Altamonte Business Couple To Federal Prison

FISH WARS

After exhausting legal appeals, the co-owners of an Altamonte Springs company that rents respirators to Medicare patients have begun serving federal prison terms for Medicare fraud.

The two are Lois and Boyd Evans, owners of Complete Breathing Care Inc., 794 State Road 54, Mr. and Mrs. Evans were indicted by an Orlando grand jury in August 1976 for making false statements to the Federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare and Social Security Administration on requests for Medicare payments submitted to Blue Shield of Florida, according to federal court records.

The grand jury charged that Mr. and Mrs. Evans falsely stated that Evans Respiratory Centers Inc. (now known as Complete Breathing Care) had delivered medical equipment to various persons when the equipment had not been delivered.

Lois Evans, jailed Jan. 31, was taken last Monday to Lexington, Ky., Federal Correctional Institution. Boyd Evans turned himself into the federal prison camp at Camp Eglin Air Force Base, Florida on Jan. 31.

The Respirator

Mrs. Evans was convicted on 13 counts of fraud on Mar. 20, 1978. Boyd Evans was convicted of three counts of fraud on May 13, 1978. Each was fined $10,000 and given sentence of three years, with at least four months to be served in federal prison.

Mr. and Mrs. Evans were sentenced by Federal District Court Judge John A. Reed Jr. Complete Breathing Care has sued 19 senior citizens, who live all over Florida, requesting the Circuit Court, located in Sanford, to order they pay the company for respirators the company says they loaned, circuit court records show.

Two live in Altamonte Springs, and several live in Orlando. A 78-year-old Lake County woman has argued, in documents filed with circuit court, that the company falsely advertised its services in signing her to a lease for a respirator and that the company wouldn't remove the respirator from her home after three months as she requested.

The woman, Gerie Chaudoin of rural Berwick, also charges in her Feb. 3 counterclaim and answer to Complete Breathing Care's November 1977 suit demanding $5,150 plus interest from her, that the company violated Florida's Deceptive and Unfair Trade Practices Act, the state's commercial code and federal Medicare regulations.

Mrs. Chaudoin asks circuit court to order Complete Breathing Care to pay her a total of $5,150 in punitive and general damages, court costs, attorney's fees and rent for storing the machine at her home after she requested the company to remove the machine.

Mrs. Chaudoin is represented by Thomas E. Fitch, staff attorney for the Sanford office of Central Florida Legal Services, which provides legal assistance in non-criminal matters to those who can't afford an attorney.

Though Complete Breathing Care advertised the respirator would be paid for by Medicare,

Crowds Dwindle, But 'They Still Come'

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — The little boy gripped his father's knuckles, walked waddling toward the artificial grass and dropped a rosebud which would freeze and turn brown in hours. Only a temporary marker distinguished the grave of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, who died of cancer at his lake front home in Waverly, Minn., a month ago Monday.

Wife Trouble? An Answer

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — George and Yvonne Williams were on their way to see their lawyer about a reconciliation Friday when, witnesses said, Williams suddenly stopped his car on a 50-foot-high bridge spanning the icy Wolf River. Motorists, who had to stop on the bridge behind Williams' car, said he got out, marched around to the passenger side, opened the door, came out with his wife's purse and threw it over the bridge. Then, they said, he reached back into the car, came up this time with his wife and heaved her after her purse.

The huge crowds that passed his grave at Lakewood Cemetery in the early days have dwindled to a trickle. Traffic control no longer is necessary.

"But they still come by," said David Halstead, executive secretary of the Lakewood Cemetery Association. "A few drop flowers, like the child with the rosebud. The flowers die quickly, but we remove them regularly."

Humphrey's death created a vacuum — and led to, perhaps, the most tumultuous period in Minnesota's political history.

Muriel Humphrey was named to take her husband's place in the Senate, supposedly as a "caretaker." But she threw the political scene into deeper chaos, hinting she may run for the four unexpired years of his term.

Others who long had coveted the seat were thrown into disarray.

"No one can run against the Humphrey name in Minnesota."

"We've received hundreds of letters, well over a thousand," Kathleen Bovey, Diller's secretary, said. "They were very complimentary. Many asked for a transcript of the service. Many said they had been away from the church for a long time, and said they thought it might be time to try it again."

