County Sets 1982-83 Priorities

Transportation, Office Space Top List

By MICHAEL BEHA
Herald Staff Writer

Transportation, office space and data processing are the top three priorities for Seminole County commissioners in fiscal 1982-83.

Commissioners set those priorities in an annual review of programs with department heads.

Transportation was also the county's top priority in fiscal 1981-82 and commissioners have made a commitment to seek state and federal funding for mass transit and highway construction in the county.

In the past year, reports on the projected needs for expansion of Lake Mary Boulevard and State Road 436 were completed.

Construction of a six-lane highway for Lake Mary Boulevard and a four-lane highway along a portion of S.R. 436 in Altamonte Springs has been recommended at a cost of more than $200 million.

This week, Sanford City Commissioner David Farr and Altamonte Springs City Commissioner Lee Constantine were named to the Seminole County Expressway Authority. The authority, composed of the five-county commissioners and the two representatives of the municipalities, will explore the funding alternatives for those construction projects.

The office space problem also has been addressed in the past week. Commissioners gave the go-ahead for short-term renovations to the old Seminole Memorial Hospital in Sanford for use as county offices.

The hospital will serve the commissioners and the county's constitutional officers while new facilities are built adjacent to the courthouse. Another building also may be constructed at the county's Five Points complex on a 15-acre tract.

The data processing problem is one of catching up to the needs of the county's various agencies. Personnel decisions have compelled the agencies to computerize many of their functions.

As more agencies have computerized their records, the demands on the Office of Computer Services has increased. To meet the county's growing needs, the staffing of the agency must be increased, Assistant County Administrator Jim Easton said.

The fourth-ranked priority set this week is personnel relations. The county has had problems in the parks division and roads division this year with communication problems.

In parks, four people have left the division and low morale exists because of supervisory practices, a staff report issued this week states.

Roads division employees have complained about raises being given to other employees. They claimed the road employees have been overlooked when handing out pay increases.

County Administrator Roger Nelswender said the commissioners need to institute some kind of program to communicate with the employees. "There's no vehicle for communication," he said. "We're letting a third party, newspapers, do that for us. That's disastrous."

"We need to spend a significant amount of money on management techniques for supervisors and mid-management people," he said. "We spend money on maintaining our cars. We spend money maintaining our buildings. We're not spending to maintain our employees."

The fifth priority is a capital improvements plan. The plan is a spending program for buildings and other facilities within the county. It is linked with the 10th priority — the five-year update of the Comprehensive Management plan. The CMP spells out the county's goals and objectives plus funding sources for the next five years.

Water resources is the sixth priority. This was ranked third last year. The plan is to better manage the available water to meet the county's growing need for water and sewer service. Because of an increase in rainfall over the past year, commissioners' concern is not as great, they said.

Seventh is a fire district program. The expected needs for fire service have been spelled out and some property has been acquired but continued attention will be necessary to continue the program.

Ranked eighth is the county's new fleet management program. The program was instituted this year and is expected to save a considerable amount of money in vehicle maintenance. Responsibility for vehicles is taken away from the individual departments and placed in a central office.

Ranked ninth was communicating with the state legislature and other inter-governmental groups.

Several commissioners felt this should be moved up the list because lobbying for funds is essential to the other programs.

Games Near Ended

Some individuals who have experienced a moment of glory continually dwell in the past, but not Olympians Dorothy Franey Langkop and Alice Landon.

And not the thousands of senior citizens who came to Sanford this week to compete in the eighth annual Golden Age Games.

They are very much alive and looking forward to next year.

Golden Age Games Honorary Chairman Mrs. Langkop, 67, from Dallas, Texas, and her long-time friend, Alice Landon, 80, of New York spoke at the Fellowship of Christian Athletes breakfast held today in the Sanford Civic Center.

The event was attended by approximately 30 FCA members from Seminole High School and Lake Mary High School and about 50 participants and officials in the Golden Age Games.

Mrs. Landon was a high platform diver on the U.S. Olympic Team in the 1920 Olympics and Mrs. Langkop was an Olympic gold medalist in speed skating in two Olympics in the 30s.

"Who cares about 1920 or 1939?" asked Mrs. Landon. "I'm interested in today. I don't care about past Olympics; I'm looking forward to the next Olympics."

The Sanford Golden Age Games, which attracted about 3,000 men and women 55 years and older this year, will wind down Saturday.

Final events will include track and field, beginning at 9 a.m. Saturday at Seminole High School stadium, Shuffleboard at 9 a.m., horsehoes at 1 p.m., and croquet at 2 p.m., all at Fort Mellon Park.

Ah, Those Golden B-Ballers

The Lakeview Middle School student came running into the corridor outside the gymnasium, his eyes wild with excitement.

"Come in here and look at this!" he yelled at a friend while eagerly tugging at his shirt.

"What's the big deal?" his buddy asked.

"There's some old man in the gym shooting baskets, and he's shooting UNDERHAND!"

"So?" said his friend. "I used to do that when I was little and wasn't strong."

"Yeah, so did I," said the wild-eyed one. "But this old guy is making all of his shots!"

The object of these two Lakeview youngsters' enthusiasm was none other than Aubrey Phillips, a 63-year-old sharpshooter from Cincinnati, Ohio, who along with his wife, Ruby, 57, was about to take part in his first Golden Age Games.

And as the young boys pointed out, he was making most of his shots from around the perimeter and free throw line in the Free Throw-Foul Shot competition for men aged 60-65.

"Yeah, I made 29 out of 30 in the practice round," said the bespectacled Phillips. "But I didn't shoot that well in

Veterans Tribute Paid To Vietnam Fighters

By JANE CASSELBERRY

Representatives from seven local veterans organizations and their auxiliaries, the Florida Army National Guard and the Knights of Columbus gathered Thursday in Sanford for a fitting tribute to those who have served in our nation's wars.

The annual Veterans Day observance was held at the Veterans Memorial Park on Sanford's lakefront at 11 a.m. with the American Legion Post 53, the Amvets, Disabled American Veterans Chapter 30, Fleet Reserve Branch 147, Military Order of Purple Heart, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Anzio Beachhead all taking part.

Veterans of four wars marched from the VFW post home to the park for the ceremonies.

Music was provided by the Seminole High School Band. The master of ceremonies was Donzel Crouse.

U.S. Rep. Bill McCollum (R-Altamonte Springs) spoke in support of a strong national defense. He expressed concern about the persons who are calling for nuclear disarmament.

McCollum gave a special tribute to the Vietnam veterans. McCollum said that those who fought in Vietnam fought for our freedom just as much as any other of our nation's wars.

District 18 VFW Commander Al Horton, a disabled veteran, views the Sanford Veterans Day ceremonies from his flag-decorated wheelchair.

In addition to the dead, he noted there are those Vietnam veterans who still bear the scars of war physically and there are the walking wounded with mental and emotional scars.

Commander Walter Feagins of Casselberry, a retired U.S. Navy chaplain, presented the Veterans Day message. In gratitude for living in a free country and for those who have died to protect the liberty, Feagins said, "We should each pray, 'Help me to give something back.'"

Irving Leary of the DAV gave an inspiring recitation of the poem, "The Flag."

Others participating in the program included Joe Faglione, VFW Post 10108 Chaplain, who gave the invocation; the Knights of Columbus color guard; Jack Horner, president of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce; Ruth Hester, president of the Ladies Amvets, who prayed; and Paul Dzielniski, Fleet Reserve chaplain, who gave the benediction.

VFW Commander Orville Reiley presented a flag to Horner for the support he has given local veterans groups. Patty Tripp led the singing of the National Anthem.

A high point in the program was the ceremonial dropping of a wreath over Lake Monte from a small plane by Andy Reno of the Fleet Reserve in memory of those who have died for their country.

$500 Million Heathrow PUD Is Underway

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Groundbreaking ceremonies were held today for the 1,268-acre, multi-million-dollar Heathrow Planned Unit Development near Lake Mary.

The tract is west of Interstate 4, north of Lake Mary Boulevard and east of Markham Woods Road. It is expected to require 10 or more years to develop at a cost exceeding $500 million, Thomas J. Stevenson of Paulucci Enterprises said today.

Heathrow's development will be developed in an English theme. It will offer a wide choice of single family luxury homes, townhouses and condominiums among the several thousand residential units planned, Stevenson said.

Within Heathrow is also planned a shopping center, office buildings, a middle school, an 18-hole championship golf course, recreation facilities for swimming, boating, tennis, horseback riding, pedestrian and bicycle paths and lakeside parks, he said.

