

House Rejects Tampering With Plan

Reagan Headed For Budget Victory

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With Senate approval of his deep spending cuts and the makings of a steamroller that crushed House Democratic leaders, President Reagan today appeared headed toward total victory in the battle of the budget.

The Senate worked late into the night Thursday and approved a $39 billion budget-cutting measure designed to slash spending in virtually every area but defense and scale back domestic programs of the past 50 years.

It voted, 80-15, to approve the bill, unprecedented in size and scope.

Plowing through dozens of amendments, the Senate restored some funds that had been cut. But the massive bill, a short-cut measure changing numerous laws it would normally take months to debate, emerged from the Republican-controlled chamber in the basic form Reagan had endorsed.

The House prepared for a showdown vote today between a $37.7 billion package of budget cuts proposed by Democratic controlled committees and a package of revisions Reagan wants, but Democratic leaders oppose as overly harsh.

The House defied its Democratic leaders Thursday and set the stage for Reagan's allies to shove his package through the chamber in the form he wants.

On a 217-210 vote, Republicans won a crucial procedural question that basically allowed a single vote on the Reagan package. Democrats wanted it divided into six sections, meaning six separate votes that would have made it difficult for the package to survive intact.

That was followed quickly by a 214-208 final vote on the Republican position.

The vote actually would be taken in two parts, with separate action on energy proposals. But the major Reagan revisions were contained in one massive amendment several hundred pages long.

The House and Senate must work out differences between their two versions of the budget cuts before they become law.

Twenty-nine conservative Democrats voted with the Republicans on the key procedural vote Thursday.

Still, the number of defectors was only half the number that had joined Reagan on the vote that first put Congress on record for his general austerity goals.

Many Democrats complained they had no idea what was in the Reagan package, which was to arrive on their desks in final form only today.

"This body can no longer claim it's a legislative body," said Rep. Ted Weiss, D-N.Y. "It's a rubber stamp, and we don't know what's printed on the stamp."

House Democratic leaders complained the White House was trying to subvert the constitutional system of three equal branches of government by attempting to run Congress.

"No president, no president in the history of the United States ... ever demanded of Congress that we lie down submissive and give him everything he wants," Democratic Leader Jim Wright of Texas argued, with raised voice and waving his arms.

In Los Angeles with the president, deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said the White House was "extremely pleased" with the vote, which he said bodes "extremely well" for administration chances on the budget package.

But Reagan reportedly is taking no chances. He is keeping up a telephone lobbying effort to win votes from House Democrats who could make his win complete.

"We're not taking anything for granted," Speakes said.

He said Reagan believes his telephone calls Wednesday night and Thursday before the vote, mostly to Southern Democrats, were the key to his victory.

It was a heady triumph for the president and in addressing the California Taxpayers' Association Thursday, he said, "I've never felt better in these last five months than I feel in this particular moment today."

Seminole County congressmen and senators, U.S. Rep. Bill McCollum, R-Mass.; U.S. Rep. Bill McCollum, R-Altamonte Springs; U.S. Rep. Bill Chappell, D-Orla; Sen. Paula Hawkins, R-Winter Park; and Sen.

Lawton Chiles, D-Lakeland, all voted to permit a single vote to accept or reject the Reagan budget package. Democrats wanted it divided into six sections with six separate votes.

Both Sides Predict Win In Tax Cut Plan Battle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Now that the Senate Finance Committee has approved the administration's tax cut plan, the battle moves to the House — and today both Democrats and Republicans predicted they will win that fight.

The Republican-dominated Senate panel Thursday voted 19-1 for President Reagan's 33-month, 25 percent tax package, with Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., casting the lone negative vote.

In the House, Democrats unveiled their answer to the administration's tax proposal — a smaller, shorter tax cut beginning Oct. 1, 1981, that would reduce tax rates an average 15 percent over 21 months.

The Democratic tax cut calls for rate reductions in all brackets, but the bulk would be aimed more toward Americans in the $15,000 to $50,000 taxable income range. The cuts would average 10 percent in calendar year 1982. With an additional rate cut on July 1, 1982, the proposal's cumulative effect would be a 15 percent rate cut in calendar year 1983.

Part of the targeting would be accomplished by raising the standard deduction and increasing the earned income credit for the working poor.

The Democrats also proposed to phase down the maximum tax on investment income from 70 percent to 50 percent — which would mainly benefit middle and upper-income Americans — over two years rather than all at once as the administration wants. The Democrats also proposed an increase in the child care tax credit.

House Ways and Means Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., said the Democratic package also provides up to $3,000 in relief from the "marriage penalty" built into the tax system, compared to $5,000 proposed by the administration and supported by the Senate committee.

Treasury Secretary Donald Regan, buoyed by Thursday's administration budget victory, predicted today that "we will win again" in the House tax fight.

House Speaker Thomas O'Neill, D-Mass., had a different view. "Yes," he said, when asked on ABC's "Good Morning America" whether Democrats will win the House tax fight. "Because our tax bill is guided toward middle America."

"The awesome power of the president is unbelievable," O'Neill said. "But the president is slipping," the speaker added, referring to a recent Gallup poll.

Asked when the House might act, Regan said on NBC's "Today" show. "I'm still hopeful for Aug. 1, in spite of everything that has gone on." Democrats say they hope to have a bill out of committee in late July.

Trash Pickup System Revised

By SYBIL MITCHELL GANDY
Herald Staff Writer

Altamonte Springs residents can now expect a more efficient sanitation collection when a new procedure is implemented July 8.

According to Supervisor of Sanitation Tony Figueroa, the rescheduled routing system will help keep the sanitation fee at $3.50 a month but for how long, he couldn't say.

We are cutting departmental costs so collection fees won't go up so much. But with the rising cost of fuel and salaries, we can't really say how long the fee can remain where it is," Figueroa said.

On the present routing system, Figueroa explained, the crews start on one end of the city and work the entire length of Altamonte Springs. Although collections are made twice a week for the most part, some irregular pick-ups do occur because of the routing system.

With the incoming system, all collections west of Interstate 4 will be made on a Monday-Thursday route. That is pick-ups will be made twice a week on Mondays and Thursdays. Collections east of Interstate 4 and scheduled on a Tuesday-Friday route.

Figueroa explained that the department operates on three crews made up of four — a driver and three helpers on the back.

With the new collections, three crews of three will be used, thereby eliminating two workers. An extra man will be kept on as a back-up for the department, Figueroa said.

The Altamonte City Commission in a special work session June 18 gave Figueroa the go-ahead on this new proposal as a way of cutting back on sanitation department costs.

Commissioners had previously considered and rejected other cost-efficient options including a cart-collection machine system and the use of a private collection service.

The two department layoffs seemed to be the most feasible, they said. According to Figueroa, one of the extras has already been transferred to the Streets Department. But the most recent employee in the sanitation department was laid off today.

Officials said his position had to be eliminated altogether. Besides salary payment the city owed him up to the point of termination, the dismissed worker received two weeks salary plus vacation pay.

By Appeals Court

Phone Co. Fees Knocked Down

A decision by the 5th District Court of Appeal this week overturning Seminole County's occupational license fees charged to Southern Bell Telephone Co. could be a landmark case affecting the entire state of Florida, said County Attorney Nikki Clayton today.

For this reason Clayton said the ruling may be appealed to the state Supreme Court. But, she added, a firm decision on whether to appeal must wait until she receives an official copy of the appellate court decision. So far she has only received a summary.

After the Florida Legislature in 1980 authorized cities and counties to raise occupational license fees by 100 percent in some cases and by 50 percent or 25 percent in others, the county commission last summer voted to increase the rates of telephone companies. Their rates are based upon a fee per telephone.

Prior to the increase, the county had been levying a fee of 15 cents per telephone for the first 1,000 telephones, 12 cents per phone for the second 1,000 and nine cents per telephone thereafter.

The new fees, adopted by the county commission last year, called for a rate of 25 cents per telephone for the first 1,000; 18 cents per phone for the second 1,000 and 9 cents per telephone thereafter.

Appellate Court Judge Warren Cobb said the county shouldn't have raised its rate to more than 18.75 cents per 1,000 telephone for the first 1,000; nor more than 15 cents per phone for the second 1,000; nor more than 11.25 cents per phone thereafter, an increase of 25 percent.

The law passed by the Legislature permits increases of 100 percent to those companies which were charged less than $100 for occupational licenses; 50 percent to those companies which were charged more than $100, but less than $300; and 25 percent to those which were charged more than $300. —DONNA ESTES

Maryland Storm Injures Dozens

United Press International
Thunderstorms packing hurricane-force winds battered the Mid-Atlantic states, leaving more than 100,000 people without power today in Maryland and New Jersey.

Dozens of Maryland residents were injured in storm. At least four people were being treated at area hospitals.

Rains threatened new flooding in Missouri and the National Guard was called to Lafayette, Ind., in the wake of a tornado and a fierce storm.

Forecasters predicted that a cold front pushing downward from Canada would break by the weekend the South's heat wave that has killed eight people in Georgia and Alabama.

More rain and thunderstorms were forecast today for Pennsylvania, Maryland, New Jersey and Delaware, lashed by savage storms Thursday.

He'd Lose 40 Pounds For A Camel

HAMPTON BEACH, N.H. (UPI) — If Jim Kennedy hadn't lost 40 pounds, Michael Daboul wouldn't have to ride a camel through town Saturday.

It all started when Daboul bet restaurateur John Tinnius their pal Kennedy would not lose 40 pounds by June 1.

Daboul loftily wagered a camel ride through Hampton. Tinnius, as his ante, offered Daboul and his family of seven free meals for a year at his Galley Hatch Restaurant. Kennedy dropped from 215 pounds to 175 pounds by the deadline, forcing Daboul to find a camel.

Daboul, whose family hails from Beirut, Lebanon, said he will begin his trip of "3 or 4 miles" Saturday morning from his home to the Galley Restaurant and a snug Tinnius.

Where will Daboul get the camel? "I'm trying to keep it a secret," he said.

Housing Authority Info Goes To Federal Grand Jury

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Information being gathered by the Federal Bureau of Investigation on the operations of the Sanford Housing Authority's housing rehabilitation program will be turned over to the Federal Grand Jury, said FBI Senior Agent Perry Doran.

While Doran declined to name the complainant who initiated the investigation, he did say that it was not the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Agents of the FBI earlier this week served subpoenas demanding access to housing authority records of the housing rehabilitation program earlier this week. A subpoena was also served on the architectural and planning firm of Gutmann and Dragash for records of the program. The Sanford-based firm did consulting work for the authority.

Although Authority Attorney Ned N. Julian Jr. said FBI agents were to be in the authority offices at city hall reviewing and examining the records this week, Doran refused to say exactly when the examination will take place or if it has already taken place.

The city of Sanford withdrew its sponsorship of the rehabilitation program on recommendation of City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles earlier this year. Knowles urged the withdrawal after finding that more than $500,000 in federal funds had been spent by the Authority for home acquisitions, renovation and resale while work had been completed on only eight houses.

Knowles also complained at the time that no one person at the Authority office could be looked to as the responsible party in the program and thus accountable in the program.

Under the federally-funded program through HUD, houses were to be purchased, renovated and resold to low-income families.

A private audit of the program, conducted at the city's request earlier this year, found poor accounting procedures were used by the Authority in administering the program and that some records either did not exist or were missing. A HUD audit was also done.

Lewis Cox, executive director of the Authority, was out of town and unavailable for comment today. Julian said however that Cox doesn't feel the Authority itself has any legal problems, "but there may be other situations," he added.

Thomas Wilson, who served as housing authority director until he was fired by the Housing Authority Board of Directors last November after a vote of no confidence, said he hasn't been contacted by the FBI. "I stand ready and willing to cooperate with the FBI or any other federal or local agency to clear this matter up," he said. "This is keeping my family in a turmoil. It is being made to look like Tom Wilson is the culprit when the grand juries are others," he said.

Earlier this week, Sanford City Commissioners voted unanimously to replace Authority Chairman Edward Blackheare and board member D.C. McCoy on the board of directors. The terms of both expired in May and both had indicated a willingness to continue serving in the unsalaried job.

Named instead to the five-member board were Sanford businessman Joseph Caldwell and teacher Eliza Pringle. The Housing Authority Board with the new members is scheduled to meet July 9.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Soviet-Polish Troops Train Within Southwest Poland

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Poland announced Polish and Soviet troops have begun joint training exercises in southwest Poland and the Soviet Union indirectly warned events are pushing Poland toward a "catastrophe."

