Local cowpokes hit the trail for cattle drive

BY ROOM HARMACK Herald Staff Writer

GENEVA — Thirteen Seminole County cow-pokes will "hit the trail" wagon training and driving 1,000 head of cattle from Yeehaw Junction to Kissimmee as part of Florida Cattle

The cattle drive is being conducted as part of Florida's 150-year birthday celebration.

But for local participants, the cattle drive is a 'once in a lifetime" opportunity that shouldn't be passed up.

"When I was young, mules and wagons were the most common form of transportation," Harold Burkett said. "They have always been my first love."

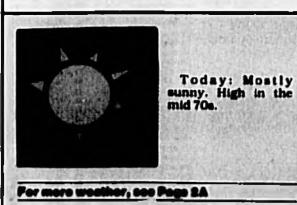

Burkett, 64, will be an Outrider during the cattle drive.

Burkett signed on to ride with the wagon train because he said he always wondered what it would be like to live in an era where driving ☐See Cattle, Page SA

Allegations draw regional attention; director calls it a witch hunt by ex-board members

SANFORD - It might not be an ideal facility for the dogs and cats that live there, but the Humane Society of Seminole County's ramshackle conglomeration of buildings is a happy home to several dozen animals. Bruce Johnson said.

Johnson, director of the often-maligned facility, said the humane society is the object of a "witch hunt" orchestrated by former society board members who have been removed from their positions by a vote of no

The facility is being investigated at the present time by the United States Humane Society on allegations of animal cruelty. Those charges are based, officials said, on the living conditions of the animals at the facility while the new building is under construction.

According to Seminole County Commissioner Daryl McLain, the Humane Society of Seminole County's County Home Road complex was visited a few weeks ago by Laura Bevin, director of the southeastern region of the national humane society organization. He said they contacted him only because the humane society facility is located in his district.

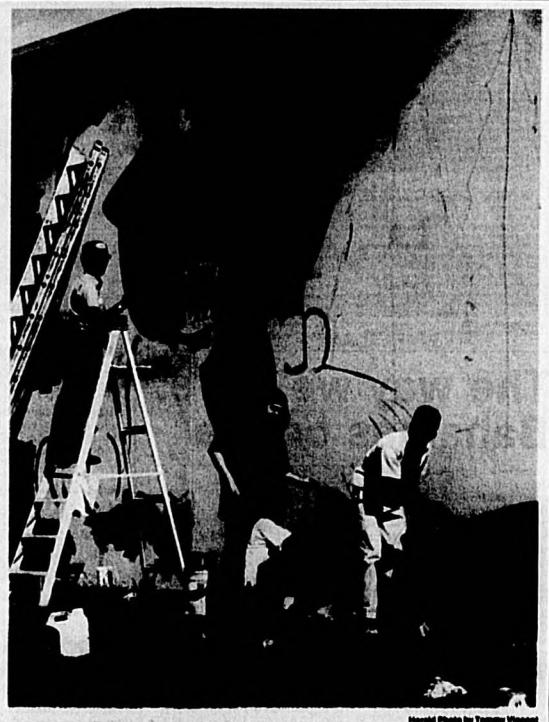

He said Bevin contacted his office and brought some concerns to his attention.

"I contacted the county manager's office and he contacted the sheriff's office to investigate," McLain said. "And that's where it stands."

Control of airport subject for discussion

By MCK PPEIFAUF Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - The question of whether or not to turn over more control of the Orlando Sanford Airport to the Aviation Authority will be discussed once again during Monday's scheduled work session of the Sanford City Commission.

The matter was first discussed during the work session on November 13, at which time it was determined that further study of the request was needed.

Since that time, several persons, including the Sanford city attorney. city staff, and others, have at-tempted to fine-tune the document.

Two weeks ago, when the matter was brought up for discussion. Airport Attorney Steve Coover explained that there were a number of situations where persons may have been interested in entering into a long term lease for a business or aviation-related industry at the airport, but were healtant when they found the city could, at its will. cancel any arrangements.

Coover said the Airport Authority was asking for assurance of at least 50 years without city involvement. He said in that way, long-term bonds could be arranged by various businesses, to handle financing of a new business establishment.

Commissioners however, had suggested a much shorter time of ☐ See Airport, Page SA

Electronic welfare under fire

By ADAM YEOMANS Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - Florida is moving swiftly to get electronic debit cards into the hands of thousands of welfare recipients for foou stamps and cash payments.

But some lawmakers are voicing concerns about the high-tech leap to distribute government benefits through automated teller machines and point-of-sale terminals in grocery stores and other retailers.

They say they don't know how much the electronic benefits transfer system will cost and are bothered that the federal government has picked Citibank to provide the service, effectively preventing other companies from competing for the business.

"A lot of people think this is sneaking up on us and we may not be making the right move," said state Sen. John Ostalkiewicz, R-Orlando. "We want to know if we're getting our money's worth."

Ostalkiewicz and other members of the Senate budget panel that oversees social services spending want the state to delay signing any contracts with Citibank until they get better answers about the system.

December with Citibank of New York and a group of subcontractors that won federal approval to offer the paperless system. Florida is part of an eight-state alliance working with the federal government to introduce the new benefits system. The Clinton administration wants to create a nationwide scheme by the end of the decade.

Officials with the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services said they won't know how much the system will cost until they complete negotiations with Citibank on a seven-year contract.

A state House analysis of the system said it would cost $53 million to establish the electronic benefits over the next two years. HRS officials said that figure included the current costs of providing welfare benefits, and the actual cost for electronic benefits is significantly lower.

HRS received about $1 million this year for the electronic system and has requested another $4.5 million next year.

Officials said the system won't break even for five years, but should save the state millions in the long run.

The debit card also should reduce error rates and fraud, and give welfare recipients "more dignity" because they'll have access to the same technology as the rest of the public, said Lowell Clary, HRS' deputy secretary for administration.

Under a timetable approved quietly by the Legislature in the 1995 regular session, HRS will establish a pilot project in Escambia County by July. It would then be introduced in Duval County by Oct. 1 and a part of Dade County by January 1997.

The system would be operating statewide by early 1998.

It will handle cash payments to welfare mothers with children, food stamps, Social Security payments, Supplemental Security Income, veterans' benefits and railroad retirement benefits.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson, small retailers that currently rely on welfare recipients as customers, and the National Check Cashers Association are among the critics of how the electronic benefits system is being introduced.

The way we were: Bahamas cruise

Pauline Stoudenmire (Mrs. John) Miller, former Sanfordite now residing in West Paim Beach, recently sent me a clipping from an August, 1941 Sanford Herald, parts of which I will share with you today. This is an account of a cruise to the Bahamas taken by three Sanford girls---Christine Stoudenmire (Polly's twin sister), Maude Ramsey and Louedeen Crawford. The cruise was taken shortly before the United States entered World War II.

TAMPA. Fig. - Hours after completing a 21-day stay behind bars for stealing a car, a 14-year-old girl was trying to elude deputies in another stolen car when she caused an accident that killed two people and in-jurid a third, officials say.

Sheriff's deputies say Angela Benson and her 16-year-old boyfriend state a 1994 Dodge Shadow from a nearby apartment complex after Thankagiving dinner with her family.

Derek Johnson, a 27-year-old

Army sergeant, also had just finished eating Thanksgiving dinner and watching a football game at his mother's house when he got a ride home with two friends.

Their paths crossed just before 11 p.m. Thursday, when Benson, chased by deputies, drove through a red light and broadsided the 1994 Masda carrying Johnson and his friends. All three were thrown from the car. Johnson and Glenda J. Brunson, 30, died at the acene.

Benson's boyfriend, Brandon Michael Evans, was also injured and was in critical condition Saturday at Tampa General Hospital.

"These were kids with a record," said Johnson's cousin, Veronica Elmore. "They have been through the system before. Obviously, someone couldn't control them."

Moments before the accident, a supervisor ordered deputies to break off the chase, which began 15 miles away, because two police helicopters were following the car, said Hillsborough County Bheriff's Lt. Robert Goding. The chase began when a deputy spotted the two teens getting into the Dodge, which had been reported stolen an hour earlier, Goding said. The deputy pulled in for a closer look and the driver sped away.

