Food stamp violations

SANFORD — A Celery Avenue convenience store has been banned from accepting food stamps for three years by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. In a statement, DOA Food and Consumer Service agents report beer and coffee filters were sold for food stamps by personnel at the Lil' Champ Food Store, 1116 Celery Ave. Stamps can be used only to buy food, fruit or vegetable seed or plants. Last month, the former owners of a Park Avenue convenience store were banned for life from accepting food stamps.

SANFORD — Objections continue to be raised over a commission decision to pay health insurance until death for elected officials with 10 years service and who have reached age 62.

Petitions circulating against the measure in one district of the city are now being circulated citywide.

Several city employees also are diagruntled because coverage after retirement for a part-time elected official is better than for full-time employees who spend their entire working lives with the city. One employee, who asked not to be identified, told the Sanford Herald the requirement that full time employees must have 25 years service was too stringent in comparison with an elected official who must have 10. The employee also complained that full timers' health insurance would end when they reach age 65, while the elected officials' insurance would extend through life.

Official city documents explain the difference. For full-time city employees, it says, "An employee will have met the criteria for eligibility for continuation of citypaid health insurance at the time of retirement upon completion of 25 years service to the city."

It also specifies that "Upon at-□See Incurance, Page 10A

Employees of fast food restaurants, others in the service industry as well as some day laborers sometimes begin work at minimum wage with their pay advancing in small increments if they continue on the job.

Spokesmen for two day labor agencies in Sanford said the suggested increase would not impact their businesses significantly. One already pays workers above the minimum while the other said the company would adjust pay according the federal standards. Workers who cannot provide their own transportation to the job site generally receive minimum wage, while those with transporta-tion receive $4.75 an hour.

At the current minimum wage working a 40

TALLAHABSES — He complained about big government, fired a potato launcher at the governor's mansion and donned a raccon cost. He denoed to everything from rock to big band tunes and strummed a guitar with a country-western singer.

Gov. Lawton Chiles, the fristy, self-proclaimed "he-coon" who survived the closest gubernatorial contest in state history, acted like a kid as he started his second term last week.

But the inaugural bash is ever and the 64-year-old governor now has to get serious if he hopes to finish four decades in public service with deep cuts in government regulations and major changes in health care, education, welfare and state taxes. To success, Chiles must find a way to deal with a Legislature almost evenly divided between Republicans and Democrats. He has nothing to less politically in his final term as he tries to complete a reform agenda he started four years ago.

"In his defense, it is hard to do," said Tom Blade, chairman of the state GOP. "But he can do it this time without the burden of political liability. If he will do that, he'll find a receptive, eager group of Republicans to work with."

Shortly before the imagnization, the governor said he wanted "to fly a little longer" and hadn't thought about the end of the term he was just beginning.

"I think at some time you become a lame duck," he said. "I hope you won't make me one."

Chiles wants to releasil public confidence in state government by pursuing the same referms he touted four years ago when he first ran for governor. He believes Democrata have failed to convince possite that they're doing a better job than they have been given creat for.

PENSACOLA BEACH - Malcolm Shields and Steen Knudsen

PENSACOLA BEACH — Malcolm Shields and Steen Knudsen represent the yin and yang of bioremediation — the use of microbes to consume oil spills, toxic chemicals and other hazardous waste.

While Shields is building better "bugs," Knudsen is gaining a reputation as the Dr. Kevorkian of microbiology. Knudsen is developing a suicide gene to make bacteria self-destruct when their pollution feasts are finished.

The two scientists work is part of the cutting-edge research being conducted by the Center for Environmental Diagnostics and micromediation, a state-federal project that officials hope will turn the Florida Panhandle into the Silicon Valley of biotechnology. biotechnology.

The University of West Florida operates the center in collaboration with the Environmental Protection Agency.

"Our focus is multiple," Director K. Ranga Rao said in a recent interview. "We want to strengthen the research base of the area. That is the only way you can attract industries. It also allows us to train our students in these emerging technologies."

The center, which also studies the relationship between pollution and the health of marine life, has dual facilities at an EPA laboratory in this barrier island community and on the university's campus in nearby Pensacols.

It was created five years ago with a staff of seven and a $450,000 state appropriation. Since then, the center has expanded to 50 scientists, technicians and student-researchers and has attracted more than $6 million in grants from the EPA. Navy, Air Force, oil companies and other interests.

By Staff and Wire reports

A strong line of weather that had the Central Florida area under torando watch until late Saturday afternoon, apperently spared the Sanford area, with rains and winds subsiding by late in the morning Saturday. Other areas were not as fortunate.

A tornado cut a five-mile long swath through a rural northern Florida area in the predawn darkness today. damaging or destroying scores of trailer homes and injuring dozens of people.

One man who tried to take refuge in his car was critically injured when the tornado picked up his mobile home and slammed it down on his car, said Marion County Sher-tif's Office Lt. Joe Cobb.

There were reports of at least one other funnel in Central Florida as a aquall line pushed swiftly southward toward the tip of the Florida peninaula, the National Weather Service said, after initially reporting that two other twisters had been seen.

"The tornado just amashed or really damaged about 150 homes," Cobb said, speaking from a cell phone at the Bird Island mobile home park.

"This is really bad. A helicopter from the sheriff's department says the storm cut a swath about a quarter of a mile wide and about five miles long." he said. □Gee Weather, Page SA

This event was probably held in the bandshell as Peter Schaal relates that the construction of the bandshell and fountain was begun Dec. 1923; the completed cost was $67,000.

I well remember playing myself with the Seminole High School band at Easter sunrise services in this bandshell about 20 years later. It would always be a cold morning and the wind would whip around from the lake and blow our music away unless anchored down. Despite these factors, it was always an impressive service. While some are interviewing vampires, real life but stories remain a mystery to most of us.

The Orlando Science Center wants to clear up much of that mystery and needs community volunteers to help them do it.

The nocturnal mammals often battered image will be polished with the traveling exhibit "Masters of the Night — The True Story of Sats."

Volunteers are needed to perform a wide variety of tasks, none of which involve the actual handling of live creatures.

"We just need friendly, outgoing volunteers who are over 14 years of age," and Beth Isler, volunteer coordinator at the science center.

Homeowners stood their ground

Area homeowners Thursday packed the Sanford Commission chamber at City Hall and came away with a valuable lesson in government by the people.

Residents from the county's Loch Arbor subdivision for months had protested a proposal for a housing development near the Mayfair Country Club, in Sanford, right at their back door. Sanford Planning and Zoning officials had postponed the hearing for a plan that would have allowed more than 100 small homes on small lots to abut an established neighborhood of more expensive homes on Citizens railied one last time to fight what they saw as an encroachment on their lifestyle and safety. The high density housing development, they said, did not conform to surrounding development and would add traffic wees, congestion, water runoff and other problems associated with an influx of a many people. Residents feared their property values would decline rapidly near a neighborhood where homes would sell for half as much as their own.