On the east side of the residential development is planned a complex of suburban office buildings along Heathrow's two-mile frontage on Interstate 4.

The groundbreaking ceremonies inaugurated construction of the four-lane, landscaped Heathrow Boulevard to be the major north-south route within the community. A large circular lake with a center fountain is planned at the entrance and the banks of the four lakes near the entrance will be landscaped.

Development plans also call for a professional center to house Paulucci Enterprises offices and the Heathrow preview center which will provide information on homes and properties available within the development. The first phase of development will include two single-family subdivisions with controlled entrances and security.

Stevenson said Heathrow will provide its own utility company to develop water and sewage treatment facilities for the community.

Stevenson said Heathrow will be a picturesque development designed and landscaped to capitalize and enhance the atmosphere of the English countryside already apparent in one of the most beautiful tracts of rolling hills and lakes in the state. The 1,238 acres include numerous mature oaks.

"The continuity of the community will be preserved by the highest quality architectural planning and landscaping to maintain the appeal of a lake-oriented English countryside within Heathrow," Stevenson said.

He said Heathrow is about five minutes southwest of Sanford.

Shannon Whittle of Orlando is the contractor for the initial phase of construction. Planners for the development are Post, Buckley, Schuh & Jernigan, Inc., of Orlando. Engineers are Conklin, Porter & Holmes of Sanford. The golf course designer is Ron Gari & Associates of Lakeland.

Those who participated in the groundbreaking were: Cynthia Paulucci Soderstrom, representing the Paulucci family; Roger W. Soderstrom, real estate consultant to Paulucci Enterprises; Stevenson director of real estate operations, and Bob Sturm, chairman, and other members of the Seminole County Commission.

Elected Unanimously

Brantley To Head County Lawmakers

State Rep. Bobby Brantley, R-Longwood, was unanimously elected chairman of the Seminole County Legislative delegation at a special meeting in Longwood this morning.

Brantley was nominated for the office by freshman state Rep. Carl Selph, R-Casselberry, and received the approval of the entire seven-member delegation.

No one else was nominated for the office.

Re-elected unopposed to his third term in the state House in November, Brantley, a golf course owner and operator, sought the chairmanship unsuccessfully during his second term.

Other members of the Republican-dominated delegation in addition to Brantley are Selph are: Sen. Toni Jennings, R-Orlando; Rep. Tom Drage, R-Orlando; Sen. Dick Langley, R-Clermont; Rep. Art Grindle, R-Altamonte Springs and Sen. John Vogt of Cocoa Beach, the lone Democrat in the group.

Three members of the seven-member delegation — Brantley, Selph and Grindle — live in Seminole County.

Cancer Fighting Interferon May Be Available Here Soon

ST. PETERSBURG (UPI) — A new law which permits the in-state sale of unproven cancer drugs may enable a St. Petersburg firm to market interferon to state physicians before the end of the year.

The Florida Cancer Therapeutic Research Act, passed in March over a veto by Gov. Bob Graham, allows consenting cancer patients to use unproven drugs if a state review board approves the physician's treatment plan.

Interferon, a natural substance that is part of the body's immune system, is still considered an unproven drug by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration. So far, limited tests of the substance have shown mixed results.

Shuttle Launches Satellite

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — The Columbia 5 astronauts, using the space shuttle as a 184-mile-high launch platform, placed one satellite in orbit and prepared to push out a second today.

It was the first time a major satellite had been launched from a manned spaceship and it reinforced the space agency's expectation the Columbia and its three sister ships will become space transportation workhorses.

Miami To Hold Its Own Fair

MIAMI (UPI) — The 1992 World's Fair will grace the streets of Chicago and not Miami, but city and state officials say they will host their own fair which will make the Chicago exposition "look like a kiddie carnival."

Promoters say the 1992 Miami exposition will go ahead as planned, will last a year and focus on exhibitors from the Caribbean and Latin America.

Miami Expo 500 president Randy Coleman estimated that a scaled-down international fair would bring about 25 to 30 million visitors to Miami about half the number that would have come to a world's fair.

Former KGB Head Andropov Elected Soviet Party Boss

MOSCOW (UPI) — Yuri Andropov's sinister image as former head of the KGB conceals a career politician who could spring more than a few surprises as the successor of Leonid Brezhnev as chief of the Soviet Communist Party.

Andropov, 68, was elected general secretary of the Soviet Communist Party by a unanimous vote of the Central Committee today, the official Soviet news agency Tass reported.

But analysts and Soviet sources said they expected Brezhnev's dual posts as head of state and chief of the Communist Party to be split between two men, at least initially.

Reforms are expected in the Soviet economy if he comes to power, but Andropov is no liberal despite his reputation as one of the most open minds in the Politburo.

Solidarity's Walesa Freed

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Solidarity union leader Lech Walesa was freed Friday after nearly 11 months of internment, a Justice Ministry spokesman said.

The unexpected decision to free Walesa showed Poland's military rulers are confident of lifting martial law by the end of the year, a diplomat says.

Government spokesman Jerzy Urban said Thursday, Walesa, the fiery strike leader who led the 10 million-member Solidarity for its entire 16 months of existence, was no longer considered "a threat to internal stability."

Jail Issue Tossed Into Double Taxation Debate

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

A new issue — use of the Seminole County jail by prisoners arrested by city police in the county versus those arrested by the Sheriff's Department — was injected into the continuing double taxation talks Wednesday by County Administrator Roger Neiswender.

And it clogged temporarily the work of the committee studying the double taxation issue, seeking agreement as an alternative to court action.

The cities have contended for years that city residents are taxed by the county for services from which they receive no real and substantial benefit.

After several months study, the committee came to an agreement Wednesday that the major item of double taxation is with the Sheriff's Department patrol. The conclusion reached is that the patrol merely passes through the cities of the county and does the vast majority of its work in the county's unincorporated areas.

The committee scheduled for its final meeting next Wednesday a study of the costs of administering the various county departments.

And county staff members, along with the cities' consultant, David Greene of Kelton and Associates of DeLand, were instructed to gather those statistics. Greene is to submit findings at next week's meeting.

Kelton and Associates, commissioned by the cities to do the double taxation study, said double taxation exists in Seminole County. The study pointed to various areas where city residents are taxed for services by the county which they receive to a lesser degree than unincorporated areas.

The Committee earlier decided it would follow a double track in its deliberations, not only looking for double taxation items, but also looking at the equity side of the ledger where city or county residents are being taxed unfairly.

Neiswender assured that he would recommend to county commissioners adoption of a uniform policy of charging cities for traffic signals.

He agreed that several policies are now being followed, according to when agreements were signed on traffic signals. As one example Sanford, with old agreements, is paying maintenance costs on almost all traffic signals within its bounds while Altamonte Springs pays under a different policy.

Neiswender said he will ask commissioners to scrap old agreements and use the following criteria: when a traffic signal is located at an intersection of two state roads or two county roads, the county will pay all maintenance costs and when they are located at an intersection with a city street, the city will pay only a pro rata share.

On the equity side, Neiswender brought up the use of the jail, saying the jail population at any given time is about two-thirds city prisoners to one-third sheriff's prisoners.

Only Altamonte Springs City Manager Jeff Etchberger urged the statistics be compiled by the county and be considered by the cities. Etchberger said Neiswender had "just opened a door for the County Commission to hide behind" on the issue of double taxation. He added that he didn't want the jail to become the scapegoat in a failure to reach agreement.

Sanford City Manager W. E. "Pete" Knowles said, however, that state law calls for the county to have full responsibility for the jail.

Reagan Quizzed On Jobs, Social Security

United Press International

At his nationally broadcast press conference Thursday night, President Reagan touched on several topics, ranging from the economy to U.S.-Israel relations.

During his first news conference in six weeks, Reagan: — Vowed to reject any "make-work" jobs program, but said he is considering a plan to boost the federal gasoline tax a nickel a gallon to finance a massive road and mass transit rebuilding project.

— Promised he would not support any changes in the Social Security system that would cut benefits to those now drawing on the federal pension program.

— Said he will not take a "threatening" stance toward Israel, despite its expansion of settlements in occupied Arab territories, when he meets with Prime Minister Menachem Begin next week.

— Asserted there "is plenty of evidence" the nuclear freeze movement in the United States is being directed or manipulated by the Soviet Union.

— Said he remains convinced "we're on the right course" for an economic recovery, but could not say when the nation's 10.4 percent unemployment rate will stop climbing.

There were no questions on last week's midterm election, which was regarded as a referendum on Reagan's economic program. The Democrats picked up 26 seats in the House and made a net gain of seven governorships.

