim government to hold free elections.

The anti-government groups warned that if the government failed to respond, they would begin a nationwide general strike that will not be halted until the government steps down.

Last week President Maung Maung said the government will stick to its plans to hold an emergency meeting of the ruling Burma Socialist Program party on Monday to consider a referendum on transforming the government to a multi-party system.

Support for the ruling party has eroded rapidly, with most lower-ranking civil service employees and party members joining the protesters.

Diplomats said the staff of the state-owned Burma Broadcasting System has walked out and the army has taken over. Tuesday night's radio news broadcast lasted only three minutes and said that staff members have been allowed to take paid leave. Radio employees said they walked out because they refused to report "false news" any longer.

Famine relief needed for Bangladesh

DHAKA, Bangladesh — A massive international relief effort is required to avert famine in Bangladesh, where devastating floods have disrupted the distribution of supplies, sources say.

The sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Tuesday the famine threat loomed because of the massive disorder in Bangladesh's economy and transportation system, rather than a food shortage.

The danger of famine "is on everybody's minds," said one source.

"If the supplies are not replenished, if the purchasing power of people is not restored, there is every apprehension that famine can break out," said another. "It would be an artificial famine, not a natural famine."

A "massive relief operation" on an international scale is required to avert large-scale starvation, he said.

Government officials publicly said it was too early to predict the effects of the worst floods in the nation's history, which now cover more than three-fourths of the impoverished nation and affect half the population of 110 million, including more than 28 million people rendered homeless.

Bangladesh, which became independent in December 1971, has suffered from severe famines in the past. The last famine in 1974 following severe floods killed an estimated 140,000 people.

Two Americans to testify in trial

FRANKFURT, West Germany — The testimony today of two Americans held aboard a commandeered TWA airliner in a 1985 hijacking that left a U.S. Navy diver dead might shed more light on the case in the trial of a Lebanese man who confessed taking part in the seizure of the plane.

In a deposition read in court Tuesday, Lebanese-born Mohammed Ali Hammadi reportedly warned his brother in a message "not to say anything about Iran." Hammadi found refuge and assistance in Iran after the hijacking, according to the written testimony made by an unidentified West German security official.

Before the trial recessed last month, Hammadi confessed he took part in the hijacking, but denied he killed U.S. sailor Robert Stethem, one of the 145 airliner's passengers. Stethem of Waldorf, Md., was shot to death and his body hurled onto the airport tarmac in Beirut.

More light might be shed on the hijacking and killing when two of the 39 Americans held on the plane testify today. A court spokesman said their identity will be withheld for security reasons until they appear in court.

Peru imposes 'shock' inflation program

LIMA, Peru — Soldiers patrolled Lima streets today to prevent looting as the populist government of President Alan Garcia imposed tough measures to curb runaway, triple-digit inflation.

In a nationally televised speech late Tuesday, Economy Minister Abel Salinas announced a nearly fourfold increase in gas prices, a doubling of basic food prices, a stiff devaluation in the exchange rate and higher sales taxes.

Salinas, speaking somberly, said the measures were needed to correct a "very serious" economic situation marked by a lack of foreign currency and galloping inflation.

Dramatic price increases would be followed by a 120-day wage and price freeze to bring inflation down to manageable levels, he said.

Consumer prices rose an average of 355.9 percent in the past 12 months, a record for Peru, and independent economists predicted before Tuesday night that inflation would break 1,000 percent this year.

Businessmen applauded the measures but union leaders reacted with anger. A national teachers' union leader, Olmedo Aulis, said the price increases would leave "millions of Peruvians in absolute indigence."

Soldiers and police patrolled streets early today in the Peruvian capital of Lima to prevent organized looting.

Shamir calls for more Jewish settlers

JERUSALEM — Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir kicked off the right-wing Likud Party's fall election campaign with a call for increased Jewish settlement of the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

"The Likud will carry on massive settlements of Judea and Samaria (the West Bank) and Gaza until everyone can see that we are here to stay," Shamir told more than 3,000 cheering supporters at a standing-room only rally Tuesday night in Jerusalem's Binyanei Ha'oma Center.

"We salute you settlers," Shamir said. "We will do all in our power to help you. Israel is here to stay."

Officials review Tutu's call for election boycott

United Press International

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Police are reviewing a confiscated tape of Archbishop Desmond Tutu calling for an illegal election boycott as a possible prelude to legal action against the black church leader.

An Anglican Church spokesman said police took a search warrant Tuesday to Tutu's Cape Town home and seized a tape recording of a defiant sermon the cleric delivered on Sunday.

In his sermon, Tutu effectively challenged authorities to prosecute him for calling an illegal boycott of October local elections.

Tutu has previously defied emergency government regulations banning public support for anti-apartheid sanctions against South Africa, but officials have failed to act against him.

John Allen, an aide to Tutu, said by telephone from the church leader's official Cape Town residence that a police colonel and a major "took away a tape recording of the sermon and also asked for a statement from me saying I had made the recording."

"We asked if they could make a copy of the tape but they said they wanted the original and they produced a search warrant," Allen said. "A lawyer told us the police could not use that tape on its own as evidence."

Defying emergency curbs on protest, Tutu and leaders of other denominations under the anti-government South African Council of Churches (SACC) called from pulpits Sunday for boycotts of nationwide municipal elections set for Oct. 26.

Local council elections are being held simultaneously nationwide for the first time in segregated white, black, mixed-race and Asian communities.

Both the government outlawed public opposition to the elections under emergency rule in force since June 12, 1986, giving authorities sweeping powers of arrest and detention without trial.

"The government is guilty of intimidation in wanting to force participation, placing heavy penalties for calling for a boycott, which is a non-violent way of expressing our opposition to the evil and injustice of apartheid," said Tutu, the 1984 Nobel laureate and leader of the nation's Anglican Church.

Canadian natives gamble on land claims settlement

United Press International

OTTAWA — Native Indians in the Northwest Territories are gambling that a tentative property settlement giving them 70,000 square miles of resource-rich land previously owned by the federal government will serve as an economic base for eventual self-rule.

"We are gambling at this stage. The government has the political commitment (to self-rule). The question is how far will they go," William Erasmus, president of the Dene Nation, said by telephone Tuesday from his Yellowknife office.

"Self-government is within the agreement. There is an opportunity to negotiate self-government," Erasmus added.

The tentative agreement would transfer 70,000 square miles of mostly rocky northern terrain in the Northwest Territories to 13,000 Indians, Eskimos and people of mixed ancestry and would provide cash compensation of about $400 million.

It was signed Monday in Point Rae in the Northwest Territories by Prime Minister Brian Mulroney, Erasmus, and Metis Association President Mike Paulette.

The agreement allows the two groups and the government up to two years to negotiate a final accord and select specific lands for transfer.

Under the terms of the tentative agreement, the indigenous groups also will have rights to subsurface oil, gas and minerals for 3,900 square miles of land and 50 percent representation on land and water use management boards.

They will have special hunting and fishing rights as well as royalty rights to 450,000 square miles of territory they have occupied for thousands of years.

But Indian and Eskimo leaders said there are an estimated 51 issues to be resolved, including establishing a framework for implementing self-government and improved representation on the management boards, before a final accord can be negotiated.

Sanford's mayor seeks re-election

By WAYNE MIXE
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Incumbent Mayor Betty Smith officially filed for re-election this morning at City Hall and will be challenged by John Morris, a planning and zoning commissioner.

"I purposely did this at the earliest moment, in the first day so there would be no doubt as to my enthusiasm to run again," said Smith, 56. She was elected mayor in 1984.

Morris is the only candidate to date to announce his intention to run for mayor. "I'll qualify before the period is up," Morris said Tuesday. "I'm still lining up pledges."

Qualifying ends at noon Nov. 1.

Morris said he will remain on the planning and zoning commission during the election race.

Smith said if re-elected she would like to see completion of the city's $39 million sewer project and the implementing of more activities for the city's youth.

"The hardest thing is to provide the things people want and need at a cost they can afford," she said.

Smith is an active member of numerous community service committees and councils in Seminole County. She has a bachelor's degree from the University of Central Florida and a master's degree in art from the University of Florida.

Smith's statement of financial interests, filed with the Seminole County Supervisor of Elections Office office in June, lists her primary source of income as a consultant for the Orlando Drive Medical Center, her husband's medical practice.

The mayor is elected at large. The city election will be Dec. 6.

Smith said she would like to see the city support and build a public swimming pool and provide more youth clubs for the city's young people.

"I'm also concerned about the use of drugs in our community," said Thomas. "I would like to see them done away with. The only way to do that is through constant, strong patrol and surveillance (by police). Most will say they (police) don't have the resources. If I found a little negative it's because I don't think this type of thing would be allowed to go on in most white neighborhoods."

Thomas is married and the father of two children. He was born in Sanford and has a bachelor of science degree from Florida A&M University. He is a World War II veteran and served in combat in the Pacific with the Army, while attached to the Fourth Marine Division.

Thomas maps re-election campaign

SANFORD — Bob Thomas, incumbent city commissioner of District 2, announced Tuesday he will run for a second term.

Thomas, 63, said he would officially file for the office later this month. As of this morning, no one had filed to run against Thomas.

A trustee officer with the Seminole County School Board for 26 years, Thomas was elected to the District 2 seat in 1984.

District 2 is bordered by the Seacoast Railroad line and Seventh Street on the north, French Avenue on the east, W. 25th Street on the south and Perimeter Avenue to the west and encompasses mostly light commercial and low-income neighborhoods.

"I think I've made a major contribution to the commission and the city of Sanford," said Thomas. "The reason I want to run again is there are still some things left unfinished. For example, there are some children and youth in this city who are not probably represented."

Thomas said he would like to see the city support and build a public swimming pool and provide more youth clubs for the city's young people.

"I'm also concerned about the use of drugs in our community," said Thomas. "I would like to see them done away with. The only way to do that is through constant, strong patrol and surveillance (by police). Most will say they (police) don't have the resources. Challenges set for city seat

SANFORD — There will be a race for the District 1 city commission seat, but the number of candidates who will run is uncertain so far. To date, one candidate has announced, the incumbent might run again, and another potential candidate who might run if the incumbent does not.

Attorney James Sweeting III has announced he will run for the District 1 City Commissioner John Y. Mercer is undecided and possible candidate Jay Malone is waiting in the wings to see what Mercer will do.

SANFORD — Steady rains put a damper on voter enthusiasm in Tuesday's primary elections.

The entrance to one west Sanford precinct polling place was so water-logged people braving rains and hazardous driving conditions were confronted by an impassable pond of mud.

The National Weather Service reports receiving only three-fourths of an inch of rain all day, but that fell continuously all day.