Desite flaring tempers and accusations slung over the weeks before the item reappeared on the P&Z agenda Thursday: despite a room so hot sweat trickled down the collective backs of the crowd, that crowd hung in there — and prevailed.

Whenever the wheels of bureaucracy turn quietly, with no hub of citizens concerned encuen to had the the once in awhile, government officials will make all the de-Cisions.

This group of citizens should be proud. With the passion of conviction for a cause, they stood up and pled for what they felt vould be best for their neighborhood.

Residents kicked some tires Thursday. Good for them.

True spirit

The true Christmas spirit was felt in Sanford on Dec. 25, 1994. On that day, the Sanford Landing Restaurant at the Marina Motel came to the rescue of 10 homebound senior citizens.

These seniors normally receive food from the Seminole County Better Living for Seniors Meals on Wheels program. This year over 50 people volunteered to help deliver meals on Christmas Day.

Unfortunately, the caterer was 10 meals short. After calls to three different area restaurants failed to produce help. Better Living for Seniors turned to Sanford Landing Restaurant. They happily supplied delicious dinners and even refused payment.

Hetter Living for Seniors is grateful to all of the volunteers who delivered meals and to the staff at Sanford Landing Restaurant for their generosity and dedication in helping the Seminole County seniors who were homebound, alone and unable to cook for themselves.

What if these men had lived?

Jr.'s birthday January 16. It has been 26 years since his assassination. Remembering that era in American history brings to mind three of his contemporaries who were also assassinated. They were: President John Pitzgerald Kennedy, Sen. Robert Francis Kennedy and Malcoli X.

Chronologically, President Kennedy died Nov. 22, 1963 in Dallas, Texas while touring to unite the Texas Democrats for his re-election bid. Malcolm X whose given name was Malcolm Little died Feb. 21, 1965 in New York during a rally in Harlem. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. died in Memphis, Tenn., April 4, 1968 while there to support striking city sanitation workers. Sen. Robert F. Kennedy died June 6, 1968 in Los Angeles, Calif., campaigning for the presidency.

The appealing chariematic leadership these four men brought to this nation is recorded for posterity. Their deaths left a leadership vacuum in this country.

Pres. Kennedy's inaugural speech challenged Americans to "not ask what their country could do for them, but rather what they could do for their country." It was the age of Camelot when Americans felt a deep sense of affection for the president and his young family.

Rev. Martin Luther King has been called the "Black Moses" because of the changes that the Civil Rights Movement brought. Americans of all creeds and colors were drawn to this eloquent speaker who affirmed his belief in God and the justness of his cause. He preached love and non-violent civil disobedience. He quoted from Micah - "What does the Lord require of you but to do justice and to love kindness and to walk humbly with your God."

Prior to Dr. Martin Luther King and the Civil Rights Movement. African Americans endured a host of indignities to their personhood, simply because of their color. African Americans were excluded from hotels, restaurants, and being served at lunch counters. There were separate drinking fountains and bathrooms marked "Black or Colored." These were the outward signs of prejudice that existed earlier. Laws were passed to negate this form of prejudice, however. more subtle forms of prepudice require a change

During the height of the Civil rughts seovement it appeared that most Americans understood that African Americans were in search of equal opportunity. Particularly as it related to civil rights, education and jobs.

President Kennedy. Dr. Martin Luther King. Sen. Kennedy and Malcolm X were a source of the minorities and severe.

hope for the poor, for minorities and average citizens who cherished the belief that their lives could be better.

There is concurrence that the death of these four men had a tremendous impact on the Civil Rights Movement in this land. It seemed like an tronic coincidence that these electrifying unity. ing leaders would all be seemestated; one cannot but wonder if it was just coincidence.

but wonder if it was just coincidence.

What would America be like today if they had lived? If Robert F. Kennedy had followed his brother into the White House after John F. Kennedy's second term was concluded. If Dr. Martin Luther King had devoted his energies to advocating better jobs and fairer wastes for those at the bottom of the work spectrum. If Malcolm X (who had changed dramatically to espouse brotherhood after his visit abroad) had appeared before the United Nations to charats his country. before the United Nations to charge his country with genocide against African Americans? Would there be so much hate and divisiveness in this nation? Would incendiary rhetoric be at the forefront of our culture? Would violence and murder be so much a part of our daily existence?

Absolutely accurate predictions

The physic currents are flowing, the hangover has abated and the new year of 1996 anno Domini is upon us all. We've all made our resolutions, about two-thirds of you have aiready broken them (don't worry, most of the rest of us will shortly follow), and it's now time to completely toss out the old and ring in the year with a whole batch of pointedly perfect predictions concerning what will have occurred by the time we reach this point in 1996.

I undertake the above task for two reasons basically: First, as the cosmic forces have chosen me to be their vessel of conducted wisdom to those less enlightened, and two: because I'm too tired to have any better ideas. Accordingly, let's get our expressions of awe upon our faces: let's be prepared to be unbelievably amazed, and let's ah, begin.

1) In the greater territory of Sanford, and more specifically in those few miles contiguous with Lake Monroe, there will be a major outbreak of blind mosquitos in 1995! What? You don't think that amazing revelation is all that surprising? You say it happens every year, at least once in the summer? Well, had the greater town council opted to take up my suggestion last summer to not only solve their annual infestations and the area unemployment by opening up a chocolate covered mosquito industry here; why then there would be no infestation of the little ""!%$" this summer, now would there! And besides ... this is my column, and I will decide what is amazing or not ... get over yourselves.

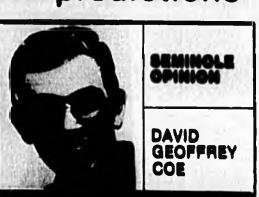

2) The American government will flounder in a sea of unpassed legislation due to an inability of the respective parties and individuals involved to seek and subsequently obtain common ground. In other words, I predict that. our new Republican Congress will have no more luck trying to get things past a Democratic president, than the Democrats did trying to get something past a Republican one.

3) Captain Kirk will rise once more in "Star

Trek" (what is it now, 27 or 28?) The movie about the series about the resurrected series. Heck, somebody has to fund those toupees. ...

4) There will be at least one, and possibly a multitude more of petty dictators and tyrants around the world in 1995, who, for the greater good of their people, will manage to starve, torture and/or murder a large number of their loyal constitutents before they can be stopped or bought off. In 1994, we had Somalia, Bosnia, Kritres, and of course the usual troubles in Central and South America. For 1995, we've already got the Russians trying to prove their old muscle still exists; the Koreans are a total unknown, so who knows what the possibilities are for the upcoming killing season. Stay tuned. ...