Questions at the 14th news conference of Reagan's presidency focused on Brezhnev, the Middle East and unemployment — now at a post-Great Depression high.

He confirmed U.S. efforts to negotiate nuclear arms reduction but said "we shouldn't delude ourselves. Peace is a product of strength, not of weakness — of facing reality and not believing in false hopes."

Reagan rejected Capitol Hill proposals from Democrats and Republicans for a massive public works jobs program.

Look up!

Climbing a tree can be a shocking experience.

Before you or your children climb a tree, look up to see if there are any power lines nearby.

If there are, make sure there's no danger of touching them, or even coming close.

And remember that the tree itself could become accidentally charged with electricity. All it takes is for a branch to come in contact with a power line. If someone gets close to the point of contact, they could get a severe shock. And under certain conditions — wet weather, for example — the electric current can be carried all the way to the ground. That means it's also possible to get a shock from simply touching the trunk of the tree.

So always look up before you have anything to do with a tree. And tell your children to do the same. Naturally we're working to keep your trees clear of our lines. But we also know little boys and girls love to climb them.

What we're concerned about is that you and your children are aware of the dangers, so that if they should climb a tree without your knowing, you can take comfort knowing they looked before climbing.

Encouraging safety is just one way we're working hard at being the kind of power company you want.

New HCA Hospital Administrator Named

The administrator for the proposed $30 million South Seminole Medical Complex has been named by the Hospital Corp. of America.

Robert Blumentritt, 35, currently assistant administrator of Lawnwood Medical Center, Ft. Pierce, will assume the duties of administrator of the Longwood facility on Jan. 1, according to Paul McKnight, HCA vice president in charge of the firm's Tallahassee division which oversees 16 hospitals.

Blumentritt has a bachelors degree from the University of Missouri and a master's degree in health care administration from Washington University School of Medicine.

He joined HCA in 1978 as assistant administrator of St. Thomas Hospital in Nashville and became assistant administrator of Lawnwood, in 1980 after James Tesar left there to become administrator of the Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford.

McKnight said during construction of the two-hospital complex Blumentritt will be organizing the medical staff and the board of trustees, and hiring over 300 employees. He will also be writing policy and procedure manuals.

The board of trustees, McKnight said, will be composed equally of private physicians and Longwood community leaders.

The medical complex will be autonomous, he said. HCA will begin construction in early January of the South Seminole Medical Complex on a 26-acre site north of State Road 434 and west of State Road 427.

The complex will include a 150-bed acute care hospital to be named South Seminole Hospital and an 80-bed psychiatric hospital to be named West Lake Hospital.

The two facilities, to be connected by an enclosed walkway, are to be built simultaneously. While the complex will face State Road 434, it will also have entrances from Warren Avenue and West Lake Street.

What's Wrong With Picking Apples?

Each year for the past five years workers from Jamaica have been brought into the New England state of Vermont to work the autumn harvest of apples from orchards along the state's New York and Massachusetts borders.

These workers are paid the minimum wage — $3.35 an hour — but top pickers, laboring industriously, can boost the pay scale up to $7.50 an hour.

This year, with unemployment reaching more than 6 percent of the state's 500,000 population, the Vermont Job Service sought out unemployed residents to see if they would like to get back to work on a job picking apples.

The job service sent postcards to 10,000 unemployed persons registered with the office. It conducted advertising campaigns for apple pickers in newspapers and on television. Finally, all the growers seeking apple pickers were brought together with those out of work to conduct interviews. Nobody was knocked down by the rush.

The job service said only 395 out of 30,000 unemployed persons indicated they might be interested — and it is believed less than 100 actually accepted apple picking jobs. Again Jamaicans had to be brought to fill the picking crews.

Now picking apples doesn't require tremendous skills. One must be able to handle a 20-foot ladder and make sure the fruit isn't bruised when taken from the tree. Almost all Vermont apples are for table use — mostly McIntosh — and they must look their best.

The recruiting effort started in July with the goal of organizing an all-American picking crew. But by Labor Day, when harvest season started, it was clear that Vermont's unemployed wanted no part of apple picking. They were content to live on their unemployment checks — and at least one out of work Vermont Yankee declared he wouldn't go back to work unless he received his usual wage of $8 an hour. The Jamaicans had to be recruited for another year.

The apple crop in Vermont is minuscule compared to the apple and pear crops of the Pacific Coast states. One wonders if Washington, Oregon and California have made an effort to recruit the unemployed as pickers and are experiencing the same sort of lethargic response to job offers. Here we are in the midst of a serious recession — unemployment running more than 10 percent in many areas — and employers have to send out to foreign countries for workers.

What's happened to the old-fashioned Yankee work ethic? It seems to us that those out of work in Vermont and other states as well should accept the jobs that are available and help this county get back on its feet.

A Deal's A Deal

Pacific Northwest timber companies, hard hit by the nearly moribund house construction market, want the federal government to bail them out.

Here's the story: Two years ago the loggers signed contracts with the government to buy timber on federal lands at the going price. But that price has dropped, with the diminished demand for lumber for construction, and the timber companies say if they pay the two-year-old price, they'll take a loss. They want Uncle Sam to forgive the contracts and charge them today's lower rates for the lumber.

That sounds like a compassionate request. But if the price of lumber had soared in the past two years, do you think the lumber companies would have asked to pay the new price?

Of course not. This is a case of business wanting to go on welfare, and quite frankly, the government can't afford to put the lumber industry on relief.

President Reagan opposes special interest legislation, now before Congress, that would do that, and so do we. In signing a contract, a business should play by the rules of the free market. If it guesses wrong, business, not the taxpayer, should pay.

BERRY'S WORLD

Here's a couple of "hot" items you might want to think about:

— The Sanford Fire Department is holding its Annual Gospel Sing on Friday, Nov. 26 at the Sanford Civic Center. The sing will begin at 7 p.m. and last until midnight.

Advance tickets can be purchased from either of Sanford's two fire stations or from ticket sales chairman, Doug Luce. All proceeds go to the Sanford Firemen's Benefit Fund.

Featured at the sing — will be the Florida Boys Quartet, The Singing American, Marshall Henson and the Gospel Carriers. Refreshments will be sold and door prizes given away.

For tickets or further information concerning the event, call Doug Luce at 322-4952 or stop by the fire station at 1303 S. French Ave.

— In addition, the National Safety Council, in conjunction with the Seminole County Fire Department, is collecting donations from residents in an effort to distribute fire safety materials to more than 15,000 students in county schools.

Public Safety Director Gary Kaiser said the materials are badly needed to meet the needs of students and educate them on methods of fire prevention and safety.

For additional information, please call the Seminole County Fire Department at 323-2500.

The Lake Mary Police Department and Seminole County Sheriff's Department will be conducting seminars and demonstrations in an effort to help area residents become more prepared in preventing crimes.

The sessions will begin Monday, Nov. 15 from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. and from 7 p.m. until 9 p.m., at the Agricultural Center auditorium at 4320 S. Orlando Drive, Sanford.

Discussions will include county programs to prevent crimes and information concerning neighborhood watch programs. There will also be demonstrations concerning proper installation of door and window locks, how to identify your property and self-defense.

The workshop is sponsored by the Lake Mary Extension Homemakers, Extension Home Economics and Florida Cooperative Extension Service. For more information, call 323-2500, ext. 179 or 183.

Kidney Device Eyed

By TIM BRYANT

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Doctors are expected to begin human testing soon on a device that researchers say should triple the time a kidney can be maintained outside the body for a transplant operation.

Increasing the time a kidney can be preserved permits a more thorough search for the proper tissue match between a kidney donor and recipient, thus increasing the chances of transplant successes.

"With better matching, you have less rejection," said Max Jellinek, one of the St. Louis University researchers who developed the machine. "Also, it can shorten the several weeks of dialysis customary after a kidney transplant.

"We're trying to include the kidneys that are marginal," Jellinek said. "We're trying to improve the storage time. We're talking about human suffering reduced. And we're doing this with a slight increase in cost."

The recently-patented machine works by precisely controlling the amount of oxygen in the fluid, called perfusate, that is pumped through an extracted kidney awaiting transplantation. Too much oxygen and the kidney quickly deteriorates.

"The human being is constantly protecting itself from the damaging effects of oxygen," Jellinek said.

Conventional storage machines lower the kidney's oxygen needs, but increase the organ's susceptibility to oxygen damage.

"The kidney is forgiving within certain limits," Jellinek said. "But if you keep going with normal perfusion, it will fail everytime."