The church is crowded with visitors, especially on Sunday, Miss Bovey said.

One visitor during the funeral period stole an antique cross made in Germany more than 150 years ago. It hasn't been returned, Miss Bovey said.

Humphrey's favorite granddaughter was Vicki Solomonson, a retarded child of 17, suffering from Down's Syndrome. Humphrey had explained his terminal cancer to her and told her he was going to die.

Vicki lives at the Louise Whitbeck Frazer School for the Retarded in Richfield and, according to the director, is doing well.

"She talks about her grandfather's death and has kept a scrapbook of everything she can lay her hands on about him," Robert Kowalczyk, the school's director, said. "At times she gets sad, but we're really proud of her."

"We've sold out three shipments already," said Brenda Bergquist, book buyer for Powers in Minneapolis. "It's selling steadily all the time."

Halstead said there had been a number of inquiries from people wanting to know about buying a cemetery lot in the area where Humphrey is buried.

The Rev. Calvin Diller, 84, pastor of the House of Love Presbyterian Church who conducted Humphrey's funeral service,

Four Seminole Girls Get Their Act Together—Story, OURSELVES today's Herald.

WILMA DeBUSK WITH HER EMBROIDERY

Special Crooms Program

CPers Get A Chance

By MARYLYN SHEDDAN
 Herald Staff Writer

Courage. That's what it's all about. Michael Wesley has a big-sized helping of it. So does Wilma DeBusk. Both are 19 years old. Both are students at Crooms High School.

Both have cerebral palsy. Michael and Wilma are getting the chance to find out just how far they can go. Apparently that's going to be a very long distance.

Wilma, her eyes studiously close to the hoop in her hands, does delicately detailed embroidery in brilliant colors, and shyly allows it to be seen and praised by teachers and visitors at the school.

Michael spends a lot of time at a loom, weaving, making hangings to sell to faculty and students.

Both participate in the vocational-educational program at Crooms, and both have regular contact with the CP clinic in Orlando.

All the CP literature and personnel take care to point out that, despite the handicaps CP can cause, it does not necessarily result in damage to intelligence.

A few minutes with either Wilma or Michael affirms that fact. While Wilma is shy and Michael aggressive, both are able to communicate their thoughts and needs.

But such abilities are not always recognized, even by attending physicians.

"Michael was a patient at Sunland in Gainesville before he came to us," says John Dintyry, work-study coordinator for exceptional children at Crooms.

But Sunland was providing little, if anything, beyond institutionalized apathy for Michael, and one day, "his mother went and picked him up and brought him here to us, and said, 'I want him to go to school,'" Dintyry remembers.

Dintyry's program, which includes Michael, Wilma, two other CP victims and 120 other students, provides job training in a variety of areas for handicapped students.

"We have body repair, industrial arts, carpentry, painting, automobile repair, business education including use of bookbinding, printing and other electric equipment," Dintyry points out with pride.

"We also have a complete institutional kitchen and the students have received two contracts in the past to provide hot meals to the elderly in Sanford. We hope to

Sadat, Israel Leader Have Surprise Meeting

BERCHTESGADEN, West Germany (UPI) — Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisky in a surprise announcement Friday said Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli opposition leader Shimon Peres are meeting today at Kinsheim Castle. Sadat, exiled in West Germany, is expected to meet with Peres in the Bavarian Alps, before flying to Austria.

Later today, Sadat will go on to Bucharest for meetings with Romanian Communist Party General Secretary Nicolae Ceausescu, who played a behind-the-scenes role in Sadat's decision to go to Jerusalem in November.

Trudeau: Spying Won't Stop
OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau says the Soviet KGB from keeping up espionage activities in Canada, but he is hoping for improved ties between the two countries anyway.

In Moscow, the official Tass news agency denounced the expulsion of 11 diplomats and a ban on two others for trying to infiltrate the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Security Service as a campaign by opponents of the relaxation of international tension and improvement of Soviet-Canadian relations.

Panel: Secret Panama Report
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Intelligence Committee is considering releasing a "sanitized" secret report on allegations Panamanian leader Omar Torrijos and family members may have been involved in lucrative rackets of smuggling drugs into the United States.