The announcement of the joint training exercise came as Solidarity and government ended talks Thursday with both sides calling for moderation during preparation for their important conclaves this summer — Solidarity's first congress and an emergency party congress. The party congress, July 14-18, could formalize Poland's reform movement.

"The period of confrontation is over," Walesa told 25,000 people who gathered in the industrial city of Radom, 70 miles south of Warsaw to mark the fifth anniversary of bloody food-price riots there. "Let no one think we have won," Walesa said. "Now the toughest period begins. I call upon you to be united and sensible."

Bush: Confidence In Britain

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's government will slash Britain's once mighty fleet of expensive surface warships, but Vice President George Bush expressed confidence today the American ally will live up to its NATO commitments.

"We understand Britain has financial difficulties just as we do," Bush said. "But we are confident she will keep her commitments."

Bush returned to Washington today with what he described as "a new sense of confidence in the (NATO) alliance" after meetings in London Thursday with Mrs. Thatcher and in Paris with French President Francois Mitterrand.

Bid To Oust Begin

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — In a dramatic bid for unity four days before elections, Shimon Peres drafted bitter rival Yitzhak Rabin as his choice for defense minister in a last-ditch Labor Party effort to overtake Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

Peres' selection of Rabin for the second most important Cabinet post came only one hour after the broadcast of his Thursday election debate with Begin, with a Labor Party-commissioned Gallup Poll showing Peres the victor — 57 percent to 43 percent of those telephoned.

With all recent polls showing Begin surging ahead, Peres and Begin moved to heal their longtime rift that analysts said had hindered Labor in its bid to unseat Begin and woo the 25 percent of the undecided electorate in Tuesday's vote.

NATION IN BRIEF

$1.5 Million In Gold Pieces Found In Septic Tank

ALBION, Ill. (UPI) — A farm couple struggling to overcome last summer's devastating drought found an answer to their financial woes in their own backyard. They struck gold in their septic tank.

Bill and Doris Collins discovered 75 old gold pieces, worth perhaps $1.5 million, that may have been buried by a wealthy Englishman during the California Gold Rush.

The windfall couldn't have come at a better time. The Collins, who bought their 40-acre farm in 1977, had a meager crop because of last year's drought.

Both were working two jobs to help support their four children and doing a lot of worrying about how they would meet mortgage payments. To make matters worse, the septic tank fell through the backyard.

In replacing the tank and septic lines last week, the Collins family struck gold. They found $20 gold pieces minted in the mid-1800s. Neighbors said there have always been rumors treasure was buried on the farm.

The coins, which immediately were taken to a bank for safety, were dated between 1850 and 1860. One of the pieces was damaged by the shovel digging septic lines and Mrs. Collins gave it to her brother. He sold it for $900.

A Chicago coin specialist said coins from that decade could be worth from $2,600 to $20,000 each — or from $195,000 to $1.5 million for all 75 coins. He said they would have to be studied in order to make an exact appraisal.

Neighbors said a number of people have, in the past, dug all over the property now owned by the Collins in search of the treasure. Albert Glover, a farmer in his 80s whose land adjoins the Collins farm, said he heard gold "was buried there since I was a kid."

'Angel' Brings $2,000

HOUSTON (UPI) — The anonymous "angel" appeared again, bringing $1,000 gifts to two more families victimized by two con artists who rented the same house to at least eight tenants.

The middle-aged woman, who drives a white Cadillac and says God sent her, Thursday visited Jean Zapalac and John Ellis. The same woman gave $1,000 gifts Tuesday to four families at the suburban house that was leased to at least eight families, or individuals, who lost deposits and rent totaling $4,000.

Ellis said the woman "gave me the same amount as the others, $1,000." But the woman's identity remains a mystery.

Victim Found Cop When He Needed One

By BRITT SMITH
Herald Staff Writer

Remember the old saw about there never being a cop around when you need one? Well, don't tell it to W.D. Moran III. He needed one. He found one. And three men are in jail today because of it.

According to Casselberry Police Chief George Karcher, this is what happened:

Moran, 40, of 455 Lakeside Place, came home about 1:35 a.m. Wednesday and heard noises and saw shadows moving about his house. "He wasn't going to take any chances so he got the hell out of there and went and tried to wake up some of his neighbors," Karcher said. "But it was real early and he couldn't get any of them up so he jumped in his car and drove out to U.S. Highway 17-92 and flagged down one of our men."

But by the time Moran got back to his house with the police, the bandits were gone, having escaped with some rare coins and jewelry valued at less than $100.

By this time, other Casselberry police units had arrived on the scene and officers tracked the fleeing suspects through some woods by following their footprints. They finally caught up with Marshall E. Berry, 32, of Daytona Beach, who was hiding in some brush.

A short while later, Larry D. Collard, 23, of Deltona, was spotted by police hitchhiking on Highway 17-92.

The third suspect — Theon Heisserer, 20, of Lincoln, Neb. — was seen having a cup of coffee in Sambos, Highway 17-92 and Dog Track Road. "He looked kind of suspicious, all scratched and his clothes torn, so the officer questioned him and found he was one of our suspects," Karcher said. It was later discovered that Heisserer is also wanted in St. Louis County, Mo. for burglary.

Heisserer is being returned to Missouri while Berry and Collard were charged with night prowling, burglary to an unoccupied dwelling, resisting arrest without violence, and petty theft. They are being held in the Seminole County Jail. They may be joined shortly by a fourth suspect. "We have his identity, we just have to find him," Karcher said.

PREACHER CHARGED

A 50-year-old self-employed Baptist preacher has been arrested for lying around nude in the back yard of his Altamonte Springs home.

Lester William Rawlins of 867 Preble Ave., was arrested at his home about 8 p.m. Thursday charged with committing a lewd and lascivious act in the presence of a child and was released from the Seminole County Jail under $8,000 bond.

The charge stems from an incident last week in which Rawlins was seen by some neighborhood children lying on a lawn chair in his backyard allegedly engaged in a lewd act.

THREE YOUTHS ARRESTED FOR RAPE

An 18-year-old Sanford youth and two juveniles were in jail today accused of raping a 13-year-old girl.

Eugene Anderson of 104 McKnly Blvd. was in the Seminole County Jail without bond charged with sexual battery in connection with the Wednesday night rape of a young girl at Seminole High School. The two juveniles, whose names were being withheld because of their age, were incarcerated at the county juvenile detention center on sexual battery charges.

According to Sanford Det. Sgt. Roy Williams, the incident occurred about 8:30 p.m. when the girl was using a pay telephone outside the school. The boys rode up on bicycles, threw the girl to the ground and assaulted her, Williams said.

WOMAN STABBED WITH ICE PICK

A 21-year-old Sanford woman was in fair condition at Seminole Memorial Hospital today recovering from a stab wound suffered at a friend's house Wednesday afternoon.

Loretta Cooper, of 615 Palmetto Ave., told sheriff's deputies that she was visiting a friend — Clem Mitchell, Burrows Lane, Sanford — when she got into an argument with another woman around 3:30 p.m.

The woman reportedly pulled an ice pick from her pocket and stabbed Cooper once in the left side, puncturing her lung. Deputies were searching for the assailant this morning.

ATTORNEY'S HOME BURGLARIZED

Longwood attorney Gene Stephenson forgot to turn on the burglar alarm at his home Thursday and it may have cost him $15,000.

Stephenson, 46, of 1140 Markham Woods Road, told Seminole County sheriff's deputies that someone broke into his home between 8:45 a.m. and 2:15 p.m. by tearing the screen from a back porch door and then smashing a window.

Once inside, thieves took a 13-piece setting of sterling silver flatware, a silver tray, and assorted pieces of jewelry. Value of the stolen merchandise was estimated at $15,000.

DIRTY DEEDS AT LAUNDRY

Sanford police were searching for clues today to the early morning burglary at Quality Cleaners, 1410 W. 13th St.

According to a police report, burglars entered the business about 4 a.m. by smashing a window. Amos Terry, a laundry worker who lived in the building, was awakened by the noise and scared away two suspects.

But not before they stole $150 cash, $50 worth of liquor, a $450 adding machine, and $135 radio-tape player.

Atlanta

Bridge Stake-Out Failure Puts Severe Strain On Case

ATLANTA (UPI) — The lucky break that police had awaited for nearly two years may have come — and gone — on a bridge over the Chattahoochee river a few hours before dawn on May 22, leaving them with nothing but red faces and a loud splash.

It has yet to be officially revealed why the officers staking out the South Cobb-Jackson Parkway bridge that morning can't say whether Wayne B. Williams threw the body of Nathaniel Cater into the river. But their failure to accomplish their task poses a severe strain on the case against the pudgy, 23-year-old black man.

Williams first came to the attention of police after he was stopped near the bridge, two days before 27-year-old Nathaniel Cater's body was found in the river about a mile downstream from the bridge.

Williams was charged with killing Cater, the last of 28 Atlanta murder victims. But at a preliminary hearing this week, officers had to acknowledge that although they had a clear view of the bridge that morning they could not say whether Cater had stopped his car, much less whether he heaved anything over the railing.

Rookie officer James "Freddy" Jacobs, stationed on the road level at the Fulton County end of the bridge that morning, testified that he received a radio call about 3 a.m. from officer Robert Campbell, who was on the river bank on the Cobb County side.

"Freddy," Campbell said, "is there anyone on the bridge up there? Because I just heard a loud splash down here."

Jacobs testified that his job was to watch the surface of the bridge for cars stopping or other suspicious activity. But he said he had noticed nothing until he heard from Campbell, whereupon he saw "a car close to the edge of the bridge. Normally cars will be out in the middle of the lane. I noticed the car moving really slowly ... like it was coming from a parked position."

When asked by attorney Mary Welcome if he was asleep before the radio call, Jacobs replied "No

ma'm."

He was not asked for an explanation of why it took a radio call to alert him to the fact that there was a car on the bridge. He said Williams' car was one of only about five vehicles to cross the bridge during his shift.

After spotting the car, the young policeman said he radioed his superior, officer Carl Holden, in an unmarked car near a liquor store just down from the bridge. Holden testified that he saw the car coming off the bridge about the same time Jacobs radioed.

Jacobs and Holden said they saw Williams' white station wagon leave the bridge and turn around in the liquor store parking lot. The officers said the auto never stopped, although Williams recently told reporters that he stopped to make a telephone call in front of the store.

Holden said he followed Williams as he left the liquor store and headed back across the bridge.

FBI agent Greg Gilliland, stationed in an unmarked chase car on the Cobb County side of the bridge, pulled onto the South Cobb Parkway behind Holden's car and the two followed Williams to the entrance ramp of Interstate 285, where they stopped and questioned him. But Holden admitted they did not search Williams or his car, nor did they confiscate two bags full of clothing and a pair of shoes they saw in the wagon.

Suspect Was Recruiting Project Kids To Be 'Entertainers'

ATLANTA (UPI) — The 23-year-old self-styled talent scout accused of killing the last of Atlanta's 28 murdered young blacks reportedly was recruiting youngsters interested in being "professional entertainers" at a housing project before two of its residents disappeared.

Sam Butts, recreation director at the Thomasville Heights housing project, said Wayne B. Williams showed up there twice last year — and one of the victims told him he had signed a contract with someone.

Butts told WSB-TV "we couldn't get any real information" on what Williams was doing, "so we were kind of leery about it."

He said Williams came to the project before the disappearance of Patrick Rogers, 16, whose body was found in the Chattahoochee River, and Aaron Jackson, suffocated and left under a roadway bridge.

The two boys disappeared nine days apart last November.

Butts said Rogers told him he had written some songs, and "Patrick stated to me he had a contract working with someone who was going to manage him." He mentioned no name, Butts said.

Annie Rogers, Patrick's mother, said her son told her on the day he disappeared that he and a friend "were going to go with some man to a studio to record" some of his songs.

"The Monday they were supposed to go record, he couldn't find the other boy," she told UPI. "I believe he went by himself."

"I didn't see Patrick no more." Williams littered black areas, especially schools and recreation centers, with handbills urging any youngster who wanted to be a "professional entertainer" to contact him for "private and free" interviews — "no experience necessary."

Williams is charged with the murder of Nathaniel Cater, 27, whose body was found in the Chattahoochee River on May 24. Cater was by four years the oldest of all the victims. Five of the last six victims were adults; all the rest were under 17.

Although Williams identified himself as a free-lance photographer, music promoter and artist's manager, reporters have been unable to locate anyone he had managed.