Minimum cost of the device will be $350 plus about $150 in additional expense each time it is used, Jellinek said.

About 3,500 kidney transplants are performed between non-related people annually in the United States.

Jellinek said the device could increase the pool of available kidneys by 10 to 15 percent.

The machine, which consists of a two-chambered cylinder and an electronic meter, splices into the tubing of an existing kidney storage machine and maintains the organ for as long as six days. The current limit is only two days.

Federal Drug Administration permission to test the device with human kidneys is expected soon. Jellinek said about year of additional testing will be needed before the machine is ready for general use. Previous tests have been done with dog kidneys.

The six-year study to develop the machine was headed by Dr. John E. Codd, professor of surgery at the St. Louis University School of Medicine. Funding came from the National Institute of Arthritis, Diabetes, Digestive and Kidney Diseases, and the Missouri Kidney Foundation.

Much of the research was conducted at the John Cochran Veterans Administration Medical Center, one of the nation's 151 kidney transplant centers.

JEFFREY HART A New Priceless Anecdote

The following anecdote does not have anything to do with Lebanon or Reaganomics, but it is too rich and marvelous to keep from the readers of this column.

It was included in a commencement address delivered last June at the University of California in San Diego by Professor Ronald Berman of the Department of Literature.

The colonial government of Virginia, according to a wonderful story by Benjamin Franklin, told the Indians of the Six Nations that there was "at Williamsburg a College, with a Fund for Educating Indian youth; and that, if the Six Nations could send down half a dozen of their young Lads to that College, the Government would take care that they should be well provided for, and instructed in all the Learning of the White People."

What follows is a story that sounds as if it were written by Mark Twain rather than by Ben Franklin:

"It is one of the Indian Rules of Politeness not to answer a public Proposition the same day that it is made; they think it would be treating it as a light matter, and that they show it Respect by taking time to consider it, as a Matter important. They therefore deferr'd their Answer till the Day following; when their Speaker began, by expressing their deep Sense of the kindness of the Virginia Government, in making them that Offer; for we know," says he, 'that you highly esteem the kind of Learning taught in these Colleges, and that the Maintenance of our young Men, while with you, would be very expensive to you. We are convince'd, therefore, that you mean to do us good by your Proposal; and we thank you heartily. But you, who are wise, must know that different Nations have different Conceptions of things; and you will therefore not take it amiss, if our Ideas of this kind of Education happen not to be the same with yours. We have had some Experience of it; Several of our young People were formerly brought up at the Colleges of the Northern Provinces; they were instructed in all your Sciences; but, when they came back to us, they were bad Runners, ignorant of every means of living in the Woods, unable to bear either Cold or Hunger, knew neither how to build a Cabin, take Deer, or kill an Enemy, spoke our Language imperfectly, were therefore neither fit for Hunters, Warriors, nor Counsellors; they were totally good for nothing."

The speech ends with what can only be called a socko finish:

"We are however not the less oblig'd by your kind Offer, tho' we decline accepting it; and, to show our grateful Sense of it, if the Gentlemen of Virginia will send us a Dozen of their Sons, we will take great Care of their Education, instruct them in all we know, and make MEN of them."

The Indians, of course, were kidding—but, kidding aside, they were raising a profound question about the meaning and purpose of education, and they were raising it as profoundly as Plato.

We are now well into the new academic year of 1982-83, and there is no doubt in my mind that we ourselves ought to be pondering exactly that question.

BUSINESS WORLD

Strong Dollar No Blessing

By MARY TOBIN
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — The resurgence of the U.S. dollar as the world's strongest currency provides a psychological lift for Americans and a material boon for those traveling or living abroad.

It's not such a blessing for U.S. business and for much of the rest of the world.

"One can't exaggerate the damage to U.S. industry caused by the strong dollar," Ronald Liesching, economist at Chase Manhattan Bank, said. "People tend to focus on things like steel and cars, but you're seeing strong foreign competition in other areas too — machine tools for example.

"The only thing U.S. business is exporting is jobs," Liesching said.

American corporations which do business abroad are forced to repatriate their foreign earnings into stronger dollars and third-quarter earnings reports of many large multinationals noted the adverse impact on profits. At the same time U.S. exporters are at a disadvantage in trying to sell their more expensive goods abroad.

Domestically business must compete with foreign imports made still cheaper by weaker currencies, especially the Japanese yen which has depreciated 22 percent against the dollar since the beginning of the year.

Apart from direct damage to manufacturers, foreign price competition hurts American producers. The U.S. copper industry, for example, has been virtually shut down by foreign price competition in a recessionary market.

"You won't find too many people who would disagree that the dollar is overvalued," said Thomas Campfield, head of the foreign exchange advisory service at Manufacturers Hanover Trust. "U.S. companies in certain areas have trouble manufacturing goods at a price that our trading partners can sell them because of current exchange rates."

The strong dollar is devastating to foreign countries. Since much of the world's trade, including oil, is conducted in dollars, non-oil producing countries are being forced to trade their weak currencies for dollars to pay energy and other trade bills.

The worldwide recession and high unemployment also are forcing foreign countries to take various measures to help their own economies, from lowering interest rates to devaluing their currencies, all of which further strengthen the dollar.

There are hardly any negative factors for the dollar short-term: U.S. interest rates still are relatively high; politically the United States is probably the world's most stable country; there are signs the U.S. economy may be bottoming out while other countries still are mired in recession. In a word the dollar is "safe money."

But Campfield believes current exchange rates are not sustainable over the longer term based on the inevitable impact on trade and current account balances. The only question is the timing.

The U.S. recession has so far masked the decline in U.S. exports, but there has been a "tremendous deterioration in volume that will be magnified when the economy recovers. This deterioration could give the U.S. a trade deficit of as much as $10 billion a month," Liesching said.

"There are two main ingredients necessary for the dollar to come down" to more realistic levels, Campfield said. "One, a decline in interest rates, has already begun to happen.

"The second is a pickup in worldwide economic activity," he said. "When that happens investors and people who move money around may see an opportunity not only for capital gains on investments in other countries, but for gains on appreciation of their currencies.

"We don't see that happening until well into 1983," Campfield said.

Gunther Dean. "They did not ask support from us," Dean told my associates Lucette Lagnado and Jack Mitchell.

LeBoutillier has claimed positive results from his negotiations, which are not apparent to others. He refused to discuss the details of the mission but denied it had caused any discomfiture at either Foggy Bottom or Capitol Hill. Both he and Hendon stressed the sensitive nature of their dealings.

There was sufficient high-level interest at least to lead officials of the Agency for International Development to find a loophole in its regulations to justify paying about $8,000 for Hendon's travel expenses. Hendon said he had been helping the government and therefore was entitled to go at the taxpayers' expense. AID officials, who don't like to argue with congressmen, agreed. LeBoutillier said he paid his own way.

Footnote: An official of one private organization which dedicates its efforts to the return of missing prisoners or their remains insisted that LeBoutillier and Hendon deserve credit for initiating a medical-relief program for the Laotians. The congressmen's actions, the official said, had prompted the Laotian government to cooperate more freely in the search for MIAs.

"PUZZLED PLUMBER: Like the legendary little Dutch boy, Richard W. Allen of the Consumer Product Safety Commission set out to plug a leak. But he failed.

The leak involved an internal commission document. It was a devastating indictment of Robertshaw Controls of Richmond, Va., for alleged failure to promptly recall some dangerous gas water-heater controls. Robertshaw sued the agency, claiming the leak was officially inspired.

So Allen set out to track down the source of the leak and prove that it had not come from the top. He insisted that no lie detectors were used in his investigation. In the end, he concluded that it was impossible to find out who had leaked the document to me. I could have told him that at the start, but he never asked.

A yellow rose, the Beta Sigma Phi flower, graced each place setting when over 100 members of Sanford Chapters of the sorority gathered Saturday at Maison Et Jardin Restaurant, Altamonte Springs, for the annual all-chapter luncheon.

Guest speaker Glenn W. Turner, Seminole County entrepreneur and a controversial international personality, was introduced by Linda Keeling, luncheon chairman.

Turner who was defeated in the November election by Tom Drage Jr. for District 36 Florida House of Representatives seat, accepted his defeat with humor and told the sorority sisters and guests that President Lincoln ran for office 12 times and he has eight more cracks on the political scene to keep in step with Lincoln.

A positive thinker with a flair for flamboyance, Turner's commentary centered around the pursuit of happiness and how it is generated from within individuals. The women applauded when the dynamic speaker said, "There's no such thing as an ugly woman." Turner's wife, Sherry, also a highly motivational speaker, briefly addressed the sorority on "What Makes A Woman Unforgettable."