The report, congressional sources indicate, reviews numerous allegations received over the years by U.S. intelligence agencies.

44 Die in Uruguay Crash
MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (UPI) — As many as 44 persons may have died in the crash of a World War II vintage DC3 plane in northeast Uruguay, the nation's worst air disaster, officials said today.

The American-built Uruguay Military Air Transport plane exploded in flames Friday afternoon on ranch lands less than two miles from the airport in Artigas, 360 miles northeast of Montevideo.

which Mrs. Chaudin says she didn't use the machine, which was rented to her for $60 a month. "I don't know how the company would provide complete home respiration and inhalation therapy service," Mrs. Chaudin's lawyer said. "The company's performance was at variance with its advertising."

Mrs. Chaudin claims she signed a one-year lease for a respirator in January 1977 and that she was told, "I would not have to pay even one penny" because Medicare would pay for renting the respirator.

When the machine was brought to her house, the machine's operation was explained to a neighbor, Mrs. Chaudin says, because she didn't understand how to operate the machine.

New Charges Due Against Dallabrida?

By MARK WEINBERG
Special Staff Writer

The state attorney's office is considering whether to file additional charges against Albert Dallabrida Sr., after he pleaded in court this week to copy court to making an improper turn, which carries a $250 fine.

Dallabrida was driving the family car in Sanford last Oct. 28, when Dallabrida's wife and three of his children were killed in a collision.

"I am stating the file now," said Don Lawrence, a felony investigator for the state attorney's office. "No final decision has been made on whether to file other charges against Mr. Dallabrida."

Dallabrida entered his plea to the charge of making an improper turn before County Court Judge Alan A. Dickey, 840 CHECK CHANGE.

A Miami man was taken Friday from Dade County jail to Seminole County jail, San Francisco, charged by the state attorney's office with passing a worthless check.

George Marvin Cochran, 42, was arrested Wednesday by Dade County sheriff's deputies at the request of the Seminole County sheriff's office on a Seminole County arrest warrant. Cochran's head was set at $5,200.

PROSTITUTION SUBJECT
Caseberry police Friday afternoon arrested a Caseberry woman for solicitation of prostitution, possession of a controlled substance and possession of paraphernalia.

Tolson to county jail, bond for Connie Charlene Frucha, 26, of 289 Jasmine Rd., was set at $5,200.

A Seminole County deputy, wired for sound and posing as a potential customer, went to Mrs. Frucha's home, police said.

When the woman refused to admit prostitution, police outside knocked on the woman's door, arrested her for offering prostitution and discovered marijuana and paraphernalia in the home, police said.

provide another model soon."

One problem plaguing Dinsley, with all his students, as well as the staff at the CP clinic. There is no way to transport these students to jobs, even when they are qualified and eager to work.

Both Dinsley and Victoria Killins, administrative coordinator for United Cerebral Palsy of Central Florida, are working with a group made up of public agencies providing help for the handicapped in order to push the Seminole County Commission into providing bus service between Sanford and Orlando so the students can get to jobs.

They are also looking for employers who are willing to hire the handicapped.

"We have one student working at a restaurant, one at a manufacturing plant, and several others placed around the area," Dinsley says. "But we could place a lot more if people would only go and take a look at the jobs the kids are capable of doing."

United Cerebral Palsy of Central Florida was founded in 1967 as a non-profit organization. It serves seven counties, including Seminole, Orange, Osceola, Brevard, Lake, Sumter and Volusia, according to Mrs. Killins.

About 750,000 persons in this country are affected by cerebral palsy, and about each year 15,000 babies are born with the condition," she says.

The clinic provides information, assistance and job training opportunities, as well as family counseling for parents and children with CP, which can result in very obvious physical deformities or in simple speech impediments.

"A mother's illness during pregnancy, a RH incompatibility in the parents' blood types, a lack of oxygen when the baby is born, a baby being born too soon, illness, injury, even child abuse can cause CP," Mrs. Killins says.

"We are not a United Way organization," Mrs. Killins says. "We receive our funding from memberships, fees, and donations, and we are a private non-profit agency. Everything we have collected for several years has stayed in our area, helping our own people."