5) Singing star Cher will somehow manage to find some area on her body hitherto not uncovered in one of her previous concert tours, and uncover it. No. I'm not complaining ... for a woman of her age to look that good: I mean, what can one say....

6) More people will be murdered for the sake of saving the unborn than anyone can possibly believe. Four in 1994, who knows how many so-called "God-fearing" right-to-lifers will take another's life in their fanatic quest to prevent abortions. Math was never my strong suit in school, but doesn't (-)1 + 1 equals 07

7) Oille North, Ross Perot, and Michael Dukakia have not made their final political bows as yet, and we will hear from them again during the upcoming year. But then again, everybody enjoys a few laughs ... hey! I picked one from each of the major parties didn't !? You want I should maybe throw in that head of the Libertarian party for an even set?

8) The number of people finding themselves slipping below the poverty level due to company closings, lay-offs, and just the cost of living will increase substantially in the next year, this despite the fact that the powers that he will continue to call a part-time job at a fast food outlet a sign of conversion ways. food outlet a sign of economic recovery for the head of a family of four. Hey, I never expect to get out of debt in my lifetime. ...

9) My boss and fellow staffers will unanimously concur on running this unread column at least two, and perhaps three times per week from now on. What do you mean that might raise my readership to a grand total of four??? Well I've taken enough abuse that's for darned sure! You can just accept nine nebulous predictions instead of 12 tremendous ones! The New York Times won't be laying off forever you know ... why just the other day. the L.A. Times left a message on my machine

Editor's note: Not to worry folks. He'll be back next week. (I will not) scratch that. Shhhh.

Temperamental artists and all that, ha, ha ... (quick, get his medication). Happy New Year to you all!

YMCA activities

There is an announcement of the resignation of Carl D. Wolfe as secretary of the Seminole County YMCA by H.C. DuBose, president.

Mr. Wolfe had begun the YMCA in Seminole County three years earlier and under his direction the organisation had carried on an extensive work. He had led in forming more boys clube than any other YMCA in the state. He had also organised the diamond ball league which was continuing to function with considerable success.

At the same time, it was announced that Herman Morris, assistant secretary, would be appointed to succeed Mr. Wolfe.

Another article, probably written before the above, tells of the organization of the YMCA Amateur Diamond Ball Associa-tion. They held their first meet-ing in the First National bank building and Herman Morris was elected president. Other officers elected were H.R. Stevens, vice-president: E.H. Cullum, sec-retary-treasurer: J.M. Stinecipher, reporter, and E.H. Cullum, official scorekeeper. Selected to draft the constitution and by-laws were E.H. Cullum, R.A. Cobb. Gus Schmah, and Ray Fox.

it was decided to play games on Monday and Thursday evenings on the grounds located between the Municipal Zoo and the American Legion Hut. This would be immediately to the west of the present City Hall as it stands on the former soo site. There would be no admission charge and the public was cordially invited.

Following this, there are several accounts of various diamond ball games during the year written by my dad as reporter. In reading through these, I find that there were eight teams composed of many pro-minent young men probably in their 20s and 30s. I will give you a roster of each team, using only last names as that's what is lieted. The twister touched down first at the town of Bummerfield. about 20 miles south of Ocale. It damaged or destroyed several trailer homes and stores and other houses in the crossroads community of about 500 people at 5:45 a.m., Cobb said.

Mental health commissioner fired

NEW YORK - Workers could have - and should have found the patient who escaped from a psychiatric institution and allegedly pushed a woman to her death in the subway, the state's top mental health official says.

But they had no idea he had a criminal record, so they didn't even try to locate him.

What we now know is that he has a terrible rap sheet," William Morris, acting commissioner of the Office of Mental Health, said Friday.

Reuben Harris, 42, is charged with killing 63-year-old 500n 5hin at the Herald Square subway station on Wednesday, three weeks after he escaped from the Manhattan Psychiatric Center on Ward's Island.

The New York Times reported Saturday that Harris had been classified as violent or even homicidal by state psychiatrists less than a year ago when he was removed from a city shelter and put into a state psychistric hospital.

Meanwhile, Gov. George Pataki on Friday fired Bruce Feig.
the state Office of Mental Health's executive deputy commissioner, at least in part because of the Harris case.

Welfare reform

WARHINGTON - Congressional Republican leaders are moving well beyond their original welfare reform plan with a proposal to collapse more than 300 federal assistance programs and hand the money to the states with few strings attached.

GOP leaders went over the plan during a daylong meeting with Republican governors Friday.

Meanwhile, President Clinton and Democratic leaders met at the White House for their first strategy sessions since the Republicans took control of Congress. They focused on tactics for opposing a balanced-budget amendment, deciding to attack the Republicans for failing to put forward specific spending cuts or tax increases to reduce the deficit.

The GOP governors were unabashedly enthusiastic about the possibility of a streamlined welfare system that would give them have amounts of manner and new freedom to decide how

Victimo' families will attend trisi

LOS ANGELES - Relatives of Nicole Brown Simpson and Ronald Goldman say they intend to be in the courtroom when O.J. Simpson's trial begins, despite defense lawyers' attempts to keep them out.

'It would seem unbelievably outrageous to ... have any thought about excluding any family member of either family from the court. We have perhaps more right than anyone to be present," Goldmen's father, Fred, told KCAL-TV.

Ms. Simpson's father, Louis Brown, said that his family, too, plane to attend the trial. One or more family members also plan to attend a hearing next week on whether prosecutors can introduce allegations that Simpson beat his wife. Simpson's lawyers want to bar the victime' relatives from the courtroom in case any of them are called to testify. Defense lawyer Johnnie L. Cochran Jr. said allowing relatives to listen to other testimony may alter their own recollections on the witness stand.

Deputy District Attorney Christopher Darden said prosecutors will "fight that tooth and nail."

Meanwhile, prosecutors are trying to get records from a battered women's shelter where Ma. Simpson may have sought help.

Bimpson is charged with the June 12th slashing deaths of Me. Bimpson and Coldman outside her condeminsum.

Protecting species' habitat

WARHINGTON - in a pivotal environmental case, the Supreme Court will decide whether the government can continue using the Endangered Species Act to protect species'

The justices voted Friday to review a federal appeals court's sling that said the 1975 lew does not prohibit modifying an red species' habitat, even if the changes would injure the protected species.

The appeals court ruling last March was hailed as one of the timber industry's greatest legal victories and called by environmentalists a grave threat to the federal protection of species such as the spotted owl.

Buellen Lowry, a lawyer for the Sierra Club Legal Defense Fund, said the appeals court ruling under review attacked "one of the most important elements of species protection — the habitat on which they depend."