Another deputy joined the chase as it wound through residential streets. The Dodge blew out a tire, but continued to speed through red lights on three good wheels, Goding said. The deputies were called off, leaving the helicopters to monitor the car, Goding said.

"From what I was told, it (the crash) was not a result of the chase," Hillsborough Sheriff Cal Henderson said. "We had slowed down. She could have slowed down, too."

When deputies reached the scene of the accident, the driver was gone. Witnesses directed a deputy to a motel where he nd the teen sitting in the lobby, Goding said.

Teens nabbed after countywide chase

From Staff Reports

Seminole County sheriffs officers were led on a chase Friday afternoon by a pair of Kentucky teens who had tried to snatch a woman's purse in Fern Park.

According to Ed McDonough. spokesman for the Seminole County Sheriff's Office, a woman called police after fighting off two men who had tried to snatch her purse outside the Office Max Store on State Road 436 in Fern Park. She gave deputies a de-scription of the car and the auto tag number.

Deputies first spotted the car driven by Christopher Crawford, 19, and Jonathan Thomas, 17, at the intersection of State Road 436 and Jackson. Police chased the suspects to County Road 427 to U.S. Highway 17-92 and then to Airport Boulevard in Sanford before they crashed into another car at Airport Boulevard and 25th Street, McDonough said. ### Partake in the true spirit

The bells are ringing.

They are ringing to alert passers-by that there is a need to help others, and the Salvation Army is standing by to offer that

More and more as we approach the last weeks of the year, volunteers are going out into shopping centers setting up the Salvation Army kettles for shoppers to use. Why at shopping centers? It's logical. That is where the largest number of people will be gathering these days. Also, during a shopping trip. people are more often in a giving mood, and more prone to donate.

The men and women who are manning these kettles most often are not officers in the Salvation Army. They are donating their time through various clubs, groups and organiza-tions. Many go way beyond that point and also add to the money placed in the kettles.

These are our own friends, neighbors, and perhaps co-workers. They deserve not only our appreciation for their efforts, but their support through our donations.

This Salvation Army kettle drive has been going on for decades. The kettles have been available for donations in hard times as well as the good times. There have been years when not enough money was donated to allow the Salvation Army to help as many people as they may wish, but assistance has always been given.

While there are some fund-raising efforts in the nation where a great portion of the donations go to defray operational costs, this is not the case with the kettle drive. The money you give will be the assistance the Army will give, through food, clothing, or other necessities.

ding, ding, you will know it's the Salvation Army kettle drive underway. Make a donation rather than turning away. You will be helping someone who cannot help themselves. You will be partaking in the true spirit of the

Seniors and Medicare

Evelyn Morton, lobbyist for the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP), reportedly urged 300 members recently to tell Congress their views on the Medicare part of the federal budget talks. I have no problem with that call to activism. As a 65 year-old non-member of AARP, I have already told my representatives: "Medicare is broke, fix it." They just might get it done with support from thoughtful senior citizens.

I deeply respect the right of those 300 seniors to carry a card from the AARP. However, I would caution them to think twice about a call for action from an organization that panders to them. Individual quiet contemplation rather than hard instinct should decide opinions on serious issues.

I think most senior citizens know that Medicare is a gift mostly paid for by taxes from other hard working Americans. They still know there is no such thing as the proverbial free lunch. How sad it is that some of them believe just staying alive to age 65 rates a ticket to medical care without worry

Children: The American tragedy

The heartrending ending to the Shelby Cox story was like a horrible nightmare for all of us. From the televised pictures of her at the beach she appeared to be a vital youngster, a joy to her family and friends. The information forthcoming about the young neighbor, who apparently confessed to killing her, speaks to a tragic life. For all practical purposes two young lives have

When tragedies like these occur there is a great deal of soul-searching that ensues. The central question posed is one word, Why?

As a children's advocate, counselor and educator, I believe that the reality of everyday life in America for many children is fertile ground for the germination of many future

America, the world leader, is not leading the world in the care she provides for her children. America ranks 22nd amoung the nations of the world in infant mortality. Nearly nine out of every 1,000 babies die before their first birthday.

If we take inventory of how we care for our children we will examine the statistics with a universalistic approach. We will consider that all of the children of this country are ours. When one succeeds, we all succeed, when one falls we die from child abuse, 15 children die from guns. 27 children die of poverty; 95 babies die before their first birthday; 1,340 teen-agers give birth; 2,217 teen-agers drop out of school; 2,350 children are in adult jalls; 3,356 babies are born to unmarried mothers; 8,189 children are reported abused or neglected; 100,000 children are homeless; 135,000 children bring guns to school and there are 1,200,000 latchkey children in houses where there is a gun.

Any mixture of the above statistics could be considered a recipe for disaster. All of us can judgmentally say that this is a family responsibility to properly rear the offspring. While this is true and is biblically affirmed, we must ask another question. Whose responsibility is it when there is no functioning familie? when there is no functioning family?

Piecemeal programs here and there are not the answer. What is needed is a Comprehensive National Program that will address the needs of children. Head Start is an example of the type of program that has potential to be helpful. However, rather than wait until a child attains the age to enroll in Head Start the program about the age to enroll in the desired the program and the start the start the program and the start t should be available to abused, neglected and homeless children.

The critical years for youngsters are the early years from infancy to six. These are the formative years when children are like sponges and absorb everything. At that age teachers have unparalleled opportunities for teaching the social and academic skills needed for navigating the waters of life.

Yet more than anything else children need unconditional love and acceptance. The Bible also tells us that "Love is the greatest gift of all." Unloved, abused, neglected and homeless children are an American tragedy, the fruits of which will be realized in the years to come.

Therefore, it behooves America to create jobs and programs that will equip parents, the jobless, and school drop-outs to earn a living. This preventative social planning will prevent people from dropping out of organized society abdicating from responsible behavior and using children as the objects or their frustration.

Examples of racial separation

WASHINGTON-In the past few days:
--Black students at College of Holy Cross won the right to exclude whites from holding office in school-supported Black Student Union.

--I attended a pre-Thankagiving Day dinner sponsored by black graduate students at Duke

"I read a report that white male members of the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department are forming a group devoted to protecting the rights of white male law-enforcement officers. Guess which of these examples of racial separation makes me most uncomfortable.

To start with the most benign, I found nothing remotely offensive about the pre-Thanksgiving dinner. It was merely an attempt by black graduate and professional students, a distinct minority on Duke's campus, to get to know one another a bit better-to "help build community," as one of them put it.

The only thing I found to criticise about the affair at Holy Cross, where black students are even scarcer, is that the issue of governance of the Black Student Union should have become a go-to-the-mat issue in the first place. The group's constitution requires that its officers he "of African descent," a provision the Student Government Association struck down as discriminatory.

There followed a week-long protest that involved virtually all the college's 68 black students. The administration finally overruled the Student Government Association, holding that the disputed provision served to "preserve the integrity" of the BSU.

It was, under the circumstances, the right decision. But why the circumstances? Was there any reason to fear a white takeover of the BSU? And if there wasn't, why insist on the racially restrictive language in the constitu-

As to the idea of a Black Student Union, as opposed to an unrestricted Student Union, I have no problem.

So why do I have a problem with white law officers in the Los Angeles County Bhertif's Department forming their own group? As the chief organiser, Sgt. Ed Kirste, put it last week. "Why can't you condone this organization when you condone the black peace officers' association, the women's peace officers' association, and the Asian peace officers' associa-

The easy answer goes to purpose. Black or female or Asian subgroups are formed to help their members deal with white maledominated organizations. A distinct white male subgroup could only have as its purpose to maintain its demination.

But suppose white law-enforcement officers in California reapond that their purpose is not domination but fairness-that their uniforms and skin and sex combine to form an accusation of Mark Fuhrman-like racism?

Would that justify (in my mind or yours) the formation of a white male officers' group? Probably not.