'Angel Dust' Made Me Do It, Actor Admits

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The only suspect booked in the 12 "Hillside Strangler" sex killings has been set free, saying he implicated himself in the crimes only because he was high on "angel dust."

Leaving police headquarters Friday, Ned T. York, 37, a bit part actor, said he was still too drugged to talk about it.

A-Test Watchers Hunted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon is trying to contact up to 200,000 people who may have faced harmful radiation in open-air atomic tests between 1946 and 1963.

The total figure represents an estimate of all military and civilian personnel who played some part in tests in Nevada and at Eniwetok and Bikini atolls in the Pacific, a spokesman said.

Those Fine Refunds: Bills Filed To Get 'Em Moving

By JANE CARROLL
Special Staff Writer

About 1,000 drivers, who paid a total of $20,000 to $40,000 in tax overcharges under a law that was later declared unconstitutional, are still waiting for their refunds.

While Arthur Beckwith Jr., county clerk of the court, says he is still "waiting on" some legislators in Tallahassee are trying to hatch bills that call for the funds to be paid to the state's general fund and the county fines and forfeiture fund.

Eight bills have been drafted in the house of representatives and the state supreme court until the State Supreme Court could rule on the constitutionality of the law.

A month later, when the Supreme Court unanimously struck down the law, the justices failed to rule on whether their decision would be retroactive to July 1.

Nicaragua-Bound Weapons Seized
MIAMI (UPI) — A shipment of 30 stolen automatic weapons, wrapped in rusted General Motors cases and apparently bound for strikers in Nicaragua, was intercepted Friday night by federal and local law men.

Four men, including Dade County felon Juan Francisco Perez, 41, of Hialeah, were arrested as they transferred the weapons from the trunk of a car to a pickup camper truck.

A Dade County police spokesman said investigators determined that the weapons, all capable of firing 20 caliber ammunition, were being sent to Nicaragua.

But it was not immediately clear if they were intended for revolutionary forces opposing Nicaraguan President Anastasio Somoza, for his government, or for possible other clandestine operations to be launched in Nicaragua.

A Hialeah gun manufacturer, Universal Programs, had reported the weapons stolen Friday morning, police said. Acting on a telephone tip, members of the Dade County Organized Crime Bureau Territorial Unit, Hialeah police, and the A. S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms staked out a middle-class home in the southwest Miami area, police said.

They surprised the men as they began transferring the weapons from one vehicle to the other.

The other three arrested were identified as: Roberto Garcia, 31, and Helodoro Oliva, 45, both of Miami; and Vicente Eddy Perez, 36, of Hialeah.

Patient Abusers Fired
CHATTAHOOCHEE (UPI) — Florida State Hospital officials fired three psychiatric aides and two nurses after a hidden camera showed them shoving and tripping patients.

Assistant State Attorney Hal Richmond of Quincy filed misdemeanor battery charges against the three men fired by hospital superintendent Bob Williams.

The patient abuse and disciplinary action against the six aides was disclosed Friday by WTVT television of Tampa. That report was confirmed by Faye Alcorn, Williams' administrative assistant.

The abuse was discovered during hidden television surveillance of the hospital's psychiatric ward for three days last month, Ms. Alcorn said.

"There was pushing and shoving, moving people down the hall in a shoving way. It was more abusive to a person's rights, dignity and humanity than it was injurious," she said.

"Some of the patients may have been difficult to handle, but this is certainly not the way we want our patients treated."

A Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services official in Tallahassee said one of the patients was pushed so hard "his pants fell down and they continued to push him." Another was tripped, the official said.

Williams fired David Alan, Bruce Thompson Sr., and Woodrow Fragley, all of Ocala, and suspended for 15 days, George Johnson, Troy Harnden and Theodore Fields, all from the Chattahoochee area.

Most Governor Entries Oppose Farm Worker Unions

ORLANDO (UPI) — Attorney General Robert Shriver says farm worker unions are inevitable and that the best way to deal with them is through federal rather than state action.

Shriver was one of eight gubernatorial candidates who spoke to Florida farm leaders Friday and he told reporters later that farm union organizers are already at work in the state and that "we are going to have to face up to the fact that it is coming."

Most of the candidates indicated they oppose farm labor unions. Others said the best way for dealing with the question is through the federal government.