Man decapitated by runaway elevator

NEW YORK — A man was decapitated by a runaway elevator as he tried to help his frightened fellow passengers, including a pregnant woman, to eafety.

Police said James Chenault was straddling the doorway and nesisting a passenger onto the second floor when the elevator suddenly shot up, its doors still open.

His head — with stereo headphones still attached — tumbled into the elevator with the three remaining passengers, police said. His body fell about 20 feet down the elevator shaft. Chenault, a 64-year-old welfare clerk who had worked for the city since 1974, had boarded the elevator Friday with four other people at the Kingsbridge Welfare Center in the Bronx borough.

The elevator shot up to the second floor "at an unusually high" speed, said police Lt. Ray Ferrari.

The doors opened and Chenault began helping others off.

One made it out before the elevator shot up again. A mechanic apparently was working on the bank of six elevators, but it wasn't immediately known whether the elevator where the accident occurred was under repair, said Karen Calhoun, spokeswoman for the city Human Resources

Administration. That elevator passed an inspection on Nov. 1. Officials closed the welfare office for the rest of the day.

HIV most contagious in early stages

DETROIT - The AIDS virus may be most contagious when people are least likely to know they're infected, researchers

Researchers said Friday that the virus may be up to 1,000 times more contagious during the first two months — when routine AIDS tests are unable to tell whether people are infected. "The danger is that a person who tests negative and is very active sexually may be more dangerous than someone who has tested positive," said Carl S. Simon, a University of Michigan researcher. Among homosexual males, the chances of infecting a partner during unprotected sex in the initial 80 days may be as high as three in 10, the researchers said.

"It means that if you're trying to evaluate a partner for how risky it is to have sex, it is not just how many partners, but also how recently," said James S. Koopman, a University of Michigan epidemiologist.

Routine AIDS tests look for presence of antibodies the body has made to defend against the AIDS virus. The antibodies don't immediately appear. People infected with HIV, the AIDS virus, can be healthy and live for years before the virus begins reproducing and attacks the body's immune system.

Understanding fibromyalgia Syndrome could be a real pain in the neck

By RESIDE KEITH Herald Correspondent

Dottie Anthony, of Sanford. keeps herself well informed when it comes to fibromyalgia. She's had to deal with this disorder for the past 21/2 years

At the onset of Anthony's symptoms she was under the care of her family doctor, Jesse Johnson, M.D., in Lake Mary. "I was having a lot of pain in the back of my shoulders and it would travel up into the back of my head," said Anthony. She made several visits to her doctor over a period of 51/2 months, and Dr. Johnson finally diagnosed fibromylagia. "It (the syndrome) has been settled in one area now for a while. It completely covers the front of my body and goes to my jaw line," she said.

If your physician determined that you had fibromyalgia, your first question most likely would "what is fibromyalgia?". According to the Arthritis Foundation and the American College of Rheumatology, the answer is that fibromyalgia syndrome is a common form of generalised muscular pain and fatigue. The term means pain in muscles and the fibrous connective tissues called tendons and ligaments. It is called a "syndrome" because it is a set of physician finds in an examination and symptoms being what a patient reports to the physician. Although the general physical examination is usually normal. and individuals may look well, a careful examination of their muscles will demonstrate very tender areas at specific locations. The presence and pattern of these characteristic "tender points" separates fibromyalgia from other conditions.

Fibromyalgia is especially confusing and often misun-derstood because almost all of its symptoms are also common in other conditions. In addition, it does not have a known cause.

The term, "fibromyalgia" has largely replaced the term "fibrositis." which was once used to describe the syndrome. The "itis" suffix means "in-flammation" a body process that can result in pain, swelling. warmth, redness and stiffness. Early reports of this condition described inflammation in muscles. However, during the past 50 years investigators have proven that inflammation is not a significant part of fibromyalgia.

Fibromyalgia is a form of "soft tissue of muscular rheumatism" rather that "arthritis of the joint." The word "rheumatism" refers to pain and stiffness associated with arthritis and related signs and symptoms that occur disorders of the joints, muscles together, a sign being what a and bones. Fibromyalgia mainly affects muscles and their attachments to bones. Therefore, although fibromyalgia might feel like a joint disease, it is not a true form of arthritis and does not cause deformities of the

Unfortunately, because certain syndromes lack physical and laboratory findings (signs), but depend mostly on a person's report of complaints and feelings (symptoms), these symptoms are often viewed as not being real or important. In the past, very type of negative thinking.

Over the past 10 years, however, fibromyalgia has been better defined through studies that have established guides for tta diagnosis. These studies have shown that certain complaints. such as generalised muscular pain and tender points, are present in people with fibromysigis and not commonly present in healthy people or people with rheumatic condi-tions. These diagnostic features separate fibromyalgia from other types of conditions that have chronic muscle and bone pain.

Pain is the most prominent symptom of fibromyalgia. It is generally left all over, although it may start in one region, such as the neck and shoulders, and seems to spread over a period of time. Fibromyalgia pain has been described in a variety of ways including sore, burning, radiating, gnawing attiff and spling according to Day 1 radiating, gnawing stiff and sching, according to Don L. Coldenberg, M.D. with the Arthritis Foundation. He goes on to say that the pain often varies according to the time of the day, activity level, weather, sleep patterns and stress. Most people with Rheemynlate any that same with fibromyalgia say that some degree of pain is always present. They sense that the pain is mainly in their muscles and often note the syndrome feels like a persistent flu. Bome sufferers find the pain quits severe.

Chinese herbs being tested as wart remover

By A.J. HOCTETLES Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA - From more than 200 wooden drawers filled with roots, seeds and herbs, Cindy Xu prepares a mixture that has rid the Chinese of warts for centuries but is mostly unknown in the West.

Xu. an herbalist and a physician who trained in Canton, is joining with an Emory University immunologist to test whether her folklore remedy works as well as her patients believe.

The yearlong experiment. funded by the new Office of Alternative Medicine at the National institutes of Health, will compare Xu's $30 soaking treatment against a placebo store-bought Lipton tea bags.

All 50 patients will first receive the conventional Western therapy, liquid nitrogen, and then soak their affected hands in either Xu's treatment or the tea. Each month, a dermatologist will monitor their progress.

'One of my medical school teachers once told me not to ask "Why?" of something - it just works," said Xu, who runs an herbal store with an examining room in the back in a suburban shopping strip. But she's bucking that philosophy to work with Linda Gooding to learn why and how well her cure works - and to show that her culture has something to offer Western from persistent warts. "When Jon was about 12, I took him to the dermatologist seven different times to treat the warts on his hands," she said. "Even freezing the lesions with liquid nitrogen didn't prevent them from recurring. I finally decided to try an herbalist.