During the festivities in an elegant setting at the charming facility, winning chapters in the yearbook competition were announced by Jan McClung who judged the yearbooks with assistance from Janet Torbett.

Mrs. McClung presented award-winning ribbons to: Cheryl Burch, president of Xi Epsilon Sigma, first place; Betty Jack, president of Preceptor Delta Delta chapter, second place; and Nancy Hack, president of Theta Epsilon Chapter, third place. Chapter members compiled the colorful and artistic yearbook.

Among the guests attending were past sorority members Dora Lee Russell and Eleanor Butler.

In an impressive candlelight ritual, Betty Jack was inducted into the coveted Order of the Rose by Susan Byrd, assisted by members of Preceptor Delta Delta Chapter.

Door prizes were awarded after the full-course luncheon was served. Co-chairman Betty Jack of the hostess, chapter, Preceptor Delta Delta, said she and Linda Keeling received only rave reviews about the annual gathering this year.

Mom Needs To Take Girl's Early Blooming In Stride

DEAR ABBY: This is to "Desperate Mom": Please don't panic. I was your little girl at age 7. By age 9 I was wearing a 38-B bra. I survived because my mom never showed signs of concern. She never cried for me. (God forbid I should carry the guilt of making my own mother cry about something over which I had no control.) Thank heavens she didn't take me to doctors or psychologists. I would have thought there was something terribly "wrong" with me if she had.

Sure, I got teased, just like the girl in my class with the prominent nose and the one across the room with a funny name nobody could pronounce. Boys called me "Milkshake." I'd scream at them and go home crying, then Mom would tell me what a big problem they had. The teasing made me strong and non-judgmental because I had a mom who gave me support and comfort.

Your little girl will be OK, just as I was, but it's up to you whether she feels like a freak or not.

Dear Abby

EARLY BLOOMER

DEAR ABBY: Please tell "Desperate Mom" not to push the panic button. I was 8 when I blossomed into womanhood. I was the first one in my class to wear a bra. (The other girls envied me.) My mother tried to be casual about it but I knew she was a little perturbed about my early development.

When I saw my own 7-year-old daughter develop early, it was no big deal. I told her what she needed to know as it became relevant and she handled it quite gracefully and naturally. That's what it is — natural. Her timetable is just running a little faster than the majority.

If Mother freaks out, Daughter will feel strange and "abnormal." If Mother takes it in stride, Daughter will accept her body changes for what they are — natural steps toward becoming a woman.

BEEN THERE
DEAR BEEN THERE, K'S MOM AND EARLY BLOOMER: You were only two of many who wrote to offer comfort and counsel to a mother who was about to have a nervous breakdown when her 7-year-old daughter showed symptoms of premature physical development. Thank you all for writing to help a stranger. The longer I write this column, the more convinced I am that people are better than ever.

Every teen-ager should know the truth about drugs, sex and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), addressed envelope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 33923, Hollywood, Calif. 90033.

Gardening

Free Flowering Petunia Number 1 Annual Flower

Petunias may well be the perfect performers — but in Florida there is one serious problem homeowners must watch out for.

Compact, free-flowering petunias are the number 1 annual flower. They have a diversity of color, form and usefulness unmatched among flowers. They are used in small garden borders, as ground covers, mass bed plantings for bold displays, in window boxes, planters, hanging baskets and as pot plants.

Just choosing a color and type of petunia is a real problem. The types available are — multiflora or grandiflora in singles or doubles. The singles are still the most popular, especially the multifloras which are small flowered but bloom so profusely that they are preferred for mass plantings. The multifloras stand up very well to adverse conditions.

The grandifloras (single) include the "fancy" types having large flowers. Petals have varied forms from ruffled and fringed types to the ever increasingly popular cascade petunias. The grandifloras take a beating during rains if planted in beds, but do bounce back. As pot plants, window box plants or in hanging baskets, they can be better displayed and protected from the weather. Remember that both types can also be obtained with double flowers.

Petunias can be started as seed from August to January, but the tiny, fragile seed are hard for many home gardeners to grow. Seed germinate in about a week, if the ants don't get them first, and plants reach blooming size in 2½ to 3½ months. It's probably easier for most people to buy already started bedding plants and place in the garden from November through March.

The major problem limiting the use of petunias in Florida is disease. Without one major disease, petunias would certainly be a perfect performer. All at once a seemingly healthy petunia will wilt and die. The problem is not directly a lack of water, but a disease called by different names — root rot, stem rot, damping-off, wilt, blight and crown rot

Usually close inspection of a plant will show a dark-brown, girdled area on the stem right near the soil line. Once you find the wilted plant, it's too late. Control of this disease must be on a preventive basis. Sterilization of the planting bed or the use of sterile soil in the pot is the place to begin.

Two materials are commonly used to sterilize the planting site. They are vapam and vorlex. Both chemicals should be applied several weeks prior to planting.

If sterilization is impossible, then a fungicide drench treatment should be applied when plants are placed in the bed. Drenches should be applied once every month after planting. Chemicals which can be used include truban, banrot or captan.

On the evening of Nov. 18, from 7:30-9:00 p.m., there will be a seminar at the Seminole Agri-Center Auditorium at 4320 S. Orlando Drive (17-92) Sanford.

This will be one of our usual monthly seminars and the topic will be "Winter Care of Plants." All are invited and we look forward to having a full house.

All Extension Programs are open to anyone regardless of race, color, sex or national origin.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Stomach Acid And A Gnawing Hunger

DEAR DR. LAMB — My stomach has a high acid content. This was determined from tests at a medical clinic. I have since moved to a new town and no longer take the prescribed medications, which caused me to feel very tired and drowsy.

I have taken a job and am less active so I don't burn as many calories. But I still get the gnawing, hungry sensation when I do not need food. This causes me to gain weight. Occasionally I take an antacid which helps. But I don't know how much to take. I really wonder about taking them at all since I have heard they reduce the calcium in the system.

I have read about Probanthine and Prantal being used to control stomach acid. If it works can it be obtained without a prescription? I'm 56 and don't want to take the tests again since I know what I have. But I need to do something to control my weight because of the acid problem.

DEAR READER — That gnawing feeling that leads to eating to relieve the symptoms is one way to gain weight. Most antacids, when taken in sufficient quantities to neutralize stomach acid, result in a rebound increased acid secretion. Their benefits are strictly temporary. Nevertheless, they are very helpful if used properly.

You don't need to use an aluminum-containing antacid. Try one that is made from calcium. That will prevent the loss of calcium from the bones that you are rightly concerned about.

Yes, Probanthine and Prantal depress the nerve fibers in the stomach that stimulate acid-digestive juice formation. They will really help control acid symptoms but they are prescription items. You need a doctor anyway so why not see one and let him advise you. He might want you to use Tagamet.

There are lots of things that contribute to that gnawing feeling you describe. These include coffee, both the regular and the decaffeinated type. If you adjust your lifestyle you might have fewer of these problems.

The different antacids are discussed in The Health Letter 10-4, Use and Abuse of Antacids, which I am sending you. Others can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm concerned that my mother isn't taking her medication correctly. She has to take several different kinds of pills, and she keeps them all together in one dish in her cabinet.

When I take pills, I often find it difficult to remember whether I am to take one pill three times a day or two pills once a day or what. I have to read the instructions on the pill bottle to keep track. I worry because my mother doesn't bother to do this, yet I suspect her memory isn't even as good as mine.

Also, don't medications weaken or grow stronger when the air is in contact with them?

DEAR READER — Practice helps. If your mother has been taking the same medications for a long time it may be easier for her than you think. But there is also the problem of remembering if you took your pills at all.

There are lots of simple ways to solve this. I think just putting all the pills for each day in a separate envelope helps. You can check then to see if you took them already.