State Sen. Robert Graham, D-Miami Lakes, said any legislation dealing with farm unions "must be national in scope" and that "a state collective bargaining law for farm workers would be a disaster for agriculture in this state."

Shriver said he thinks the best of available alternatives is to extend the National Labor Relations Act to cover agricultural workers.

U.S. Gov. Jim Williams also said he doesn't favor a state law dealing with farm unionization.

Two Republicans and six Democrats briefly addressed a business meeting Friday of the Agricultural Institute, a non-profit information and public relations organization with 300 members that serves Florida agriculture and related businesses.

While most candidates said simply that they oppose unionization of farm workers, Shriver, who has been endorsed by the state executive board of the AFL-CIO, elaborated on the issue.

"We have to be realistic," he said. "There may only be certain alternatives" to no action. Those alternatives, he said, include extending the National Labor Relations Act to cover farm workers or adopting a state labor relations act.

"I would prefer extension of the NLR Act," Shriver said, adding that if the legislature moves toward passing state laws dealing with farm worker unions, he would limit the legislation to some NLR provisions, such as a ban on secondary boycotts.

On the Republican side, Congressman Lou Frey said, "I oppose unionization of farm workers."

The GOP rival, Jack Eckhard, said there were no unions in his drugstore chain and suggested that farmers facing union problems "do what I do — talk to your workers."

Among the Democrats, Secretary of State Bruce Smathers said he was opposed to farm worker unionization. Jacksonville Mayor Hans Tauscher said if farmers thought their earnings were low now, "you ain't seen nothing yet" if farm workers are unionized.

All of the candidates said they support the greenbelt law that provides a lower taxation rate for agricultural lands although Shriver said the law has been abused by land speculators.

Anita Won't Run

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Singer Anita Bryant will not change her mind about running for lieutenant governor, according to her husband, Bob Green.

Green said his wife is not interested in a political career.

The couple doesn't plan to endorse any candidate for governor, Green said, adding there are so many, they don't know enough to make a choice right now.

"We'd have to do some research if we're going to come out in support of anybody," he said in a telephone interview from Miami.

"I can say that for the rest of our lives, we will never play the party game," he added. "Anita's a Democrat and I'm a Republican, but whatever we do, we'll be voting for the man and not the party."

Jackie Marshall Tauscher said "Anita Bryant is one of those being given some consideration" as his running mate. Both are active in religious work and have appeared together for Christian witnessing.

But he has not approached her and if he does, says Green, the answer is "no."

Lake Mary And Secrecy

The Seminole County city of Lake Mary has been thrust into the limelight because of resident complaints of police harassment. Just how to deal with these complaints heads the city's council agenda Friday.

We hope that whatever procedure is adopted is consistent with fundamental democratic principles in a representative government.

The whole issue surfaced when an 18-year-old resident, Corey Lee Riley, openly charged the police with harassment. A city-council-appointed committee later cleared the police.

Miss Riley's allegations, however, were the spark for other residents who, at the council's Feb. 2 session, confronted it with further allegations of police harassment.

This verdict was encouraged by Mayor Walter Sorenson who concluded that any public airing, such as the Feb. 2 meeting, "obviously is not working." Just what he meant by that and how he came to that conclusion he did not explain.

But the council agreed only with him. The council also agreed that from now on written complaints of official misconduct would be accepted.

We have no trouble with that approach. Councilman Bart Pritchard, the police commissioner, suggested a "systematic and orderly method for handling public or private concerns in the nature of grievance or complaint." He proposed that any complaints be investigated in steps—from supervisory personnel, to the police chief, and finally to city council and mayor for appeal.

This sounds reasonable. But there is one catch. Such investigations and discussions would be out of the public eye. That is—in secret.

We do have trouble with that approach. Such a procedure, however, was enthusiastically embraced by Councilmen Pat Nelson and Cliff Nelson. Both agreed that many of the complaints that had been aired before the council were "self-serving and headline-hunting."

There was no elaboration and no specifics. Just this glib observation.

Mrs. Southward also called "hearsay" those complaints that had been aired publicly in open council session. Just how first-person recitation of events can be "hearsay" is not clear to us.