"Jon ended up soaking just one hand in the mixture of boiled herbs. Interestingly, the warts on that hand didn't return but the ones on the unsoaked hand did.'

Two years later, Jon has remained mostly free of the warts that once plagued him.

As many as 10 percent of children need a doctor's treatment for warts, which are caused by the human papilloma virus. In children, they usually disappear spontaneously. Fewer adults suffer from warts but they can be even more stubborn than in children, Gooding said.

For some, the rounded, raised lumps of skin are very difficult to treat. Women with genital warts and recipients of organ transplants are especially prone to extensive warts that resist

Caught in the communications 'Net

Herald SHIP Patrolman

The information Superhighway. The Internet. World Wide Web. Gopher. Archie. FTP.

There has been a lot written about this stuff. Probably too much. Much of it has been about wonderful it all is, what it will do for you and the like. And it's true. There are amazing things out there on the 'Net. You'll find information and fun and communications spanning the globe. A USENET newsgroup _ which we'll explain later _ may have messages posted from people in India and indiana. An IRC channel _ which we'll also explain __ may have people "chatting" with each other from their college dormitory rooms in New York or Sydney. Australia. Clicking on a word in a World Wide Web page in Chicago may bring up another page in London, complete with photographs and sounds.

That's the way of the 'Net: connections.

Unfortunately, as with all things desired, gettin' to the 'Net is not real easy. You won't read much about that. There are some software packages for PCs and Macintoshes that simplify the process, but all of these connections require some tinkering. Piret you need a computer (which should go without saying if you're reading this column! and a modem. Next, you'll need three (count 'em). three software programs, all working seamlessly together (the BIO rub.) Finally, you'll need an access provider. Except for the computer, monthly charges for an access provider may be your only expense because there's plenty of freeware" software available on the 'Net. For an access provider. I use CyberGate, a copy little company in Deerfield Beach, Fia. which has a dial-up connection in Sanford. Imagine, Sanford as a "gateway" to the Internet! Go figure. Anyway, CyberGate charges $20 a month for 50 hour's access. That's more than a $100 less than a major on-line service such as Compuserve or America Online will expect for similar usage. CyberGate also offers all the software you need to get connected to the 'Net. Free.

Useless, but interesting information...

Understanding the creation of the internet is probably the best way to understand it at all. Internet, by the way, to a catchall phrase that takes in all those funny words at the beginning of the column and umpteen other computer communication things. The Internet formally began in 1969 as a TOP SECRET project of the U.S. Department of Defense (what didn't start that way?) Folks at a branch of Defense, the Advanced Research Projects Agency. decided they wanted to figure out a way so that major military, university and research computers could be linked together in a way that could withstand partial destruction by NUCLEAR ATTACKS. The theory was that if all the computers were linked by a web of connections, a bomb could take out one or more computers but the system as a whole will survive. This led to the creation of ARPANET (don't you just love milspeak!) The first ARPANET connected only four computers. By the time it was revealed publicly in 1972, 50 computers were linked together. And the thing kept growing, First ARPANET was separated into non-military and military (MILNET) groups. Dur-ing the 1980, several privatelycreated networks were begun, including USENET, BITNET and so on. ARPANET was dispantled in the early 1990s and most of the other NETs were melded together in what to generally known as the internet, somewhat overseen by the National Science Foundation. Estimates of the size now range from 2 million to 20 million. No one really knows.

Nothing in life is easy...

Unfortunately, because all these NETs were created independently of each other, many of them exist today but with their own eccentricities. Many still use the language of UNIX, found mostly on Big Ol Computers at universities and corporations. Most of these commands are too complicated to go into in one dose, but here's a quickie introduction to the different kinds of things out there:

E-mail - probably the most common use of the interset. Just as it sounds, e-mail is a way to send messages to anyone as long as you know their address. Instead of grumpy people delivering your messages to a box in front of your home days after they were mailed, e-mail allows cold, heartless computers to sing them from one computer to another in a matter of minutes or even seconds. Really astute e-mailers know how to use this method to send not only messages, but programs to each other. My e-mail address is markbar@gate.net and markbar@delphi.com. Breaking it down, "markbar" is me and gate.net" and "delphi.com" are the addresses where I can be reached.

PTP - or "file transfer protocol." This is the main workhorse of the 'Net. As long as you know the location of a computer, such as gateboopes dec.com, you can 'Ar there and download files. The files may contain anything from recipes, to photographs of an asteroid (really exciting stuff), to programs you can use on your computer. FTP uses UNIX commands, so you have to type in things like open and ed. Because of the culciness of the culciness. of the quickness of 'Net connections, you can download these files in a matter of a few minutes. Logging on to an fip "server," usually requires typing "anonymous" then your e-mail address as a Gopher - one of those silly-sounding Net words. Actually, it's a file hunter which places one laver of comfort between you and UNIX. With it, you "gopher" to a location and look at directories of files to download into your computer. With Clopher, you have even more complicated things to type in, such as m or + to do things. There are Windows and Macintosh programs available ecary stuff. Archie - another goofy name. Actually, Archie is just a fancier version of Copher. With it, you type in something like prog film-flom and Archie will look for every file named "filmflem." That is, on every file stor-age computer in the world! These searches can take several min-utes, then result with a list of hundrede of files.

that spare you from most of the Verenice - yet another wacky search variation on Copher. The name stands for "Very Easy Rodent-Oriented Net-wide Index to Computerised Archives." So there!

IRC - "Internet Relay Chat." IRC - "internet restry Char."
IRC to very similar to "chat" connections on the on-line subscription services. By typing #whesho, you'll get connected to every other computer user actively connected computer user actively connected. to that location. Then, every word you type into your computer is read instantly by everyone else. It allows apontaneous, instant communication.

NBTwork," one of the biggles. And one of the oldest "Net services. This is a collection, at last count over 5.000, special interest groupe. Participants poet mes-sages on the electronic bulletin boards which are read by every-one who "subscribes" to them. Topics range from self-help groupe of every problem imaginable. a Dave Barry fan club (alt.fin.deve_berry, a favorite of mine). Berney the Dinosaur hate club (alt.berney.discessadis.

and a zillion other topics: professional, scientific, serious or silly. There are also areas with "hardcore" adult images, but in a coded format requiring technically-astute deciphering. There is no cen-sorship in USENET groups and participants are hard-core freespeachers.

World Wide Web - sh. I saved the best for last. Since 1969, there has been a new revolution in case of using the Net. Using "browser" programs such as Moseic and its variations. WWW surfers view magazine-like pages on their acreens. For example, calling up the "home page" of the White House (www.whitehouse.gov) produces a formal-looking "Welcome" page complete with a full-color photograph of the First Family's home turf. On the page, you'll see vari-ous highlighted words. Clicking on those words will call up another page, such as the Clinton's inaugural day. You can even hear a speech by President Clinton or Vice President Al Gore. You can even leave a message about what you think of 'em.