In fact, it's interesting to consider what might constitute a legitimate special organization for white men. A Caucasian Cornerback Club in the NPL? (But, though black players way downless at the position, whites own and may dominate at the position, whites own and m a n a g e and--mostly--coach the teams.) A White Student Association at Howard Universi-ty? A White Caucus of the D.C. City Council? (Well, they may be in the minority in these special situations, but they are not oppressed minorities.) A White Gay Alliance? (But their whiteness gives them advantage over minority gays.) It's hard to think of whites-only groups formed for the benefit of its members that could gain our approval.

Perhaps an organization of white L.A. police officers formed to help its members improve their attitudes towards minorities ...

Guess which of officers formed to help its members improve their attitudes towards minorities...

Our reasoning is that for members of a group that already enjoys dominance to organize to enhance their status is unfair, a sort of piting on. By that reasoning, it's always illegitimate for white men to organize as white men.

And always legitimate for black people to organize as black people?

That's a quastion that causes some consternation at institutions whose leaders work hard at creating a culture of inclusion. Doesn't the very idea of a separate black organization run against the notion of inclusion? Is that what leaders of the Holy Cross BGA had in mind? I know it's what the leaders of a couple of Washington-area private achools had in mind when they at first objected to voluntary separatism and then allowed the creation of Black Student Unions provided membership was open to all students. The Black Student Alliance at Duke has white members and white officers. Does that make it legitimate?

My own belief is that separation is legitimate for either of two purposes: To defend against the tyranny of the majority or to enhance a minority group's shilly to operate as an effective part of the whole.

Who said kids are horrid brats?

Who said kids today are horrid, impertinent brats, devoid of any intellectual processes and possessed of manners more appropriate to farm animals?

Well, just about everybody has said something to that effect at one time or another.

I know. I'm the education reporter light calls from people every single day who want to tell me about the morally bankrupt. Ignorant students being led astray by teachers and administrators who have deficient brains and no knowledge of the basic Judeo-Christian values we all hold so dear.

But I can tell you it's just not so.

I recently had the pleasure of dining in the cafeteria at Pine Crest Elementary School with a fine group of second graders in Mary Ann Germain's class.

As a partner in education at that school, the Sanford Herald was invited to spend some time with some of the students who are the beneficiaries of partnerships formed with the business community.

Well mannered and well spoken, the class ate their lunches (even the blanched broccoli) without a hint of a fight, a curning match or other violent conduct.

I was bombarded with stories about all they had learned so far this year.

I was informed by one young lady named Kayleigh that they had been in school for 73 days so far this year and had learned so many things that she couldn't begin to have the time to tell me all the things they'd learned even if she took all day.

Other students threw in a thing or two about the books they'd been reading and the projects they had created. Their selfappointed spokesman made it difficult for any of them to get a word in between her enthusiastic remarks and animated gestures.

Kayleigh begged me to come to the classroom and see for myself what they were learning.

There were lighthouses constructed from Styrofoam cups standing watch over colored tissue paper waves. Oversised coins were used for learning the concept of counting money. There were calendars. Straws were divided into envelopes to count out hundreds. tens and ones.

There were books about Ayayoyo monsters and numbers and other things that the students had created. There was a machine that used strips of magnetic tape to help youngaters learn to read the words the teacher had written on special cards.

"I love school," Kayleigh told me as she hugged me goodbye outside the classroom before running off to join her classmates at a short recess in the playground.

ian't that what it's all about?

Kids will learn if they love coming to school. There are great teachers out there who make learning fun and exciting for the kide. Kide who love learning are going to stay out of trouble

It's not the kids who are bad. We just need to keep them excited about what they're doing and learning.

If that means getting more of the communi-ty involved in providing for teachers in the classroom, then so be it. Let's get involved. Let's do what we must to make sure the kids are excited about going to school every single

Before we complain about the bad kids, let's do our part to make sure they stay out of trouble and stay in school.

One of the highlights of their trip was a visit to a picture show one evening where they saw the Duke and Duchess of Windsor. Christine described the duchess as lovely with the softest voice. She was dressed in a black. long-sleeved dinner gown made of net and she carried a red ostrich fan. The duke wore dark trousers and a white coat.

At the conclusion of the movie, a picture of the King of England was flashed on the screen and the audience stood and sang their national anthem. This made quite an impression on the Sanford girls.

When they returned to their boat in the evening, the passengers were entertained by Bahamian singers who rendered songs of the islands and also Negro spirituals.

The group next cruised to the outer islands which included Abaco and Eleuthera. Each of these had to be reached by sailboats. At Cherokee Sound. the party viewed the remains of a former prosperous town with a population in the thousands now reduced to about 200.

The girls enjoyed the food saying it was delicious and well prepared. Conch saled and turtle were the main items on most of the menus. And when a boat docked on any of the islands, the tradition was for the townspeople to meet it with homemade ice cream for all aboard.

Nassau in 1961

Twenty years later, in April, 1961, I took a cruise to Nassau with three girifriends who lived in Orlando. My roommate was Donna Holl, an employee of Martin Company, now Mrs. Fred Winslow, living in Longwood and teaching at Altamonte Elementary.

Our ship was the SS Florida and we were taking advantage of the special $54 rate for three nights and four days. For this price, Donna and I had a very small cabin with bunk beds. There was no closet, only nails on which to hang our clothes. And there was only enough room in the cabin for one of us to change clothes at a time. The bath ws down the hall. Needless to say, we spent little time in our

I remember the Queen's Staircase as described above and the beautiful shops. No mention was made in the 1941 trip of the large straw market which was right near the dock on our trip. We enjoyed haggling with the natives on the prices. I bought a straw hat there for $3 that I wore in the sun for at least 15 years. We took a sightseeing tour of

Three times a week he works cattle on the Yarborough ranch in Geneva.

Burkett would have liked to be a cow hunter, chasing down stray cattle, but instead will ride alongside the wagon train. "It's just going to be a lot of fun," Burkett said.

"I really would like to have lived during that time (when driving cattle was a common way of life). This is probably the only time in my lifetime to go back to that time," he said. "It's exciting to be able to go back and relive the early days. It's the chance of a lifetime.

Burkett's thoughts are echoed by nearly every one of the Seminole County participants.

Lynn Yarborough-Hanshew grew up on the Yarborough Ranch in Geneva.

"I've worked cattle my entire life, but I have never been on a drive," she said. "This is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity."
While Yarborough-Hanshew is

Because of the limited amount of space in the wagon, Yarborough-Hanshew said she will only be able to take three of four changes of clothing, as will most other participants.

Other modern amenities such as hot showers, electricity, and air conditioning will not be available either.

But that is not scaring her away from the trail ride, rather it makes the event that much more real.

Other Seminole County cowpokes preparing for the grueling nine-day trail ride across more than 70 miles of Florida range include Maggie Boerman, Ed. Bo. J.W., Frances and J.K. Yarborough, Eric and Chelsea Chapsaddle, Al Johnson, Dusty Rhodes, Drew Evans, and Kent Boerman, like other area participants, is looking forward to the excitement of the trip and the opportunity to relive a part of Florida's past.

In addition, Boerman will be keeping a journal on the cattle drive about the people and the tradition. Following the drive, she will be compiling her journals and using them to write a book.

Chelsea Chapsaddle is the youngest of the local partici-pants. The seven-year-old Geneva resident will be riding her pony Della alongside the wagon train.

One of the county's longstanding cowfolk who can't go along is Imogene Yarborough.

Mrs. Yarborough, while not participating on the drive, has volunteered her time as a boardmember putting together the cattle drive. Yarborough said the event is being sponsored by the Florida Cattlemen's Association and is aimed at reminding the public of the important role Florida's cattlemen played in the state's development. According to Yarborough. participants and spectators alike will learn about what it was like in Florida nearly 100 years ago. "We are true cattle people here," she said. Florida Cattle Drive '95 officially gets started on Saturday. Dec. 2 in Yeehaw Junction.

Cowfolk from across the state will gather and begin preparations for the cattle drive and wagon train. The drive and wagon train move out of Yeehaw Junction on Monday, Dec. 4, and are scheduled to arrive in Kissimmee on Saturday, Dec. 9.