Mr. Nelson further suggested that the problem should be considered in workshop session "in an empty room with no one here."

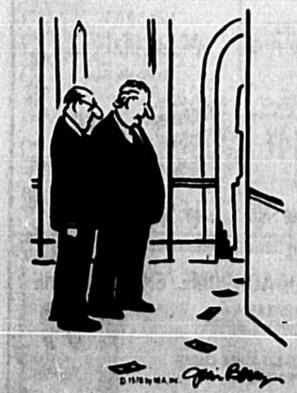

This is hardly the basis for democratic procedure. And this tendency toward secrecy is frightening.

If residents of a community cannot feel free anytime to air their grievances and seek redress in public before their neighbors and elected officials and to hold them accountable in public, where can they do it?

Secrecy only muddies a situation, prompting rumors, ruminations, half-truths and misconceptions—all of which hampers the search for truth.

We urge the Lake Mary City Council to opt against secrecy and any hint of whitewash in getting to the bottom of this situation and, instead, to encourage open, free participation of the public by which it was elected.

Whatever happened to the philosophy of separation of powers where city governments were presumed to do that except provided in the national government?

Separation of powers, checks and balances, the good old American way.

It is fast disappearing in municipal government in Seminole County. Now, mayors and city council members are insisting that the mayor of a community, the chief executive, must have a vote.

I still can't find anyone who can explain to me why a mayor must have a vote. Some say that the mayor is the only person who can explain to the voters what the city is doing. That may be true, if everybody is on the same side of a question, harmony is the only thing that can exist. But, what price harmony?

Imagine what our national government would be like if the president proposed the laws, voted on their passage and then executed them.

It certainly is understandable why the City of Sanford's government includes the mayor as a voting member of the commission. Sanford has a city manager to administer its government. So, in effect the city commission is his check and balance.

Altamonte Springs has one of the mayor city charters in the country and its mayor has a veto and is in effect city manager of that community. The people of Altamonte are fortunate in having Norman Floyd as their mayor. A lesser qualified and dedicated individual than Floyd could wreak havoc on the city with all the power given to the mayor in that city charter.

A charter revision commission in Longwood recently recommended that the mayor there have a vote. A citizen in Casselberry argued this week that a referendum be called to amend the city charter to give the mayor a veto.

Now, Winter Springs is preparing to create a charter city government. What do you want to be that one of the things that will come out of it is a recommendation that the mayor be given a veto?

Mayor Troy Filand of Winter Springs had a quick return to a councilman in his city recently who was leaning a bit on him concerning an appointment.

"If you wanted to be mayor," Filand said, "why didn't you run for the office?"

At that same councilman, Don Sims, was explaining how each council member would have an opportunity to do the things that the mayor would do. Filand said he would be giving the authority to make an appointment to that councilman.

These requests, "If you wanted to be a councilman, why didn't you run for it?" the easiest way to achieve it would be to have only one person running the government. I think that concept has been tried before, but democracy has always been the better.

One of the signs of good health in any government is when harmony doesn't exist. When each person elected to office is fulfilling his responsibilities, doing his homework and gaining good knowledge on every issue to have a differing opinion.

I don't think harmony in government, with every elected official agreeing with one another, is really what the people are looking for. What they would probably like to see is public officials treating one another courteously and respectfully. But, that only requires that officials be civilized.

ANGLE-WALTERS Do We Have An Ignorant Citizenry?

WASHINGTON — The bad news about declining educational performance in America continues to roll in, with no end in sight to the trend.

By now we should be immune from shock, but the mounting evidence that students of all ages are learning less and less as their parents pay more and more for their "education" never ceases to amaze.

The latest bulletin from the school house door reports that teachers have lost ground during the course of the 1976 in their knowledge and understanding of the basics of citizenship.

In 1976, 15-year-old and 17-year-olds know less about the workings of the nation's political process and the structure and function of its government than their counterparts of 1970 to 1972.

The sorry details are contained in a narrative, federally funded survey, the National Assessment of Educational Progress, which for nearly a decade has measured student performance in a wide range of subjects.

One of the highlights, if that is the term, of the current study include:

— In 1976, less than half of all 15-year-olds, some 45 percent, could give an acceptable answer to the question, "What is democracy?"