Last week, Supervisor of Elections Sandy Gaord predicted a 35 percent turnout due to the high number of candidates seeking office. Tuesday, with 100 percent of the county's 95 precincts reporting, only 27.5 percent of the county's 101,794 voters participated in the primary election.

A total of 28,009 people voted in an election resulting in a new county commissioner, a new clerk of circuit court, a new judge and the return of Gaord to office for a second complete term.

"It was a lot better than it could have been," Gaord said Tuesday night. "With the rain coming all day like it did, it could have been much worse."

The rains reportedly left dozens of frustrated non-voters in west Sanford a Precinct 30.

The parking lot of Precinct 30's polling place, the B. Duke Woody Fleet Reserve on State Road 46, became a mud-flat after several hours of rain and Gaord said she heard reports many voters didn't bother to get out of their cars, simply driving into the muddy parking lot and then driving out.

Gaord said she will inspect the polling place and if the flooding problem can't be corrected by the Oct. 4 run-off, she'll relocate the polling place.

OVIEDO — Incumbent Tom O'Hanlon squeaked past challenger Cliff Shepard by four votes to retain his Group 5 city council seat Tuesday. Oviedo voters overwhelmingly approved a charter revision.

O'Hanlon, seeking a second two-year term, received 473 votes for 50.2 percent. Shepard finished with 469 votes for 49.8 percent.

O'Hanlon, 30, who ran unopposed for the Group 5 seat two years ago, is an engineer with the Westinghouse Electric Corporation.

Council chairwoman Jane Dees of Group 3 and Gary Goltz of Group 4, each won a fourth two-year term without opposition.

The revision also gives the county supervisor of elections the power to provide workers for the any city election that coincides with a primary election.

Vogt, Jenne seek Dartland's support

By MICHAEL MOLINE
United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Senate President John Vogt and state Sen. Ken Jenne have defeated Walter Dartland in the Democratic primary for state insurance commissioner and now plan to ask him for his support in the runoff election.

Each was hopeful Dartland would find reason to support him heading into the runoff that will be necessary in October because no single candidate won a clear majority in Tuesday's primary contest.

The winner of the runoff will face Republican Tom Gallagher in the November general election. The former secretary of the state Department of Professional Regulation easily bested two little-known candidates to secure his party's nomination for the commissioner's Cabinet post.

With 89.7 percent of the vote counted late Tuesday in the statewide primaries, Vogt had polled 280,045, or 39 percent of the ballots cast, and Jenne had 255,544, or 36 percent of the ballots cast.

Dartland, who had been banking on endorsements, he received from most of Florida's major newspapers to guide voters, had 182,306, or 25 percent of the votes.

Vogt said he polled well against Jenne despite a last minute splash on television ads by the state senator from Hollywood whom Vogt defeated for the powerful senate presidency two years ago.

"He obviously wants to win this election very bad. For him, it would be a cost of losing to me twice," Vogt said.

Jenne, who injected $100,000 of his own money into his campaign last week, denied the race was a grudge match.

"That's not my goal. My goal is to be insurance commissioner of the state of Florida period," Jenne said.

Barron defeated in upset

By MICHAEL McLELLAND
United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — The Lord and a group of dedicated supporters are credited today for the defeat of Sen. Dempsey Barron, a stunning upset officials expect to send shock waves through Florida's political structure.

"We just beat the most powerful man in the state, and I include the governor in that," an elated Vince Bruner said shortly after Barron conceded the primary election late Tuesday.

"I give credit to the power and glory of God, and then to all the people who helped all the way down," Bruner said.

Barron conceded to Bruner at about 12:30 a.m. EDT. Barron bested Bruner by a scant 57 votes in Bay County, Barron's home county, and could not stand up to Bruner's power in the outlying counties of the Panhandle.

The election is so close that we can't say the election is over, but I suspect Mr. Bruner has won it," Barron said late Tuesday.

Barron, who said he planned to return to his ranch and work in the cattle business, offered no explanation for Bruner's victory after a campaign in which the challenger raised barely half the funds collected by Barron.

In Bay County, the Senate drew outpulled Bruner 12,133 to 12,076 — 57 votes.

In Okaloosa County, Bruner's home and second-most populous county in the district, Bruner led Barron late Tuesday by better than 2-1. With 15 of 26 Okaloosa precincts reporting, Bruner had 3,273 votes to Barron's 1,444.

Charles Whitehead, state Democratic Party chairman, said Bruner's defeat will have an effect on "state and national elections" in Florida.

Barron was Senate president from 1974 through 1976 and more than once was the true power behind the throne. Most recently, Barron pulled together the conservative Democrat-Republican coalition that rules the Senate.

Reagan supports his 'loyal deputy'

United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Reagan has hit the post-Labor Day campaign trail supporting his loyal deputy George Bush with a strident portrayal of Michael Dukakis as another Jimmy Carter, the personification of the "philosophy of malaise" and "liberal ideology of decline and retreat."

Seeking to tap the loyalties and sentiments of those voters who first supported him in 1980, Reagan has set out to depict the Nov. 8 election as a decision on whether his policies will be continued or abandoned.

In attacking Dukakis, he never lets voters forget their repudiation of Carter. And so it was that he appeared Tuesday night before the 70th national convention of the American Legion to reborn the problems of 1980 and accuse the Democrats of again placing the nation at risk.

"They had set aside their party's and our nation's faith in the future and put in its place a philosophy of malaise," he said.

"Well, they care up for a fitness review in November 1980 and the American people gave an overwhelming verdict on this liberal ideology of decline and retreat."

It was a message of military power and global prestige restored that Reagan delivered in Louisville, Ky., in the Legionnaire, a conservative group that ardently applauded his claim of great strides during the last eight years.

Reagan looked not only back but forward as he reviewed how "the disaster that had befallen our armed forces" at the battle of his election in 1980 has been overcome by a costly arms buildup and the projection of military power around the world, then derided Dukakis's views on defense as naive as even dangerous.

Never mind that Reagan not once mentioned Dukakis or the Democrats by name. By White House accounts, the appearance before the Legionnaires was non-political, even though his message and intent were not.

Nor did White House officials seem concerned that he appeared to misstate the facts in suggesting Dukakis favors "cancellations or delays" in such strategic weapons programs as the B-1 and Stealth bombers and the Trident II missile.

"When it comes to defense," he said, "the liberal agenda hides behind heroic rhetoric. But this liberal agenda is a return to a Disneyland defense policy."

It's Jimmy Olson trying to impress his date.

Reagan belittled Dukakis for opposing the multi-billion-dollar Strategic Defense Initiative and ridiculed the Democratic presidential nominee for instead promoting a "Conventional Defense Initiative" to beef up America's non-nuclear forces.

The latter, he said, "is already well under way," as evidenced by the laser-guided bombs and missiles used in the April 1986 raid on Libya. Moreover, he said, "when all is said and done, the Conventional Defense Initiative they've outlined to date is smaller than the one we already are working on."

"Yes, he said, "It comes down to this. After eight hard years rebuilding America's strength, do we really want a return to a Disneyland defense policy?"

Dukakis, Bush face jeers on the road

United Press International

"You're a baby killer."

For Dukakis, the Tuesday jeering stopped after several minutes when about six people were roughly hauled from the room by Dukakis supporters as the candidate assured the protesters, "I respect their right to disagree with me. That's what democracy is all about. I hope that you respect my right to speak."

The governor, who has a pro-choice stance on abortion, frequently is confronted by anti-abortion protesters. However, aides conceded the incident Tuesday at a Polish restaurant in Niles, Ill., was the worst of the campaign.

Once he spoke, Dukakis was received well by the more than 1,200 people in the hall in the Chicago suburb.

Bush, meanwhile, was jeered and booed in Portland by hundreds of ironworkers who chanted "go home Bush" as the vice president boasted of the Reagan administration's economic policies.

Bush appeared not to be flustered by the raucous reception from the hardhats and tried to joke about it later, calling it a "good challenge" and adding, "All I need is 51 percent of the vote."

Along with the jeers, the workers held signs reading things such as "Run for President in Iran or Panama or Nicaragua — Anywhere but Here," and "Union-busting, scab-loving Bush."

In interviews later with local reporters in Everett, Wash., Bush called on voters to stop jeering the candidates.

Gaord sweeps race to gain re-election

SANFORD — Supervisor of Elections Sandra Gaord will return for another four-year term after easily defeating Republican primary election opponent Sarah Britton Tuesday night.

Gaord, 44, received 58.3 percent of the vote to Britton's 41.7 percent. A total of 9,327 Republicans voted for Gaord and 6,661 voted for Britton, 41.

Gaord was first appointed to the supervisor's position in 1983 to replace retiring Camille Bruce. She faced no opposition in her first election bid in 1984 and subsequently changed her party affiliation from Democrat to Republican, saying the Democrats no longer actively sought new members.

"It was worse than waiting for the first baby to come and I've waited for 44 years," Gaord said of her first primary race Tuesday night. "I'm just thrilled."

Britton, a political newcomer from Longwood, waged a campaign promising to bring voter registration to the people in schools and shopping centers. She also promised year-around registration, a position Gaord refuted by saying residents can already register all year.

Gaord promised the continued computerization of the elections office, including automatic precinct assignment by address and the possibility of computerized petition signature assistance.

Gunter faces runoff; Mack wins primary

By ROCKY SCOTT
United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — State Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter will face U.S. Rep. Kenneth "Buddy" MacKay in a runoff election, but U.S. Rep. Connie Mack as predicted, easily won the GOP U.S. Senate nomination outright.

"As I have been saying, I was comfortable in anticipating the election today, but I was very pleased with the endorsement of the voters," Mack said at a victory party in Miami after he defeated former U.S. Attorney Robert Merkle.

With 4,189 of 4,462 — or 93.8 percent — of the precincts reporting early today, Mack had polled 373,123 votes, or 62 percent of the ballots cast, while Merkle had 233,230 or 38 percent of the votes in Tuesday's primary.

Mack said he felt "very good" after his easy victory and he said he doubted the friction generated during the GOP primary would have any lingering effect on Republican efforts to claim the U.S. Senate seat.

Mack said he thought it would make little difference who the Democrats nominate as his opponent in November, because he planned to continue his campaign of less taxes and less government.

"I just feel so strongly that raising taxes is not the solution to solving the problem," Mack said.

Gunter tallied 336,656 votes, 38 percent of those cast, and will face MacKay, D-Fla., in an October runoff contest. MacKay had 215,555 votes, or 25 percent of the ballots cast.

U.S. Rep. Dan Mica, D-Fla., was third in the race with 199,000, or 17.1 percent of the vote.