Of course, many pills do deteriorate with time. But for most pills being exposed to the room air, compared to being in an unsealed bottle, won't make much difference.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
November 13, 1982

This coming year there should be a marked development in your leadership qualities. It is possible you'll now originate and direct your own enterprises.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21) This is a day which could turn out to be important for both endings and beginnings. Something may be concluded that you desire, and something begun that you've hoped for. What's in store for you in the year following your birthday? Send $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date. For the NEW Astro-Graph Matchmaker wheel and booklet, send an additional $2. Reveals romantic combinations and compatibilities for all signs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You could be surprisingly ingenious today should pressure require you to come up with new solutions for old problems. They're not apt to be thorns in your side any longer.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Persons in authority will be understanding of your aims and purposes today and might be willing to do things for you which they wouldn't do under ordinary circumstances.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It may be necessary to make some difficult decisions today to attain your objectives. You're not apt to duck them. Success is likely.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A better understanding of yourself and others could result today from an awkward situation. Sometimes when we are tested our nobler qualities are brought out.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Partnership situations take on greater significance than usual today. Involvements with the right people could have far-reaching, fortunate effects.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Associates not usually supportive of your careerwise could do a turnaround today and offer assistance in something important to you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Gemini is noted for being able to handle several situations simultaneously. Today, you'll find ways to use this attribute to your advantage.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) It looks like you'll be able to tie up loose ends today regarding a matter which has caused you some concern.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You've heard the old expression "the harder you work, the luckier you get." This will be especially true of you today in areas you deem to be important.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you apply yourself today, you have the ability to build upon things seemingly of small value to others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Without being too self-serving, focus your efforts today on things which can advance your own interests.

dummy at trick one and won with his ace of hearts over East's nine. Then South led a club to dummy's king and noted the fall of the jack from East. Then he led a spade.

East rose with his ace promptly cashed the king of hearts and continued with the five spot as duly noted by South.

South ruffed with the eight of trumps and played his king. Now South led his last club. West played low and now South had a match point problem. Where was the queen of clubs?

South could be sure of at least four odd if he rose with dummy's ace. He would make five if the ace dropped the queen.

Then South reviewed the bidding and noted that East had made two vulnerable bids. Also, East had led his lowest heart after cashing the king. Was that a suit preference signal of sorts?

South decided that is just what it had been. He finessed dummy's 10 and got to discard his two small diamonds on the ace of clubs and queen of hearts.

Making five instead of four was only worth one extra match point, but it left South with the warm glow of a winner.

Keeping fit and active paid off for approximately 3,000 senior citizens 55 and older entered in the eighth annual Golden Age Games in Sanford this week. For many, it meant the thrill of victory and having an Olympic-style medal hung around their neck.

For others, it meant the fun and excitement of competition as they gave it their best shot. But the camaraderie and meeting new friends from different parts of the country is one of the Games biggest rewards.

Closing activities scheduled for Saturday will be highlighted by the track and field events which begin at 9 a.m. at Seminole High School stadium on Ridgewood Avenue, Sanford. Perhaps the hardest fought competition of the week, the track and field events will include the 50-yard dash, 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 440-yard dash, one-mile run, discus throw, football throw, running long jump, the shot put, softball hitting, softball throw, and high jump.

Demonstrating you're never too old will be 98-year-old Fred Broadwell of St. Petersburg, the oldest participant in this year's Games. He is entered in the football and softball throws, and softball hitting.

Also scheduled to compete in track and field again this year is a father-son combination, Charles C. Leichtenberger, 84, of Winter Park, and Charles W., 60, of Altamonte Springs. They will be competing in the 50- and 100-yard dash, running long jump, and softball throw.

Tune in

While it might not stick to the history texts as closely as some Civil War buffs would like, CBS' miniseries "The Blue And The Gray" is certainly worth watching and certainly better than what the other networks are offering — Brooke Shields' dippy "Blue Lagoon" and a rerun of "Superman." Page 2.

Gary's 'hour'

He may not sing like Merv or tell jokes like Carson, but talk show host Gary Collins is becoming more popular with tube viewers. As is his show, "Hour Magazine" which Collins says provides "useful information," not a bunch of "celebrity banter." Page 5.

.A switch

It's a big task, perhaps even monumental, but Hugh Downs thinks TV viewers are up to it — thinking. Downs gets his first shot at trying next month with the debut of "Spotlight," a cable offering designed to show up just what makes artists tick. Page 8.

Civil War drama comes to CBS as "The Blue and the Gray" unfolds over three nights. Steve Nevil (l.) and Brian Kerwin are two of the cast members, among a star-studded cast that includes Gregory Peck, Geraldine Page, Stacy Keach, Colleen Dewhurst, Rip Torn, Robert Vaughn, Sterling Hayden, Paul Winfield and John Hammond. "The Blue and the Gray" airs Sunday, Tuesday, and Wednesday.

Art May Exceed Accuracy In 'The Blue And The Gray'

NEW YORK (UPI) — The massive eight-hour CBS mini series, "The Blue and the Gray," won't air until Sunday night, but it already may be in trouble with Civil War buffs who fret over accuracy the way a mother frets over sick children.

"CBS wouldn't give us an advance screening," said Michael R. Virgintino of the Civil War Round Table of New York. "They say we're a special interest group."

They are indeed. There are enough Civil War buffs in the United States to replace the Grand Army of the Republic and any one of them can tell you exactly how many threads were used to sew a button on a uniform.

The Confederate Historical Institute in Little Rock, Ark., already has pounced on one rumor — an accurate one — that has the hero of the piece first attending the trial of abolitionist John Brown, then witnessing the brutal lynching of a free black man.

"It seems to some of us, both Northerners and Southerners, these two scenes may set the stage with the impression slavery was the principal cause of the war, and especially that such hangings of blacks were typical events in the south," the institute editorialized in a recent newsletter.

The institute complained such sensationalism "exacerbates present day racial tensions."

Other buffs mutter Columbia invented at least one battle for the series and placed fictional characters at real events in a such a way as to change their historical significance.

Since the controversy will glue every Civil War buff in the nation to his television set during the series, however, CBS can only profit. Letters of outrage after the ratings are in can be borne.

All of which has rival networks ABC and NBC worried.

What, after all, are they to do in the face of a blockbuster like "The Blue and the Gray."

NBC will counterprogram the kickoff of "The Blue and the Gray" Sunday from 8-11 p.m., EDT, with a reprise of the soggy Brooke Shields feature nudie, "The Blue Lagoon," while ABC hurls "Superman" into the breach.

Civil War buffs notwithstanding, if either one drains an appreciable audience away from "The Blue and the Gray," the Nielsen families truly are beyond redemption.

For the average television buff who yawned through the Civil War in American History class and settled for a C-minus, "The Blue and the Gray," which completes its run Tuesday from 9-11 p.m. and Wednesday from 8-11 p.m., is worth watching.

It is gigantic, brutal, bloody, heart-breaking and dramatic — in short, everything that commands an American audience.

The cast of stars is cosmic, even in cameo — Gregory Peck as Abraham Lincoln, Sterling Hayden as John Brown and Rip Torn as Ulysses S. Grant.

But it is to John Hammond, as a sensitive artist sent to cover the carnage as a sketchpad war correspondent with friends and relatives on both sides, the job of telling the story falls.

He tells it on a cinematic scale surpassing "Gone With the Wind."

'On The Air' With Dread

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tom Shales, who does to television what biology students do to frogs, was not a happy man. There he was — on television, plugging his new book and wishing, for the moment at least, he never had written it.

Suddenly, the frog was holding the scalpel and Shales was stretched out on the dissecting table.

"You do feel a little corrupt sitting there trying to sell your book," he said, taking a breakfast break in his multicity promotional tour for "On the Air," a collection of syndicated columns he has written over the years under the banner of the Washington Post.

"I've probably written, 'Oh boy — here's another boring talk show with another book plugger...' And now here I am, doing it myself.

"It's absolutely mortifying."

In the underpopulated world of national television critics, Shales looms large — as generous in praise as he is fearless in denunciation.

In network boardrooms, where burnt offerings are made every week to the Nielsen gods, he blasphemes prime time, heaps abominations upon the sacred altar and makes six-figure executives feel like Bob Cratchit asking for Christmas off.

He is feared. He is respected — and he was appalled at what the hapless book-plugger must do on the television talk shows where books can be driven into the rarified atmosphere of the best-seller.

"When you get on these television shows, everyone is running around like a lunatic saying, 'We had you down for five minutes, but we had to cut you down to two and a half,'" he said.

"While you're very grateful to them for having you on at all, you think, 'What can I possibly say that's meaningful — even if I had it in me at 7 in the morning — in two and a half minutes?'"

Shales' real problem, however, lies in the fact he really does love television and he hates to see it soiled with mediocrity, pretentiousness and smut for dollars.

"It's sort of like saying you love incest or traffic accidents to say you love television," he said. "People look at you like you're crazy."