Participants will be dressed in authentic clothing of the era and those in wagon train activities will be traveling on horses. mules, wagons, oxen, goat or push carts, or any other form of transportation available in Florida in the mid-1800s.

Following the cattle drive and wagon train, the Pioneer Showcase will be held in Kissimmee. The event features a craft show and sale, reenactments of historical events, and the Cracker Cattle and Horse Sale. The Bellamy Brothers, Seminole Chief Jim Billie, and storytellers and poets will provide entertainment.

New airport terminal topped off

By NICK PPEIPAUP Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - Once the top part of a structure's roof is determined, builders celebrate by placing a tree on the top. It's called a topping-off ceremony, and such was the case recently at the Orlando Sanford Airport.

Central Florida Terminals. Inc., marked the construction progress of its International Passenger Complex and Welcome A portion of foundation for the two-story welcome center with car rental facility, to be located immediately across the street from the terminal, was also poured.

Both buildings are being con-structed by Central Florida Terminals, (CFT), a private developer and operator of terminals. It is to be completed in early 1996. In May of this coming year, Airtours International Airways and duty-paid shops at the airport. Jerry's Caterers, operators of airport restaurants and lounges in the Southeast will run a restaurant and pub at the airport. Dollar Rent-A-Car, based in Tampa, will operate a convenient on-site rental operation at the airport's Welcome Center.

in addition, Airtours will sponsor a free child center for families to use while awaiting return flights. Britannia will sponsor a video arcade in the international departures lounge.

Tim Howe, president of CFT said the event, "for the first time will bring together our airline and service-provider family. We're looking forward to showing them how fast and beautifully our facilities are growing.

Howe noted that the buildings are designed with rapid passenger service and user-convenience in mind. The federal inspection station at the passenger complex is capable of handling up to 1,000 passengers per hour.

CFT operates under a longterm lease with the Sanford Airport Authority. It provides commercial air terminal facilities, management services and related development at the Orlando Sanford Airport.

Central Florida Terminals, Inc., at the Orlando Sanford Airport, hosted a "Topping it Off and Pouring It On" ceremony last Friday to mark construction progress. A live evergreen tree was placed on top of the two-story passenger complex. Local officials were in attendance at the function.

QOP wants budget specifics

WASHINGTON — Asked by Republican congressional leaders for specific budget proposals, the Clinton administration is hedging until formal negotiations begin and providing only general "principles" for now.

Since a truce that allowed the government to end a six-day partial shutdown was declared, senior presidential advisers and Republicans in Congress have been sniping at one another in preparation for intense bargaining over the budget next

On Wednesday, House Speaker Newt Gingrich, Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole and the chairman of the House and Senate budget committees asked President Clinton to provide "specific legislative proposals on how you would accomplish (a budget) balance in seven years."

The president has said he will veto the GOP plan, which calls for balancing the budget by 2002, but which includes aqueesing $270 billion in savings from Medicare and a tax cut of $245 billion.

As part of a temporary spending bill, Clinton and the congressional Republicans agreed to a seven-year budget plan, but also to protect Medicare, education, the environment and other spending programs the president considers important.

But both sides must still work out major disagreements on how those goals will be met.

"We cannot begin to resolve our differences until we first know what they are," the Republican lawmakers wrote Clinton.

In a response Friday, White house chief of staff Leon Panetta wrote that neither the president's budget nor Congress' plan antiafies the objectives of the fragile agreement reached last Sunday. But he said he was not prepared to cite specific disagreements.

Complaints against prosecutors soar

WASHINGTON - The Justice Department received hundreds of misconduct complaints against its lawyers in 1993, with more than a third of them alleging abuse of authority.

While the number of complaints is up sharply, it remains to be seen whether an increasing number will be substantiated.

In a report issued this week on the 12 months ending Sept. 30, 1993, the department's Office of Professional Responsibility said it received 315 complaints against department attorneys, up from 177 during the previous flacal year.

Of the 315 complaints, the largest categories were: 119 alleged abuse of authority, 73 alleged criminal acts, and 45. unprofessional or unethical behavior.

Michael Shaheen, director of the office, called the increase significant, but because cases often are not resolved until subsequent years, he couldn't say what percentage had been substantiated. "We expect some increase to occur" in substantiated cases, he said.

Of 243 complaints against attorneys that were resolved during fiscal 1993, allegations were substantiated in 7 cases, and 7 attorneys were disciplined as a result. Shaheen said this represented a decrease in both the number and percent of substantiated cases.

Another 20 attorneys resigned either before complaints against them could be fully investigated or before discipline was imposed.

During fiscal 1993, the office had a policy of stopping investigations when the accused employee resigned. In 1994, Attorney General Janet Reno ordered a new policy of completing the investigation even after the employee resigne in part, so the department could decide what position to take in criminal cases appealed to higher courts on grounds of government misconduct.

Business phones and hearing aids

WASHINGTON - Call it the price of modern convenience: When telephones became lightweight, many lost the ability to work with hearing aids, creating headaches for millions of people.

But federal regulators have come up with a proposal to ensure that business phones — such as those in hotels, hospitals and at work — can be used by hearing aid users.

The Federal Communications Commission is expected to adopt the proposal Tuesday; the plan would be fine-tuned and subject to another commission vote before becoming final.

When people who wear hearing aids use regular telephones, there is so much static and interference, the phones are useless, regulators said.

New phones bought by businesses must be compatible with hearing aids. Businesses would not be required to buy new ones immediately — a costly proposition and one of the big reasons a previous set of commission rules in this area was

"By the beginning of the next century, all Americans should be able to count on unable telephones regardless of their hearing problems," FCC Chairman Reed Hundt said in an interview. He called the proposal "an example of how the communications revolution can extend to everyone.

The FCC does not know precisely how many phones used by businesses are compatible with hearing aids, but regulators say millions of business phones would be covered by the plan.

A 1988 law requires phones to be compatible with hearing aids. Coin-operated and emergency phones, by virtue of a separate FCC rule, already are compatible with hearing aids.

Many consumers looking, not buying

AP Business Writer

The Christmas shopping season opened with the traditional crush, and though stores were packed, economic uncertainty had many shoppers looking, not buying.

"It's just tougher times," said shopper Sharon Sky in Denver. "It seems as if my dollar doesn't go as far."

Retailers are betting on the Christmas sales to help turn around what has been a dismal year. Yet some consumers are showing caution about spending, citing an uncertain economy and overextended personal bud-

"The retail banner years are long gone," said Dan Skoda, president of Marshall Field's department stores in Chicago. "I don't think anybody's looking for a banner year. ... We look for market share. We just hope for a bigger piece of the pie." Some consumers are also thinking twice before saying "charge it" because they're already behind on credit-card repayments. The government reported last month that banks are seeing more consumer delinquencies in credit card and other installment loans.

Clinton defends U.S. Bosnia troops in

By ROS (POURSHER Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - Defending plans to put American troops in harm's way, President Clinton argued today that a peacekeeping mission in Bosnia will end bloodshed and prevent a wider European war. "Our conscience demands that we act," he declared.

The remarks, made in his weekly radio address, previewed the critical plea Clinton will make on national television Monday night. "Peace in Bosnia is important to America — to both our values and our interests," he said.

A peace agreement signed this week by the leaders of Serbia, Croatia and Bosnia could end 314 years of "unspeakable atrocities," Clinton said, including "mass executions, ethnic cleansing, campaigns of rape and terror.

With 250,000 people killed and 2 million citizens driven from their homes, "The violence done to those innocent civilians does violence to the principals on which American stands," the president said.

"The only way to end the killing for good is to secure a commitment to peace," he continued. "Now our conscience demands that we act."

His plane to cond 20,000 U.S. troops to Bosnia to comp

40,000 soldiers from other NATO countries is meeting stiff resistance from Congress. The White House hopes to quickly build support for a nonbinding resolution backing the deployment.

The administration's public relations campaign began last week when Clinton announced the agreement by the Balkan leaders and defended the U.S. troop deployment in a Rose Garden speech. His press secretary, Mike McCurry, called the debate a matter of "peace vs. war" and said Americans must understand that the mission will result in American casualties.