— Only 18 percent of the 17-year-olds and less than 20 percent of the younger teens understood how presidential candidates are nominated. For the 17-year-olds, this represented a 14-point decline from the earlier survey.

— The test scores of the 17-year-olds, a drop of 9 points from the previous survey, and only one-fifth of the 15-year-olds could name at least one of the U.S. senators or House members.

— Only 16 percent of the 17-year-olds in 1976 realized the U.S. Supreme Court is part of the judiciary, down from 74 percent in the earlier study, and just 7 percent knew the high court can declare a law unconstitutional by a simple majority vote.

— The news was not all bleak. Older teenagers in particular showed an increased respect and tolerance for people of another race, and a growing understanding of the problems of the poor.

— And, possibly as a result of the soaring Vietnam experience, youngsters in both age groups improved in their ability to suggest methods of resolving future wars.

On balance, however, the assessment presents a depressing picture of the future role of American teenagers in a democratic society.

The declining test scores are more their academic condition. They reflect, all too painfully, the inability or unwillingness of young adults to exercise the most fundamental privilege and responsibility of citizenship — the right to vote.

RONALD REAGAN Tax Revolt Coming To A Big Boil

Talk of property tax revolt continues to simmer just about anywhere that inflation, swollen costs and rising taxes are the order of the day. But about everywhere in those United States, but California is the place where the revolt is coming to a boil. It should reach that temperature by June 8, the date of the Golden State's primary election.

That day, the Jarvis amendment — which would limit property tax to 1 percent of a home's value — will go before the voters. It got a record 12 million petition signatures to qualify for the ballot.

Two causes underlie the California tax revolt. Like so many things in California, inflation seems to have a larger-than-life quality. In one popular area of Los Angeles, alone, taxpayers who paid $100,000 for their homes just a decade ago are being squeezed up at a quarter-of-a-million dollars today. The other factor is the state's huge budget surplus.

GIVE THE MONEY BACK — Worried that the Jarvis amendment will pass, Gov. Brown and the legislature are battling back and forth with various tax relief measures. There is one obvious solution they aren't saying much about: give the money back to the people who paid it. When I was governor I proposed that and found that making such a recommendation to a legislative body is a little like getting between the log and the barrel. You get bogged down a bit. In fact, one state has already passed a similar proposal — "an unnecessary expenditure of public funds."

If the Jarvis amendment does nothing, else, it has gotten the Big Spenders' attention in California. They talk of little else. No wonder. If it passes, they will have to stop spending parties.

Predictably, the Spenders have gone into a Chicken Little routine. Working from the assumption that public expenditures can never go down and that no economies are possible, they have tried to convince voters that the state would require a two-thirds vote of the people for local agencies to increase other taxes to replace the property tax revenue, so opponents of the measure have warned solemnly that the state would have to assume the cost of the lost local revenue by jacking up sales and income taxes.

OLD ARGUMENT — The net result, according to the Spenders, would be a tax "shift" and a tax savings. They used that argument in 1972 when we were elected and it was the percentage of the people's income government could take to run its affairs. They scared enough voters to defeat our proposal (though it was so soundly rejected that it is now in the state's history books). This time, the taxpayers haven't been buying the tax "shift" argument. My travels around the state, I am finding just the opposite: most people can't wait to go to the polls to vote for the Spenders.

Chalk Talk: Education

Dimitry Appeals: 'Help My Kids'

One of the things that seems to me not many Seminole County educators report is an intangible quality which seems to be made up of one-third idealism, one-third performance (or is that stubbornness) and one-third enthusiasm.

On occasion that combination is balanced with a strong academic background — and a driving need to help kids.

The result is something akin to John G. Dimitry, work-study coordinator for occupational education at Orange High School.

Dimitry would probably be offended at being called naive, and probably it isn't an entirely fair word — but he is naive in the sense that he believes that every person ought to get a chance to do the best he can for himself. So perhaps he is naive in the sense of being called idealistic.

But Dimitry also is a realist. He gets angry, frustrated and occasionally belittled when "his kids" don't get what they need — like transportation.

"Because the Seminole County Commission will not provide transportation we cannot get these kids to jobs even when they are ready, able and eager to work," he complains.