The Web ties can be even greater. Clicking on a word in a page may take you to a page in the same computer. It may take you to a page located in a computer thousands of miles away. There are some 5,000 page locations, according to information from CERN, The European Laboratory for Particle Physics, the inventors of WWW. There are pages for most universities and major corporations. There is even a page called The Capt. James 7. Mirk Sing-a-long Page. Here, you can hear examples of William Shatner's almost non-existent vocal shills on his 1968 recording. There are a variety of Web searchers to help you find all this stuff. including something called the World Wide was Worm. Most of these on-line searchers permit you to type in a word or phrase, then ett back while it finds every reference to it.

As I promised, this was a very cureory introduction to the 'Net. in future weeks, we'll go into a little more detail about accessing and these services. Truly the best way to begin to dig in is to get a good reference book. Below,

I've listed several that I've found very useful. If all this scares, but intrigues you, then try a connection to the on-line service Delphi. You won't be able to see the graphic aspects of the Web, but you'll be able to explore just about every other aspect of the 'Net. Delphi is cheen, too. It costs about $25 a month for 20 hours access time. All you need to a terminal program, the one which comes with Windows and Macintosh will do fine. Have your modem diel 1-800-365-4636 for eign-up infor-

Stewart is a psychic. Before you conjure up images of the aging gypsy with a crystal ball or the telepathic telephonic informercialists you see on late, late night TV, think again.

Though flamboyant, in fringed leather jackets and Elvis-like belt buckles, Stewart remains down-to-earth.

"I chose to use this talent without making a big deal out of it," Stewart said.

In a recent demonstration in the Sanford Herald newsroom, Stewart took anonymously presented objects from a bevy of skeptical reporters.

Placing the rings, lipsticks and watches to his forehead one at a time, he spoke, trancelike, of the personality traits of the owners of those objects. He spoke impressionistically about things that might be in the future for each.

"Now remember what I say," he warned before beginning. "I don't have any idea what I have sald after I'm done.'

Stewart said he first became aware of his psychic abilities in 1973 following intestinal bypass surgery in order to cure severe

Shells rain down on Grozny

GROZNY, Russia - Chechen rebels, some wearing green headbands inscribed with an oath of martyrdom, fought furiously Saturday under a hailstorm of shells and killed a top Russian commander.

But some fighters clearly were growing nervous as Russia intensified its offensive on the breakaway republic.

They ran furtively through the deserted streets of the mud-spattered capital, far more cautious than in previous days when they strolled with confidence past bodies and charred

Battles raged around the city's railway station and in villages west of Grozny, where Russian ground forces reportedly mounting new attacks.

President Boris Yeltain sent tens of thousands of troops into Chechnya, a mostly Muslim region of 1.2 million people, on Dec. 11 to quell its independence drive and set an example for other independence-minded regions.

The Russian government announced Saturday that its troops had killed about 2,500 Chechen fighters in the monthlong offensive. Russian military officials put the Russian death toll 1 256 as of Friday.

Strong earthquake rocks northern Japan

TOKYO - A powerful earthquake with a preliminary 6.9 magnitude shook northern Japan on Saturday and at least 29 people were injured, most by falling objects or small fires.

Buildings rattled and shook violently during the 7:38 a.m. quake, and eight major train lines in the region were brought to a halt, railway officials said. At least eight buildings were damaged in Aomori state, about 360 miles northeast of Tokyo. Four hours later, an aftershock with a preliminary magnitude of 6.2 joited the region, but no injuries or damage

Another quake, with a preliminary magnitude of 5.2, hit 60 miles north of Tokyo at 9:34 p.m., shaking the capital region.

One child was injured. The northern quakes were centered 20 miles below the ocean floor about 370 miles northeast of Tokyo, the Central Meteorological Agency reported. The quake could be felt on both the main island of Honahu and the northern island of Hokkeido.

There were 28 injuries in Aomori prefecture and one in nearby Iwate prefecture, according to police.

News reports showed parked cars showered with concrete dislodged from a nearby building. Underground pipes burst. sending water gurgling onto streets through cracked asphalt.

Residents along 750 miles of Japan's Pacific coast were warned about tsunamis, or giant waves caused by undersea earthquakes. The warning was canceled about an hour after the first quake.

An earthquake with a magnitude of 7 is capable of causing widespread damage.

The evening quake was strong enough to swing hanging lamps and topple vases in the cities of Nikko and Mito, about 75 miles north of Tokyo. In nearby Imaichi city, a boy in second grade was hospitalized after being hit in the face by falling debris, the NHK public television network said.

The extent of his injuries was not immediately clear.

China choking in Industrial waste BELJING -- Five of the world's 10 most polluted cities are in China, almost one-third of the country is afflicted with acid rain, and half of its major rivers are contaminated, an official report said. The official China Daily quoted National Environmental Protection Agency director, Xie Zhenhua, as saying the agency was considering using taxes and fines to battle the country's pollution problem.

China's phenomenal economic growth in recent years has come at the expense of the environment. All across the country, new factories are spewing pollutants into the air and Enforcement of environmental laws is lax. Experts say many factories turn waste treatment systems on only when government inspectors visit.

Xie said new air and water pollution control laws are expected to be passed this spring, and his agency will revise its environmental protection laws.

He said Beljing, Shenyang, Xi'an, Shanghai and Canton are among the world's 10 worst cities for air pollution.

SANFORD — Many may remember the little horse pulling a small carriage in the 1994 Sanford Christmas parade. Oh's and ah's came from up and down the path of the parade as she pranced by with honor. The miniature norse, Angel's Touch of Gold, won a trophy for specialty class 1994 in the San-ford Christmas parade for a miniature-drawn carriage by the littlest reindeer.

Honor is exactly what her owners, Pred and LeAnn Stewart of Rio Bella Farme in Sanford and her trainer, Ann Dwyer, have been given. The Stewarts are very fond of their many miniature horses which are as they put it, "bred with love and pride," and have resided there for two years now. Stewart spoke of their initial interest in these little bundles. "One day my wife told me she wanted a horse as a pet," he said. "Now we have 15. Some-times she brings them through the house and feeds them cariots.

Stewart told of the heritage of these beautiful animals." In the 16th century they were bred for royalty," he said. "Later they were used in the coal mines in England. Still later in Kentucky and West Virginia in the '50a they were also used. They were replaced though by motorised cars that pulled the coals. Then they were no longer needed."

He further elaborated about the coloring and breeding. "Some of the miniature horses have Palomino colors, Apalooss or Arabian coloring. Some have a draft horse or quarter horse look but all miniature horses are the same breed. They have been in Argentina since 1860 at an exclusive farm there."