Hoping to temper fears, the White House on Friday released letters from Serbian, Croatian and Bosnian leaders ensuring "the safety and security" of U.S.

Promising a clearly defined mission, Defense Secretary William Perry said, "We are not going to fight a war. We will not go in if that is what we have to

Though "organized opposition" is not expected, Perry said Friday during a visit with Bosnia-bound troops in Germany, "We do expect - given the years of war and the hatred that has built up resistance from some individuals and gangs."

in a sign of how unetable the ment troops on Friday raided a U.N. base and stole armored vehicles and fuel. Shots were fired, but no casualties were reported.

An administration official, speaking on condition of anonymity, predicted Clinton will be "blunt — brutally so" in his assessment of the mission's dangers in his speech Monday night. But the president did not discuss the prospect of casualties today, sticking to broad arguments in favor of the mission.

Warning that failure to keep the peace could provoke a wider European war, Clinton reminded listeners that World War I began with a shot fired in Sarajevo, the Bosnian capital. "We must not let this century close with gunfire ringing in Sarajevo," he said.

Clinton also suggested the mission is a test of NATO's resolve. "And America, as relative calm. Bosnian govern- NATO's leader, clearly must participate," he said in the radio speech, taped at his Camp David, Md., retreat.

"Without our support, the hard-won peace would be lost, the terrible slaughter would resume, the conflict that already has claimed so many lives could spread like a cancer throughout the region."

What's Up In The NFL....Week Thirteen

We've finally reached Week Thirteen. After twelve weeks of football, we're finally down to the playoff contenders. This weekend will determine which teams are for real, and which teams have been lucky to make it this far.

Before we get into who, what, and where let's take a look at last week's LOCK OF THE WEEK. As three point favorites, the Green Bay Packers crushed an outgunned Cleveland team. This effortless victory raised my LOCK selection record

I was on my way to the bank with a wad of winnings, when I got sentimental. The Dolphins were playing Monday night and I decided to "double-down." The Niners bit me so bad I went and got a rables shot. All my hard work, all my easy-earned money, gone with Jerry Rice streaking through the Miami secondary.

This week, I plan to rebuild with a sheet of winners so long it looks like a spoiled kid's Christmas list. My weekend will get started with a "massive" investment in Steve Spurrier and the Gators. I know this is an N.F.L. column, but this game demands comment. The entire state of Piorida will be tuned in for this Battle in the Swamp.

Unfortunately, the outcome of this game is already determined, and I'm cashing in. After displaying my handicapping prowess with an 11-2 mark. I confidently guarantee a Gator victory. If I could find the title of my car or my house, I'd let them ride. Let's get back to N.F.L.

Pocusing on Florida's teams, let's talk about the Dolphins. We better talk about them now. because their season will be ending right on time, prior to the playoffs. They looked horrible against the Niners, and may have blown the sesson. I'm saying that not only because they lost, but because of the way they lost.

This team quit, and that's a pathetic excuse for a group of professionals. As the miracles continue in Buffalo, Miami's chances to make the playoffs are dwindling away. If the Dolphins lose to the Colts this week, which I think they might, their

BRADY LESSARD

On a brighter note let's go to my team. Once again, the Bucs managed to win without impressing anyone. Maybe it's strategy. Win by as little as possible so future opponents will take us lightly? I doubt that's the game plan, and if it is, it won't work in Green Bay.

As a Buc fan, I'm savoring where we are in the playoff hunt. For the first time since 1982 the Bucs actually have a chance. More than that, the Buca will make it to postsesson play. I hope Sam has a plan, because I don't think we can beat the Packers, especially in the snow.

Let's take a look at Sunday's schedule, and find some winners.

MIAMI (-3) AT INDIANAPOLIS The Dolphins are in no position to be giving up points. The Colts on the other hand will happily accept them. This game means life or death for both teams, and I like the Colts chances. COLTS

BUFFALO (-0) VS NEW ENGLAND

This game could go either way. I really think the Patriots may have given up on the season, but you can't bank on it. I would love to see the Bills win this one, but I can't guarantee it, certainly can't give up aix points. BILLS 27, PATRIOTS

CHICAGO (-2) AT NEW YORK The Bears are in desperate need of a win. As a Bucs fan, I would love to see them lose, but they won't. The Giants are terrible and their woes continue in this one. Even nickel beers wouldn't bring a crowd to watch this one. BEARS, 26

Green bay (-9) vs tampa bay

This is one of my favorite games of the year, the Battle of the Bays. The Pack clearly has the superior team, home field advantage, and a much better quarterback. The Bucs need a miracle. Rumor has it that Big Al has been sighted in Central Florida. Maybe he's giving the Bucs Green Bay's playbook! Even that wouldn't save us. PACKERS, 24 BUCS 12. PHILADELPHIA (-8) AT WASHINGTON

This game will be interesting as these rivals go at it in R.F.K. Stadium. The Skins should have the emotional edge, but the Eagles are a much better team. This is the type of game to watch not wager. If I had to bet it, I'd go with Philly in honor of Tony Guru. BAGLES 24. EXPERTED 17.

CINCINNATI (-2) AT JACKBONVILLE Blake and the Bengals are still trying to figure out what happened last week. Blake was flawless in taking the early lead, but watched his team squander it in the fourth quarter. Revenge will be sweet as they smash the Jaguars at home. I may drive up to watch Blake in action. BENGALS 27. JAGUÁRS 18.

Ban Francisco (-14) VB ST. LOUIS

The Rammies have been overrated all year. They go into Sunday needing a win to remain significant. The Niners are still catching up to Dallas, and will be in no mood for a tight game. This is a ton of points, but Jerry Rice can conquer the spread with two catches. NINERS 30, RAMS

PITTSBURGH (-6) AT CLEVELAND
This game has lost some of it's magic as Cleveland prepares to become Baltimore. The Steelers have rallied behind Bill Cowher, and are poised for a playoff run. The Brownies have finally gone back go Vinny, and it will help. This move alone, has made it impossible for me to be 100% certain of the outcome. I'm still 99% sure. STEELERS 34, EROWNS 16. DENVER (-8) AT BOUSTON

Elway and crew head to Houston for what could be the best matchup of the week. Houston's defense is tough, and this team thinks they can win. Denver, who I think can reach the Super Bowl, needs this game. Houston gave the Chiefs a run, and I think they can do the same to the Broncos. In Elway's special way, he'll pull it out in the fourth quarter. Another heartbreaker for Oilers fans. BRONCOS 28, MOUSTON 17.

ATLANTA (-3) AT ARIZONA This game is an early Christmas present from Vegas. Arizona stinks, Atlanta doesn't. Jeff George will have a field day in this desert blowout. Buddy Ryan is a big, ugly, embarrassing joke. PALCONS SS., CARDINLS 10.
SEATTLE (-6) VS NEW YORK

The Seahawks have won three in a row and think they can make it into the Kingdome for a game they probably don't want to play. My uncle won't want to miss this one as Mirer and Galloway win big. SEAMAWKS $1, JETS 18.

NEW ORLEANS (-5) VS CAROLINA The Saints have to win four straight to make the playoffs. I'm not sure they will win again this season. The Panthers come to the Superdome with a genuine chance at making it to postsesson play. Take the points and run, don't walk, to the bank. PANTHERS SO, SAINTS 19.

CAELAND (-8) AT SAN DEEGO

This will be a great game for Monday Night. San Diego has collapsed after last years Cinderelia season. If they have any hopes of redemption they need this game. Oakland looked flat against Dallas, but should rebound as they travel to Jack Murphy Stadium. In a defensive battle, Oakland squeaks it out. RAIDERS 17,CHARGERS 18.

Every week I issue what I consider to be the best pick against the spread in the schedule. This is the game that after research and contempla-tion, I feel most confident about releasing as my Seattle (-6) is in a position to become playoff contenders, while the Jets are hoping the season ends early. The Scahawks, in an absolute blowout, will bring my LOCK record to 12-2.

Good luck this week, and forget about stacking the firewood Sunday, technology has given us the heater, we're obligated to use it.

Gun, hunting seasons opening

General gun, turkey, and duck hunting seasons open this month.