Unlike some idealists, however, Dimitry is not willing to sit on his hands. He is working with representatives of various agencies in the county to prepare some sort of argument about the need for public transportation between Seminole and Orange Counties.

"It has to be economically feasible, of course. There will be riders on those buses," Dimitry says.

In the meantime, there have to be people who are willing to state that they will ride the buses if a line should happen when they are provided.

The County Commission cannot be faulted for not providing transportation when the studies show it might well be worth the cost. The federal way to change that is about about using it — and then do it when the transportation is provided.

Not only will the "people on the street" benefit from such transportation, if they use it, but the benefits will be increased by the amount of money those young people are able to earn and bring back into this area — and by their independence, which surely serves a great deal in areas which might otherwise be spent on their special care.

There is a restaurant in Sanford which seems to be the lunchtime gathering place for teachers, faculty and other staff members from the local school system — and it is amazing to hear the way educational people talk about the CP in the tube at the lunch table.

A recent discussion — which did leave out names, a protection which does not always happen — revolved around a 16-year-old Seminole County student, and they went to let people know what CP is all about and to encourage people to watch the Television, on WDBO Orlando Channel 6, to see what can be accomplished by people with CP.

Marilyn Shekdan

Other than the present one-to-one alternative system.

Dimitry's problem is a fairly straightforward one and his teachers spend their time, energy and a lot of heart taking kids who, in many cases, already consider themselves failures or at least unable to cope in the world, and turn those kids into people with the ability to hold down a paying job.

Then there have to be people who are willing to state that they will ride the buses if a line should happen when they are provided.

A recent discussion — which did leave out names, a protection which does not always happen — revolved around a 16-year-old Seminole County student, and they went to let people know what CP is all about and to encourage people to watch the Television, on WDBO Orlando Channel 6, to see what can be accomplished by people with CP.

There is a restaurant in Sanford which seems to be the lunchtime gathering place for teachers, faculty and other staff members from the local school system — and it is amazing to hear the way educational people talk about the CP in the tube at the lunch table.

Other than the present one-to-one alternative system.

Dimitry's problem is a fairly straightforward one and his teachers spend their time, energy and a lot of heart taking kids who, in many cases, already consider themselves failures or at least unable to cope in the world, and turn those kids into people with the ability to hold down a paying job.

Then there have to be people who are willing to state that they will ride the buses if a line should happen when they are provided.

The County Commission cannot be faulted for not providing transportation when the studies show it might well be worth the cost. The federal way to change that is about about using it — and then do it when the transportation is provided.

Not only will the "people on the street" benefit from such transportation, if they use it, but the benefits will be increased by the amount of money those young people are able to earn and bring back into this area — and by their independence, which surely serves a great deal in areas which might otherwise be spent on their special care.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
Feb. 12, 1919

Several good things will come to you this year in small packages, but you could also get one handle that's really big. You'll write the script yourself, but luck will get top billing.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
Customers will have little sales resistance when you give them the pitch today. Your charm and enthusiasm work like a one-two punch. Find out more about yourself by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 68, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10101. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
There is a strong possibility you may benefit materially from two different sources today. One channel will be completely unexpected.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
You'll be in a rather jovial mood to begin with today, but you'll be even more entertaining when attractive members of the opposite sex are around.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
The percentages for getting a favorable response on your side today regarding requests you make for career or financial assistance.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
Conditions in general are extremely promising for you

WIN AT BRIDGE

Operation squeeze follows the cash and one trump to discard a diamond from dummy and his last trump to force West to unguard his queen of diamonds in order to hang on to the high heart.

YOGA: SCC Students Say It Offers Improved Health; Peace Of Mind

The Eastern Shore Community College students are finding that the physical benefits of yoga are not the only ones. They are also finding that the mental and spiritual benefits are equally important. The students are practicing yoga in a room that is quiet and peaceful. They are sitting on mats on the floor, performing various poses. The instructor is standing in the background, watching the students. The students are all smiling and appear to be enjoying the class.

The yoga class is held every Tuesday and Thursday. The students are practicing yoga in a room that is quiet and peaceful. They are sitting on mats on the floor, performing various poses. The instructor is standing in the background, watching the students. The students are all smiling and appear to be enjoying the class.