"We expected to be in a runoff with either Congressman Mica or Congressman MacKay," Gunter said at his victory party in Tallahassee. "We just didn't know which one it would be. MacKay said he would begin fundraising for the runoff election "the first thing in the morning (Wednesday)."

"You can look for a vigorous campaign," he said. "I'm looking for us to be talking about the record, Mr. Gunter's record. I plan to present my record in a very positive way."

Pre-election polls showed Gunter picking up about 35 percent of the primary vote and headed for a runoff election with either MacKay or Mica.

State Sen. Patricia Frank, D-Tampa, was fourth in the Democratic field with 110,750 votes or 12 percent, former governor Claude Kirk was fifth with 43,789 or 5 percent and political novice Fred Rader was in sixth place with 10,466 votes, a bare 1 percent of the ballots.

The winner in the November general election will replace Lawton Chiles, who is stepping down after 18 years in office.

Only Mica filed before Askew, citing a dispute for the fund-raising necessary to mount a statewide campaign, said he was dropping out of the race despite his status as the prohibitive favorite to replace Chiles.

Wood takes judge's seat

By SUSAN LODEN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Leonard V. Wood, an Altamonte Springs attorney who jumped into the race at the last minute, won the non-partisan race for circuit court judge of the 18th Judicial Circuit, group 16.

Wood, 51, who has practiced law since 1962, declined a governor's appointment to a circuit court judgeship in 1970 because he said he was too young to take the post, he was 33.

He said he entered the race for the seat, which was created by the Legislature this year, because he thought there should be more than one candidate in the race.

"I didn't like what was developing here in the community. I felt there are some good attorneys here who were intimidated out of the race. I felt someone had to stand up and test the water. I'm grateful for the support," Wood said today.

Wood received 13,535 votes, or 53.8 percent of the votes cast in Seminole County. His opponent, Longwood attorney Ken Bevan, 46, captured 11,045 votes or 46.2 percent of the votes cast in Seminole County. In Brevard County, Wood's total was 25,014, or 50.3 percent, to Bevan's 24,720, or 49.7 percent. Wood earned a bachelor's degree in philosophy from Rollins College in 1959. He received his law degree from Duke University Law School in 1962. He was a member of the Florida House of Representatives from 1968 through 1970 and was a Republican nominee for U.S. Congress in 1970. The father of three, Wood has been involved in community youth activities and helped develop the Seminole County youth athletic programs.

Wood favors plea bargaining and says state sentencing guidelines aren't flexible enough.

The judgeship term is for six years with an annual salary of $81,002.

Chappell defeats challenger

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — U.S. Rep. Bill Chappell, D-Fla., despite being caught up in the defense contracts scandal, has overwhelmingly defeated a challenge for the Democratic nomination in his congressional district.

Results early today showed Chappell had 13,974 votes or 69 percent of the ballots cast in the Democratic primary with 44 percent of the votes counted.

Daytona Beach computer engineer Charley Roberts managed only 6,361 votes, or 31 percent.

Chappell had expected to win 60 percent of the Democratic vote and called his showing "a whole of a win" that presages victory in the November general election in his predominantly Democratic district.

"It shows the confidence of our people in Bill Chappell," he said. "It shows they have not believed all the negative stuff. I think it's perhaps the best victory we've ever had."

Craig James deLand led the GOP primary with 52 percent.

Chappell, a 20-year House veteran who maintains his innocence in the defense spending scandal, spent more than $200,000 in his re-election campaign.

He is one of the few Democratic House members with much to worry about in Florida, where voters tend to stick with incumbents.

Reps. Charles Bennett, D-Fla., Bill McCollum, R-Fla., Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., Tom Lewis, R-Fla., Bill Lehman, D-Fla., and Claude Pepper, D-Fla., the oldest legislator in Congress, drew no opponents as were returned to office.

Rep. Bill Grant, D-Fla., in District 2, faced only write-in opposition in the primary from political unknown Dennis Prescott.

Bakker appears near his $3 million PTL goal

United Press International

FORT MILL, S.C. — An outpouring of donations put Jim and Tammy Faye Bakker near the $3 million they need to rescue the PTL television ministry from bankruptcy and return to the airwaves, their lawyers say.

"The cards and letters are coming in," Bakker attorney Jim Toms exulted Tuesday night. "Oh my word — cash and checks. In fact, I'm carrying home $114,000 to go in the bank, and that's just the money that came here."

"My banker said the phone has been ringing off the hook all day," Toms said. "Money has been coming in by Western Union and electronic transfer. She didn't have an exact count, but she said it's really boiling."

Bakker held a news conference Monday to spread the word that he needed cash — $3 million for a down payment on his $165 million bid for PTL. He said he spent the weekend on the phone but was still more than $1 million short.

Then the preacher in him came out and he delivered a homily on forgiveness to reporters at a news conference.

"A man of another faith, a Catholic theologian, called me and said, 'Jim Bakker proves there really is a God of the second chance,'" Bakker said. "Tammy and I want a second chance. We want to be restored and we want to come back and restore PTL."

Bakker founded PTL and was at the helm when its luxury hotels, water park, television network and Heritage USA Christian resort were built. He lost it 18 months ago over a one-time sexual encounter and reports of financial skulduggery at PTL.

Bakker turned PTL over to the accuser who confronted him with his sin, the Rev. Jerry Falwell, but giving plummeted and by June 1987 Falwell put PTL in the hands of a federal bankruptcy court. He later quit in a tiff with the judge.

PTL went through a succession of leaders and in May,

U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Rufus Reynolds declared it hopeless and ordered it sold. Several bidders came forward, and by last week Bakker emerged the leading contender.

He offered $165 million, with most of the money to come from an unidentified Greek tycoon. But Bakker won't get a dime of the money until he finds a U.S. bank willing to place the money in a certificate of deposit and, using that as collateral, lend him the money to purchase PTL.

Bakker has been unable to find such a bank, with every bank in the Carolinas refusing to fund the PTL purchase. Bakker's lawyers blame fear of adverse publicity, but bankers say privately they are wary of anything related to PTL.

Without the Greek money on deposit in the United States, Bakker was forced over the weekend to call old friends and supporters to try to come up with the $3 million downpayment PTL demands, with the money going to PTL should Bakker default on his purchase.

Monday, Bakker called the press to spread the word. By Tuesday afternoon, he apparently had most of the $3 million.

"We're close on the $3 million," said Ryan Hovis, another Bakker attorney. "The money has been coming in all weekend. We haven't had a chance to tally it but the response has been phenomenal."

"It came from everywhere, in all amounts," said Hovis. "There was cash money and some letters of credit — but that is as good as cash."

Hovis said lawyers were still working on purchase contracts and once that is done, U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Rufus Reynolds will come to PTL to sign an order allowing Bakker to return almost immediately to the television airwaves.

Bakker must still come up with a U.S. bank, and he says one in Atlanta and one in the Midwest have indicated an interest. The purchase would also have to be approved by the ministry's creditors, many of whom are still loyal to Bakker.

Senator asks for battlefield protection

UPI

WASHINGTON — Sen. John Warner, R-Va., has prepared a compromise to House-approved legislation allowing the government to seize land and halt the construction of a shopping complex next to a historic Civil War battlefield.

Warner's alternative would allow the seizure of part of the land at Manassas battlefield where the William Center is being built, but it would not block construction of a scaled-down version of the project.

The compromise, which Warner intends to present to a Senate subcommittee Thursday, was to be released by his office today.

Warner urged swift action on his proposal to avoid a promised presidential veto of the so-called "legislative taking" bill, which easily passed the House last month and was sent to the Senate.

Such a veto would be "disastrous to the present and long-term historic interests of the Manassas National Battlefield Park," Warner said.

Seizing all 542 acres, Warner said, would amount to the federal government's "striking the taxpayers with another excessive bill at a subsequent date."

Bowden: FSU overconfident

TALLAHASSEE — Caught up in the fever generated by a preseason No. 1 ranking, the Florida State Seminoles started to believe they were invincible. Coach Bobby Bowden said Tuesday.

Bowden said Saturday night's 31-0 loss to Miami, then ranked sixth and now No. 1, was caused by overconfidence. And combined with the outstanding defense of the Hurricanes, the Seminoles, 0-1 and ranked 12th, had little chance of winning, he said.

"We'd been told for so long how great we are that we thought all we had to do was go out there and walk on the field and we'd win that ballgame," Bowden said. "I was more depressed after that game than I can't remember how long. I've never gone into a year with higher expectations and potential."

Baseball salaries to skyrocket

NEW YORK — The Player Relations Committee, which last week lost its second collusion case to the Baseball Players' Association, Tuesday said the average salary for players will reach a record high by the end of the season.

The PRC figures showed that, with incentives, players will earn an average of $433,000 this year. PRC Executive Director Barry Rona said as of Aug. 31 players were averaging $419,629.

According to Rona the $433,000 average is $31,000 more than players earned in 1987.

"It is obvious that club owners are not creating a hardship for the players," Rona said. "An average salary in excess of $400,000 should dispel the allegations that salaries are being artificially set through some sort of diabolical conspiracy by club owners."

Donald Fehr, the executive director of the major league players' union, said the average salary is down from April, when Rona said the figure was $442,000.

Charles looks to stay hot

INDIANAPOLIS — Bob Charles, the hottest golfer and top money winner on the Senior PGA Tour, has four victories and four second-place finishes in his last 11 starts.

But the left-handed hitter from New Zealand isn't quite sure how to explain his hot streak.

"Your guess is as good as mine," Charles said Tuesday after a practice round for this week's tour stop, the GTE North Classic.

"I'm fit and healthy and young compared to a lot of the guys," the 52-year-old former British Open winner said. "I've paced myself fairly well all season. I've been striking the ball well and just doing everything I need to finish well."

The $350,000 tournament, one of five new events on the tour this year, begins Thursday with 83 players seeking a top prize of $57,000. The 54-hole event will be contested at Broadmoor Country Club, a par-72 layout that covers 6,670 yards.

Cram will run at Olympics

LONDON — Britain's Steve Cram, who suffered a calf injury last week at a meet in Italy, confirmed Tuesday he intends to run both the 800 meters and 1500 meters at the Seoul Olympics.

Cram, who leaves for the British pre-Olympic holding camp in Japan on Sunday, said, "I'm having treatment twice a day but I feel pretty good as far as the calf is concerned."

"I've got a few twinges to get rid of, but I don't expect any problems."

Cram, who won the silver medal in the 1500 meters in Los Angeles, added, "I still intend to run the 800 meters as well as the 1500 meters and won't change my plans unless the calf starts acting up again out there."

Cram will clash with Said Aouita of Morocco over both distances.