General gun season is November 11-January 21 in the Central Zone and November 23-26 and December 9-February 14 in the Northwest Zone.

During general gun season, hunters may take antiered deer (minimum 5-inch antier), wild hogs and small game. Bag limits

Deer — two per day; wildhogs.

Wild hegs — one per day where hogs are classified as legal Grey equirrels — 12 per day. Fox equirrels — two per day (not legal to take on wildlife management areas or in Lee. Hendry, Palm Beach, Monroe, Collier, Broward or Dade coun-12 per day.

Quell — 12 per usy.

Deer may not be taken with rimfire firearms, mussleloaders of less than 20 gauge or .40 caliber, crossbows or bows with less than 35-pound draw weight. or arrows with less than two sharpened steel edges at least 7/8-inch wide.

Fall turkey season runs November 11-January 7 in the Central and South sones and November 23-26 and December 9-January 14 in the Northwest Zone. Bearded turkeys or gobblers only may be taken. The daily limit to one, season limit two and possession limit two.

Hunters may use all firearm including bows and arrow mussicloading gune, crossbou and handgune. Hunting turkey with dogs, shooting turkey while they are on the roost an baiting turkeys are prohibited. Duke and coot season run statewide November 22-26 an December 7-January 20 Shooting hours are one half hou before sunrise to sunset.

Hunters may take a daily be limit of five ducks. The five-duc limit may consist of no more than one female mailard, on black duck, one mottled duci (Florida duck), one fulvou whistling duck, one pintail, one canvasback, two redheads, and two wood ducks.

(except hariequin ducks) may be taken up to the five-duck daily limit. Duck hunters also may take five merganeers, only one of which may be a hooded merganeer. The bag limit for coots is 15 per day. Taking or attempting to take brant, gees or herioquin duck is prohibited. Legal hunting methods in and secuting to before and after the hunting season. Human scent leaves an invisible barrier that will cause deer to abandon the area for an indefinite period of time.

PERSONG REPORT Bass are still hard to locate in the siver due to high water levels. Shiners and plastic worms are producing fair results in local lakes. Lunker action will gradually improve through March, with the best fishing taking place around full moon periods.

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral has little to report in the way of offshore action due to high seas. Expect fair action with king mackerel, wahoo and a few dolphin on the good days. Inside the Port, sheepshead and flounder are providing reliable action. Trout and redfish have been spotty in the Basasa and Indian rivers.

Huge winter flounder are besinning to make their final afinual appearance at Usbac-tion inlet. Flounder in the 3-5 pound range are in now, and the December. Finger mullet bounced slowly across the bot-tom are the top balts. Snook and redfish are also hitting, along with small bluefish and ladyfish.

Sheepshead and drum are the top news at Peace Inlet, and live or dead shrimp are the top baits. A few redfish are roaming in and out, and flounder are taking finger muliet on the south side of the south jetties. Trout and redfish are rated as good in Mosquite Legeen.

Blake leads Bengals into J-Ville

JACKSONVILLE - These are not good times for the Shula in Miami. Don Shula's Dolphine are struggling, while the Cincinnati Bungain, coached by sen Devid, are coming off a devastating less to Pittsburgh in which they surrendered 36 con-secutive points in the second

"Yeah, that was a tough loss," said David Shula, whose team had been talking playoffs before their collapse against the Steelers turned a 31-13 lead into a 48-31 defeat. "That was a big west for us, the biggest game around here in a long, long time. We played very well for 35 minutes and very poorly for 25 minutes. Unfortunately, those 25 minutes came at the end."

David said he talks every we with his father. When asked if he would share what they had discussed this week - the Dolphins were routed 44-20 by San Francisco on Monday night — the younger Shula replied succinctly. "No."

The Bengale (4-7) and Ban-fore's Jeff Blake, who are now focusing on a winning season rather than the playoffs, will be in Jacksonville Sunday to most the expansion Jaguars (3-8), who are dealing with their share

Not only have the Jaguars lost three in a row — including last week's 17-16 defeat at Tampa Bay, where they missed a 2-point conversion in the final minute – but four key starters are not expected to play because of injuries.

Heading the injury list are quarterback Mark Brunell, the team's leading passer AND rusher, and end Jeff Lageman, the emotional leader on defense.

The talented daughter of Valerie and George Weld, Natalie wowed the judges and audience with her tap dance interpretation of "Something's Got to Give" with Frank Sinatra doing the vocals. Her outstanding custom-made turquoise and white costume, detailed with Austrian crystals, added to the charm of the spirited dance.

The title "Petite Miss Dance of Central Florida," was won by petite Lacy Nobles, daughter of Fonda and Randy Nobles. The 10-year-old ballerina performed a ballet piece entitled, "Gavotte" to capture the title which is proclaimed as difficult to attain.

Class steps back to the early Colonial Days

Friday, Nov. 17 was Colonial Day in the second grade classes at Lake Mary Elementary. The children had been learning about the Mayflower, the Pilgrims and the first Thanksgiving for several weeks. Friday was their chance to learn what life was like, to a small extent, duing that time. Some of the teachers and the students even dressed for the occasion.

When children in Colonial times wanted a toy, they couldn't go to a toy store, they or their parents made the toy. Each second grader got to visit Stormer's Yarn Doll shop and make a yarn doll. In Lois

Gold Medal winner at 70 Has Katie found the 'Fountain of Youth?'

First of all, Katie Moncrief does not look like she could even be close to 70 years old. If you want to look as if you found the "Fountain of Youth," maybe canoeing is the answer. Of just maybe the"Fountain of Youth"is nestled somewhere along the Little Wekiva River where you'll find Katie at the famous Katie's Wekiva River Landing.

Katie Moncrief is this year's winner of the Gold Medal in the Sprint Canoe Race of the Golden Age Cames. Katie has been canoeing since she was a child and has lived on the water ever since she can remember: "I have to be near the water to live." she says, "it's my life." Many years ago, Katie and her husband, a professor at Seminole Community College, purchased a little fish camp and assumed they would hire people to run it; It didn't work out and as Katic assumed proprietorship, Katles Landing evolved.

Katic's Wekiva River Landing is located just five miles west of I-4 on State Route 46 and turn right on Wekiva Park Drive and travel one mile to the entrance to the Landing and Florida's most beautiful natural waterway. Katic's Landing offers a full service RV resort, Log Cabin rentals, and 55 large, full hook up sites that boast an umbrella of 600 trees, Cypress along the water's edge, the Live Oak pro-viding shade and the palmetto to remind you that you are in Florida. Canoe trips and hourly canoe rentals, Tenting, Fishing for Bream, Spec and Large Mouth Bass, bait and tackle and Licenses, a well stocked country store, and boat and canoe launching are also offered. Modern conveniences such as a full service laundry add to the comfort and enjoyment of outdoor living and visiting. A recreation hall provides TV, pot luck suppers, bingo and exercise classes. The outdoor entertainment of fers 400 feet of river's edge providing a panormaic view of the wild life, such as otter, deer, heron and ibis, as well as the canocists and boaters.

KOEGEL

There is no more pristine waterways in the State of Florida than the Wekiva River, nor are there more environmental designations for protection anywhere in the State of Florida which is why it is the most pleasurable for the canocists. From Kaite's, you can enjoy an hour or a day of paddling the Wekiva River. Viewing the wild critters, the birds and the fauna and flora that has not changed in 1000 years is an experiece not likely to be forgotten. In addition to your own scheduled trips.

scheduled trips that include pick up service beginning and ending your downstream cance runs at Katle's. The nine mile Little Wekiva River Run canoe trip is the favorite of most as Katle's is the only access to this primitive Litte Wekiva, a narrow fast running picturesque river. The last five miles are on the Wekiva. and many islands, which is wider and more trafficked. Paddling time for this journey is four to five hours.

The Rock Springs Run is a 19-mile run that departs Rock Sorings and runs nine and one half miles down Rock Springs Run and nine and and one half on the Wekiva. This is an excellent trip to do some primitive overnight camping as paddling time is six to eight hours.

The St. Johns River Run is from Katic's Landing to Emmanuel Landing and is the shortest of all at six miles, at two Katic also provides four different to three hours of paddling time.