For those considering purchase of a miniature horse, Stewart said the price can be as Stewart said the price can be as low as $500 for a pet and as high as $5,500 to $6,000 for a show horse and even up to a $10,000 price tag for seasoned show horses. He confirmed that the feed for miniature horses to

Until a more detailed report is complete. DEP officials won't be able to determine where in the state the deaths occurred. Carcasses drift, so their discovery isn't always where they were mortally injured, said Frohlich.

Apparently, few if any of the deaths occurred in the herd which frequents Blue Springs State Park. Danny Paul, park superintendent. said 64 manatees were counted Friday morning, only two less than their full contingent. Paul said the missing two may have taken refuge elsewhere as water temperatures dropped.

The cause and significance of the death-rate jump is hard to determine, said Frohlich. Although the state successfully fended off opposition from Volusia County and others last year to establish manatee protection sones throughout the state, boat-related deaths increased.

Frohlich said increased enforcement, not additional regulations, may be the key to reducing man-caused manatee deaths.

"We've done a lot of rule-making in the last several years," he said. "I don't think more regulations on the books is the answer."

The number of protection-zone citations issued last year couldn't be determined Friday. One Florida Marine Patrol biologist commented there were 'squeellions" of the citations

A rainy year may account for increased waterway gate openings and closings, resulting in increased deaths, Frohlich said. DEP scientists have tested manatee-proof floodgates with anti-closing sensors similar to those found on elevator doors and automatic garage doors. Those tests have not been fully successful, Frohlich said.

The impact of the increased deaths is also unknown. Frohlich said.

Manatee experts estimates there are about 2,000 "sea cows" in Florida waters, but no really knows exactly how many. As a result, the manatee birth rate can't be accurately measured, he said.

"Some scientists will argue we're already at the top end of what is sustainable," said Frohlich. "Others don't think we're quite there yet."

As the commission-approve ordinance now specifies for elected officials, the city-paid health insurance, for commissioners with 10 years of service and having reached 62 years of age, will be for the rest of the commissioners' lives.

In the final minutes of a City Commission meeting on Dec. 20. City Commissioner Lon Howell proposed that continuing health insurance for elected officials be granted for life.

The brief discussion left re-cently defeated commissioner, A.A. MacClanahan, immediately eligible for the coverage. Mayor Bettye Smith and commission-ers Whitey Echstein and Bob Thomas have served 10 years or more and would also be eligible at age 62. To date, Howell has served six years as a commissioner. Smith and Eckstein voted against the measure. Howell, McClanahan and Thom-as voted for it. McClanahan has since been replaced on the commission by Commissioner Kerry Lyons, who has strongly expressed disapproval for the measure.

City Manager Bill Simmons commented, "As far as I have to be concerned, this is not an official policy, and it is in place, until someone (the commission) changes it."

He said the measure will not have to be brought back for any additional discussion and/or vote by the commission unless they request it to be done.

Simmons said when Howell made his original motion, there were some points which needed clarification. "But those were brought out during the reorganisation meeting on Jan.

3," he said, "and it was made clear that the city-paid insurance plan, which we have actually had in place for about three years, will be extended."

In a recent letter to the editor submitted to the Sanford Herald, Robert Stump, who is circulating one of the petitions, said the granting of health insurance to elected officials was similar to playing Santa Claus.

Former Sanford Mayor and Commissioner J. Denver Cordell has also voiced his objections to the move, saying he could not see why the city would continue to pay for health insurance for elected officials after they finished their service.

There is still no indication as to when the petitions will be presented to the commission.

Senior Circuit Court Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr. presided over the penalty phase of the case and after weighing the facts sentenced Cofield to life in prison rather than imposing the death penalty.

Cofield pleaded guilty to murder and armed robbery in the May 1, 1988 death of Yu. The restaurateur's body was discovered by his sister who went to the business after she was unable to reach him by telephone. He had been stabbed about 27 times and the cash drawer was missing.

Coffeld's defense team contended another man named "Roy" actually stabbed Yu and the defendant attempted to stop the attack. Although two men were seen running from Mr. Ca the night of the killing, Cofield was unable to give police any additional information to help substantiate his claim that although he was present, he was not the actual murderer. A second suspect was never found. The defense contended Cofield's palm print found on the murder weapon was made when "Roy" handed him the knife after the stabbing.

ORANGE PARK - For any Seminole County high school team with aspirations of claiming a state championship, the road to the crown goes north through Daval County and the Panhandles.

In girls' soccer, that road goes through Orange Park, home of the undefeated and No. 1-ranked Raiders.

At least, they were undefeated and ranked No. Luntil the Lake Brantley Patriots hit town Friday

The extremely young Patriots of Coach John Schaefer bulled their way into the class of the state's elite teams Friday night as they handed top-ranked Orange Park its first loss of the season, 3-0, at Orange Park High School.

Lake Brantley (14-2) has only two seniors and three juntors on its 18-player roster.

Freshman Ginger Sellick opened the scoring for Lake Brantley at 14:28 of the first half. Sentor Kim Shrum added two more goals before intermission, one on an assist from sophomore Kristin Satterthwait, as the Patriots took the commanding 3-0 lead into halftime.

The second half belonged to the Lake Brantley defense and sophomore goalkeeper Terresa Moon, who stopped eight shots in preserving the

The Patriots outshot Orange Park 17-12 and had three corner kicks to just one for the Raiders.

Lake Brantley, which was to have played at The Bolles School in Jacksonville on Saturday. will attempt to efinch the Seminole Athletic Conference championship at Lake Mary on Tuesday night at Don T. Reynolds Stadium.

Freshman action opens the Tuesday tripleheader at 4:30 p.m., with the junior varsity game set for 5:45 p.m. and the varsity taking the field at 7:30 p.m.

Orange Park, which was to have played at Lyman on Saturday, fell to 12-1-2 on the season.

LAKE MARY — Chad Hill grabbed an errant shot and put back a short jumper with 0:01 left as the Oviedo Lions came back from a 15-point third quarter deficit to defeat the Lake Mary Rams 70-69 in a Seminole Athletic Conference boys' baskerball contest at Lake Mary High School Friday night.

"These guys are winners," said Oyledo coach Ed Bolton, "They're a bunch of nice kids. I'm having a lot of fun with this team because they're such a nice banch.