Connors, Agassi triumph

United Press International

NEW YORK — Jimmy Connors, who played his first U.S. Open match when Andre Agassi was four months old, will equal a record for longevity when America's tennis generations meet in the quarterfinals.

Agassi, 18, climbed to No. 4 in the world without ever playing Connors, 36. They will meet Thursday for a place in the semifinals.

"I've been saying I wanted to play him before he retires," said the crowd-pleasing teenager from Las Vegas, Nev. He earned the opportunity by downing 16-year-old Michael Chang 7-5, 6-3, 6-2 Tuesday night.

Chang, ranked No. 48, could not match Agassi's power, and said, "I'm 16, he's 18. I had nothing to lose. I'm expected to get killed."

Agassi, who prefers to stay on the baseline, hit 31 winners and broke Chang's serve six times. Worried about tiring, Agassi did not try and power every groundstroke, choosing instead to "use more experience (opposed) to pure gun powder."

Connors, the oldest player in the tournament, will tie Vic Seixas' record of 102 matches played in the U.S. national tournament when he takes on Agassi. The sixth seed's 101st match was his easiest Open triumph in seven years, as he dispatched Mexico's Jorge Lozano 6-1, 6-2, 6-0 in 85 minutes and reached the round of eight for the 15th time in 16 years.

"I thought I hit the ball as clean as I could hit it today," said Connors, playing in his 19th Open. "Not only did I hit the ball clean, I moved well and it was a case of going out there and being sharp enough."

No women's singles were played Tuesday. Steffi Graf renews her bid for a Grand Slam today, playing No. 14 seed Katerina Maleeva in a quarterfinal match. The West German needs to win only six more sets to complete her sweep of this year's majors.

Connors, who has lost only one set in four matches, made just two unforced errors in the first set.

"I got off to a good start, got on top of him right away, didn't give him a chance to get into it and I think he got a bit discouraged along the way," said the lefthander, whose victory was his most lopsided since beating John Lloyd 6-0, 6-0, 6-2 in 1981.

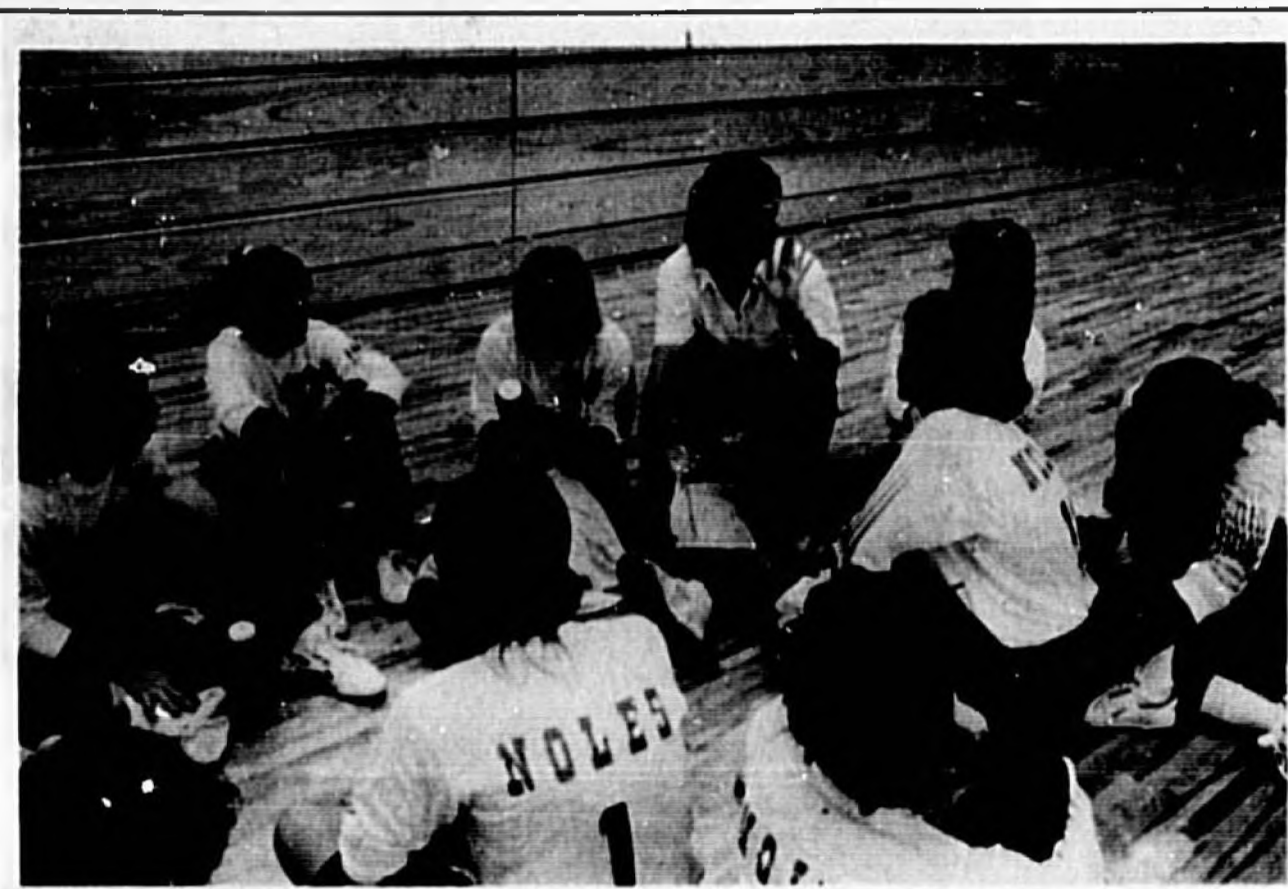

Lozano, ranked No. 68, twisted an ankle in the second set and had to have it sprayed with liquid ice and taped, but this did not seem to change his play.

In other fourth-round matches, defending champion Ivan Lendl eliminated Jakob Hlasek of Switzerland 6-4, 5-7, 6-2, 6-4 and unseeded Derrick Rostagno became the fourth American to reach the quarterfinals, downing Haiti's Ronald Agener 6-2, 3-5, 6-1, 6-3.

Not since 1983 had four American men advanced to the quarterfinals of the Open. Aaron Krickstein reached the round of eight on Monday by upsetting Wimbledon champion Stefan Edberg.

Lady Seminoles spoil new school's sports debut

By CHRIS FISTER
Herald sports editor

DELTONA — It was a new beginning in more ways than one Tuesday afternoon in the 1988 season opener for Seminole High and Deltona's Lady Wolves before 101 fans at the recently completed Deltona High gym.

For the Lady Seminoles, the 15-1, 15-3 victory was the start of what they hope will be one of their brightest seasons ever.

"We played hard enough to win today," Seminole coach Beth Corso said. "No we have to work on keeping our rhythm and staying in our attack for an entire match. We showed some good signs today of what we are capable of doing."

For Deltona, it was the first varsity sporting event in the school's history and the beginning of what coach Jan Stevens hopes will be a competitive program.

It was not the happiest of beginnings for the Lady Wolves, however, as they fell victim to the powerful attack of the Lady Nules and their own first-game jitters.

"It was the first time most of the girls have played varsity volleyball and they were all very nervous," Stevens said. "It has been a very hectic week for us here. We are capable of playing much better than we did. We proved that in camp when we only lost to Seminole by two points."

Seminole returns to action tonight at 7 at St. Cloud in a district game while Deltona's next outing is Tuesday at Daytona Beach Manland.

Seminole rode the power of returning starters Liz Long and Adrian Hillman, the setting of Heather Brown and Bobbie Osborne, and the all-around play of newcomer Krickel Snow to reel off the first 10 points of the first game. Snow and Brown each served two points in the early going with Long putting down a kill for the fifth point.

Deltona showed signs of an attack, including a kill by Tonya Gwinn off Shawna Streetman's set, but the Lady Wolves could not get anything going early as they missed three of their first four serves.

With a 7-0 lead, Yolanda Baker served three points to give SHS a commanding 10-0 cushion. Long and Hillman both had kills off nice sets by Brown during the rally.

Tyson to miss bout with Bruno

United Press International

NEW YORK — Heavyweight champion Mike Tyson lost consciousness, his memory and about $1.5 million dollars when his car skidded into a tree over the weekend.

Tyson, who may have been knocked out for as long as 30 minutes from the accident, has postponed his Oct. 22 championship bout with Frank Bruno in England. Dr. Carolyn Britton, a neurologist at Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center, said Tuesday she has advised the undefeated 22-year-old champion not to train for 30 to 60 days.

"He had a concussion," Britton said. "And, while there is no external cranial injury, he was out longer than most fighters would have had they been in the ring."

Britton said Tyson suffered amnesia from the accident in which the champion's luxury car skidded into a tree Sunday during a heavy rain near the home where he was raised in Catskill, N.Y. At first he did not remember the accident at all, but now has a recollection of the car skidding but no memory of the mishap beyond that, the doctor said.

Tyson's manager Bill Cayton has not yet visited the fighter. He said he agreed with Britton on postponing the Oct. 22 Bruno bout. The manager said Tyson is contractually bound to fight Bruno next, but he would not speculate when the fight would take place.

Because the bout is likely to take place in winter, it must be moved from London's Wembley Stadium, which would seat 55,000, to Wembley Arena, which will seat about 11,000. Cayton estimated the smaller gate will drop Tyson's cut from $6 million to about $4.5 million.

This marks the second time the fight with the Englishman has been delayed.

It was originally set for Oct. 8 but was pushed back when Tyson suffered a fractured hand Aug. 23 during a street fight with former opponent Mitch Green outside an all-night Harlem clothing store.

Also attending the news conference was cardiologist Dr. Dennis Reison.

Olympic rules could trouble U.S.

By KEITH DRUM
UPI sports writer

The United States basketball team has more to overcome at the Summer Olympics than veteran opponents, accurate 3-point shooters and the pressure of being expected to win. The Americans also must adjust to a different set of rules, ones used effectively by the European challengers in particular.

"When there is a violation in the frontcourt by the offense, Europeans are conditioned to get the ball and run to the sideline and then go," said John Clougherty, a veteran college basketball official from Raleigh, N.C., who got a closeup look at Europe's Olympic teams when he worked the European Qualifying tournament earlier this summer in Rotterdam, The Netherlands.

"If our kids stop and hesitate for even one second to complain, if they stop and don't get back, the Europeans are going to have an easy hoop," Clougherty said.

Such quick exchanges at r violations are among the many adjustments the U.S. players will have to make. Some of the international rules are perhaps beneficial to the U.S. players. Others are not.

Clougherty said the rules with the most visibility aren't necessarily the ones likely to hamper the U.S. team.

Instead, it is the less recognized rules, such as no 5-second count, liberal basket interference and fewer timeouts, that could bring difficult adjustments for the Americans.