While the task force handling the children's murders pursued its investigation of Williams' background, police in two adjoining counties announced the bathtub murders of three young women over the past three months apparently were the work of the same killer.

Fulton County Deputy Police Chief said investigators from Fulton and DeKalb counties are "95 percent certain" the same man strangled Patricia Berry, 22, Louise Dal Santo, 21, and Giselle Clardy, 23, and dumped them in apartment bathtubs.

Graham said "based on the similar method of operation, we are working as if they are related."

Authorities said composite drawings produced independently from witnesses in each case show a 25- to 30-year-old white man with a powerful build, square face and reddish-brown hair.

Miss Berry was killed June 15. Miss Dal Santo died April 13, and Miss Clardy May 29. Authorities said the first two victims were raped, but there was no indication Miss Berry was sexually assaulted.

Man Who Tortured, Killed Children To Die

TALLAHASSEE, (UPI) — A man convicted of torturing and killing his two children more than nine years ago will die in the electric chair late next month if state and federal appeals don't stop his execution.

Gov. Bob Graham Thursday signed a black-bordered death warrant for Ernest J. Dobbert, of Jacksonville. Florida State Prison officials immediately set his execution for 7 a.m. July 22.

Dobbert, 43, was convicted of the 1971 murder of his 9-year-old daughter, Kelly, and the 1972 murder of his 11-year-old son, Ryder Scott. The bodies of the two children were never found.

Dobbert's other son, Ernest John Dobbert III, now 21, was a key witness in his father's trial. He said he helped his father bury his brother and sister after he beat them to death. The younger Dobbert was unable to lead authorities to the burial sites, however.

Dobbert's execution is the second scheduled for July. Earlier this month, Graham signed a warrant for Lewis Leon Aldridge, 41, who is scheduled to die July 15 for the shotgun-slaying of his employer in Fort Pierce in 1974.

Relatives Can Sue

TALLAHASSEE, (UPI) — Relatives of a person killed in an accident can now file wrongful death claims even if they weren't financially dependent on the deceased.

Gov. Bob Graham Thursday signed the measure (SB 150), which would also raise from 21 to 25 the maximum age for parents to sue for the loss of a daughter or son.

When the bill first came to the Senate floor in April, it touched off a bitter debate that revealed for the first time the depth of the feud between Senate President W.D. Childers and then — Rules Chairman Dempsey Barron.

Four Bandits Arrested

MAHATHON, (UPI) — Four bandits who took $200,000 worth of watches, necklaces, charms and other jewelry from a Marathon jewelry store made it only as far as Islamorada, 40 miles up the Florida Keys, before being captured.

Betty Knowlton, a clerk at the Bailey Jewelry Store, managed to set off a silent alarm before the four robbers forced her and the owner Mary Mancell at gunpoint into a back room Thursday and tied them to a chair with telephone wire, a Monroe County Sheriff's spokesman said.

Though the bandits escaped before deputies arrived, the alert was out, and 45 minutes later deputies stopped a black, late-model Pontiac Le Mans in Islamorada. Inside was a brown bag filled with jewelry, a .357 magnum revolver, a .38 caliber pistol and a .22 caliber pistol, deputies said. The four occupants, all from Hialeah, Fla., were arrested.

State Can Control Aged

TALLAHASSEE, (UPI) — The state has the right to place adults suffering from the "infirmities of aging" under temporary supervision when they are found incapable of caring for themselves.

The state Supreme Court Thursday ruled that Florida laws which place adults in emergency custody if they can't care for themselves are not a violation of the state constitutional requirements of due process.

Eliminate Sex Harassment, Graham Orders Agencies

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Gov. Bob Graham has ordered government agencies to eliminate sexual harassment, which, according to a University of West Florida study, about 50 percent of the women working for the state face.

Graham Thursday issued an executive order directing state agencies "to assure enforcement and observance" of state laws prohibiting sexual harassment.

He acted in response to a study and public hearings by the Florida Commission on the Status of Women.

"It is unfortunate you have to issue an executive order to emphasize that we're going to enforce the law...but sometimes, sending the message again and again is the kind of battering necessary," Graham said.

He promised to monitor agencies under his direct supervision to see that the order is carried out and that, in addition, the movement to hire more women in better-paying and policy-making positions in government continues.

University of West Florida professor James Renick, in a 1979 study, sent surveys to 1,786 women employed by 37 state departments in 67 cities. He got responses from 49 percent.

Sixty-four percent of those responding felt that "sexual harassment is a serious problem for working women." Seventy-seven percent agreed that "unwelcome male attentions on the job are offensive" and 46 percent reported experiencing one or more incidents of sexual harassment while at work.

The reported incidents ranged from suggestive looks and sexual remarks to propositions and coercive sex.

Four percent of those responding said they had been denied promotions at some time because they refused to grant sexual favors to male supervisors, with 2 percent saying they had been involuntarily transferred, 2 percent saying they had been fired and 7 percent saying they had quit because of the problem.

Gene Flynn of Miami was reprimanded by his House colleagues last year on charges he sexually harassed female aides. He was defeated for reelection last fall, largely because of that controversy.

Jackson County Circuit Court Clerk Raymond Brunner was cited by the Ethics Commission for harassing female employees and aides and suspended by Gov. Graham. He was defeated in a bid for re-election last fall.

Graham challenged the commission during the upcoming year to concentrate on the impact of crime on women, including programs to help women keep from becoming rape victims.

The governor also asked the group to study the way the Department of Corrections deals with women offenders.

Site Change Agreed For Psychiatric Facility

Hastily organized opposition to a proposed 80-bed psychiatric hospital by residents of the Goldenrod area was de-fused Thursday night when Health Care Corp. of Chattanooga, Tenn., agreed to find a site more acceptable to the community.

An application for a state permission to build the facility in Seminole County was recommended for approval by the Health Systems Agency of East Central Florida (HSA-ECF) board Thursday night in the last step before going to the State Department of Health and Rehabilitation for licensing.

By amending its application to build on a site other than the 75 acres on Howell Branch Road near the Orange County line and north of Aloma Avenue, Health Care Corp. may forfeit its $10,000 deposit on the property, said David Brisiel, an official for the firm.

More than 100 concerned area residents attended the HSA meeting Thursday night at the University Inn of East Highway 50 to present a petition opposing the Howell Branch hospital site.

After becoming aware of Health Care Corp.'s intentions, Don Grider, president of the Village Green Homeowners Association, led a 48-hour drive to collect 774 signatures on a petition.

About 10 opponents of the location including

Grider, the Eastbrook School ITA president, presidents of other home owners associations and residents were given the opportunity to voice their objections.

The residents objected on the grounds that the proposed facility is in proximity to an alcoholic rehabilitation center to be operated eight miles from the proposed facility, and it would result in increased traffic on Howell Branch Road. The residents also expressed concern for the safety of the surrounding community should patients walk away from the hospital.

"Everyone was surprised," said Grider referring to Brisiel's agreement to look for another site. "We never suggested that a psychiatric facility is not needed for Central Florida or that the applicant is not qualified, we just questioned the appropriateness of the proposed site."

"We were pleased that it turned out like it did and we got what we wanted."

The HSA-ECF board pointed out to those attending that it did not control zoning or location for the proposed facility. The Howell Branch Road location formerly proposed was commercially zoned and it would have not been necessary to seek a variance from Seminole County for the facility to be built there, they said. — JANE CASSELBERRY

Insulate your water heater from Big Bill.

Give Big Bill the cold shoulder—install a water heater insulation blanket. (Our energy audits indicate over 80% of all homes would benefit.)

You can save about $20 every year. Because the blanket reduces energy consumption by reducing heat loss.

And installation is simple. Just measure your water heater, cut the blanket to size, wrap and tape. (Extra-capacity units may require two blankets.)

So buy an insulation blanket at building supply, hardware or home center stores and departments. It should pay for itself in a year or so. After that, it will pay you. It's one more way to hold down Big Bill.

Examining The Energy Issue

There is such a surplus of oil on the world market that exporters are cutting their prices to try to find more buyers. This doesn't mean the "energy crisis" is over, but it does mean we can look at our energy problems with more assurance that they are manageable.

A year ago the American Petroleum Institute issued a report declaring that under the right circumstances the United States could cut its oil imports in half by 1990. Now, the API has issued a revised version of the report, based on developments in the past year, and it concludes that such a reduction is not just theoretically possible but a reasonable and reachable goal.

This judgment is not based on the current softness in oil prices, which could end abruptly if there is a disruption in supplies from the Middle East. Sooner or later, the world oil price can be expected to stabilize, and even rise again, when the present gap between supply and demand disappears.

What is more significant is what oil prices are telling us about energy production and consumption — the reaffirmation of simple economic laws. When the price of a commodity goes up, demand goes down. We see this in the switch to smaller, more fuel-efficient cars, the new interest in solar heating and home insulation, a rising demand for coal, and a host of other trends triggered by the steep rise in oil prices in the 1970s.

But higher prices for a commodity also stimulate production. We see this in the boom in drilling for oil and gas around the world, and especially in the United States since the phasing out of price controls on domestic oil. We see it in the more favorable economics for production of "synfuel" substitutes for petroleum-based fuels.

These developments — reflected in dramatic declines in our oil imports in the past year — suggest that the energy crisis may not be quite so formidable as a long-range threat to our economy and our national security. But whether we can cut our dependency on foreign oil in half within a decade still depends on a host of variables — not the least of them the public's attitude toward energy issues and the way this is reflected in government policies.

How far are we willing to go, for instance, in opening more public lands and offshore areas to drilling for oil and gas? How much are we willing to compromise in environmental protection standards for the sake of producing and burning more coal, especially in pristine areas of the West? Are we willing to build the nuclear power plants that could triple the amount of electricity derived from uranium by 1990?

The answers to such questions will determine how much of our energy inventory a decade from now comes from sources abroad. In turn, those answers will determine to what extent our national security will remain at risk because of dependency on oil from the volatile Middle East and how much of our national wealth—$80 billion last year — will be flowing out to cover bills for imports.

In short, our vulnerability to a crisis-level shortage of energy in the coming decade will be affected to a great extent by our own decisions. The United States began this decade covering 20 percent of its total energy needs with imported oil. When the American Petroleum Institute projects a scenario that would reduce this to a more comfortable 10 percent by 1990, it calls for decisions that would differ from those advocated, say, by the Sierra Club.

And that is what the "energy issue" is all about as Congress and a new administration look at our options for the 1980s.

"Baseball strike — withdrawal symptoms?"

Around

The Clock

By BRITT SMITH

A top priority of the Ayatollah Khomeini's government in Iran is the composition of an inspiring national anthem. Everyone knows you can't have a good nation without a socko song that people can sing at football games.

Ever since the revolution that deposed the Shah, Tin Pan Alley has been working unsuccessfully on a song for Iran. Not long ago, I looked in on two friends of mine, Al and Leo, who, despite all the bad news coming out of the Middle East these days, were still determined to come up with a tune Iran could be proud of.

When I walked into their office, Al was singing, "It's a long way to Teheran—It's a long way to go—Keep your eye on those Israelis—They're a rough bunch, you know."

Al tore up the manuscript in disgust. "I just can't seem to get it. Nothing sounds right."

Leo chimed in, "I don't know what's the matter with us." He paused with inspiration. How do you like this one? "Pack up your grenades in your old kit bag and smile, smile, smile."

"Sorry," I said. "It just doesn't send me."
"The trouble with that damn country," Al said, is that it has too many sociological aspects. It's too bloody complicated."

"That's right," Leo nodded. "Have you ever tried to write lyrics about Mig jets or Suni Moslems? I tell you it's downright discouraging. Do you know that we used to be the best theme song writers in the business?"

"We wrote the Viet Cong Polka in a day," Al beamed. "Ah, those were the good old days," Leo gushed, "back when you could really get your teeth into a song."

"Just look at the raw material we have to work with now," Al groaned. "Khomeini is a bearded old cleric who runs around in a bathrobe killing people. Not your run-of-the-mill inspirational stuff."

"It could be a problem," I agreed.

Khomeini has been begging us for months to write a little ditty about him and country. He said he was tired of all that chanting in the streets. The noise was giving him migraines," Leo said.

"We're not copping a plea," Al added, "but this Khomeini just doesn't cut it. I mean, face it, the guy is a '57 Edsel in the showroom of life. He has taken all the fun out of theme song writing."

I tried to be encouraging. "I can't believe it guys. After all these years, you two can't set the Holy One to music? Come on. You can come up with something."