"I felt the key to the game was our substitutions. At the end of the game, our kids were fresher than theirs, We were still able to shoot the long shot and jump for the rebounds, while Helt they were a little leg weary. So I've got to give a lot of the credit tonight to our bench." Lake Mary appeared to have the game under control built the margin to 15 points, 47-32, with 4:00 left in the third quarter. But Oyledo, which had 15 first-half turnovers and finished with 18, cut the lead to five, 55-50, by the end-

as it took the lead midway through the first quarter and of the quarter and took its first lead since early in the game at 56-55 with 6:00 remaining. The teams traded baskets the rest of the way, neither team holding more than a three-point advantage. It appeared that the Rams might escape with the victory when dason Junker grabbed a long rebound and hit an 18-foot jumper with seven seconds left to give Lake Mary a 69-68 lead.

Bismuth-tin shot gets federal, state approval

Florida waterfowl hunters now may use bismuth-tin shot as an liternative to steel shot. Earlier this year, the Game and Fresh Water Fish Com-mission authorized the use of 海!海 any non-toxic shot approved by the federal government. Beginning Dec. 30, federal approval is in effect through this year's duck and coot hunting season, which ends in Florida on Jan. 15. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife be a popular alternative to steel. Bismuth-tin shot also is less

On the down side, bismuth-tin

Remember to never store guns that are still loaded. It is always Bervice will reserve approval of blemuth-tin shot for next year's a sound practice to keep nunting season until after conducting a series of tests and addressing law enforcement

Congratulations are in order to Lourine Messenger who celebrated her 86th birthday yesterday. The apry and felsty former Seminole County Superintendent of Elections simply doesn't look nor act her age. We're still thinking about that lovely pink dress she wore to her big 80th birthday gala six years

Lourine travels a lot and is a popular civic activist who hasn't slowed down. Well, not too much. Many, many more happy returns, Lourine.

Fellowship names children's director

The board of directors of The Knox Fellowship has recently named Norma Colandreo their director of children's ministries. The Knox Fellowship is a national nonprofit foundation committed to assisting Presbyterian churches, large and small, in carrying out one of the great ends of the church which is the "Proclamation of the Gospel for the Salvation of Humankind."

The Knox Fellowship Ministry is comprised of a team that travels across the nation delivering the word of God to churches in a "Faith Journey Weekend," a tailor-made, structured, three days of intense ministry suited to the particular congregation's very specific needs. The effort and the product are to promote the principles of Christian life.

prayer, and inspirational music is provided. It is always great fun to hear Norma introduce herself ... in her aristocratic, Southern drawl, she states her name and some of her background and then claims to be from L.A. There is an appropriate pause whereby the audience has an opportunity to murmur a slight quizzical disbelief of her actually being from L.A. It is at this time that Norma actually saturates the Southern accent to its fullest and admits that L.A. stands for Lower Alabama.

She then asks the elementary and middle school children to come close to the podium and has what she describes as a "children's moment." Although she has several variations of what she calls her "trust mo-ment with the children, her favorite is the boiled egg vs. the raw egg encounter where she asks for a volunteer and mixes up the eggs before she breaks one on the volunteer's head.

The children always think she has the wrong egg in her hand and that the poor volunteer will have raw egg in his hair, but Norma has always managed to break the hardboiled egg and praise the child for his trust; she always follows this richly told tale with the explanation of how we can trust God with so much

After the "children's moment," Norma and her children are ushered off to another place where Norma plays the Name Game, prays and introduces her puppet named. Orange Navel. She usually has a Bible story to tell the children such as "Joseph and His Coat of Many Colors" which depicts the ugliness of jealousy and prejudice and the beauty of love and forgiveness. A workshop is set up with pictures to color for the younger ones and more challenging worksheets for the older ones. The next morning, Saturday, at 8 a.m., there is a team meeting with the leadership of the church to evaluate and possibly restructure the day's assembly in order to better the needs of the church. It is at this time that the music may be changed, the small groups may be changed to larger ones or none at all and the sermons and private experiences may be redrafted according to special needs of the congregation. During this special morning time, it is Norma's goal to spend indi-vidual time with each child, to better understand that person and to nurture the faith and self confidence of each child. During the afternoon, each of the team members is available to the members of the congregation on an individual, one-on-one basis, by appointment. At 5 p.m. there is another team meeting for any further adjustments and prayer prior to the evening program which includes music, prayer and personal observation and testimony of faith. Bunday, the regular services are always available with the special invocations by the teams. Norma makes rounds to the classrooms, speaking to the children about the importance of what is on the inside, in their hearts, and what is not important to God - the clothes we wear or the shoes we have on our feet. Norma demonstrates this fact by wearing two different shoes and have the children point out her silly mistake, a human one that is of no importance to God.

Recently Norma has been invited to give the sermon at the Church of the Good Shepherd in tion.

Melbourne on the topic of "Women in the Church." Norma was extremely flattered to be asked to speak, but had to remind the chairperson that she does not sermonize, she only talks to the children. She has a wonderful gift of language whereby you feel as if you have participated or were present as the tale unfolds, so graphically detailed are her descriptions that are carefully woven throughout the story. Norma is no stranger to children which is why she has this built-in rapport with the little angels. She is a substitute teacher in the Seminole County school system and she can go nowhere in public without the voices of little ones delighted to see her wishing her a "hello." and the younger ones coming up to give her a hug. She always remembers them as they remember her.

Norma is married and has a high school-aged son and lives in sales began Friday, Jan. 8 and will continue until Sunday, Jan. 22. The Lake Mary Stardust Service Unit of Girl Scouts will be selling in and around Lake Mary. Please be courteous to any Girl Scout who knocks on your door. From Brownies to Seniors, all age levels of Girl Scouts sell cookles.

This year, the girls will be selling a brand new, fat-free bar cookie, Cinnamon Oatmeal Raisin Bar. It is delictous. At a recent adult training session. Girl Scout leaders taste-tested the new bar cookie and thought it was much too good to be fat free. The other cookies are the same kinds that were sold last year: Strawberries 'n Creme, Caramel deLites. Lemon Pastry Cremes, Peanut Butter Patties, Shortbread, Thin Mints, and Peanut Butter Sandwiches.

If you would like to order some Girl Scout cookies and no one knocks on your door, you can call one of the Stardust cookie co-chairs. They are Rollie Nelson at 322-3799, Nancy Tighe at 333-2049 and Mary Rowell at 321-1498.

"The thing I like to imagine him doing is getting together with (gropel singers) Jake Hees and James Mackwood and the Speer Family," said Gurainick, who spent seven years researching his book. "I'm not talking about what direction his career would have taken commercially. But there's nothing that would have given him greater estimation than that. That was his first love."

Gurainick's book, covering Presiey's life up to 1958, chronicles the rise of an ambitious but insecure young man on his way to stardom — the Eivis who changed pop music and gave a legion of American youngsters their first sweet taste of rebelliousness.

But that time is often over-shadowed by Presley's later years of drugs and excess, the Elvis who keeps the tabloids and comedians busy.

"What people judge him by