Most noticeable among international rules are a wider, trapezoid lane, a slightly longer 3-point shot and a 30-second shot clock.

Two of those rules should benefit the U.S. team, which wants to play at a quicker pace than its opponent. The wider lane cuts down congestion around the goal and favors the quicker player. The 30-second clock forces a faster tempo.

The longer (by nine inches) 3-point shot definitely favors the Soviet Union, Yugoslavia, Brazil and other challengers. Their players are more accurate and more accustomed to the shot.

"It's not the distance as much as our mentality on the 3-pointer," said Clougherty. "Some of their players have no conscience when it comes to shooting 3-pointers. If we get hurt by those teams, it will be by their 3-point guys."

One way to counteract the 3-point shooters is with a tight, pressing man-to-man defense. That's the objective of U.S. Coach John Thompson of Georgetown. International rules lessen some effects of pressure, however. There is no 5-second count for closely guarding a dribbler.

"If you play man-to-man you've got to play it honest," said Clougherty. "They negate trapping and double-teams because they are good passers and shooters."

The better European guards, such as Sharunas Marchulenis of the Soviet Union and Drazen Petrovic of Yugoslavia, are strong enough to hold off the defense and continue their dribble as long as necessary.

International rules are stricter with goal-tending, but allow basket interference once a shot hits the rim.

"The rules penalize a sensational play, like an alley-oop pass, because you cannot catch a pass above the ring and dunk it," Clougherty said. "European teams don't even attempt it."

"When a ball is on its downward flight, it can't be touched. But once a ball hits the ring it's fair game. Our players have to learn to go ahead and get the ball when it hits the ring."

Other significant rule differences are:

—Teams get only two timeouts a half and they can't be saved. "You can't use a timeout to break momentum because you may have to save it for the end of the game," Clougherty said.

Greyhounds hungry for return to top

By CHUCK BURGESS
Special to the Herald

"You've got to have the horses to go to the races."

That's how Lyman head coach Don Clark summed up the attitude of this year's Greyhound boys' swim team. After relinquishing the conference championship which they had held for the previous three years to Lake Mary, Clark and his 'Hounds aren't taking this season so lightly.

"I'm murdering them this year," Clark said referring to his team's practices. "We're not messing around. I'm going to work their tails off like never before."

The new attitude that the Greyhounds have adopted is mainly due to last year's performance, according to Clark. "Last year I tried something new. I wanted to give them less yardage and more quality acts. We experimented a little bit last year and I didn't really like the results, so this year it's all work and no play."

Heading up this year's squad is All-America senior Chuck Reinighaus and the brother tandem of Jim and Dave Bandy.

"Chuck's (Reinighaus) working his tail off this year," Clark said of his talented senior. "He could win an event at the state meet, but we don't know what event we want to put him in yet."

Joining the 'Hounds pack is senior cross-country All-America Nick Radkewich, who Clark feels is a big boost for his team. "Nick

Don Clark is working his Lyman swim team hard in preparation for the 1988 season as the Greyhounds' boys team looks to reclaim the conference title it lost to Lake Mary a year ago.

(Radkewich) will help us out until the conference meet," Clark said. "He'll be a big plus and he's one tough athlete."

Other members of this year's squad include juniors John Jones, John Metzdorf, and sophomore Kevin Scott. Hitting the board for the Greyhounds this year will be senior Todd Brooks, who went to state last season in his first season as a diver, and sophomore Mike Peck, who Clark hopes will score big points for the Hounds in the close meets.

"We've got a small team, but they're all good," Clark said of his feisty Greyhounds. "We got our tails kicked by Lake Mary last year and sometimes that's what it takes to get the attitude of the coach and the swimmers. Last year we weren't hungry, but this year it should be a different story."

While Clark and the Greyhounds enjoy the luxury of having an abundance of talent on the boys' side, the 'Hounds will have to rely on their numbers in the girls' department. "Right now we have the biggest girls team we've ever had at Lyman," Clark said about his 20 member squad. "I've really had to work hard this year so far with them I don't think I've ever worked so hard at coaching in my life."

Clark's attitude must wear off on his girls' team if they hope to be competitive in the big meets. With only four girls returning from last year, the Lady 'Hounds have their work cut out for them.

Leading the pack for Lyman will be seniors Nicole Mabry and Cindy Pruitt along with junior Rhonda Ricketson. Even though the Lady Greyhounds hope to score well in the water, the big gun will be sophomore Angie Pfaff and her ability on the board. "She (Pfaff) is really good," Clark said. "Last year she took third in the conference as a freshman, so she should do really well for us this year."

Even with all of the talent and numbers, Clark is still hesitant to make any predictions about the outcome of this season. "I'm not putting any pressure on them if we work hard, we will be good. I'm not going to make any predictions. We'll just work as hard as we can and see what happens."

Oviedo survives

Oviedo's Lady Lions were pushed to three games in their season opener Tuesday night at Kissimmee Gateway, but Oviedo managed to come away with a 15-8, 13-15, 15-8 victory.

The Lady Lions open defense of their Seminole Athletic Conference title tonight at 7 at home against Lyman High.

Oviedo looks for banner swim season

By CHUCK BURGESS
Special to the Herald

Oviedo swim coach Pat O'Malley must have been on cloud nine when he walked on the pool deck for the first day of practice this year. Not because he was handed an exchange student from Denmark who could probably place at this year's state meet, nor was it because of it being his first year as the Lion's swim mentor. The reason for O'Malley's excitement is that for the first time in Oviedo's history, they finally have a swim team that consists of more than just individuals.

"I'm pretty happy right now," O'Malley said. "We've got about 30 swimmers out right now."

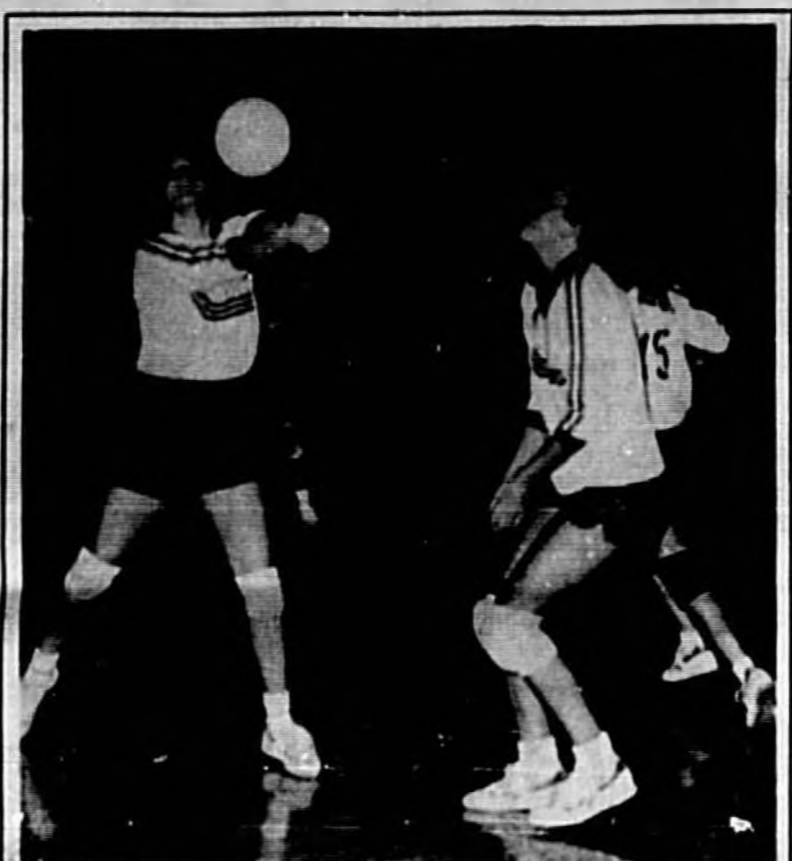

The future may be what O'Malley is looking at, but two of his Lions have their eyes set on the here and now. Senior foreign exchange student Torben Jensen and junior butterflyer Tim Ready have more than just building a program on their minds. "Both of them (Jensen and Ready) should make it to the state meet and do fairly well."

O'Malley said. "They should be very competitive in the dual meets and help the team out a lot this year."

Joining Jensen and Ready will be senior captain Mark Winkler (free), junior Kevin Hurt, and sophomore Charlie Horn. "We're not that deep," O'Malley said referring to his boy's team. "We should have enough people to be respectable though."

Turning to the girl's team, O'Malley will rely on junior captain Dawn Jones, senior Heather MacCush, and junior Yvette Stillwell. "They're really the only three girls on the team with any experience," O'Malley said. "We've got a lot of girls who are swimming really well right now, but it's going to take a little time to develop some quality."

For the Lions and O'Malley it looks to be the turning point in a program that has been all but dormant in recent years. "This year should be a big change for our program," O'Malley said. "Last year we only had a half-dozen boys and girls, but most of them had swum before. Now we finally have something we can work with."

Billmyer bump

Lake Brantley's Barb Billmyer gets a pass up while teammate Dawn Gebhart looks on. Both players return from last year's team that took second in the state in Class 4A. The Lady Patriots open the 1988 season today at powerful Tampa Prep.

Evans downs Hawks in season opener

By MARK BLYTHE
Herald sports writer

CASSELBERRY — Evans High School used the serving of Deanna James and capitalized on numerous Lake Howell mistakes to post a 15-11, 15-9 victory Tuesday afternoon before 51 fans at Lake Howell High School.

James served for a total of 15 points in the two-game match. It was the opening match for both teams and Lake Howell coach Jo Luciano is hoping her young team can come along and improve with each match.

"Every opponent will be tough for us in the early part of the season," Luciano said. "We'll have to keep improving and cut down on our mental mistakes."

Lake Howell jumped out on top in the opening game with Carolyn Dewar, serving for a pair of points. On the second point Leslie Barton made a nice diving save to keep the ball in play and give the Lady Silver Hawks a 2-0 advantage.

James, though, then came up to serve and reeled off six straight points including two aces before Lake Howell called time out. James came back with three more points before the Lady Silver Hawks could get a side out, down 9-2.

Debbie McDonough cut the lead to 9-3 before Angela Williams gave Evans a 12-3 advantage with three nice serves. The Lady Silver Hawks did not give up, though, and battled themselves back into the ballgame behind the play of Tanya Lewis and Barton.

After each team scored a single point to move the score to 13-4 in favor of the Lady Trojans, Lewis served for five consecutive points to narrow the lead to 13-9. Lake Howell took advantage of three unforced errors by Evans to get back in the game.