This includes the lower basi and enjoys the scenic and wild designation, narrow with overhanging trees and is State owned and protected.

The Blue Springs Run is 12 miles long and especially designated for the experienced canocist as the waterways on the St. John's will be shared with motorboat traffic. The trip concludes at the park famous for the "wintering" manatees. Paddling time is five to six hours and is recommended on weekdays

As Katle discusses the Landing and the various cance trips, the trees, the fishing, the wildlife, the flowers, the sky, the water, you can feel her love of nature and how fortunate she is to be able to be here daily. Several times we were interruped by the ringing of the telephone, only to hear Katle say a few words and hang up. After about the fifth time, the tele-□ See Koogel, Page 68

ESO hears about dying St. Johns River

The Epsilon Sigma Omicron Chapter, a reading society of the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs, held the November meeting at the Loch Arbor home of Elisabeth Boyd with Fran Morton assisting as co-hostess.

Eighteen members of the chapter sat spellbound as Ruth Lee, representing Friends of the St. Johns, spoke on the deplorable condition of the onceenvironmentally sound river. Ruth gave the background of the river, from the bustling waterway to interior Florida to its present decaying condition. The dying river's pollution is traced to development and crowding.

Among the suggestions to help restore the river are to half development and curtail boaters' activities. The speaker distributed booklets and brochures to the members.

The hostesses served a variety of refreshments on the beautiful

BSP Chapter holds Holiday Giveaway

Preceptor Theta Nu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi has adopted Safehouse of Seminole for its project this year with Brenda Carey and Myriam Garrett as chairman. Last Saturday, sever-al members were outside Publix in Sanford for a Holiday Givenway. Essentially, shoppers paid 18 for a crack at a $100 gift certificate from Publix and the chapter. Charlotte Blades and Libby Gordon seemed to be having a good time helping at the charity benefit.

The drawing was held that night and the winner was Frank Anderson, according to Brenda Carey, chapter treasurer. The balance of the funds collected will be donated to Safehouse.

Congratulations

If you should see Rosanne and Roy Ramsey sporting around town in a new Mercedes, congratulate them because they deserve the luxury vehicle. It's their gift to themselves on their 40th wedding anniversary.

Happy birthday

One of Sanford's favorite ladies, Jean Leonard, will celebrate her birthday Nov. 29. Jean has been a tad under the weather for a long time and it's hard for her to get out due to a pulmonary condition. Extend her birthday greetings, but most of all, wish her well.

Readers sound off on prayer in school argument concerning prayer in school, and the actions of a school district in firing a principal who vio-lated a rule banning it: I believe the principal should, indeed, have been disciplined, in whatever manner the superintendent and school board saw fit. Not for calling for school prayer per se, but for violating a school ordinance and, in this case, a federal law.

As for prayer in school, I should like to see a few minutes set aside for silent prayer. The word "silent" is important because prayers recited aloud are sure to offend some member(s) of the class whose religions call for a different kind of prayer from the one being recited.

When there is silent prayer, the pupil may or may not pray, as he or she chooses, but has the option of praying without offending anyone and with great satisfaction to him or herself - and, I would venture to guess, the Lord, as well. CAROLINE K. IN LOS ANGELES

DEAR CAROLINE: I received a flood of mail about my answer regarding the issue of school prayer — some favorable, oth-ers critical. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I was appalled by the answer you gave Gary Buchanan of Monson, Mass., concerning the school principal who was fired for allowing prayer in school. You said you sided with the board of education.

I thought you were a citizen con-cerned with gang violence and all of its innocent victims.

Mr. Buchanan didn't stipulate what type of prayer should be allowed. Perhaps the principal allowed for a moment of silence for all to pray as they saw fit or not to pray, if that was their preference. Not bothering to find out, you arbi-trarily sided with the school board. Shame on you, Abby. I thought you were more objective than that. Prayer is preferable to guns and knives, any way you look at it! This will probably never make your column, but at least I hope you are aware of the poor taste you

Canoe race a hit

The first annual Seminole Family YMCA Paddling Feetival was a hit. About 30 people took advantage of the free bike trail ride set up by Lake Mary Cycles. And about 100 people turned out to race on the Wekiva River. Katie's Wekiva River Landing graciously hosted the paddling feetival. There was something for everyone to enjoy. Besides the bike riding and the canoeing, there were bluegrass bands to listen to and barbacue for lunch. There were outdoor equipment displays and kayak demonstrations.

Hobbyist of the Week

Cladens Richards, a squirrel collector, helds a real live baby squirrel on her shoulder.

A live squirrel is 'the pet' in collection of over 300

Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - Clodene Richards has been nuts about squirrels for over 16 years. Her collection has grown through the years to over 300 furry rodents.

She is found outside her Sanford home regularly replenishing the corn supply for neighboring squirrels. She has names for all those that frequent her property.

Her passion for the wiry-haired babies came from a story in "The New Winston Primer Book." The story was about a boy and his goat. According to Richards the boy was upset because he didn't want to go home and leave his goat. Later in the text a small squirrel came to talk to the boy and the squirrel then sympathized with his plight and began to also mourn. "I felt so sorry for the squirrel," she said. "I guess it was after reading that story that I really fell for them."

Her most recent four-legged friend is a three-week old baby named Susie. Her friend, Harriet Mixon of Lake Mary, gave Richards this little gem. Although a recent bout of pneumonia sent the newborn to Mixon's home for care and recuperation. Susie is now on the mend and loves to cuddle in her newly- found mommy's hands.

"Sometimes she gets cold at night and I have to wrap her in a small blanket and put her next to me," said Richards. "She still eats some of her food from an eye dropper. She's growing now and getting around much bet-

Richards previously kept a squirrel she named Casey for over 15 years. Before that time J.J. Squirrel lived in the cozy trees were in the picture so he opted for the great outdoors.

From living room to bedroom Richards home boasts her love of the furry creatures. Squirrels from one quarter inch to ten inches sit proudly on shelves and furniture.

Everything from suncatchers, cups, mugs, pins, lockets, bells, blocks, placemats and cookie jars all feature her beloved squirrel image. Scrapbooks of greeting cards and pictures are filled with the outdoor glow and smiling little fur balls.

The first of her collection was given in 1979 by her daughter. Susan. "It's a ceramic squirrel that sits on a log," she said. Many other items for her collection have been given by her other daughter, Dianne, or her grandchildren, Jennifer, Jason, Zachary and Tiffany. Numerous ceramic pieces and stationary have been a treat from family and friends. One of her favorites and most recent was a gift from her secret sister at church. "She gave me a stuffed squirrel holding a basket," said Richards. "It had a Thanksgiving candle and was filled with nuts. When Suale is big enough she'll enjoy those."

Most unusual in the pack was named as a wooden squirrel with movable legs and a marble paper weight. A wooden squirrel letter holder was also a unique treasure.

Although naming all the squirrels as her favorites, she cited a nuteracker and various ornaments as the best. "I do think my sweetest is one that has two squirrels decorating a turkey," she said. "They're hanging on. They are decorating home but he decided greener him with pumpkins and other fall things. Richards has been able to share her love of squirrels with her Sunday School class at the Sanford Church of Christ and with students from Pine Crest Elementary School during her time there as an assistant. She retired in 1993 after 21 years with the Seminole County School Board.

time when she purchased a large amount of nuts. "I got the meat out of the nuts for my pet squirrel," she said. "Then I took the nuts to my students and we made turkeys out of them." Picture frames with squirrels surrounding photos of loved ones, and teapots with cups of a squirrel's head and tail are displayed in her dining room.

She smiled as she shared a

Three plastic lawn squirrels greet visitors to her home. A trip to the clothes line brings a bit of nostalgia with a bird bath surrounded by a squirrel base.

Holidays are a great time to decorate. Squirrels with piligrim and Indian gear and Santa hats brighten the season.

Valentine, leprechaun, Easter and festive equirrels all add a bit of charm to all occasions. A equirrel wreath of tin punch art and straw made by her daughter, Dianne, hangs by her front door. A large puzzle assembled by Richards hangs in her

A music box featuring the tiny creatures plays "Oh What a Beautiful Morning," through the stillness. Even a hint of Chariema perfume from Avon is found in a squirrel decenter.