Full of new resolve, Al sat down at the piano and started to sing: "Over there—Over there—Send the word—Send the word—To beware—Without intervention—There'll be retribution—And we won't think twice till it's over, over there."

Leo mused, "It's no 'Star Spangled Banner.'"

Al continued singing: "We'll be over—We're coming over—And we won't be through till it's been clearly established that the Ayatollah Khomeini, defender of the faith and bringer of universal harmony, has vanquished Bani-Sadr, slain his Westerner countrymen, and bombed Iraq into an oily pile of sand, Amen."

"It has a ring to it," I told Al, "but it doesn't rhyme. And it'd be hard to dance to. I'd give it a 65."

A New Wilbur Mills

WASHINGTON (NEA) — In what are remembered as the good old days on Capitol Hill — before the influx of bright younger representatives in the mid-1970s ended the traditional omnipotence of the committee chairmen — tax law was the private preserve of Wilbur Mills, the longtime chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Many observers of the current tax debate think that the new chairman of that committee want to become another Wilbur Mills. He is Dan Rostenkowski of Illinois.

Rostenkowski — widely known as "Danny" on Chicago's West Side, which he has represented in Congress for 22 years — has devoted his entire life to the kind of power politics that are practiced almost exclusively by Chicago's Democratic machine.

He still lives in the house where he reared his four daughters, where his father reared him and where his grandfather reared his father. The building also contains the tavern that was run by his mother and the 32nd Ward Democratic Club that was run by his father, a legendary alderman and ward committee chairman. Rostenkowski inherited the club from his father along with his posts as ward committeeman and member of the powerful Cook County Democratic Central Committee.

Rostenkowski, like many young men in Chicago, began his political career by representing his father's district in the Illinois legislature. He eventually caught the eye of Mayor Richard J. Daley and was dispatched to Washington to serve in the House and to be the mayor's eyes and ears there.

Rostenkowski quickly rose in the Democratic ranks thanks to his skill at the style of politics that dominated the House in those days. He was elected chairman of the Democratic caucus and was on the threshold of real power in early 1971 when he made his biggest political error.

Rostenkowski backed Hale Boggs of Louisiana for majority leader on the condition that Boggs would support him for majority whip, the third highest position in the House leadership. Boggs succeeded, but Rostenkowski did not. He was blackballed by Speaker Carl Albert, who was still smarting over the treatment he received from Daley and the Chicago machine at the 1968 Democratic Convention.

Albert not only prevented Rostenkowski from becoming whip but also installed his own man as caucus chairman. So, Rostenkowski no longer had any important leadership position. It is generally assumed that if he had been named whip in 1971 he would be speaker today.

This defeat really hurt Rostenkowski. For the past decade he has attended faithfully enough to his congressional duties but devoted many of his energies to building a power base not in the House but in his hometown.

Rostenkowski never moved his family to Washington. He spends four days a week — Friday through Monday — in Chicago even when Congress is in session.

JACK ANDERSON

Tale Of Two Agents Who Didn't Sell Out

WASHINGTON — Every man has his price, the cynics say, and Libya's dictator, Muammar Qaddafi, has enough petrodollars to buy just about any man he wants.

But two former CIA explosives experts resisted the temptation to make some easy money from Qaddafi. Their story is worth telling because it is apparently unique: They may be the only ones among many former CIA and Green Beret specialists approached by the Qaddafi regime who told him to get lost. And they did it on principle, refusing to let their expertise be used in Qaddafi's systematic campaign of assassination and terror.

They are named in secret government files, but I have been asked to protect their identities. So let's call them Smith and Brown.

Qaddafi's "master terrorists," ex-CIA agents Ed Wilson and Frank Terpil, had hired a former CIA ordnance expert, John Harper, to go to Libya and make tiny explosive devices that could be hidden in ashtrays, coat hangers and similar harmless-looking objects. During a demonstration of sophisticated timers, one failed to work and a Libyan officer was blown up accidentally.

Despite this mishap, Harper later wangled another contract out of Wilson — for $100,000, according to the government's star witness against Terpil and Wilson, ex-CIA man Kevin Mulcahy. Harper flew back to Libya, Mulcahy told my associate Dale Van Atta.

On the way in from the airport with a Qaddafi aide and a chauffeur, the car struck and killed a pedestrian. The two Libyans casually dumped the body into the trunk, saying they'd take care of it later.

On another occasion, Harper rashly carried two cans of explosives — "enough to blow London off the map" — through Heathrow Airport, using a diplomatic passport. This unnerved Wilson, who decided Harper needed replacing.

So Wilson went head-hunting in the Washington area, and looked up Brown in Alexandria, Va. Brown had retired from the CIA after 17 years' experience training others to fabricate, identify and disarm explosive devices used by terrorists.

The two ex-spooks met in the Holiday Inn at Tyson's Corner, Va., a longtime CIA hangout, on Sept. 3, 1978. According to secret Justice Department files, "Wilson appeared quite desperate to hire an explosives expert as his current man in Libya, John Harper, had fallen flat on his face." Brown had known Harper as his contact when he needed materials for his CIA work.

"Wilson told (Brown) he wanted someone to train individuals in the fabrication and use of explosives in Libya," the secret files state. "Specifically, he was interested in camouflage devices such as lamps, bricks" and other objects. He pointed to his briefcase and said it contained a number of miniature timers.

Brown told Wilson he wasn't interested in the job because he "didn't want to do anything with Col. Qaddafi." Wilson persisted. He promised Brown complete authority in selecting trainees, a $80,000 tax-free salary deposited in a Swiss bank, a house, car, chauffeur, laboratory — even a percentage of the dollar value of materials used to make the explosive devices.

Brown tried to pump Wilson. What, he asked, would he really be doing for Qaddafi? "You know, the Colonel may sometimes have some young colonels or some officers or something that are getting out of line that he wants to send a present to," Wilson replied, according to the secret files.

Rebuffed by Brown, Wilson next called on Smith, in Sterling, Va. Wilson said something about clearing land mines in Libya, and again mentioned Harper, who, he said, was having "emotional problems."

Smith "decided as soon as he heard Qaddafi and Libya that he wasn't going to work for Wilson, but he wanted to hear Wilson's offer," the files state.

At one point, Wilson, showed Smith an electronic firing device packed in a small prescription bottle with a piece of Styrofoam. Smith recognized it immediately. It was "similar in design to (one) which has been used by the Palestine Liberation Organization in terrorism actions through out Europe... far too sophisticated" to be suitable for clearing mines. He told Wilson nothing doing.

ROBERT WALTERS

Reagan Is No Populist

WASHINGTON (NEA) — President Reagan remains the premier performer in American politics — but even with his considerable show-business talents, he is unable to portray himself convincingly as a populist ally of working people.

The president's most recent effort to play that role came during his mid-June press conference, when he sought to rebut Democratic criticism that "I don't know anything about the working man" and the tax burden he bears.

What no amount of fine acting can disguise is the inescapable fact that the Kemp-Roth tax reduction package that the president has fervently embraced is very deliberately structured to provide substantially more tax relief for the very wealthy than for middle- and low-income families.

Reagan and his aides repeatedly have sought to obfuscate the issue and mislead the voters by manipulating the statistics to make it appear that those who aren't rich will somehow become the leading beneficiaries of the tax cut.

Their favorite approach to the emphasize — to the exclusion of more relevant measurements — the aggregate tax liability borne by those in various tax brackets.

"From $10,000 to $30,000 or $60,000 covers, certainly, all the middle class," Reagan explained at his press conference, "and they pay 72 percent of the tax and 73 percent of our tax relief or more is going to that bracket of workers."

Treasury Department figures show that those earning $60,000 or less do indeed pay slightly more than 72.8 percent of all personal income taxes — and it's hardly surprising that most of the president's proposed reduction will be applicable to those who pay almost three-fourths of all income taxes.

But those earning $50,000 or $60,000 annually can hardly be classified as members of the "middle class." In fact, a $60,000 income places a family among the country's wealthiest 3 percent, while a $30,000 income qualifies for inclusion among the wealthiest 5 percent.

Of more relevance — but never discussed by the White House — is what the Reagan administration's own figures show will occur in terms of tax-rate changes in various income brackets if the president's package is adopted.

A family earning $18,000 to $24,500 yearly — more accurately representative of the "middle class" — currently pays taxes at a rate of 24 percent to 28 percent. The president's plan would scale those rates down to 18 percent to 21 percent by 1983.

That's a reduction of 6 percent to 7 percent. At the upper end of the income scale, a family earning $163,000 to $215,000 now pays federal income taxes at a rate of 68 percent. Reagan's proposal would slash that rate to 49 percent by 1983.

That's a reduction of 19 percent — approximately three times as much as the "middle class" would receive.

BUSINESS WORLD

How To Get Credit

NEW YORK (UPI) — Consumers still are being denied credit because they don't know their rights but credit is increasingly important as we go into the electronic banking and bill paying era, according to the woman who wrote the Equal Credit Opportunity Act.

Dr. Emily Card who has launched a Woman's Credit Rights project at the University of Southern California, says the ECOA still is being violated because consumers, especially women, do not know how to get credit.

"As we move into electronic banking and bill paying," she said, "consumers will have to have a 'one-stop credit identity covering all areas of their financial life.'"

But her immediate concern is informing them of their credit rights under ECOA. Its provisions still are being widely violated, she said.

Dr. Card emphasizes the most important thing you can do for your financial future is to get the history that credit agencies are required to furnish under ECOA. You'll have to pay a small fee — between $5 and $10 — unless you've been turned down for credit in the last 30 days.

"When you need credit it's often at a time when you can least afford not to know your standing," she said.

A credit profile is particularly important for women who are or have been married and have shared accounts with their husbands. They might find they have no credit standing even if they pay all the bills, she said.

We've all heard horror stories about what happens to a woman's credit cards if she is divorced. But creditors now "absolutely cannot change or terminate an account solely because of a change in marital status," Dr. Card said. They can only ask you to update the account.

Even if divorce is improbable the absence of a credit history can hurt, if you are widowed, for instance. Dr. Card said, "More and more women in their 40s and 50s are entering the financial world. Many are deciding to open their own business and many are doing it with their Visa or MasterCard credit lines."

To obtain your credit history, Dr. Card suggests asking a local merchant or banker for names of the two largest credit agencies that serve your area. Call them and ask for your credit history. Some will mail the history on receipt of a check and proper identification; others will make an appointment for you to see it at their office.

The credit report will have an account profile for individual creditors and will have room for consumer comment where you can explain any extenuating circumstances for a negative rating. It could also have a payment profile that will reflect your payment history over the last 12 months.

If there is an erroneous report you can challenge it. Even if there is a correct but negative report, you at least know about it and perhaps can ask the creditor to soften the entry.

If that fails, it often helps to tell a potential creditor when you apply that you have had a problem but that the situation has improved.

If you are married, ask all creditors to report separate lines of credit for you and your spouse. The 1977 ECOA requires this but they are not required to volunteer it.

"Often the wife pays the bills, or some of them, and is a bona fide credit user with no records to show that she is," Dr. Card said.

If you are single, ask your banker to help you obtain a line of credit, then use it and pay it off promptly.

Dr. Card told of a widow with good income who applied for a credit card so she could buy theater tickets by telephone and was turned down because she had no credit history.

"Being able to get a theater ticket might not be a crucial financial matter. Being denied the credit to do so made a difference in her quality of life," Dr. Card said.

Foot Rot Disease Of Citrus

Foot rot of citrus is a disease problem that often plagues homeowners who grow citrus trees in their landscape. In fact, foot rot is the oldest known major disease of citrus.

This fungal disease is quite common and I diagnose many cases each year. I would strongly suggest that residents presently growing citrus or planning to in the future become familiar with this serious disease.

Foot rot can attack both young and old trees. The problem is usually worse in poorly-drained areas, but it can and does occur in light sands. From personal experience, I have found foot rot to be quite common in newer developments where they have built homes in a neglected citrus grove and retained a lot of the trees.

Foot rot, to a large extent, often develops due to poor cultural conditions or neglect. In order to control foot rot, it must be observed and treated in the early stages of infection.

One of the first symptoms is a gumming on the trunk of the tree near the soil line. If the bark is peeled back where gumming is observed, the wood beneath this area will be brownish in color. A lot of times the bark will start peeling off the tree itself in later stages. Sometimes a white fungus growth may be seen on the surface of the bark. Advanced symptoms of the disease is a generally weak tree that wilts easily and has yellow-green foliage. This occurs when the disease has become so severe that the tree has been girdled.