Audrey Gutierrez then served for a single point to give Evans a 14-9 lead. Barton then served for a point to trim the lead to 14-10 before the Lady Trojans managed a side out. Lake Howell came up with a service break and McDonough served for its final point that cut the lead to 14-11. Denise McIntyre put the game away for Evans with the final point of the first game.

"I was pleased that we didn't roll over and give up," Luciano said. "We came back a little in each game and were never really out of it."

The second game started off bad for Lake Howell as James gave the Lady Trojans a quick 6-0 lead with her powerful serve. James came up with two more aces in the streak and put the Lady Silver Hawks in an early hole.

Dewar narrowed the lead to 6-2 before Brenda Mossy upped the lead to 9-2. McDonough cut the lead to 9-3 before Williams put the game out of reach with 4 service points, upping the lead to 13-2. Heather Brann then came up with a pair of points for Lake Howell before giving up her serve. After each team came up with a service break Lewis came up with a nice block to return the serve to the Lady Silver Hawks.

Dana Boyeson then served for a pair of points with Lewis picking up a kill on the second point. Evans finally put the game away though when Williams moved the lead to 14-9. Gutierrez came up with the final point of the match and gave Evans its first victory.

Late start doesn't deter Silver Hawks

By CHUCK BURGESS
Special to the Herald

Coach Duwaine Picou hopes that a late start and a lot of beginners won't affect his chances for success down the road as his Lake Howell Silver Hawks open the 1988 swim season.

"We're getting in awful late," Picou said of his team. "I hope we can pull out some good swims, but my main concern right now is getting the kids in shape by the time conference and districts roll around."

Picou, in his 10th year as head coach at Lake Howell, is no stranger to young swimmers, but feels this year is more of a challenge than previous years. "This year we're not just rebuilding, but we're actually building," Picou said of his squad. "I'm really not interested in seeing how many meets we can win. All we want to do this year is get the kids some experience and maybe they can provide us with some good swims down the road."

Leading the line of Silver Ducks this season will be flashy sophomore Tricia Defrates. Defrates, who is one of the few year-long swimmers on the Lake Howell squad, will provide the strength for the Silver Ducks when state rolls around, according to Picou. "She's one tough girl," Picou said. "She's a hard worker and a class act."

Joining Defrates on the girls team will be senior captain Sara Sandsberry and sophomore Laura Cotter.

Providing the state leadership on the boy's side will be junior diver John Jontaulovich.

Heading the rest of the roster is senior captain Tom Frick and senior freestyler Chris Cotter.

Lyman counts on seniors to lead way in '88

By MARK BLYTHE
Herald sports writer

LONGWOOD — Lyman High School will enter its first match tonight against a powerful Oviedo team with a positive mental attitude and in hopes of turning 1988 into a winning season.

The Lady Greyhounds will be under the guidance of first year coach Pat Topper, who comes from Hillsborough County. Topper will be in her first year as a high school volleyball coach and is very happy with her team so far this season.

"We're looking fantastic so far," Topper said. "We had a losing season last year and I'm still trying to motivate the girls, they've been working hard and looking good so far though."

Lyman will look for four seniors to provide leadership and give the team some experience. Julia Callarman and Tracy Browne are the teams two most experienced players with Emily Rosenfeld and Amy Fogel being the other two veterans.

The seniors will have to set the tone for the Lady Greyhounds this season if they want to be competitive in the Seminole Athletic Conference which has a number of quality teams again this season.

"I'm impressed with the way we've been playing," Topper said. "All the girls are well rounded volleyball players and can do quite a number of things well."

Lyman will have good team balance this season and will look for a number of underclassmen to provide some big plays for it this season. Sophomore stand-out Jennifer Kruger, who participates in three sports, has been looking good in practice along with freshman Melody Hillsman.

"Jennifer (Kruger) is a tough little athlete," Topper said. "She and Melody (Hillsman) have been looking real good in practice."

Others expected to see quite a bit of action are Melissa Chinfatt, a reliable all around player, Michelle DeLuca, Katina Burden and Angelique Tossie. Tossie was just recently moved up to the varsity after working out with the junior varsity squad for the opening three weeks of practice.

Callarman and Browne are expected to provide the Lady Greyhounds with their power while Kruger and Rosenfeld will be quarterbacking the team. Topper, though, feels everyone must contribute for Lyman to be tough in '88.

"Every player has to be able to do a little bit of everything," Topper said. "So far they've been doing well in practice and we hope that continues into the matches."

Topper has been extremely pleased with her teams performance so far in the early season and she hopes she can turn the Lyman volleyball program around.

"I think this group can do very well," Topper said. "We're not a real strong or real big team but everyone can do some many different things well that I feel we can be competitive."

Deltona then got a side out and scored the first sports point in school history on Gwinn's serve. A nice dig in the back row by Steph Bedouin kept the point alive.

Hillsman then slipped a nice dink past the Deltona defense for a side out and Long served the Lady 'Noles to a 14-1 lead. Long had one ace during the string and Hillsman put down a kill on a Deltona overpass. Hillsman's third kill of the game later gave Seminole the 15th point.

The Lady Tribe cranked up its attack early in game two and, fueled by four kills by Long, they took a 4-0 lead. Deltona pulled within 4-1 on Streetman's serve but the Lady 'Noles then took control by scoring the next nine points for a 13-1 lead. The big lead enabled SHS to get all its players in and Keri Fossellus, Aleyda Hare, Amy Faasbender and Chineta Gilchrist all did well coming off the bench.

Snow served a string of three points, one an ace, to up the lead to 8-1 but Deltona had one of its best moments when Bedouin put down a nice kill off a set by Streetman for a side out.

Daniels' fireworks lead Reds' victory

United Press International

On a night the Houston Astros retired their exploding scoreboard, Cincinnati's Kal Daniels supplied the fireworks.

Daniels blasted a pair of home runs and scored five times to back the eight-hit pitching of Tom Browning Tuesday, leading the Reds to a 10-3 victory over the Houston Astros.

"We knew coming in here that we couldn't be swept," said Daniels, who has hit five of his 16 homers off the Astros.

"We had to win two or at least split. I didn't know I had scored all five trips. I know I haven't done that in the big leagues before."

Browning, 13-5, pitched an eight-hitter, walked two and struck out four in posting his fourth complete game of the season.

Jim Deshaies, 9-12, lost his third decision this season to Browning, his college teammate at LeMoyne College in Syracuse, N.Y.

"I felt good tonight and had good command of all my pitches," Browning said. "Jimmy had it a little rough early tonight, and I guess they felt they couldn't get too far back. I'm sorry he took the loss. He's had some tough luck this year."

Houston Manager Hal Lanier, whose team allowed 13 hits, committed three errors and gave up nine walks, wanted to forget Tuesday's game and look ahead to the two-game series beginning Wednesday at NL West-leading Los Angeles.

"We try to go out there and win every ball game," said Lanier. "We just have to put this game behind us and go out to LA and try to win every ball game."

Daniels, who drove in four runs, hit a three-run homer in the ninth and a solo shot in the third.

The decision left Houston five loser Bob Ojeda, 9-13. Smiley, 11-9, earned the victory. Jim Gott preserve the triumph with his 26th save.

Ripken: Halfway to Gehrig's record

By RICHARD L. SHOOK
 UPI sports writer

Wednesday would be just another night on the job for Cal Ripken Jr. were it not for one thing: the total of all the "just another nights" puts the Baltimore Orioles' shortstop halfway to Lou Gehrig's consecutive games played record.

Ripken will play his 1,065th straight game — exactly half Gehrig's monumental 2,130 total — Wednesday night when his team hosts the Boston Red Sox.

"When I think about it, well, it's hard to say," Ripken said. "I don't quite know what an accomplishment it is, playing every day. A good portion is luck."

"I've played a lot, and sometimes when you look back it's quite an accomplishment. But on a daily basis, one day at a time, they just seem to add up. You're doing the same thing every single day."

"By no means am I thinking of the record or chasing Lou. I'm doing it because I like to play the game."

"Luck plays a big part. In today's game, you can get injured quite easily. I've had a lot of day to day injuries, but nothing serious enough to keep me out of the lineup."

Ripken's seventh season without missing a game is nearly done. That is one of the ways the 6-foot-4, 225-pound shortstop approaches it. He thinks of it as one season rather than 162 games.

"I have to laugh every time I go into a slump or tailspin," Ripken said. "It's always because I'm showing signs of fatigue. That's the biggest myth in the world."

"You play 162 games at one time. Then you have the winter to recuperate. It's a streak of seasons, not necessarily every game."

"Physically, I think a lot of people can do it. Baseball is not as grueling a physical sport as basketball or football. The hardest part is convincing yourself you can play every day."

Ripken calls baseball "working in the night shift" and notes he's always been one to sleep until he felt rested enough before getting up.

"Getting enough rest and eating properly. You have to make sure you do those things," he said.

Times have changed since Gehrig went through his 14 seasons without an unscheduled break.

Teams travel by plane, not train. They go from coast to coast rather than stay East of the Mississippi. Day games follow night games. Relief pitchers are the rule, not the exception. Media demands are much greater now. Platooning is much more prevalent.

All of which does not diminish Gehrig's accomplishment so much as it enhances Ripken's feat of doing what Baltimore says him to do — play games.

Czechoslovakian is seeking to become the first man to win four consecutive U.S. crowns since Bill Tilden's six straight in 1920-25.

Lendl has lost three sets in four matches and says, "I'm still fit and quick and I'm competing well, which is important. You can't just go through the tournament hitting the ball everywhere for winners and walking through the field. You just can't do that anymore — maybe 10 years ago, but not now."

Lendl, who made just 20 unforced errors, said Hasek is "a very solid player. He doesn't miss many approaches or volleys. I felt better in the third and fourth sets and started hitting the ball cleaner. I also think his legs got a little heavier." Rostagno, from Brentwood, Calif., had never won a match at the U.S. Open before, losing in the first round each of the last three years.

Four unseeded players are in the quarterfinals, where Rostagno will play Lendl for the first time.

The lack of familiarity benefits him, says the American, because "any variable is probably in my favor." Rostagno was off the tour for seven weeks this spring because of pneumonia.

In the women's other quarterfinal pairings, defending champion Martina Navratilova meets No. 11 Zina Garrison, No. 3 Chris Evert plays No. 6 Manuela Maleeva, and No. 5 Gabriela Sabatini competes against No. 16 Larisa Savchenko.

Cooking training paid off

LAKE MARY — Walter Stockton's mother must have had the right notion when she taught him cooking so he could be prepared in his future.

Stockton, our Cook of the Week, was born and raised in Charlotte, N.C., where he eventually received his formal education. He has two brothers, one younger and one older, and had a sister.

"My ancestors came to the United States from Northern Ireland in the 1600s. That was my father's people. I guess that my mother's people were already here waiting on them," laughed Stockton, of Lake Mary.