She concluded by saying." I just love little bitty squirrels. They're one of the best creatures made by God."

More and more people are going on-line. Through your computer, you can send e-mail and talk to people around the world for the cost of a local tele-phone call and a monthly fee. On the internet, there are discussion groups for but about assenthing. For example for just about everything. For example, on the second Thursday of each month at 8 p.m., you can powwow about potbellied pigs!

Today's deal was played on OKBridge. North was in Las Vegas, East in New York City, South in Florida and West in California.

Against five spades, West cashed the heart ace and switched to a club. After winning with the ace, East returned a club.

SHADDUP

by Leonard Starr

DEM PANS 11-25

WHILE ...

South, a world champion, ran the spade jack, but East won with the king and played the heart king, forcing declarer to ruff in the dummy. Now West had to score a trick with the spade nine for two down. Was South unlucky to find the spades like this, or did he mis-play?

I think he misplayed. Sitting East was John Lowenthal. If he didn't have the spade king, surely at trick three he would have led the heart king tor switched to a diamond), trying to lock declarer in the dummy so that he couldn't take the spade finesse.

Given that East has the spade king.

the best line is to play a diamond to dummy's king at trick four, cash the spade ace, dropping the king, lead a spade to hand and play a diamond toward the dummy. This minimizes the loss if East has four diamonds.

It was an imaginative defense by Lowenthal but, as he says, it shouldn't have worked.

Michael Milken's quest: Cure prostate cancer before it kills him

By DAMEL G. MANEY AP Science Writer

One very bad day almost three years ago, Michael Milken learned he had prostate cancer. It was the very day he got out of the Vinewood Community Correctional Center, a shabby halfway Bondy in Los Angeles where he finished up his two year prison stretch for securities fraud. He had maid $1.1 billion in fines and civil settlements. He was banned for life from the securities business. His name was a synonym for

Now this. Soon, he would learn just how much worse things could get. It turned out the cancer had already spread away from his prostate gland. It was an especially aggressive form and too late for surgery. At this stage, the cancer was incurable. Treatment could only delay the inevitable.

His doctor told him the odds: There was about a 30 percent chance he'd be dead within two years.

Three months later, Milken knew what he wanted. He went to a conference of urologists in San Antonio, Texas, and invited Dr. Patrick Walsh of Johns Hopkins University, perhaps the best-known prostate surgeon in the country, and some other big-name specialists to a 6 s.m.

What he proposed was pretty simple — an all-out "Manhattan project" to cure advanced prostate cancer. Milken asked the doctors to come up with their best ideas, and he'd do the rest. He'd bring in the brightest minds in the business; he'd supply the money; he'd get rid of the paper

"Our feeling was: Let's go out and recruit great thinkers who might be able to help us and ask them to work for a year or more on cancer, Milken said in a recent interview. "We wanted to see what we could do in a few years, not a few

Some hesitated at first. This was, after all, the man the media call "the diagraced junk bond king." Did they really want to link their reputations to his?

In time, many did. In a dozen interviews, researchers told of being impressed by Milken's determination, his intensity, his intellect. And, of course, his money: Milken's fortune has been estimated at $550 million.

"I've seen a lot of celebrities develop prostate cancer and be told good treatments are not available, and I've seen their reactions," Walsh said. "Michael's is very unusual and positive. He really is trying to change the world."

Since that meeting in May 1993, Milken has founded a prostate cancer foundation. He has spent $20 million of his own money on research. He has attracted some of the superstars of science to his problem. And he has, to hear the experts tell it, literally galvanized the field of advanced prostate cancer.

Certainly other rich people have made grand donations to study the ills that afflict them. In October, for example, industrialist Jon M. Huntaman Sr., who has had prostate and mouth cancer, pledged $100 million to the University of Utah to study cancer genetics. But no one in science can remember anything quite like Milken's attempt to vitalize and lead the nation's effort to control his own disease

His new organization, called CaP CURE, the Association for the Cure of Cancer of the Prostate, based in Santa Monica, Calif., is now the United States' second biggest sponsor of prostate research, behind the National Cancer Institute but ahead of the American Cancer Society.

Many of those who have spent their careers on this disease quietly doubt that Milken's Manhattan Project will succeed in time to help him. Curing prostate cancer, they say, is far, far harder than building the bomb. Yet they seem dassled by the way one determined wealthy patient has refocused their field.

Dr. Howard Scher of Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York calls CaP CURE's accomplishments "nothing short of miraculous."
"The energy that they have drawn to the field and the scope of the people they have attracted are unparalleled, he said.

When Milken began investigating his disease, he found a research backwater. Prostate cancer kills 40,000 men annually, almost as many victims as breast cancer, but with little of its ecientific of political caenet. At a meeting of the American Society of Clinical Oncology, for instance, there were 112 reports on breast cancer, compared to 37 on prostate cancer. "It was not seen as an interesting disease, because it only occurs in old men," said Dr. Harmon Eyre, the cancer society's research director. "There were no ideas about the cause. There was confusion about the treatment. And there were no new insights into what should be done in research. Then along come Bob Dole and Michael Milken."

Dole, a prostate cancer survivor, helped pass legislation that has doubled National Cancer Institute spending on prostate cancer since 1992. This year's budget is 950 million, compared with $313 million for breast cancer.

However, Dr. Stuart Holden, who is Milken's personal urologist at Cedars Sinai Medical Center in Los Angeles and CaP CURE's medical director. said he and Milken believe the problems with prostate research go beyond money.

"We tried to look at the whole field and see where the stumbling blocks were," he said.

One of the biggest was red tape. Getting money from the National Cancer Institute has turned into an almost full-time job for many senior researchers. Writing a proposal, revising it and waiting for a decision easily can take a year.

A brilliant idea alone is simply not enough. The competition is so great that the institute often demands preliminary data showing the research will succeed.

But CaP CURE is looking for brilliant ideas, ones that have no chance of backing from the cancer institute. It saks for a three- to five-page proposal and promises a quick answer.

"If I have a good idea, I write a five-page grant proposal instead of a 25- or 50-page one. It gets reviewed within six weeks, and the check is on my deak within a couple of months of when I wrote it," said Dr. William Catalons of Washington University.

In 1993, CaP CURE sot 85 requests and funded 30 of them. In 1994, there were 265 requests; it funded 46. This year, 529 researchers from around the world came to CaP CURE for research support, and it is backing 62.

The money has gone largely to the country's premier research institutions, such as Harvard, Johns Hopkins, Stanford, even the National Cancer Institute.

While CaP CURE is paying for some research into basic cancer biology, much of its money explores ideas that could — if they work quickly lead to treatments. These include experiments in gene therapy, cancer vaccines, vitamin treatments and dietary effects.

Holden said at least 10 of its projects have reached human testing. He and others from CaP CURE check in on the researchers regularly, bring them up to date on what others are finding and help keep them focused.

Milken himself "is arguably one of the biggest experts in the world in prostate cancer," said Dr. Philip Kantoff of the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute in Boston. "It's more than just philanthropy at this point. It's an organization that is trying to create something."

This includes building research tools that go beyond underwriting individual researchers. Call CURE has set up four tissue banks around the country to store prostate cancer cells for use in experiments. It is paying for a consortium, based at the University of Washington, that will try to sort out the genetic underpinnings of the disease. And it will fund a study of 360 families where prostate cancer is passed from father to son.

Milken hosts an annual retreat in Santa Barbara Calif. for another of his soals — getting academics and industry together. Stotech com-panies are invited to hear CaP CURE-backed researchers give brief talks on their work in the prostate research. Among them are Dr. Judah Folkman, a prominent Harvard physician who pioneered the study of tumors' blood supply, and the geneticists Leroy Hood of the University of Washington and Richard Mulligan of the Like others. Mulligan said it's Milken's personality, not just his money, that has rejuvenated the

"It is clear that his persuasive powers and ability to push things have made a world of difference," he said.

Whether all of this will belp Milken is unclear.