Prevention is the best control for foot rot: (A) Select and plant only healthy trees, (B) Plant young trees so that the base of the trees are at the same depth they were in the nursery, (C) Keep soil, brush and weeds away from the base of the trees, and (D) NEVER MULCH citrus trees! Mulch creates a high moisture level around the base of the tree, thus creating a perfect environment for foot rot.

If foot rot symptoms do appear and you catch it in the early stages, I would suggest the following treatment: (1) Remove the soil from around the trunk and any exposed surface roots by washing with a stream of water from a garden hose.

(2) Remove all diseased tissue and any loose bark with a sharp knife, chisel or similar tool. The infected area is clearly defined by a dark brown color.

(3) All cut surfaces and other exposed areas should then be sprayed with a copper fungicide. After the area treated had dried.

(4) Apply a heavy coating of a thick asphalt emulsion tree paint.

Boss's Wife Is Not Secretary's Business

DEAR ABBY: A secretary recently wrote to say that while her boss was out of town, his wife came into his office and searched his desk. She asked if she should tell her boss about it. You replied: "I wouldn't."

What a fascinating answer! I assume you gave that response because the person who did the searching was the boss's wife. This leads to my questions:

If it were the man's mother, should the secretary have told him? What if it were his 25-year-old daughter? His 17-year-old daughter? Two men who claimed to be CIA agents, but flashed their IDs so fast the secretary couldn't read them? The boss's wife, legally separated?

I'd really like to know your thought process!

JOHN C., IN PASADENA

DEAR JOHN: The secretary asked me if I would have told the boss and I replied, "I Wouldn't." My reasoning: I would not want to be responsible for the marital brouhaha that might ensue. Had the boss's privacy been violated by someone other than his wife, I would have had no hesitation about informing my boss. Was my answer correct? Not necessarily. But it was honest.

DEAR ABBY: I am an 18-year-old girl, engaged to be married. My fiancé and I went for our blood tests and mine came back positive for syphilis. Abby, I knew something had to be terribly wrong because the only person I've ever been with in my life is my fiancé, so if I have syphilis I would have had to get it from him. But his tests came back negative! Abby, if I have syphilis, how come he doesn't have it, too?

We both took our blood tests over, thinking there might have been a mix-up at the lab, but mine came back positive again, and his came back negative.

How can this be? Help me, please.

WORRIED SICK IN W.VA.

DEAR WORRIED: It is possible that you do not have syphilis, but that other factors are causing your tests to show a positive reaction.

Those who at some time in their lives have had malaria, scarlet fever, infectious mononucleosis, lupus erythematosus (and many other diseases) are apt to show false-positive for syphilis.

See a dermatologist or hematologist for a more thorough blood study. You will be given tests to rule out the false diagnosis of syphilis. Don't panic. Your case is not unusual.

DEAR ABBY: What does one do in an air-conditioned office when someone says: "It's a little chilly — please turn down the air conditioner." (He turns it down.)

Then a while later, someone else says, "Will you kindly turn up the air conditioner? It's too warm in here."

There are several people in this office and you can't please everybody.

COLD SHOULDERS IN VA.

DEAR COLD: Compromise and try to strike a happy medium, bearing in mind that no matter what you do, somebody is going to complain.

DEAR ABBY: I cannot understand why the grandparents of James Conklin-Campbell are so opposed to hyphenated names. Ancestors on both sides of my family tree have been adding their wives' maiden names to their children's surnames for generations and there has never been any confusion. Local Radio Hams In Emergency Test

Members of the Lake Monroe Amateur Radio Society (LMARS) will participate in the annual American Radio Relay League Field Day emergency preparedness test on June 27-28 from 2 p.m. Saturday to 2 p.m. Sunday at the Sanford Airport, Sanford.

On this weekend thousands of amateur radio operators (Hams) in the United States and Canada will set up their stations in the open using only emergency power and portable antennas. During the 24 hours of Field Day, the "Hams" will attempt to contact as many other amateur stations as possible.

This Field Day exercise is designed as a test to help "Hams" refine the operating skills necessary during disasters and times of emergency when normal channels of communication are disrupted or unavailable. The most recent example of this emergency service came during Hurricane David when Orange and Seminole County "Hams" provided organized communication facilities for evacuee centers set up by the Red Cross.

In last year's Field Day, the LMARS placed first in its class in the Southeastern Division and third in the United States in the number of contacts made.

Field Day is sponsored by the American Radio Relay League, a membership society headquartered in Newington, Conn., consisting of U.S. and Canadian amateur radio operators.

The public is invited to observe the Field Day activities.

Mice Run Streak To 13, Host Tournament Tonight

Angelo's Restaurant upped its record to 13-0 in the Red Bug Women's softball league as they downed R.S.R. 21-1 behind 21 hits and Kacie McDonough's no-hit pitching. Angelo's also ventured outside league play to compete in the Leesburg Womens tournament and lost its first games of the season.

Against R.S.R. Mary McDonough, DeDe Hasley, Dana Hale and Ann McGaugh all went 3-for-3 with Hasley driving in four runs. Kacie McDonough was 2-for-2, Sandy Leman, Connie Walburger and Ruth Tempesta all 2-for-3 and Monica McNeil 1-for-2. Walburger smacked a home run, L-h McDonoughs, Tempesta and McGaugh had doubles and Hasley a triple.

At Leesburg, Angelo's Mice dropped a toughie to Parker Construction of Ocala, 2-1 and fell to the Starke Dominoes, 12-3. Ruth Tempesta pitched a fine game against Ocala, allowing just five hits and no walks with both runs unearned.

Angelo's jumped off to an early lead against Starke as Kacie and Mary McDonough singled and Sandy Leman smacked a three run homer in the first inning. Starke broke the game open in the 8th with six runs.

Angelo's Tournament will be held this weekend at Red Bug with 15 Women's "B" teams competing. Teams have entered from the Orlando, Red Bug, Winter Park, Longwood, Casselberry and Leesburg leagues. Only Altamonte and Sanford, locally, didn't respond.

O-Twins Return Tonight From Lackluster Journey

Orlando's Twins return to Tinker Field tonight for a 7:30 clash with Jacksonville looking for some friendly surroundings after a lackluster roadtrip to Savannah.

Thursday night the O-Twins dropped their third game in four tries to the Braves, 11-10. The first-division champion Twins are available at Orlando area merchants. A week from Saturday — July 4 — the Twins come to Sanford Memorial Stadium for an 11 a.m. encounter with Knoxville.

Orlando Baseball School's Wes Rinker is responsible for the "Firecracker Special" and has a few giveaways planned for the occasion. Rinker will admit little leaguers on a group ticket sales plan.

The charge will be just 50 cents for little leaguers accompanied by their coach. No wearing of a uniform is necessary. The player will be given a special ticket which makes him available for free bats, balls, gloves and spikes. Call 323-1944 for information.

Getting back to Thursday's game, however, Orlando jumped to a 4-0 bulge in the third inning, but Twin starter Paul Viola couldn't stand prosperity and was roughed up for four runs in the bottom of the inning.

The O-Twins still clung to a 7-5 sixth inning lead until Leo Vargas drilled a home run to ignite a five-run inning to wipe out the advantage. Vargas leads the Southern League with 21.

Second baseman Tim Teufel pulled the Twins back into the game in the ninth with a two-run blast. It was the slugging second sacker's second homer of the game and 11th of the year. Gary Gaetti slugged his 17th for Orlando in the fifth.

In the bottom of the ninth, though, Paul Zuvella sent the Twins back to Tinker a loser by driving home Randy Ingle to give Savannah an 11-10 victory.

In Southern League statistics released Thursday, the O-Twins dominated the runs batted in leaders with three (Scott Uliger, Randy Bush, Gaetti) of the top four places. Tim Laudner is second to Vargas in home runs with 19, while Gaetti is third with 17. Bush is second in runs with 56. Right-hander Steve Mapel leads the loop in victories with 10.

Americans Host West Virginia Saturday

The Orlando Americans 33-14 victory over Shreveport put them in a four-way tie for second place in the Eastern Division of the AFA with a 2-2-0 record after four games.

West Virginia at 4-0 and the only undefeated team in the league is the Americans next opponent. A revenge match is scheduled for this Saturday night (June 27th) in the Tangerine Bowl. The Rockets handed the Americans a 31-13 defeat in Charleston in a game marred by heavy rain and the early exit of quarterback Jerry Golsteyn due to a broken thumb. Golsteyn remained the number one passer in the AFA after four games with 42 completions in 67 attempts good for 654 yards, eight touchdowns, and a 62.7 percent.

Darrell Jones has 15 receptions for 253 yards, Ron Enclads has 13 for 136, and Ken Payne has eight for 130 yards and three TD's. The team is 3rd overall in passing with a 223.5 yard average per game.

Richard Holmes, the talented running back who led the Canadian League in scoring in 1979, received a broken hand in Saturday's battle with Shreveport and could miss the next two games.

Saturday night American fans could witness a battle between the two top teams in the AFA. Coach Bob Williams said, "The Rockets are the premier team in the league, having won it all last year, and being 4-0 to date. I have to feel that a super effort on everyone's part will send the Rockets back to West Virginia 4-1. We have the people to beat them."

Inch Along Talks Go On

NEW YORK (UPI) — Negotiators in the major-league baseball strike talks, inching along despite some sticky side issues were scheduled to meet today at 1:30 p.m.

Thursday's talks produced surprisingly little progress considering their length. The talks went on for nearly five hours, raising hopes that intensive bargaining was taking place.

Instead, the players apparently had made just a slight modification in their proposal. Bob Boone, the chief spokesman for the players, sounded disappointed.

"I just think we should be at least approaching a settlement," Boone said. "We feel they (the owners) are moving at such a snail's pace that we are not encouraged."

Ray Grebey, head of the owners' negotiating team, said he foresaw no quick end to the dispute, now in its 15th day.

"There was no agreement reached and the parties still have their differences," Grebey said.

Revenge-Seeking Altamonte Meets Orlando Saturday

Revenge will be on Altamonte's mind tomorrow when American Legion Post 183 travels to Valencia for a noon encounter with the Orlando Legion entry.

Orlando, who is leading the league with an unbeaten mark, handed Altamonte its lone league setback in a 16-14 slugfest two weeks ago.

The Altamonte pitching staff will be tested over the weekend starting with right hander Rick Marcello against Orlando tomorrow.

Altamonte journeys to DeLand for an afternoon doubleheader on Sunday and faces its fourth game in three days with a makeup contest at home Monday against Winter Park.

Marcello will attempt to quiet Orlando's offensive attack tomorrow. They pounded out 14 hits, half of which went for extra bases, against Altamonte in the first meeting.

Marcello, who was on vacation the time the two clubs met, has allowed only a pair of earned runs in 14 innings of mound duty with 19 strikeouts.

Orlando will probably counter with either Kevin Smith, a teammate of Marcello's at Seminole Community College, or Boone right-hander Dave McCormick. Smith was the winning pitcher in the first outing between the two, no-hitting Altamonte in five innings of relief work before a six-run, ninth-inning rally Smith fell short.

Shortstop Bob Parker and left fielder Dave Martinez lead the Altamonte offensive arsenal. Parker is stroking the ball at a .414 clip while Martinez has hit safely in seven of the eight games.

Third baseman Jerry Winterhalter and catcher Brian Holzworth have also been swinging hot bats lately. Winterhalter, a slick fielder at third, beat Boone last Sunday with a bases-loaded, ninth-inning triple. Holzworth was 2-4 in a non-conference 11-10 loss to Valencia Wednesday which included a first inning grand slam by the hard hitting backstop.

Borg Bores In On Gehring

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Bjorn Borg is in the unaccustomed position of going into a Wimbledon singles match with a score to settle.

The Swede's third-round opponent today as he bids for a sixth successive title in the 95th Wimbledon Championships is West German Ulf Gehring, who beat Borg in Brussels, Belgium in March.

Soon after the defeat, Borg opted out of competitive tennis for seven weeks to rest a nagging shoulder injury, but Gehring dismissed rumors the Swede lost because he wanted to get out of the tournament early.

However, he admitted that to beat the world's No. 1 player in a grand slam tournament would be difficult. "Paris, Wimbledon, Flushing Meadow, if you beat him in those then you really feel you have beaten him," Gehring said. The odds are that Borg will resume the dominance over the West German he had held in their only two other meetings, when Gehring won a total of just six games.

While the Swede attempts to settle that score, second-seeded New Yorker John McEnroe plays fellow American Bob Lutz, whom he has beaten in each of their five previous meetings. Lutz's chances may be improved by the intense pressure McEnroe feels after his fine for bad behavior during his first-round match against American Tom Gullikson.