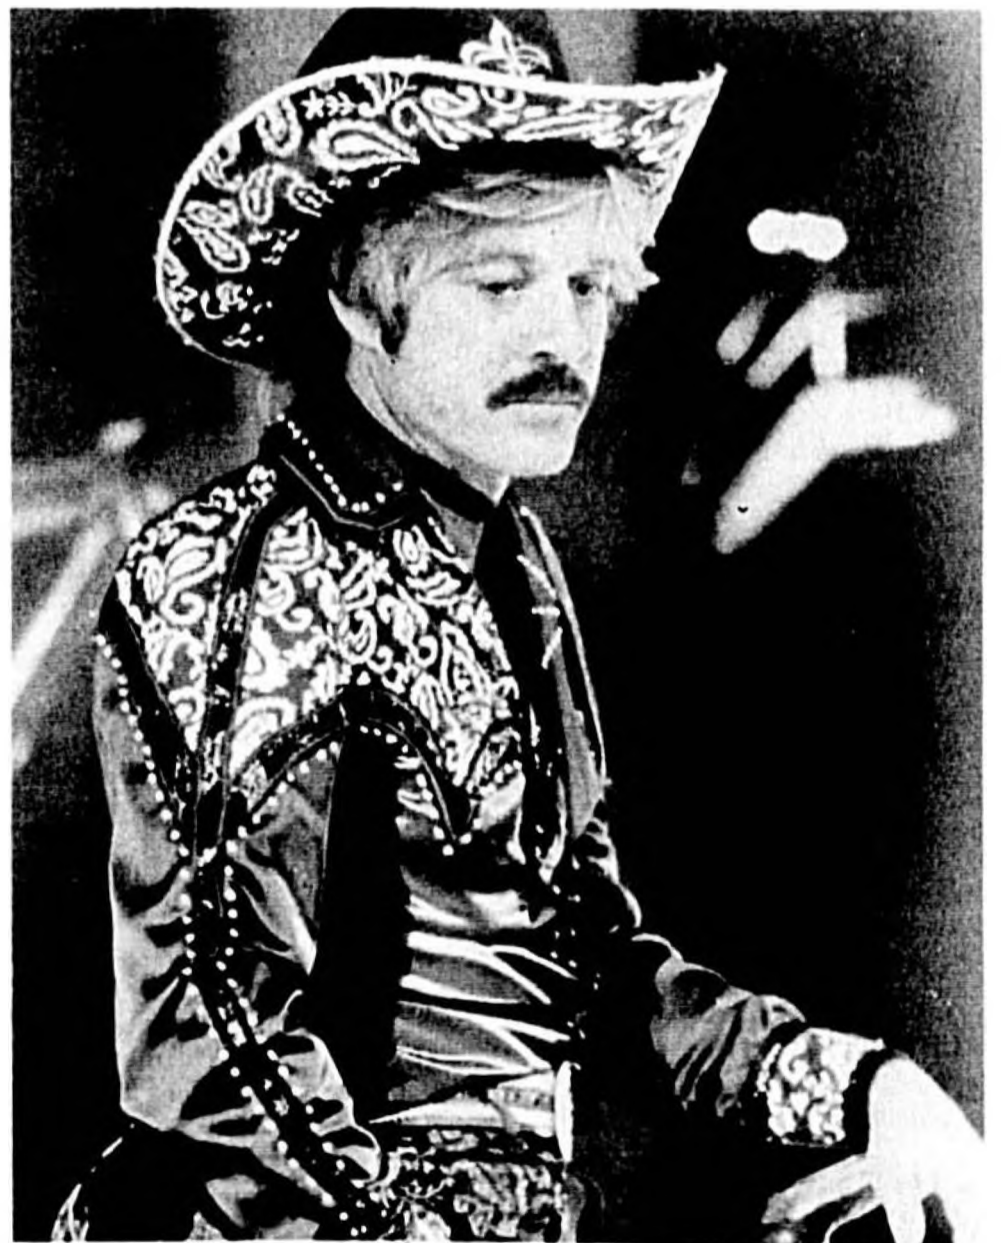

"I think network television is like the walking dead. It still exists and it still makes a fortune, but it has ceased to exist the way it used to be.

"It's become too tawdry. They're using sex the way they use car wrecks — something cheap and easy. It's not that it offends me morally. It's just that when you watch so much of it, it just cheapens your whole outlook on life . . ."

Then, caught in a wave of self-effacement that would amaze some of those whose egos he has lanced, he added a disclaimer.

"There I go again," he said. "This is like an interview with Billy Graham."

Shales' job may take a touch of the evangelist. He said it is tough to watch television for a living and "not lose faith in the medium."

Robert Redford is the world champion cowboy who rebels against the indignity of show-biz glitter in "The Electric Horseman," to premiere Sunday on ABC.

Wedding Bells Ring For Soap Stars

By NANCY M. REICHARDT

Wedding bells rang out in October for Carolyn Jones (Myrna Clegg on "Capitol") and Canadian actor Perer Bailey-Britton. Carolyn was once married to well-known television producer Aaron Spelling.

On the East Coast, Lisa Brown and Tom Nielsen (Nola and Floyd on "Guiding Light") took time out from their busy schedules to say their marital vows in New York City on Oct. 9.

Lisa is currently enjoying her run on the Broadway stage as the female lead in the hit musical "42nd Street." The couple took a short honeymoon before returning to their hectic work routines.

After completing her weekly commitments on "Ryan's Hope," Hene Kristen (Delia Coleridge) heads out to Seabright, N.J., where she appears weekends in concert. Along with a seven-piece backup group, Hene demonstrates her rock singing talents at Life on the Good Side, a local night spot.

Before getting her big break as an actress, Linda Gibboney (Jenny Deacon on "Search for Tomorrow") worked as a free-lance artist. "Once you're an artist, you never give it up," says Linda. "Now I use it to calm me down if my work schedule gets hectic and it also gives me something to do when I'm not so busy."

"One Life to Live" is pleased that they were able to get beautiful Arlene Dahl to return for another limited run as Mimi King's mother, Lucinda.

"Guiding Light" fans that have seen "The World According to Garp," already know that Lori Shelle (Gracie Middleton) has a role in the popular flick. Lori is making her daytime television debut as Gracie.

New to "Another World" is veteran actor Dominic Chianese who plays Albert Krebbs (a.k.a. Albert Nordman). Chianese has appeared in many films including "And Justice for All," "All the President's Men," and "Godfather II."

Collins Fights Trend

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Is America talked out? Have talk shows bent our collective ears to the point of no return?

It would seem so with the disappearance of Mike Douglas and John Davidson, Dinah Shore, Toni Tenille and others.

Merv Griffin and Johnny Carson are losing viewers, despite interesting guests and fewer competitors. Even Donahue isn't the hotshot he once was.

There is, however, one TV personality swimming against the tide. He's Gary Collins, the leading man-host of "Hour Magazine."

His show began with 85 markets three years ago and is now in 138 stations, some of which switched to Collins when Douglas and Davidson folded.

Certainly, Collins is no more convivial than Douglas nor all that much better to look at than Davidson. Neither is he attracting guest stars the others were unable to land.

"Hour Magazine" isn't a continuous parade of movie and television stars plugging their newest movies or TV series. Neither does Collins claim to be a pal of the superstars.

If anything, he appears to be less glib and polished than the others. He doesn't sing like Merv, Mike and John. He doesn't reel off monologues of timely one-liners a la Carson. Sparkle is not his strong suit.

Why then, with growing viewer rebellion against talk shows, is "Hour Magazine" edging upward in the ratings?

"Talk-variety shows ran out of material and guests," Collins suggested. "There began to be a repetition of guests, the same faces going the rounds."

"The market's changed. Today's viewers want meaningful information, not just chatter. Money is so tight and so many people are unemployed that audiences are looking for expert information on how to cope."

"They're interested in hearing from experts on consumerism, economics and budget cutting, medical expenses, weight and diet and other real-life problems they face."

To that end, Collins plays host to dozens of authors of "how-to" books and other authorities with suggestions for improving viewer lifestyles, providing solutions to problems.

In that sense, Collins believes, "Hour Magazine" is indeed an electronic periodical, offering a daily dose of useful information as well as diverting personalities.

"We direct our focus to stories relating to the concerns of the marketplace," said Collins, whose serious demeanor and intensity contrast with the easy, laid-back style of talk show hosts. "The subjects we tackle are not all that different from what viewers find in Good Housekeeping, the Ladies's Home Journal, Family Circle and Better Homes and Gardens."

"The nice part of 'Hour Magazine' is that it doesn't cost subscribers a dime."

"Of course, we try to entertain as well as inform and, to a degree, educate our viewers. I think we make our package seem effortless."

"The book business has become so competitive that 50 percent of our guests are authors. The fact that guests have written books lends credibility to their expertise and the subjects they address."