"My father ran an automobile repair business in Charlotte after leaving the Ford Motor Company" during the Great Depression, Stockton said. "My mother was a housewife who stayed home and took care of the house and the children."

He had a normal childhood and did things that all boys did back then. And his mother began teaching him to cook.

"She said that every man should learn to take care of himself, because you never know when you get married and your wife goes to the hospital, you might need to take care of things at the house and you wouldn't know how," Stockton said.

Stockton's now-deceased wife, a home economics teacher, also helped him mesh ingredients together in combos that tasted good. "We worked together for 33 years in the kitchen before her death," he said. "She showed me a lot of things that needed to be done in the kitchen and how to do them."

Stockton doesn't remember any of the first dishes that he prepared—that was too many years ago. "While I lived at home I never got much of a chance to cook because my mother did all the cooking. Then I joined the service where they did all the cooking. It was only after I was discharged that I picked up my culinary art," he said.

"I enjoy recipes that are simple and without a large number of ingredients, because then you won't have to go and buy a lot of special ingredients and merchandis that you will probably never use again," he said. "I enjoy cooking and cook often for people who like to come over just to eat."

Stockton also cooks for potluck dinners at The Forest community in Lake Mary and for covered dish suppers at Grace United Methodist Church in Lake Mary, where he is an active member.

Stockton graduated from the University of South Dakota with a degree in accounting. He worked as an accountant until his retirement.

"I love to travel and like to go somewhere different every year, whether it is in the United States or abroad," Stockton said. This past summer he traveled to the Northern Cascades State Park in Washington state. He has been to Scotland, Ireland, England, India, the Caribbean and even to Nepal.

"I've never learned to cook any dishes from any of the countries that I have visited, but I do have a cookbook from Scotland that I have fixed scones from," Stockton said. "I have friends in Scotland and they are planning on visiting me again this year. Maybe they will teach me to cook something other than scones."

Stockton not only lives in The Forest, he takes an active part there. He is in charge of a group of singles there called the Solos (because they are single, not because they sing). The group visits different places and throws parties at The Forest.

Stockton also is treasurer for both the Sunrise Kiwanis Club and the Community Concert Series.

Stockton's philosophy on life is: "Enjoy each day as if it were your last, because you never know what tomorrow will bring. I thank God every day when I open my eyes for another wonderful day of life, because many years ago I was told that I had to have surgery and I might not live through it. So now I say 'thank you' every day."

Listed below are several recipes from Stockton's collection. One was given to him by an 11-year-old daughter of a Methodist minister and one was taken back to Scotland by his friends.

STIX AND STONES
1 12-ounce package butter-scotch chips

1 cup peanuts or other nuts
4 cups shoestring potatoes (Kobey's canned)

Heat and stir the chips until fully melted and add the peanuts to the chips. Stir and coat well. Add the potatoes. Stir, fully and thoroughly. Drop by teaspoon on waxed paper. Let set. Afterwards put in jar, and it will keep without refrigeration.

PEANUT BUTTER COOKIES

1 cup peanut butter
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
Mix together, then roll in small balls and place on greased cookie sheet. Dip glass in sugar and press down on balls. Bake at 350°F for 8-10 minutes.

LEMON STICKIES

1 box lemon cake mix
1 stick melted margarine
1 egg
1 8-ounce package cream cheese
2 eggs
3 cups confectioners sugar
Combine cake mix, margarine, egg and mix well. Press into a greased 9-by-13-pan. Mix well the cream cheese, eggs and confectioners sugar. Spread on top of first mixture. Bake at 350°F for 35-40 minutes. Cut into squares to serve.

TURTLES

2 1-ounce squares semi-sweet chocolate
1/2 cup butter or margarine
2 eggs, beaten
1/4 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 cup all-purpose flour
Your favorite frosting
Pecan halves
Combine chocolate and butter in a heavy saucepan. Place over low heat, stirring constantly until melted, and let cool. Combine eggs, sugar, vanilla and chocolate mixture, blending well. Add flour, mixing well.

Preheat waffle iron on medium heat. Drop batter by the teaspoonful onto the waffle iron, spacing about 2 inches apart. Close waffle iron, and bake about 1 1/2 minutes or until cookies are done. Cool on rack and frost with frosting. Top with the pecan halves. Yields about 2 dozen.

LEMONADE PIE

1 6-ounce can frozen lemonade pink
1 can Eagle brand milk
9 ounces Cool Whip
Mix together, then fold in Cool Whip. Pour into a graham-cracker crust. Refrigerate a few hours. A drop of red food coloring stirred in makes it look a bit better. You can sprinkle a few graham cracker crumbs on top to garnish.

JAPANESE FRUIT PIE

Melt one stick of butter. Add to 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 1 tablespoon vinegar, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Mix well. Add 1/2 cup coconut, 1/2 cup chopped pecans, 1/2 cup chopped dates. Bake in pastry shell for 40 minutes at 300°F.

EASY POTATO BAKE

3 cups half-and-half cream
1/2 cup (1 stick) butter or margarine
1 teaspoon salt
2 12-ounce packages frozen hash browns, thawed
Grated parmesan cheese, about 1/2 cup

Heat cream and butter together, add salt. Place thawed potatoes in a thin layer in an oblong baking dish or pan. Pour cream mixture over potatoes. Sprinkle top generously with cheese. Bake at 325°F for one hour. Serves 8.

Plan a meal around these simple dishes

During the hot summer months it seems that nothing tastes better than hamburgers or steaks on the grill. But school has started and we are about to "settle in" to the activities of church, school and community life once again. It's time to plan our meals around some favorite fall one-dish menus. With the addition of a salad, a bread stuff and "lite" desserts, your meal planning is complete.

Filling manicotti shells before they are cooked simplifies the preparation of this meatless dish.

EASY MANICOTTI

1 package (10 ounces) frozen chopped spinach
1 can (14 ounces) whole tomatoes, undrained
1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
1 can (6 ounces) tomato paste
1/2 cup water
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon oregano
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
1 carton (15 ounces) Ricotta or dry curd cottage cheese
2 cups shredded Mozzarella cheese
1/2 cup Parmesan cheese
1 egg
1 package (8 ounces) manicotti shells
1/2 cup warm water

Microwave on 100 percent power spinach in package 3-4 minutes or until thawed. Drain well and set aside. Combine tomatoes (quartered), tomato sauce, tomato paste, water and seasonings in 1 1/2-quart casserole dish. Cover with lid. Microwave on 100 percent for 4-5 minutes or until mixture is hot, stirring once. Set aside, covered.

Combine Ricotta cheese, 1 cup Mozzarella cheese, Parmesan cheese, egg and spinach. Stir until well blended. Stuff mixture into uncooked manicotti shells, arrange in 12-by-8-inch baking dish (10 down the center and 2 on each side.) Pour sauce over shells, making sure all are covered with sauce. Cover with plastic wrap. Microwave on 100 percent power 14-15 minutes. Add 1/2 cup water. Recover, then microwave on 50 percent power 18-20 minutes or until noodles are tender. Sprinkle with 1 cup Mozzarella cheese. Microwave on 100 percent power, uncovered 2-3 minutes or until cheese is melted. Let stand 5 minutes before serving.

This is what I like to call a man-pleaser meal. It certainly is a fall favorite.

KRAUT AND BEANS

2 apples, cored and chopped
1 medium onion, chopped
2 tablespoons margarine
1 can (16 ounces) sauerkraut, drained
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 tablespoon flour
1 teaspoon caraway seed

MICROWAVE MAGIC

MIDGE MYCOFF

1/2 cup white wine or apple juice
1/2 cup water
1 pound smoked, fully cooked bratwurst

Combine apples, onions and margarine in a 2-quart casserole dish. Cover with lid. Microwave on 100 percent power 5-6 minutes or until tender.

Drain sauerkraut. Rinse with water and drain again, squeezing out excess liquid. Add to onion along with brown sugar, flour and caraway. Mix to combine. Stir in wine and water. Add bratwurst, pressing each into the kraut. Cover.

Microwave on 100 percent power 12-13 minutes or until heated through, rearranging bratwurst.

*Weiners can be substituted for brats.
If using apple juice, add 1 tablespoon lemon juice also.

This easy meal is almost like soup.

CHICKEN AND RICE STEW

1 1/2 pounds chicken parts
1 medium onion, chopped
1 1/2 cups chopped carrots
1 cup sliced celery
1 cup cubed ham
1/2 cup brown or white rice
1 1/2 cups water
2 tablespoons snipped parsley
1 teaspoon instant chicken bouillon
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon curry powder
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 cup milk
1/2 cup whipping cream or half & half
2 tablespoons white wine, optional
1/2 teaspoon garlic salt

Combine chicken, onion, carrot, celery, ham, rice, water, parsley, bouillon, salt, garlic salt, curry powder, and pepper in 3-quart casserole dish. Cover with lid.

Microwave on 100 percent power 45-50 minutes, or until all is tender. Remove chicken pieces to plate to cool. Stir milk, cream and white wine into rice mixture. Cut chicken from bones. Add to soup; cover. Microwave on 100 percent power 3-5 minutes or until heated through.

Mom angry when her castle is not her daughter's home

DEAR ABBY: My mother bought me a mobile home as a gift, so I gave her a set of keys for emergency use only. Two months ago my boyfriend moved in with me. Bernie is 36, I'm 38. One night, my mother came into my home without any warning, so Bernie suggested I change the locks. I told him rather than just change the locks, I would speak to my mother and ask her not to use her keys. Well, before I had a chance to talk to her, she let herself in again and walked right into my bedroom! Bernie and I were in bed watching TV. She scared us half to death as we didn't even hear her come in. Bernie was furious. I asked Mom why she didn't ring the bell or knock instead of just barging in. She claimed she did but we didn't respond, so she used her key. She became indignant, said she would never set foot in my home again, then left in a huff!

ADVICE
ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

I have called her and left messages on her answering machine, but she didn't return my calls. Bernie has called her and she's ignored his messages, too. I don't want to lose my mother's friendship. My dad died four years ago and she's the only family I have. Who is right in this situation? And what should I do?
DEPRESSED

DEAR DEPRESSED: Your mother had no right to enter your home unannounced. (The fact that she gave you the mobile home as a gift does not entitle her to invade your privacy.) Don't give up. Keep calling her. Life is too short. In time she will realize that in an attempt to punish you, she is also punishing herself.