McEnroe finished off his second-round match against Mexican Raul Ramirez in four center-court sets.

"Having to play a match and keep my temper was a very difficult experience," the 22-year-old admitted. The remarkable collapse of the seeds in the opening rounds has eased McEnroe's path to the extent his only possible seeded opponent before reaching his second successive final will be No. 15 Balazs Taroczy of Hungary.

Borg has the five other surviving seeds in his half of the draw, including No. 3 Jimmy Connors, who won the championship in 1974 but has lost twice in finals to Borg.

Connors continues his campaign today against fellow American Tony Giammalva, whom he has never played and who stands 33 places below him on the Association of Tennis Professionals world rankings.

McEnroe's opposition was weakened further Thursday by the second-round exit of 1979 runner-up Roscoe Tanner in four sets at the hands of inspired Brazilian Carlos Kirmayr.

Two other American seeds also fell by the wayside, No. 6 Brian Teacher beaten by Indian Davis Cupper Vijay Amritraj and No. 7 Brian Gottfried, who lost to fellow American Jeff Borowiak.

BJORN BORG
HAVING CONNECTED WITH A RECORD 5TH FRENCH OPEN TITLE IN EARLY JUNE, WILL TRY TO BECOME THE 20TH CENTURY'S FIRST 6 IN A ROW WIMBLEDON CHAMP. WHEN THEIR 95TH TOURNEY BEGINS JUNE 22.

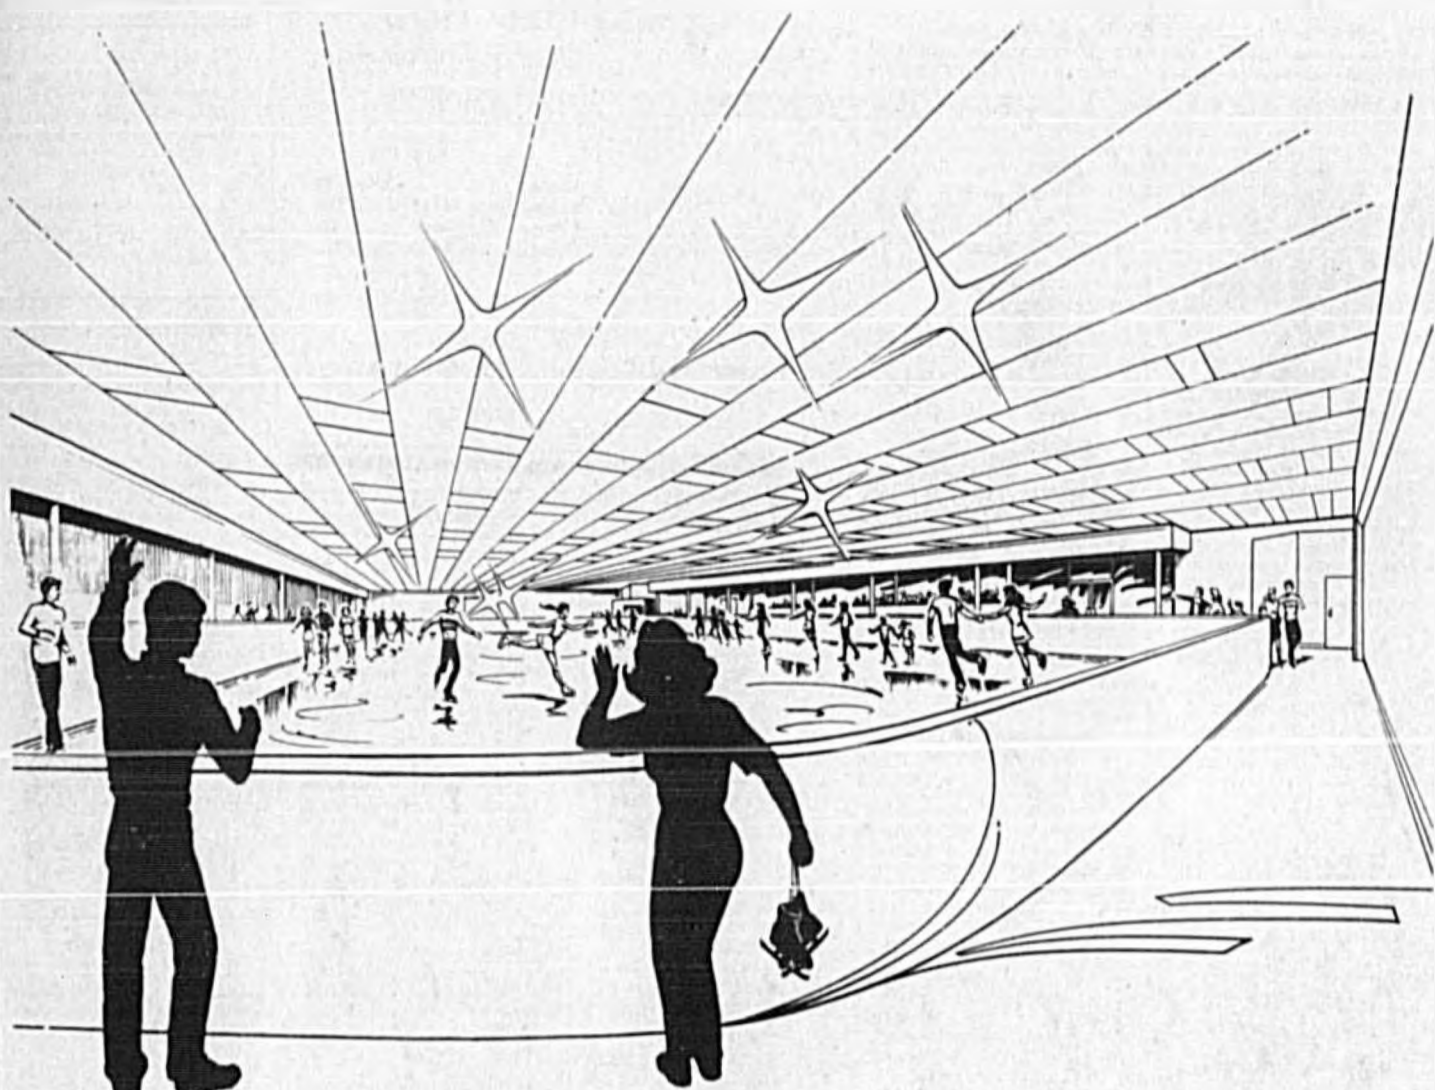

The women's singles progressed in a more orderly manner, with Czech Hana Mandlikova, Americans Tracy Austin and Andrea Jaeger and Australia's Wendy Turnbull going through to complete the lineup of the top six seeds in the third round with Chris Evert Lloyd and Martina Navratilova.

Today, Evert plays American Lele Forood, Austin meets Australian Susan Leo, and Jaeger plays 22-year-old New Yorker Leslie Allen.

Orlando Skating Palace Ices Down

The Orlando Skating Palace, a 30,000 square-foot facility featuring an Olympic-size rink, will open in August in the Parkwood Plaza located at 3123 West Colonial Drive and John Young Parkway in Orlando.

The $1.5 million recreation facility is Orlando's first regulation-size ice skating facility. The skating surface is 125-feet long by 85-feet wide.

Developed by M-W Recreation Corporation, owners of the Fun Machine, also located in Parkwood Plaza, the Orlando Ice Skating Palace will have a complete pro shop, skate rentals, food and beverage service, and a spectator gallery. Organized programs for youth and community groups, as well as private and group lessons from professional skating instructors will be offered.

In addition to fees for public skating sessions, hourly rates and group rates will be available for special ice activities. Individual and family memberships will also be available.

Drake Wayson, Vice President of M-W Recreation Corporation and general manager, said that the Orlando Ice Skating Palace will add a special dimension to the recreational side of Orlando-area living. "We'll be offering recreational ice skating to the public at convenient times as the main attraction of our schedule," said Wayson. "But we will also offer ice skating activities such as instructional skating, figure skating, hockey, broomball and curling."

The skating facility, under construction for the past six months, will have the latest equipment for making and maintaining the skating surface. Over 8 1/2 miles of steel tubing was installed underground for the refrigeration system which was designed and installed by Holmsten Ice Rinks, Inc., a Minnesota firm. Specialists in the field, Holmsten has installed over 250 ice rinks around the world over the past 25 years. A Holmsten "Canadian" Ice Resurfacer (4-wheel) will be used to renew the ice surface as required.

Wayson said that the Orlando Ice Skating Palace is a member of the Ice Skating Institute of America, the national association of ice arenas. The Ice Skating Institute of America was set up to promote ice skating to the general public. Through its programs have come such greats as Dorothy Hamill, Linda Fratianne, Tai Babilonia and Randy Gardner. However, its main interest is to help the public get the most enjoyment out of ice skating.

General Contractor for the Orlando Ice Skating Palace is Brooks & Brown, Inc., Maitland, Florida.

The Orlando Ice Palace is a modern, attractive recreation facility located in Parkwood Plaza, Orlando, features the area's only olympic-size skating rink. The skating surface is 125 feet long by 85 feet wide, and the 30,000 square feet facility also features a skating pro shop and spectator gallery. The Orlando Ice Skating Palace is owned by M-W Recreation Corporation and represents an investment of over $1.5 million.

Shoulder Injury Signals Retirement For Griese

MIAMI (UPI) — Bob Griese, whose slight build, hornrimmed glasses and cool demeanor made him seem more like an accountant than one of the great quarterbacks of the 1970s, has ended his 14-year career with the Miami Dolphins.

A shoulder injury eight months ago made it impossible for the man who passed for 25,200 yards and 193 touchdowns even to throw a football.

"I couldn't play without surgery and I couldn't play with it," Griese said in announcing his long-rumored retirement Thursday.

Dolphins' owner Joe Robbie called Griese the most important factor in the Dolphins' dominance of the NFL in the early '70s. Griese led the team to Super Bowls in 1971, '72 and '73, with victories in the last two. The 1972-73 squad, called one of the greatest in history, went undefeated with 17 straight victories.

"There has been no quarterback in the annals of football who has better earned the title of the thinking man's quarterback," Robbie said.

In games Griese played for the Dolphins they were 101-61-3, but he contended quarterbacks "get too much credit for winning and too much blame for losing."

Leonard, Hearn Ready For Title Riches

HOUSTON (UPI) — Current world welterweight champions Sugar Ray Leonard and Thomas Hearn now can turn their undivided attention to each other for a Sept. 16 fight which probably will be the richest in boxing history.

To satisfy contract terms of that glamorous bout that will pay Leonard an estimated $8 million and Hearn $5 million, Leonard, the World Boxing Council welterweight champion, had to hand junior middleweight champion Ayub Kalule his first defeat in a World Boxing Association title fight Thursday night, while WBA champion Hearn had to beat lightly regarded Dominican Pablo Baez.

Both did, with Leonard having much more difficulty than Hearn.

Hearn went unscathed in defending his title for the third time, knocking Baez into the ropes for good in the fourth round.

On the other hand, Leonard was dazed and shaken in the seventh round against Kalule, but he recovered to put him down and gain a TKO with one second left in the ninth round.

"I can't wait for September," Leonard said. "I feel I'm a much better fighter. I could do 100 more things in the ring than he can. Hearn truly believes he is invincible, that when he gets hit on the chin, it increases his strength. He'll find out with me that's not the case."

Hearn countered: "I think I'm the welterweight champion, but there's only one man standing in the way now. After tonight, I think we can solve that problem."

Leonard will have to lose seven pounds to regain his welterweight status at 147 pounds for Hearn. Against Kalule, he fought in the 154-pound division for the first time.

"I don't look forward to having to lose the weight," Leonard said. "I'll lose some strength as a result ..."

Against Kalule, Leonard started off well, putting on several flurries to hurt Kalule at the end of the first and second rounds. But the determined Ugandan, who now fights out of Denmark, fought back doggedly every time Leonard pressured him.

Leonard used wicked left hooks to the body and head to sting Kalule throughout the fight, but two right hooks and a left to the head by Kalule in the seventh round nearly put Leonard down. Kalule, however, didn't follow up and Leonard survived.

He stormed back to hurt Kalule in the eighth and finally put him down late in the ninth with a left-right-left combination to the head. Kalule was up at the count of eight and the round apparently was over, but referee Carlos Berrocal of Panama stopped it.