"Naturally, we mention the books, but we don't promote them. We lose a lot of movie stars as guests because we focus on who they are and what they're doing, not their latest projects."

"However, we do seek celebrities when the basic element is an intimate area of their lives that can help other people — divorce, alcoholism, drugs. It's important because viewers are dealing with the same problems in their families."

"The celebrity can impart vital solutions to crises that help individuals in the home audience. It shows them the light at the end of the tunnel."

"There is a lighter element to some segments of our show but we get more response from viewers looking for information from Dr. Isadore Rosenfeld, our medical advisor, our cooking segment and Dr. William Rader, our psychologist."

"Hour Magazine" is basically about hope and how to cope with life. It beats tuning in for an hour of banter among celebrities, most of which we've heard before."

Kerwin Draws Analogies Of Vietnam And Civil War

By DEBRA MORGENSTERN KATZ

Malachy Hale is one of the first Yankee boys to enlist when war breaks out in 1861. He is bursting with enthusiasm, patriotism and fire — until he sees his first battle. Then, feeling fear for the first time, a crying and shaking Hale tells his brother, also on the battlefield, "I wet my pants."

"He totally freaks out as soon as he sees battle," says Brian Kerwin, who portrays Hale in the "The Blue and the Gray," CBS' three-night saga of the Civil War, beginning Sunday, Nov. 14. "He becomes a deserter."

The themes of fear and heroism that center around the character of Hale are not, says Kerwin, ones with which he easily identifies.

"I don't think I ever experienced that kind of fear. I wasn't in Vietnam," says the 33-year-old Kerwin, who was exempted from army service because of his college student status. "Although," he says, "I don't doubt for a second that I wouldn't have evaded it. I was headed for Canada at the first opportunity."

But, says Kerwin (whose last television role was as Deputy Birdie on "Lobo"), "fear is fear"; and the realistic job done by the director — "scenes of carnage all around me" — helped him actualize some of the terror.

Kerwin saw similarities between the Civil War and Vietnam, which helped to bring the drama home. "The army still advertises the glory of being in the military, as it did then. But there's no indication that people are going to be shooting bullets with intent to kill. And if you don't get killed yourself, your buddy will."

"The Civil War was extremely bloody, like Vietnam — there were huge battles and few victories. At Gettysburg, 3,000 men went in on each side and only 500 on each side were alive at the end. And it was questionable who won.

"And like Vietnam, the soldiers of the Civil War were pathetically ill-trained. In one scene, the sergeant tries to teach us how to load a rifle!"

"The Civil War was a vulgar and heinous war," continues Kerwin. "We were all brothers, neighbors, people of a common heritage fighting each other."

...Golden Age Games

Both competed in the bowling tournament earlier in the week and the elder Leichtenberger also entered the horseshoe contest. The son entered his arts and crafts in the hobby show.

The track and field events are sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Sanford.

Other events on Saturday will include shuffleboard (doubles only) beginning at 9 a.m. at Fort Mellon Park, horseshoes, at 1 p.m., and croquet at 2 p.m.

As of Tuesday afternoon, 108 men and women athletes had paid out $1 per event to enter the track and field competition. Most entered all 12 events. Spectators are admitted free and there are plenty of seats in the stadium. Refreshments and sandwiches are available in the concession stands operated by the Seminole High School Booster Club.

There are 122 entries in the shuffleboard tournament, 50 in horseshoes and eight in croquet. Entries are accepted up until starting time for the final two events.

Many of the Golden Age Games competitors train all year for events such as swimming, bicycle racing, and running. Since its humble beginnings eight years ago, the senior citizen event has grown each year in both the number of events and participants. The Games are co-sponsored by the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce and General Foods' Post Cereals. Individual events are sponsored by local organizations, making it a community-wide event.

Growing popularity of the Games is due in part to the nationwide publicity the event has received and the fact that once they have experienced it, the Golden Agers go home and talk it up to their friends.

One of the most enthusiastic supporters is this year's honorary chairperson, Dorothy Franey Langkop of Dallas, Texas. An Olympic gold medalist speed skater, she is on the U.S. Olympics Board and was chairman of the 1982 Texas Senior Games, patterned after Sanford's Games.

Another avid supporter is Kay Oettlin of Zellwood Station who sparked a drive to get everyone in her mobile home community to enter. As of Tuesday, she had succeeded in getting 125 of her neighbors to enter 17 different events.

At opening ceremonies Monday, U.S. Rep. Bill McCollum, R-Altamonte Springs, told those attending that although most senior citizens remain in their home states when they retire, those who come to Florida have the "pioneer spirit" it takes to start over. "Florida is the home of 'young and energetic senior citizens,'" he said.

At least for one week a year, Sanford is the mecca for just such "young and energetic" senior citizens.

Is There Life After 'Dukes'?

DEAR DICK: Now that "The Dukes of Hazzard" has some new Dukes, what will happen to the old Dukes, John Schneider and Tom Wopat? D.K. Williamsfort, Pa.

A very profound question. They may wind up on some beach somewhere, forgotten like a lot of TV "stars" who began to believe their publicity and felt they were bigger than their shows. (Whatever happened to Suzanne Somers, for example?) Or they may make it on their own. They are trying. I think Schneider has the best shot, because he's a fine singer. But it may turn out that they made the biggest mistake of their lives in holding out for more.

DEAR DICK: Could you settle an argument as to whether Henry Fonda played the part of Emmett Kelly, the clown, in a movie? It was not listed among his movies, but one remembers seeing him in it. G.L., Baton Rouge, La.

It wasn't listed among his movies because it wasn't a movie, but Fonda did play the noted clown in a TV drama. It was based on Kelly's autobiography and was on a CBS

Ask Dick Kleiner

GE Theater production.

DEAR DICK: Please publish the addresses of CBS, NBC and ABC so we can write to our favorite stars. G.P., Kalamazoo, Mich.

Yes, I will do that; but I must repeat that I will not give individual addresses of stars. CBS is at Television City, Los Angeles, CA 90036; NBC is at 3000 West Alameda, Burbank, CA 91523; and you can reach ABC at 2040 Avenue of the Stars, Los Angeles, CA 90067.

Something New On TV — The Art Of Thinking

NEW YORK (UPI) — When television first came upon the scene, Hugh Downs — married to radio — was nervous about its siren song. No such reservations plague him where cable is concerned.

He thinks cable television might even have the capacity to make people think again.

The affable host of ABC's "20-20" isn't about to divorce his successful news magazine, but next month he will go coaxial with a new interview series aimed at revealing just what it is that makes artists tick.

"Hugh Downs' Spotlight" will make its debut Dec. 19 at 10:10 p.m., EST, on the Hearst-ABC ARTS channel with probing interviews of Broadway choreographer Tommy Tune, opera great Renata Scotto and screen star Liv Ullmann. Many more will follow in what Downs hopes will dress up a medium that too long has run around in sneakers and blue jeans.

"As far as the arts go, I've been puzzled by one thing," Downs said. "Television's a magnificent medium... yet it has yet to do what radio did for fine arts and music.

"Radio, in a generation, introduced a vast number of people to classical music. When color came to television, I said, 'Well, now we're going to see the same thing with the pictorial graphic... we're going to see people get acquainted with Renoir and Picasso, but it hasn't happened yet.

"There have been some good programs on art, mostly on PBS, but for some reason, the medium hasn't risen to that challenge — to do for fine arts what radio did for sound."

Part of the problem, Downs said, is commercial television's penchant for squeezing every dollar-dripping moment of air time which, measured at six figures per 30 seconds, has left no time to ruminate.

"I saw something extremely refreshing recently," he said. "I saw the Indian philosopher Krishnamurti asked questions on a very low-budget cable channel. The audience would ask questions and he would ponder — maybe six or eight seconds — and you waited while he thought.

"You know something? It was worth waiting for because it was so refreshingly different from what you see on commercial television. I realized I was seeing something really unusual — a man thinking."

Time to think, said Downs, never has prevailed against how to make money, which is why "low budget" is exactly what he is looking for.

Actually thinking may be a challenge to an audience fed for years at the prime-time trough, but Downs thinks his viewers will be up to it.

"There's a value in thinking," he said. "It avoids panic. An old mountain man named Fitzpatrick, shortly after Lewis and Clark, said 'If you get in a fix, the first thing to do is find a stump and sit down on it and fill a pipe and smoke it to the bottom' — meaning you ought to think about what you do."

Downs, however, won't be sitting on a stump, smoking a pipe with his audience forever. Cable television offers too many exploratory opportunities.