DEAR ABBY: I am 43, female, and I manage the Ridge Manor Senior Center. My friends are always asking me how my "old folks" are. Let me tell you about my "old folks." Most of them get up at 5 or 6 a.m., shower, shave and do their laundry. Then they houseclean and visit the center for lunch and crafts. I don't see some of these people for days. They're too busy! They go on bus trips and fly across the country to visit relatives and friends. Some take dancing lessons, do aerobics, volunteer at hospitals, libraries, etc. A few even take some courses at college. Three groups of seniors in our area put on variety shows at shopping malls and clubs. They make their own costumes, write their own material and perform like pros. Abby, these "old folks" are between 62 and 92. We need to quit putting youth on a pedestal. These seniors are survivors. They have lived through sickness, depressions, disappointments, financial reverses, the loss of loved ones and close friends, and they have survived. These "old folks" can teach us so much about life and values. Seek their friendship and advice. Don't shortchange yourself—or them.

JUDY MOLL, EMMAUS, PA.

DEAR JUDY: Thanks for a real upper. It's obvious that you love your work.

DEAR ABBY: This concerns your letter about common-law marriages. I worked for the Allotment Division of the U.S. Air Force when it moved to Denver from St. Louis, and the clerks had specified criteria upon which to evaluate a claimed common-law marriage. "Living together for a specified number of years" is not enough to constitute a common-law marriage as legal. The couple living together must be known as man and wife by friends, neighbors, associates and by the landlady. They must profess to being husband and wife and receive mail addressed to them as Mr. and Mrs. If their acquaintances, business associates and friends recognize that they are merely "living together," they do not qualify as a married couple. Further, if a couple establishes a common-law marriage in a state where such is recognized as legal, the marriage is recognized as legal in all other 49 states.

MARIE PERLMAN, DENVER

DEAR MS. PERLMAN: Thank you for some valuable legal information, particularly since the living-together lifestyle appears to be popular. (Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90009. All correspondence is confidential.)

Chicken pox usually affects only children

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 13 and just caught chicken pox. What is this disease? How long should it last?

DEAR READER: Chicken pox, a highly contagious disease of children, is caused by a herpes-like virus called varicella zoster virus. VZV primarily infects the skin, where it produces itchy blisters that eventually scab over.

Most children with chicken pox are sick for one to two weeks. Once the blisters stop breaking out, the patient is no longer infectious and can return to normal activity. Thereafter, immunity to chicken pox is permanent.

Occasionally, severe cases of VZV can progress to bacterial skin infection, pneumonia, blood poisoning, inflammation of the brain (encephalitis) or hepatitis. Chicken pox can be a serious disease in adults because of complications, but in children and adolescents, it is usually limited and benign. Scratching the blisters and scabs can produce deeper infection and scarring, so use calamine lotion or other anti-itch compounds to relieve symptoms.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I became diabetic four years ago. I developed a terrible odor in my vagina, so bad that my husband wants nothing to do with me. My internist and gynecologist both say it's from the diabetes, but douches and suppositories don't help. I'm an emotional wreck and don't know what to do.

DEAR READER: Diabetics are very prone to infections. The disease commonly is associated with skin inflammation, pneumonia and vaginal infections, such as candida. Treatment is difficult until the diabetes is brought under control by diet, pills or insulin. Once the blood sugar has been lowered, therapy with antibiotics or anti-fungal preparations is usually effective. I suspect that your problem was caused by a vaginal infection. You should have bacterial and fungus cultures obtained from your lower reproductive tract. Once the offending microorganism has been identified by the lab, treatment can be tailor-made to suit your needs.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

How would you bid the East hand? If you were playing standard methods, you would overcall North's one diamond with one spade and hope that you would have an opportunity at a convenient level to mention hearts later. If you and your partner were playing a convention called the Michaels cue-bid, you could bid two diamonds over one diamond, not to force to game but to show 5-5 in the majors without too much in the way of high cards. In the 1942 setting of "Murder at the Bridge Table," East made a takeout double and South arrived in three no-trump.

The opening lead was won in dummy and the king of diamonds was led. Of course East won and proceeded to lead hearts for no reason except that dummy had only the single heart 10 but had the 10-5 of spades. Was there any way for him to know which suit to lead? Yes indeed. Although it's standard practice for a defender with an inconsequential holding in dummy's long suit to give count (low from an odd number of cards, high from even), the situation changes when it is obvious that partner cannot make use of such information. West had the opportunity to make a dramatic "suffi-preference" play by playing the diamond 10 when East won the ace. East would then play a spade and the defenders would take five quick tricks in that suit to beat the contract two tricks.

James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Gwald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Pharos Books.

PEANUTS

Reagan, Congress return to work

United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, back at the White House today following a summer vacation to his California ranch, was geared for a final round of combat with Congress over several key issues, many with a political impact.

The president and his wife, Nancy, returned to Washington late Tuesday from a three-week vacation in California, where the first couple went after the Republican National Convention in New Orleans.

Reagan was scheduled to meet today with Republican congressional leaders to review the agenda for the closing weeks of the 100th Congress.

Among the issues planned for discussion were anti-drug legislation, the U.S.-Canadian free-trade agreement, aid for the Nicaraguan Contra rebels and Cabinet status for the Veterans Administration, said White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater.

Congressional leaders believe they can meet their target date for adjournment in the first week of October, but to do so they will have to walk a financial tight rope.

Under the Gramm-Rudman deficit reduction law, automatic budget cuts will begin for several programs if the projected 1989 deficit exceeds $146 billion. Congress is within $2 billion of that ceiling, according to the Office of Management and Budget.

On its first day back from recess, the House was to begin debate on an omnibus anti-drug bill that has been in the works for several months and is estimated to cost $1 billion. The legislation includes more money for drug enforcement and tougher penalties for traffickers and users.

The anti-drug bill holds much election-year appeal for lawmakers, but they will have to work quickly to reconcile the House plan with an as-yet unwritten Senate plan and make the resulting legislation acceptable to the president.

Resuming business today, the Senate was scheduled to vote on three non-controversial treaties and try to end a filibuster against a new textile bill that faces strong opposition from the Reagan administration.

The textile bill would establish annual import quotas for each category of textiles, textile products and non-rubber footwear. It would also give preference in allocating quotas to nations that buy U.S. agricultural products.

Contra aid, which could become a big issue in the presidential race, may stay alive in Congress until adjournment.

Senate Democrats barely won approval Aug. 10 of their $27 million non-lethal aid package for the rebels. Republicans and the administration insist that in light of the breakdown of the Central American peace talks, the Contras need guns and ammunition more than food and clothing.

The aid plan was attached to the defense appropriation bill, already burdened by a fight between Democrats and President Reagan over arms control policies and reductions in funding for his "Star Wars" missile defense system.

House and Senate negotiators will try to reconcile their differences, but the biggest difficulties will continue to be differences with the White House and a possible veto.

On appropriations, Congress has been making good progress in passing the 13 regular spending bills for the operation of various federal departments next year. Congressional leaders would like to avoid having to rely on a huge catch-all money bill at the end of the session because of disagreements over individual appropriations measures.

Pinochet backers urge better TV campaign

United Press International

SANTIAGO, Chile — The opposition's television campaign, its first real access to the mass media since a 1973 coup, may have President Augusto Pinochet on the defensive less than a month before a presidential plebiscite, his supporters say.

Businessmen and industrialists met Tuesday with Pinochet, the only candidate in the Oct. 5 plebiscite, and said afterward they advised him to improve the government's television campaign.

A "Yes" vote in the plebiscite gives Pinochet eight more years as president, while a negative outcome is a call for an open election in about a year.

Both the government and the opposition premiered their nightly 15-minute electoral spots Monday, the first time in 15 years the opposition has been able to place advertisements on television.

The opposition's segment featured professionally prepared, light-hearted segments with songs and images of Chileans at work and play that emphasize the "joy" it says will return to Chile should the hard-line general be defeated in the plebiscite.

Fernando Aguero, president of the Society of Manufacturers, said the analysis of the opposition campaign showed it to be "very artistic."

"Comments were made (in the Pinochet meeting) about the 15-minute segment," he said. "There was agreement about the need to revise what had been done (with the government campaign) and possibly improve some aspects of it."

The government emphasized the social benefits of the export-driven economy created under Pinochet, who swept to power in the coup that ousted Socialist President Salvador Allende on Sept. 13, 1973.

It also showed the food lines and political upheaval that resulted, the government says, from Allende's policies. In keeping with the Pinochet campaign, it warned a negative vote in the plebiscite threatens Chile's economic progress.

Three major opposition political parties also went to court Tuesday to demand the government give it equal time to reply to political speeches given by Pinochet, 72, on national television. Despite the nightly 15 minutes leading to the plebiscite, the opposition is prohibited from buying commercial time and leaders complain newscasts heavily favor the government.

The parties complained that Pinochet used national television Aug. 31, the day after his nomination by the ruling junta, for a political speech but they were not allowed to reply, a right laid out in Chilean law.

"This speech the whole country had to watch had one objective — to begin the campaign," the parties said in asking a court to order television stations to provide equal time.

Police also used water cannons and tear gas Tuesday to break up a student demonstration, arresting 42 persons. A student spokesman said the protesters set up barricades in several streets before police arrived and dispersed the protestors.

John's art collection for sale today

United Press International

LONDON — Rock star Elton John's exotic art deco collection drew nearly double auctioneers' predictions as the zany array of bejeweled spectacles, sequined costumes and platform shoes went on the auction block.

The collection of art nouveau and art deco John assembled over 20 years of frenzied buying is expected to fetch in the range of $1.7 million to $3 million at Sotheby's today, said spokeswoman Fiona James.

Cleaning up his cluttered house and image, John, 41, sold off a multimillion-dollar collection of glitz and glamour Tuesday, the first day of a four-day, 2,000-item extravaganza that featured the flamboyant stage costumes the rock star says he is "too old" to wear — among them a silver-sequined Statue of Liberty. The costume collection drew bids totaling $716,000, twice what was expected.

His jewelry collection, which one critic described as mixing the tastes of "a conservative duchess and a mid-'60s flapper," went for $1.27 million. Seibu, a Japanese department store, paid the top price for a piece of jewelry — more than $40,000 for an emerald, onyx and diamond lapel watch by Cartier, circa 1923, James said.

Sotheby's had expected to take in about $1.34 million for the day, and $5.1 million overall. Auctioneers were astounded by some of the prices. For example, a blue-denim cushion embroidered with the words "Man Across the Water" was valued at $170, but drew more than $5,000.

His Wurlitzer jukebox, named after his hit song "Capt. Fantastic," fetched nearly $30,000, and an English boot manufacturer paid $20,000 for the 5-foot-tall fiberglass boots John wore in the movie "Tommy." Personalized car license plates garnered $4,000, 10 times more than expected.

Today's items were to include a 20-year collection of art nouveau and art deco — sculpture, silver, toys, dolls, books, furniture, glass and ceramics.