"He dropped me; I didn't expect he could drop me that way," said Kalule, who had never been off his feet in winning his previous 36 fights. "I'm satisfied. The guy knocked me down. I wanted to continue but I couldn't. I wasn't tired but I was a little dizzy."

"I have no complaints. If he would give me a rematch, I'd be appreciative."

Hearn took control of his fight from the opening bell, peppering the overmatched Baez with at least a dozen left jabs in the opening minutes and red-dening his face. Baez, knowing his only hope was a knockout, fired wild rights throughout but few landed.

Hearn cut open Baez' eye with a stiff right hand and nearly put him through the ropes in the fourth round before referee Ken Morita of Japan stopped it.

"He hit me with a good right hand and opened up the cut on my eye," Baez said. "I couldn't see the punches coming after that. I hit him good a couple of times but I couldn't put anything together. I'm not pleased with my performance because I never really got going."

In the preliminaries, former WBA champion Pipino Cuevas continued on the comeback trail with a first-round knockout of European champion Jorgen Hansen of Denmark. Cuevas, who lost his title to Hearn in a second-round knockout last August, put the 39-year-old Hansen down with a left off the top of the head and was still flailing away when it was stopped.

It was Cuevas' second straight quick knockout victory since being KOed by Hearn and raised his record to 29-6. Hansen fell to 72-14.

Earlier, unbeaten Tony Ayala, an 18-year-old powerhouse from San Antonio, Texas, turned Jerry Cheatham's face into a bloody mask before the scheduled 10-round junior middleweight bout was stopped in the sixth round.

Ayala registered his 12th straight victory and 11th knockout.

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Saturday, June 27, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY June 27, 1981
Be patient this coming year regarding things that you hope to achieve. In the beginning your progress may be a trifle slow, but as the months pass its pace will increase.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) Spend time today with those special friends whose relationships are truly meaningful to you. Ways will be revealed to cement even stronger bonds. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph, which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Major accomplishments are possible today, especially if your motivations are unselfish. In doing for others you advance your own cause.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your words carry an enormous amount of weight today, particularly for a pal who is in need of encouragement. Take time to be a booster.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your sales instincts regarding public needs are on target today. You are also more intuitive than usual businesswise. Put your gifts to profitable use.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't try to do everything singlehandedly today where you have backup people waiting to help. Success is more likely if the efforts are collective.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You won't be happy today if you fritter your time away. You need to be doing things that you feel are productive. Pleasure can be derived by being of service to others.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) All work and no play can get you in a rut, so if you've had your nose to the grindstone this week, spend time now doing things that bring you pleasure and relaxation.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This is a good day to take care of things where you are operating under a deadline. You're a strong finisher and can clean up several bothersome chores.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you're a bit restless today and don't know what to do with yourself, why not briefly visit friends you haven't seen for a while?
ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be persistent today in situations that could contribute to your resources or security. The trends for concluding matters advantageously now favor you.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) This is your kind of day. In areas where you can perform independently, much can be accomplished. Be your own person. Do your own thing.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It has been said that everything comes to him who waits. Today, through patience, you could receive a demonstration of this.

Pain In Big Toe May Not Be Gout

DEAR DR. LAMB — My mother is 76 years old and has a very painful swollen right big toe. All her doctor said was to soak it and to take aspirin. She has been suffering for over a week. Two months ago the same thing happened. I'm sure this is gouty arthritis. She takes diuretics for high blood pressure control and pills for her heart. I know gouty arthritis is caused from too much uric acid. Can you tell me what foods besides chocolate to avoid to help her situation? Is there any compatible medicine she could ask the doctor about? He didn't seem concerned about this and she is really suffering.

DEAR READER — First things first. You should find out what is causing the pain in her toe before launching on a program to treat it. You do not know that your mother has the gout. You should ask your doctor about this and ask him if your mother's uric acid level is normal. If your mother does have the gout there are two very interesting aspects of your letter. First, diuretics used to flush out salt and water may affect the kidney's ability to eliminate uric acid. Second, salicylates as found in aspirin have the same effect. It is best to avoid using either if possible in patients with gout. The diet is important and I am sending you The Health Letter number 16-10, Gout: The Uric Acid Disease, which discusses this. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

enough uric acid. Medicines to correct or improve both of these factors are far more effective than diet. That is why many doctors place less emphasis on the diet today. If your mother really does have gout, her doctor may wish to prescribe one of these medicines which are also discussed in The Health Letter I am sending you.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What is psychosomatic illness? What alerts a doctor to the fact an illness is psychosomatic and not physical? What are the symptoms and by whom should the illness be treated? DEAR READER — In this instance, "psycho" refers to the psychic or brain and "soma" refers to the body. Whenever psychological factors cause some bodily function to be abnormal, causing illness, it is a psychosomatic illness. A good example is nervous tension causing a headache. Another is indigestion caused by nervous tension. Stress is a frequent part of psychosomatic illnesses. The experienced doctor usually has learned to recognize a constellation of complaints as being related to stress. In some instances the pain described may not fit an anatomical or physical problem. Even the patient often knows that stress is a factor. However, stress can aggravate a physical complaint too. Many family physicians are well equipped to provide support to patients with these problems. In complex cases he may ask for a consultation with a psychiatrist.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Today's hand was played in a rubber bridge match back in 1930. That was before Culbertson had thought of an artificial ace asking bid. Furthermore, North and South were not playing that a new suit bid of less than game by responder was a force. Hence, after East took advantage of the favorable vulnerability and bid two spades with his two suited, South was really stuck for a bid. Finally, South decided to gamble on seven clubs. North really should hold the ace of diamonds for his vulnerable opening. East wasn't going to let that seven-club bid stand and took the seven-diamond sacrifice. South wasn't going to let the grand slam get away. There was that nice heart suit that he had not had a chance to bid so South tried seven hearts. West, who had been mentally bemoaning his bad luck, passed quietly. He was sure that his partner would not compete further and trusted that the bidding was over. It was and West set the heart grand slam two tricks. There was considerable discussion about the failure of North to correct to the lay-down seven notrump. But the consensus was that if South had passed to seven diamonds, North might well have made that bid. But when South bid seven hearts, North was right to pass. For all North knew, South might be void of spades. We will discuss this hand further in tomorrow's article. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Horseback Riding At Gallop In Seminole

By JOHN GORDON
Special to The Herald

Discovering the great outdoors in rumbly Seminole County may not be as great or easy as it used to be.

Like it or not, the wilds of Central Florida isn't as easy to find as it was a decade or two ago.

The great real estate sweep back in the early 1970's took a huge gulp out of prime South Seminole County land, pushing citrus & farm acreage back for major housing subdivisions and commercial construction.

In a county where land is gold, pastures and farm properties are turning bigger and quicker bucks as construction sites for apartments and condominiums than they used to as truck farms and ranchlands a few years ago.

But don't get the idea that the county fathers are selling out to the sometimes questionable demands of progress. There's still plenty of natural beauty left to experience in the backwoods of old Seminole County and perhaps no better way to see it than on the back of a horse.

The horse, has served as silent friend and companion to explorers for hundreds of years. Modern day conquistadores still take advantage of the horse's sure-footedness in hinterlands where trails that used to be are no more.

Horse stable owners say a recent surge in popularity of horseback riding locally has spurred a healthy rise in business, mainly from families seeking a new weekend pastime that won't cost a bundle.

Marty French, a veteran rider, owns two horses she keeps at her residence located between Oviedo and Geneva. "Riding a horse gives me a feeling of contemptment and, I guess, a sort of freedom," she said, shortly before taking her favorite steed "Bay" out for a Sunday run through the backwoods of Oviedo. "It's an entirely different world out there when you see it on a horse."

Ms. French's friend and neighbor, Pat Cayll, is a newcomer to horseback riding but has already begun to enjoy its rewards.

"On a cool morning you can just get on your horse and get away from it all," the Goldenrod secretary explained, "Sometimes when I ride through the woods near our house, I really feel like I've just spent some time in God's country."

For newcomers who do not wish to purchase a horse and riding gear immediately, a variety of riding stables in Seminole County offer horse and tack rentals, professional riding instruction for adults and youngsters and even advanced lessons for competition riding and show.

Pam Hall, owner of Stone Hedge Stables on Red Bug Road, said that on a good week her horses will serve some 200 people, who take advantage of a huge tract of pasture and farmland behind the stables.

"Most of our horses here are gentle and will respond favorably to even a totally inexperienced rider," Miss Hall explained, "although we strongly urge that all would-be riders get professional training before coming out to get the most from it. A lot of times a beginner comes out, gets on the horse and begins to tug on the reins and poke the horse's sides with his feet. Then he complains when the horse doesn't move at all."

The trainer explained that tugging and poking are confusing because horses are trained to proceed slowly with the pull of the reins. A nudge at the sides indicates to the animal that the rider wants to move faster.

"The number one sport worldwide that people feel they really don't need lessons for is horseback riding," Miss Hall pointed out, "They claim they all can do it (ride) because they had seen someone else do it or maybe because they had been on a horse once or twice before. But let the horse buck them just once and watch their attitudes change."

The stable owner has found that the most difficult part in training a newcomer is breaking a natural fear of the animal that some children and most adults have.

"The first lesson or two will take in the feeding and grooming of horses to get my students in with them, but not on them, to start breaking that fear," the horsewoman continued, "when we finally get the student on the horse, I teach him how to relax by deeply concentrating on something that will take their minds off the fear. I've found that laughing and kidding around with them helps, too."

The equestrienne of 14 years believes that adults at one point in life have experienced a form of pain and so have a natural fear of falling off a horse. "For this reason I don't push an adult," she said, "you have to be careful with them."

Stables that specialize in advanced equitation and field competition are also available to horse enthusiasts in Seminole County.

The Over The Hill Farm in Oviedo offers riders who are already skilled in the basics, continued training in the "Hunters and Jumpers" classes of riding and horse showing.

Trainer Bill Schaub explained that horse and riders are judged on their hurdle jumping form and height performances in the "Jumpers" division while entries in the "Hunters" field are graded on the overall looks and managability of the horse.

Schaub is presently preparing his best riders and horses for the prestigious Devon Horse Show and County Fair held yearly in Devon, Pa.

He sees his student riders as athletes and trains them accordingly. Some of them train five days a week in the finer points of fence jumping and English riding. Both riding fields require a great amount of concentration and coordination, according to Schaub.

Horse rentals at most Seminole County stables average $6-$8 an hour. Basic riding lessons can cost $8 an hour per person in parties of three or more to $12 an hour for private lessons. Prices at specialized training stables will run somewhat higher, depending on the service needs of each rider.

Instructor Lee Bowers teaches student Lori Denberg, 7, that the proper grooming of horse "Wishbone" is just as important as learning good riding techniques.

Student rider Wendy Wolf takes "My Friend" through a practice jump at the "Over The Hill Stables" in Oviedo.

Selecting the proper tack will probably require the help of a trainer or serious rider who has the experience needed to select quality leather goods at a fair price. Trainer Bill Schaub points out that higher quality saddles will cost more, but explained that the dollar difference will pay for itself in added years of durability.

'Evita' — Peasant To Palace

By LIZ MITCHELL,
American Library Assn.

Stand back, America. Evita lives! The award-winning musical has been drawing big crowds. A movie is in the works. Though she died nearly two decades ago, Argentine first lady Eva Peron continues to fascinate.

Nicholas Fraser and Marysa Navarro's new biography "Eva Peron" (Norton, 214 pages, $14.95) seeks to present an objective view of the controversial Evita. Written jointly by a journalist and a historian, it's a compelling story.

From her childhood as an illegitimate daughter ostracized by her father's wife and legitimate children, to the macabre story of her body's mummification and disappearance, "Eva Peron" is a real case of truth that is stranger than fiction.

Little documentary information is available about Evita's background, and much that was written once she was in the spotlight is slanted according to the writer's political sympathies. The authors have created their

ABOUT BOOKS

Reviews prepared by

account using substantiated facts, footnoted quotes, and more than 100 interviews with people who knew Evita and Juan Peron.

Tracing her background from the obscure, backwater town of Junin, the authors present a portrait of a determined and insecure girl. Eva Maria Ibarguren was nicknamed "Skinny" and loved movies. One teacher remembered her as "a self-absorbed child with an intense inner life, great sensitivity and great vulnerability."

Popular rumor persists that Eva Maria as a young teenager ran off with a touring tango singer. But all that is known for sure is that she made her way to Buenos Aires, took her father's name, and became actress Eva Duarte. "When she found the soaps," the authors recount of her success in radio soap operas, "she found her acting career."

It was an earthquake in San Juan, Argentina, that brought actress Eva Duarte together with general Juan Peron. He was in charge of raising funds to help the victims, and she was one of the celebrities involved in an "artistic festival."

Soon Evita turned out the young mistress who was living with the middle-aged general and moved in herself. They would not marry for quite some time, and the fact of a leading politician-general's living openly with an actress led to much gossip.

When the coup of Oct. 17, 1945 brought Peron — and his Eva Peron, from the new biography by Nicholas Fraser and Marysa Navarro, an attempt to present an objective view of the controversial Evita.

Evita — to power, they were in a real sense people "who had not anticipated it and who, like the other actors in the drama, possessed only the slightest understanding, let alone control, of the events that engulfed them."

Once Evita became Evita Peron, first lady, she played the role with all the over-blown emotion and theatricality she had brought to the soaps. It appears to have been a role she created as she went along, responding to people and events, measuring the response, and then integrating what she learned into the public Evita persona.

At first, she lived extravagantly and tried to fit into the rigid life of strict protocol and land receptions which Argentine society dictated. She soon was snubbed by the oligarchy and, quite naturally, turned instead to the masses, the descamisados, from whom she herself had come.

Charity sessions came to fill almost all of Evita's time. She turned the opulent Argentine halls of state into a welfare house where the poor were welcome in all their suffering, illness and squalor. Fraser and Navarro present this amazing scenario not as a mere theatrical event, but as a genuine attempt to do something useful with her unexpected prominence and power.

"It is said by those who worked with her," they write, "that she, who could be arrogant and rude with those who threatened her as rivals or intellectual superiors, was with these petitioners unfailingly gentle and courteous, attending to them not as a bureaucrat but as an individual who had chosen such work because she enjoyed it."

Juan Peron saw little of his wife. His entreaties to take care of herself were not heeded. Evita refused medical counsel until she could avoid it no more. She had cancer. She died a long and public death, suffering for more than a year, giving dramatic and frenzied farewell speeches until the very end.

An elderly neighbor (Amzie Strickland) becomes overly motherly to Jack (John Ritter) in an episode of "Three's Company," airing Tuesday on ABC.

Lights! Action! Africa!

What would the average person do if a crocodile shot full speed toward him? When Alan Root found himself in that exact situation, instead of turning tail, he swam straight at the beast. Root, however, is a wildlife cinematographer and, admittedly, he is not your average person.

"I swam at it and it chickened out," said Root, who is perhaps the most renowned and the most scarred wildlife filmmaker in the business.

Root and his wife and camera partner, Joan, are seen dealing with some other less fearful creatures, in the special "LIGHTS! ACTION! AFRICA! The Fascinating Adventures of Wildlife Photographers Alan & Joan Root," narrated by Ed Asner, to be presented Wednesday on CBS.

In the special, the couple, married 20 years, turn the cameras on themselves to show some of the close calls and complications they face in filming the secret and mysterious worlds of East Africa.

Besides the timid crocodile, Root has survived airplane crack-ups, buffalo stampedes and malaria.

He's been attacked by everything from tsetse flies to hippos.

One might almost say he and his wife welcome danger.

"I am a stimulus addict," says Root, who has been bitten in the rear by a leopard and almost died from a bite by a poisonous puff adder (but "only" lost a finger as a result).

Root says he relishes the situation where danger and fear are finely balanced. "A project is not interesting unless the odds are against me. I get a kick from realizing that in a moment of danger I have been able to concentrate and do the right thing at the right time."

The stakes are high, and when they lose — fortunately that's not often — it's costly. When they win, the result is the kind of spectacular natural-history footage seen in their documentaries, one of which won them a Peabody and an Academy Award nomination.

In this special, Root reveals how he and his wife were almost killed by an enraged hippo when they came too close during the mating season, and Mrs. Root is seen risking her eyesight to get amazing slow motion shots of a deadly spitting cobra.

"Actually," says Mrs. Root, "the snake business was more dangerous for Alan than for me. He had to film dozens of sequences before he could make it all work, and he's allergic to antivenin."

Filmmaker Joan Root's relaxes at her Kenya homestead with a variety of "house pets," among them, an antelope.

Eight Is Enough For Rooney; But Liz Needs One Of Everything

NEW YORK—Asked his favorite subject in school, hotshot kid star Ricky Schroeder replied, "recess!"... Mickey Rooney wants it known he truly has found marital happiness. That's nice. Eight must be his lucky number... Eaglebert Humperdlack is nice and OK after the gallstone attack... Marvin Hamlich told a pal of mine that never again will he work another joint that sells food or drink. From now on, Hamlich, who has gone classy, concentrates solely on symphony music. In a pinch, maybe Broadway, but that's the lowest he'll go. Dirk Benedict and Cybill Shepherd star in "Versus the IRS," a play at a East Hampton theater in September... It's been an interesting period for Redd Foxx. Besides being burglarized and losing his jewelry, he also lost his wife because the final papers came through. To top it off, he also lost his red Jeep. The only thing to be returned to him so far was the red Jeep.

Two guys were found in it at a red light... Somebody thought I should inform you about the Who's Who of animal lovers. I don't know why I should but, here goes.

Doris Day loves dogs, Cher collects parrots, Ed Asner has cats and dogs, Liz Taylor has one of everything including tropical fish. James Mason is a well-known catophile and June Havoc goes for ducks, geese, burros, horses and anything on four legs that's ill or alone or needs treatment.

Joseph Bologna Wins As Actor And Writer

Joseph Bologna's secret is that half of him never grew up.

"When I'm acting," he says, "I'm like a child — raw, creative, vulnerable. As a writer, I'm an adult. Writing is difficult; you take it to bed with you."

"The actor, the kid, says, 'Hey, look at me!' His art is instantaneous. He has the most fun."

It's Joseph Bologna, the actor, who co-stars with Lee Remick and George Peppard in "Torn Between Two Lovers," a motion picture for television to be rebroadcast on Tuesday on CBS.

Bologna stars as Ted Conti, a man who never doubts the strength of his marriage to Diane (Miss Remick) until she comes home one day and announces that she's met someone else, Paul (Peppard), whom she is thinking of marrying.

"The good thing about the movie," Bologna says, "is that it scrambles you a little.

JOSEPH BOLOGNA

There is no good guy or bad guy in it. The trick of the movie is to have sympathy for all three characters.

"Each character has a trap," he continues. "Paul has to be super charming, super open and honest, or he comes off as a manipulator. Diane must have tremendous feeling and tremendous pain, or she becomes a villainess."

And what is it that Bologna, as Ted Conti, must look for? Very simply, Bologna says, "Ted can't be a dummy."

Bologna, in collaboration with his wife, Renee Taylor, wrote and starred in two films, "Lovers and Other Strangers" and "Made for Each Other," and the pair currently star in the Broadway comedy, "It Had To Be You." He also starred in the film "Mixed Company" and in the drama "Honor Thy Father" on CBS.

Bologna and Taylor have written for others and they've written for themselves. "Writing for yourself is not as easy as it may sound," he notes. "When you write for yourself, there's always the conflict between the adult and the kid, both saying, 'That's not good enough.' Writing for yourself, you need twice the time."

Another writer might be apprehensive to hand his script to Bologna the actor. But Bologna is quick to make it clear that he's not out to rewrite his part.

"My intention is to clarify the writer's intention. It would be dishonest for me as an actor not to want to act what the writer says. My writing ability is an asset to clarify and to fortify."

Bologna may be a writer who acts, or an actor who writes, but he will never be content with just one role.

"I just can't see myself without one or the other."

DRAMATIC SPECIAL

Kevin Dobson and Melinda Dillon star as a married couple whose relationship becomes all the more precious when he suffers a crippling heart attack, in the dramatic special "Transplant," to be rebroadcast Tuesday on the CBS.

Burr Has Own Island Of Calm

On a busy movie set Raymond Burr is an island of calm.

Off the set, to escape the rush and crush of Los Angeles, Burr often heads for his own island of calm.

Whenever his busy schedule permits, Burr flies off to Naitamba (pronounced nyetaumba), a 3,000-acre island he owns in the South Pacific, in the Fiji Islands. There, Burr raises orchids and cattle. Lately, he says, he's been experimenting with macadamia nuts in hopes of building up an export trade.

He has cross-bred several new orchid varieties, which he names after female friends and relatives. He has several small greenhouses at his home in the Hollywood Hills where he does the cross-breeding. The actual mass growing is done in commercial greenhouses on Naitamba and Lautoka, a neighboring Fijian island where he leases land.

Raymond Burr is a household name in many languages. In nine years as super-lawyer Perry Mason and eight more as police chief Robert T. Ironside, he became one of the most popular television personalities ever. Both series are still broadcast around the world.

Burr may be a very public figure, but he is reticent about his private life.

"What another may say, or allow to be said, about his personal life is his affair. I've never yet seen a comworkaholic, but I do like to keep busy. I doubt very much if you'll ever hear a retirement speech from Raymond Burr."

Burr, who won Emmy Awards and nominations for "Perry Mason" and "Ironside," stars in "The Jordan Chance," a motion picture for television to be rebroadcast June 20 on CBS.

In the film Burr stars as Frank Jordan, an eminent lawyer who, as a young man, spent seven years in prison for a crime he did not commit. While there, he began to study law, and he now specializes in giving similar "hopeless cases" their "Jordan chance."

Jordan and his three young associates — played by Ted Shackelford, James Canning and Jeannie Fitzsimmons — arrive in the small southwestern agricultural town of Playa Del Rio to reopen the case of Elena Delgado, a young woman now in prison for the murder of her ex-boyfriend.

Nobody Does It Better Than US

The recently released film "Nobody Does It Better Than You, America," which aims to capture the spirit of teamwork in this country, will be syndicated to television stations across the country during the week of June 27 through July 4.

Ed Asner will host the presentation, which focuses on three teams who exemplify the American spirit of pride and human possibility. The film is produced by Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Co.

The first depiction is of a team of surgeons who performed a quadruple by-pass on Wimbledon champ Arthur Ashe. Other teams include the First All Children's Theater, a New York City-based repertory group, and the astronauts crew members and technicians involved in the space shuttle project.

Lauren Tewes Is Still Aboard The 'Love Boat'

DEAR DICK: I am an avid "Love Boat" fan and lately I have been troubled about the show. It seems to me that Lauren Tewes is seen less and less. Could it be that she's gained a lot of weight? It seems she's always wearing black and standing behind the captain's daughter. I'd really appreciate an answer. I admire her and am concerned. T.P., Las Vegas, Nev.

Do not be concerned. The folks who man the "Love Boat" dispute your conclusion. They say there is no alighting of Lauren, and, in fact, lately she has been featured prominently in several shows. She did put on a little weight, for a time, but has subsequently gone back to her old slim self.

DEAR DICK: I heard on "Hee Haw" one evening that Roy Clark had 17 children. Is that true? ROSELLA BOSTIC, Williamsport, Pa.

They must be funnin' you, Rosella. It was probably one of them that "Hee Haw" ha-has that you took serious-like. Actually, Roy has two children, Roy Jr. and Diane.

DEAR DICK: Could you tell me the name of a movie starring Clint Eastwood, in which he played an outlaw taken in by some young girls at a school for girls? What was the movie and when was it made? JANET DENNIS, Chillicothe, Ohio.

That was "The Beguiled," a film released in 1971.

DEAR DICK: Recently I heard something I find hard to believe. Namely, that the late Jeanette MacDonald, who was teamed with Nelson Eddy in numerous movies, was the sister of the late Irene Ryan, who played granny on "The Beverly Hillbillies." Is this true or false? A.P., Saginaw, Mich.

False, but I'll tell you something true you may also find hard to believe. Jeanette did have an older sister who played on a sitcom, but it wasn't Irene Ryan. It was Blossom Rock, who played Granny on "The Addams Family."

DEAR DICK: Could you tell me if Sandy, the red-headed singer on "The Lawrence Welk Show" has permanently left the show, or is she on a leave of absence? MRS. NEIL B. GRAHAM, Skillman, N.J.

Just a leave. She'll be back. DEAR DICK: I am a fan of "The Lawrence Welk Show" and really enjoy the Tennessee gal, Ava Gardner. I would like to know what became of her husband, Roger. VIOLET GARRETT, Butterfield, Mo.

It's Ava Barber. Ava Gardner is an entirely different lady. Ava's husband, Roger, is a drummer. And he did appear on the show a couple of times, but Welk already had a drummer. And who needs two drummers?
